question is, upon what principle this proceeds. Is the executor the vendor, and if so, has he a legal power which enables him to pass the estate at law independently of the trustee? V. C. (late L. J.) Knight Bruce seemed, on one occasion, to think that the cases of Shaw v. Borrer and Ball v. Harris might have been decided on this footing (a), and some recent cases lean in the same direction (b). But in the earlier cases the notion of the executor passing the legal estate in such a case was never suggested, and what was said by the Court of Exchequer in Doe v. Hughes was at least true at the time it was spoken, viz. that not a single case could be produced in which a mere charge had been held to give the executors a legal power (c). Have the executors then an equitable power, and is the trustee who has the legal estate bound to convey it as the executor directs? This doctrine would be a very rational one, but there is no trace of it in the cases themselves. Apparently they were decided on the familiar principle that in a Court of Equity there is no difference between a charge of debts and a trust for payment of debts (d), and that the trustees therefore took the legal estate upon the trusts of the will, the first of which was to pay the testator's debts. It is certainly not a little remarkable that after an examination of all the authorities upon the subject, there does not appear to be one in which the trustee has sold alone, without the concurrence of the executor. This circumstance may be easily accounted for, as trustees of the will are almost invariably appointed executors also, and where that is not the case, the purchaser naturally requires the concurrence of the executor, not on the ground that he is the vendor, but to satisfy the purchaser that the sale of the real estate is bonâ

R. H. L. 731. In Shaw v. Borrer, the trustees and executors were co-plaintiffs, and the prayer of the bill was, that the purchase-money might be paid to the executors. This, if done by the order of the Court, would indemnify the trustees; but it did not follow that the trustees, on the completion of the sale out of Court, could have allowed the executors to receive the money. The question to whom the money should be paid was not adverted to in the argument, nor does it appear to whom it was paid.

(a) Gosling v. Carter, 1 Coll. 649.

(b) See Robinson v. Lowater, 17 Beav. 592; 5 De G. M. & G. 272; Eidsforth v. Armstead, 2 K. & J. 333; Wrigley v. Sykes, 21 Beav. 337; Storry v. Walsh, 18 Beav. 568; Colyer v. Finch, 5 H. L. Ca. 905; Hodkinson v. Quinn, 1 J. & H. 310; Greetham v. Colton, 34 Beav. 615.

(c) Doe v. Hughes, 6 Exch. 231. [See Re Tanqueray-Willaume and Landau, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465, 476, where it was regarded as settled law, that a charge alone would not enable the executors to pass the legal estate.]

(d) Elliot v. Merryman, Barn. 81; Ex parte Turner, 9 Mod. 418; Jenkins v. Hiles, 6 Ves. 654, note (a); Bailey v. Ekins, 7 Ves. 323; Ball v. Harris, 4 M. & Cr. 267; Wood v. White, 4 M. & Cr. 482; Commissioners of Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 197.

fide from the insufficiency of the personal assets. In some of the cases the Court has noticed, but not laid any stress upon, the circumstances of the personal representative concurring (a), or of the characters of trustee and personal representative being combined; but in others that fact has been passed over in silence as a mere accident, and the Court has relied on the general doctrine that a trustee of the estate charged with debts could sell, and sign a valid discharge for the purchase-money (b). In Doe v. Hughes (c), the case most adverse to the powers arising from the charge of debts, it was admitted that by a devise to trustees of the real estate, subject to a charge of debts, the trustees had thereby imposed upon them the duty of raising the money to pay the debts, and this was the opinion of Lord Hardwicke, as expressed in a case which we do not remember to have been cited. In Ex parte Turner (d), where the estate had been given subject to debts, but no express trust was created for the purpose, he observed: "Where a devise is general 'in trust' or 'subject to pay debts,' the devisee may sell or mortgage, but he must pay the money to the creditors of his devisor; but if he do not, the mortgagee is not to suffer, for in cases of these general devises he is not obliged to see to the application of the money he advances. But even in this case inconveniences often arise, for where the estate is equitable assets, as it is where it is accompanied with a trust, the creditors who have not specific liens upon the land ought to come in equally, and pari passu. However, if the trustee prefer one creditor to another, where he ought not, the remedy usually is against the trustee, and not the lender of the money, for if the latter was to see to the application of his money upon so general a trust, he could not safely advance his money without a decree in this Court."

If the trustees of an estate charged with debts can, by virtue not of the express trust but of the trust implied by the charge, sell the estate and sign a receipt for the purchase-money, it would seem to follow that they cannot allow the proceeds to be paid to

(a) See Shaw v. Borrer, 1 Keen, 559; Forbes v. Peacock, 12 Sim. 537; and see V. C. Knight Bruce's remarks upon Shaw v. Borrer, and Ball v. Harris, in Gosling v. Carter, 1 Coll. 649. But in Ball v. Harris, the V. C. of England observed: "It is manifest that Harris (the trustee), who had the legal fee, was competent to mortgage that estate to any person who would advance money for the benefit of the testator's estate," 8 Sim. 497; and it is equally clear that Lord Cottenham was of opinion that Harris was a trustee for payment of debts; 4 M. & Cr. 267.

(b) See Ball v. Harris, at the passages referred to in the preceding note; Forbes v. Peacock, 12 Sim. 546.

(c) 6 Exch. 231.

(d) 9 Mod. 418; and see Colyer v. Finch, 5 H. L. Cas. 922.

the executor, as not being the proper hand to receive (a), the executor in that character having no privity with the real estate. The necessity of requiring the concurrence of the personal representative would often lead to practical inconvenience, for on the death of the executor intestate there would be no personal representative of the testator, and the personal assets having been exhausted, there would be no fund for taking out letters of administration; not to mention that, should the executor be held to have any concern with the proceeds of the real estate, by virtue of the will, the administrator, not being appointed by the will, would not succeed to the power of the executor, which should be borne in mind as of some importance in considering whether the sale is substantially that of the executor, or of the trustee who takes subject to the charge.

Should the neat point ever call for a decision, it will probably be held that the trustee, without the concurrence of the executor, can give a good title (b).

Lord St Leonards' Act.

By the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), sect. 14, where, by a will coming into operation after 13th August, 1859, [and before 1st January, 1898 (c)], a testator charges real estate with the payment of debts, or any specific legacy or sum, and devises the estate so charged to trustees for the whole of his estate or interest, and makes no express provision for raising the debts, legacy, or sum, the devisees in trust may sell or mortgage; and by sect. 15, the power is continued to all persons taking the estate so charged by survivorship, descent (d), or devise; and by sect. 17, purchasers and mortgagees are not bound to inquire whether such powers "have been duly and correctly exercised by the person or persons acting in virtue thereof." Where debts are charged, of course a purchaser or mortgagee under these powers is not bound to see to the application of his money, and where a specific legacy or sum is charged, if the above enactments do not per se confer a power of signing receipts, a purchaser or mortgagee from trustees is exempted from seeing to the application by the 23rd section of the same Act (e).

(a) See Gosling v. Carter, 1 Coll. 650, where V. C. Knight Bruce says: "If payment ought to be made to one, it is not, necessarily, a good payment to make that payment to one and another."

(b) The case of Hodkinson v. Quinn, 1 J. & H. 303, when closely considered, will be found to afford little aid towards solving this question; and see Cook v. Dawson, 29 Beav. 126; 3 De G. F. & J. 127.

[(c) The commencement of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, as to which see ante, pp. 248, 533.]

[(d) And s. 30 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), seems to extend this to the legal personal representatives of a sole surviving trustee.]

[(e) See also the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 20, ante, p. 535, replacing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 36.]

The 18th section declares that the Act shall "not extend to a devise to any person or persons in fee or in tail (a), or for the testator's whole estate and interest, charged with debts or legacies, nor shall it affect the power of any such devisee or devisees to sell or mortgage as he or they may by law now do." To make this section consistent with the 14th, the "devise" referred to in the 18th section must mean a beneficial devise, and "devisee or devisees" a beneficial devisee or devisees, and the inference would seem to be that, in the view of the framer of the Act, no legislative assistance was needed in the case of a beneficial devise subject to a charge. Indeed, the concluding words of the section seem almost tantamount to a declaration of the legislature that beneficial devisees subject to a charge have power to sell or mortgage, which is the case we next proceed to consider (b).

Devise to a person beneficially with a charge of debts.

β. If a testator charge his debts and devise the estate subject to the charge to A. and his heirs not upon trust but for his own use, can the beneficiary in this case make a good title? The answer to the question last discussed is an answer also to this, for if, where the express trust negatives the intention of conferring a power to sell, the trustee can still make a good title, it is evident that he can only do so by virtue of the charge. Any distinction between the two cases would be in favour of the beneficial devisee, for if the trustee in defiance of the express trust can sell, a fortiori the devisee can, who is fettered by no such restriction. In both instances the charge operates as a trust for payment of debts, and is attended with all the same consequences. "A charge," said Lord Eldon, "is in substance and effect pro tanto a devise of the estate upon trust to pay the debts" (c), and "this," observed Lord St Leonards, on citing the dictum, "is supported by the current of authorities" (d). It is clear that the devisee can, where he also fills the character of executor, make a good title (e), [and give a good receipt to the purchaser, though not expressly purporting to execute the deed as executor (f),] and in some of the cases the Court did not in terms rely on the characters being

[(a) The expression "devise to any person or persons in fee or in tail" will not include a devise in futuro, e.g. contingently upon the devisee attaining a particular age: Re Barrow-in-Furness Corporation, (1903) 1 Ch. 339.]

[(b) See In re Wilson, 34 W. R. 512; 54 L. T. N.S. 600.]

(c) Bailey v. Ekins, 7 Ves. 323.

(d) Commissioners of Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 198.

(e) Elton v. Harrison, 2 Sw. 276, note; Elliot v. Merryman, Barn. 78; Dolton v. Young, 6 Madd. 9; Johnson v. Kennett, 6 Sim. 384; 3 M. & K. 624; [Re Rebbeck, 63 L. J. Ch. 596;] Eland v. Eland, 1 Beav. 235; 4 M. & Cr. 420; Page v. Adam, 4 Beav. 269; Corser v. Cartwright, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 971; affirmed by H. L., 7 L. R. H. L. 731; [Re Venn and Furze, (1894) 2 Ch. 101, 112].

[(f) Re Henson, (1908) 2 Ch. 356.]

combined (a), but it is singular that no authority can be found in which the question whether the devisee alone can make a good title has arisen.

In the Court of Exchequer (b) it was said that in a devise to trustees, subject to a charge of debts, the trustees could sell; but that a charge in the hands of a devisee, if the lands were devised, or in the hands of the heir-at-law, if the lands descended, was a charge only in equity. The Court was there considering, more particularly, the question of legal powers; but if it was intended to be said that a devisee, subject to a charge, could not sell and sign a receipt for the money, the doctrine is inconsistent with the nature of a charge of debts in equity as commonly understood. The prevalent opinion hitherto is believed to have been that a devisee subject to debts can sign a receipt for the purchase-money (c), and the cases in which the Court has upheld purchases from a devisee with the concurrence of the executor, but without relying upon such concurrence, would be a trap for purchasers should the Court refuse to uphold a purchase from a devisee only. Considering the declaratory words contained at the end of the 18th section of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35 (d), it may now, it is conceived, be safely assumed that under that Act a purchaser from a devisee subject to a charge of debts, would, without the concurrence of the executor, acquire a good title.

Charge of debts where there is no devise of the estate.

γ. If a testator charge his debts on the real estate, and does not devise the estate at all, but allows it to descend to the heir, can the heir sell and sign a receipt for the purchase-money? It appears to be clear that he cannot, for he takes nothing under the will, and cannot therefore be regarded as a person constituted by the testator a trustee by implication for payment of debts (e); he can pass the legal estate, but he could not sign the receipt; i.e. if the heir misapplied the money, the creditors might still come upon the estate.

Whether executor can sell in such a case.

But in this case, if the heir is disabled from selling, can the executor sell (i.e. independently of the statute of 22 & 23 Vict. to

(a) Elliott v. Merryman, Dolton v. Young, Johnson v. Kennett, Eland v. Eland, ubi sup.; Colyer v. Finch, 5 H. L. Ca. 905, 922.

(b) Doe v. Hughes, 6 Exch. 231.

(c) See the cases cited ante, p. 544, note (d).

[(d) See ante, p. 547.]

(e) See Gosling v. Carter, 1 Coll. 650 (where the V.C. said that the intention to be collected was, that the heir-at-law should have nothing to do with it); Robson v. Flight, 34 Beav. 110; 5 N. R. 344; S. C. on appeal, 4 De G. J. & S. 608; Doe v. Hughes, 6 Exch. 231; Forbes v. Peacock, 11 M. & W. 637, 638; [and under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), the estate will vest in the executor, or in the administrator when appointed].

be mentioned presently), for otherwise the charge of debts amounts to a direction for a Chancery suit? (a). The legal question arose in Doe v. Hughes (b) before the Court of Exchequer, and the Court held that a charge had no operation at law, but must be enforced in equity. This decision has been found much fault with. The Master of the Rolls said that before the case in the Exchequer he had considered the law to be that a charge of debts gave the executors an implied power of sale (c); for otherwise, it is argued, in the case of a charge where the estate descends, there can be no sale without the aid of the Court. But this does not appear to follow. If a testator expressly direct that his estate shall be sold (without naming the person), and the fund is to be distributed in a way in which the executors alone can distribute it, a power of sale is given to the executors by implication over the legal estate even in Courts of law (d). By analogy to this, where there is no direction to sell, but only a charge of debts, this last, though an umbra in a Court of law, creates an equitable power of sale or mortgage in the view of a Court of Equity—i.e. the executor may contract for the sale, and on the acceptance of the title by the purchaser, the person in whom the legal estate is vested will, as being a trustee for the executor, be compellable to convey as the executor directs, and if he refuses, the legal estate may be vested in the purchaser by the aid of the Trustee Acts (e). In Gosling v. Carter (f), Vice-Chancellor Knight Bruce declined to give an opinion whether a mere charge of debts gave to the executors a power of sale either at law or in equity, but would not compel a purchaser to take the title from the executor without the concurrence of the heir-at-law. In Robinson v. Lowater (g), the legal estate was already in the purchaser, so that the legal question did not arise, but it was held that the executors had given the purchaser a good title. In Eidsforth v. Armstead (h), Vice-Chancellor Wood professed to

(a) See Robinson v. Lowater, 5 De G. M. & G. 275.

(b) 6 Exch. 223.

(c) Robinson v. Lowater, 17 Beav. 601; and see Wrigley v. Sykes, 21 Beav. 337; Storry v. Walsh, 18 Beav. 568; Sabin v. Heape, 27 Beav. 553; Hodkinson v. Quinn, 1 J. & H. 309; Cook v. Dawson, 29 Beav. 123; 3 De G. F. & J. 127; Greetham v. Colton, 34 Beav. 615; Hamilton v. Buckmaster, 12 Jur. N.S. 986.

(d) Forbes v. Peacock, 11 M. & W. 630: Tylden v. Hyde, 2 S. & S. 238; Bentham v. Wiltshire, 4 Madd. 44.

(e) See Re Wise, 5 De G. & Sm. 415; Hodkinson v. Quinn, 1 J. & H. 303.

(f) 1 Coll. 650, 652.

(g) 17 Beav. 592; 5 De G. M. & G. 272; and see Storry v. Walsh, 18 Beav. 568.

(h) 2 K. & J. 333. It does not appear how the purchaser had got or was to get the legal estate, whether from the executor, as having a legal power, or from the trustee, on the construction that the legal fee simple follow Robinson v. Lowater, and held the power of sale to be, according to the report, in the trustees, which, however, appears to be a mistake for the executors. The surviving trustee had devised the trust estate, and the devisee therefore could not sell, but the surviving trustee was also surviving executor, and appointed the devisee his executor, and in the character of executor the devisee might be thought to represent the original testator, though it seems the better opinion that even then the power of sale would not pass to him (a). In Wrigley v. Sykes (b), the Master of the Rolls decided that the executors could contract for the sale of the estate, but guarded himself by saying that the Court, as far as it could, would certainly secure to the purchaser a good legal estate when the conveyance was made. It is conceived that Doe v. Hughes was a perfectly sound decision upon the legal question, but that the executors have an equitable power of sale, and consequently that the holder of the legal estate is a trustee for them (c).

[Power of sale not implied in administrator.]

[As the power of sale is implied because the executors are appointed by the testator to pay his debts, there has never been any such implication in the case of an administrator, who is not appointed by the testator, but is the officer of the Probate Court (d).]

Lord St Leonards' Act.

By the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), sect. 16, as to wills taking effect since 13th August, 1859, where a testator charges his debts or any legacy or specific sum, and has not devised the hereditaments so charged "in such terms as that his whole estate and interest therein shall become vested in any trustee or trustees," the executor for the time being may sell or mortgage (e); and by the 23rd section, the purchaser or mortgagee is not bound to see to the application of the money, and it would seem that the executor is thus empowered to pass the legal as well as the equitable estate, for the clause proceeds that vested in the trustee under the will, or from the trustee, as having the legal estate during the life of H. Toulmin, with the concurrence of H. Toulmin, as having the legal estate in remainder, so as to extinguish his power of appointing by will. The case loses much of its force from the amicable manner in which the point was submitted to the Court.

Power of executor to sell and pass legal estate.

(a) See Sugd. Powers, 129, 8th ed.

(b) 21 Beav. 337; and see Colyer v. Finch, 5 H. L. Cas. 922; Cook v. Dawson, 29 Beav. 123; Greetham v. Colton, 34 Beav. 615.

[(c) See Re Tangueray-Willaume and Landau, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465.]

[(d) Re Clay and Tetley, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 3.]

[(e) Where one executor has renounced probate, the acting executors or executor for the time being may exercise the powers of this section, notwithstanding the will contains an express direction that the property shall be sold by the executors; Re Fisher and Haslett, 13 L. R. Ir. 546.]

"any sale or mortgage under the Act shall operate only on the estate and interest, whether legal or equitable, of the testator, and shall not render it unnecessary to get in any outstanding subsisting legal estate." It must not escape notice that the power of sale is confined to the executor, the person to whom the testator himself trusted, and is not extended to an administrator (a).

Charge of debts where the estate lapses.

δ. Should a testator charge his debts on the real estate, and then devise the estate to A. and his heirs beneficially, and the devisee dies in the testator's lifetime, so that the estate descends, can the heir in this case sell and sign a receipt? If the heir cannot sell where the estate was never devised, but left to descend, a fortiori he cannot in this case, for here not only the heir is not invested with the character of trustee under the will, but the estate, subject to the charge, was devised to another person, who was therefore intended to execute the implied trust. The machinery contemplated by the testator failed by the act of God, and no alternative remains but that the trusts should be executed by the Court (b). It is presumed that under these circumstances it could not be held that the executors have by the will even an equitable power of sale. The devisee, had he lived, would have been the proper person to execute the trust, and a power of sale cannot belong to the executors, as the testator could not be taken to have contemplated his own intestacy as to real estate.

Lord St Leonards' Act.

However, by the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859, (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), sects. 16 & 23, as to wills coming into operation since 13th August, 1859, the executor may sell or mortgage and sign a receipt for the money.

Charge of debts where the estate is subjected to various limitations.

ε. Suppose a testator to charge his debts, and to devise the estate to A. for life with contingent remainders or other limitations, which render it impossible that the implied power of sale can be executed by the devisees. This has occurred in several cases (c), and the result appears to be that the Court, if it can possibly avoid it, will not construe the charge as a direction for a Chancery suit, but will assume that a power of sale for payment of the debts was given to some one, and that as it was not given to the devisees it must have been intended for the executors. In such a case the executors must be considered as having an equitable power of sale. The case in the Exchequer (a) directly decided that the executors have no power themselves to pass the legal estate. Where, in the case supposed, the executors take an implied equitable power of sale upon the face of the will, it is immaterial whether the devised estates do or not lapse, except that the legal estate will, as the event happens, be in the devisees or in the heir-at-law. If a conveyance cannot be obtained, recourse must be had to the Trustee Acts for the transfer of the legal estate.

[(a) Re Clay and Tetley, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 3; as to the effect of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, see ante, pp. 248, 533.]

(b) But see Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 109; Austin v. Martin, 29 Beav. 523. The latter case may possibly be supported on the ground that the mortgagee, who had a power of sale and of signing receipts, was a party to the conveyance; but the reasoning of M.R., if correctly reported, is not satisfactory. How can it be said, for instance, that "the whole of the beneficial interest was vested in T. F. Stephens, either in his character of heir-at-law or in his character of legal personal representative"? What beneficial interest in a testator's freehold estate can vest in his personal representative?

(c) Gosling v. Carter, 1 Coll. 644; Eidsforth v. Armstead, 2 K. & J. 333; Wrigley v. Sykes, 21 Beav. 337;

Lord St Leonards' Act.

However, the statute of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35 appears to apply to such a case, for though the devise is not to trustees as required by the 14th section, yet it is a case within the 16th section, where "the whole estate and interest" of the testator "has not become vested in any trustee or trustees"; and it is presumed that the 18th section was meant to except from the Act devises to a person or body of persons taking the fee-simple or fee-tail in præsenti free from executory limitations over, and not devises of the fee-simple to several persons in succession for particular estates (b).

True principle.

The true principle which, independently of the enactments referred to, ought to govern these cases would appear to be, that where a testator devises the estate to trustees, or to a beneficiary, and charges his debts, there the trustees or the beneficiary should have a power of sale and signing receipts, but that where a testator charges his debts, and does not devise the estate, or devises it in such a manner that there is no one who can execute the trust, there the executors should have an equitable power of sale and signing receipts, and that the depositories of the legal estate should be trustees for them, and bound to convey as they direct; but that where the testator has devised the estate, and therefore provided a hand to execute the trust, but the trustee or devisee dies in the testator's lifetime, there, as the hand to execute the trust has only failed by the act of God, no person has a power of sale or signing receipts, but the trust can only be executed by the Court.

Bolton v. Stannard, 4 Jur. N.S. 576; and see Robinson v. Lowater, 17 Beav. 592; 5 De G. M. & G. 272; Sabin v. Heape, 27 Beav. 553; Greetham v. Colton, 34 Beav. 615; Hooper v. Strutton, 12 W. R. 367.

(a) Doe v. Hughes, 6 Exch. 223.

[(b) See Re Barrow-in-Furness Corporation, (1903) 1 Ch. 339, ante, p. 547, note (a).]

16. It remains to notice the decision of Sir J. Romilly, M.R., in the case of Storry v. Walsh (a), which appears to show that the devisee, subject to a charge of debts and legacies may, with the concurrence of the executors declaring that all debts and legacies have been paid, sell for his own private purposes, and give a good title to a purchaser. This case resembles that of an executor, who is also specific or residuary legatee, selling a chattel interest for his own private debt (b). Storry v. Walsh.

[17. Before quitting this subject it will be proper to advert to the question whether the power of selling or mortgaging the property which arises under the charge of debts is affected by sect. 56 of the Settled Land Act, 1882 (c). That Act, after giving to the tenant for life of settled property, amongst other large powers, a general power of sale, and a power of mortgaging for specific purposes, and providing by sect. 56, sub-sect 1, that powers given by the settlement to trustees are not to be prejudicially affected by the Act, enacts in sub-sect. 2, that "the consent of the tenant for life shall, by virtue of this Act, be necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the settlement or other person of any power conferred by the settlement exercisable for any purpose provided for in this Act," and the question is whether this makes the consent of the tenant for life necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the power of selling or mortgaging which arises under a charge of debts. The power of mortgaging given by the Act of 1882 is now by sect. 11 of the Settled Land Act, 1890 (d), which is to be read and construed together with the principal Act, extended to the raising of money for the purpose of discharging incumbrances on the settled land, and under sect. 21 of the principal Act, the proceeds of any sale effected under the general power of selling may be applied in discharging the incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land. The purpose of paying off incumbrances seems to be strictly a "purpose provided for in this Act," and it is difficult, construing the Acts fairly, to avoid the conclusion that the trustees cannot mortgage or sell, without the consent of the tenant for life. The result of this construction of the Acts is without doubt inconvenient, and the view that the power of sale arising under a charge of debts is unaffected by the 56th sect. is supported by weighty opinions (e), [Effect of Settled Land Act.]

(a) 18 Beav. 559; and see Howard v. Chaffers, 2 Dr. & Sm. 236.

(b) As to receipts of executors, see post, p. 560, et seq.

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38.]

[(d) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69.]

[(e) See Wolstenholme and Turner's Settled Land Act, 7th ed. p. 367; 8th ed. p. 387.]

but until that view has received the sanction of the Court, a purchaser could not be safely advised to accept a title from the trustees without the consent of the tenant for life (a).]

Who must sign the receipt.

18. As the trust for sale is a joint office, the receipt must be signed by all the trustees who have undertaken to act. And where a power is given to trustees to discharge the purchaser from seeing to the application of his purchase-money, the receipt must be signed even by a trustee who has parted with the estate by a conveyance to his co-trustees; for the transfer of the estate at law carries not along with it the confidence in equity (b). But the receipt need not be signed by a trustee who has disclaimed, for by the effect of disclaimer the acting trustees are put exactly in the same plight as if the renouncing trustee had never been mentioned (c).

Power to sign receipts in one, and delegation to another.

19. As a trust cannot be delegated, it follows that if A. & B. be trustees for payment of debts, and they convey the estate to C. upon the like trusts, the purchaser could not safely pay his purchase-money upon the receipt of C. In Hardwick v. Mynd (d), the executors and trustees renounced probate, and (probably with the intention of disclaiming) conveyed the estate to C., the heir-at-law; and certain mortgages made by C. were upheld. It might have been argued that as the trustees, by disclaiming, vested the estate in the heir, he was properly the trustee to sell or mortgage. It would be difficult, however, to maintain that the heir under such circumstances could sign a receipt, and certainly the Court did not put it upon that ground, but said that the mortgages, if made by the trustees, would have been good, and that they were in fact made by them, as they had deputed C. to act for them in the trust. Such a doctrine, however, at the present day could not be sustained.

Power of signing receipts, as regards trustees appointed by the Court.

20. As a general rule, where a special discretionary or arbitrary power was given to trustees, and the settlement contained no proviso for the appointment of new trustees with similar powers, it was not competent for the Court, [prior to the recent Acts,] on the substitution of new trustees by its own inherent jurisdiction, to invest such trustees with that arbitrary power. But in a trust for sale an authority to sign receipts is not a mere power, but enters into the substance of the trust; that is, it is so interwoven

[(a) As to the meaning of the term "tenant for life," and the limited owners who have the powers of a tenant for life, see ss. 2, 58, and 62; and see also post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2, v.]

(b) Crewe v. Dicken, 4 Ves. 97.

(c) Adams v. Taunton, 5 Mad. 435; Hawkins v. Kemp, 3 East, 410; Smith v. Wheeler, 1 Vent. 128.

(d) 1 Anst. 109; and see Lord Braybroke v. Inskip, 8 Ves. 432.

with the trust itself that there can be no execution of the trust without the accession of the power; and in such cases the appointment of new trustees by the Court may be taken to have included the power. Thus, suppose A. and B. are trustees of an estate to sell for payment of debts, and on the death of A. and B. the Court appoints C. and D. upon the like trusts; if C. and D. cannot sign receipts, they cannot sell, and their appointment as trustees is nugatory (a). [But now, by recent Acts (b), trustees appointed by the Court have "the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act" as if originally appointed by the instrument creating the trust.]

Receipt after a breach of trust.

21. It sometimes happens that the trustees had clearly at first a power of signing receipts, but subsequently, by a breach of trust or some irregularity in the administration of the estate, the fund has got out of its proper channel, and then the question arises whether, if the person who ought never to have had possession of the fund intend to restore it to its proper state, the trustees can sign a receipt. It may be said that as the power never contemplated a breach of trust, it would not be safe to consider the exercise of the power as an indemnity, if the money cannot be properly paid to the trustees upon any other ground: on the other hand, if the fund be reinstated in specie, so that it is standing in the exact form in which the trust required it, and in the names of the persons whom the settlement appointed the trustees, how can it be said that in such a state of things any liability can remain? (c).

Re-sale of unauthorised investment in real estate.

22. It not unfrequently happens that trustees without any sufficient power lay out trust money in the purchase of real estate, and then the question arises when they want to sell again whether they can make a good title (d). [In a recent

(a) See Drayson v. Pocock, 4 Sim. 283; Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58; Bartley v. Bartley, 3 Drew. 385; Lord v. Bunn, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 98. As to the powers generally of trustees appointed by the Court, see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2.

[(b) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 27; since repealed and its place supplied by the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 37, reproducing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 33; and see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2.]

(c) See Lander v. Weston, 3 Drew. 389; Hanson v. Beverley, Sugd. Vend. & Purch. 848, 11th ed. In Carver v. Richards, A. & B. were trustees of Mrs Warren's settlement, dated 31st May, 1825, which contained a power of investing the trust fund on a mortgage of lands of inheritance in fee simple, with the usual receipt clause. On 27th July, 1826, the trustees invested 1200*l.* on a mortgage of a term of 500 years. On 23rd November, 1844, the owner of the fee subject to the term paid the 1200*l.* to A. & B., who assigned the term to attend, and the receipt of A. & B., notwithstanding the breach of trust, was held to be sufficient; M.R., 10th December, 1859. The defendants appealed from the decree upon other points, and also included this, but wanted the courage to argue it at the hearing.

(d) The case may be provided for case where trustees had, without any power so to do, purchased land and had it conveyed to them upon the trusts of the settlement, and afterwards resold it for a much larger sum than they gave, it was held that upon the purchase-money being invested by the trustees on the securities authorised by the trust, and on one of the cestuis que trust concurring in the sale to show that they had not all elected to take the real estate as realty, the purchasers would have a good title from the trustees (a); and this has since been followed (b).]

Sale where no money is to be received by the trustees.

23. Where the trust estate is in mortgage, and the money receivable by the trustees is applicable either wholly or in part in payment of the mortgage, of course the trustees may sell and sign a receipt for the difference, or, if there be no surplus beyond the mortgage, may sell without signing any receipt.

Hope v. Liddell.

24. Where the trustees have a power of signing receipts, it was held not to be necessary that the trustees who signed the receipts, should themselves actually receive the money, provided it was paid to some person by their direction, and the transaction did not on the face of it imply a breach of trust (c). Thus, where the purchase-money was expressed in the deed to be paid to the trustee, and a receipt by the trustee was endorsed, but in fact the money was paid, by the direction of the trustee, to the tenant for life, Lord Romilly, M.R., said that the purchaser was bound to pay the money as the trustee directed (d), and having obeyed that direction was exonerated from the consequences. Various transactions might have occurred between the trustee and cestuis que trust (such as the execution of a previous mortgage on sufficient security), which would make such a payment perfectly legitimate (e). The Court in this case was protecting a bonâ fide by a special condition of sale, or the sanction of the Court may be obtained in a suit for the purpose; see Robinson v. Robinson, 10 Ir. Rep. Eq. 189.

[(a) Re Patten and Guardians of the Edmonton Union, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 787; 48 L. T. N.S. 870; 31 W. R. 785.]

[(b) Power v. Banks, (1901) 2 Ch. 487, 496; Re Jenkins and Randall, (1903) 2 Ch. 362.]

[(c) In Re Flower and Metropolitan Board of Works, 27 Ch. D. 592, Kay, J., seems to have been of opinion that such a transaction necessarily implied a breach of trust; but see ante, p. 325. However, in the present state of the authorities no trustee can be advised to allow his co-trustee to receive trust money unless the circumstances of the case render it necessary.]

[(d) But see as to this Re Bellamy and Metropolitan Board of Works, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 387; Re Flower and Metropolitan Board of Works, 27 Ch. D. 592, where it was held that the purchaser could not be compelled to pay to the nominee of the trustees, or even to one of the trustees by the direction of the others, and see ante, p. 529.]

(e) Hope v. Liddell, 21 Beav. 202-3; and see Locke v. Lomas, 5 De G. & Sm. 326; M'Carogher v. Whieldon, 34 Beav. 107; [Ferrier v. Ferrier, 11 L. R. Ir. 56;] but see Pell v. De Winton, 2 De G. & J. 13.

purchaser, and the principle here laid down must be applied with great caution. A purchaser who has paid his money to another by the direction of the trustee may be protected under the special circumstances of the case, but no purchaser who has the money still in his pocket can be advised to pay it to any other than the trustee or his solicitor duly authorised to act as his agent (a) [under the provisions of sect. 17 of the Trustee Act, 1893, already referred to (b)].

Receipts for money extraneous to trust.

25. A power of signing receipts in a settlement will extend only to what the trustees are by the settlement authorised to receive (c).

Feme covert.

26. When one of the trustees is a married woman, [to whom the provisions of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (d), are not applicable], the questions arise, can she by virtue of the power sign a receipt without the concurrence of her husband, who is answerable for her acts; and ought the money to be paid to herself, or to her husband who on the one hand is answerable for her acts, but on the other hand is not the person pointed out by the settlement as the hand to receive it? It would appear on principle that the money cannot be paid to the husband, who is a stranger, and the safest course would be to pay the money into some responsible bank in the joint names of the trustees (excluding the husband), and to take a written receipt from the trustees, to be also signed by the husband as sanctioning the receipt by the wife (e). [The concurrence of the husband may, however, be dispensed with if he has abjured the realm or is an outlaw (f), and where a married woman who is a trustee sues under Order 16, Rule 16, without her husband, she can give a good discharge for the money recovered under the judgment without his concurrence (g). And where the marriage has taken place since the 31st December, 1882, or the trust has been undertaken by the married woman since that date, she can sign a receipt for the money, without the concurrence of her husband, who is not to be answerable for her acts unless he has intermeddled in the trust (h).]

[(a) Re Bellamy and Metropolitan Board of Works, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 387; Re Flower and Metropolitan Board of Works, 27 Ch. D. 592; Re Hetling and Merton, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 269; and] see Re Fishbourne, 9 Ir. Eq. Rep. 340; and ante, pp. 529, 530.

[(b) See ante, p. 530.]

(c) Pell v. De Winton, 2 De G. & J. 20, per Cur.

[(d) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(e) See Kingsman v. Kingsman, 6 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 122, 128, 131.]

[(f) Per Lord Selborne, L.C., Kingsman v. Kingsman, 6 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 122, 128.]

[(g) Kingsman v. Kingsman, ubi sup.]

[(h) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, ss. 1, 2, 5, 24; see ante, p. 35.]

Solicitor receiving purchase-money.

27. If the trustees of an estate, bound by a contract for sale of a date prior to the trust deed, execute a conveyance to the purchaser, and sign a receipt endorsed, and leave the deed in the hands of the solicitor of the settlor, who had contracted to sell, and the solicitor completes the sale, and receives the purchase-money and misapplies it, the trustees are personally liable to the cestuis que trust, as having improperly enabled the solicitor of a third person to get possession of the fund (a).

Practical directions where no power to sign receipts.

28. The following observations of Lord St Leonards upon the subject of trustees' receipts deserve every attention. "Where," he says, "a purchaser is bound to see the money applied according to the trust, and the trust is for payment of debts or legacies, he must see the money actually paid to the creditors or legatees. In cases of this nature, therefore, each creditor or legatee, upon receiving his money, should give as many receipts as there are purchasers, so that each purchaser may have one; or if the creditors or legatees are but few, they may be made parties to the conveyance. Another mode by which the purchaser may be secured is an assignment by all the creditors and legatees of their debts and legacies to a trustee, with a declaration that his receipts shall be sufficient discharges, and then the trustee can be made a party to the several conveyances. Sometimes a bill is filed for carrying the agreement into execution, when the purchase-money is of course directed to be paid into Court; and this is the surest mode, because the money will not be paid out of Court without the knowledge of the purchaser" (b).

Principle suggested.

29. From the preceding discussion the fundamental principle may be collected, that (where no Act of Parliament applies (c)) a purchaser is in all cases bound to see to the application of his purchase-money, unless a positive intention to the contrary on the part of the settlor be either expressed or implied in the instrument creating the trust. Such indeed is the conclusion to which the authorities conduct us; but, independently of precedent, it might be suggested that the better principle would be, that primâ facie, a direction to sell should imply in all cases a power of signing discharges; but that where it was practicable,

(a) Ghost v. Waller, 9 Beav. 497; and see Wood v. Weightman, 13 L. R. Eq. 434; West v. Jones, 1 Sim. N.S. 205; [but see now the Trustee Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 17, ante, p. 530].

(b) Vend. & Purch. 848, 11th edit.

(c) See 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 23; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 29; [Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 36; replaced by Trustee Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 20, ante, p. 535].

and no impediment to the execution of the trust was thereby created, the purchaser should pay his money directly to the party beneficially entitled. The distinction between the two principles is very material. According to the former rule, if a trust be created for payment of debts and legacies, and the debts be paid, and then the trustees sell, though the purchaser has notice of all debts having been discharged, he is, nevertheless, not bound to see to the application of his purchase-money, because there was an implied intention by the settlor that the receipts of trustees should be sufficient acquittances (a); but, by the operation of the latter rule, the purchaser would be bound, for the necessity of his paying the money immediately to the legatees would not, if they were of age, prevent the completion of the sale, and therefore there is no reason why the purchaser should be exempted from seeing to the application. Again, suppose a trust for sale, with a direction to distribute the proceeds between A., B., and C., and that, after the date of the instrument, C. quits the country or cannot be found. According to the first principle, as the absence of C. was not an event in the contemplation of the settlor, and no inference can be drawn that he meant the trustees to sign receipts, it follows that the sale is rendered impossible, and the contradiction arises, that the settlor having in express terms directed a sale, and it being admitted that the will of the settlor is authoritative, yet the execution of that intention is intercepted by the construction of equity. "It were difficult," says Lord St Leonards, "to maintain that the absence of a cestui que trust in a foreign country should, in a case of this nature, impede the sale of the estate" (b), and yet to such a result the rule in question, if there be no exception to it, would apparently lead. But according to the other principle suggested, no such obstacle arises. The receipts of the trustees would then primâ facie be discharges, as necessary to the execution of the sale; and as C. is not at hand, the purchaser, in respect of C.'s share in the purchase-money, could not be called upon to observe a rule which would interpose a bar to the accomplishment of the expressed purpose of the settlor (c).

Cestui que trust abroad.

[30. If a person is interested in property in several capacities, and in one of such capacities can give a valid discharge for the [Person interested in several capacities.]

(a) See ante, p. 540, et seq.

(b) Sugd. Vend. & Purch. 844, 11th ed.; and see Forbes v. Peacock, 12 Sim. 544; Ford v. Ryan, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 342.

(c) Receipts of trustees are now in most cases made sufficient discharges by Act of Parliament, see ante, p. 535.

purchase-money on the sale of the property, a purchaser who has no notice of an intended misapplication by such person of the purchase-money will be discharged by his receipt (a), and it is immaterial that the conveyance does not show that the vendor is selling or receiving the purchase-money in the capacity in which he is empowered to do so; and where a person was both executrix and trustee, and as such executrix and trustee had power to carry out a transaction, and she purported to carry out such transaction as a trustee, in which capacity she had not the power, it was held that the transaction was validly effectuated (b).]

Receipts of executors.

31. As executors are to a certain extent invested with the character of trustees, it may be proper to introduce a few remarks upon their powers in disposing of the assets.

Power to sell or mortgage.

On the death of a testator the personal estate (c) vests wholly in the executor, and to enable him to execute the office with facility, the law permits him, with or without the concurrence of any co-executor (d), to sell or even to mortgage (e), by actual assignment or by equitable deposit (f), with or without a power of sale (g), all or any part of the assets, legal or equitable (h); and though liable to render an account to the Court, he cannot be interrupted in the discharge of his office by any person claiming dehors the will, as a creditor, or under it, as a legatee. The

[(a) Corser v. Cartwright, 7 L. R. H. L. 731; West of England and South Wales District Bank v. Murch, 23 Ch. D. 138; Re Venn and Furze, (1894) 2 Ch. 101, 114.]

[(b) West of England and South Wales District Bank v. Murch, ubi sup.; and see Re Henson, (1908) 2 Ch. 356, ante, p. 547.]

[(c) Under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), in the case of persons dying after the commencement of that Act, real estate vests in the executor, as if it were a chattel real (s. 1, sub-s. 1); and if there are several executors, it vests in all, and not only in those who prove the will or act: Re Pawley and London and Provincial Bank, (1900) 1 Ch. 58; and as to the powers of the executor, see ss. 2-4.]

(d) Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 725, per Lord Thurlow; Smith v. Everett, 27 Beav. 446; Shep. Touch. 484; Murrell v. Cox and Pitt, 2 Vern. 570; Fellows v. Mitchell, 2 Vern. 515; Doe v. Stace, 15 M. & W. 623; Dyer, 23, a.; and see Sneesby v. Thorne, 7 De G. M. & G. 399; [Re Macdonald, (1897) 2 Ch. 181, 189; and as to the power of one executor independently of his co-executor, see ante, pp. 295, 296].

(e) Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145, see 148; Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 727, per Lord Thurlow; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 240, per Lord Hardwicke; Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 138, per Lord Alvanley; M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 154, per Lord Eldon; Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 357, per Sir J. Leach; and see Humble v. Bill, 2 Vern. 444; Sanders v. Richards, 2 Coll. 568; Miles v. Durnford, 2 De G. M. & G. 641.

(f) Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 725, per Lord Thurlow; and see M'Leod v. Drummond, 14 Ves. 360; S. C. 17 Ves. 167; Ball v. Harris, 8 Sim. 485.

(g) Russell v. Plaice, 18 Beav. 21; and see p. 564, ante.

(h) M'Leod v. Drummond, 14 Ves. 360, per Sir W. Grant; Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 463; [Graham v. Drummond, (1896) 1 Ch. 968].

creditor has merely a demand against the executor personally (a), the pecuniary or specific legatee is not entitled to the legacy or bequest until the executor has assented (b), and the residuary legatee has no lien until the estate has been liquidated and cleared of all liabilities, both dehors and under the will (c). Upon the sale of the chattel by the executor, the purchaser is not concerned to see to the application of his purchase-money, and it need not be recited in the conveyance that the money is wanted for the discharge of liabilities (d): it is sufficient that the purchaser trusts him whom the testator has trusted (e): if there be any misapplication, the remedy of the creditor or legatee is not against the purchaser, but the executor (f). It is impossible for the purchaser to ascertain the necessity of the sale, for this must depend upon the state of the accounts, which he has no means of investigating without the powers annexed only to the executorship (g). Even express notice of the will, and of the bequests contained in it, works to the purchaser no prejudice; for "every person," said Sir J. Leach, "who deals with an executor has necessarily implied, if not express, notice of the will: but as a purchaser of real estate devised in aid for payment of debts is not bound to inquire into the fact whether the sale is made necessary by the existence of debts, because he has no adequate means to prosecute such an inquiry, so he who deals for personal assets is, for the same reason, absolved from all inquiry with respect to debts: and it is upon this principle altogether indifferent what dispositions may be made in the will with respect to the personal property for which he deals; for whether it be specifically given or be part of the residuary estate, it is equally available in law for the payment of debts" (h).

Notice of the will.

Thus nothing can be clearer than that an executor may go to market with his testator's assets, (even with a chattel specifically

(a) Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 463, per Lord Hardwicke; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 238, per eundem; M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 163, per Lord Eldon.

(b) Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 238, 240, per Lord Hardwicke. But the executor is bound to assent as soon as the funeral and testamentary expenses and debts have been paid; Greene v. Greene, 3 I. R. Eq. 102, per Cur.

(c) M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 163, 169, per Lord Eldon; and see Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 238, 240.

(d) Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 148, per Lord Kenyon.

(e) Id.

(f) Humble v. Bill, 2 Vern. 445, per Cur.; Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 149, per Sir J. Jekyll; Watts v. Kancie, Toth. 77; Nurton v. Nurton, Ib.

(g) Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 149, per Sir J. Jekyll; Humble v. Bill, 2 Vern. 445, per Cur.; Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 464, per Lord Hardwicke; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 242, per eundem.

(h) Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 356, bequeathed (a),) and the purchaser will not be bound to see to the application of his purchase-money (b).

[But an executor or administrator has no power to mortgage the assets to raise money for repairing or re-instating dilapidated buildings on leasehold property, unless the testator or intestate was liable under covenants to execute the works (c).]

Fraud an exception.

32. But fraud and collusion will vitiate any transaction, and turn it to a mere colour (d), and therefore if fraud be proved, either expressed or implied, the parties cannot protect themselves by pleading the general rule (e). The only question is, What will amount to a case of fraud?

Sale at a nominal price.

α. The sale cannot stand if the chattel be sold at a nominal price or a fraudulent undervalue (f).

Sale by executor for payment of his own debt.

β. The executor may not sell or pledge the assets for raising money to carry on the testator's business, though in pursuance of the directions contained in his will, for the debts of the business are not the testator's debts, [and a direction by a testator that his trade shall be carried on by his executors does not authorise the employment in that trade of more of the testator's property than was employed by him in his business] (g). Nor may the executor sell or pledge in order to pay or secure his own debt (h),

(a) Watts v. Kancie, Toth. 77, 161; Nurton v. Nurton, Ib.; Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 148. As to Humble v. Bill, 2 Vern. 444; 1 B. P. C. 71, see Ewer v. Corbet, ubi sup.; Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 137; M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 160.

(b) Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 147, per Lord Kenyon.

[(c) Ricketts v. Lewis, 20 Ch. D. 745; and the mortgagee, having, by the terms of the deed, notice of the purpose for which the money was raised, his claim against the estate was disallowed.]

(d) Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 725, per Lord Thurlow.

(e) Watkins v. Cheek, 2 S. & S. 205, per Sir J. Leach; M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 154, per Lord Eldon; Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 166, per Sir W. Grant; Taner v. Ivie, 2 Ves. 469, per Lord Hardwicke; Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 357, per Sir J. Leach; Crane v. Drake, 2 Vern. 616; Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 463, per Lord Hardwicke; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 240, per eundem; Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 725, per Lord Thurlow; Whale v. Booth, 4 T. R. 625, note (a), per Lord Mansfield; Elliot v. Merryman, Barn. 81, per Sir J. Jekyll; Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 147, per Lord Kenyon; Earl Vane v. Rigden, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 663, &c.

(f) Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 725, per Lord Thurlow; Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 149, per Sir J. Jekyll; M'Mullen v. O'Reilly, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 251; and see Drohan v. Drohan, 1 B. & B. 185.

(g) McNeillie v. Acton, 2 Eq. Rep. 21; 4 De G. M. & G. 744. [But the executors may sell or pledge any part of the property actually employed in the business, and it has been held in a case in Ireland that the power of disposition extends to mortgaging the freehold premises upon which the business is carried on; Devitt v. Kearney, 13 L. R. Ir. 45; reversing S. C. 11 L. R. Ir. 225.]

(h) Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 712; Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 152; Watkins v. Cheek, 2 S. & S. 205, per Sir J. Leach; Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 357, per eundem; Crane v. Drake, 2 Vern. 616; Anon. case, cited Pr. Ch. 434; Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 137, per Lord or for a debt wrongfully contracted by him as executor (a), for primâ facie this is a diversion of the assets to a purpose wholly foreign to the administration, and therefore a devastavit. "Though," observed Sir W. Grant, "it may be dangerous at all to restrain the power of purchasing from the executor, what inconvenience can there be in holding that the assets known to be such should not be applied in any case for the executor's debt, unless the creditor could be first satisfied of his right? It may be essential that the executor should have the power to sell the assets, but it is not essential that he should have the power to pay his own creditor; and it is not just that one man's property should be applied to the payment of another man's debt" (b).

Where the executor is specific or residuary legatee.

But if the executor be also the specific (c), or residuary legatee (d), then it seems to be established upon the authority of several cases that he may dispose of the chattel in payment of his own debt, for as soon as the debts and legacies of the testator have been discharged, the property is the executor's; and how is a purchaser to ascertain, but from the mouth of the executor, whether such prior liabilities upon the estate have been fully satisfied? [And the rule is applicable to an equitable as well as to a legal asset, and in favour of an equitable incumbrancer who has perfected his title by giving notice to the legal owner (e).]

Where the executor is specific legatee jointly with another, or subject to a charge.

But if the executor is specific or residuary legatee jointly with others, or subject to certain charges under the will, then he has no power by himself to offer the chattel in payment of his own debt. For in what character does the executor sell? It must be either as executor or as legatee: but it is not as executor, for then he cannot pay his own debt with the testator's assets; nor is it as legatee, for he is not exclusively such, but only jointly with others, or subject to certain charges. The creditor therefore cannot deal for the chattel without the concurrence of the co-legatees, or of the other persons jointly entitled (f). And the mere representation by the executor that Alvanley; and see Eland v. Eland, 4 M. & Cr. 427; Miles v. Durnford, 2 De G. M. & G. 641; [Jones v. Stöhwasser, 16 Ch. D. 577].

(a) Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 356; 7 De G. M. & G. 634.

(b) Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 169.

(c) Taylor v. Hawkins, 8 Ves. 209.

(d) Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 463; corrected from Reg. Lib. 4 B. C. C. 136; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 235; Whale v. Booth, 4 T. R. 625, note (a). See the comments of Lord Eldon, M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 163; and see Bedford v. Woodham, 4 Ves. 40, note; Storry v. Walsh, 18 Beav. 559.

[(e) Graham v. Drummond, (1896) 1 Ch. 968.]

(f) Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145;

he is absolute owner under the will is no protection, for common prudence requires that the purchaser should look to the will himself and ascertain the fact; and if he neglect this precaution, and assume the executor's veracity, he must incur the hazard of the executor's falsehood (a).

Express notice that debts not paid.

The executor in his character of specific or residuary legatee cannot pay or secure the debt of his own creditor out of the testator's assets, if such creditor have express notice that any debt of the testator still remains unsatisfied (b).

Sale by executor for other private purposes.

γ. If the executor sell or mortgage for money either advanced at the time or to be advanced, the dealing primâ facie is in a due course of administration (c). "Where," observed Sir W. Grant, "a party having a debt due to him by the executor takes, in satisfaction of that debt, the assets which he knows belong to the executor only in that character, undoubtedly suspicion of fraud must always arise; but where a man is applied to for a loan of money, there is no motive of fraud, for he may keep his money if not satisfied with the security" (d). But such is the primâ facie presumption only, for if there be legal evidence to the purchaser or mortgagee that the immediate or future advance is not on account of the testator's estate, but is meant to be applied to the private purposes of the executor, the Court must regard the transaction as fraudulent, and will not allow it to stand (e).

Sale of specific chattel, and notice that there are no debts.

δ. A purchaser cannot deal with an executor for the purchase of a chattel specifically bequeathed, if the purchaser have notice (a fact, however, not easily to be proved, and not lightly to be presumed), that there were no debts of the testator, or that they have since been discharged (f).

Payment to executor who will probably misapply it.

ε. If a person owe money to a testator's estate, and be apprised that the executor means to misapply it, he cannot safely hand it over (g).

Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 152, see 170; and see Haynes v. Forshaw, 11 Hare, 93; [Re Queale's Estates, 17 L. R. Ir. 361].

(a) Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 152, see 170.

(b) See Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 464; Whale v. Booth, 4 T. R. 625, note (a); M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 163; [Graham v. Drummond, (1896) 1 Ch. 968].

(c) M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 155, per Lord Eldon.

(d) M'Leod v. Drummond, 14 Ves. 362; and see Miles v. Durnford, 2 De G. M. & G. 641.

(e) M'Leod v. Drummond, 14 Ves. 353; S. C. reversed 17 Ves. 152; Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick. 712, compare 17 Ves. 166; and see Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 358.

(f) Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 149, per Sir J. Jekyll; and see M'Mullen v. O'Reilly, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 251.

(g) See Watkins v. Cheek, 2 S. & S. 199; Eland v. Eland, 4 M. & Cr. 427; Stroughill v Anstey, 1 De G. M. & G. 648.

Payment after long interval from testator's death.

ξ. If a great length of time has elapsed since the testator's death, it may be argued that here all debts must be presumed to be paid, and that the executor is a trustee for the next of kin or residuary legatee, and that the money cannot be paid safely to any other than the cestui que trust. However, in the absence of all mala fides, the executor's receipt will in general be sufficient. Where there had been a lapse of sixteen years, Lord Hatherley observed, "there is no authority for holding that merely because a debt to the testator's estate is not called in for some time, we are to imply that the executors have ceased to be executors, and have become trustees. A debtor who has been paying interest for perhaps twenty years, does not therefore become cognisant of the fact of all the testator's estate having been administered, and of the executors having become trustees. The persons with whom the executors are dealing, are not bound to know the state of the testator's assets, and it may be many years before all his debts are paid, and his estate wound up" (a). In a case where there had been a lapse of thirty-five years from the testator's death, and no allegation of debts, the late V.C. of England held that the executor could sign a receipt (b), [but as to real estate, the rule has now been adopted that after twenty years it is fair to presume that the debts have been paid, and the onus is upon the executors selling under a charge of debts to show that such is not the case (c); but the rule does not in general apply to the case of an executor selling the leaseholds of his testator (d)]. As regards an administrator it will be remembered that all necessary protection is thrown around the estate by the bond taken for due administration, and also by the form of proceeding in the Probate Court; for if A. (to whose estate the money is payable) die, leaving B. his next of

(a) Charlton v. Earl of Durham, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 438; and see Sabin v. Heape, 27 Beav. 553.

(b) Gough v. Birch, 10th July 1839, MS.; see Stroughill v. Anstey, 1 De G. M. & G. 654; [Re Tanqueray-Willaume and Landau, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465; Re Molyneux and White, 13 L. R. Ir. 382;] Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 148; Court v. Jeffery, 1 S. & S. 105; Orrok v. Binney, Jac. 523; Pierce v. Scott, 1 Y. & C. 257; Forbes v. Peacock, 11 Sim. 152; Hawkins v. Williams, 10 W. R. 692; Greetham v. Colton, 34 Beav. 615; 6 N. R. 311; Williams v. Massey, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 68.

[(c) Re Tanqueray-Willaume and Landau, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465; and see Re Molyneux and White, 13 L. R. Ir. 382; Re Ryan and Cavanagh, 17 L. R. Ir. 42; Re M'Curdy, 27 L. R. Ir. 395.]

[(d) Re Whistler, 35 Ch. D. 561; Re Venn and Furze, (1894) 2 Ch. 101; and as to the real estate of a testator dying on or after 1st January, 1898, see the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 5; s. 2, sub-s. 2. Where the purchaser had actual notice that there were no debts of the testator remaining unpaid, and it did not appear that the sale by the executrix was for purposes of administration, the Court declined to force the title on the purchaser; Re Verrell's Contract, (1903) 1 Ch. 65.]

kin, who afterwards dies, leaving C. his next of kin, who afterwards dies, leaving D. his next of kin, in order to take out letters of administration to A., you must first show yourself to have an interest by taking out letters to B. And again, to take out letters to B. you must first, for the same reason, take out letters to C.; so that, in fact, letters cannot be taken out to A. without previously taking out letters to B. and C. If, in such a case, the receipt of A.'s administrator even after the lapse of twenty years, were not sufficient, it would be necessary in a suit to make the administrators of B. and C. parties as cestuis que trust, a thing quite unheard of in practice. In an extreme case, however, where an administrator who was beneficially entitled to one-fourth, filed a bill one hundred and fifty years after the intestate's decease, the Court, while it admitted the plaintiff's legal title to the whole, refused to order payment to him of the other three-fourths, which apparently belonged in equity to other parties (a).

Sale by banker by direction of executor.

η. An agent is accountable to his principal only, and therefore if an executor employ a banker to sell out part of the testator's stock and remit the proceeds to him, it seems the banker, though he has reason to believe that a misapplication is intended, is bound to transfer the money to the executor, and does not thereby render himself accountable. A contrary doctrine would carry the principle of constructive trust to an inconvenient and, indeed, to an impracticable length (b). [An agent is bound to accept as correct

(a) Loy v. Duckett, Cr. & Ph. 305. [In a recent case, in 1885, where stock standing in the name of an owner, who died in 1791, had been transferred to the Commissioners for the reduction of the National Debt, and an inquiry was directed upon petition who were the persons entitled to the fund, the Court directed that the beneficial title should be inquired into as regarded all the shares to which the legal personal representatives of persons who died before 1871 were entitled; Ex parte Roskrow, W. N. 1885, p. 3. In Trevor v. Hutchins, (1896) 1 Ch. 844, where a beneficiary died in 1842, and his legal personal representative was constituted in 1890, an inquiry was directed, which in the result had the effect of preventing the retainer of a statute barred debt by the representative.]

(b) Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 332, see 356, 359; and see Davis v. Spurling, 1 R. & M. 64; S. C. Taml. 199; London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 585; [The New Zealand and Australian Land Company v. Ruston, 7 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 374; reversing S. C. 5 Q. B. D. 474;] Crisp v. Spranger, Nels. 109; Saville v. Tancred, 3 Sw. 141, note; Ex parte Barnwell, 6 De G. M. & G. 801; Gray v. Johnston, 3 L. R. H. L. 1. In this case, before the House of Lords, the doctrine as laid down by Lord Cairns was, that on the one hand bankers were not on grounds of mere suspicion or curiosity, to refuse to honour the cheque of an executor or trustee, being their customer, and on the other hand, that bankers were not, under shelter of that title, to be at liberty to become parties or privies to a breach of trust, and to pay away trust money when they knew it was going to be misapplied, and for the purpose of its being so misapplied;

the trustees' statement as to the intended application of the fund (a).] But an agent who derives a personal benefit from the breach of trust of his principal will be accountable (b).

Sale before probate.

θ. Though an executor can make an assignment and give a receipt for purchase-money before probate, yet a purchaser is not bound to pay his purchase-money before probate, which is the evidence of the executor's title (c).

[Payment by order of executor.]

[33. If a person indebted to a testator's estate pays a third party by order of the executor, and obtains the executor's receipt without notice that the payment is wrongfully made, he thereby obtains a complete discharge (d).]

Who may impeach the sale.

34. Wherever, as in the several cases mentioned, there is suspicion of fraud, the transaction may be impeached by creditors (e), and he stated the result of the cases to be, that to justify a banker in refusing payment, 1. There must be a misapplication or breach of trust actually intended; 2. The bankers must be privy to such intended misapplication or breach of trust; and 3. That any personal benefit to the bankers designed or stipulated for, would be the strongest evidence of such privity; Ib. p. 11. But the principle enunciated by Lord Westbury went further, for he said that a banker could not be allowed to set up the jus tertii against the order of his own customer, or refuse to honour his draft, on any other ground than some sufficient one resulting from the act of the customer himself, and that if a banker became incidentally aware that a trustee, his customer, meditated a breach of trust, and drew a cheque for that purpose, the banker had no right to refuse payment of the cheque, as this would be making himself party to an inquiry as between his customer and third persons. But that if a trustee being indebted to a banker, applied part of the trust estate in the banker's hands to the payment of the debt, the banker became particeps criminis, and was answerable; Ib. p. 14. It would seem, therefore, that in Lord Westbury's opinion, if the trustee did not himself confess the breach of trust, the banker could not refuse payment on evidence aliunde that a breach of trust was intended; and see Barnes v. Addy, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 244.

[(a) Rodbard v. Cooke, 25 W. R. 555.]

(b) Pannell v. Hurley, 2 Coll. 241; Bodenham v. Hoskyns, 2 De G. M. & G. 903; [and see Foxton v. Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Company, 44 L. T. N.S. 406, where Fry, J., said that "those who know that a fund is a trust fund cannot take possession of that fund for their own private benefit, except at the risk of being liable to refund it in the event of the trust being broken by the payment"; but see Coleman v. Bucks and Oxon Union Bank, (1897) 2 Ch. 243, where, under the special circumstances of the case, and having regard to the decision in Gray v. Johnston, 3 L. R. H. L. 1, this principle was held not to be applicable to the case of bankers who, without any intention to benefit themselves, or suspicion of intended breach of trust, had placed trust money to the private account of their customer on which he was indebted to them by way of overdraft. In Powell and Thomas v. Evan Jones & Co., (1905) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 11, a sub-agent who, with the knowledge of the principal, shared commission with the agent, was held to be in a fiduciary position, and accountable to the principal for a further commission secretly received].

(c) Newton v. Metropolitan Railway Company, 1 Dr. & Sm. 583.

[(d) Ferrier v. Ferrier, 11 L. R. Ir. 56.]

(e) Crane v. Drake, 2 Vern. 616; Anon. case, cited Pr. Ch. 434; and see Nugent v. Gifford, 1 Atk. 463; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 238.

Effect of time.

or specific (a), residuary (b), or even pecuniary legatees (c). But in no case will the Court grant relief where the right of unravelling the transaction has been neglected for a period of twenty years (d).

Executor or administrator of a trustee.

35. The preceding powers belong to executors and administrators for the purpose of administration of the testator's or intestate's estates. But these powers cannot be assumed to exist where property, though legally vested in an executor or administrator, is not available for the ordinary purposes of administration. Thus the executor or administrator of a surviving trustee stands on no higher ground than an ordinary trustee, and cannot therefore pass a good title to the purchaser, unless it be warranted by the terms of the trust.

SECTION III

DISABILITY OF TRUSTEES FOR SALE TO BECOME PURCHASERS OF THE TRUST PROPERTY

We now come to the subject of purchases by trustees of the property vested in them upon trust.

Under this head it will be proper to consider: First, The extent and operation of the rule, that a trustee shall not purchase the trust estate; Secondly, The species of relief to which the cestui que trust is entitled; Thirdly, The time within which the cestui que trust must apply to the Court.

First. The extent of the rule.

Trustee for sale may not purchase.

1. A trustee for sale, that is, a trustee who is selling, is absolutely and entirely disabled from purchasing the trust property (e), whether it be real estate or a chattel personal (f), land, or

(a) Humble v. Bill, 2 Vern. 444; Scott v. Tyler, 2 Dick, 712.

(b) See Burting v. Stonard, 2 P. W. 150; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 235, see 238; M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 161, 169.

(c) Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. 152; and see M'Leod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 169.

(d) Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 125; Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145; Mead v. Orrery, 3 Atk. 235, see 243; and see M'Leod v. Drummond, 14 Ves. 353; reversed 17 Ves. 152, see 171.

(e) Fox v. Mackreth, 2 B. C. C. 400; S. C. 2 Cox, 320; affirmed in D. P. 4 B. P. C. 258, &c. That Fox v. Mackreth was decided upon this ground, see Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 277; Ex parte Lacey, Id. 627; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 353; Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 247; Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 394.

(f) Crowe v. Ballard, 2 Cox, 253; S. C. 3 B. C. C. 117; Killick v. Flexney, 4 B. C. C. 161; Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134; Watson v. Toone, 5 Mad. 54; 6 Mad. 153; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 7 L. R. Ir. 207.

a ground rent (a), in reversion or possession (b), whether the purchase be made in the trustee's own name or in the name of a trustee for him (c), directly, or indirectly, [as to a purchaser upon a contract or understanding (amounting to more than mere expectation) that the purchaser shall resell to the trustee (d),] by private contract or public auction (e), from himself as the single trustee, or with the sanction of his co-trustees (f); for he who undertakes to act for another in any matter cannot, in the same matter, act for himself (g). The situation of the trustee gives him an opportunity of knowing the value of the property, and as he acquires that knowledge at the expense of the cestui que trust, he is bound to apply it for the cestui que trust's benefit (h). Besides, if the trustee appeared at the auction professedly as a bidder, that would operate as a discouragement to others, who seeing the vendor ready to purchase at or above the real value, would feel a reluctance to enter into the competition, and so the sale would be chilled (i).

[Duration of disability to repurchase.]

[The disability of a trustee who has sold to repurchase from his own purchaser subsists so long as the contract remains executory (j).]

Trustee who has disclaimed.

The rule does not apply to a person named as trustee, but who has disclaimed without having acted in the trust (k), [or to a person who has the power of becoming a trustee, though he never

(a) Price v. Byrn, cited Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 681.

(b) Re Bloye's Trust, 1 Mac. & G. 488, see 492, 495; Spring v. Pride, 4 De G. J. & S. 395; as "the inability to contract depends not on the subject matter of the agreement, but on the fiduciary character of the contracting party"; Aberdeen Railway Company v. Blakie, 1 Macq., at p. 472, per Lord Cranworth; [Costa Rica Railway Company v. Forwood, (1901) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 746].

(c) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678; S. C. 13 Ves. 601; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 423; Crowe v. Ballard, 2 Cox, 253; S. C. 3 B. C. C. 117; Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134; Watson v. Toone, 6 Mad. 153; Baker v. Carter, 1 Y. & C. 250; Knight v. Majoribanks, 2 Mac. & G. 12.

[(d) Re Postlethwaite, 59 L. T. N.S. 58; reversed on appeal on other grounds; 37 W. R. 200; 60 L. T. N.S. 514; and see Parker v. M'Kenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, at p. 125.]

(e) Campbell v. Walker, Randall v. Errington, ubi sup.; Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 381, see 393; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 337, see 349; Whelpdale v. Cookson, 1 Ves. 9; S. C. stated from R. L., Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682; Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 617; Ex parte Lacey, Id. 625; Lister v. Lister, Id. 631; Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 740; Attorney-General v. Lord Dudley, G. Coop. 146; Downes v. Grazebrook, 3 Mer. 200.

(f) Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 740; Hall v. Noyes, cited Id. 748; and see Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 374.

(g) Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 750, per Lord Rosslyn; Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 626, per Lord Eldon; Re Bloye's Trust, 1 Mac. & G. 495.

(h) See Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 348; [Luddy's Trustee v. Peard, 33 Ch. D. 500].

(i) See Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 629.

[(j) Williams v. Scott, (1900) A.C. (P.C.) 499; Delves v. Gray, (1902) 2 Ch. 606, following Parker v. M'Kenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, 125.]

(k) Stacey v. Elph, 1 M. & K. 195; and see Chambers v. Waters, 3 Sim. 42.

actually does become one (a),] or to a tenant for life whose consent to the sale is required by the terms of the power (b); or to mere nominal trustees, as trustees to preserve contingent remainders (c); or where A. is the trustee in fee for B. in fee, and A. has no duty to perform (d); or where a trustee sells to the trustees of his own settlement, under which he has a partial interest (e), [or to a company in which he is a shareholder (f); and in the absence of circumstances of suspicion, a person, who has ceased for twelve years to be a trustee of an instrument which contains a trust for sale, may become a purchaser of the trust property (g)].

Lord Rosslyn's doctrine.

2. Lord Rosslyn is reported to have considered that to invalidate a purchase by a trustee, it was necessary to show that he had gained an actual advantage (h); but the doctrine (if any such was ever held by his Lordship (i)) has since been expressly and unequivocally denied (j). The rule is now universal, that, however fair the transaction, the cestui que trust is at liberty to set aside the sale and take back the property (k). If a trustee were permitted to buy in an honest case, he might buy in a case having that appearance, but which, from the infirmity of human testimony, might be grossly otherwise (l). Thus a trustee for the sale of an estate might, by the knowledge acquired by him in that character, have discovered a valuable coal mine under it, and locking that up in his own breast, might enter into a contract for the purchase by himself. In such a case, if the trustee chose to deny it, how could the Court establish the fact against the denial? The probability is that a trustee who had once

[(a) Clark v. Clark, 9 App. Cas. 733.]

(b) Howard v. Ducane, T. & R. 81; Bevan v. Habgood, 1 J. & H. 222; Dicconson v. Talbot, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 32, see ante, p. 347.

(c) Sutton v. Jones, 15 Ves. 587; Naylor v. Winch, 1 S. & S. 567; Pooley v. Quilter, 4 Drew. 189; Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 226.

(d) Pooley v. Quilter, 4 Drew. 189; and see Denton v. Donner, 23 Beav. 289, 290.

(e) Hickley v. Hickley, 2 Ch. D. 190.

[(f) Farrar v. Farrars, Limited, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 395; and see Kennedy v. De Trafford, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 762; (1897) A. C. 180.]

[(g) Re Boles and British Land Company's Contract, (1902) 1 Ch. 244.]

(h) See Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 750.

(i) See Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 626; Lister v. Lister, Id. 632.

(j) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 385; Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 627; Attorney-General v. Lord Dudley, G. Coop. 148; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 348; Mulvany v. Dillon, 1 B. & B. 409, see 418.

(k) Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 625, see 627; Owen v. Foulkes, cited Id. 630, note (b); Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 393, per Lord Eldon; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 423, see 428; Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678, see 680; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 347, 348, per Lord Eldon; Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 631; Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 277, per Lord Eldon; and see Kilbee v. Sneyd, 2 Moll. 186; [Re Postlethwaite, 59 L. T. N.S. 58; 37 W. R. 200; 60 L. T. N.S. 514].

(l) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 385, per Lord Eldon.

conceived such a purpose would never disclose it, and the cestui que trust would be effectually defrauded (a).

Trustee may not buy as agent.

3. As a trustee cannot buy on his own account, it follows that he cannot be permitted to buy as agent for a third person: the Court can with as little effect examine how far the trustee has made an undue use of information acquired by him in the course of his duty in the one case as in the other (b).

Agent of trustee may not buy.

4. And the rule against purchasing the trust property applies to an agent employed by the trustee for the purposes of the sale, as strongly as to the trustee himself (c). And an agent not for sale, but for management only (d), [an officer of a friendly society (e), and a solicitor or counsel (f),] stand in a confidential relation, and cannot purchase without putting themselves at arm's length, and a full disclosure of their knowledge; and so a receiver appointed by the Court cannot purchase without the leave of the Court (g), [even where the sale is made, not under a decree in the action, but by a mortgagee selling with leave outside the action (h); and the partner of a trustee, or any other person through whom the trustee may directly or indirectly derive benefit by reason of the purchase, cannot purchase the trust property from the trustee (i)].

Trustees may not lease to themselves.

5. The lease of an estate is in fact the sale of a partial interest in it, and therefore trustees for sale cannot demise to one of themselves, but the lessee, while he shall be held to his bargain if disadvantageous to him, shall be made to account for the profits if it be in his favour (j).

(a) Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 627, per Lord Eldon; and see Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 385, 394, 400; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 348, 349; Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 226; Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 681; Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 632; Ex parte Badcock, 1 Mont. & Mac. 239.

(b) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 381, see 400; Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 248, per Lord Eldon; and see Gregory v. Gregory, G. Coop. 204; [Mockerjee v. Mockerjee, 2 L. R. Ind. App. 18].

(c) Whitcomb v. Minchin, 5 Mad. 91; Re Bloye's Trust, 1 Mac. & G. 488, see 495; [Martinson v. Clowes, 21 Ch. D. 857].

(d) King v. Anderson, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 147, 625; Alven v. Bond, 1 Flan. & Kelly, 196. [But the Court, on proposals for the purchase of a business under the order of the Court, refused to restrain the receiver and manager from doing business with the customers on his own account; Re Irish, 40 Ch. D. 49.]

[(e) Hodson v. Deans, (1903) 2 Ch. 647.]

[(f) Carter v. Palmer, 8 Cl. & F. 657; 11 Bli. N.S. 397; Brown v. Kennedy, 4 De G. J. & S. 217; 10 Jur. N.S. 141; Cookson v. Lee, 23 L. J. Ch. 243; Pisani v. Attorney-General of Gibraltar, 5 L. R. P. C. 516; McPherson v. Watt, 3 App. Cas. 254; Dougan v. McPherson, (1902) A.C. (H.L.) 197.]

(g) Alven v. Bond, 1 Flan. & Kelly, 196; White v. Tommy, referred to, Ib. 224.

[(h) Nugent v. Nugent, (1908) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 546, approving Alven v. Bond, supra.]

[(i) Ex parte Moore, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 72; 45 L. T. N.S. 558; 30 W. R. 123; Ex parte Burnell, 7 Jur. 116; Ex parte Forder, W. N. 1881, p. 117.]

(j) Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 617; Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 491, see 500.

Specific performance.

6. Where a trustee for sale was the purchaser by an agent at the auction, the heir of the trustee had no right to have the contract completed at the expense of the personal estate, though the cestuis que trust were willing to acquiesce in the sale (a).

Trustee may purchase from the cestui que trust.

7. When it is said that a trustee for sale may not purchase the trust property, the meaning must be understood to be that the trustee may not purchase from himself, that is, he cannot perform the two functions of seller and buyer; for there is no rule that a trustee, whether for sale or otherwise, may not purchase from his cestuis que trust (b). Hence, while a purchase by a trustee conducting the sale, either personally or by his agent, cannot stand, a purchase by a trustee from a cestui que trust of the interest of the latter in the trust may stand, if the trustee can show that the fullest information and every advantage were given to the cestui que trust (c). However, a purchase by a trustee from his cestui que trust is at all times a transaction of great nicety, and one which the Courts will watch with the utmost jealousy (d), [and will set aside if the consideration was insufficient (e);] and the exception runs, it is said, so near the verge of the rule, that it might as well have been included within it (f).

The relation of trustee and cestui que trust must first be dissolved.

8. Before any dealing with the cestui que trust, the relation between the trustee and cestui que trust must be actually or virtually dissolved. The trustee may, if he pleases, retire from the office, and qualify himself for becoming a purchaser by divesting himself of that character (g), or if he retain the situation, the parties must be put so much at arm's length, that they agree to stand in the adverse situations of vendor and purchaser (h), the

(a) Ingle v. Richards (No. 1), 28 Beav. 361.

(b) Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 626, per Lord Eldon; Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 244, 246, per eundem; Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 277, per eundem; Downes v. Grazebrook, 3 Mer. 208, per eundem; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 426, per Sir W. Grant; Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 750, per Lord Rosslyn; Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 601, per Lord Eldon; Ayliffe v. Murray, 2 Atk. 59, per Lord Hardwicke; Kilbee v. Sneyd, 2 Moll. 214, per Sir A. Hart; [Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215, 236, per Lord Cairns; and see Dougan v. McPherson, (1902) A.C. (H.L.) 197].

(c) Denton v. Donner, 23 Beav. 285; Luff v. Lord, 34 Beav. 220; [Readdy v. Prendergast, 55 L. T. N.S. 767].

(d) Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 244, per Lord Eldon; Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 626, per eundem; Downes v. Grazebrook, 3 Mer. 209, per eundem; [Plowright v. Lambert, 52 L. T. N.S. 646].

[(e) Mockerjee v. Mockerjee, 2 L. R. Ind. App. 18; Plowright v. Lambert, 52 L. T. N.S. 646.]

(f) Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 372, per Lord Erskine.

(g) Downes v. Grazebrook, 3 Mer. 208, per Lord Eldon.

(h) Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 277, per Lord Eldon; and see Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 626, 627; Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 394; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 373; Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 601; [Re Worssam, 46 L. T. N.S. 584; Readdy v. Prendergast, 55 L. T. N.S. 767].

cestui que trust distinctly and fully understanding that he is selling to the trustee, and consenting to waive all objections upon that ground (a), and the trustee fairly and honestly disclosing all the necessary particulars of the estate, and not attempting a furtive advantage to himself by means of any private information (b). The trustee will not be allowed to go on acquainting himself with the nature of the property up to the moment of sale, and then, casting aside his character of trustee, turn his experience to his own account (c).

Instances where trustee has been allowed to purchase.

9. In what cases a trustee will be at liberty to become a purchaser may be best illustrated by a few instances.

Where the cestui que trust took the whole management of the sale himself, chose, or at least approved, the auctioneer, made surveys, settled the plan of sale, fixed the price, and so had a perfect knowledge of the value of the property, and then by his agent, but with his own personal consent, agreed to sell a lot which had been bought in to one of the trustees for sale acting as agent for another, Lord Eldon said, that if in any instance the rule was to be relaxed by consent of the parties, this was the case, and decreed the agreement to be specifically performed (d).

Again, a cestui que trust had strongly urged the purchase upon one of his trustees, who at first expressed an unwillingness, but afterwards, upon being pressed, agreed to the terms; and the sale was supported (e).

So, where a trustee for sale had endeavoured in vain to dispose of the estate, and then purchased himself of the cestui que trust, at a fair and adequate price, and there was no imputation of fraud or concealment, Lord Northington said he did not "like the circumstance of a trustee dealing with his cestui que trust, but upon the whole, he did not see any principle upon which he could set the transaction aside" (f).

Solicitor of the cestuis que trust.

10. It has been pronounced too dangerous to allow the cestui que trust's solicitor, without a special authority, to bind his employer by such a contract with the trustee (g).

Creditors.

11. Where the cestuis que trust are creditors, it has been held

(a) See Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 427.

(b) Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 247, per Lord Eldon; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 373, 377, per Lord Erskine; Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 277, per Lord Eldon; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 427, per Sir W. Grant; [Re Worssam, 46 L. T. N.S. 584; Luddy's Trustee v. Peard, 33 Ch. D. 500].

(c) See Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 352; Spring v. Pride, 4 De G. J. & S. 395.

(d) Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 234.

(e) Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 355.

(f) Clarke v. Swaile, 2 Eden, 134.

(g) Downes v. Grazebrook, 3 Mer. 209, per Lord Eldon.

that the trustee cannot purchase with the sanction of the major part of them, but that the liberty must be given by the unanimous voice of the whole body (a). However, the Court has sanctioned purchases of a bankrupt's estate by assignees, where the assent of a general meeting of creditors had been obtained (b); and the Court would, no doubt, in executing the trust of a creditors' deed, allow a trustee to purchase, if it were really for the benefit of the creditors.

Court will not authorise the trustee to bid.

12. The Court has no jurisdiction, on behalf of the cestuis que trust who are sui juris, to authorise a trustee to bid, for that is a question the cestuis que trust are entitled to decide for themselves (c). So far as the Court is concerned, it will not give a trustee leave to bid, for it is his duty to communicate all the information he can for the benefit of the sale, and this he might not be disposed to do if he were allowed to purchase himself (d). But if a sale by auction under the direction of the Court has been tried in vain, the trustee is at liberty to make proposals on his own behalf, and the Court may be induced to accept the offer (e).

[Effect of leave to bid.]

[13. Where, in an administration action, leave was given to the solicitor for the defendant (the executor) to bid at the sale, which was to be conducted by the plaintiffs' solicitors, independently of the executor, it was held that the effect of the leave was to put an end to the fiduciary relation in which he formerly stood, and to place him in the position of a mere stranger, and that he was under no obligation to disclose to the Court any facts within his knowledge affecting the value of the property. If, however, the intending purchaser lays information on any particular subject before the Court for the purpose of guiding its discretion and obtaining its approval of the sale, he is bound to disclose all the material facts within his knowledge relating to that subject; but it does not follow that because information on some material point or points is offered or is given on request by a purchaser from the Court, it must therefore be given on all others as to which it is neither offered nor requested, and concerning which there is no implicit

(a) Sir G. Colebrooke's case, cited Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 622; Ex parte Lacey, Id. 628; the cases cited Id. 630, note (b). Whelpdale v. Cookson (cited Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682), was doubted by Lord Eldon, 6 Ves. 628.

(b) Anon. case, 2 Russ. 350; Ex parte Bage, 4 Mad. 459.

(c) See Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 352.

(d) Tennant v. Trenchard, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 545.

(e) Tennant v. Trenchard, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 547.

representation, positive or negative, direct or indirect, in what is actually stated (a).]

Where cestuis que trust are infants.

14. If the cestuis que trust be under disability, as infants, the trustee, as he cannot be released from the liabilities of his situation, cannot by any act in pais become the purchaser of the estate (b); but, if it be absolutely necessary that the property should be sold, and the trustee is ready to give more than any one else, he may institute proceedings in equity, and apply to the Court to be allowed to purchase, and the Court will then examine into the circumstances, ask who had the conduct of the transaction, whether there is reason to suppose the premises could be sold better, and upon the result of that inquiry will let another person prepare the particulars of sale, and allow the trustee to bid (c); and, generally, if the Court can see clearly that under the circumstances of the case it would be for the benefit of the cestui que trust that the trustee should purchase (as at a certain sum beyond what could be obtained elsewhere), the Court would sanction a sale to the trustee (d).

Of executors, administrators, assignees, &c.

15. The principles laid down with reference to trustees for sale are of course applicable to all who, though differing in name, are invested with the like fiduciary character, as executors and administrators (e), an executor in his own wrong (f), trustees for creditors (g), an agent (h), &c.; but a mortgagee may purchase from his mortgagor (i), [or one of several mortgagors from the mortgagee (j)], surviving partners may purchase from the representatives of a deceased partner (k), [the trustee in the

[(a) Boswell v. Coaks, 23 Ch. D. 302; 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 424; 11 App. Cas. 232.]

(b) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678; S. C. 13 Ves. 601.

(c) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 681, 682, per Lord Alvanley.

(d) Farmer v. Dean, 32 Beav. 327.

(e) Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134; Killick v. Flexney, 4 B. C. C. 161; Watson v. Toone, 6 Mad. 153; Kilbee v. Sneyd, 2 Moll. 186; Baker v. Carter, 1 Y. & C. 250; and see Naylor v. Winch, 1 S. & S. 566; [Re Pepperell, 27 W. R. 410; Gray v. Warner, 42 L. J. Ch. 556; 28 L. T. N.S. 835; 21 W. R. 808; Re Harvey, 58 L. T. N.S. 449; W. N. 1888, p. 38; Beningfield v. Baxter, 12 App. Cas. 167].

(f) Mulvany v. Dillon, 1 B. & B. 408.

(g) Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 617; Ex parte Lacey, Id. 625, and the cases cited Id. 630, note (b); Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 395, per Lord Eldon; Ex parte Reynolds, 5 Ves. 707; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 346, per Lord Eldon; Ex parte Morgan, 12 Ves. 6; Ex parte Bage, 4 Mad. 459; Ex parte Badcock, 1 Mont. & Mac. 231; Pooley v. Quilter, 2 De G. & J. 327.

(h) King v. Anderson, 8 I. R. Eq. 147; reversed Ib. 625; Murphy v. O'Shea, 2 Jon. & Lat. 422.

(i) Knight v. Majoribanks, 11 Beav. 322; 2 Mac. & G. 10.

[(j) Kennedy v. De Trafford, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 762; (1897) A. C. 180; and see Nutt v. Easton, (1899) 1 Ch. 873; (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 29.]

(k) Chambers v. Howell, 11 Beav. 6. As to purchases by one partner under an execution against another partner, see Perens v. Johnson, 3 Sm. & G. 419; [And as to the duty of a partner, selling his share to a co-partner, to put joint bankruptcy of surviving partners, who have a large claim against the estate of the deceased partner, may purchase from the representatives of the deceased partner (a),] and the creditor taking out execution is not precluded from becoming the purchaser of the property upon a sale by the sheriff (b); [and a person named as executor, but who, in fact, never proves the will, may purchase from the executor who proves (c)].

Secondly. As to the terms upon which the sale will be set aside.

Cestuis que trust may recover the specific estate.

1. The cestui que trust, if he chooses it, may have the specific estate reconveyed to him by the trustee (d), or, where the trustee has sold it with notice, by the party who purchased (e), the cestui que trust on the one hand repaying the price at which the trustee bought, with interest at 4 per cent. (f), and the trustee or purchaser on the other accounting for the profits of the estate (g), but not with interest (h), and, if he was in actual possession, being charged with an occupation rent (i). [But if the consideration passing from the trustee is not wholly pecuniary, and the cestui que trust has by subsequent dealings put it out of his power to restore to the trustee the benefits derived from him, he has lost his right to set aside the transaction (j).]

Allowances for repairs.

2. The trustee will have all just allowances made to him for improvements and repairs which are substantial and lasting (k), or such as have a tendency to bring the estate to a better sale (l), as in one case for a mansion house erected, plantations of shrubs, the purchaser in possession of all material facts known to the vendor, see Law v. Law, (1905) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 140, ante, p. 310].

[(a) Boswell v. Coaks, 23 Ch. D. 302; 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 424; 11 App. Cas. 232.]

(b) Stratford v. Twynam, Jac. 418.

[(c) Clark v. Clark, 9 App. Cas. 733.]

(d) See Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351; Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 400; Lord Hardwicke v. Vernon, 4 Ves. 411; York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, 8 B. P. C. 42; Aberdeen Town Council v. Aberdeen University, 2 App. Cas. 544.

(e) Attorney-General v. Lord Dudley, G. Coop. 146; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 304.

(f) Watson v. Toone, 6 Mad. 153; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351, per Lord Eldon; Whelpdale v. Cookson, stated from R. L., Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682; Hall v. Hallett, 1 Cox, 134, see 139; York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, ubi sup., &c. [As to the rate of interest, see ante, p. 397.]

(g) Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351, per Lord Eldon; Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 630, per eundem; Watson v. Toone, 6 Mad. 153; Whelpdale v. Cookson, stated from R. L., Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682; York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, 8 B. P. C. 42.

(h) Macartney v. Blackwood, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 602; [Silkstone and Haigh Moor Coal Co. v. Edey, (1900) 1 Ch. 167].

(i) Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351, per Lord Eldon.

[(j) Re Worssam, 46 L. T. N.S. 584; 51 L. J. Ch. 669; Dimsdale v. Dimsdale, 3 Dr. 556, 577.]

(k) Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 624, 625; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 352; Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682; Davey v. Durrant, 1 De G. & J. 535; King v. Anderson, 8 I. R. Eq. 625, see 636.

(l) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 400.

&c. (a); and in estimating the improvements, the buildings pulled down, if they were incapable of repair, will be valued as old materials, but otherwise they will be valued as buildings standing (b). Should the property have been deteriorated by the acts of the trustee, his purchase-money will suffer a proportionate reduction (c). [And if the subject-matter of the sale be a business sold as a going concern, and the purchasing trustee carry it on under his own personal direction, on the sale being set aside he will be allowed to deduct from the profits all outgoings for wages of assistants, expenditure for stock, &c., but will not be allowed any salary for his own management of the business (d).]

Case of actual fraud.

3. Where the contract is vitiated by the presence of actual fraud, allowance will still be made to the trustee for necessary repairs (e), and in one case allowance was also made for improvements (f); but in another case of actual fraud the Court refused any allowance for improvements. "If," said Lord Fitzgibbon, "a man has acquired an estate by rank and abominable fraud, and shall afterwards expend the money in improving the estate, is he therefore to retain it in his hands against the lawful proprietor? If such a rule should prevail, it would justify a proposition I once heard at the bar, that the common equity of the country was to improve the right owner out of the possession of his estate" (g).

Trustee paying purchase-money into Court.

4. A trustee, the sale having taken place during the pendency of a suit, had paid part of his purchase-money into Court, which had been invested in the funds. On the purchase being set aside, the trustee claimed the benefit of the rise of the stock, but it was held that he was entitled only to his purchase-money with interest, for had there occurred a fall of the stock, he could not have been compelled to submit to the loss (h).

Trustee to be discharged from the sale immediately.

5. If the trustee is to be discharged from the situation of purchaser, he is to be discharged at once, and the Court will order an immediate reconveyance upon immediate repayment of the money (i).

Lessees not prejudiced.

6. The reconveyance of the estate will be without prejudice to the titles and interests of lessees and others who have contracted with the trustee bonâ fide before the pendency of the suit (j).

(a) York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, 8 B. P. C. 42.
(b) Robinson v. Ridley, 6 Mad. 2.
(c) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 401.
[(d) Re Norrington, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 654.]
(e) Baugh v. Price, 1 G. Wils. 320.
(f) Oliver v. Court, 8 Price, 172.
(g) Kenney v. Browne, 3 Ridg. 518; and see Stratton v. Murphy, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 361.
(h) Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 337, see 351.
(i) See Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 400, 401.
(j) York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, 8 B. P. C. 42; see the decree.

Of submitting the estate to a resale.

7. But the cestui que trust, particularly where the assignee in bankruptcy has become the purchaser, may claim, not a reconveyance of the specific estate, but a resale of the property under the direction of the Court. The terms of the resale have not always been uniform. In Whelpdale v. Cookson (a), Lord Hardwicke said the majority of the creditors should elect whether the purchase should stand; so that should they elect to resell, and the estate should be sold at a still lower price, the creditors would suffer. The doctrine of Lord Thurlow appears to have been, that the property should be put up at the price at which the trustee purchased, and if any advance was made, the sale should take effect, but if no bidding, the trustee should be held to his bargain (b). Lord Alvanley followed the authority of Lord Hardwicke, and directed an inquiry whether it was for the benefit of the infants that the premises should be resold, and, if for their benefit, that the sale should be made (c). "To this principle," said Lord Eldon, "the objection is, that a great temptation to purchase is offered to trustees, the question whether the resale would be advantageous to the cestui que trust being of necessity determined at the hazard of a wrong determination" (d). Lord Eldon therefore conceived it best to adopt the rule of Lord Thurlow, and so he decreed in Ex parte Hughes (e), and Ex parte Lacey (f). Sir W. Grant, in a subsequent case (g), said he was not aware that Lord Eldon had laid down any general rule as to the terms; but a few days after, having consulted the Lord Chancellor upon the subject, and discovering his mistake, he framed his decree in conformity with the Lord Chancellor's decisions. The same principle has since been followed in numerous other cases (h), and the practice may be considered as settled.

Allowances for repairs, &c.

8. Should the trustee have repaired or improved the estate, the expense of the repairs and improvements, if allowed, will be added to the purchase-money, and the estate be put up at the accumulated sum (i).

Reselling in lots.

9. Where the trustee has purchased in one lot, the cestuis que trust cannot insist on a resale in different lots. If desirous of reselling the property in that mode, they must pay the trustee his

(a) Cited Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682.

(b) See Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 633; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351.

(c) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678, see 682.

(d) Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 603.

(e) 6 Ves. 617.

(f) Id. 625; and see Ex parte Reynolds, 5 Ves. 707.

(g) Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 633.

(h) Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 337; Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 381; Robinson v. Ridley, 6 Mad. 2.

(i) Ex parte Bennett, 10 Ves. 400; Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 625; Robinson v. Ridley, 6 Mad. 2.

principal and interest, and then, as the absolute owners, they may sell as they please (a).

Difficulty of Lord Hardwicke's rule.

10. In the application of Lord Hardwicke's rule it was a question constantly occurring, whether the body of creditors at large could be bound by the resolution of the majority to insist upon a resale; but by the practice of Lord Eldon, the difficulty on that head is avoided (b), for as the creditors cannot by possibility sustain an injury, it is competent to any individual creditor to try the experiment (c).

The remedy against the trustee who has sold the property.

11. If before the cestui que trust commences proceedings for relief, the trustee has passed the estate into the hands of a purchaser without notice, the cestui que trust may compel the trustee to account for the difference of price (d), or for the difference between the sum the trustee paid and the real value of the estate at the time of the purchase (e), with interest at 4 per cent. (f).

Purchase of shares by a trustee.

12. An administrator had become the purchaser of some shares in Scotch mines, part of the assets, and afterwards sold them to a stranger at a considerable advance of price, and Lord Thurlow decreed the trustee to account for every advantage he had made, but said he could not go the length of ordering the defendant to replace the shares. He conceived that the plaintiff, one of the next of kin, had no such election of choosing between the specific thing and the advantage made of it (g).

Costs.

13. The costs of the suit will, as a general rule, follow the decree—that is, if the trustee be compelled to give up his purchase, unless his conduct was perfectly honourable and the sale is set aside on the mere dry rule of equity (h), he must pay the expenses he has himself occasioned (i); and if the charge be unfounded, the costs must be paid by the plaintiff. But if there be great delay on the part of the cestui que trust, the costs will be refused him, though he succeed in the suit (j); and, on the other

Delay.

(a) See Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351, 352.

(b) Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 624.

(c) Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 353; and see Ex parte Lacey, 6 Ves. 628.

(d) Fox v. Mackreth, 2 B. C. C. 400; S. C. 2 Cox, 320; Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134; Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 740; Ex parte Reynolds, 5 Ves. 707; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 423.

(e) See Lord Hardwicke v. Vernon, 4 Ves. 411.

(f) Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134, see 139.

(g) Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 134.

(h) Baker v. Carter, 1 Y. & C. 250.

(i) Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 752; Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 141; Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 601, 604; Crowe v. Ballard, 2 Cox, 253; S. C. 3 B. C. C. 117; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 304; Smedley v. Varley, 23 Beav. 358.

(j) Attorney-General v. Lord Dudley, G. Coop. 146.

hand, if the suit be dismissed, not because the transaction was not originally impeachable, but merely on account of the great interval of time, the Court may refuse to order the plaintiff to pay the costs of the defendant (a).

Where the sale is set aside after the purchaser's death.

14. If the trustee devise the estate purchased by him, and the purchase is set aside as against the devisee, it is conceived that, as the devise carried all the testator's interest in the property, the moneys repaid will belong to the devisee. But if the trustee die intestate, then whether moneys repaid shall belong to the next of kin or the heir of the trustee is a question of great difficulty. In favour of the former it may be urged, that as there is no equity between the heir-at-law and next of kin, the moneys repaid, being in fact personal estate, must belong to the next of kin: that the Court rescinds the transaction by taking an account of rents and allowing interest on the purchase-money from the time of the purchase, and that the rents and interest accrued during the life of the intestate must certainly be regarded as personal estate, and that the right of the next of kin is supported by Lawes v. Bennett (b), and other cases, where a lessee has an option of purchasing, and the option is exercised after the death of the lessor, in which case there is a retrospective conversion. On the other hand, it may be argued that a purchase by a trustee is not void but voidable only, that the heir is clearly not bound to account for the rents while he was in possession, and that the Court takes an account of rent and interest ab initio, not for the purpose of increasing the trustee's personal estate, but for measuring the price which the cestui que trust must pay for recovering the estate; that the heir takes all the title which the intestate could give him, subject to an equity subsisting in another, to wrest the estate from him upon certain terms, and that the moneys repaid are in fact the estate, after satisfying the outstanding claims: that the cases decided upon contract have no application, as the moneys are here repaid contrary to the contract: that a different doctrine would lead to great inconvenience in adjusting the accounts of rent and interest, and also from intermediate settlements or other dispositions by the heir; it would be very hard, for instance, that purchasers under a marriage settlement, with constructive notice, should, because they cannot have the whole benefit, be deprived of every benefit. The inclination of the author's opinion is in favour of the real representative, but the point remains to be decided.

(a) Gregory v. Gregory, G. Coop. 201. (b) 1 Cox, 167.

Thirdly. As to the time within which the sale may be set aside.

Cestui que trust must set aside the sale in reasonable time.

1. If the cestui que trust decide to set aside the purchase, he must make his application to the Court in reasonable time, or he will not be entitled to relief (a). A long acquiescence under a sale to a trustee is treated as evidence that the relation between the trustee and cestui que trust had been previously abandoned, and that in all other respects the purchase was fairly conducted (b).

What considered a reasonable time.

2. A sale cannot, in general, be set aside after a lapse of twenty years (c); but in these cases the Court does not confine itself to that period by analogy to the Statute of Limitations, for relief has been refused after an acquiescence of eighteen years (d); and seventeen years (e); and it is presumed that even a shorter period would be a bar to the remedy, where the cestui que trust could offer no excuse for his laches (f). However, the sale has been opened after an interval of ten years (g), and eleven years (h); and even after a much greater lapse of time, where the executor had purchased in the name of trustees for himself, and the transaction was attended with circumstances of disguise and concealment (i).

Of persons under disability.

3. Persons not sui juris, as femes covert and infants, cannot be precluded from relief on the ground of acquiescence during the continuance of the disability (j). But femes covert as to property settled to their separate use, [or belonging to them as their separate property under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (k),] if their power of anticipation be not restricted, are regarded as femes sole (l).

Time allowed to a class of persons.

4. A class of persons, as creditors, cannot be expected in the

(a) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 680, 682, per Lord Alvanley; Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 59, per Sir T. Plumer; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 351, per Lord Eldon; Webb v. Rorke, 2 Sch. & Lef. 672, per Lord Redesdale; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 427, per Sir W. Grant. But see Baker v. Peck, 9 W. R. 186.

(b) Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 226, per Lord Eldon; and see Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 374, 378.

(c) Price v. Byrn, cited Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 681; Barwell v. Barwell, 34 Beav. 371.

(d) Gregory v. Gregory, G. Coop. 201; affirmed on appeal, see Jac. 631; Champion v. Rigby, 1 R. & M. 539; Roberts v. Tunstall, 4 Hare, 257; King v. Anderson, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 625.

(e) Baker v. Read, 18 Beav. 398.

(f) See Oliver v. Court, 8 Price, 167, 168.

(g) Hall v. Noyes, cited Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 748; [and see Re Worssam, 46 L. T. N.S. 584; 51 L. J. Ch. 669].

(h) Murphy v. O'Shea, 2 Jon. & Lat. 422.

(i) Watson v. Toone, 6 Mad. 153; [and see Re Postlethwaite, 59 L. T. N.S. 58; reversed on appeal, 37 W. R. 200; 60 L. T. N.S. 514].

(j) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678; S. C. 13 Ves. 601; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330, see 339.

[(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

(l) See post, Chap. XXVIII. s. 6.

prosecution of their common interest to exert the same vigour and activity as individuals would do in the pursuit of their exclusive rights (a). Accordingly, creditors have succeeded in their suits after a laches of twelve years (b); but even creditors will be barred of their remedy if they be chargeable with very gross laches, as with acquiescence in the sale for a period of thirty-three years (c).

Time no bar where circumstances not known.

5. For laches to operate as a bar, it must be shown that the cestui que trust knew the trustee was the purchaser; for while the cestui que trust continues ignorant of that fact, he cannot be blamed for not having quarrelled with the sale (d).

Distress of cestui que trust.

6. The effect of the length of time may also be materially influenced by the continued distress of the cestui que trust (e), but poverty is merely an ingredient in the case, and will not alone displace the bar (f).

Confirmation of the sale.

7. Of course the cestui que trust may ratify the sale to the trustee by an express and actual confirmation (g); and if the cestui que trust choose to confirm it, he cannot afterwards annul his own act on the ground of no adequate consideration (h). But—

Requisites of good confirmation.

a. The confirming party must be sui juris — not labouring under any disability, as infancy or coverture (i). But, in the case of real estate, a feme covert can, if it be not settled to her separate use without anticipation, confirm the purchase under the operation of the Fines and Recoveries Act (j). And in confirmation, as in acquiescence, a feme covert who has property whether real or personal, settled to her separate use, [or belonging to her as her separate property under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, (k),] (provided her power of anticipation be

(a) Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 740, see 752; Ex parte Smith, 1 D. & C. 267; Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 109; [Boswell v. Coaks, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 424;] and see Kidney v. Coussmaker, 12 Ves. 158; York Buildings Company v. Mackenzie, 8 B. P. C. 42.

(b) Anon. case in the Exchequer, cited Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 632.

(c) See Hercy v. Dinwoody, 2 Ves. jun. 87; Scott v. Nesbitt, 14 Ves. 446.

(d) Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 423, see 427; Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 51.

(e) Oliver v. Court, 8 Price, 127; see 167, 168; and see Gregory v. Gregory, G. Coop. 201; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 342.

(f) Roberts v. Tunstall, 4 Hare, 257; see p. 267.

(g) Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 355; Clarke v. Swaile, 2 Eden, 134; and see Chesterfield v. Janssen, 2 Ves. 125; S. C. 1 Atk. 301.

(h) Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 353, per Lord Manners.

(i) Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 678; S. C. 13 Ves. 601; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330, see 339; and see Scott v. Davis, 4 M. & Cr. 92; [and Buckmaster v. Buckmaster, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 21; S. C. nom. Seaton v. Seaton, 13 App. Cas. 61; Harle v. Jarman, (1895) 2 Ch. 419].

(j) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 74; and see the Real Property Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 106).

[(k) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

not restrained), has to the extent of her interest in the property, all the capacity of a feme sole (a).

β. The confirmation must be a solemn and deliberate act, not, for instance, fished out from loose expressions in a letter (b); and particularly where the original transaction was infected with fraud, the confirmation of it is so inconsistent with justice, and so likely to be accompanied with imposition, that the Court will watch it with the utmost strictness, and not allow it to stand but on the very clearest evidence (c).

γ. There must be no suppressio veri or suggestio falsi, but the cestui que trust must be honestly made acquainted with all the material circumstances of the case (d).

δ. It has been laid down that the confirming party must not be ignorant of the law, that is, he must be aware that the transaction is of such a character that he could impeach it in a Court of Equity(e).

ε. The confirmation must be wholly distinct from and independent of the original contract (f)—not a conveyance of the estate executed in pursuance of a covenant in the original deed for further assurance (g).

ζ. The confirmation must not be wrung from the cestui que trust by distress or terror (h).

(a) See post, Chap. XXVIII. s. 6.

(b) Carpenter v. Heriot, 1 Eden, 338; and see Montmorency v. Devereux, 7 Cl. & Fin. 188.

(c) Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 373, per Lord Erskine.

(d) See Murray v. Palmer, 2 Sch. & Lef. 486; Baugh v. Price, 1 G. Wils. 320; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 373; Cole v. Gibson, 1 Ves. 507; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 338, and following pages; Adams v. Clifton, 1 Russ. 297; Cockerell v. Cholmeley, 1 R. & M. 425; S. C. Taml. 444; Chesterfield v. Janssen, 2 Ves. 146, 149, 152, 158; Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 51.

(e) Cann v. Cann, 1 P. W. 727; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 317; Burney v. Macdonald, 15 Sim. 15; Molony v. L'Estrange, 1 Beat. 413; Crowe v. Ballard, 2 Cox, 257; S. C. 1 Ves. jun. 220; S. C. 3 B. C. C. 120; Watts v. Hyde, 2 Coll. 377; Cockerell v. Cholmeley, 1 R. & M. 425; Murray v. Palmer, 2 Sch. & Lef. 486; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 339; Ex parte James, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 609. [It has been doubted how far the statement in the text is consistent with the doctrine that mistake of law, as distinguished from mistake of fact, forms no ground of relief, see] Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland Company v. Johnson, 6 H. L. Cas. 798; Stafford v. Stafford, 1 De G. & J. 202; Re Saxon Life Assurance Company, 2 J. & H. 412; [but it is "not accurate to say that relief can never be given in respect of a mistake of law," Allcard v. Walker, (1896) 2 Ch. 369, 381, per Stirling, J.; and as authorities for the proposition that, where there is a mistake as to a right of private ownership, the maxim "ignorantia juris non excusat" is not applicable, and such mistake may be a ground of relief, see S. C. and Cooper v. Phibbs, 2 L. R. H. L. 149, 170; Rogers v. Ingham, 3 Ch. D. (C.A.) 351, 356, 357; Stone v. Godfrey, 5 De G. M. & G. 76].

(f) See Wood v. Downes, 18 Ves. 128; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 373; Scott v. Davis, 4 M. & Cr. 91, 92; Roberts v. Tunstall, 4 Hare, 267.

(g) Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330, see 338; Wood v. Downes, 18 Ves. 120, see 123; and see Fox v. Mackreth, 2 B. C. C. 400.

(h) See Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 317; Crowe v. Ballard, 2 Cox, 257.

η. Where the cestuis que trust are a class of persons, as creditors, the sanction of the major part will not be obligatory on the rest, but the confirmation to be complete must be the joint act of the whole body (a).

(a) Sir G. Colebrook's case, cited Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 622; Ex parte Lacey, Id. 628; the cases cited, Id. 630, note (b). Whelpdale v. Cookson, cited Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 682, has been doubted by Lord Eldon, 6 Ves. 628.

CHAPTER XIX

DUTIES OF TRUSTEES FOR PURCHASE

A TRUST for purchase is not so frequent as a trust for sale, and yet occurs often enough to merit a separate consideration.

Trustees liable for consequences of breach of duty

1. The general rule is that trustees for purchase, like all other trustees, are bound to discharge the duty prescribed, and, failing to do so, are answerable for the consequences; as if a specific fund be bequeathed to trustees upon trust to lay out on a purchase, and they neglect to call in the fund and lay it out, they are liable to compensate the cestuis que trust for the consequences (a).

May enter into a previous contract.

2. It is almost unnecessary to premise, that trustees for purchase are not confined to the mere act of paying the purchase-money, and taking a conveyance, but may, in the ordinary course of business, enter into a previous written contract as a preliminary to the purchase.

Must see to value

3. A material point to which trustees of this kind have to advert is the intrinsic value of the estate proposed to be bought, and, to arrive at a sound conclusion on this head, they must employ a valuer of their own (b), and must not rely upon any valuation made on behalf of the vendor; "Nothing," said Lord Romilly, "is more uncertain than a valuation, and the Court has constantly to observe upon the great discrepancy between valuations made by those persons who want to enhance, and by those persons who want to depreciate the value of the property. A man bonâ fide forms his opinion, but he looks at the case in a totally different way, when he knows on whose behalf he is acting"; and in reference to the case of a loan by trustees on mortgage (which is not on principle distinguishable from a purchase), he added, "a trustee cannot with propriety lend trust

(a) Craven v. Craddock, W. N. 1868, p. 229.

[(b) In Fry v. Tapson, 28 Ch. D. 268, it was held that the appointment of the valuer could not be left to the trustee's solicitor, but that the trustees were bound to exercise their own judgment as to the selection of a valuer; see ante, pp. 374, 375.]

money on mortgage upon a valuation made by or on behalf of the mortgagor. If he does so, and the valuer has bonâ fide valued the property at double its value, the trustee must take the consequences: he ought to have employed a valuer on his own behalf to see to it" (a).

[Prospective purchase.]

[Thus it is a breach of trust for a trustee, who has no money in hand, to contract for a purchase to be completed when he shall get the money, as this necessarily leaves it doubtful whether when the time for completion arrives the land purchased will be worth the money (b).]

There must be a good title.

4. Another question of importance is that of title. Every direction or authority to lay out trust money upon a purchase of real estate, carries with it the tacit condition that there shall be a good title. Whether, therefore, the trustees are proposing to purchase by private contract or by auction, they must take care not to bind themselves by any agreement which shall preclude them from requiring a good marketable title. If the intended contract or conditions of sale contain anything of a special character, the trustees should lay them before their counsel for his opinion as to whether the stipulations are consistent with their trust (c). Formerly a good marketable title was one traced back for a period of sixty years, but by the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874 (d), sect. 1, a forty years' title has been substituted. [And by sect. 8, sub-sect. 3, of the Trustee Act, 1893 (e), it is now provided that "a trustee shall not be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in effecting the purchase of or in lending money upon the security of any property he has accepted a shorter title than the title which a purchaser is, in the absence of a special contract, entitled to require, if in the opinion of the Court the title accepted be such as a person acting with prudence and caution would have accepted."

[Trustee Act, 1893.]

[Conditions incorporated in the contract.]

5. The 2nd section of the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, as to contracts for sale made after the 31st December, 1874, and the 3rd section of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (f),

(a) Ingle v. Partridge, 34 Beav. 412-414; [but see Re Godfrey, 23 Ch. D. 483, where trustees were held not liable, though they had not made an independent valuation; and in all cases the true test seems to be whether the trustees have acted as prudent men would in dealing with their own property; see ante, p. 375].

[(b) Ecclesiastical Comm. v. Pinney, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 736.]

(c) See Eastern Counties Railway Company v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. Cas. 363.

[(d) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 78.]

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, replacing s. 4, sub-s. 3, of the Trustee Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vict. c. 59.]

[(f) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

as to contracts for sale made after the 31st December, 1881, incorporate in such contracts various conditions and stipulations (a), unless the same are expressly excluded; and by sect. 15 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (b), and sect. 66 of the Act of 1881, trustees who are purchasers are authorised to buy without excluding the application of the Acts of 1874 and 1881. Sect. 66 of the Act of 1881 contains clauses expressly exonerating trustees and their solicitors from liability for adopting its provisions, but nothing in that Act is to be taken to imply that the adoption in connection with or application to any contract or transaction of any further or other provisions, stipulations, or words, is improper.

[Official searches.

6. Sect. 2 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882 (c), provides for an official search being made on the request of a purchaser for entries of judgments, Crown debts, and similar matters, and provides that when a solicitor acting for trustees obtains an office copy certificate of the result of the search under the section, the trustees shall not be answerable for any loss that may arise from error in the certificate (d); and by the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (e), the like protection is made applicable in the case of searches in the registries of writs and orders affecting land (f), deeds of arrangement (g), and land charges (h) established by that Act (i).

By the Land Charges Act, 1900 (j), the business relating to the registry of judgments is transferred to the office of Land Registry.

[Yorkshire Register.]

7. As to land situate in Yorkshire, the Yorkshire Registries Act, 1884 (k), provides for an official search of the register being made at the request of any person, and further exempts any trustee, executor, or other person in a fiduciary position who has obtained a certificate of the result of an official search or a certified copy of any document enrolled in the register, or of any entry in the register, from any loss, damage, or injury that may arise from any error in such certificate or copy. And where a

[(a) For these conditions and stipulations, see ante, pp. 518, et seq.]

[(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53.]

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 39.]

[(d) For some observations as to the limited nature of this protection, see Elphinstone and Clark on Searches, pp. 166, et seq.]

[(e) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 51.]

[(f) Sects. 5, 6.]

[(g) Ss. 7, 8, 9, and see definition in s. 4.]

[(h) Ss. 10-14, and see definition in s. 4, and Reg. v. Vice-Registrar of Land Registry, 24 Q. B. D. 178.]

[(i) Under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), a similar protection is extended to trustees in respect to searches under that Act; see s. 22, sub-s. 6 (d).]

[(j) 63 & 64 Vict. c. 26. See further as to these Acts, post, Chap. XXVIII., s. 7.]

[(k) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 54, ss. 20, 23.]

deed or will has been enrolled at full length, the comparison of an abstract with the copy so enrolled is to be a sufficient discharge of the duty to compare the abstract with the original document.]

Deposit.

8. As a deposit is almost invariably required upon a sale by auction, and not uncommonly upon a sale by private contract, it is conceived that trustees would be justified upon signing the contract in paying a deposit in part discharge de bene esse of the purchase-money. But generally the character of trustee is pleaded as an excuse for not paying a deposit, and is allowed.

Where purchase-money is in Court.

9. Where the money is in Court the trustee must enter into a conditional contract, that is "subject to the approbation of the Court," and then apply by summons at chambers for the Court's sanction, and the practice is to direct an inquiry whether the proposed purchase is fit and proper, and if so, whether a good title can be made. "As long," said Sir G. Jessel, "as an estate is under the administration of the Court, the Court does not allow a purchase or mortgage or any other investment to be made, without seeing to its safety. The Court has to protect the property for all claimants, and a reference is made to ascertain the propriety of the investment—that is to say, its propriety in all respects" (a). And the practice is not to inquire whether a good title can be made subject to the conditions, but whether a good title can be made absolutely, and if in the course of investigation an objection to the title arises, it is brought under the attention of the Judge, who then exercises his discretion (the whole title being before him), whether the objection can be waived with reasonable safety (b). "Much too great laxity," observed V. C. Wood, "has been gaining ground amongst the advisers of those who have to manage trust property, and there is a disposition to rest satisfied with imperfect titles. I cannot approve of such a practice, and cannot permit trustees to take a defective title, even though it may be in accordance with the contract" (c).

How purchase will affect the interest of cestuis que trust.

10. Trustees for purchase have to look not only to the adequacy of the value and the goodness of the title, but also to the effect which the purchase will have upon the relative interests of the cestuis que trust.

Purchase of houses.

Thus where the property is directed by the settlement to be held in trust for a person for life with remainders over, a trustee might no doubt purchase an estate with a suitable house upon it, but (without saying that he could not legally do so) he ought not to purchase a house merely. This is a property of a wasting nature, and the tenant for life could not be compelled to preserve it against natural decay. A power to invest on Government Annuities would not justify the purchase of Long Annuities, and there is a similar difference between land and houses, the former being worth about thirty years' purchase, and the latter much less, so that the tenant for life would be benefited at the expense of the remainderman (a).

(a) Bethell v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 27.

(b) Ex parte The Governors of Christ's Hospital, 2 H. & M. 166.

(c) Ex parte The Governors of Christ's Hospital, 2 H. & M. 168.

Ground-rents.

11. Even a purchase of ground-rents of houses, though coming under the description in the trust deed of "hereditaments," is not free from objection, for the object would of course be to procure for the tenant for life a higher income, but this would be at the cost of the remainderman in point of security. Should the houses be burnt down, and should the lessee have neglected to insure or the insurance moneys not be forthcoming, the trustee might have nothing to show for the purchase but a worthless site, and then the remainderman might seek to hold him responsible as for a fraudulent execution of his trust in equity, though the purchase was within the words of the trust according to the letter (b). However, it has been held that the purchase of freehold ground-rents reserved upon building leases for ninety-nine years is justifiable under a power to purchase "hereditaments in fee-simple in possession" (c).

A timbered estate.

12. Again, if a sum be given to be laid out in the purchase of an estate to be settled on a person for life without impeachment of waste, with remainders over, trustees should not purchase a wood estate, as the tenant for life, on being put into possession could by a fall of the timber possess himself of a great part of the capital or corpus of the fund (d); and, on the contrary, if the tenant for life were impeachable for waste, he would lose the fruit of so much as was the value of the timber (e). But trustees may purchase an estate where the timber forms no overwhelming proportion of the value, for it cannot be supposed that the trustees were meant to purchase land without trees upon it.

(a) See Moore v. Walter, 8 L. T. N.S. 448; 11 W. R. 713.

(b) See Read v. Shaw, Sugd. Powers Append. 953; and see Ib. p. 864, 8th ed.; and Middleton v. Pryor, Amb. 393.

(c) Re Peyton's Settlement, 7 L. R. Eq. 463.

(d) See the subject discussed in Burges v. Lamb, 16 Ves. 174.

[(e) But see now the Settled Land Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 38), s. 35 under which a tenant for life impeachable for waste in respect of timber may cut and sell ripe timber, and will be entitled to one-fourth of the proceeds.]

Mines.

13. Trustees again, should not purchase mines; for if the mines be open, the tenant for life might exhaust them, and leave nothing to the remainderman; and if not open, the tenant for life, if impeachable for waste, would get nothing, and the remainderman would take the whole (a). But under special circumstances the Court has sanctioned the purchase of mines (b).

Advowsons.

14. Advowsons, again, would be very undesirable as a purchase, for though the advowson or any particular presentation (before a vacancy) might be sold, there would be no annual or regular fruit. The remainderman, after the tenant for life's death, might sell the advowson, and get back all he was entitled to; but in the meantime the tenant for life would be reaping no benefit.

Copyholds for lives.

15. Copyholds for lives, if customarily renewable, might substantially be equal to freeholds, but they would not fall within the terms of a trust to purchase estates of inheritance (c).

Trustees buying from one of themselves.

16. Trustees having a trust or power to purchase must exercise a joint discretion as to the propriety of the purchase, and, therefore, as no man can be judge in his own case, they are precluded from buying from one of themselves. If such a purchase be really desirable, it might be carried out by a friendly proceeding for obtaining the sanction of the Court.

Consent of tenant for life.

17. A trust or power to purchase is sometimes accompanied with a condition that it shall be with the consent of the tenant for life. In such a case can the trustees purchase from the tenant for life himself? It is now settled that trustees with a similar power of sale and exchange can either sell to or exchange with the tenant for life (d), but this has always been regarded as hardly defensible on principle, and as an exception to the general rule. An exchange is in substance nothing more than a mutual sale, and when the simple case of a purchase by trustees from a tenant for life with power of consenting comes before the Court, it may be upheld, but in the meantime it would not be prudent for trustees, before actual decision, to incur the risk.

Equity of redemption.

18. Trustees, without a special power for the purpose, ought not

[(a) But see now the Settled Land Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 38), ss. 6-11, under which the tenant for life, whether impeachable for waste or not, may grant mining leases, and will be entitled to one-fourth or three-fourths of the mineral rents, as the case may be.]

(b) Bellot v. Littler, W. N. 1874, p. 156; 22 W. R. 836; 30 L. T. N.S. 861.

(c) Trench v. Harrison, 17 Sim. 111. N.B.—The words "of inheritance" in the marginal note, do not occur in the statement of the settlement in the body of the report, but seem to be implied.

(d) Howard v. Ducane, T. & R. 81.

to purchase an equity of redemption merely (a), for the mortgagee might seek to foreclose, when there might be a difficulty of redeeming, or might sell over the heads of the trustees under the power of sale, or might, [unless prevented by sect. 17 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (b),] consolidate his mortgage with some other mortgage on another estate of the mortgagor, and so oblige the trustees to redeem both. [Nor will the trustees be justified in purchasing an equity of redemption merely because their investments comprise a second mortgage on the property, and they are empowered to invest upon freehold, leasehold, and chattel real securities, "including equitable mortgages by deposit," with the usual power to vary investments (c).]

Should always get the legal estate.

19. It would not be too much to lay down the rule broadly that trustees should never purchase without getting the legal estate.

Repairs and improvements.

20. A trust to buy an estate will not justify the investment of part of the trust fund upon a purchase, and the expenditure of a further part upon repairs and improvements, however substantial, either of the purchased estate (d), or of an estate settled to the like uses (e). But in a case where money was bequeathed to be laid out on a purchase of land to be annexed to a settled estate, and part of the settled estate was the advowson of a rectory of which the parsonage house was so dilapidated as to require rebuilding, which the testator had contemplated, V. C. Malins held that the proposed expenditure was within the spirit of the trust, and that the trustees would be justified in

[(a) Worman v. Worman, 43 Ch. D. 296; and see Ex parte Craven, 17 L. J. N.S. Ch. 215; Re Galbraith, 10 Ir. R. Eq. 368, where the Court held that moneys paid into Court under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ought not to be re-invested in the purchase of an equity of redemption.]

[(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

[(c) Worman v. Worman, 43 Ch. D. 296.]

(d) Bostock v. Blakeney, 2 B. C. C. 653; Drake v. Trefusis, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 364.

(e) Dunne v. Dunne, 3 Sm. & G. 22; Brunskill v. Caird, 16 L. R. Eq. 493. But the Court by a liberal construction of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, and the Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act, has assumed the jurisdiction of applying money stamped with a trust for purchase of real estate, in the improvement of estates settled to the uses of the estates directed to be purchased. See Re Clitheroe's Trust, W. N. 1869, p. 26; Re Johnson's Trust, 8 L. R. Eq. 348; Re Incumbent of Whitfield, 1 J. & H. 610; Re Dummer's Will, 2 De G. J. & S. 515; Ex parte Rector of Claypole, 16 L. R. Eq. 574; [Re Speer's Trust, 3 Ch. D. 262; Ex parte Rector of Newton Heath, 44 W. R. 645;] and see Re Leigh's Estate, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 887; Re Newman's Settled Estates, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 681; Drake v. Trefusis, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 366; Re Hurle's Settled Estates, 2 H. & M. 196. [But see Re Venour's Settled Estates, 2 Ch. D. 522, 526; and that this liberality of construction will not be extended to cases arising under s. 21, sub-s. 7, of the Settled Land Act, 1882, see Re Lord Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252, 257, per Lindley, L. J.] applying a competent part of the trust fund for the purpose (a). And moneys liable to be laid out on a purchase of lands to be settled to certain uses may be laid out in the erection of new buildings, though not in the repair of old buildings on the lands settled to those uses (b), [or in draining the lands in settlement (c). In one case, where there was a trust for sale, and the circumstances were special, the Court, in the exercise of its general jurisdiction, by a prospective application of the doctrine of Vyse v. Foster (d), whereby a trustee is allowed sums expended for the benefit of the estate, sanctioned the expenditure of settled money in repairs necessary for the preservation of real estate settled in the same way (e); but this case was exceptional, and in general this jurisdiction will only be exercised in cases amounting to what has been termed "actual salvage" (f), as, for example, where a mansion-house is coming down owing to the foundations giving way (g), or has been condemned by the authorities as a dangerous structure (h); but not where parts of the mansion-house require to be rebuilt in order to prevent the destruction of the whole by dry rot (i).

[Settled Land Act.]

21. Now, by the Settled Land Act, 1882, sect. 33, money in the hands of trustees, and liable to be laid out in the purchase of land to be made subject to the settlement, may, at the option of the tenant for life, be invested or applied as capital money arising under the Act, and under this enactment it may be made applicable for the improvements authorised by the Act (j). And

(a) Re Lord Hotham's Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 76; Re Curzon's Trust, V. C. Malins, 8th May, 1874. But see Brunskill v. Caird, 16 L. R. Eq. 495; and Re Nether Stowey Vicarage, 17 L. R. Eq. 156.

(b) Drake v. Trefusis, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 364; [Re Leslie's Settlement Trusts, 2 Ch. D. 185; Re Lytton's Settled Estates, W. N. 1884, p. 193; Re Stock's Devised Estates, 42 L. T. N.S. 46; and see Donaldson v. Donaldson, 3 Ch. D. 743; Vine v. Raleigh, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 13; Re Mason, (1891) 3 Ch. 467; ante, p. 101].

[(c) Re Leslie's Settlement Trusts, 2 Ch. D. 185. As to improvements under the Settled Land Act, see post, Chap. XXII.]

[(d) 8 L. R. Ch. App. 309; affirmed 7 L. R. H. L. 318, see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 1.]

[(e) Conway v. Fenton, 40 Ch. D. 512; and see Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153, 164; Re Hawker's Settled Estates, 66 L. J. Ch. 341, 344; Re Montagu, (1897) 1 Ch. 685, 691.]

[(f) Re Jackson, 21 Ch. D. 786; Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153; Re Montagu, (1897) 1 Ch. 685; 2 Ch. (C.A.) 8; Re Hawker's Settled Estates, 66 L. J. Ch. 341; Hurst v. Hurst, 29 L. R. Ir. 219; Re Lord De Tabley, W. N. (1896) 12.]

[(g) See Frith v. Cameron, 12 L. R. Eq. 169; Re Montagu, (1897) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 8.]

[(h) See Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153, 161, 162, per Chitty, J.; approved in Re Willis, (1902) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 15.]

[(i) Re Legh's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 274.]

[(j) See post, Chap. XXII. These provisions do not exclude the application of the general jurisdiction of the Court, though they may usefully guide the Court in the exercise of it; see Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153;

[Extraordinary Tithe Rent-charge Act.]

under the Extraordinary Tithe Rent-charge Act, 1886 (a), money applicable to the purchase of land to be settled to or on any uses or trusts, is applicable in or towards the redemption of an "extraordinary charge" (b), or a rent-charge under the Act on land settled to or on the like uses or trusts.]

Estates in possession.

22. Where the trust is to purchase an estate "in possession," it would not be competent to trustees to buy an estate in reversion; but, as already observed, under a power to purchase "hereditaments in fee-simple in possession," trustees may buy ground-rents reserved upon building leases for ninety-nine years (c). But where the leases are of short duration, and the ground-rents are low as compared with the rental of the property when it falls into possession, the purchase of the ground-rents would be for the advantage of the remainderman at the expense of the tenant for life.

Fund in Court.

23. Where the trust fund is in Court, it is still the duty of the trustees to watch the administration, and see that the purchase is a proper one, unless all the beneficiaries, whether under disability or not, are before the Court, and then the cestuis que trust by themselves or their guardians can look after their own interests, and the trustees are exonerated (d).

Costs.

24. The costs of the purchase are to be considered as part of it, and will come out of the same fund. The trustees, therefore, should provide for the costs as well as for the purchase-money, though, if this were not done, they would still have a lien for the costs properly incurred upon the estate purchased (e).

Whether trust to be disclosed.

25. The trustees, where the money is not under administration by the Court, need not disclose the trust to the vendor, either in the contract or in the conveyance. If they do so, it may embarrass the vendor by obliging him to see that the purchase-money is properly applied in pursuance of the trust.

Declaration of trust.

26. Where the legal estate is required to be vested in the trustees, they should, contemporaneously with the completion of Re Montagu, (1897) 1 Ch. 685; Re Hawker's Settled Estates, 66 L. J. Ch. 341. On the other hand, the protection afforded to purchasers by s. 70 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, will not make the Court less careful in the exercise of the jurisdiction; Re Montagu, (1897) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 8, 11, per Rigby, L. J. Where there are legal tenants for life and legal remainders, or equivalent limitations, as where the trustees have a bare legal estate, the Settled Land Acts form, as it were, a code, and where the case is not brought within that code there is no general jurisdiction enabling expenditure on repairs to be made: Re Willis, (1902) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 15, 23, per Romer, L. J.]

[(a) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 54, s. 6 (1).]

[(b) See preamble to Act.]

(c) Re Peyton's Settlement, 7 L. R. Eq. 463.

(d) Davis v. Combermere, 9 Jur. 76.

(e) Gwyther v. Allen, 1 Hare, 505.

the purchase, execute a formal declaration of trust, either by indorsement on the conveyance, or by a separate instrument with notice of it indorsed on the conveyance, as otherwise the survivor would have it in his power to deal with the property as his own. Where notice of the trust to the vendor cannot be avoided, the declaration of trust may be embodied in the conveyance itself. This to some extent lengthens the conveyance, and the vendor might in strictness claim the extra costs; but such a claim is very seldom, if ever, heard of in practice.

Consequences of no declaration of trust.

27. A declaration of trust, or some notice tantamount to it, not only obviates fraud on the part of the trustee, but is also desirable on another account. If the estate purchased be not ear-marked at the time as subject to the trust, serious questions might afterwards arise between the cestuis que trust and the representatives of the trustee, who are the persons entitled to the property, viz. whether the estate was purchased with the trust fund or from the trustee's private resources, and the evidence upon this issue might entail infinite expense (a).

[Trustee providing part of purchase-money.]

[28. Where an estate is purchased by trustees, but, the trust funds being insufficient to provide the whole purchase-money, one of the trustees provides the sum necessary to complete the purchase, the trust estate is entitled to a first charge upon the estate for the amount of the trust fund, and subject to such charge the trustee is entitled to be indemnified out of the estate in respect of the sum provided by him, and subject to such indemnity the real estate belongs to the trust (b).]

Whether the settlement should be in the conveyance.

29. Where the legal estate is not required to be vested in the trustees, but is to be limited to the use of the beneficiaries, the first question is, whether the limitations should be inserted in the conveyance itself, or whether the conveyance should be to the trustees, and a settlement executed subsequently. The answer must depend on the particular circumstances of each case, and whether the vendor will or not offer any objection, though it is conceived that on the purchaser undertaking to pay any extra costs to be thereby occasioned, the vendor could not object.

Whether to be referential.

30. Another practical question is, whether the limitations of the settlement to which the new purchase is to be subjected should be set out at length, or be incorporated by reference. In either case the trustees must be careful to ascertain the facts, as, for instance, whether the owners of the successive estates have in any and what way dealt with their respective interests.

(a) See Mathias v. Mathias, 3 Sm. & G. 552; Price v. Blakemore, 6 Beav. 507, and see post, Chap. XXXI. s. 2.

[(b) Re Pumfrey, 22 Ch. D. 255.]

Form of referential settlement.

31. If it be proposed to settle the property by referential words, caution must be used so as to preserve the rights of the beneficiaries intact. Suppose, for instance, the trustees of a marriage settlement of real estate had disposed of it under a power of sale, and had laid out the proceeds in the purchase of another estate, and then granted the new property to A. and his heirs "to the uses and upon the trusts," &c., of the original settlement. If in this case a term of years was limited by the original settlement to trustees, who have subsequently died, no new term will be created, or if any tenant for life or remainderman had sold his interest, he would, nevertheless, take the like estate again, and the purchaser could have only an equity. It is impossible to provide a priori any form that would adapt itself to all cases; but the following, which was settled by two eminent conveyancers, in a case where part of the settled estates had been sold and the proceeds re-invested, may be usefully inserted. The habendum was "to such uses as under and by virtue of the said indenture of settlement are now subsisting in the thereby settled hereditaments (now remaining unsold), and so that the said hereby assured hereditaments shall upon the execution of these presents be vested in the persons in whom the said thereby settled hereditaments (now remaining unsold) are now vested, and for the same estates and interests as are now vested in those persons respectively in the same hereditaments under or in consequence of that indenture, and shall be subject to the same trusts, powers, and provisions as the said thereby settled hereditaments (now remaining unsold) are now subject to or affected by, under or in consequence of the same indenture, and so as to give effect to, but so as not to multiply or increase, any charge subsisting under that indenture or thereby authorised to be created" (a).

Directions for settlement.

32. It has hitherto been assumed that the directions for the limitations in the settlement are clear in themselves, but it often happens that the trustees are involved in considerable perplexity from the ambiguity of the language in which the directions are given. We have to some extent anticipated this subject in a former page, under the general head of "executory trusts" (which comprise trusts for purchase and settlement) (b), but some further observations may here be introduced, with reference to the particular branch of executory trusts now under consideration.

(a) See ante, p. 148. (b) See ante, pp. 128 et seq.

Impeachment for waste.

33. When trustees have to settle the estate upon a person for life, with remainders over or in strict settlement, the question at once suggests itself whether the tenant for life is or not to be made impeachable for waste. The primâ facie rule appears to be that he shall (a), but there are important exceptions. Thus, where a larger estate than for life is given in the first instance, but it is afterwards cut down by directions for a strict settlement, the Court does not consider itself justified in reducing the interest first taken beyond the clear intention, but limits a life estate without impeachment for waste (b). Again, where a testator directed a settlement to be made on A. and the heirs of his body (which would have left him tenant in tail), and then added that "it was never to be in the power of A. to dock the entail during his life," A. was declared to be tenant for life without impeachment of waste (c). And the like construction prevailed where a testator constituted A. "his heir," but desired that it should "be secured for the benefit of A.'s family" (d). Again, where a testator directed the property to be "closely entailed," the Court cut it down to a tenancy for life with remainder to the issue, but exempted the tenant for life from impeachment for waste (e).

"To be strictly settled."

34. In another case, where the direction was that the estate should be "strictly settled," the limitation to the tenant for life was without impeachment for waste (f), and V. C. Wood observed, with reference to this decision, that it was sustainable on the ground that the term "strict settlement" without more was understood, in accordance with the common form of such instruments, to imply estates for life without impeachment of waste (g).

Concurrence of all the cestuis que trust.

35. If the parties beneficially interested are under no disability, and can agree together as to the disposition of the fund before investment or of the estate after investment, the trustees will be bound to obey their joint wishes, and must deal with the property in the manner directed by their joint order.

[Purchase in breach of trust.]

36. [Where a purchase is made in breach of trust, the trustee has

(a) Davenport v. Davenport, 1 H. & M. 775; Stanley v. Coulthurst, 10 L. R. Eq. 259.

(b) Davenport v. Davenport, 1 H. & M. 779, per V. C. Wood; Sackville-West v. Viscount Holmesdale, 4 L. R. H. L. 543.

(c) Leonard v. Sussex, 2 Vern. 526. See 1 H. & M. 778.

(d) White v. Briggs, 15 Sim. 17 & 300.

(e) Woolmore v. Burrows, 1 Sim. 512. See 1 H. & M. 778.

(f) Banks v. Le Despencer, 10 Sim. 576; 11 Sim. 508; and see Loch v. Bagley, 4 L. R. Eq. 122.

(g) Davenport v. Davenport, 1 H. & M. 779.

no right of indemnity to which the vendor can be subrogated, so as to give him a remedy, in respect of unpaid purchase-money, against the persons beneficially entitled to the settled estate; his only remedy is by a lien on the land sold (a).]

[(a) Ecclesiastical Comm. v. Pinney, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 736; as to resale of land purchased in breach of trust, see ante, p. 555.]

CHAPTER XX

DUTIES OF TRUSTEES FOR PAYMENT OF DEBTS

UNDER this head we shall treat—First, Of the validity of a trust for payment of debts; Secondly, What creditors' deeds are revocable; and Thirdly, Of the duties of trustees for payment of debts.

SECTION I

OF THE VALIDITY OF THE TRUST

1. A trust for payment of debts may be created either by will or by act inter vivos.

Validity of a trust for payment of debts.

2. A trust created by will for payment of debts out of personal estate is so far a nullity, that the executor is bound, at all events, to provide for the payment of debts out of the assets in a due course of administration, and would not be justified in the breach of this legal obligation by pleading any expression of intention on the part of the testator. It is only as respects any surplus personal estate after payment of debts that the executor ought to regulate his administration by the directions of the will. A devise, however, of real estate for payment of debts is in all cases unimpeachable, for the Debts Recovery Act, 1830, avoiding devises as against specialty creditors (a), and the Administration of Estates Act, 1833, avoiding them as against simple contract creditors (b), have expressly excepted devises for payment of debts.

(a) 11 G. 4. & 1 W. 4. c. 47; see post, Chap. XXVIII. s. 12. [In the case of a person dying on or after 1st January, 1898, it is provided by the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65) s. 2, sub-s. 3, that the real estate is to be administered in the same manner and subject to the same liabilities for debt as if it were personal estate, but nothing therein contained is to alter or affect the order in which real and personal assets respectively are applicable in or towards payment of debts.]

(b) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 104.

Trust created by act inter vivos attended with fraud.

3. As to trusts created by act inter vivos, a trust for payment of debts will in all cases be void, if vitiated by actual fraud, as if the debtor by an understanding between him and his trustees be left in possession of the estate so as to obtain a fictitious credit (a).

Person not a trader might create trust for payment of debts.

4. Under the old bankruptcy laws, a broad distinction was made between non-traders and traders. If the settlor was not a trader he was not amenable to the bankrupt laws, and therefore was at perfect liberty to dispose either of the whole (b), or of part of his property (c) for payment of all (d), or any number of his creditors (e). The argument formerly urged for the invalidity of such a trust was that 13 Eliz. c. 5 (f) avoided "all alienations contrived of fraud, to delay creditors and others of their just debts," &c. But with respect to a trust for the satisfaction of creditors generally—"How," said Le Blanc, J., "can it be fraudulent for a person not the object of the bankrupt laws to make the same provision voluntarily for the benefit of all his creditors which the law compels to be done in the case of a bankrupt trader?" (g); and if the settlor direct the payment of particular debts only, "It is neither illegal nor immoral," said Lord Kenyon, "to prefer one set of creditors to another" (h). Nor did the creation of such a trust fall within the scope of the Act; for "it is not every feoffment, judgment, &c.," said Lord Ellenborough, "which will have the effect of delaying or hindering creditors of their debts, &c., that is therefore fraudulent within the statute; for such is the effect pro tanto of every assignment that can be made by one who has creditors: every assignment of a man's

(a) Twyne's case, 3 Rep. 80 a; Wilson v. Day, 2 Burr. 827; Hungerford v. Earle, 2 Vern. 261; Tarback v. Marbury, 2 Vern. 510; Law v. Skinner, 2 W. Bl. 996; and see Worseley v. De Mattos, 1 Burr. 467; Stone v. Grantham, 2 Buls. 218; Pickstock v. Lyster, 3 M. & S. 371; Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 197.

(b) Ingliss v. Grant, 5 T. R. 530; Nunn v. Wilsmore, 8 T. R. 528, per Lord Kenyon; Pickstock v. Lyster, 3 M. & S. 371; Leonard v. Baker, 1 M. & S. 251; see Meux v. Howell, 4 East, 1. As to what property will pass by general words in a creditors' deed, and whether the trustees can disclaim any part which is a damnosa possessio, see How v. Kennett, 3 Ad. & Ell. 659; Carter v. Warne, Moo. & Ma. 479; West v. Steward, 14 M. & W. 47.

(c) Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 420; Goss v. Neale, 5 Taunt. 19; see Meux v. Howell, 4 East, 1.

(d) Meux v. Howell, 4 East, 1; Ingliss v. Grant, 5 T. R. 530; Pickstock v. Lyster, 3 M. & S. 371; Leonard v. Baker, 1 M. & S. 251.

(e) Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 420; Nunn v. Wilsmore, 8 T. R. 528, per Lord Kenyon; Goss v. Neale, 5 Taunt. 19; Wood v. Dixie, 7 Q. B. 892.

(f) Perpetuated 29 Eliz. c. 5, [repealed with the usual saving by 42 & 43 Vict. c. 59].

(g) Meux v. Howell, 4 East, 9.

(h) Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 424; [Alton v. Harrison, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 622; Boldero v. London and Westminster Discount Company, 5 Ex. D. 47; Maskelyne v. Smith, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 671].

property, however good and honest the consideration, must diminish the fund out of which satisfaction is to be made to his creditors. But the feoffment, judgment, &c., must be devised of malice, fraud, or the like, to bring it within the statute: the Act was meant to prevent deeds, &c., fraudulent in the concoction, and not merely such as in their effect might delay or hinder other creditors" (a).

Fraudulent conveyance.

5. If the settlor was a trader, then by the Bankruptcy Act, 1849 (12 & 13 Vict. c. 106), sect. 67 (being a re-enactment of the previous statutes), it was declared that "any fraudulent conveyance, with intent to defeat or delay creditors, should be deemed an act of bankruptcy"; and it was adjudged fraudulent, within the meaning of this clause, if a person assigned the whole of his property (b), whether expressed to be the whole or not in the deed (c), or all but a colourable part (d), or all the stock, without which he could not carry on his trade (e).

Grounds of the rule.

6. It was immaterial whether the trust was for any particular creditor (f), or a certain number of them (g), or all the creditors at large (h), for by the assignment of his whole substance the

(a) Meux v. Howell, 4 East, 13, 14; [and see Spencer v. Slater, 4 Q. B. D. 13].

(b) Nunn v. Wilsmore, 8 T. R. 528, per Lord Kenyon; Alderson v. Temple, 4 Burr. 2240, per Lord Mansfield; Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 441, per eundem; Wilson v. Day, 2 Burr. 827; Rust v. Cooper, Cowp. 632, per Lord Mansfield; Leake v. Young, 5 Ell. & Bl. 955; Bowker v. Burdekin, 11 M. & W. 128; Johnson v. Fesenmeyer, 25 Beav. 88; Smith v. Cannan, 2 Ell. & Bl. 35. But see Ex parte Gass, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 284, in which it was held (though the decision rested on other grounds), that the question of fraud is one of fact, and therefore if under the peculiar circumstances the Court is satisfied that the conveyance of the bankrupt's whole property was bonâ fide, and with a view to pay his creditors rather than to defeat them, the deed will be supported.

(c) See Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 193; Lindon v. Sharp, 6 Man. & Gr. 905. But the assignment of all his property at a certain place is not an act of bankruptcy, unless it be proved that he had no other property; Chase v. Goble, 2 Man. & G. 930.

(d) Law v. Skinner, 2 W. Bl. 996; Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 442, per Lord Mansfield; Wilson v. Day, 2 Burr. 832, per eundem; Alderson v. Temple, 4 Burr. 2240, per eundem; Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 424, per Lord Kenyon; Gayner's case, cited 1 Burr. 477; Compton v. Bedford, 1 W. Bl. 368; Johnson v. Fesenmeyer, 25 Beav. 88; Ex parte Foxley, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 515.

(e) Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 442; Law v. Skinner, 2 W. Bl. 996; Siebert v. Spooner, 1 M. & W. 714; Porter v. Walker, 1 Man. & Gr. 686; Ex parte Bailey, 3 De G. M. & G. 534; Ex parte Taylor, 5 De G. M. & G. 392; Lacon v. Liffen, 4 Giff. 75; and see Ex parte Hawker, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 214.

(f) Wilson v. Day, 2 Burr. 827; Hassell v. Simpson, 1 B. C. C. 99; S. C. Doug. 89, note; Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 442, per Lord Mansfield; Worseley v. De Mattos, 1 Burr. 467; Newton v. Chantler, 7 East, 138.

(g) Ex parte Foord, cited Worseley v. De Mattos, 1 Burr. 477; Alderson v. Temple, 4 Burr. 2240, per Lord Mansfield; Butcher v. Easto, Doug. 282; Devon v. Watts, Doug. 86; Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 442, per Lord Mansfield.

(h) Kettle v. Hammond, 1 Cooke's B. L. 108, 3rd edit.; Eckhardt v.

bankrupt became utterly insolvent; and if the trust was for one or some only of his creditors, it was a fraud upon the rest, and if it was for all the creditors, it was a fraud upon the spirit of the bankruptcy laws, which require a bankrupt's estate to be under the management of certain commissioners and assignees appointed as prescribed by the legislature—not of persons nominated by the debtor himself, and so more likely to further his views than promote the interest of the creditors (a).

Where deed could be supported.

7. But in order to avoid the deed, there must have been in existence a debt due at the time of its execution (b); and the assignment, though void as against creditors and the assignees in bankruptcy (c), was good as between the parties themselves (d). And assignments for valuable consideration at the full price, where the purchaser was not party or privy to the fraudulent designs of the vendor (e), or for less than the full price, if the transaction was bonâ fide (f), and mortgages made bonâ fide for fresh advances (g), or to secure payment of old debts and further advances combined (h), were not acts of bankruptcy and could not be impeached; and a conveyance and assignment by a trader bonâ fide of all his property substantially to trustees upon trust to convert into money and hold the proceeds upon trust for the settlor, or his appointees, was not an act of bankruptcy (i).

What concomitant circumstances would not vary the rule.

8. A fraudulent deed was an act of bankruptcy, notwithstanding a proviso declaring it void if the trustees thought fit (j), or if all the creditors should not execute (the acts of the trustees to be good in the meantime) (k); or if all the creditors to a certain amount should not execute by such a time, or a commission of bankruptcy should issue (l). So it was an act of bankruptcy, though the trustees at the time of the execution of the deed did not intend to act upon it (for the fraud was to be referred to the

Wilson, 8 T. R. 140; Tappenden v. Burgess, 4 East, 230; Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 199, per Lord Eldon; Simpson v. Sikes, 6 M. & S. 312.

(a) See Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 199; Worseley v. De Mattos, 1 Burr. 476; Simpson v. Sikes, 6 M. & S. 312.

(b) Ex parte Taylor, 5 De G. M. & G. 392; Ex parte Thomas, De Gex, 612; Ex parte Louch, De Gex, 463; Oswald v. Thompson, 2 Exch. 215.

(c) Doe v. Ball, 11 M. & W. 531.

(d) Bessey v. Windham, 6 Q. B. 166.

(e) Baxter v. Pritchard, 1 Ad. & Ell. 456; Rose v. Haycock, Ib. 460; Smith v. Hurst, 10 Hare, 30.

(f) Lee v. Hart, 10 Exch. 555.

(g) Bittlestone v. Cooke, 6 Ell. & Bl. 296; Hutton v. Cruttwell, 1 Ell. & Bl. 15; Harris v. Rickett, 4 H. & N. 1; Re Colemere, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 128.

(h) Whitmore v. Dowling, 2 Foster & Finlason, 134.

(i) Greenwood v. Churchill, 1 M. & K. 546; and see Berney v. Davison, 1 Brod. & B. 408; 4 Moore, 126.

(j) Tappenden v. Burgess, 4 East, 230.

(k) Back v. Gooch, 4 Camp. 232; S. C. Holt, 13.

(l) Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 193.

animus of the trader) (a); and though the trustees induced the debtor to execute it, with the object of making it an act of bankruptcy (b); and though the debtor himself meant it to be taken as an act of bankruptcy (c).

No act of bankruptcy, if deed could not be enforced.

9. But if A., B., and C. agreed to execute an assignment as a joint transaction, and A. executed, but B. and C. refused, then, as the assignment of A. was made on the footing and faith of B. and C.'s concurrence, and therefore could not be enforced against A. individually and solely, it was no act of bankruptcy (d).

Assignment executed abroad.

10. An assignment executed abroad was at one time held to be no act of bankruptcy in England (e); but in this respect the law has been altered by statute (f).

Creditors concurring or acquiescing could not treat it as an act of bankruptcy.

11. If any creditors either concurred in the assignment (g), or subsequently acquiesced in it (h), they could not afterwards treat it as an act of bankruptcy, for it was not fraudulent as to them. And a trust deed which, as concurred or acquiesced in by all the creditors, could not have been impeached under a fiat sued out by a creditor, could not be impeached under the bankrupt's own fiat (i).

Trader might assign part in trust for his creditors.

Unless he contemplated bankruptcy.

12. If a person assigned part only of his property in trust for creditors, then, if the transaction was fair and bonâ fide, and in the ordinary course of business, or upon the pressure of the creditors, it was not open to objection (j); but if the settlor contemplated bankruptcy (k), or even thought it probable, though

(a) Tappenden v. Burgess, 4 East, 230.

(b) Tappenden v. Burgess, 4 East, 230.

(c) Simpson v. Sikes, 6 M. & S. 295.

(d) Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 193, see 202; and see Bowker v. Burdekin, 11 M. & W. 128.

(e) Norden v. James, 2 Dick. 533; Ingliss v. Grant, 5 T. R. 530.

(f) 6 G. 4. c. 16, s. 3, repealed and re-enacted by the Bankruptcy Act, 1849 (12 & 13 Vict. c. 106), s. 67, re-enacted in effect by the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 71), s. 6, [and now by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 4].

(g) Eckhardt v. Wilson, 8 T. R. 142, per Cur.; Bamford v. Baron, 2 T. R. 594, note (a); Tappenden v. Burgess, 4 East, 230, per Lord Ellenborough; Ex parte Cawkwell, 1 Rose, 313.

(h) Ex parte Crawford, 1 Chris. B. L. 97, 140; Ex parte Low, 1 G. & J. 84, per Lord Eldon; Ex parte Cawkwell, 1 Rose, 313; Ex parte Shaw, 1 Mad. 598; Back v. Gooch, 4 Camp. 232; S.C. Holt, 13.

(i) Ex parte Philpot, De Gex, 346; Ex parte Louch, Id. 463; Ex parte Thomas, Id. 612.

(j) Hale v. Allnutt, 18 C. B. 505; Wheelwright v. Jackson, 5 Taunt. 109; Hartshorn v. Slodden, 2 B. & P. 582; Fidgeon v. Sharp, 5 Taunt. 539; Small v. Oudley, 2 P. W. 427; Cock v. Goodfellow, 10 Mod. 489; Compton v. Bedford, 1 W. Bl. 362, per Lord Mansfield; Hooper v. Smith, 1 W. Bl. 441; Alderson v. Temple, 4 Burr. 2240, per Lord Mansfield; Wilson v. Day, 2 Burr. 830, per eundem; Ib. 831, per Foster and Wilmot; Jacob v. Shepherd, cited Worseley v. De Mattos, 1 Burr. 478; Harman v. Fisher, Cowp. 123, per Lord Mansfield; Rust v. Cooper, Cowp. 634, per eundem; Ex parte Scudamore, 3 Ves. 85; and see Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 424; Newton v. Chantler, 7 East, 144; Johnson v. Fesenmeyer, 25 Beav. 88; Ex parte Gass, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 284.

(k) Linton v. Bartlet, 3 Wils. 47;

not inevitable (a), and wished to give an undue preference to certain creditors over others, it was fraudulent, and constituted an act of bankruptcy.

13. Although the deed was void for any reason at law, yet it might be supported in equity as to creditors who had assented to it, or acquiesced in it, though without actual execution (b). Assent or acquiescence.

14. On the other hand, a creditor was not bound by the arrangement, but might recover his whole debt, if the terms of the composition were not strictly and literally fulfilled, for cujus est dare ejus est disponere, and the creditor has a right to prescribe the conditions of his indulgence (c). Where trust valid, the terms must be strictly observed.

[15. The question whether, under a trust deed in favour of creditors, there is a resulting trust for the settlor is one of intention. In a recent case where the business and property of a firm were assigned to trustees upon trust to carry on the business, or sell and dispose of the assets and pay and divide the clear residue of the profits and moneys among the creditors in rateable proportions, it was held by the House of Lords (reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal) that by the form of the deed there was no resulting trust of any possible surplus in favour of the asssignors (d). [Resulting trust of surplus.]

16. By the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 71), which repealed 12 & 13 Vict. c. 106, and the subsequent Bankruptcy Act of 1861, the law of bankruptcy was put upon a new footing. But this Act was repealed by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (e), which has again introduced a new law of bankruptcy. All persons, whether traders or otherwise, are now amenable to the bankruptcy laws. By the 4th section of the Act of 1883, the following acts (amongst others) are made acts of bankruptcy, viz.:— [Bankruptcy Act, 1883.]

(1.) That the debtor has in England or elsewhere made a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally. [Acts of bankruptcy.]

(2.) That the debtor has in England or elsewhere made a

Morgan v. Horseman, 3 Taunt. 241; Alderson v. Temple, 4 Burr. 2238; Round v. Byde, 1 Cooke B. L. 114, 3rd ed.; Devon v. Watts, Doug. 86; Pulling v. Tucker, 4 B. & Ald. 382; Harman v. Fisher, Cowp. 117.

(a) Poland v. Glyn, 2 D. & R. 310; Guthrie v. Crossley, 2 C. & P. 301.

(b) Spottiswood v. Stockdale, G. Coop. 102; Re Baber's Trust, 10 L. R. Eq. 554.

(c) Sewell v. Musson, 1 Vern. 210; Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, 16 Ves. 374, per Lord Eldon; Leigh v. Barry, 3 Atk. 583, per Lord Hardwicke; Ex parte Bennett, 2 Atk. 527, per eundem; and see Fuller v. Lance, 7 Vin. Ab. 136.

[(d) Cooke v. Smith, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 38; S. C. in D. P. nom. Smith v. Cooke; Storey v. Cooke, (1891) A. C. 297.]

[(e) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52.]

fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery, or transfer of his property, or any part thereof.

(3.) That the debtor has in England or elsewhere made any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or created any charge thereon which would, under that or any other Act, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged bankrupt (a).

[Limitation of time.]

But by the 6th section a creditor is not to be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless the act of bankruptcy has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition for adjudication. Until the expiration, therefore, of these three months, the trustees of a creditors' deed must forbear to act, or their proceedings may be overridden by a subsequent adjudication of bankruptcy. However, the trustees may begin the exercise of their office at an earlier day if they can only satisfy themselves, either that all the creditors have concurred or acquiesced in the deed, or that such as have not cannot either collectively or individually prove a debt or debts in the requisite amount to support an adjudication of bankruptcy.

If the trustee of a creditors' deed take possession of the debtor's property, and carry on his business under the provisions of the deed, and the debtor is subsequently adjudicated a bankrupt on the act of bankruptcy committed by the execution of the deed, the trustee in the bankruptcy must elect whether he will treat the trustee of the deed as a trespasser or as his agent (b).]

17. Now that the distinction between traders and non-traders has substantially been abolished, what before was a fraudulent conveyance as to traders only, will be a fraudulent conveyance as to non-traders also (c).

SECTION II

WHAT CREDITORS' DEEDS ARE REVOCABLE

Irrevocable trusts.

1. The existence of a debt is always a sufficient consideration to support an assurance as valid and irrevocable as against the grantor (a); indeed the assurance will almost always assume the form, either of a conveyance in satisfaction or part satisfaction of the debt (in which case the extinction or partial extinction of the debt forms the consideration), or of a security accompanied with a forbearance to sue (b). Thus, if A. be indebted to B., and convey an estate to him by way of security, the deed, though no money passed at the time, and there was no previous arrangement, cannot be revoked by A., but B. may insist on the benefit of it (c). And if the creditor be not a party to the deed, yet if, by arrangement between him and the debtor, an estate is vested in a trustee for securing the debt, he can enforce the trust (d). Even where a debtor entered into an arrangement with three of his creditors, and in pursuance thereof, by a deed between himself of the first part, the three creditors of the second part, and his other creditors of the third part, conveyed all his real and personal estate to the three creditors, in trust for themselves and the other creditors, it was held that the intention was to make the creditors cestuis que trust, and that the deed was irrevocable; and no distinction was taken between the three creditors and the other creditors, although the latter apparently had not been in communication with the debtor previous to the deed, and had not executed it until some time afterwards (e).

[(a) As to what constitutes a fraudulent preference under the Act, see s. 48; and as to deeds fraudulent under 13 Eliz. c. 5, see ante, p. 82; and as to registration of deeds of arrangement, see post, p. 614.]

[(b) Ex parte Vaughan, 14 Q. B. D. 25.]

(c) In re Wood, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 302; [and see Re Hughes, (1893) 1 Q. B. 595].

Revocable trusts.

2. On the other hand, if a debtor, without communication with his creditors, and, indeed, only from motives of personal convenience, as on going abroad (f), vest an estate in trustees upon trust to pay his debts, the trustees are mere mandatories, and the deed confers no right upon the creditors who are neither parties nor privies, and the debtor may at any time, at his pleasure, revoke or vary the trusts, or call for the retransfer of the property (g). And if two persons have different interests in the

(a) See Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 84. But a conveyance by way of security from a debtor to his creditor, where there is no pressure, may be a fraudulent preference within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Acts; Goodricke v. Taylor, 2 H. & M. 380; and, if the debtor's whole property be included, an act of bankruptcy; Ex parte Trevor, 1 Ch. D. 297; [and see the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 48].

(b) It has been suggested, however, that a mere agreement to give a mortgage for a bygone debt, unaccompanied by any express stipulation as to forbearance, cannot be enforced. See Crofts v. Feuge, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 316; Woodroffe v. Johnston, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 319.

(c) Siggers v. Evans, 5 Ell. & Bl. 367; Montefiore v. Browne, 7 H. L. Cas. 241; Morris v. Venables, 15 W. R. 2.

(d) Wilding v. Richards, 1 Coll. 661.

(e) Mackinnon v. Stewart, 1 Sim. N.S. 76.

(f) Cornthwaite v. Frith, 4 De G. & Sm. 552.

(g) Walwyn v. Coutts, 3 Sim. 14; 3 Mer. 707; Smith v. Keating, 6 C. B. 136; Acton v. Woodgate, 2 M. & K. 492; Henriques v. Bensusan, 20 W. R. 350; Browne v. Cavendish, 1 Jon. & Lat.

same estate, and they, by arrangement between themselves, but without communication with any creditor, convey the property to trustees, upon trust to pay the debts of either party, here, though each may enforce the trust as against the other, yet the deed is revocable by both, and the creditor, as he neither required the security, nor was an object of bounty, cannot, while the deed remains revocable, compel the execution of the trust in his own favour (a). And a fortiori this is the case if the payment of the debt is to be made only on the request of the settlor (b). But, of course, the trust cannot be revoked by the settlor, so as to defeat or prejudice what the trustees may have done previously in the due execution of the trust (c).

Garrard v. Lauderdale.

3. In Garrard v. Lauderdale, the Duke of York, by indenture between himself of the first part, trustees of the second part, and the creditors of the third part, conveyed certain property to trustees upon trust for his creditors, and upon the execution of the deed a circular to that effect was sent to each of the creditors. Here there was ground for contending that, as the creditors had been induced by the notice to forbear suing the settlor, they had acquired a right to the execution of the trust, but Sir L. Shadwell, observing that the receipt of the circular was not admitted, and that, if received, yet the creditors had not refrained from suing, as they had proved in an administration suit against the Duke's estate, decided that the creditors had no equity to enforce the trust (d), and the decree, on appeal to Lord Brougham, was affirmed (e). The authority, [which is now well established (f),] of this case was on several occasions questioned (g); and Lord St Leonards observed he should be sorry to have it understood that a man may create a trust for creditors, communicate it to them, and 606; [Johns v. James, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 744; Re Sanders' Trusts, 47 L. J. N.S. Ch. 667; Priestley v. Ellis, (1897) 1 Ch. 489; New & Co.'s Trustee v. Hunting, (1897) 1 Q. B. 607; 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 19; S. C. in H. L. nom. Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) A. C. 419; Re Ashby, (1892) 1 Q. B. 872;] and see Synnot v. Simpson, 5 H. L. Cas. 121.

(a) Gibbs v. Glamis, 11 Sim. 584; Simmonds v. Palles, 2 Jon. & Lat. 489; and see Synnot v. Simpson, 5 H. L. Cas. 121; [Re Ashby, (1892) 1 Q. B. 872].

(b) Evans v. Bagwell, 2 Conn. & Laws. 612.

(c) Wilding v. Richards, 1 Coll. 655, see 659; and see Kirwan v. Daniel, 5 Hare, 493.

(d) 3 Sim. 1, 13.

(e) 2 R. & M. 451; and see Cornthwaite v. Frith, 4 De G. & Sm. 552; Stone v. Van Heythuysen, Kay, 727.

[(f) See Johns v. James, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 744; Montefiore v. Browne, 7 H. L. Cas. 241; Henderson v. Rothschild, 33 Ch. D. 459; New & Company's Trustee v. Hunting, (1897) 1 Q. B. 607; 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 19; S. C. in H. L. nom. Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) A.C. 419; Priestley v. Ellis, (1897) 1 Ch. 489.]

(g) See Acton v. Woodgate, 2 M. & D. 495; Kirwan v. Daniel, 5 Hare, 499; Simmonds v. Palles, 2 Jon. & Lat. 495, 504; Siggers v. Evans, 5 Ell. & Bl. 367.

obtain from them the benefit of their lying by until perhaps the legal right to sue was lost, and then insist that the trust was wholly within his power (a). There can be little doubt that upon the general principles of equity the settlor, by giving notice to the trustees, and by subsequent conduct, may confer on the creditors a right which they did not originally possess (b); and indeed it as now been decided that if property be assigned to a trustee, and he takes possession of it, and communicates with certain of the creditors, who express their satisfaction, the trust is irrevocable (c).

Trustee one of the creditors.

4. If the trustee be himself a creditor, the debt forms a sufficient consideration on behalf of the creditor, and the deed is irrevocable (d); and in one case, where property was vested in a trustee for creditors, and the trustee was a surety for some of the debts, it was held that, though the trust was revocable as to the general creditors, yet the trustee himself was not bound to reconvey the estate until the suretyship was satisfied (e).

Nature of the revocable trust.

5. It does not clearly appear from the authorities what is the precise nature of a revocable trust of this kind (f). The instrument is sometimes called a deed of agency, and if so, the trust must be considered at an end at the death of the settlor, and the property, so far as it has not been applied, must be administered as part of the settlor's assets (g). The trust is not regarded as revocable only during the life of the settlor, so as to give a vested interest to the creditor after his death, for it has been held that the creditor has no more equity to enforce the trust after a settlor's death than in his lifetime (h).

(a) Browne v. Cavendish, 1 Jon. & Lat. 635; 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 388.

(b) See Smith v. Hurst, 10 Ha. 30, 47. Perhaps the old case of Langton v. Tracey, 2 Ch. Rep. 30, was decided on this principle, for it appears that Tracey, the trustee, declared to the creditors that he would pay the debts, and that some of the debts were actually paid under the deed. The creditors may also have been privies, though not parties, to the execution of the trust, for it is stated that the settlor executed the deed to avoid prosecution against him by his creditors.

(c) Harland v. Binks, 15 Q. B. 713; Nicholson v. Tutin, 2 K. & J. 18; and see Synnot v. Simpson, 5 H. L. Cas. 121; Cosser v. Radford, 1 De G. J. & S. 585; [Johns v. James, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 744].

(d) Siggers v. Evans, 5 Ell. & Bl. 367. [See Johns v. James, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 744.]

(e) Wilding v. Richards, 1 Coll. 655; and see Gurney v. Oranmore, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 470; S. C. 5 Ir. Ch. Rep. 436.

[(f) See Smith v. Hurst, 10 Ha. 30, 47; New & Co.'s Trustee v. Hunting, (1897) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 19, 25; S. C. in H. L. nom. Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) A.C. 419.]

(g) Wilding v. Richards, 1 Coll. 655.

(h) Garrard v. Lauderdale, 3 Sim. 1; and see Synnot v. Simpson, 5 H. L. Cas. 139.

[Exceptions to doctrine of Garrard v. Lauderdale.]

6. [In considering whether, in the absence of communication to creditors, a deed of this kind is to be treated as a mandate for the convenience of the debtor, regard must be had to the scope and tenour of the deed; and in a recent case, where the purpose of the debtor in executing the deed was not to provide for the payment of his debts generally, but to shield himself from the consequences of certain breaches of trust, by providing a fund to repair the breaches, it was held that the doctrine of Garrard v. Lauderdale was not applicable, and that the deed created an irrevocable trust (a). The circumstances that the deed conferred a power on the trustee to appoint new trustees, and purported to charge a specific sum of money on the property conveyed by it, were considered to be material. It was questioned whether the cestuis que trust of the trust estates ought to be considered as creditors within the doctrine (b), and it was intimated by Lord Esher, M.R., on the authority of Smith v. Hurst (c), that the fact that the deed was not applicable to all the creditors, but only to a particular class of persons, was sufficient to exclude the doctrine (d). So where a trustee, having defrauded the trust estate of a sum of money, by entries in his books purported to appropriate a mortgage debt of his own to answer his liability, but did not communicate the appropriation either to his co-trustee or his cestuis que trust, who were sui juris, it was nevertheless held that there was a good appropriation (e).

[Post obit trusts.]

A further exception to the doctrine of revocability appears to be established in cases where there is a provision in favour of creditors which is to come into operation only after the death of the settlor (f); and, where, by a deed of family arrangement, an estate was settled by father and son, after a life interest to the father, upon trust, with the consent of the settlors, and after the death of the survivor at the discretion of the trustees, to sell and apply the proceeds in payment of the father's debts, and subject thereto to be held to the uses of a settlement, it was held that the case fell within the authority of Synnot v. Simpson, and not of Garrard v. Lauderdale, and that after the death of the father, whatever might have been the case in his lifetime, the trust in favour of creditors was irrevocable (g).

[Where ultimate trust irrevocable.]

And a deed containing a trust in favour of creditors and an

[(a) New & Co.'s Trustee v. Hunting, (1897) 1 Q. B. 607; (1897) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 19; S. C. in H. L. nom. Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) A. C. 419.]

[(b) See (1897) 1 Q. B. 615, 616.]

[(c) 10 Ha. 30.]

[(d) See (1897) 2 Q. B. 26.]

[(e) Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231.]

[(f) Re Fitzgerald's Settlement, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 18, 25; Synnot v. Simpson, 5 H. L. Cas. 121, 141.]

[(g) Priestley v. Ellis, (1897) 1 Ch. 489.]

ultimate trust for the wife and children of the settlor was held to be irrevocable (a).]

Voluntary trust.

7. Suppose there is no fraud, but the trust deed is a mere voluntary settlement, not founded on any arrangement with the creditors, but for the mere convenience of the debtor himself, so that it is revocable by the debtor at any time until communicated to some creditor (b)—in that case can a creditor, taking out execution, levy his debt upon the property subject to the trust? It seems, though the deed is voluntary, yet it is not to be considered as fraudulent within the statute 13 Eliz. c. 5, and if so, the creditor cannot reach the property at law (c). However, the deed might perhaps be held to be invalid as against the creditor in a Court of Equity (d).

Doctrine not likely to be extended.

8. The Courts at the present day consider the doctrine under which these deeds have been held revocable to have been carried far enough, and have expressed a disinclination to extend it (e).

SECTION III

OF THE DUTIES OF TRUSTEES FOR PAYMENT OF DEBTS

Duties of trustees.

Upon this subject we shall consider, First, What debts are to be paid; Secondly, In what order as regards priority; and Thirdly, What interest is to be allowed.

First. What debts are within the scope of the trust.

Debts to be paid are primâ facie those at date of deed or death of testator.

1. If the trust be created by deed, then, unless a contrary intention be expressed, the debts only at the date of the deed will be intended (f); but if the provision be contained in a will, the direction will include all debts at the testator's death; unless he specially restrict his meaning to the debts at the making of his will (g).

[(a) Godfrey v. Poole, 13 App. Cas. 497.]

(b) Walwyn v. Coutts, 3 Mer. 707; S. C. 3 Sim. 14; Garrard v. Lauderdale, 3 Sim. 1; Acton v. Woodgate, 2 M. & K. 492; Kirwan v. Daniel, 5 Hare, 500; Harland v. Binks, 15 Q. B. 713.

(c) Pickstock v. Lyster, 3 M. & S. 371; Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 420. But see Owen v. Boyd, 5 Ad. & Ell. 28.

(d) See Mackinnon v. Stewart, 1 Sim. N.S. 90, 91; Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705.

(e) Wilding v. Richards, 1 Coll. 659; Kirwan v. Daniel, 5 Hare, 499; Simmonds v. Palles, 2 Jon. & Lat. 495, 504; Browne v. Cavendish, 1 Jon. & Lat. 635; Evans v. Bagwell, 2 Conn. & Laws. 616.

(f) Purefoy v. Purefoy, 1 Vern. 28.

(g) Loddington v. Kime, 3 Lev. 433.

"Debts affecting the estate."

2. Where a settlor by deed conveyed all his real and personal property upon trust to pay "all debts then owing by him, and which affected the estates thereby conveyed," the trust, as the settlor had no judgment debts at the time, was extended to bond debts, but not to simple contract debts (a). But this distinction was taken upon a deed dated before the Acts making real estates assets for payment of simple contract debts.

Father providing for debts of son.

In another case a testator directed his trustees to apply 1000*l.* in releasing his son from his liabilities, should the testator not have done so in his lifetime. The son was an uncertificated bankrupt, and the Court, considering that debts subsequently to the testator's death were not contemplated, discharged the debts up to that period out of the 1000*l.*, and gave the surplus to the testator's residuary legatee (b).

Debts barred by the Statute of Limitations.

3. A general direction for payment of debts will not revive a debt barred by the Statute of Limitations (c), though the trustee or executor may have advertised for all creditors to come in and prove their debts (d); and, if a debt might with due diligence have been established, but there has been laches which under ordinary circumstances would be a bar to relief, the mere fact of the creation and existence of a trust for payment of debts will not justify the laches and enable the claimant to obtain relief (e). But a will may be so specially worded as to create a trust for creditors generally, notwithstanding any bar from the Statute of Limitations, for the debts still subsist though the remedy is gone (f); and if there be a debt in fact not barred at the date of the deed, or at the death of the testator, the statute will not run afterwards (g); for it is not to be inferred that a man abandons his debt because he does not enforce payment at law when he has a trustee to pay him (h). Besides, unless delayed of

(a) Douglas v. Allen, 1 Conn. & Laws. 367; 2 Dru. & War. 213.

(b) Re Landon's Will, W.N. 1871, p. 240.

(c) Burke v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 275, where the previous cases are collected; Hargreaves v. Michell, 6 Mad. 326; O'Connor v. Haslam, 5 H. L. Cas. 170.

(d) Jones v. Scott, 1 R. & M. 255; 4 Cl. & Fin. 382, nom. Scott v. Jones (overruling Andrews v. Brown, Pr. Ch. 385); and see O'Connor v. Haslam, 5 H. L. Cas. 177; [Re Stephens, 43 Ch. D. 39, 44].

(e) Harcourt v. White, 28 Beav. 303.

(f) Williamson v. Taylor, 3 Y. & C. 208; [and see Re Hepburn, 14 Q. B. D. 394, 399].

(g) Hughes v. Wynne, T. & R. 307; Crallan v. Oulton, 3 Beav. 1; Hargreaves v. Michell, 6 Mad. 326; Executors of Fergus v. Gore, 1 Sch. & Lef. 107; and see Morse v. Langham, cited Burke v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 286; O'Connor v. Haslam, 5 H. L. Cas. 178; [and as to the right of a trustee, not retaining trust property nor having converted it to his own use, to plead the Statute of Limitations under the Trustee Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 59), s. 8, vide post, Chap. XXXI. s. 3].

(h) Hughes v. Wynne, T. & R. 309, per Cur.

necessity, the trustee ought to discharge the debt at once, and the universal rule is, that the cestui que trust ought not to suffer for the laches of the trustee (a). If a testator create a trust for payment of the debts of another person deceased, the debts to be paid are those which were not barred by the Statute of Limitations at the death of the person so deceased (b).

[A devise of real estate upon trust to pay debts does not prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations when the testator leaves no real estate to support the trust (c). [Where no real estate to support trust.]

Where real and personal estate are given together upon trust for sale and conversion and payment of debts thereout, the period of limitation as to the real estate will be twelve years (d).] [Blended fund.]

4. If a person who has been a bankrupt direct payment of twenty shillings in the pound upon the debts proved in the bankruptcy, the creditors are legatees, and pay legacy duty, but there is no lapse though a creditor die in the testator's lifetime (e). Legacy duty.

5. Where a testatrix had devised an estate to trustees upon trust to sell and pay debts, but no part of the produce of sale had been set apart for that purpose, the right of the creditor was held by the late V.C. of England not to be within the exception of the 25th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 27), but to fall under the 40th section; but inasmuch as the debt had been acknowledged by the surviving trustee, the case was held to be taken out of the statute (f). However, the opinion of the Vice-Chancellor that the case was not within the 25th section would not, it is thought, now prevail, but the right of the creditor would subsist until adverse possession had run against his trustee (g). Statute of Limitations.

6. The rule that the creation of a trust keeps alive a debt not barred at the testator's death does not apply to a trust declared of personal estate by will, for the personalty vests in the executor upon trust for the creditors by act of law, so that the words of the will are nugatory (h). As regards testator's personalty.

(a) See Executors of Fergus v. Gore, 1 Sch. & Lef. 110.

(b) O'Connor v. Haslam, 5 H. L. Cas. 170.

[(c) Re Hepburn, 14 Q. B. D. 394.]

[(d) Re Stephens, 43 Ch. D. 39.]

(e) Turner v. Martin, 7 De G. M. & G. 429; Re Sowerby's Trust, 2 K. & J. 630; Philips v. Philips, 3 Hare, 281.

(f) Lord St John v. Boughton, 9 Sim. 219.

(g) As to the Statutes of Limitation, and the modifications introduced by recent legislation, see post, Chap. XXXI.

(h) Jones v. Scott, 1 R. & M. 255; reversed, 4 Cl. & Fin. 382, sub nom. Scott v. Jones; Freake v. Cranefeldt, 3 M. & Cr. 499; Evans v. Tweedy, 1 Beav. 55; Crallan v. Oulton, 3 Beav. 1; [Re Hepburn, 14 Q. B. D. 394]. N.B.—In Moore v. Petchell, 22 Beav.

Debt contracted by infant for necessaries.

7. The terms of the trust will extend to the repayment of a sum of money borrowed by the settlor when an infant for the purchase of necessaries (a).

Case of a mortgagee with covenant for payment.

8. Shall a mortgagee, who has a covenant for payment of his debt, be allowed to prove and receive a dividend upon the whole amount of his debt pari passu with the other creditors, or shall he prove only for the excess of the debt beyond the value of the security, or what rule is to govern the case? In bankruptcy, the mortgagee proves only for the excess of the mortgage debt over the value of the security, so that he must first dispose of the estate (with the concurrence, if he has no power of sale, of the trustee in bankruptcy), [or assess the value of it,] and then prove for the difference. In the administration of assets in Courts of Equity, a mortgagee [was until recently] allowed to prove for his whole debt without being put on terms as to his security (b); [but by the Judicature Act, 1875 (c), the rule in equity has in insolvent estates been assimilated to that in bankruptcy]. A trust deed for creditors usually provides for the case of persons having specific liens, and ingrafts the principle established in bankruptcy. If there be no such clause, and if the deed provide that the creditor shall release his debt and all securities for the same, the mortgagee, by executing the deed, binds himself to the other creditors, notwithstanding any private arrangement with the debtor to the contrary, that he will not take advantage of his specific lien, but will bring it into the common stock and prove for his whole debt, and accept a dividend pari passu with the rest (d). "The moment," observed Lord Lyndhurst, "a creditor releases his debt, which he does by executing a deed of this kind, there is, of course, an end of any lien he may have for it" (e). But though the word "released" be used in the deed, it will not necessarily operate as an absolute and unconditional release, if 172, the doctrine established by Jones v. Scott appears to have escaped notice.

(a) Marlow v. Pitfield, 1 P. W. 558.

(b) See Greenwood v. Taylor, 1 R. & M. 185; Mason v. Bogg, 2 M. & Cr. 433; Rome v. Young, 4 Y. & C. 204; Hanman v. Riley, 9 Hare, App. XLI.; Ex parte Middleton, 3 De G. J. & Sm. 201. The rule in equity was also held to apply to liquidations of joint stock companies, under the Companies Act, 1862; Kellock's case, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 769. [By the Judicature Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 77), s. 10, the rule in bankruptcy has been adopted both in administrations of insolvent estates in Courts of Equity and in liquidations under the Companies Acts, 1862 & 1867, of joint stock companies. By the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883, s. 125, and 1890, s. 21, the estate of a person dying insolvent can now be administered in bankruptcy.]

[(c) 38 & 39 Vict. c. 77, s. 10; see Re M'Murdo, (1902) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 684.]

(d) Cullingworth v. Loyd, 2 Beav. 385; Buck v. Shippam, 1 Ph. 694; 14 Sim. 239.

(e) Buck v. Shippam, 1 Ph. 697.

the whole contents of the instrument, when taken together, show that such was not the intention (a).

Trust for creditors who come in within certain time.

9. It was held in Dunch v. Kent (b) that where there is a trust for payment of such creditors as shall come in within a year, a creditor who delays beyond the year is not therefore precluded from taking advantage of the trust; and in Raworth v. Parker (c), V. C. Wood, after observing that there was no modern authority in which relief had been given after the time fixed for the execution of the deed had expired, added, that if it were to be held that creditors are not admissible after the prescribed period, Dunch v. Kent must be overruled. And in a more recent case, where the trust was for the benefit of creditors who should execute or accede within three months, the Vice-Chancellor held, and the decision was affirmed by the Lord Chancellor on appeal, that a creditor who had not acceded within the prescribed time might claim the benefit of the trust (d).

Adoption of deeds.

10. It is not necessary that a creditor, to entitle himself to the benefit of the deed, should execute it, but it will be sufficient if he assent to it, or acquiesce in it, or act upon its provisions, and comply with its terms (e). But the creditor must do some act to testify his acceptance of the deed, and not merely stand by and remain passive (f).

Disputed debt.

11. If the trustees permit a person to sign the deed as creditor in a certain sum specified in the schedule, they cannot afterwards contest the debt (g). But where there has been fraud, forgery, or perjury by the creditor, the trustees can apply to the Court to have the execution by the creditor set aside (h).

Trustee cannot arbitrarily admit a creditor who has repudiated the deed.

12. A creditor who repudiates the deed by his acts, as by suing the debtor contrary to the provisions of the deed, will not be allowed afterwards (more particularly after a long lapse of

(a) Squire v. Ford, 9 Hare, 47.

(b) 1 Vern. 260.

(c) 2 K. & J. 170, 171; and see Collins v. Reece, 1 Coll. 675; Jolly v. Wallis, 3 Esp. 228; Spottiswoode v. Stockdale, G. Coop. 102; Johnson v. Kershaw, 1 De G. & Sm. 260.

(d) Whitmore v. Turquand, 1 J. & H. 444; 3 De G. F. & J. 107. V. C. Wood rested his judgment, not on the authority of Dunch v. Kent, but upon general reasoning, and thought that the decision in that case might be accounted for on special grounds; but the L.C., in affirming the judgment of the V.C., said that he considered the doctrine of the Court, since Dunch v. Kent, to have been that a creditor might come in after the time prescribed, and that the time was not of the essence of the deed, and that, in his opinion, the view of Dunch v. Kent originally taken in Raworth v. Parker by V. C. Wood was the correct one.

(e) Field v. Lord Donoughmore, 1 Dru. & War. 227; Biron v. Mount, 24 Beav. 642; Spottiswoode v. Stockdale, G. Coop. 102; Jolly v. Wallis, 3 Esp. 228.

(f) Biron v. Mount, 24 Beav. 642.

(g) Lancaster v. Elce, 31 Beav. 325.

(h) Lancaster v. Elce, 31 Beav. 328, per M.R.

time) to retrace his steps and take the benefit of the deed; and though the trustees should admit him to sign the deed, the other creditors will not be bound by the act of the trustees (a).

Discretion in trustees to admit creditors' claims.

13. A discretion is sometimes given to the trustees to admit or exclude such creditors as they shall think proper. The Court will endeavour, if possible, to withdraw the rights of the creditors from the caprice of the trustees (b); but if the settlement clearly give such a discretionary power, and the trustees are willing to exercise it, and no fraud be found, the Court cannot interfere to compel the admission of any particular creditor (c).

Relief in equity.

14. If the trustees have power of enlarging the time, and advertise to that effect, but do not exercise the power, and so exclude a person who desires to come in, but could not do so before the day named in the deed, the creditor will be relieved in equity (d).

Resumption by trustees of possession after parting with it.

15. If there be trustees for payment of debts and legacies, and subject thereto upon trust for A. for life, with remainder over, and the Court has taken an account of debts and legacies, and declared A. entitled to the possession, who is put into possession accordingly, it is not competent for the trustees afterwards to make an admission of some further debt, and to resume the possession in order to discharge it (e).

Secret agreements.

16. If the debtor agree, behind the back of the general creditors, to give an extra benefit to one particular creditor, such agreement is a fraud upon the general creditors, and illegal and void (f).

[A creditors' deed, or composition deed, which some creditors have been induced to execute by means of a secret bargain for an additional payment to them, is void as against any creditor who was not aware of the bargain when he executed the deed (g), even though the payment be made at the expense of a third party, and the secret bargain be made after the execution of the deed by the creditor who challenges it, provided the bargain be made with the debtor's knowledge (h).

[Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1887.]

17. By the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1887 (i), the expression

(a) Field v. Donoughmore, 1 Dru. & War. 227; reversing the decision of Lord Plunket, 2 Dru. & Walsh, 630; [Re Meredith, 29 Ch. D. 745].

(b) See Nunn v. Wilsmore, 8 T. R. 521; Cosser v. Radford, 1 De G. J. & S. 585.

(c) Wain v. Egmont, 3 M. & K. 445; Drever v. Mawdesley, 16 Sim. 511.

(d) Raworth v. Parker, 2 K. & J. 163. See ante, p. 613.

(e) Underwood v. Hatton, 5 Beav. 36.

(f) Mare v. Sandford, 1 Giff. 288; [Cockshott v. Bennett, 2 T. R. 763].

[(g) Dauglish v. Tennent, 2 L. R. Q. B. 49.]

[(h) Ex parte Milner, 15 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 605; Knight v. Hunt, 5 Bing. 432.]

[(i) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 57, s. 4.]

"deed of arrangement" is to include "any of the following instruments, whether under seal or not, made by, for, or in respect of the affairs of a debtor (a) for the benefit of his creditors generally (otherwise than in pursuance of the law for the time being in force relating to bankruptcy), that is to say, an assignment of property (b), a deed of or agreement for a composition," and certain other instruments in cases where creditors of a debtor obtain any control over his property or business. A deed of arrangement is to be void, unless registered within seven clear days after the first execution thereof by the debtor or any creditor, where the execution takes place in England or Ireland (c). By the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (d), it is provided that a register of deeds of arrangement is to be kept at the Land Registry Office (e), and purchasers for value are protected against unregistered deeds affecting land (f).]

Secondly. As to the order of payment.

Creditors paid before legatees.

1. Where the trust is created by will, the direction generally is for payment of "debts and legacies." As regards the administration of assets, creditors take precedence of legatees; but here, as both take under the will and the testator has made no distinction, it seems upon strict principle, as was formerly held, that creditors and legatees ought to be paid pari passu (g). However, there can be little doubt that the testator, although he may not have explicitly declared it, meant the creditors to precede, and the Courts accordingly (rather straining a point, that a man might not "sin in his grave") have now indisputably established that creditors shall have the priority (h).

[(a) The word "debtor" means debtor subject to the Bankruptcy Acts, so that a deed of assignment executed by a foreign debtor in the country of his domicile, and valid by the law of that country, does not require registration as against an execution creditor in respect of goods of the debtor in this country: Dulany v. Merry, (1901) 1 K. B. 536.]

[(b) The meaning of this expression is defined by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 168. The Act does not apply to arrangements made by limited companies: Re Rileys, Limited, (1903) 2 Ch. 590.]

[(c) Sect. 5. The deed is not void because the affidavit of the debtor, required by s. 6, sub-s. 1, to be filed upon registration, does not contain the names and addresses of all the creditors: Maskelyne & Cooke v. Smith, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 671.]

[(d) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 51.]

[(e) Sect. 7.]

[(f) Sect. 9.]

(g) Hixon v. Wytham, 1 Ch. Ca. 248; Gosling v. Dorney, 1 Vern. 482; Anon. 2 Vern. 133; Powell's case, Nels. 202; Wolestoncroft v. Long, 1 Ch. Ca. 32; and see Walker v. Meager, 2 P. W. 552.

(h) Greaves v. Powell, 2 Vern. 248; 302, Raithby's ed.; Bradgate v. Ridlington, Mose. 56; 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 141, pl. 3; Walker v. Meager, 2 P. W. 550; Martin v. Hooper, Rep. t. Hardwicke, by Ridg. 209; Whitton v. Lloyd, 1 Ch. Ca. 275; Foly's case, 2 Freem. 49; Kidney v. Coussmaker, 12 Ves. 154,

All creditors to be paid pari passu.

2. As amongst the creditors themselves, the Court acts upon the well-known principle that "equality is equity," and, therefore, whether the trust be created by deed (a) or will (b), the specialty debts, in the absence of express directions to the contrary, will have no advantage over simple contract debts, but all will be paid in rateable proportions; and, of course, the trustees will not be allowed to break in upon the rule of equality by first discharging their own debts (c).

Specialty creditors.

3. It was formerly ruled, that where a testator charged his freehold estates with debts, and the estate, subject to the charge, descended to the heir, the specialty creditor had precedence, for it was argued that he had his remedy at law against the heir independently of the will, and therefore ought not to be put on a level with those taking under the will (d). The answer is, that the specialty creditor has no lien upon the estate, but can only recover the debt from the heir personally to the extent of the assets descended. If the estate be subject to the charge, the heir takes not beneficially, but only as trustee, and then there are no legal assets in consideration of equity, and the bond creditor may be enjoined from pursuing his legal right. And on these grounds it was decided that specialty debts are not entitled to a preference (e).

Case of trustee being also executor.

4. It was also thought at one time, that if the estate charged with the debts was to be administered by the executor, the testator must have meant that the executor should, as in his executorial capacity, observe the legal priorities (f); however, there was no reason, in fact, why the characters of trustee and executor should not be united in the same person without confusion, and so it has since been determined (g). But where the trust was expressly to pay the settlor's debts "according to their priority, nature, and per Sir W. Grant; Peter v. Bruen, cited 2 P. W. 551; Lloyd v. Williams, 2 Atk. 111, per Lord Hardwicke.

(a) Wolestoncroft v. Long, 1 Ch. Ca. 32; Hamilton v. Houghton, 2 Bligh, 187, per Lord Eldon; Child v. Stephens, 1 Vern. 101.

(b) Wolestoncroft v. Long, 1 Ch. Ca. 32; Anon. 2 Ch. Ca. 54.

(c) Anon. 2 Ch. Ca. 54.

(d) Fremoult v. Dedire, 1 P. W. 429; Young v. Dennett, 2 Dick. 452; Blatch v. Wilder, 1 Atk. 420; Allan v. Heber, Str. 1270; S. C. 1 W. Bl. 22; and see Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 290; [Delany v. Delany, 15 L. R. Ir. 55].

(e) Shiphard v. Lutwidge, 8 Ves. 26; Pope v. Gwyn, cited Ib. 28, note; Bailey v. Ekins, 7 Ves. 319; Batson v. Lindegreen, 2 B. C. C. 94; Hargrave v. Tindal, cited Newton v. Bennet, 1 B. C. C. 136, note.

(f) Girling v. Lee, 1 Vern. 63; Cutterback v. Smith, Prec. Ch. 127; Bickham v. Freeman, Ib. 136; Masham v. Harding, Bunb. 339; Foly's case, 2 Freem. 49; [Delany v. Delany, 15 L. R. Ir. 55].

(g) Prowse v. Abingdon, 1 Atk. 482; Newton v. Bennet, 1 B. C. C. 135; Silk v. Prime, Ib. 138, note, S. C. 1 Dick. 384; Lewin v. Okeley, 2 Atk. 50; Barker v. Boucher, 1 B. C. C. 140 note.

specialty," a bond debt with interest was payable before a simple contract debt (a). But now, since the Administration of Estates Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 46), all debts of persons who may have died on or after 1st January, 1870, are payable pari-passu. Hinde Palmer's Act.

5. If there be a remnant of unclaimed dividends left in the hands of the trustees, it does not belong to the trustees for their own benefit, but will be divisible amongst the unpaid creditors who do claim (b). Unclaimed dividends.

Thirdly. As to allowance of interest.

1. Whether the trust be created by deed (c), or will (d), and though the fund has been making interest (e), the trustees will not be justified in paying interest upon simple contract debts not carrying interest; and a fortiori, this is the case where interest is expressly directed as to some particular debts (f). Where the trust was by deed, but the creditors had not been made parties, Lord Eldon observed: "The mere direction to pay a debt does not infer either contract or trust to pay interest upon debts by simple contract. As to contract, the creditors did not execute the deed, and there was nothing to prevent their suing the debtor after the execution; and no consideration was given to the debtor by charging the land and discharging the person" (g). Even where the debts did in their nature carry interest, and the direction in a will was to pay "the debts owing by the testatrix's brother at the time of his death," but forty years had elapsed since the death of the brother, so that the interest if allowed would have amounted to more than double the principal, the Court thought the direction could not have been intended to include interest as well as principal (h). Interest not allowed on simple contract debts.

2. It was once suggested by Lord Abinger that "if a man execute a trust of a term for the benefit of his creditors, the deed makes them mortgagees if they execute it, and so gives them a right The trust deed does not make the debts specialties.

(a) Passingham v. Selby, 2 Coll. 405.

(b) Wild v. Banning, 12 Jur. N.S. 464.

(c) Hamilton v. Houghton, 2 Bligh, 169, see 186; Car v. Burlington, 1 P. W. 228, as corrected in Cox's ed.; Barwell v. Parker, 2 Ves. 364; Shirley v. Ferrers, 1 B. C. C. 41; and see Stewart v. Noble, Vern. & Scriv. 536; Creuze v. Hunter, 2 Ves. jun. 165; S. C. 4 B. C. C. 319.

(d) Lloyd v. Williams, 2 Atk. 108; Stewart v. Noble, Vern. & Scriv. 528; Dolman v. Pritman, 3 Ch. Rep. 64; Nels. 136; Freem. 133; Bath v. Bradford, 2 Ves. 588, per Lord Hardwicke; and see Tait v. Northwick, 4 Ves. 816. Bothomly v. Fairfax, 1 P. W. 334, note; Maxwell v. Wettenhall, 2 P. W. 26, ed. by Cox, are overruled.

(e) Shirley v. Ferrers, 1 B. C. C. 41; but see Pearce v. Slocombe, 3 Y. & C. 84.

(f) Jenkins v. Perry, 3 Y. & C. 178.

(g) Hamilton v. Houghton, 2 Bligh, 186; and see Barwell v. Parker, 2 Ves. 364; Bath v. Bradford, 1b. 588.

(h) Askew v. Thomson, 4 K. & J. 620.

to interest" (a); and it was held in some old authorities, that even in a deed to which the creditors were not parties, or in a trust created by will for payment of debts, the creditors were to be regarded as mortgagees, and were entitled to interest (b); but the doctrine in the latter cases has long since been overthrown, and it is apprehended that the distinction taken by the Chief Baron cannot at the present day be supported (c). Again, it was said by Lord Hardwicke that "if a man by deed in his life creates a trust for payment of his debts, annexes a schedule of some debts, and creates a trust term for the payment, as that is in the nature of a specialty, it will make these, though simple contract debts, carry interest" (d). But this dictum also is not in conformity with the law as now established, and cannot be maintained (e).

Pearce v. Slocombe.

3. But where A. and B. assigned their joint property to C., D., and E. upon trust, in the first place to pay the joint debts at the expiration of a year from the date of the assignment, and then as to a moiety to pay the separate debts of A., and at the end of a year sufficient assets were realised to have discharged the joint debts, but the money, instead of being so applied, was invested in the funds and the interest accumulated, it was held, that as the fund applicable to the payment of the joint debts had been making interest from the time the debts should have been paid, the joint creditors, though on simple contract, were entitled to interest at 4 per cent. before the separate creditors were paid their principal. The separate creditors would otherwise try to impede the general settlement, in order that, in the meantime, they might enjoy the interest from the joint creditors' fund (f).

Creditors may stipulate for interest.

4. The creditors may stipulate for payment of interest, or the settlor, if so minded, may insert such a direction (g). But a trust for payment of specialty and simple contract debts and all interest thereof, will not amount to such a direction, but the words will be taken to have reference to the debts carrying interest of their own nature (h).

Specialty debts.

5. Specialty debts, though actually released by a creditors' deed

(a) Jenkins v. Perry, 3 Y. & C. 183.
(b) Maxwell v. Wettenhall, 2 P. W. 27; Car v. Burlington, 1 P. W. 229.
(c) Barwell v. Parker, 2 Ves. 364. It must be borne in mind, however, that the practice of the Court in the Chancery Division gives simple contract creditors a right to interest from the date of the decree out of any surplus assets after paying all debts, and the interest of such as by law carry interest; see Rules of Supreme Court, Ord. 55, R. 63.
(d) Barwell v. Parker, 2 Ves. 364.
(e) Stone v. Van Heythuysen, Kay, 721; Clowes v. Waters, 16 Jur. 632.
(f) Pearce v. Slocombe, 3 Y. & C. 84
(g) See Bath v. Bradford, 2 Ves. 588; Barwell v. Parker, Ib. 364. Stewart v. Noble, Vern. & Scriv. 536.
(h) Tait v. Northwick, 4 Ves. 816.

will carry interest up to the time of payment. It might be urged, indeed, that as regards specialty debts, the amount of the debt is the principal and interest, and therefore in a trust for payment of debts interest as well as principal must be taken into calculation to ascertain what the debt is at the date of the deed or the death of the testator; but that interest ought not to run beyond the date of the trust deed or the death of the testator, for that principal and interest together are then regarded as one sum, not as a debt, but the claim of a cestui que trust. And some principle of this kind appears to have been acted upon in the case of Car v. Burlington (a), where a person vested estates in trustees upon trust to pay all such debts as he should owe at his death, and the Court directed the master to calculate interest on such of the debts as carried interest up to the death of the settlor; but the master was not to carry on any interest on any security beyond the settlor's decease, but in case there were assets to pay the simple contract debts as well as the specialty debts, the question of ulterior interest was reserved. At the present day, however, the rule is to consider the specialty debt as subsisting up to the time of payment, i.e. to calculate interest on the principal, not only up to the date of the deed or the death of the testator, but up to the day of payment (b).

6. Bond creditors, it must be observed, will in no case be entitled to receive more for principal and interest than the amount of the penalty (c).

Bond creditors not entitled to interest beyond the penalty.

(a) 1 P. W. 228, as corrected in Cox's ed. from Reg. Lib.

(b) Bateman v. Margerison, 16 Beav. 477.

(c) Hughes v. Wynne, 1 M. & K. 20; Anon. 1 Salk. 154; Clowes v. Waters, 16 Jur. 632.

CHAPTER XXI

THE DUTIES OF TRUSTEES OF CHARITIES

1. CHARITIES may either be established by charter, as eleemosynary corporations, or may be placed under the management of individual trustees.

Charities by Charter.

2. Before entering upon the duties of trustees for charities, it may be proper to introduce a few preliminary remarks upon the subject of the Court's (a) jurisdiction over charities established by charter.

Visitor.

3. On the institution of such a charity a visitatorial jurisdiction arises of common right to the founder (whether the Crown or a private person), or to those whom the founder has substituted in the place of himself (b); and the office of visitor is to hear and determine all differences of the members of the society amongst themselves, and generally to superintend the internal government of the body, and to see that all rules and orders of the corporation are observed (c). The visitor must take as his guide the statutes originally propounded by the founder (d); but so long as he does not exceed his proper province, his decision is final, and cannot be questioned by way of appeal (e).

Jurisdiction of the Court over corporate bodies.

4. With this visitatorial power the Court has nothing to do: it is only as respects the administration of the corporate property that equity assumes to itself any right of interference (f).

[(a) By the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 34, causes and matters for the execution of charitable trusts are to be assigned to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice.]

(b) Eden v. Foster, 2 P. W. 326, resolved; Attorney-General v. Gaunt, 3 Sw. 148.

(c) See Philips v. Bury, Skin. 478; Attorney-General v. Crook, 1 Keen, 126; Attorney-General v. Archbishop of York, 2 R. & M. 468; Re Birmingham School, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 180, 181.

(d) Green v. Rutherforth, 1 Ves. 469, per Sir J. Strange; Id. 472, per Lord Hardwicke.

(e) St. John's College, Cambridge v. Todington, 1 Burr. 200, per Lord Mansfield; Attorney-General v. Lock, 3 Atk. 165, per Lord Hardwicke; Attorney-General v. The Master of Catherine Hall, Cambridge, Jac. 392, per Lord Eldon.

(f) See the observations of Lord Commissioner Eyre in Attorney-General v. The Governors of the Foundling Hospital, 2 Ves. jun. 47. But Chief

5. Upon the ground of this distinction between the visitatorial power and the management of the revenue, an information for the removal of governors or other corporators, as having been irregularly appointed, would be dismissed with costs (a); but wherever the administration of the property by the governors can be shown to have a tendency to pervert the end of the institution, the Court will immediately interpose, and put a stop to such wrongful application (b). Informal election. Mal-administration.

6. An estate newly bestowed upon an old corporation is not to be regarded in the same light as property with which the charity was originally endowed. The visitatorial power is forum domesticum—the private jurisdiction of the founder; and the new gift will not be made subject to it, unless the will of the donor be either actually expressed to that effect, or is to be collected by necessary implication (c). If a legal or equitable interest be given to a body corporate, and no special purpose be declared, the donor has plainly implied that the estate shall be under the general statutes and rules of the society, and be regulated in the same manner as the rest of their property (d): but if a particular and special trust be annexed to the gift, that excludes the visitatorial power of the original founder: and the Court, viewing the corporation in the light of an ordinary trustee, will determine all the same questions as would have fallen under its jurisdiction had the administration of the fund been intrusted to the hands of individuals (e). [Where a charity is supported by voluntary How property newly given is affected by the visitatorial power.

Baron Richards once observed, he had been of counsel in the Foundling Hospital case, and he remembered some of the first men of the bar were not satisfied with the decision: Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 272. See also the observations of Lord Hardwicke in Attorney-General v. Lock, 3 Atk. 165; and see upon this subject generally Ex parte Berkhampstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 138; The Poor of Chelmsford v. Midway, Duke, 83; Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 499; Eden v. Foster, 2 P. W. 326; Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 533, 539; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Bedford, 2 Ves. 505; 5 Sim. 578; Attorney-General v. Browne's Hospital, 17 Sim. 137; Attorney-General v. Dedham School, 23 Beav. 350; Daugars v. Rivaz, 28 Beav. 233.

(a) Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 491, see 498; Whiston v. Dean and Chapter of Rochester, 7 Hare, 532; Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 519; Attorney-General v. Middleton, 2 Ves. 327, see 330; Attorney-General v. Dulwich College, 4 Beav. 255; Attorney-General v. Magdalen College, Oxford, 10 Beav. 402; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Bedford, 2 Ves. 505; Re Bedford Charity, 5 Sim. 578.

(b) See Attorney-General v. St Cross Hospital, 17 Beav. 435; Attorney-General v. The Governors of the Foundling Hospital, 2 Ves. jun. 48; Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 499.

(c) Green v. Rutherforth, 1 Ves. sen. 472, per Lord Hardwicke.

(d) Id. 473, per eundem; Ex parte Inge, 2 R. & M. 596, per Lord Brougham; Attorney-General v. Clare Hall, 3 Atk. 675, per Lord Hardwicke.

(e) Green v. Rutherforth, 1 Ves. sen. 462.

subscriptions, those intrusted with the money must, primâ facie, be deemed to have implied authority on behalf of the donors to declare the trusts by deed, and the deed, until set aside or rectified, must be treated as decisive of the trusts (a).]

Private foundation with a charter.

7. Where a private person founds a charity, and then the Crown grants a charter, the presumption is that the Crown meant to carry out the founder's intentions, and the jurisdiction of the Court which existed before will be continued (b).

Cases where the visitatorial power may be exercised by the Lord Chancellor.

8. Even the visitatorial power may, under particular circumstances, and in a special manner, be exercised by the Lord Chancellor; for the Crown may be visitor by the terms of the foundation; and, if the heir of the founder cannot be discovered (c), or become lunatic (d), the visitatorial power, rather than that the corporation should not be visited at all, will result to the Crown. And while in civil corporations the Crown is visitor through [the High Court of Justice (e)] (for corporate bodies, which respect the public policy of the country and the administration of justice, are necessarily better regulated under the superintendence of a Court of Law), yet, as regards eleemosynary corporations, the Crown's visitatorial power is committed to the Lord Chancellor, as in matters of charity the more appropriate supervisor (f). And the mode of application to the Lord Chancellor in these cases is by petition to the Great Seal (g).

Fund must be applied to the charity prescribed.

We now proceed to the consideration of the duties of trustees of charities.

9. It is of course imposed upon the trustees, whether individuals or a corporation, not to convert the charity fund to other uses than according to the intent of the founder or donor, so long as

[(a) Attorney-General v. Mathieson, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 383.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Dedham School, 23 Beav. 350.

(c) Ex parte Wrangham, 2 Ves. jun. 609; Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 498, per Sir W. Grant; Attorney-General v. Black, 11 Ves. 191; Case of Queens' College, Cambridge, Jac. 1.

(d) Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 519, see 533.

[(e) This visitatorial power was formerly exercised through the Court of Queen's Bench, but by the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), the jurisdiction of the Court of Queen's Bench was transferred to the High Court of Justice, and by s. 34 of that Act, matters which were formerly within the exclusive cognisance of the Court of Queen's Bench were assigned to the Queen's Bench Division of the Court.]

(f) Rex v. St Catherine's Hall, 4 T. R. 233, see 244; and see Ex parte Wrangham, 2 Ves. jun. 619. [By 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 17, the visitatorial jurisdiction of the Lord Chancellor is reserved to him, and is not transferred to the High Court of Justice or the Court of Appeal.]

(g) See the cases cited in notes (c) and (d); and Ex parte Inge, 2 R. & M. 594; Re Queens' College, Cambridge, 5 Russ. 54; Re University College, Oxford, 2 Ph. 521.

those uses are capable of execution (a). Thus if a gift be to find a preacher in Dale, it would be a breach of trust to provide one in Sale; if it be to find a preacher, it would be a breach of trust to apply it to the poor (b): if the trust be for the poor of O., it would be a breach of trust to extend it to other parishes (c): if the trust be to repair a chapel, the rents must not be mixed up with the poor-rate for parochial purposes (d): if a fund be raised for erecting a hospital, it cannot be diverted to lighting, paving, and cleansing the town (e).

Chapel for school.

10. A chapel was granted to the trustees of a school for the use and benefit of the said school, and though the inhabitants of the hamlet had been long accustomed to attend divine service in the chapel, it was held that, as the chapel was for the exclusive benefit of the school, the trustees had no power to apply the revenues of the charity towards enlarging the chapel for the better accommodation of the inhabitants (f).

Chapel pulled down.

11. The trustees for maintaining a chapel had pulled down the edifice, converted the burial ground to profane purposes, carried the bell to the market-place, put the pews in the parish church, and employed the stones of the chapel for repairing a bridge. Sir T. Plumer said: "It was an enormous breach of trust, and such as could not have been expected in a Christian country"; and directed an inquiry what emoluments had come to the hands of the trustees on account of the breach of trust, and what would be the expense of restoring the chapel to the state in which it stood at the time of its destruction (g).

Charity in aid of rates.

12. A fund in aid and relief of "poor citizens who often were grievously burdened by the imposts and taxes of the city" was held not to be applicable to the payment of rates and other expenses of the city that would otherwise have been raised by public levies and impositions; nor to be distributable to such of the poor as received parish relief, for that would be so much in

(a) See Attorney-General v. Sherborne School, 18 Beav. 256; Attorney-General v. Calvert, 23 Beav. 248; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Rochester, 5 De G. M. & G. 797; Re Stafford Charities, 25 Beav. 28; Attorney-General v. Boucherett, 25 Beav. 116; Attorney-General v. Gould, 28 Beav. 485; Ward v. Hipwell, 3 Giff. 547; and see post, p. 627, cases cited in note (c).

(b) Duke, 161; Attorney-General v. Newbury Corporation, C. P. Coop. Cases, 1837-38, 72; Attorney-General v. Goldsmith's Company, Ib. 292; and see Wivelescom case, Duke, 94

(c) Attorney-General v. Brandreth, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 200.

(d) Attorney-General v. Vivian, 1 Russ. 226, see 237.

(e) Attorney-General v. Kell, 2 Beav. 575.

(f) Attorney-General v. Earl of Mansfield, 2 Russ. 501.

(g) Ex parte Greenhouse, 1 Mad. 92; reversed on technical grounds, 1 Bligh, N.S. 17.

aid of the ratepayers; but ought to have been administered for the exclusive benefit of the poor (a).

Poor of a parish.

13. Where a trust is created for the "poor of a parish," it was for a long time doubted what class of persons was entitled to the benefit. Lord Eldon thought that the fund should be administered without reference to parochial relief; for assistance might be given to a pauper without exonerating the rich from their usual contribution to the rates—to the relief, which the law had provided, further relief might be added, which the parish was not bound to afford (b): besides the appropriation of the fund to the poor not in receipt of parochial relief might still have the effect of conferring a benefit on the rich; for persons who could not otherwise have maintained themselves might, by means of the charity, be prevented from seeking assistance from the rate (c). However, it has been determined in several cases, and seems, therefore, to be now settled, that the charity must be confined to those not in receipt of parochial relief (d) (1).

(a) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Exeter, 2 Russ. 45; S. C. 3 Russ. 395; and see Attorney-General v. Wilkinson, 1 Beav. 372; Attorney-General v. Bovill, 1 Ph. 762; Attorney-General v. Blizard, 21 Beav. 233. [As to a gift for a "medical charity or charities" being limited to charities within the jurisdiction, see Re Mirrlees Charity, (1910) 1 Ch. 163.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Exeter, 2 Russ. 51-54.

(c) See S. C. 3 Russ. 397.

(d) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Exeter, 2 Russ. 47; S. C. 3 Russ. 395; Attorney-General v. Wilkinson, 1 Beav. 372; Attorney-General v. Bovill, M. R. 1st July, 1839. But see Attorney-General v. Bovill, 1 Ph. 768, where Lord Cottenham is reported to have said, "I am inclined to think that the right course is, to administer the charity, and leave to chance to what extent it may operate to the relief of the poor-rates." The decree, however, seems in the main to be in accordance with the previous decisions; and see Attorney-General v. Blizard, 21 Beav. 233.

Poor Relief Act, 1819.

(1) As to parish property; by the effect of the decisions on 59 Geo. 3. c. 12, s. 17, all hereditaments belonging to the parish at the time of the Act, or subsequently acquired, whether for a chattel (Alderman v. Neate, 4 M. & W. 704) or freehold interest, and though originally conveyed to express trustees for parish purposes, if it be unknown or uncertain in whom the legal estate is vested (Doe v. Hiley, 10 B. & C. 885; and see Churchwardens of Deptford v. Sketchley, 8 Q. B. 394), or generally where it is unascertained in whom the legal estate is outstanding, but the parish have exercised all the rights of ownership, and the property belongs to them in the popular sense (Doe v. Terry, 4 Ad. & Ell. 274; Doe v. Cockell, Ib. 478), were transferred to the churchwardens and overseers of the parish, not indeed as a corporation and having a common seal (Ex parte Annesley, 2 Y. & C. 350), but as persons taking, by parliamentary succession, in the nature of a corporation (Smith v. Adkins, 8 M. & W. 362).

The Act does not extend to copyholds (Attorney-General v. Lewin, 8 Sim. 366; Re Paddington Charities, Ib. 629), nor to freeholds of which the trusts are not exclusively for the parish, but also embraces other objects (Allason v. Stark, 9 Ad. & Ell. 255; Attorney-General v. Lewin, 8 Sim. 366; Re Paddington Charities, Ib. 629); nor to lands vested in existing trustees, and who are actually in discharge of their duties in that character (Churchwardens of Trust for maintaining "the worship of God."

14. If land or money be given for maintaining "the worship of God" (a), or the promotion of "Godly learning" (b), and nothing more is said, the Court will execute the trust in favour of the established form of religion; and dissenters cannot be appointed trustees (c). But though the trustees of a Church of England school must be members of the Established Church, it does not follow that the children of dissenters are not to be admitted into the school, or even that the master may not be a dissenter, though the latter appointment could only be justified by peculiar circumstances (d). If it be clearly expressed upon the deed or will that the purpose of the settlor is to promote the maintenance of dissenting doctrines, the Court, provided such doctrines be not contrary to law, will execute the intention (e). [Where the charity is eleemosynary, the religion of the founder is not, as a general rule, regarded (f).

[Trusts relating to services of the Church.]

15. As preaching in a black gown is not illegal, a condition that a black gown should be used in preaching, attached to a bequest for endowment of a church, does not make the gift void for illegality (g). And a trust for the purchase of advowsons in order to provide for services conducted according to the views of the section of the Church of England known as "Evangelical," was held by the Court of Appeal to be a good charitable trust (h); but the decision was reversed in the House of Lords upon the ground of the uncertainty of the terms of the gift (i). A trust of an

(a) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 409.

(b) Re Ilminster School, 2 De G. & J. 535.

(c) Re Stafford Charities, 25 Beav. 28; Re Ilminster School, 2 De G. & J. 535; S. C. nom. Baker v. Lee, in D. P. 8 H. L. Cas. 495; Attorney-General v. Clifton, 32 Beav. 596.

(d) Attorney-General v. Clifton, 32 Beav. 596; [and see Attorney-General v. Calvert, 23 Beav. 248, 261; Re Perry' Almshouses, (1898) 1 Ch. 391; (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 21].

(e) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 409, per Lord Eldon; see S. C. 7 Sim. 290.

[(f) Re Ross's Charity, (1897) 2 Ch. 397; (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 21, citing Attorney-General v. Calvert, 23 Beav. 248; and see ante, p. 43.]

[(g) Re Robinson, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 85.]

[(h) Re Hunter, (1897) 1 Ch. 518; (1897) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 105.]

[(i) Hunter v. Attorney-General, (1899) A. C. 309. So a gift "for such purposes, civil or religious," as the Deptford v. Sketchley, 8 Q. B. 394, overruling Rumball v. Munt, Ib. 382; and see Gouldsworth v. Knight, 11 M. & W. 337). However, though all the trusts must be for the parish, they may be directed to some special trust, if exclusively parochial, as a trust for aiding the church rates (Doe v. Hiley, 10 B. & C. 885; Doe v. Terry, 4 Ad. & Ell. 274; and see Allason v. Stark, 9 Ad. & Ell. 266, 267; Doe v. Cockell, 4 Ad. & Ell. 478), or furnishing a poorhouse (Alderman v. Neate, 4 M. & W. 704), or for the relief of the poor of the parish, whether the objects of the charity be or be not held to include those in the receipt of parochial relief; for if non-recipients only of parochial relief are to be admitted, the parish is still benefited by keeping that class of poor, by means of the charity, off the parish books (Ex parte Annesley, 2 Y. & C. 350; Churchwardens of Deptford v. Sketchley, 8 Q. B. 394).

advowson apparently designed to secure a presentation of clergymen of a particular type of religious thought, but so worded that it merely provided for the due performance of the duty cast by law upon every legal owner of an advowson to appoint a duly qualified person, was held not be a charitable trust (a); but a bequest to vicar and churchwardens "to be applied by them in such manner as they shall in their sole discretion think fit" is a good charitable gift for ecclesiastical purposes in the parish (b). It seems, however, that a trust of an advowson for presentation of clergymen of a particular type of religious thought might, if carefully worded, be a good charitable trust (c).

[Local Government Act, 1894.]

16. Under the Local Government Act, 1894 (d), parish councils are authorised to appoint trustees in the place of churchwardens, who are the only trustees of a charity other than an ecclesiastical charity (e), and the Act contains a definition of the expression "ecclesiastical charity" which includes any charity the endowment of which is held "for the benefit of any particular church or denomination, or of any members thereof as such" (f). A charity for gifts to poor widows, with a preference to those who were "most constant in their attendance on the public service of the Church," was held to be a parochial charity, and not an ecclesiastical charity within this enactment (g). On the other hand, where the objects of the charity were to be persons who had regularly attended divine service at the parish church, lived a godly, righteous, and sober life, and been partakers of the Holy Communion, it was held that the endowment was for the benefit of the members of the Church of England as such, and that the charity was an ecclesiastical one within the Act (h).]

["Ecclesiastical charity."]

Numerous contributors.

17. Where a fund has been raised for the purpose of founding a chapel or any other charity, and the contributors were so numerous as to preclude the possibility of their all concurring in any instrument declaring the trust, and a declaration of trust was made by the persons in whom the property was vested at subscribers to a school or assembled members of a religious body should appoint was held void for uncertainty: Re Friends' Free School, (1909) 2 Ch. 675; but where, upon the construction of a gift for "charitable, educational or other institutions," it appeared from the context that the purposes were limited to general or public purposes for the benefit of a town and its inhabitants, the gift was a good charitable bequest: Re Allen, (1905) 2 Ch. 400.]

[(a) Re Church Patronage Trust, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 643.]

[(b) Re Garrard, (1907) 1 Ch. 382.]

[(c) Re Church Patronage Trust, (1904) 1 Ch. 41.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 73.]

[(e) S. 14; Re Ross's Charity, (1897) 2 Ch. 397; (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 21.]

[(f) Sect. 75.]

[(g) Re Ross's Charity, (1897) 2 Ch. 397; (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 21.]

[(h) Re Perry Almshouses, (1898) 1 Ch. 391; (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 21.]

or about the time when the sums were raised, that declaration may reasonably be taken primâ facie as a correct exposition of the minds of the contributors (a).

The trust originally intended will be preserved.

18. Where an institution exists for the purpose of religious worship, and it cannot be discovered from the instrument declaring the trust what form or species of religious worship was in the intention of the settlors, the Court will then inquire what has been the usage of the congregation; and, if such usage do not contravene public policy, will be guided by it as evidence of the intention in the administration of the trust. And by 7 & 8 Vict. c. 45, s. 2, if the instrument of trust do not in express terms, or by reference to some book or other document, define the religious doctrines, twenty-five years' usage immediately preceding any suit is made conclusive evidence thereof (b). But if the purpose of the settlors appear clearly upon the instrument, the Court, in that case, though the usage of the congregation may have run in a different channel, cannot change the nature of the original institution: it is not competent for the majority of the congregation, or for the managers of the property, to say, "We have altered our opinions: the chapel in future shall be for the benefit of persons of the same persuasion as ourselves" (c).

Noncomformists Chapels Act, 1844.

Appointment of new trustees.

19. If the deed of endowment neither provide for the succession of trustees, nor the election of the minister, an inquiry will be directed, who, acccording to the nature of the establishment, are entitled to propose trustees, and to elect the minister (d);

(a) Attorney-General v. Clapham, 4 De G. M. & G. 626.

(b) See Attorney-General v. Hutton, Drur. 530; [Attorney-General v. Anderson, 57 L. J. Ch. 543, 546]. As to Roman Catholic charities, see The Roman Catholic Charities Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 134), s. 5.

(c) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 400, per Lord Eldon; Foley v. Wontner, 2 J. & W. 247, per eundem; Craigdallie v. Aikman, 1 Dow's P. C. 1; Milligan v. Mitchell, 3 M. & Cr. 73; Broom v. Summers, 11 Sim. 353; Attorney-General v. Murdoch, 7 Hare, 445; 1 De G. M. & G. 86; Attorney-General v. Munro, 2 De G. & Sm. 122; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Rochester, 5 De G. M. & G. 797; [Attorney-General v. Anderson, 57 L. J. Ch. 543, 550; and in Free Church of Scotland v. Lord Overtoun, (1904) A. C. 515 (H. L. Sc.), the House of Lords have recently, in the case of a Scottish charitable trust, applied the principles enunciated by Lord Eldon in Craigdallie v. Aikman, sup. and A. G. v. Pearson, sup.].

(d) Davis v. Jenkins, 3 V. & B. 151, see 159; and see Leslie v. Birnie, 2 Russ. 114. The Trustee Appointment Act, 1850 (13 & 14 Vict. c. 28), seems to confer a power of appointing new trustees, for the special purposes of that Act, where there is no power or the power has elapsed. [The Trustees Appointment Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 19), s. 3, sub-s. 1, enacts that the power of appointing new trustees conferred by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, or any other statutory power for the same purpose for the time being in force, shall apply to all land acquired and held on trust for any purpose to which the 13 & 14 Vict. c. 28, or the Trustee Appointment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 26), or the Act of 1890 applies.]

and if the election of the minister properly belong to the congregation, the majority is for that purpose the congregation (a). The appointment of the minister cannot, in such a case, belong to the heir of the surviving trustee, who may not be of the same persuasion, but, it might happen, a Roman Catholic or Jew (b).

Notices.

For the valid election of a minister due notice of the meeting for the purpose must be given, and no persons must take part in the proceedings who are not entitled to attend (c).

Minister of a meeting-house.

20. A minister in possession of a meeting-house is tenant at will to the trustees, and his estate is determinable by demand of possession without any previous notice (d). But this merely tries the legal right without affecting the question whether in equity the minister was properly deprived (e), and if the minister be in possession, and preaching the doctrines that were intended by the founders, it is the practice of a Court of Equity to continue him until the case can be heard, whether he was duly elected or not (for the first point is to have the service performed), and the Court will pay him his salary (f). If a minister be removable by the decision of the congregation regularly convened at a meeting, the charges intended to be brought against the minister must be specified in the notice calling the meeting, and the minister himself must be apprised of the nature of the charges (g).

Minister may be removable at pleasure.

21. It is the policy of the Established Church by giving the minister an estate for life in his office to render him in some degree independent of the congregation; but if it be the usage amongst any particular class of dissenters to appoint their ministers for limited periods, or to make them removable at pleasure, though a Court of Equity might not struggle hard in support of such a plan, there is no principle upon which the Court would not be bound to give it effect (h). And, accordingly, where a decided majority of the congregation passed a resolution for the removal of their pastor, the Court granted an injunction against his officiating (i).

(a) Davis v. Jenkins, 3 V. & B. 155; and see Leslie v. Birnie, 2 Russ. 114.

(b) Davis v. Jenkins, 3 V. & B. 155.

(c) Perry v. Shipway, 4 De G. & J. 353, see 360.

(d) Doe v. Jones, 10 B. & C. 718; Doe v. M'Kaeg, 10 B. & C. 721; Perry v. Shipway, 1 Giff. 10; and see Brown v. Dawson, 12 Ad. & Ell. 624. See post, p. 631.

(e) See Doe v. Jones, 10 B. & C. 721.

(f) Foley v. Wontner, 2 J. & W. 247, per Lord Eldon. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 110), s. 15, the powers of the Charity Commissioners, as to the appointment and removal of trustees, are extended to "buildings registered as places of meeting for religious worship."

(g) Dean v. Bennett, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 489; [and see Fisher v. Jackson, (1891) 2 Ch. 84].

(h) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 402, 403, per Lord Eldon.

(i) Cooper v. Gordon, 8 L. R. Eq. 249.

Original intention cannot be defeated by bye-laws.

22. To every corporation there belongs of common right the power of establishing bye-laws for the government of their own body; but this privilege cannot authorise the enactment of any rules or regulations that would tend to pervert or destroy the directions of the original founder and the objects of the charity (a). And so a clause in a deed investing the trustees, or the major part of them, with the power of making orders from time to time upon matters relating to a meeting-house would not enable them to convert the meeting-house, whenever they thought proper, into a meeting-house of a different description, and for teaching different doctrines from those of the persons who founded it, and by whom it was to be attended (b).

Mistake.

23. It is not the custom of the Court to remove objects of a charity who have been elected under a mistake, where the election was bonâ fide and without any fraud or corruption (c).

Authority necessary for the purpose of changing the trust.

24. The charity funds cannot be diverted into a different channel without the authority of Parliament (d), or through the Charity Commissioners, who are now, by the Charitable Trusts Acts, empowered to make orders for the establishment of schemes for the administration of charities in certain cases (e).

Expenses of an Act.

25. Formerly trustees, before applying to the legislature, were in the habit of procuring the sanction of the Court of Chancery for their greater security; for if they took such a step upon the mere suggestion of their own minds, and failed in obtaining the contemplated Act, they were not allowed the costs and expenses incurred in the proceeding (f); but if the application to Parliament was attended with success, the trustees were then allowed their costs, though the sanction of the Lord Chancellor had not been previously obtained; for the Court could not with propriety pronounce those measures to be imprudent which the legislature itself had enacted as prudent (g).

Letter may be broken and yet the spirit preserved.

26. The management of the trust may contravene the letter of the founder's will, and yet, on a favourable construction, be conformable to the intention.

(a) Eden v. Foster, 2 P. W. 327, resolved.

(b) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 411, per Lord Eldon.

(c) Re Storie's University Gift, 2 De G. F. & J. 529, see 531, 540.

(d) Attorney-General v. Market Bosworth School, 35 Beav. 305.

(e) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, sects. 54-60; 23 & 24 Vict. c. 136, sect. 2. [And see the Endowed Schools Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 87), which transfers the powers of the late Endowed Schools Commissioners to the Charity Commissioners.]

(f) Attorney-General v. Earl of Mansfield, 2 Russ. 519, per Lord Eldon.

(g) Ib. per eundem.

Free grammar school.

It was the opinion of Lord Eldon (a) and Sir T. Plumer (b), that if the wish of the founder was to establish a free grammar school, the Chancellor, though he felt perfectly convinced that a free grammar school (that is, a school for teaching the learned languages) could be of little or no use, would yet be bound to apply the revenue as the donor had directed, and could not substitute a school for teaching English and writing and arithmetic. But it has since been held by Lord Lyndhurst (c), Sir John Leach (d), Lord Langdale (e), and Lord Cottenham (f), that the Court has jurisdiction to extend the application of the charity fund to purposes beyond the literal intention, and that writing and arithmetic may be well introduced into a scheme for the establishment or better regulation of a free grammar school.

Free school.

And this may of course be done in the case, not of a free grammar school, but of a free school (g).

Grammar School Act, 1840.

By 3 & 4 Vict. c. 77, the system of education in any grammar school was extended to other useful branches of literature and science, in addition to or in lieu of the Greek and Latin languages or such other instruction as might be required by the terms of the foundation, or the existing statutes.

32 & 33 Vict. c. 56.

27. By the Endowed Schools Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 56), the Commissioners appointed by Her Majesty to inquire into schools were empowered, by sect. 9, "in such manner as might render any educational endowment most conducive to the advancement of education, to alter and add to any existing, and to make any new trusts, directions, and provisions in lieu of any existing trusts, directions, and provisions." But by sect. 14, the Act was not to apply to charities created less than fifty years before the commencement of the Act, unless the governing body of the endowment assented to the new scheme (h). By the Endowed Schools Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 87), the powers of the Endowed Schools Commissioners were transferred to the Charity Commissioners (i), [and now, under the Board of

(a) Attorney-General v. Whiteley, 11 Ves. 241; Attorney-General v. Earl of Mansfield, 2 Russ. 501.

(b) Attorney-General v. Dean of Christchurch, Jac. 474.

(c) Attorney-General v. Haberdashers' Company, 3 Russ. 530.

(d) Attorney-General v. Dixie, 2 M. & K. 432; Attorney-General v. Gascoigne, Id. 652.

(e) Attorney-General v. Caius College, 2 Keen, 150; Attorney-General v. Ladyman, C. P. Coop. Cases, 1737-38, 180.

(f) Attorney-General v. Stamford, 1 Ph. 745.

(g) Attorney-General v. Jackson, 2 Keen, 541.

[(h) The effect of the section as to these endowments is to preserve them intact from interference by the Charity Commissioners, and to leave the jurisdiction of the Court wholly unaffected: Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, (1896) 1 Ch. 879.]

[(i) As to what educational endow-

Education Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 33), sect. 2 and Orders in Council, have become exercisable by the Board of Education (a).

[London Parochial Charities Act.]

28. By the City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883 (b), the Charity Commissioners are empowered "to inquire into the nature, tenure, and value of all the property and endowments" of certain parochial charities of the City of London, and to prepare schemes for "the future application and management of the charity property and endowments." But by sect. 21, no scheme is to affect any endowment originally given to charitable uses less than fifty years before the commencement of the Act, unless the governing body assent to the scheme. By sect. 39, power is given to the Commissioners to direct the sale of any part of the charity property upon such terms and conditions, and to such purchasers, as they may think fit; and the trustees for the time being of such property are thereupon to effect such sale. By sect. 48, a new corporate governing body, to be called "The Trustees of the London Parochial Charities," is to be established, with perpetual succession and a common seal.]

Ejectment of person ceasing to be schoolmaster.

29. A schoolmaster or other officer of the trustees, whose appointment has been cancelled, or whose office has otherwise ceased, and who, in defiance of the trustees, continues to hold over the premises given up to him, cannot, as he was lawfully put in possession, be treated on the footing of a trespasser on another's lawful possession, so as to be removable with as little force as may be necessary; but he can be ejected in a summary way by application to two justices of the peace under the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 136), sect. 13.

"Finding a master."

30. Where the trustees were directed to apply the rents "towards the necessary finding a master, and for the pains of such master," and the trustees applied part of the revenue towards rebuilding and repairing the school-room and school-house, it ments are within the Act, see Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, 15 App. Cas. 172.]

[(a) As to the powers of the Board to alter schemes and regulate procedure as to notices, and as to their duty to have "due regard" to the educational interests of privileged classes, see Re Berkhampstead Grammar School, (1908) 2 Ch. 25.]

[(b) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 36; as to what is "charity property" within the meaning of the enactment, see Re St Botolph Parish Estates, 35 Ch. D. 142; Re St Bride's Parish Estates, 35 Ch. D. 147 n.; Re St Stephen, Coleman Street, 39 Ch. D. 492; Re St Nicholas Acons, 60 L. T. N.S. 532; and as to what is a "vested interest," Re St John the Evangelist, 59 L. T. N.S. 617; Re St Alphage, London Wall, 59 L. T. N.S. 614; Re St Edmund, King and Martyr, 60 L. T. N.S. 622, where Kay, J., said that it would be a breach of trust for the trustees of a charity to appoint a clerk with a freehold office.]

was held to be a good execution of the trust, because a school-room and house were necessary, and if these were not provided by the trustees, they must have been provided by the master himself, and so it was in effect applied for the pains of the master (a).

"Relief of poor."

31. So a trust "for the relief of the poor" has been construed to authorise an application of the funds to the building of a school-house, and the education of the poor of the parish (b).

Repairing and rebuilding.

32. So where an estate had been given to trustees for the repair of a church and chapel of ease thereto belonging, and the parish had taken down the chapel to erect a new one on a different site, it was determined that the trustees had not exceeded the line of their duty in expending the accumulated rents upon the rebuilding of the chapel; but it was held that the rents only, and not the corpus of the estate, could be so applied; and the Court had great doubt whether anything could be laid out upon the fitting-up of the chapel (c). But where there was a large surplus fund, and the objects of the charity were sufficiently provided for, the Court in a special case made repairs and improvements out of the capital, without any direction for recouping the capital out of the income (d).

[In regard to "reparations" of buildings for a charitable purpose the law is very wide, and it has been frequently laid down that the word "reparation" is not to be confined to the repairs of the old building, but may in a proper case be extended to the erection of a new building (e). Where the trust was for the reparations, ornaments, and other necessary occasions of a parish church, a scheme was sanctioned by which the trustees were allowed to provide for the cost of a spire to a new parish church, as being within the words "necessary occasions" (f).]

Augmentation of salaries.

33. Where the direction of the founder was that the master of a school should receive 50*l.* a year, and the usher 30*l.*, and the trustees had raised the salaries respectively to 80*l.* and 60*l.*, as the will did not contain any prohibition against increasing the salaries, and it could not be supposed that the trustees were not under any circumstances to alter the amount, the Court refused to compel the trustees to refund the augmentations (g).

(a) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Stamford, 2 Sw. 592.

(b) Wilkinson v. Malin, 2 Tyr. 544, see 570.

(c) Attorney-General v. Foyster, 1 Anst. 116.

(d) Re Willenhall Chapel, 2 Dr. & Sm. 467.

[(e) Re Palatine Estate Charity, 39 Ch. D. 54, per Stirling, J., citing Attorney-General v. Wax Chandlers' Company, 6 L. R. H. L. 1.]

[(f) S. C.]

(g) Attorney-General v. Dean of Christchurch, 2 Russ. 321.

Reduction of salaries.

34. And, vice versâ, if a fund be given, not for the purposes of individual benefit, but for the discharge of certain duties, as for the support of a schoolmaster, and the fund increases to such an extent as to yield more than a reasonable compensation for the duties to be performed, the Court will not allow the surplus to be expended unnecessarily, but will order it to be applied for the promotion of some other charitable purpose (a).

Loans.

35. Legacies had been left by several different testators (between the years 1545 and 1666) for the purpose of being lent out in sums varying from 5*l.* to 200*l.* without interest, and Sir J. Leach was of opinion that, regard being had to the alteration in the value of money, it was not inconsistent with the intention of the testators to raise the loans to sums varying from 100*l.* to 500*l.* (b).

"Parishioners."

36. Where the trust was to elect children, who or whose parents were parishioners of a certain parish, to Christ's Hospital, it was held by V.C. Malins that the word "parishioner" must be taken in an honest and bonâ fide sense, and could not be applied to a person who had taken a small house temporarily for the mere purpose of obtaining a qualification, and had been rated to the parish collusively, and that where a disqualified candidate was elected after notice to the electors of such disqualification, the votes were thrown away, and the opposing candidate, though he had a minority of votes, was duly elected (c). But on appeal Lord Justice James observed, that if the law allowed a man to be qualified, he was qualified however his qualification might have been gained—that men constantly acquired qualifications for voting in counties by buying a 40*s.* freehold for the sole purpose of giving themselves votes, and the decree of the Court below was reversed (d).

Retainer of the charity fund.

37. It need scarcely be remarked that a trustee would be guilty of a gross breach of trust, should he keep the charity fund in his hands, and not apply it, as it becomes payable, to the objects of the trust (e).

Alienation of the charity estate.

38. Trustees of charities could not, as a general rule, even before the restrictions recently imposed, have made an absolute disposition of the charity estate: they could not, for instance, have parted with lands to a purchaser, and have substituted instead

(a) Attorney-General v. Master of Brentwood School, 1 M. & K. 376, 394.
(b) Attorney-General v. Mercers' Company, 2 M. & K. 654; and see Attorney-General v. Holland, 2 Y. & C. 683; Morden College case, cited Ib. 701, 702.
(c) Etherington v. Wilson, 20 L. R. Eq. 606.
(d) Etherington v. Wilson, 1 Ch. D. (C.A.) 160.
(e) Duke, 116.

the reservation of a rent (a). And as the trustees could not have aliened absolutely, so they could not have accomplished the same end indirectly by demising for long terms of years, as for 999 years (b); or for terms of ordinary duration, with covenants for perpetual renewal (c); or by granting reversionary terms (d).

Where allowable.

39. But there was no positive rule that in no instance could an absolute disposition be made, for then the Court itself could not have authorised such an act — a jurisdiction which, it is acknowledged, has from time to time been exercised in special cases. "I do not doubt," observed Sir J. Wigram, "the existence of this power in the Court: the trustees have the power to sell at law, they can convey the legal estate, but it is only a Court of Equity that can recall the property, and if that Court should sanction a sale it would be bound to protect the purchaser" (e). The true principle was, that an absolute disposition was then only to be considered a breach of trust when the proceeding was inconsistent with a provident administration of the estate for the benefit of the charity (f). And the transaction was strongly assumed to be improvident as against a purchaser until he had established the contrary (g).

Recent charity Acts.

40. Now under the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Acts, the Charity Commissioners are empowered, on application made to them, to authorise the sale or exchange of any part of the charity property (h), and the trustees are restricted from [making,

(a) Attorney-General v. Kerr, 2 Beav. 420; Blackston v. Hemsworth Hospital, Duke, 49; Attorney-General v. Brettingham, 3 Beav. 91; and see Attorney-General v. Buller, Jac. 412; Attorney-General v. Magdalen College, 18 Beav. 223.

(b) Attorney-General v. Green, 6 Ves. 452; Attorney-General v. Pargeter, 6 Beav. 150.

(c) Lydiatt v. Foach, 2 Vern. 410; Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 326.

(d) See Attorney-General v. Kerr, 2 Beav. 420.

(e) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Newark, 1 Hare, 400; and see Re Ashton Charity, 22 Beav. 288; Anon. case, cited Attorney-General v. Warren, 2 Sw. 300, 302.

(f) See Attorney-General v. Warren, 2 Swans. 302; S. C. Wils. 411; [Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. 54, 59; S. C. Ib. (C.A.) 596, 604; Re Clergy Orphan Corporation, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 145, 154;] Attorney-General v. Hungerford, 8 Bl. 437; S. C. 2 Cl. & Fin. 357; Attorney-General v. Kerr, 2 Beav. 428; Attorney-General v. South Sea Company, 4 Beav. 543; Attorney-General v. Newark, 1 Hare, 395; Parke's Charity, 12 Sim. 329; Re Suir Island Female Charity School, 3 Jon. & Lat. 171.

(g) Attorney-General v. Brettingham, 3 Beav. 91.

(h) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 24; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 32; see 23 & 24 Vict. c. 136, s. 16. The 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 21, authorises improvements with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners; and the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 136, s. 15, authorises the application of charity moneys to "any other purpose or object," which the Commissioners may think beneficial, and which is not inconsistent with the foundation.

otherwise than with the express authority of Parliament, or of a Court or Judge, or "according to a scheme legally established" (a)] any sale, mortgage or charge (b), without the consent of the Commissioners (c). But this does not interfere with the powers of trustees of charities to sell under railway and other public Acts, where the legislature has made proper provision for the due application of the purchase-moneys (d).

Sales to railway companies.

41. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860, "a majority of two-thirds of the trustees of any charity assembled at a meeting of their body duly constituted, and having power to determine on any sale, exchange, partition, mortgage, lease, or other disposition of any property of the charity," are empowered to pass the legal estate for giving effect to such disposition (e).

Power of trustees to pass the legal estate.

42. Where a sale or exchange is effected under the Charity Acts, the purchase or exchange moneys may be laid out with the consent of the Commissioners in the purchase of other lands without a licence in mortmain (f). But the Act is silent as to the requirement of 9 G. 2. c. 36 (repealed but substantially re-enacted by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (g)), and the conveyance should therefore be by deed attested by two witnesses, and enrolled in the Central Office of the Supreme Court within six calendar months (h).

Re-investment of sale moneys.

[When the statutory requirements (i.e. of the Charitable Uses Act, 1735, 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, sect. 3,) are not complied with, the deed is not only voidable but absolutely void, not merely as to the charitable trusts sought to be created, but as to the legal estate expressed to be conveyed (i).]

43. Where there are accumulations from a charity estate, the Court, considering the purchase of land with personal estate

Investment of accumulations in land.

[(a) These words do not include the instrument of foundation of the charity, but refer to schemes for administration sanctioned by some duly constituted legal authority; Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 596.]

[(b) As to the effect of this prohibition in preventing trustees of charities from borrowing money in anticipation of future income, see Fell v. Official Trustee of Charity Lands, 14 Times L. R. 376; 78 L. T. N.S. 474.]

(c) The Charitable Trusts Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 124), s. 29. [The power of the Commissioners to authorise a sale of land falling under the provisions of the Allotments Extension Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 80), is not affected by that Act: Parish of Sutton to Church, 26 Ch. D. 173; and see the Allotments Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 48), s. 13 (2).]

(d) See the language of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 124), s. 29; [and see Re Mason's Orphanage, ubi sup.].

(e) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 136, s. 16; and see the still later enactment of 32 & 33 Vict. c. 110, s. 12, post, p. 642.

(f) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 35.

[(g) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 42; see ante, p. 104 et seq.]

(h) As to these requirements, see ante, pp. 104, 105.

[(i) Churcher v. Martin, 42 Ch. D. 312.]

belonging to a charity to be opposed to the general policy of the law, will not, as a general rule, sanction such an investment (a). But there is nothing illegal in such an investment, if accompanied with the required formalities; and therefore should a highly beneficial purchase offer itself, the trustees would, it is conceived, run no risk in so investing the accumulations (b). Indeed, the Court itself has made such orders where the purchase of the land was not the main object, but incidental to a general scheme, as for the enlargement of a school (c). But in every case where by conveyance inter vivos land comes into mortmain for the first time, such conveyance must be by deed executed in the presence of at least two witnesses, and enrolled within six calendar months from the execution (d). Even where the land of a charity, whether vested in the corporation or in trustees, is taken by a public company, and the purchase-money is laid out under the direction of the Court in the purchase of other lands upon the like trusts, the deed must be enrolled (e).

Enrolment.

Loans of charity money on mortgage.

44. Trustees of a charity may lend the trust fund upon a mortgage of real estate, though a legal condition is expressly reserved, and though after default an equity of redemption arises by the rules of equity, the statute (f), which avoids conveyances to a charity containing any reservation or condition for the benefit of the grantor, being held not to apply to such a case (g). But of course care should be taken that the mortgage is by indenture attested by two witnesses, and enrolled. The Court itself on one occasion, when its attention had been directed to the question, authorised the trustees of a charity to lend on mortgage (h).

Charitable Funds Investment Act, 1870.

45. Now by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 34, corporations and trustees holding moneys in trust for any public or charitable purpose may invest them on any real security authorised by, or consistent with, the trust, and the requirements of the Mortmain Act are dispensed with. But upon foreclosure or release of the equity of redemption, the land is to be held upon trust to be converted into money, and to be sold accordingly.

(a) Attorney-General v. Wilson, 2 Keen, 680.

(b) See Vaughan v. Farrer, 2 Ves. 188.

(c) Attorney-General v. Mansfield, 14 Sim. 601; Honnor's Trust, V. C. Kindersley, 3rd May, 1853.

(d) But see Attorney-General v. Day, 1 Ves. sen. 222.

(e) Re Christ's Hospital, V. C. Wood, 12 W. R. 669.

[(f) 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, repealed but substantially re-enacted by 51 & 52 Vict. c. 42.]

(g) Doe d. Graham v. Hawkins, 2 Q. B. 212.

(h) Attorney-General v. Gibson, Ex parte Lushington, Re Lady Prior's Charity, 21st July, 1853, M.R. The mortgage was for 50,000*l.* upon an estate in Northamptonshire.

[46. By the Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868, a body of trustees may be appointed in any parish for the purpose of accepting by bequest, donation, contract or otherwise, and of holding any contributions which may be given to them for ecclesiastical purposes in the parish. The trustees are to consist of the incumbent and two householders or owners or occupiers of land in the parish, one to be chosen by the patron and the other by the bishop of the diocese; and the trustees so appointed are to be a body corporate with perpetual succession and a common seal (a).] [Church Trustees.]

47. Trustees of charities cannot grant leases to or in trust for one of themselves, for no trustee can be a tenant to himself, and the Court will charge him with an occupation rack-rent (b). Where two trustees were expressly authorised by the will to grant a lease to themselves, or either of them, with the consent of the tenant for life, and one of them took a lease with such consent accordingly, which was fair and proper, but it was found in effect that the relative characters of trustee and lessee were inconsistent, and led to inconveniences, the Court removed the trustee at the instance of the cestuis que trust, on the ground of the repugnant characters in this particular case of trustee and tenant; and though the trustee offered to surrender the lease, the Court, as it was beneficial to the cestuis que trust, held him to it, and dismissed him from the trust (c). Lease to a trustee.

48. Trustees should be cautious how they grant leases to their own relations, for that circumstance is calculated to excite a suspicion, which, if confirmed by any other fact, it might require a strong case to remove (d). Relations.

49. So a lease should not contain any covenant for the private advantage of the trustee; as where a corporation directed the insertion of a covenant that the lessee should grind at the corporation mill, in a suit for the establishment of the charity the corporation were, for this instance of misbehaviour, disallowed their costs (e). Covenant for advantage of trustee.

50. Where trustees have a power given to them in general terms to grant leases, it is said that they may take fines or Fines or rack-rent.

[(a) 31 & 32 Vict. c. 109, s. 9.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 519, see 534; Attorney-General v. Earl of Clarendon, 17 Ves. 491, see 500; [and see Boyce v. Edbrooke, (1903) 1 Ch. 836].

(c) Passingham v. Sherborn, 9 Beav. 424.

(d) Ferraby v. Hobson, 2 Ph. 261, per Lord Cottenham; and see Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 457.

(e) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Stamford, 2 Sw. 592, 593.

reserve rents as, according to the circumstances of the case, may be most beneficial to the charity (a). If the trust estate held on lease increase in value upon the outlay of the tenant, the trustee is not called upon immediately to raise the tenant's rent, for such a practice would obviously prevent any improvement of the property (b). Nor if the value of the estate increase from the rise of agricultural produce will the trustee be personally liable because he neglects for a few months to raise the rent; but if he wilfully continues the old rent when clearly a much higher rent can be obtained, he may be held responsible (c).

Adequate consideration.

51. In granting leases of charity lands care must be taken that the lease be for an adequate consideration, and if this be not observed, the Court will interfere and order the lease to be cancelled, and with the lease will also cancel the covenants (d).

Leases at an under-value.

52. The lease may be annulled on the mere ground of under-value (e); but it must be an under-value satisfactorily proved and considerable in amount: it is not enough to show that a little more might have been got for the estate than has been actually obtained; still less is it sufficient to infer the under-letting from the value of the property at some subsequent period (f).

"Rent not to be raised."

53. Even where it was ordained at the creation of the trust that no lease should be made for above twenty-one years, and the rent should not be raised, it was held that the trustee would not be justified in granting leases from time to time at no more than the original reservation: that as the times alter and the price of provisions rises, the rent ought to be raised in proportion (g). The direction for leasing under the true value is no part of the charity, and in fact is void in itself for perpetuity (h).

Under-value must be fraudulent to render the lease impeachable.

54. In considering the question of value it must be remembered that the case of a charity estate is one in which, of all

(a) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Stamford, 2 Sw. 592. See now p. 642, post.

(b) Ferraby v. Hobson, 2 Ph. 258, per Lord Cottenham.

(c) See Ferraby v. Hobson, 2 Ph. 255.

(d) Attorney-General v. Morgan, 2 Russ. 306.

(e) East v. Ryal, 2 P. W. 284; Attorney-General v. Lord Gower, 9 Mod. 224, see 229; Attorney-General v. Magwood, 18 Ves. 315; Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 519; Poor of Yervel v. Sutton, Duke, 43; Eltham Parish v. Warreyn, Duke, 67; Wright v. Newport Pond School, Duke, 46; Rowe v. Almsmen of Tavistock, Duke, 42; Crouch v. Citizens of Worcester, Duke, 33; Attorney-General v. Foord, 6 Beav. 288.

(f) Attorney-General v. Cross, 3 Mer. 541, per Sir W. Grant.

(g) Watson v. Hinsworth Hospital, 2 Vern. 596; and see Lydiatt v. Foach, Id. 410; Attorney-General v. Master of Catherine Hall, Cambridge, Jac. 381; Attorney-General v. St John's Hospital, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 92.

(h) Hope v. Corporation of Gloucester, 7 De G. M. & G. 647; Attorney-General v. Greenhill, 33 Beav. 193.

others, the security of the rent is the first point to be regarded, and therefore the inadequacy of the amount reserved is less a badge of fraud in this than it would be in almost any other instance (a). And Lord Eldon desired it might not be considered to be his opinion that a tenant who had got a lease of charity lands at too low a rate with reference to the actual value was therefore to be turned out, if it appeared he had himself acted fairly and honestly. The only ground for so dealing with him would be some evidence or presumption of collusion or corruption of motive (b).

Compensation for the under-value.

55. When leases are set aside for under-value and the Court awards a compensation to the charity for the loss which has been sustained by the charity through the collusion of the trustees and the tenant, the burden will fall upon the trustees or the tenant according to the circumstances of the case (c). For whatever length of time renewals of leases of charity lands upon payment of fines certain may have been granted, and though in pursuance of a scheme settled by the Courts, the tenants have gained no right, and cannot insist upon any further renewals (d). But if money has been laid out in improvements upon the faith of renewals, and the lessees have not been recouped their outlay by any subsequent enjoyment of the property, the Court, in the charity scheme, will have regard to their claims (e).

Unreasonable extent of the lease.

56. A lease of charity lands may also be invalidated on the ground of the unreasonable extent of the term. The duration of the lease should be such only as is consistent with the fair and provident management of the estate (f). It was therefore always a direct violation of duty to grant a lease for one thousand years (g), not only on the ground before noticed that such a demise would in effect be an absolute alienation, but also on the principle that no private proprietor would choose to debar himself from profiting by the progressive improvement of the property. Sir Thomas Plumer observed: "The compensation which the trustees receive may be adequate at the date of the

(a) Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 457, per Lord Eldon.

(b) Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 457.

(c) See Duke, 116; Poor of Yervel v. Sutton, Id. 43; Attorney-General v. Mayor of Stamford, 2 Sw. 592, per Cur.; Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 540; Rowe v. Almsmen of Tavistock, Duke, 42.

(d) Attorney-General v. St John's Hospital, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 92.

(e) S. C.

(f) See Attorney-General v. Owen, 10 Ves. 560; Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 326; Attorney-General v. Griffith, 13 Ves. 575.

(g) Attorney-General v. Green, 6 Ves. 452; Attorney-General v. Cross, 3 Mer. 540; Attorney-General v. Dixie, 13 Ves. 531; Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 326.

contract, but they are precluded for one thousand years from any advantage of increased value. It is true they are secured from diminution, and in some instances to guard against fluctuation may be as much the interest of one party as the other; but that would be an answer to all cases in which the trustees have made an alienation at a fixed rent. At the same time," continued his Honour, "it is just to say, that these principles seem not to have been acted upon at so early a period as 1670. In many cases in Duke's collection the Court acted on inadequacy of value, in none on mere extent of term" (a).

Husbandry leases.

57. Husbandry or farm leases should not be granted for a term certain exceeding twenty-one years (b). But neither is this rule to be taken as absolutely inflexible; and where the alienation is for any longer period, as for ninety-nine years, the Court will put it upon those who are dealing for and with the charity estate to show the reasonableness of such a transaction, for primâ facie it is unreasonable: there is no instance of a power in a marriage settlement to lease for ninety-nine years, except with reference to very particular circumstances; the ordinary husbandry lease is for twenty-one years (c).

Leases determinable upon lives.

58. In Attorney-General v. Cross (d), the trustees had been in the habit of granting leases for ninety-nine years, determinable on lives, in consideration of fines and the reservation of a small rent, a mode of letting very general in the county where the lands were situate, and which was proved to have been adopted by the founder himself. A bill was filed to set aside such a lease, but Sir W. Grant said: "I am not aware of any principle or authority on which it can be held that such a lease is on the very face of it a breach of trust. The legislature has, both in enabling and disabling statutes, considered leases for three lives as on a footing with leases for twenty-one years absolute. So have the founders of

(a) Attorney-General v. Warren, 2 Sw. 304. But see Poor of Yervel v. Sutton, Duke, 43, resolution 2; Rowe v. Almsmen of Tavistock, Id. 42; Wright v. Newport Pond School, Id. 46; Crouch v. Citizens of Worcester, Id. 33.

(b) See Attorney-General v. Owen, 10 Ves. 560; Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 291; Rowe v. Almsmen of Tavistock, Duke, 42; Wright v. Newport Pond School, Id. 46; Poor of Yervel v. Sutton, Id. 43, resolution 2; Attorney-General v. Pargeter, 6 Beav. 150; [Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. 54, 60].

(c) Attorney-General v. Owen, 10 Ves. 560, per Lord Eldon; and see Attorney-General v. Griffith, 13 Ves. 575; Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 291; Attorney-General v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 326; Attorney-General v. Lord Hotham, T. & R. 216; Attorney-General v. Kerr, 2 Beav. 421; Attorney-General v. Hall, 16 Beav. 388.

(d) 3 Mer. 524; see pp. 530, 539.

charities, who prohibited the letting on lease for more than three lives, or twenty-one years." And his Honour dismissed the bill, and allowed the trustees their costs out of the charity estate.

Leases for lives.

59. In a later case, where charity lands had for two hundred years been let for lives upon a fine or foregift at a small reserved rent, Lord Langdale said there was no principle that a lease of a charitable estate for lives was, on the face of it, a breach of trust; and as there appeared no other ground for invalidating the leases, he refused to set them aside (a).

Building leases.

60. Building leases should be for a term not exceeding sixty, or ninety, or ninety-nine years (b). If granted for a longer period, it would be thrown upon the parties to show the reasonableness of the prolonged term from the particular circumstances of the case.

Founder's intention.

61. What has been said as to the proper duration of leases is of course only applicable where the founder himself has not otherwise given directions, for in general the will of the settlor, where explicit, must be strictly followed; as if the terms of the endowment be that the charity estates shall be let only for twenty-one years, the trustees, though satisfied that leases for ninety-nine years would be more beneficial, could not make such a deviation from the directions of the trust without the sanction of the Court. It was said on one occasion, with reference to such variations from the founder's intention, that the Court itself could not give a good title to the lessee, but that it required the authority of an Act of Parliament (c). It is plain, however, that there is a wide distinction between a deviation from the founder's intention as to the objects of the charity, and a deviation from the directions as to management, which were no doubt originally meant to be governed by circumstances.

Improvements by lessees.

62. When there has been no actual fraud, and the lessee or assignee of the lease is ejected after having laid out money in the permanent improvement of the property, the Court will direct an inquiry to what extent the charity estate has been benefited, and will allow the holder of the lease the amount of the benefit found (d).

(a) Attorney-General v. Crook, 1 Keen, 121, see 126.

(b) See Attorney-General v. Owen, 10 Ves. 560; Attorney-General v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 291; Attorney-General v. Foord, 6 Beav. 290; [Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. 54, 60].

(c) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Rochester, 2 Sim. 34.

(d) Attorney-General v. Day, V. C. Knight Bruce, March 9, 1847; and see Attorney-General v. Green, 6 Ves. 452; Attorney-General v. Kerr, 1 Beav. 420; Swan v. Swan, 8 Price, 518; Attorney-General v. Balliol College, 9 Mod. 411; Savage v. Taylor, Forr. 234; Shine v. Gough, 1 B. & B. 444.

Late Acts.

63. By the Charitable Trusts Acts the Charity Commissioners are empowered to authorise the grant by charity trustees of building, repairing, improving, mining or other leases (a), and the trustees are restricted from granting [otherwise than with the express authority of Parliament, or of a Court or judge of competent jurisdiction, or according to a scheme legally established, or with the approval of the Commissioners] "any lease in reversion after more than three years of any existing term, or for any term of life, or in consideration wholly or in part of any fine, or for any term of years exceeding twenty-one years" (b). [A lease for more than twenty-one years made without the required consent does not enure for any purpose, but is absolutely void (c).

[Agricultural Holdings Act.]

64. The powers conferred by the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883, on a landlord in respect of charging the land are not to be exercised by trustees for ecclesiastical or charitable purposes, except with the previous approval in writing of the Charity Commissioners (d).]

Power of majority to pass legal estate.

65. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 110), sect 12, it is enacted that "where the trustees or persons acting in the administration of any charity have power to determine on any sale, exchange, partition, mortgage, lease, or other disposition of any property of the charity, a majority of those trustees or persons who are present at a meeting of their body duly constituted, and vote on the question, shall have and be deemed to have always had full power to execute and do all such assurances, acts, and things as may be requisite for carrying any such sale, exchange, partition, mortgage, lease, or disposition into effect; and all such assurances, acts, and things shall have the same effect as if they were respectively executed and done by all such trustees or persons for the time being, and by the official trustee of charity lands" (e). The majority, therefore, in those cases of charity can bind the estate, not only in equity, but at law also, and that, whether the

(a) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, ss. 21, 26; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 39.

(b) 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 29. [A deed founding a charity, and duly enrolled under 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, is not a "scheme legally established" within the enactment: Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 596; nor is a royal charter incorporating a charity, though containing provisions for management, and a power to sell the charity lands: Attorney-General v. National Hospital for Paralysed and Epileptic, (1904) 2 Ch. 252; and see Re Mason's Orphanage, (1896) 1 Ch. 54, 59.]

[(c) Bishop of Bangor v. Parry, (1891) 2 Q. B. 277.]

[(d) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61, s. 40.]

(e) And see the nearly similar enactment of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 136), s. 16, and ante, p. 635.

legal estate be vested in the trustees or other the persons aforesaid, or in the official trustee of charity lands.

Charities may be incorporated.

66. By the Charitable Trustees Incorporation Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 24), it is enacted by sect. 1, that from the date of the Act the trustees or trustee for the time being of any charity, may apply to the Charity Commissioners for a certificate of registration, and the Commissioners may grant such certificate subject to such conditions and directions as they may think fit as to the qualifications and number of the trustees, their tenure, or avoidance of office, and the mode of appointing new trustees, and the custody and use of the common seal, and thereupon the trustees shall become a body corporate, by the name described in the certificate, and may sue and be sued in their corporate name, and hold, acquire, convey, assign, and demise any present or future property of the charity as the trustees might have done before the incorporation. But the Act is not to extend, modify, or control the Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. II. c. 36).

By sect. 2, the certificate of incorporation is to vest in the body corporate all the real and personal estate belonging to the charity, or held in trust for it; and persons in whose names any stocks, funds, or securities are standing in trust for the charity, are to transfer the same into the name of the body corporate; but if such property be copyhold, liable to the payment of a fine or heriot on the death or alienation of the tenant, the lord of the manor shall receive a corresponding fine or heriot on the granting of the certificate, and a like fine or heriot at the expiration of every subsequent period of forty years. But the certificate is not to vest in the body corporate any stocks, funds, or securities held by the official trustees of charitable funds, which are not to be transferable except under an order of the Commissioners, and by ordinary transfer or assignment.

By the 4th section, the Commissioners are to see that proper trustees have been appointed before they grant the certificate, and after the grant the trusteeship is to be duly kept up, and a return of the names of the trustees is to be made at the expiration of every five years.

By the 5th section, the trustees of the charity, notwithstanding their incorporation, shall continue chargeable for such property as shall come to their hands, and be answerable for their own acts, receipts, neglects, and defaults, and for the due administration of the charity.

By the 10th section, donations and dispositions in favour of the charity by deed, will, or otherwise, shall take effect as if the same had been made to the charity by its corporate name.

By the 11th section, contracts by the trustees of a charity which would have been valid and binding if no incorporation had taken place, shall be valid and binding though not made under the seal of the body corporate.

Exempted charities.

67. It should be noticed that the Universities and the Colleges thereof, and various other bodies of a charitable description, and charitable institutions wholly maintained by voluntary contributions (a) (which expression is used in contradistinction to the term endowments (b)), are excepted from the operation of the Charitable Trusts Acts (c).

Roman Catholic Charities Acts.

68. Charities the funds of which are applicable exclusively for the benefit of Roman Catholics were originally exempted

[(a) A charity is not "wholly maintained by voluntary contributions" if it has freehold premises used for the purposes of the charity and not producing income: Attorney-General v. Mathieson, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 383, but it is immaterial that the contributions are augmented by payments on behalf of scholars, and grants from the Board of Education, or from school boards out of local rates: Re Society for Training Teachers of the Deaf and Whittle's Contract, (1907) 2 Ch. 486.]

[(b) The word "endowment" was interpreted by Lord Romilly in the case of The Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy v. Sutton, 27 Beav. 651, as meaning property devoted to a specific and particular trust as distinguished from the general purposes of the charity, and this view was followed in subsequent cases; see Re Royal Society of London and Thompson, 17 Ch. D. 407; Re Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy and Skinner, (1893) 1 Ch. 178; Re St John Street Chapel, (1893) 2 Ch. 618; but in a recent case in the Court of Appeal this test of the meaning of the word was disapproved, see In re Clergy Orphan Corporation, (1894) 3 Ch. 145; and it was held that the effect of the section is to exempt from the jurisdiction of the Commissioners property which is given on such terms that the capital, and not merely the income, may be applied for the maintenance of the charity, and that the exemption is not taken away by reason of the investment of such money in the purchase of land; and see Re Church Army, W. N. (1906) 73 (C.A.); Re Wesleyan Methodist Chapel in South Street, Wandsworth, (1909) 1 Ch. 454. An endowment for the minor canons of a cathedral church, which is not part of the capitular estates, or under the control of or held in trust for the dean and chapter, is not an endowment of the cathedral church, so as to be exempt from the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners, even though the income indirectly relieves the capitular revenue pro tanto from payment of the minor canon's minimum statutory stipends: Re Dod's Charity, (1905) 1 Ch. 442; and property purchased with money applicable to the general purposes of a society is not an "endowment": Re Society for Training Teachers of the Deaf and Whittle's Contract, (1907) 2 Ch. 486. For the case of a charity which was not within the exemption, see Re Gilchrist's Educational Trust, (1895) 1 Ch. 367.]

(c) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 62; 18 & 19 Vict. c. 124, s. 47; [The proviso at the end of s. 62 of 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, that the exemption "shall not extend to any cathedral, collegiate, chapter, or other schools," does not exclude all schools from the exemptions in the section, but only cathedral, collegiate, chapter, and other schools of a similar kind: Re Stockport Ragged, Industrial, and Reformatory Schools, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 687].

for a period of two years, which was afterwards repeatedly extended, and by the latest of these Acts was extended to 1st July, 1860 (a). Roman Catholic charities have therefore now fallen within the operation of the Charitable Trusts Acts.

(a) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 76; 20 & 21 Vict. c. 76; 21 & 22 Vict. c. 51; 22 & 23 Vict. c. 50; see 23 & 24 Vict. c. 134.

CHAPTER XXII

OF TRUSTEES UNDER THE SETTLED LAND ACTS

[UNDER the Settled Land Act, 1882 (a), fundamental changes have been introduced in dealing with and disposing of settled estates, the powers which under the old law were usually given to the trustees of the settlement, and in some cases much more extensive powers, having been conferred on tenants for life and other limited owners. With a view to the protection of the remainderman, a class of trustees has been called into existence whose duties arise under the Act; but these duties are, with a few exceptions, to which attention will be drawn, principally of a ministerial nature, and do not involve the exercise of discretion. In the present chapter it is proposed to treat of the position and duties of these trustees; but incidentally to this it will be necessary to refer to the principal provisions of the Act, and the important changes which have been introduced by it.

[Definition of settlement.]

1. The term "settlement" is defined by sect. 2 of the Act, which provides by sub-sect. 1, that "any deed, will, agreement for a settlement, or other agreement, covenant to surrender, copy of court roll, Act of Parliament, or other instrument, or any number of instruments, whether made or passed before or after, or partly before and partly after, the commencement of this Act, under or by virtue of which instrument or instruments any land or any estate or interest in land, stands for the time being limited to or in trust for any persons by way of succession, creates or is for the purposes of this Act a settlement." It is further provided by sub-sect. 2 that an estate or interest in remainder or reversion not disposed of by a settlement, and reverting to the settlor, or descending to the testator's heir, is for the purposes of the Act

(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38; amended by the Settled Land Acts, 1884, 1887, 1889, and 1890 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 18; 50 & 51 Vict. c. 30; 52 & 53 Vict. c. 36; 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69), all which Acts together may (see sec. 2 of the Act of 1890) be cited as the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890.

an estate or interest coming to the settlor or heir under or by virtue of the settlement, and comprised in the subject of the settlement (a), and by sub-sect. 4 that "the determination of the question whether land is settled land for the purposes" of the Act, "or not, is governed by the state of facts, and the limitations of the settlement, at the time of the settlement taking effect."

It is a matter of the first importance to ascertain precisely what instruments constitute "the settlement," as upon the determination of this question depends the power of the tenant for life to make a title, and the power of the trustees to give a valid receipt.

In order to constitute a settlement within the definition, the land or interest in land which forms the subject matter must "stand for the time being limited to, or in trust for persons by way of succession." Accordingly, where land was limited to a married woman in fee for her separate use, with a restraint on anticipation, it was held that as, according to the principle of Taylor v. Meads (b), there was only one estate vested in the feme, and no limitations thereof in existence by virtue of any settlement (for the possible curtesy of the husband would arise by the general law), there was no settlement within the definition (c); and where the limitations were upon trust for a feme covert for life, without power of anticipation, with remainder to such uses as she should by will appoint, and in default of appointment to the use of herself in fee, it was held that as, for the time being, the limitations were in favour of one person only, there was no settlement within the definition (d). An award under an Inclosure Act in respect of glebe land to a vicar "and his successors" was held not to be a settlement within the definition (e); and so where land was vested in a bishop in right of his see, and from time immemorial granted by him to a dignitary of his cathedral church for life so long as he should continue in his dignity; and the Court further intimated that the Act did not apply to ecclesiastical land (f); but where by a will property was directed to be set

(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 2, sub-s. 2; see Re Atherton, W. N. (1891), p. 85, post, p. 657, note (d); and see Re Hunter and Hewlett's Contract, (1907) 1 Ch. 46, where under a settlement the trustees took only limited estates, and it was held that the reversion in fee left in the settlor was comprised in the "subject of the settlement," so that a person having the powers of a tenant for life under the Act could make a good title to the fee simple.

(b) 4 De G. J. & S. 597.

(c) Bates v. Kesterton, (1896) 1 Ch. 159.

(d) Re Pocock and Prankerd's Contract, (1896) 1 Ch. 302; as to this case, see further post, p. 659.

(e) Ex parte Vicar of Castle Bytham, (1895) 1 Ch. 348.

(f) Re Bishop of Bath and Wells, (1899) 2 Ch. 138, per North, J.

apart to answer an annuity thereby given and subject thereto was specifically given, it was held that the property, for the purposes of estate duty, stood "limited to or in trust for persons in succcession" (a). A jointure and portions for younger children limited to arise on or after the death of a tenant for life, and the terms of years limited to trustees to secure them, are respectively limitations by way of succession within the above definition (b).

[Compound settlement.]

Again, it will be seen that a single "settlement" may, according to the definition, be created by several instruments, and it has been held that a settlement of land and a subsequent will devising other land to the uses of the settlement, and bequeathing money to be invested in the purchase of land to be settled to the same uses, constitute together one settlement (c). And where four estates were settled on the same tenant for life, with remainders to three different sets of uses, one estate being subjected to a long term of years for payment off of incumbrances on all four estates, and, subject to the term, being divided into moieties, which were respectively subjected to the same uses as two of the other estates, it was held that one of the last two estates, together with one of the moieties, constituted one settled estate, notwithstanding the interposition of the term (d). So where land was settled by will, and then, by deed, money was settled in trust to purchase land to be settled on limitations identical with, but not by reference to, those of the will (except for the interposition of two terms of years, which, however, had become satisfied), it was held that the will and deed constituted one "compound" settlement (e); and where an estate was settled by one instrument, and afterwards, by a separate instrument, another estate, which was subject to a mortgage, was settled on like trusts, the two settlements were held together to form one compound settlement (f). Where a testator by his will left valuable pictures to

(a) Attorney-General v. Owen, (1899) 2 Q. B. 253; and see Re Campbell, (1902) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 113.

(b) Re Mundy and Roper, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 275; but see ibid. per Vaughan Williams, L. J.

(c) Re Mundy's Settled Estates, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 399. The fact that the settlement comprises estates both in England and Ireland does not prevent its being treated as a single settlement: Re Eyre Coote, W. N. (1899) p. 222, where capital moneys arising in Ireland were applied in improvements in England.

(d) Re Lord Stamford's Settled Estates, 43 Ch. D. 84.

(e) Re Byng's Settled Estates, (1892) 2 Ch. 219.

(f) Re Lord Monson's Settled Estates, (1898) 1 Ch. 427; and see Re Phillimore's Estate, (1904) 2 Ch. 460, where two deeds charging annuities on lands, and the will of the grantor settling the lands, were together held to constitute a compound settlement; and Re Marshall's Settlement, (1905) 2 Ch. 325, where notwithstanding the merger of the life estate in the fee simple, subject to jointure and portions term, the instrument was held to be a settlement within sec. 2, sub-sec. 1.

trustees to be held as heirlooms for the successive owners of an estate settled by deed, but not to vest absolutely in any tenant in tail male by purchase who should not attain the age of twenty-one years, the deed and the will, notwithstanding the difference in the limitations, were held to constitute one compound settlement (a), and this was followed in a case where there was first a settlement by will, and then a settlement by deed to the uses of the will, of land, most desirable for acquisition, purchased by the settlor for £7800, but subject to a mortgage by him for £7000 (b).

[Act of Parliament.]

It will be observed that amongst the instruments which may together constitute a settlement, an "Act of Parliament" is included. This expression is not confined to private Acts of Parliament, but includes general Acts; and where under a will a direction for accumulation was void under the Accumulations Act, 1800 (c), and the accumulations passed under that Act to the next of kin, it was held, having regard to the fact that the Act provided for the destination of accumulations, that the will and the Act together constituted a settlement (d). But a private Act which merely confers powers of management upon trustees of a will, but does not incorporate the will, nor create any limitations to or in trust for any persons by way of succession, is not part of the settlement (e).

[State of facts and limitations at time of settlement taking effect to be considered.]

The provision of sub-sect. 4, requiring that the determination of the question whether land is settled land, is to be governed by the state of facts and the limitations of "the settlement" (whatever the settlement may be) at the time of the settlement taking effect, is of very great importance (f). The effect of the provision may be shown by an illustration. Land is settled on A. for life, remainder to B. for life, remainders over; A. is dead, and B. as tenant for life desires to sell. But for sub-sect. 4, it might be thought that A. being dead, his life estate might be disregarded, and that B. was tenant for life, under a single instrument which constituted the settlement. If so, jointures and other charges created by previous instruments would necessarily be paramount to the settlement. But sub-sect. 4 requires that regard should be had to the state of the limitations at the time when the

(a) Re Lord Stafford's Settlement and Will, (1904) 2 Ch. 72.

(b) Re Coull's Settled Estates, (1905) 1 Ch. 712.

(c) 39 & 40 Geo. 3. c. 98, commonly known as the Thellusson Act, see ante, pp. 96, 100, 101.

(d) Vine v. Raleigh, (1896) 1 Ch. 37; and see Ex parte Vicar of Castle Bytham, (1895) 1 Ch. 348; Re Meade's Settled Estates, (1897) 1 I. R. 121.

(e) Talbot v. Scarisbrick, (1908) 1 Ch. 812.

(f) As to the origin of this provision, see judgment of Stirling, J., in Re Marquis of Ailesbury and Lord Iveagh, (1893) 2 Ch. 345, 354.

instrument under consideration took effect. The life estate of A., therefore, cannot be disregarded, and on investigation it is found that that life estate was in fact limited by way of resettlement in continuation of his life estate under a previous instrument. That instrument, therefore, forms part of "the settlement," and jointures or other charges created under it may, under sect. 20 (a), be subject to the disposition of B. as tenant for life. In this way, it may be found that a series of instruments constitute "the settlement," and this was what, in fact, occurred in a recent case, where, upon grounds similar to those above indicated, it was held that a series of instruments beginning with a settlement in 1826, and ending with a settlement in 1885, together constituted the "compound" settlement, and that, on the trustees of the settlement of 1885 being appointed trustees of the compound settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, it was competent for the tenant for life to sell and convey free from jointure rent-charges created under powers contained in previous instruments, and for the trustees to give a receipt accordingly (b).

[Effect of resettlement.]

Where a father and son, in exercise of a general power of appointment conferred by a disentailing assurance previously executed by them, appointed lands to the use of the father for life, with remainders over, but the life estate of the father was not expressed to be in restoration or continuation of his former life estate under a previous settlement, and under that settlement the lands were charged with a jointure and portions, it was held that, notwithstanding the absence of any clause of restoration or continuation, the several instruments constituted one settlement within the Act, under which the tenant for life, upon trustees of the compound settlement being appointed, could sell and make a good title discharged from the jointure and portions (c).

In the same case it was intimated that there may be at the same time a more comprehensive settlement of land consisting of several deeds, and a less comprehensive settlement thereof constituted by one of the deeds only (d).

Accordingly where settled lands were resettled in such a way that the estate of the tenant for life was extinguished, but the original settlement, created by a will, was still subsisting in respect of a jointure and portions charged on the lands, it was held that the tenant for life could sell under the will alone, the fact that he

(a) See post, p. 663.
(b) Re Marquis of Ailesbury and Lord Iveagh, (1893) 2 Ch. 345, 354.
(c) Re Mundy and Roper, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 275.
(d) Re Mundy and Roper, sup., approving Re Du Cane and Nettlefold, (1898) 2 Ch. 96, on this point.

had parted with his life estate not preventing him from exercising his statutory powers, and that it was not necessary to appoint trustees of the compound settlement (a). But where the old life estate created by a will was restored by a resettlement, it was held that the tenant for life could not make a good title under the resettlement alone (b). [Restoration of former estate.]

Where there is an original settlement complete in itself, and derivative settlements have afterwards been made by persons who take interests which have not yet fallen into possession under the original settlement, the original settlement alone is the settlement for the purposes of the Act (c); but by the Settled Land Act, 1890 (d), it is specially provided that "every instrument whereby a tenant for life, in consideration of marriage, or as part or by way of any family arrangement, not being a security for payment of money advanced, makes an assignment of or creates a charge upon his estate or interest under the settlement, is to be deemed one of the instruments creating the settlement, and not an instrument vesting in any person any right as assignee for value" within the meaning or operation of sect. 50 of the Act of 1882 (e); and the enactment is to apply and have effect with respect to every disposition before as well as after the passing of the Act, unless inconsistent with the nature or terms of the disposition. Where the tenant for life under a will, which contained a power to her to charge the settled land, having married three times, on the occasion of each marriage executed deeds exercising the power, and also charging her own life estate, North, J., following a decision of the M. R. in Ireland (f), treated the deeds as constituting part of the settlement, and, on the application of the tenant for life, made an order appointing trustees of a compound settlement consisting of the will, the three deeds, and a subsequent resettlement (g). But in a more recent case, where there was a settlement by will, empowering successive tenants for life to create jointures, which powers had been exercised, but so that, in the events which had happened, there was no separate charge on the life estates, it was held by [Derivative settlement.] [Settled Land Act, 1890.]

(a) Re Wimborne (Lord) and Browne's Contract, (1904) 1 Ch. 537.

(b) Re Cornwallis West and Munro, (1903) 2 Ch. 150 (as explained in Re Wimborne, &c., sup., at p. 542). Reliance appears to have been placed on the statement of Chitty, L.J., in Re Mundy and Roper, sup., that the well-known object of this restoration (see Davidson, 3rd. ed. vol. iii. p. 594 et seq.) was to "keep alive the old powers annexed to the life estate."

(c) Re Knowles' Settled Estates, 27 Ch. D. 707.

(d) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69, s. 4.

(e) See post, p. 664.

(f) Re Meade's Settled Estates, (1897) 1 I. R. 121.

(g) Re Tibbit's Settled Estates, (1897) 2 Ch. 149.

Stirling, J., that no appointment of trustees of any compound settlement was necessary, and that the existing tenant for life of the will could make a good title to a purchaser, and the trustees of the will could give a discharge for the purchase-money (a); and it has recently been held by the same learned judge, that sect. 4 of the Act of 1890 is limited to the purpose of excluding the operation of sect. 50 of the Act of 1882, that it is only for that purpose that the assignments therein referred are to "be deemed to be" part of the settlement, and that, therefore, upon a sale by a tenant for life who has made such an assignment, it is not necessary to appoint trustees of the settlement constituted by the original settlement and the instrument of assignment (b).

[Trustees of the settlement.]

2. The trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act may either be nominated by the settlement itself, or appointed by the Court; and sect. 2 of the Act of 1882 (c) provides that "the persons, if any, who are for the time being, under a settlement, trustees with power of sale of settled land, or with power of consent to or approval of the exercise of such a power of sale, or if under a settlement there are no such trustees, then the persons, if any, for the time being, who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for the purposes of this Act, are for the purposes of this Act trustees of the settlement." According to this definition, in the case of settlements created before the Act, trustees with a power of sale, or a power of consenting to or approving of a sale, if there are any such trustees, and they only, are "trustees of the settlement" within the meaning of the Act. But trustees to whom personal estate was bequeathed upon trust to convert it and invest the proceeds in the purchase of real estate to be settled strictly, were held not to be trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Act (d); and trustees for a term of years created out of settled lands, with power to raise money by mortgage for specified purposes are not trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Act (e); but where limited owners have joint absolute dominion over estates in strict settlement (e.g., a tenant for life and a tenant in tail in immediate remainder free from charges), they can resettle as they

(a) Re Keck and Hart, (1898) 1 Ch. 617. In this case, Stirling, J., treated the two previous cases as simply deciding that there was jurisdiction to appoint trustees of the so-called compound settlement, and not that a good title could not be made in the absence of such an appointment; and see Re Hayes Settled Estates, (1907) 1 I. R. 88; sed cf. Re Domville & Callwells Contract, (1908) 1 I. R. 475.

(b) Re Du Cane and Nettlefold, (1898) 2 Ch. 96.

(c) Sub-sect. 8.

(d) Burke v. Gore, 13 L. R. Ir. 367.

(e) Re Carne's Settled Estates, (1899) 1 Ch. 324.

please, and if they choose can keep the settlement alive, and appoint Settled Land Act trustees of a compound settlement constituted by the settlement and a resettlement (a). A declaration in a deed of resettlement that the trustees of the deed shall be trustees of the compound settlement is insufficient, if some of the beneficiaries interested under the settlement contained in previous instruments are not parties to the deed nor bound thereby (b).

Trustees with a power of sale exercisable with the consent of the tenant for life are within the Act (c); but the power must be general, and not limited, that is, it must be a power exercisable at any time and for any purpose, and not merely in a contingency or for a particular purpose (d).

[Implied power.] Where personal estate is settled so that the trustees have authority to vary the investments, and after-acquired real estate is settled by reference upon the same trusts, the trustees, having an implied power of sale, fall within the definition of trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Acts (e); and executors or trustees who, under a charge of debts, have an over-riding power to sell settled land, seem to be trustees for the purposes of the Acts.

[Executors with charge of debts.]

[As to heirlooms.] Trustees with a power of sale of the settled real estate are trustees of the settlement for all the purposes of the Act, including the sale of heirlooms, although the power of sale in the settlement does not extend to heirlooms (f).

In instruments since the Act it is usual and proper to appoint trustees of the settlement expressly for the purposes of the Act.

[Settled Land Act, 1890.] By the Settled Land Act, 1890 (g), where there are for the time being no trustees of the settlement within the meaning of and for the purposes of the Act of 1882, then the following persons

(a) Re Spearman's Settled Estates, (1906) 2 Ch. 502.

(b) Re Spencer's Settled Estates, (1903) 1 Ch. 75.

(c) Constable v. Constable, 32 Ch. D. 233. In a case in Ireland it has been held that trustees with a power of sale exercisable with the consent of a person whose consent cannot be obtained, are not within the Act, but the soundness of this decision may fairly be questioned: Re Johnstone's Settlement, 17 L. R. Ir. 172.

(d) Re Coull's Settled Estates, (1905) 1 Ch. 712.

(e) Re Garnett Orme and Hargreaves' Contract, 25 Ch. D. 595.

(f) Constable v. Constable, 32 Ch. D. 233.

(g) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69, s. 16. Before this Act trustees with a future power of sale were held not to be trustees for the purposes of the Act; see Wheelwright v. Walker, 23 Ch. D. 752, 761; Re Bryant and Barningham, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 218. In a case of Re Cox and Yeadon, noted 91 L. T. p. 241, it was held by Chitty, J., in chambers, that a tenant for life, who was also one of the trustees, with a power of sale not taking effect until the death of such tenant for life, could make a good title under s. 16 of the Act of 1890.

shall, for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, be trustees of the settlement; namely, (1) The persons (if any) who are for the time being under the settlement trustees, with power of or upon trust for sale, of any other land comprised in the settlement, and subject to the same limitations as the land to be sold, or with power of consent to or approval of the exercise of such power of sale; or, if there be no such persons, then (2) The persons (if any) who are for the time being under the settlement trustees with future power of sale, or under a future trust for sale of the land to be sold, or with power of consent to or approval of the exercise of such a future power of sale, and whether the power or trust takes effect in all events or not. This provision is applicable although the sale is not to take place until after the death of one of the persons who are appointed trustees (a).

[Trustees of land comprised in the settlement and subject to the same limitations.]

[Trustees with future power of sale.]

Where trustees of a will, having power of sale of settled land, and being also directed to invest personal estate upon land to be brought into settlement, made an investment accordingly, and subsequently sold the original settled land, the purchased lands were held to be "comprised in the settlement and subject to the same limitations" within the meaning of the section, and the trustees were trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts (b).

[Appointment by the Court.]

3. Where there are no trustees of the settlement within the statutory definition, or where in any other case it is expedient for the purposes of the Act that new trustees of a settlement should be appointed, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the tenant for life, or of any other person having, under the settlement, an estate or interest in the settled land, in possession, remainder, or otherwise, or in the case of an infant, of his testamentary or other guardian or next friend, appoint fit persons to be trustees under the settlement for the purposes of the Act (c).

[Survival of powers.]

The persons appointed by the Court, and the survivors and survivor of them, while continuing to be trustees or trustee, and, until the appointment of new trustees, the personal representatives or representative for the time being of the last surviving or continuing trustee, are for the purposes of the Act the trustees or trustee of the settlement (d).

(a) Re Jackson's Settled Estates, (1902) 1 Ch. 258; and though the power of sale might be exercised so as to create a perpetuity; Re Davies and Kent's Contract, (1910) W.N. 61.

(b) Re Moore, (1906) 1 Ch. 789.

(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 38, sub-s. 1. See Re Skerritt, W.N. (1899) p. 240, where an order appointing trustees of the settlement created by a will was held to have the effect of appointing them separate trustees of three several settlements created by the will.

(d) S. 38, sub-s. 2.

The exercise of this power is in the discretion of the Court (a), and it has been laid down in a case in Ireland, that, upon an application under this section to appoint trustees, the Court should not only require to be satisfied of the fitness of the proposed trustees, but also that the purpose for which their appointment is asked is such as to render such appointment safe and beneficial to all parties interested; and where the application was with a view to having a large fund taken out of Court and invested upon mortgage of lands in Ireland, it was refused (b). [Discretion of Court.]

By the Trustee Act, 1893 (c), sect. 47 (d), the powers and provisions contained in that Act, with reference to the appointment of new trustees, and the discharge and retirement of trustees (e), are to apply to and include trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, whether appointed by the Court or by the settlement, or under provisions contained in the settlement, and the enactment applies and is to have effect with respect to an appointment or a discharge and retirement of trustees taking place before as well as after the commencement of the Act, and is not to render invalid or prejudice any appointment or any discharge and retirement of trustees effected before the passing of the Act, otherwise than under the provisions of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881. [Application to trustees under Settled Land Acts of provisions of Trustee Act, 1893, as to appointment of trustees.]

The application to the Court should be by summons, which should be served on the trustees (if any), and also on the tenant for life, if he is not the applicant, but not on any other person unless the Judge so directs (f). [Application to Court by summons.]

As the appointment of trustees under the Settled Land Act, 1882, is required to impose a check upon the extensive powers conferred upon the tenant for life, and sect. 44 contemplates the probability of there being differences between the trustees and the tenant for life, the Court will not appoint any member of [Solicitor of tenant for life not appointed trustee.]

(a) See Williams v. Jenkins, W. N. (1894) p. 176.

(b) Burke v. Gore, 13 L. R. Ir. 367; but the Court, as a general rule and in the absence of special circumstances, will make the appointment without going into any such question. As to the power of the Irish Land Commissioners to appoint trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts in certain cases, see 48 & 49 Vict. c. 73, s. 13. As to the appointment of trustees in Ireland when trustees have already been appointed in England, see Re Maberly's Settled Estate, 19 L. R. Ir. 341.

(c) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53; Re Wilcock, 34 Ch. D. 508; and see Re Kane's Trusts, 21 L. R. Ir. 112.

(d) Replacing s. 17 of the Settled Land Act, 1890. As to the difficulty which previously arose, see Re Wilcock, 34 Ch. D. 510.

(e) As to these provisions see post, Chap. XXVI.

(f) Rules of the Supreme Court under the Settled Land Act, 1882, RR. 2, 4, and 6.

the firm of solicitors who act for the tenant for life (a), and a fortiori will not appoint the actual tenant for life, or any person who may become tenant for life (b), such as a tenant for life in remainder (c), to be a trustee of the settlement.

[Appointment of persons resident out of jurisdiction.]

Under special circumstances, where an infant resident and domiciled in a colony was entitled to a share of real estate, and it was proved that a proposed sale would be beneficial to the infant, the Court appointed as trustees persons who were resident in the colony (d).

[Infant's share in unconverted realty.]

The share of an infant under the Statute of Distribution in realty which has been improperly allowed to remain unconverted, is settled land within the meaning of the Act (e), so as to enable the Court, under sect. 38, to appoint trustees to exercise the powers of the Act; but the order appointing the trustees will be made without prejudice to any question as to the interests of the infant (f).

[Tenant for life a lunatic.]

Where a tenant for life is a lunatic, and his committee applies, under sect. 62 of the Act, for an order enabling him to exercise the powers of the Act, and no trustees are in existence, new trustees must be appointed for the purposes of the Act, and be served with notice of the application (g).

[Payment of capital money to trustees.]

4. By sect. 39, sub-sect. 1, capital money arising under the Act is not to be paid to fewer than two persons as trustees of a settlement, unless the settlement authorises the receipt of capital trust money of the settlement by one trustee. But subject thereto, by sub-sect. 2, the provisions of the Act referring to the trustees of a settlement apply to the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee of the settlement for the time being.

Where trustees have an implied power of sale over realty settled by reference to trusts of personal estate, and power is (a) Re Kemp's Settled Estates, 24 Ch. D. 485; Re J. Walker's Trusts, 48 L. T. N.S. 632; 31 W. R. 716; Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288, 299, where Stirling, J., intimated that he should be slow to make such an appointment, though he had done so in one case, viz. Re Marquis of Ailesbury and Lord Iveagh, (1893) 2 Ch. 345; and see Re Spencer's Settled Estates, (1903) 1 Ch. 75, where the fact that the solicitor of the tenant for life was already a trustee under the compound settlement, and the alleged convenience of having the same trustees for all the settlements, were not deemed sufficient reasons for departing from the ordinary rule.

(b) Re Harrop's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 717.

(c) Re Thompson's Will, 21 L. R. Ir. 109.

(d) Re Simpson, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 256.

(e) See sect. 59.

(f) Re Wells, 48 L. T. N.S. 859; 31 W. R. 764; but see Re Greenville Estate, 11 L. R. Ir. 138.

(g) Re Taylor, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 728; 31 W. R. 596; 48 L. T. N.S. 420. It is to be noted that the powers of s. 62 arise only in the case of a lunatic so found by inquisition; see Re Baggs, (1894) 2 Ch. 416 n.

given by the settlement to the trustees or trustee to act and give receipts for moneys subject to the trusts of the settlement, the case falls within the exception of sect. 39, sub-sect. 1, and a single trustee may receive the purchase-money of the real estate arising from a sale by the tenant for life (a).

[Tenant for life.]

5. We will next advert to the position of the tenant for life, and the powers given by the Act to the tenant for life, under which term are included, not only the person or persons beneficially entitled to the possession of the settled land, or the receipt of the income thereof for life (b), but also the limited owners who, under sect. 58, have the powers of a tenant for life under the Act.

[Definition of tenant for life.]

It may here be remarked that by sect. 2, sub-sect. 5, the tenant for life is defined to be "the person for the time being under a settlement beneficially entitled to possession (c) of settled land for his life" (d); and by sub-sect. 6, "if there are two or more persons so entitled as tenants in common, or as joint tenants, or for other concurrent estates or interests, they together constitute the tenant for life for the purposes of the Act" (e); and by sub-sect. 7, a person who is "tenant for life within the foregoing definition is to be deemed such, notwithstanding that, under the settlement or otherwise, the settled land, or his estate or interest therein, is incumbered or charged in any manner, or to any extent"; and, by sub-sect. 10, possession includes receipt of income.

The definition has been liberally construed, and it has been held that the right to occupy a mansion house rent free, if such right is exercised, constitutes the occupier a tenant for life within

(a) Re Garnett Orme and Hargreaves' Contract, 25 Ch. D. 595.

(b) See sect. 2, sub-sects. 5 and 10 (i).

(c) The words "entitled to possession" mean entitled "in possession," as distinguished from entitled "in reversion"; Re Atkinson, 30 Ch. D. 605; 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 577.

(d) Where there is a trust for accumulation of rents during the life of the tenant for life, who is also heir-at-law, and as such entitled to the residue of the life estate after the expiration of the period limited by the Accumulations Act, 1800, the heir-at-law is tenant for life under the Settled Land Act; Re Atherton, W.N. (1891) p. 85.

(e) This must be compared with s. 19, which provides that where the settled land comprises an undivided share, or, under the settlement the settled land has come to be held in undivided shares, the tenant for life may join or concur to any extent necessary or proper for any purpose of the Act, with any person entitled to or having power or right of disposition of or over another undivided share. A tenant for life of an undivided moiety of land can sell the moiety of which he is tenant for life without the concurrence of the owner or owners of the other undivided moiety: Cooper v. Belsey, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 639, overruling Re Collinge's Settled Estates, 36 Ch. D. 516. A jointress whose jointure is paid has merely a charge and not a concurrent estate or interest with that of the tenant for life; Re Marquis of Ailesbury and Lord Iveagh, (1893) 2 Ch. 345. As to sales by trustees in such a case, see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2. v.

the Act (a); and where trustees were directed to enter into possession of an estate, keep up the mansion house and permit the testatrix's daughter to reside therein, and extensive powers of management were given to them, and there were provisions with the object of giving a strictly Protestant and Welsh character to the estate, it was held that there being in fact and in substance a trust that the daughter should have the actual right of residence during her life, she was tenant for life within the Act (b).

[Persons having powers of tenant for life.]

6. By sect. 58, sub-sect. 1, the powers of a tenant for life are given to each of the following persons, when his estate or interest is in possession (c), namely :—

(i.) A tenant in tail, including a tenant in tail who is by Act of Parliament restrained from barring or defeating his estate tail, although the reversion is in the Crown, and so that the exercise by him of his powers shall bind the Crown, but not including such a tenant in tail where the land in respect whereof he is so restrained was purchased with money provided by Parliament in consideration of public services.

(ii.) A tenant in fee simple, with an executory limitation, gift, or disposition over, on failure of his issue, or in any other event.

(iii.) A person entitled to a base fee, although the reversion is in the Crown, and so that the exercise by him of his powers shall bind the Crown.

(iv.) A tenant for years determinable on life, not holding merely under a lease at a rent.

(v.) A tenant for the life of another, not holding merely under a lease at a rent (d).

(vi.) A tenant for his own or any other life, or for years determinable on life, whose estate is liable to cease in any event during that life, whether by expiration of the estate, or by conditional limitation, or otherwise, or to be defeated by an

(a) Re Carne's Settled Estates, (1899) 1 Ch. 324.

(b) Re Baroness Llanover's Will, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 16; (1902) 2 Ch. 679.

(c) These words refer to possession as contrasted with reversion or remainder, not to personal possession as contrasted with possession by another person; Re Morgan, 24 Ch. D. 114, 116; Re Jones, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 736, 741, 744; Re Woodhouse, (1898) 1 I. R. 69. An owner in fee simple subject to incumbrances is not within the section; Re Bective Estate, 27 L. R. Ir. 364.

(d) See Vine v. Raleigh, (1896) 1 Ch. 37, where the executors of a deceased next of kin and the surviving next of kin, who were entitled for the life of another to receive income directed to be accumulated contrary to the Accumulations Act, 1800 (39 & 40 Geo. 3. c. 98), s. 1, were held to have jointly the powers of a tenant for life. But the section only applies to beneficial owners, and therefore trustees with an estate pur autre vie cannot exercise the powers: Re Jemmett and Guest's Contract, (1907) 1 Ch. 629.

executory limitation, gift, or disposition over, or is subject to a trust for accumulation of income for payment of debts or other purpose.

(vii.) A tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct.

(viii.) A tenant by the curtesy (a).

(ix.) A person entitled (b) to the income of land under a trust or direction for payment thereof to him during his own or any other life, whether subject to expenses of management or not (c), or until sale of the land, or until forfeiture of his interest therein on bankruptcy or other event.

By sub-sect. 2, "in every such case, the provisions of this Act referring to a tenant for life, either as conferring powers on him or otherwise, and to a settlement, and to settled land, shall extend to each of the persons aforesaid, and to the instrument under which his estate or interest arises, and to the land therein comprised." This sub-section has been held to operate as an extension of the definition of settlement contained in sect. 2 to instruments not in terms included therein, so that where land was held upon trust for a married woman for life, without power of anticipation, with remainder to such uses as she should appoint, and in default of appointment, to the use of herself in fee, although the land did not stand for the time being limited to or in trust for persons by way of succession within sect. 2, nevertheless, under sect. 58, the instrument was a settlement, and the married woman had the powers of a tenant for life, under sub-sect. 1, clause (ix.) (d).

[Tenant in fee with executory gift over.]

7. Under sub-sect. 1 of sect. 58 it has been held that, where estates were devised to the use of trustees upon trust to pay the net income to the testator's wife, for the maintenance, education, and benefit of the testator's son until he should attain twenty-one, and without liability to account to the trustees or to the son for the same, and upon the son attaining twenty-one, then upon trust for him absolutely, but if he should die under twenty-one without leaving issue, then upon other trusts, the infant son had the powers of a tenant for life, as being within the meaning of clause (ii.) tenant in fee simple, with an executory limitation over in the event of his death under twenty-one without issue (e).

(a) By s. 8 of the Settled Land Act, 1884, the estate of a tenant by the curtesy is, for the purposes of the Act of 1882, to be deemed an estate arising under a settlement made by his wife. See observations of Stirling, J., in Re Pocock and Prankerd, (1896) 1 Ch. 302.

(b) As to the meaning of the word "entitled," see Re Horne's Settled Estates, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 84, 89.

(c) These words ought to receive a liberal construction; Clarke v. Thornton, 35 Ch. D. 307, at pp. 311, 312.

(d) Re Pocock and Prankerd, (1896) 1 Ch. 302.

(e) Re Morgan, 24 Ch. D. 114, and so where the executory limitation over

[Lease for years given to one for life.]

A gift of an estate, comprised in a lease for years, to a person during the remainder of the term, if he shall so long live, is not within either clause (iv.) or clause (vi.) of the sub-section, and the devisee cannot exercise the powers of a tenant for life under the Act (a).

[Tenant for life or for years determinable on life.]

Under clause (vi.) it has been held that a person to whom an estate is devised "so long as he shall reside in my present dwelling-house or upon some part of my B. estate for not less than three months in each year after he shall become entitled to the actual possession thereof," is within the clause (b); and where the devise was in trust for the testator's widow during her widowhood for the benefit and maintenance of herself and their children, the widow had the powers of a tenant for life under the clause notwithstanding that her estate was incumbered or charged with the liability to provide maintenance for such of her children as should require it (c). But the clause does not include the case where the property is vested in trustees upon trust during the life of A., to apply the income for the benefit of A. and of his wife and children, or for the benefit of any one or more of them, with a direction that, in case A. should assign his interest, or do any act whereby he would, if absolutely entitled, be deprived of the enjoyment thereof, the trust in his favour should absolutely cease, and the income should thenceforth during his life be applied by the trustees either for the benefit of A. or for such other purposes and in such manner as the trustees should in their absolute discretion think fit (d). An heiress at law, who is only entitled to surplus rents until the birth of a daughter, is not within the clause, which, it would seem, does not apply to a person merely entitled to receive surplus rents from trustees who are in possession and managing (e).

[Trust for accumulation of income.]

The expression "trust for accumulation of income" in clause (vi.) ought not to be narrowly construed, and where in a specified event, which happened, the interest of the tenant for life was suspended during the continuance of a trust for payment of the testator's debts, the clause was held to be applicable (f); and so where, during a term antecedent to the life estate, the whole of

was in default of compliance with a condition as to residence in the mansion house, and maintenance of a home there for the sister of the testatrix: Re Richardson, (1904) 2 Ch. 777.

(a) Re Hazle's Settled Estates, 26 Ch. D. 428; 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 78.

(b) Re Paget's Settled Estates, 30 Ch. D. 191.

(c) Re Pollock, (1906) 1 Ch. 146.

(d) Re Atkinson, 30 Ch. D. 605; 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 577.

(e) Re Baroness Llanover, (1907) 1 Ch. 629.

(f) Williams v. Jenkins, (1893) 1 Ch. 700; and see Re Woodhouse, (1898) 1 I. R. 69.

the rents were to be accumulated and, subject to payment of annuities, to be treated as capital moneys (a).

[Persons entitled to income of land.]

Where, subject to a term for raising certain sums, freehold estates were devised to the use of trustees during the life of A. with remainders over, and the trustees were to enter into possession, and during the life of A. manage the property and pay all expenses and outgoings, and keep down the interest on charges, and pay an annuity, and then pay the ultimate residue of the rents and profits to A., and the income was insufficient after payment of the outgoings and interest to pay the annuity, it was held that A. came within clause (ix.), and had the powers of a tenant for life (b). So where estates were limited to trustees for a term of 1300 years, and subject thereto to A. for life, with remainders over in strict settlement, and the trusts of the term were to raise portions, to pay annuities, including an annuity to A., and to apply the residue as a sinking fund to pay off mortgage debts and other charges, and the trustees were, "during the continuance of the trust," to enter into and hold possession of the rents and profits of the estate, and "not deliver the same to any person beneficially interested in any part thereof," and manage the estate as therein mentioned, and full powers of management were given to the trustees, and they were also given such other powers over the estate as were given to a tenant for life in possession by the Settled Land Act, 1882, it was held that A. was a tenant for life, or a person having the powers of a tenant for life, within the meaning of the Act, and that the trustees could not sell or enfranchise without his consent, as required by sect. 56 of the Act (c). It seems that the clause does not apply to a terminable life interest, or to any interest taken under an intestacy, though comprised in the "subject of the settlement" under sect. 2, sub-s. 2 (d).

[Annuitants.]

Where annuitants were for the time being entitled to the entire rents and profits of the residuary real estate, they were held to be persons having together the powers of a tenant for life under clause (ix.) (e).

(a) Re Martyn, 67 L. J. Ch. 733, distinguishing Re Strangways, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 423, on the ground that there the life estate was only to be created under an executory trust at the end of the term, whereas here the tenant for life took subject to the term.

(b) Re Jones, 24 Ch. D. 583; 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 736; and see Re Baroness Llanover's Will, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 16, 21, ante, p. 658.

(c) Re Clitheroe Estate, 28 Ch. D. 378; 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 135; and see Re De Hoghton, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 855, 861, 865, 869.

(d) Re Baroness Llanover, (1907) 1 Ch. 629.

(e) Re Bennet, (1903) 2 Ch. 136.

[Tenant for life whose interest is only to arise in futuro.]

But the case is different where by the settlement there is a period of time fixed during which the person claiming to be tenant for life in possession, or to exercise the powers of a tenant for life in possession, can have no right to put himself in possession of the estate, or to claim any part of the rents and profits of the estate, however large they may be. Where, therefore, residuary real estate was devised to trustees upon trust during twenty years to manage and improve the estate, and to accumulate or invest unapplied rents, and after the determination of the term to convey to uses under which the testator's son would become tenant for life, it was held that the son during the term could not exercise the powers of a tenant for life (a); and where by a settlement a term of ninety-nine years was limited to trustees upon trust to permit premises to be personally occupied by one for life, so long as she continued a widow and was desirous of personally occupying, and she never occupied, or desired to do so, but concurred in granting a lease of the premises for five years, it was held that, during the term, she was not tenant for life in possession for the purposes of the Act, though she might have the powers of a tenant for life in the event of her exercising her right of personal occupation upon the determination of the lease (b).

[Trust for sale of life estate.]

Where the limitation was during the life of A. upon trust to sell the life estate and pay the proceeds after certain deductions to A. and B. as tenants in common, it was held that A. and B. could together exercise the powers of the Act (c).

[Infant absolutely entitled to be deemed tenant for life.]

It may here be observed that by sect. 59 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, "where a person who is in his own right seised of or entitled in possession to land, is an infant, then for the purposes of this Act the land is settled land, and the infant shall be deemed tenant for life thereof."

[Dealings between tenant for life and the estate.]

8. By the Settled Land Act, 1890 (d), it is provided that where a sale of settled land is to be made to the tenant for life, or a purchase is to be made from him of land to be made subject to the limitations of the settlement, or an exchange is to be made with him of settled land for other land, or a partition is to be made with him of land an undivided share whereof is subject to the limitations of the settlement, the trustees of the settlement

(a) Re Strangways, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 423; and see Williams v. Jenkins, (1893) 1 Ch. 700, 705; Re De Hoghton, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 855, 866, 869.

(b) Re Edward's Settlement, (1897) 2 Ch. 412.

(c) Re Hale and Clarke, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 550; 55 L. T. N.S. 151, nom. Re Hale and Smyth.

(d) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69, s. 12.

shall stand in the place of and represent the tenant for life, and shall, in addition to their powers as trustees, have all the powers of the tenant for life in reference to negotiating and completing the transaction.

[Powers of tenant for life.]

9. The Settled Land Act, 1882, has not only given to the tenant for life all the powers of disposition of the settled land which were previously given in well-drawn settlements to the tenant for life, or to the trustees with his consent, but has also conferred on him larger and more extended powers, and has effected a complete revolution in the manner of dealing with settled estates, and in the mutual relations of the tenant for life and trustees. Thus the Act has given to the tenant for life an absolute power at his own discretion to sell, enfranchise, and exchange the settled land, to grant building, mining, and other leases thereof, to concur in a partition, to accept surrenders of leases, to dedicate parts of the settled land for streets and open spaces, and other similar purposes, and various other powers, the details of which, and of the conditions and restrictions upon and subject to which they are exercisable, do not fall within the purview of the present work.

[Conveyance by tenant for life.]

As regards the power of the tenant for life to convey, it is provided by sect. 20 that on a sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, the tenant for life may, as regards land sold, given in exchange or on partition, leased, mortgaged, or charged, or intended so to be, including copyhold or customary or leasehold land vested in trustees, or as regards easements or other rights or privileges sold or leased, or intended so to be, convey or create the same by deed, for the estate or interest the subject of the settlement, or for any less estate or interest, to the uses and in the manner requisite for giving effect to the sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge. Such a deed, to the extent and in the manner to and in which it is expressed or intended to operate and can operate under the Act, is effectual to pass the land conveyed, or the easements, rights, or privileges created, discharged from all the limitations, powers, and provisions of the settlement, and from all estates, interests, and charges, subsisting or to arise thereunder, but subject to and with the exception of—(i.) All estates, interests, and charges having priority to the settlement; and (ii.) All such other, if any, estates, interests, and charges as have been conveyed or created for securing money actually raised at the date of the deed (a); and (iii.) All leases and grants at fee-farm rents or otherwise, and all grants of easements, rights of common, or other rights or privileges granted or made for value in money, or money's worth, or agreed so to be, before the date of the deed, by the tenant for life, or by any of his predecessors in title, or by any trustees for him or them, under the settlement, or under any statutory power, or being otherwise binding on the successors in title of the tenant for life.

(a) As to the meaning of this expression, see Conolly v. Keating, (1903) 1 I. R. 353.

Under these provisions it is competent for the tenant for life to over-ride by his conveyance all charges arising under the settlement, such as jointures or charges for portions not actually raised, but portions actually raised by mortgage of the estate will fall within the second exception (a).

[Powers of tenant for life cannot be assigned or released.]

10. These powers of the tenant for life are not capable of assignment or release, and do not pass to a person as being by operation of law or otherwise an assignee of a tenant for life, but remain exercisable by the tenant for life after and notwithstanding any assignment of his estate or interest; and a contract by the tenant for life not to exercise any of the powers is void (b). But the exercise of the powers will be without prejudice to the rights of the assignee for value of the tenant for life's estate or interest; and the assignee's rights are not to be affected without his consent, except that unless the assignee is in actual possession of the settled land or part thereof, his consent is not to be requisite for the making of leases by the tenant for life at the best rent, without fine, and in other respects in conformity with the Act (c). Where the tenant for life sells with the consent of the mortgagee of the life estate, the estate of the mortgagee passes

(a) See Re Keck and Hart's Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 617. As to the binding effect on all parties interested, of a contract for sale by the tenant for life at a price to be fixed by arbitration, and conditional on the sanction of Parliament, afterwards obtained by a private Act, see Re Earl of Wilton's Estates, (1907) 1 Ch. 50. It was held by Joyce, J., that it was not within the powers of a tenant for life to effect an exchange of easements, but the C.A. (without expressing any opinion upon the point so decided) held that the transaction in question might be carried out by means of cross sales: Re Brotherton's Estate, (1908) W. N. (C.A.) 56.

(b) Thus the statutory power of sale given to the tenant for life will continue in him after a disentailing assurance and resettlement: Re Mundy and Roper, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 275, 296; and although he has assigned a share of his life estate to a remainderman so as to effect a merger: Re Barlow's Contract, (1903) 1 Ch. 382; and see Re Marshall's Settlement, (1905) 2 Ch. 325, ante, p. 648.

(c) S. 50. In this section "assignment" includes assignment by way of mortgage, and any partial or qualified assignment, and any charge or incumbrance, and "assignee" has a corresponding meaning. But an assignment by the tenant for life in consideration of marriage, or by way of any family arrangement, is not to be deemed an instrument vesting in any person any right as assignee for value within s. 50; see s. 4 of the Act of 1890, and ante, p. 651. The Court has no jurisdiction on a vendor and purchaser summons, on a sale by the tenant for by the exercise of the statutory power, and his concurrence in the conveyance is not necessary (a).

By sect. 51, any provision in a settlement tending or intended to prohibit or prevent the tenant for life from exercising, or to induce him to abstain from exercising, or to put him into a position inconsistent with his exercising any power under the Act, is to be deemed to be void. A clause which defeats the estate of a tenant for life in case he fails to comply with a condition as to residence on the settled property is within this section (b); and so also a proviso for reduction of an annuity on failure to comply with a condition as to residence (c), or a clause depriving the tenant for life, in the event of alienation by him, of the income of a fund provided for keeping up a wall on the settled property (d); but not so a provision for the expenditure of money for improvements, and repayment thereof by the tenant for life by instalments, as such a provision, being less favourable to him than the provisions of the Act, would rather tend to induce him to avail himself of the Act (e). In order to bring a case within the section there must be in the settlement "a limitation which, but for the attempted prohibition, would constitute a tenant for life capable of exercising the powers of the Act" (f). The effect of the section is that "from the time at which a sale or disposition takes place the attempted fetter on the power of the tenant for life is removed" (g); but the prohibition is void only so far as it tends to prevent the exercise of the powers of the tenant for life and no further (h); life, to compel an alleged assignee for value to submit his rights to the determination of the Court; see Re Ailesbury Settled Estates, 62 L. J. Ch. 1012; W. N. (1893) p. 140, where the summons was dismissed on the ground that, without the consent of the assignee, the title was too doubtful to be forced on a purchaser.

[Provisions prohibiting exercise of powers are void.]

(a) Re Dickin and Kelsall's Contract, (1908) 1 Ch. 213.

(b) Re Paget's Settled Estates, 30 Ch. D. 161; Re Thompson, 21 L. R. Ir. 109; and see Re Richardson, (1904) 2 Ch. 777, where the condition was for residence during the life of the testatrix's sister (who was of unsound mind) and to provide a home for the latter, if required.

(c) Re Eastman's Settled Estate, W. N. (1898) p. 170; and see Re Fitzgerald, (1902) 1 I. R. 162.

(d) Re Ames, (1893) 2 Ch. 479.

(e) Re Sudbury Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. 74.

(f) Per Cotton, L.J., Re Atkinson, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 577, 581, in which case there was a discretionary trust to apply rents during the life of A. for him and others, and it was held that A. never became tenant for life within the Act.

(g) Per North, J., Re Haynes, 37 Ch. D. 306; see observations on this case, Wolstenholme, 8th ed. p. 383.

(h) Re Trenchard, (1902) 1 Ch. 378, so that a tenant for life, durante viduitate, on whom a condition as to residence is imposed by the will, is not entitled to hold discharged from the provision as to residence, but if she sells and therefore ceases to reside, she will be entitled, as against the income of the proceeds of sale, to the same benefits as if she had not sold; and see Re Fitzgerald, (1902) 1 I. R. 162.

and until sale or disposition the condition may be good, and the breach of it cause a forfeiture (a); and there is nothing in the section to prevent the limited owner from releasing his rights in consideration of an annual payment, or otherwise upon terms beneficial to the estate (b). The section extends to a case where the proviso tending to induce a tenant for life to abstain from exercising his powers under the Act is contained in a separate instrument made by a person other than the settlor of the land (c). By sect. 52, notwithstanding anything in a settlement, the exercise by the tenant for life of any power under the Act shall not occasion a forfeiture.

[Provision against forfeiture.]

[Powers of the Act cumulative.]

11. By sect. 56, the powers conferred by the Act are not to affect prejudicially any powers subsisting under the settlement, or by statute or otherwise, exercisable by a tenant for life, or by trustees, and the powers given by the Act are cumulative, by which is understood that the powers of the settlement and those under the Act are co-existent, and that it is optional with the tenant for life to exercise the powers conferred by the Act, or, his consent to the exercise by the trustees of their powers being rendered necessary by sub-sect. 2, to allow the powers under the settlement to be exercised (d).

[Powers of tenant for life absolute.]

12. The Act gives to the tenant for life, in his uncontrolled discretion, large and absolute powers of dealing with and disposing of the settled land, without requiring him to procure the consent of any person interested in remainder, or making him responsible to any one for the exercise of his discretion; subject only to this,

[But in exercising them he is in the position of a trustee.]

that by sect. 53 the tenant for life, in exercising any power under the Act, is to have regard to the interests of all parties entitled under the settlement, and is, in relation to the exercise thereof by him, to be deemed in the position, and to have the duties and liabilities of a trustee for those parties (e); and that under sect. 44, the trustees, if any difference arises between them and the tenant for life, may obtain the directions of the Court.

In one of the first cases decided under the Act, Pearson, J., when adverting to the absolute power conferred upon the tenant for life of deciding whether or not a sale should take place, said, "there is nothing in the Act to enable the Court to restrain

(a) Re Haynes, 37 Ch. D. 306.
(b) Re Trenchard, (1902) 1 Ch. 378.
(c) Re Smith, (1899) 1 Ch. 331.
(d) As to the effect of the restrictions in sub-s. 2 on the powers of trustees, see Chap. XXIV. s. 2, v.; and see Re Duke of Newcastle's Estates, 24 Ch. D. 129; Re Chaytor's Settled Estate Act, 25 Ch. D. 651; Re Barrs-Haden's Settled Estates, W. N. 1883, p. 188.
(e) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334, 342.

the tenant for life from selling, whether he desires to sell because he is in debt and wishes to increase his income, or whether, without being in debt, he thinks he can increase his income, or whether he desires to sell from mere unwillingness to take the trouble involved in the management of landed property; or whether he acts from worse motives, as from mere caprice or whim, or because he is desirous of doing that which he knows would be very disagreeable to those who expect to succeed him at his death. There is not, so far as I can see, any power, either in the Court or in trustees, to interfere with his power of sale" (a). But in the same case the same learned Judge, when referring to the mode in which the sale was to be conducted, said that "a tenant for life, in selling under the Act, must sell as fairly as a trustee must sell for the tenant for life, and for those in remainder"; and in another case (b), the late Lord Justice Kay, then Kay, J., said: "I think the meaning of this 53rd section is that, for the security of the remaindermen, as between the tenant for life and them, he, in the exercise of this power, shall be treated as a trustee, and shall have all the liabilities of a trustee exercising a like power," and his lordship intimated that if a purchaser knew the tenant for life was exercising the power improperly, and that what he was doing would amount to a breach of trust, the purchaser had a right to refuse to complete. And it has been said by Stirling, J., that it is the duty of the tenant for life, in exercising the discretion which is vested in him under the Act as to the application of capital money, to consider whether he is unduly prejudicing any of the parties by the proposed exercise of that discretion; but where it is a matter of doubt, in the absence of any reason for supposing that the discretion is unfairly exercised, then that discretion ought to prevail (c). It has been further observed that the regard which is to be had to the interests of the parties entitled under the settlement is not confined to pecuniary interests, but may extend to sentimental considerations (d), and in a recent case on

(a) Wheelwright v. Walker, (No. 1) 23 Ch. D. 752; and see Re Chaytor's Settled Estate Act, 25 Ch. D. 651; Thomas v. Williams, 24 Ch. D. 558.

(b) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334, 345. In Mogridge v. Clapp, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 382, 400, the same learned Judge observed that it was the duty of the tenant for life "to do everything regularly, and in strict compliance with the Act; and omitting to do so would be on his part a breach of trust"; and see Chandler v. Bradley, (1897) 1 Ch. 315.

(c) Re Lord Stamford's Settled Estates, 43 Ch. D. 84, 95; and see Re Earl of Radnor's Will, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402, 418, 419.

(d) Sutherland v. Sutherland, (1893) 3 Ch. 169, 189; Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estates, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 506, 536, 541; S. C. H. L.

the subject, in which the Court has been said to have gone the furthest in controlling the discretion of the tenant for life (a), it was said that, assuming that a tenant for life was acting bonâ fide, and with a view to preserve the estates for those intended by the settlor to enjoy them, still an honest trustee might fail to see that he was acting unjustly towards those whose interests he was bound to protect, and if he were so acting, and the Court could see it, although he could not, it was the duty of the Court to interfere (b). In reference to the investment of capital moneys under the Act, the tenant for life is in the same position as an ordinary trustee with a discretionary power of investment; and the Court will restrain him from directing an investment which is not suitable for trust funds, though within the words of the power given by the Act, under the same circumstances under which it would so restrain an ordinary trustee: and where it is within the knowledge of trustees that property upon which the tenant for life has directed them to invest, and which is within the words of the power given by the Act, is an undesirable investment, they are justified in bringing the matter before the Court by summons under the Act (c).

[Undesirable investment by tenant for life.]

The general conclusion seems to be that the effect of the Act is to make the tenant for life, in relation to the exercise of the powers of the Act, a trustee for all parties interested, and therefore subject to the same rules as any other trustee, and liable to the interference of the Court if the exercise of his discretion is affected by improper motives (d).

(1892) A. C. 356, sub nom. Bruce v. Marquis of Ailesbury; Re Hope, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 679, post, p. 690.

(a) Per Stirling, J., in Re Richardson, (1900) 2 Ch. 778.

(b) Hampden v. Earl of Buckinghamshire, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 531. So where a widow and tenant for life was proposing to grant a lease of the settled estate to her intended second husband, the granting of such lease was restrained, as not being a bonâ fide exercise of the powers of a tenant for life: Middlemas v. Stevens, (1901) 1 Ch. 574; but a lease by a tenant for life under the Settled Land Acts to his wife is good, if it is so in other respects; Gilbey v. Rush, (1906) 1 Ch. 11, in which case it was intimated that "good faith" in sect. 54 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, means nothing more than that the provisions of the Act must be complied with. Where the estate was subject to mortgages bearing interest at 4 per cent., and the purchase-money could not be properly invested so as to yield more than 3 per cent., the tenant for life was held to be justified in selling, and paying off the mortgages out of the purchase-money, instead of keeping the mortgages on foot for the benefit of the remainderman. The Court relied on the fact that the settlement contained a power of sale under which the trustees could have done what the tenant for life was proposing to do, but intimated that even in the absence of such a power the conclusion might have been the same: Re Richardson, (1900) 2 Ch. 778.

(c) Re Hunt's Settled Estates, (1906) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 11.

(d) Re Duke of Marlborough's Settlement, 30 Ch. D. 127; 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1. As to the control of the Court

Where the remainderman offered to purchase the estate for 7500*l.*, and undertook at the bar not to withdraw his offer, an injunction was granted by Kay, J., to restrain the tenant for life from selling for less than 7500*l.*, and from entering into any contract (otherwise than by public auction) for sale of the estate, or any part thereof, without first communicating the offer to the remainderman, and giving him two clear days to make an advance on the price offered (a).

On the other hand, it has been said that the section is rather to be read as imposing the responsibilities of a trustee on the tenant for life than as conferring on him the rights of a trustee (b), and he is not necessarily entitled to costs on the footing of his being a trustee (c).

[Effect of judgment in action to execute trusts.]

The fact that a judgment has been given in a pending action for the execution of the trusts of a will or settlement of realty will not prevent a tenant for life thereunder from exercising the powers of the Act, without procuring the consent of the Court. To require such consent would be to impose a fetter on the free alienation by the tenant for life inconsistent with the spirit and terms of the Act (d).

[Notice to trustees.]

13. By sect. 45, sub-sect. 1, the tenant for life, when intending to make a sale, exchange, partition, lease (e), mortgage, or charge, is to give notice of his intention to each of the trustees of the settlement, and also to the solicitor for the trustees, if any such solicitor is known to the tenant for life, by registered letter, posted not less than one month before the making by the tenant over the exercise of powers, see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2, iv.; and see Re Mansel's Settled Estates, W. N. 1884, p. 209; Re Sebright's Settled Estates, 33 Ch. D. 429. Although the tenant for life is in the position of a trustee under s. 53, yet a lunatic tenant for life is not a trustee within s. 128 of the Lunacy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 5), so as to enable the Court in lunacy to exercise the statutory powers under s. 62 of the Settled Land Act, 1882; Re Baggs, (1894) 2 Ch. 416n; but a power of appointment among children, given to a tenant for life under an ordinary marriage settlement, rests on a different footing, as it is a power vested in the lunatic "in the character of trustee" within sect. 128; Re A., (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 328.

(a) Wheelwright v. Walker, (No. 2) 48 L. T. N.S. 867; 31 W. R. 912.

(b) Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317, 325, per Stirling, J.; and see Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252, 266, per Lopes, L.J.; Chandler v. Bradley, (1897) 1 Ch. 315.

(c) Sebright v. Thornton, W. N. (1885) p. 176, where only one set of costs was allowed to the tenant for life and his mortgagees.

(d) Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 30 Ch. D. 531.

(e) Except a lease for a term not exceeding twenty-one years at the best rent that can be reasonably obtained without fine, and whereby the lessee is not exempted from punishment for waste, which lease may now, under s. 7 of the Act of 1890, be made by a tenant for life without any notice being given, and notwithstanding that there are no trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts.

for life of the sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, or of a contract for the same; and by sub-sect. 2, at the date of notice given, the number of trustees shall not be less than two, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement. Under this section it was held that a general notice of intention to sell or lease all or any part of the settled estate at any time or times, as opportunity should occur, was insufficient (a); but by sect. 5 of the Settled Land Act, 1884 (b), it is now provided, by sub-sect. 1, that the notice required by sect. 45 of the Act of 1882 of intention to make a sale, exchange, partition, or lease, may be notice of a general intention in that behalf; but by sub-sect. 2, the tenant for life is, upon request by a trustee of the settlement, to furnish to him such particulars and information as may reasonably be required by him from time to time with reference to sales, exchanges, partitions, or leases effected or in progress, or immediately intended; and the section applies, by sub-sect. 4, to a notice given before, as well as to a notice given after, the passing of the Act of 1884; provided, by sub-sect. 5, that no objection to such notice was taken before the passing of the Act.

[General notice sufficient.]

It is to be observed that the Act of 1884 does not extend to the case of notice of intention to make a mortgage or charge; and such a notice, to be valid, must specify the particular mortgage or charge contemplated at the time when the notice is given (c).

[Except as to a mortgage or charge.]

The committee of a lunatic tenant for life cannot give a legal notice under the Act, unless he has previously obtained the sanction of the Court in Lunacy thereto (d).

[Committee of lunatic.]

The giving of the notice, unless waived, is a condition precedent to the exercise of the powers (e). But under the Act of 1884 any trustee, by writing under his hand, may waive notice, either in any particular case, or generally, and may accept less than one month's notice (f). And it is conceived that the waiver of notice, or acceptance of shorter notice, if signed by all the trustees, will extend as well to the notice to be given to the trustees' solicitor under the Act of 1882, as to the notice to be given to the trustees themselves.

[Waiver of notice.]

14. Where trustees are appointed by a settlement with such powers as to make them, under sect. 2 of the Act of 1882,

[Where notice to sole trustee sufficient.]

(a) Re Ray's Settled Estates, 25 Ch. D. 464.

(b) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18.

(c) Re Ray's Settled Estates, 25 Ch. D. 464.

(d) Re Ray's Settled Estates, 25 Ch. D. 464; and see the Lunacy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 5), s. 120; Re Salt, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 117.

(e) Per Chitty, J., Re Countess of Dudley's Contract, 35 Ch. D. 338, at p. 341.

(f) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18, s. 5 (3).

trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Act, and the powers are made by the settlement exercisable by the trustees or trustee for the time being, it will be sufficient to give notice, under sect. 45, to a sole surviving or continuing trustee: and the number of trustees need not, for the purposes of the notice, be completed (a).

[Purchaser need not inquire as to notice.]

15. By sect. 45, sub-sect. 3, a person dealing in good faith with the tenant for life is not concerned to inquire respecting the giving of any notice required by that section (b). As, however, under the Act of 1882, at least a month's notice to the trustees was imperative, it was necessary for any person dealing with the tenant for life to see that there had been, for at least that period before any dealing took place, proper trustees to whom notice could have been given (c); but a notice to the trustees of an intention to sell, given less than a month before the contract but more than a month before the day fixed for completion, was held to be a sufficient compliance with the Act (d). Now, under the Act of 1884 (e), it will be sufficient if the trustees, by writing under their hands, either waive notice altogether or accept a shorter notice, and it has been held that the non-existence of trustees for the purposes of the Act is not a defect in title, but rather a defect of conveyance (f), and that it is therefore sufficient for the protection of a purchaser if, by the time he comes to complete, there are trustees in existence, and the required notice has been given.

And so, notwithstanding that there are no trustees for the purposes of the Act in existence, a lessee who, acting in good faith, takes a lease from the tenant for life, acquires a good title, and a contract by him for sale of his lease to a purchaser may be specifically enforced; though the tenant for life, who omitted to obtain the appointment of trustees, might not have been entitled to specific performance as against an unwilling lessee, and might perhaps have been liable to be restrained, at the instance

(a) Re Garnett Orme and Hargreave's Contract, 25 Ch. D. 595.

(b) And by section 54, on a sale, exchange, partition, lease, mortgage, or charge, a purchaser, lessee, mortgagee, or other person dealing in good faith with a tenant for life, shall, as against all parties entitled under the settlement, be conclusively taken to have given the best price, consideration or rent, as the case may require, that could reasonably be obtained by the tenant for life, and to have complied with all the requisitions of this Act. As to the effect of this section, see Hurrell v. Littlejohn, (1904) 1 Ch. 689.

(c) Re Bentley, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 782.

(d) Duke of Marlborough v. Sartoris, 32 Ch. D. 616.

(e) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18, s. 5.

(f) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334; Mogridge v. Clapp, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 382.

of a remainderman, from granting a lease until he had obtained such appointment (a). But where a tenant for life accepted a sum of money from the lessee as a bribe to induce him to grant the lease, and not by way of fine, the lease was held to be void as against the remaindermen (b).

[Notice by registered letter.]

If a shorter notice is accepted, it may still be sent by registered letter, as provided by the Act of 1882.

It is conceived that it is not essential to the validity of the notice that it should be sent by a registered letter, but that that is only a convenient mode authorised by the Act of serving the notice.

[Duties of trustees on receipt of notice.]

16. We come now to consider what are the duties of trustees of the settlement under the Act after they have received a notice of an intended dealing by the tenant for life, and it is somewhat remarkable that, having regard to the importance attached by the Act to the service on the trustees of notice of any intended dealing by the tenant for life with the settled land, the Act should be silent as to what the trustees on their part ought to do in the interest of the remainderman when they receive a notice. No doubt if it comes to their knowledge that the tenant for life is contemplating or attempting to commit a fraud—as, for instance, by selling or leasing the property at a gross undervalue under some secret arrangement by which he is to derive a personal benefit, or mortgaging the estate in order to free himself from a personal liability, it would be their duty to come to the Court and ask for an injunction to restrain the sale or lease (c). Or if they disapproved of the sale, and considered it improvident, it might be their duty to apply to the Court for directions under sect. 44 (d). But if the dealing is not on the face of it fraudulent or improper, there is no obligation on the trustees to inquire into or take any steps in the matter; and in any case they are, by sect. 42, expressly protected from any liability for giving any consent, or for not making, bringing, taking, or doing any such application, action, proceeding, or thing as they might make, bring, take, or do.

[Where consent of trustees necessary to exercise of powers.]

17. There are, however, some powers which the tenant for life can only put in force either with the consent of the trustees or

(a) Mogridge v. Clapp, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 382, and see Chandler v. Bradley, (1897) 1 Ch. 315.

(b) Chandler v. Bradley (1897) 1 Ch. 315.

(c) Wheelwright v. Walker, (No. 1) 23 Ch. D. 752, 762; Re Monson's Settled Estates, (1898) 1 Ch. 427, 432; and see Hampden v. Earl of Buckinghamshire, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 531.

(d) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334, 344; Re Hunt's Settled Estates, (1905) 2 Ch. 418, ante, p. 668.

under an order of the Court, and as to these the trustees, before giving their consent, must exercise their discretion on behalf of all persons interested. Thus, under sect. 10 of the Settled Land Act, 1890 (repealing, but re-enacting, with variations, sect. 15 of the Act of 1882), the principal mansion-house (if any) (a) on any settled land, and the pleasure grounds and park and lands (if any) usually occupied therewith, cannot be sold, exchanged, or leased by the tenant for life without such consent or order (b). The Court, in exercising the discretion committed to it by this section, is "bound to take into consideration not only the relative interests of the parties, but the interests of the estate itself, including in that expression the well-being of the persons from whose industrial occupation its rents and profits are derived" (c). [Sale of mansion-house.]

(a) Where there are two or more mansion-houses, the question which is the principal mansion-house is a question of fact, and (semble) there may be two principal mansion-houses on one estate; Gilbey v. Rush, (1906) 1 Ch. 11. And where there were two separate landed properties, each with a principal mansion-house, comprised in one settlement, and in process of time the character of one of the properties, which was in a residential neighbourhood, had altered, and the mansion-house had been let on lease for the purposes of a school, and pleasure-grounds laid out under a building scheme, it was held that the house had ceased to be the principal mansion-house for any settled land, and was no longer subject to the statutory restrictions: Re Wythe's Settled Estates, (1908) 1 Ch. 593.

(b) The section further provides that where a house is usually occupied as a farmhouse, or where the site of any house, and the pleasure grounds and park and lands (if any) usually occupied therewith, do not altogether exceed 25 acres in extent, the house is not to be deemed a principal mansion-house within the meaning of the section. The Court will sanction a sale, even though the testator has expressly directed that the mansion-house is to be kept up as a place of residence for the person for the time being entitled to the possession thereof under his will, and that the heirlooms shall at all times be kept in the mansion-house, if a proper case for sale is made out, but the sale will not be sanctioned without proper directions being given for the disposal of the heirlooms. They may, however, be sold under s. 37 of the Act of 1882, if the tenant for life so desires and the Court approves: Re Brown's Will, 27 Ch. D. 179. But where the tenant for life has mortgaged his life interest to its full value, the Court will not, unless the mortgagees consent, sanction a projected sale without full information as to the circumstances and advisability of the proposed sale: Re Sebright's Settled Estates, 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 429. And the leaning of the Court against a sale is as strong as, or stronger than, in the analogous case of heirlooms: Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estates, W. N. 1891, p. 167. Trustees appointed under s. 60, during the minority of a tenant for life would, it seems, have an unrestricted power to sell the mansion-house: Re Countess of Dudley, 35 Ch. D. 338, at p. 343, per Chitty, J. In the construction of the expression "pleasure ground and purchased lands (if any) usually occupied therewith," the words "usually occupied therewith" are to be referred to "lands (if any)," and not to the previous words; Pease v. Courtney, (1904) 2 Ch. 503. The word "park" is used in a popular and not in a technical sense; S. C. A lease by a tenant for life, affecting to bind succeeding tenants for life to work an engine to supply water to the lessees, is ultra vires; S. C.

(c) Bruce v. Marquis of Ailesbury, (1892) A. C. 356, 364, per Lord Watson. "In the Settled Land Act the paramount object of the Legislature was the well-being of settled land," S. C., per Lord Macnaghten, at p. 365.

The section applies to the lease of an easement over the mansion-house, park, and grounds (a).

[Timber.] Again, under sect. 35 of the Act of 1882, a tenant for life impeachable for waste in respect of timber, can, on obtaining such consent or order as above mentioned, cut and sell timber ripe and fit for cutting.

[Improvements.] So again, sect. 25 enumerates the various improvements authorised by the Act (b); but by sect. 26, sub-sect. 1, where the tenant

(a) Sutherland v. Sutherland, (1893) 3 Ch. 169.

(b) These improvements are the making or execution on, or in connection with, and for the benefit of settled land, of any of the following works, or of any works for any of the following purposes, and any operation incident to or necessary or proper in the execution of any of those works, or necessary or proper for carrying into effect any of those purposes, or for securing the full benefit of any of those works or purposes, namely:

(1) Drainage, including the straightening, widening, or deepening of drains, streams, and watercourses.

(2) Irrigation, warping.

(3) Drains, pipes, and machinery for supply and distribution of sewage as manure.

(4) Embanking or weiring from a river or lake, or from the sea, or a tidal water.

(5) Groynes, sea walls, defences against water.

(6) Inclosing, straightening of fences, re-division of fields. (Rebuilding garden walls and making new walls, so as to inclose more garden ground for a mansion-house, was held within the term "inclosing": Re Earl of Dunraven's Settled Estates, (1907) 2 Ch. 417.)

(7) Reclamation, dry warping.

(8) Farm roads, private roads, roads or streets in villages or towns.

(9) Clearing, trenching, planting.

(10) Cottages for labourers, farm-servants and artisans, employed on the settled land or not, (and any buildings available for the working classes, the building of which, in the opinion of the Court, is not injurious to the estate; see the Housing of Working Classes Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. 72), s. 11; and that this enactment applies only to the erection of new dwellings, see Re Calverley's Settled Estates, (1904) 1 Ch. 150).

(11) Farmhouses, offices, and outbuildings, and other buildings for farm purposes. (See Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252; Re Houghton Estate, 30 Ch. D. 102; Re Earl of Lisburne's Settled Estates, W. N. (1901) 91.)

(12) Saw-mills, scutch-mills, and other mills, water-wheels, engine-houses, and kilns, which will increase the value of the settled land for agricultural purposes, or as woodland or otherwise. (The concluding words would not extend to the erection of an engine-house for the electric lighting of the mansion-house: Re Lord Leconfield's Settled Estates, (1907) 2 Ch. 340.)

(13) Reservoirs, tanks, conduits, watercourses, pipes, wells, ponds, shafts, dams, weirs, sluices, and other works and machinery for supply and distribution of water for agricultural, manufacturing, or other purposes, or for domestic or other consumption. (As to the installation of a new water supply to a mansion-house being within the sub-section, see Re Earl of Dunraven's Settled Estates, (1907) 2 Ch. 417.)

(14) Tramways, railways, canals, docks.

(15) Jetties, piers, and landing-places on rivers, lakes, the sea, or tidal waters, for facilitating transport of persons and of agricultural stock and produce, and of manure and other things required for agricultural purposes, and of minerals, and of things required for mining purposes.

(16) Markets and market-places.

(17) Streets, roads, paths, squares, gardens, or other open spaces for the use, gratuitously or on payment, for life is desirous that capital money arising under the Act, shall be applied in or towards payment for an improvement authorised of the public or of individuals, or for dedication to the public, the same being necessary or proper in connection with the conversion of land into building land.

(18) Sewers, drains, watercourses, pipe-making, fencing, paving, brick-making, tile-making, and other works necessary or proper in connection with any of the objects aforesaid.

(19) Trial pits for mines, and other preliminary works necessary or proper in connection with development of mines.

(20) Reconstruction, enlargement, or improvement of any of those works.

This sub-section is not confined to works already constructed under the powers of the Act, but extends to any of the works previously mentioned in the section: Re Earl of Dunraven's Settled Estates, (1907) 2 Ch. 417; and it includes additional works for the purpose of the permanent working of mines; e.g. machinery required to guard against influx of water into a coal mine from the probable working of adjoining mines; Re Mundy's Settled Estates, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 399. Re-roofing may, according to circumstances, come under the head of repairs or permanent improvements; Re Newton's Settled Estates, W. N. 1890, p. 24, where Cotton, L.J., dissented from the opinion expressed by Kay, J., that s. 9 of the Improvement of Land Act, 1864 (27 & 28 Vict. c. 114), was more extensive than s. 25 of the Settled Land Act, 1882. Expenditure of capital money for the mere purpose of beautifying an unsightly mansion-house is not justified under the Act; see Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252, where the building of a private chapel, of new stables in lieu of old ones which were efficient though unsightly, and of a house for the estate agent, were held not to be improvements which could be paid for out of capital money. As to the jurisdiction of the Court to sanction the outlay of capital moneys on improvements of real estate in Scotland, settled by an English settlement; see Re Gurney's Marriage Settlement, (1907) 2 Ch. 496.

The Settled Land Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 69), s. 13, provides that improvements authorised by the Act of 1882 shall include (1) bridges; (2) making any additions to or alterations in buildings reasonably necessary or proper to enable the same to be let; (3) erection of buildings in substitution for buildings within an urban sanitary district taken by a local or other public authority, or for buildings taken under compulsory powers, but so that no more money be expended than the amount received for the buildings taken and the site thereof; (4) the rebuilding of the principal mansion-house on the settled land: provided that the sum to be applied under this sub-section shall not exceed one half of the annual rental of the settled land. Under this section it has been held that the "additions or alterations" must be made with a present intention to let the buildings, and not merely with the object of making them fit for letting: Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153; Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252; and the word "additions" means structural additions, and will not include an electric lighting installation for the improvement of the mansion-house; nor is (semble) an engine-house for electric lighting apparatus erected some little distance from the mansion-house an "addition" or "alteration" within the sub-s.: Re Blagrave's Settled Estates, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 560, approving Re Clarke's Settlement, (1902) 2 Ch. 327, and Re Gaskell's Settled Estates, (1894) 1 Ch. 485; nor the erection of a new building in place of an old building; Re Leveson-Gower's Settled Estate, (1905) 2 Ch. 95. The words include such things as a new roof and improved entrance (but not heating apparatus): Re Gaskell's Settled Estates, (1894) 1 Ch. 485; a new system of drains: Standing v. Gray, (1903) 1 I.R. 49; new drainage for leasehold houses, notwithstanding a direction in the will that pending a sale the rents are to be first applied in paying "all incidental expenses and outgoings": Re Thomas, (1900) 1 Ch. 319; substitution of a block floor over concrete for ordinary floor boards resting on joists in order to keep dry by the Act (a), he may submit for approval to the trustees of the settlement, or to the Court as the case may require, a scheme for the execution of the improvement showing the proposed expenditure thereon; and by sub-sect. 2, where the capital money to be expended is in the hands of trustees (b), then, after a scheme

rot out of the basement of a large house let in separate offices: Stanford v. Roberts, (1901) 1 Ch. 440; and works which the tenant for life has promised to execute for a yearly tenant, and the non-execution of which will cause the tenant to leave, are "necessary or proper to enable" the property "to be let": Re Calverley's Settled Estates, (1904) 1 Ch. 150, 154; so also structural alterations to a public-house, including the rearrangement of the bar, required by a licensing authority on granting a renewal of the licence: Re Gurney's Marriage Settlement, (1907) 2 Ch. 496. By "rebuilding" is meant not merely structural alterations and repairs, however extensive, Re De Teissier, (1893) 1 Ch. 153, but a substantial rebuilding; Re Walker's Settled Estates, (1894) 1 Ch. 189; Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252; Re Legh's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 274, (where the Court allowed the expense of rebuilding portions of the mansion-house in order to save the whole from destruction by dry rot); and the clause was held not to authorise the rebuilding of a laundry 250 yards away from the mansion-house; Re Earl of Dunraven's Settled Estates, (1907) 2 Ch. 417. In calculating the "annual rental," income derived from capital money invested is to be included; Re De Teissier, (ubi sup.); and the rent of any farm usually let, but temporarily unlet; Re Walker's Settled Estates, (1894) 1 Ch. 189; and, it would seem, the annual rental of all the land comprised in the settlement, and not merely of the estate upon which the improvement is made; Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (ubi sup.); but not any allowance for the rental of the mansion-house or any farm occupied therewith; S.C.

By the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 70), s. 74, sub-s. 1 (b), the improvements on which capital money may be expended, enumerated in s. 25 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, in addition to cottages for labourers, farm servants, and artisans, whether employed on the settled land or not, include any dwellings available for the working classes, the building of which, in the opinion of the Court, is not injurious to the estate. This last proviso applies only where new buildings are to be erected: Re Calverley's Settled Estates, (1904) 1 Ch. 150. Dwellings of a kind suitable for the working classes, but occupied at the time by persons who are not members of those classes, are not "available for the working classes" within the meaning of the enactment; S.C. The enactment is, by virtue of s. 18 of the Settled Land Act, 1890, to have effect as if the expression "working classes" included all classes of persons who earn their livelihood by wages or salaries: but only as to buildings of a rateable value not exceeding one hundred pounds per annum.

(a) Re Knatchbull's Settled Estate, 27 Ch. D. 349; affirmed 29 Ch. D. 588.

(b) As to the meaning of these words, see Re Millard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 116, where the Court declined to make a prospective order. Trustees under the Settled Land Acts may approve of a scheme for the improvement of settled land, although they have not at the time capital moneys in their hands; and if the tenant for life provides the moneys for carrying out the improvements, the trustees, on subsequently receiving capital money, may recoup him what he has actually spent, subject to the proper certificate or order of the Court being obtained: Re Duke of Norfolk's Estates, (1900) 1 Ch. 461; but if no capital money becomes available, there is no power under the Acts to charge the inheritance with the cost of executing the improvements; Standing v. Gray, (1903) 1 I. R. 49. Where the Court is not asked to approve the scheme in any way, but only to decide whether certain proposed works are improvements under the Act, the existence of capital money is im-is approved by them, the trustees may apply that money in or towards payment for the whole or part of any work or operation comprised in the improvement, on—

(A). A certificate, formerly of the land commissioners, and now of the Board of Agriculture (a), certifying that the work or operation, or some specified part thereof, has been properly executed, and what amount is properly payable by the trustees in respect thereof, which certificate is to be conclusive in favour of the trustees, as an authority and discharge for any payment made by them in pursuance thereof; or on

(B). A like certificate of a competent engineer or able practical surveyor nominated by the trustees and approved by the Board, or by the Court, which certificate shall be conclusive as aforesaid; or on

(C). An order of the Court, directing or authorising the trustees to so apply a specified portion of the capital money.

[Scheme.] It was essential that the scheme for the proposed work should be submitted by the tenant for life to the trustees before the works were commenced; and if the tenant for life, before submitting the scheme, executed the works at his own expense, the Court could not authorise repayment out of capital money (b). But where a scheme had been approved by the trustees without any express limitation as to the amount of the expenditure, any extra expenditure, over and above the estimated cost, which was incidental to and necessary for the execution of the scheme might be paid out of capital money in the hands of the trustees (c).

Now, by the Settled Land Act, 1890 (d), sect. 15, it is enacted that the Court may, in any case where it appears proper, make an order directing or authorising capital money to be applied in or towards payment for any improvement authorised by the Settled Land Acts, notwithstanding that a scheme was not, before the execution of the improvement, submitted for approval as required by the Act of 1882, to trustees of the settlement or to the Court. The words "payment for any improvement" will not include past payments of instalments of rent-charges to secure moneys borrowed for improvements (e). The Court has jurisdiction under the material; Re Calverley's Settled Estates, (1904) 1 Ch. 150. The preparation and approval of a scheme during the minority of the tenant for life rests with the trustees: Re Greys Court Estate, W.N. (1901) 60.

(a) See Board of Agriculture Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 30), s. 2 (b).

(b) Re Hotchkin's Settled Estates, 35 Ch. D. 41; and see Re Dalison's Settled Estates, (1892) 3 Ch. 522.

(c) Re Bulwer Lytton's Will, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 20; Re Earl of Egmont's Settled Estates, (1908) W.N. 176.

(d) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69.

(e) Re Dalison's Settled Estates, ubi sup. It has been held that the section is applicable to every case in which section to allow the application of capital money in reimbursing to the tenant for life money which he has actually paid for improvements executed; but in view of the difficulty of ascertaining, after the work has been done, how far the cost ought to be defrayed out of capital, this jurisdiction will be exercised with great care, and expenditure will not be allowed in respect of drainage and sanitary arrangements of the mansion-house, or other matters incidental to the ordinary occupation of the property (a).

Where the tenant for life had expended money on improvements both before and after the Act of 1882, the Court allowed the application of capital money in defraying the expenditure made subsequently to the Act of 1882, but, without deciding whether the provisions of the section would extend to the previous expenditure, declined to allow the payment of it, on the ground that it had been deliberately incurred as a payment out of income (b); and it has been held that in the exercise of its discretion the Court ought not to make a prospective order as to the application of capital moneys not yet in hand (c).

The effect of the Act of 1882 is to give to the tenant for life, with a view to the improvement of the land, a power to require the capital money to be laid out under a proper scheme for such improvement; and that, notwithstanding that there is a trust under which the trustees could apply income for such purpose, the power of the tenant for life being by sect. 56, sub-sect. 2, made paramount over that of the trustees (d); but it is otherwise if there is a paramount trust requiring trustees to provide for improvements out of the income of the settled property in the first instance (e).

[Duty of trustees.]

Where a scheme has been submitted under sect. 26, the duty of the trustees is simply to see (1) that the proposed improvement is authorised by the Act; (2) that the scheme is a proper one for carrying it out; and (3) that the tenant for life is acting bonâ fide and on skilled advice. They are not concerned with the general policy pursued, nor with the amount already spent on improvements (f).

a scheme has not been submitted, even where it was not competent to the tenant for life to submit a scheme: Re Wormald's Settled Estates, (1908) W.N. 214.

(a) Re Tucker's Settled Estates, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 468.

(b) Re Ormrod's Settled Estates, (1892) 2 Ch. 318.

(c) Re Marquis of Bristol's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. 161; and see Re Millard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 116, referred to post, p. 680.

(d) Clarke v. Thornton, 35 Ch. D. 307; and see Re Lord Stamford's Estate, 43 Ch. D. 84, 96; Re Gee, 64 L. J. Ch. 606; W. N. 1895, p. 90.

(e) Re Partington, (1902) 1 Ch. 711.

(f) Re Earl of Egmont's Settled Estates, (1906) 2 Ch. 151.

Where no scheme has been submitted under sect. 26 the power of the Court can only be exercised under sect. 15 of the Act of 1890, and under that section there is a discretion, which the Court will not exercise in favour of the tenant for life where the will contains an express provision for improvements out of income (a). [Discretion of Court.]

The power of the Court when an application is made to it under sect. 26 is not merely ministerial, and it must be satisfied by evidence that the proposed expenditure is proper in the interest of all parties (b).

18. It may here be observed that under the term "capital money arising under the Act," are comprised—(1) Money received upon any sale or enfranchisement (c), or for equality of exchange or partition; (2) Fines received on the grant of leases under any power conferred by the Act of 1882 (d); (3) The proportion of rent under mining leases to be set aside under sect. 11 of the Act of 1882; (4) Money raised on mortgage of the settled land, under sect. 18 of the Act; (5) Three-fourths of the net proceeds of the sale of timber cut under the powers of sect. 35, where the tenant for life is impeachable for waste in respect of timber; (6) Money arising from the sale of heirlooms under sect. 37 of the Act; (7) Money received under an option to purchase contained in a building lease or agreement for a building lease under the Settled Land Act, 1889 (e); and (8) Money which, under sect. 11 of the Settled Land Act, 1890 (f), the tenant for life is empowered to raise on mortgage of the settled land for the purpose of discharging an incumbrance on such land or any part thereof. [Capital money under the Act.]

By sect. 32, where under an Act incorporating or applying, wholly or in part, the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, or under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, or under any other Act, public, local, personal, or private, money is at the commencement of the Act in Court, or is afterwards paid into Court, and is liable to be laid out in the purchase of land to be made subject to a settlement, then, in addition to any mode of dealing therewith authorised by the Act under which the money is in Court, [Money arising from other sources.]

(a) Re Partington, (1902) 1 Ch. 711.

(b) Re Keck's Settlement, (1904) 2 Ch. 22; 73 L.J. Ch. 262, where it was intimated that any contract by a tenant for life under sect. 31 (1) (v.), relating to an improvement, is made at his risk if an order of Court has to be obtained.

(c) The term "enfranchisement" includes the conversion of leasehold land into freehold by the purchase of the reversion: Re Bruce, (1905) 2 Ch. 372.

(d) The Settled Land Act, 1882, omitted to provide that these fines should be capital money under the Act, but the omission has been supplied by the Settled Land Act, 1884, s. 4; and see Chandler v. Bradley, (1897) 1 Ch. 315, and ante, p. 672.

(e) 52 & 53 Vict. c. 36.

(f) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69; see post, p. 684.

that money may be invested or applied as capital money arising under the Settled Land Act. And by sect. 33, where, under a settlement (a), money is in the hands of trustees (b), and is liable to be laid out in the purchase of land (c) to be made subject to the settlement, then, in addition to such powers of dealing therewith as the trustees have independently of the Act, they may, at the option of the tenant for life (d), invest or apply the same as capital money arising under the Act.

[Application of capital money.]

19. By sect. 21, capital money arising under the Act, subject to payment of claims properly payable thereout, and to application thereof for any special authorised object for which the same was raised, is when received (e) to be invested or applied in one or more of the following modes:—

(1) In investment on Government securities, or on other securities on which the trustees of the settlement are by the settlement or by law (f) authorised to invest trust money of the settlement, or on the security of the bonds, mortgages, or debentures, or in the purchase of the debenture stock of any railway company in Great Britain or Ireland incorporated by special Act of Parliament, and having for ten years next before the date of investment paid a dividend on its ordinary stock or shares,

(a) For the definition of "settlement," see ante, p. 646.

(b) It has been held in Ireland that this section does not apply to money in Court in an administration action, which has arisen from personal estate given to trustees upon trust to convert, and to invest the proceeds in the purchase of lands to be settled; Burke v. Gore, 13 L. R. Ir. 367; but it applies where, under a will devising land to the uses of a settlement, the executors are directed to lay out money bequeathed by the will in the purchase of land to be limited to the same uses; Re Mundy's Settled Estates, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 399, and see ante, p. 360; and to money raised, under a special power in a settlement (which authorises investment in the purchase of land), as a sinking fund to defray expense of improvement; Re Sudbury Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. 74.

(c) Money held upon trust for investment in the purchase of a particular piece of land is included in this expression; Re Hill, (1896) 1 Ch. 962; as also is personal property held by trustees with power to invest in land; Re Soltau's Trusts, (1898) 2 Ch. 629; and see Re Thomas, (1900) 1 Ch. 319.

(d) Who is not subject to the control of the trustees in his selection of investments; Re Lord Coleridge's Settlement, (1895) 2 Ch. 704; and see Re Gee, 64 L. J. Ch. 606; W. N. 1895, p. 90; and post, p. 687. Although there was no tenant for life capable of exercising the option, the Court directed money arising from sale of land under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, to be applied as capital money pursuant to the section; Re Tesseyman's Settled Estate, W. N. (1897) 168.

(e) The words of the Act being "when received," the Court cannot authorise the application of capital moneys before they are received, in paying for contemplated improvements; Re Millard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 116; and see Re Marquis of Bristol's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. 161; Round v. Turner, W. N. 1889, p. 38; 60 L. T. N.S. 379.

(f) As to investments authorised by law, see ante, Chap. XIV. s. 4.

with power to vary the investment into or for any other such securities.

(2) In discharge, purchase, or redemption of incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land, or other the whole estate the subject of the settlement, or of land-tax, rent-charge in lieu of tithe, Crown-rent, chief-rent, or quit-rent, charged on or payable out of the settled land (a).

(3) In payment for any improvement authorised by the Act (b).

(4) In payment for equality of exchange or partition of settled land.

(5) In purchase of the seignory of any part of the settled land, being freehold land, or in purchase of the fee simple of any part of the settled land, being copyhold or customary land.

(6) In purchase of the reversion of freehold in fee of any part of the settled land, being leasehold land held for years, or life, or years determinable on life.

(7) In purchase of land in fee simple, or of copyhold or customary land, or of leasehold land held for sixty years or more unexpired at the time of purchase, subject or not to any exception or reservation of or in respect of mines or minerals therein, or of or in respect of rights or powers relative to the working of mines or minerals therein or in other land (c).

(8) In purchase, either in fee simple, or for a term of sixty years or more, of mines and minerals convenient to be held or worked with the settled land, or of any easement, right, or

(a) Where two estates are included in the same devise, and together constitute "the settled estate," capital money is rightly applied in redeeming an incumbrance on one of them, although in the result (e.g. by reason of contingent remainders failing as to one estate) the two estates devolve differently: Re Freme, (1894) 1 Ch. 1. Expenses incurred by a local authority in works in a new street on settled land, charged under statutory powers on the land and made payable, together with interest thereon, by instalments, constitute an incumbrance affecting settled land within the subsection, and the tenant for life is entitled to repayment out of capital moneys, of such portion of past instalments paid by him as represent capital; Re Legh's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 274. And see Re Lord Stafford's Settlement and Will, (1904) 2 Ch. 72, where the words "settled land" were held to mean the land (settled by deed), by reference to the limitations of which heirlooms were settled by a will.

(b) For the authorised improvements, see ante, p. 674, note (b).

(c) In interpreting this sub-section, the Court will not adopt the latitude of construction which, under such cases as Drake v. Trefusis, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 364, has been applied to s. 69 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845. The Settled Land Acts are to be treated as a code dealing exhaustively with the subject matter to which they relate; Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252; Re Legh's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 274. The sub-section does not authorise investment in the purchase of an equity of redemption: Re Earl Radnor's Settled Estates, W. N. (1898) 174.

privilege convenient to be held with the settled land for mining or other purposes.

(9) In payment to any person becoming absolutely entitled or empowered to give an absolute discharge (a).

(10) In payment of costs, charges, and expenses of or incidental to the exercise of any of the powers, or the execution of any of the provisions of the Act (b).

(11) In any other mode in which money produced by the exercise of a power of sale in the settlement is applicable thereunder.

[Settled Land Act, 1890.]

To these by the Act of 1890 is added the following mode :—

(12) In payment (if the Court thinks fit) to the trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts (c).

[Improvements under Agricultural Holdings Act.]

Under the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883 (d), capital money arising under the Settled Land Act, 1882, may be applied in payment of any moneys expended and costs incurred by a landlord under the Act of 1883 in the execution of any improvement mentioned in the first or second parts of the schedule thereto (e), as for an improvement authorised by the Settled Land Act; and such money may also be applied in discharge of any charge created on a holding under the Act in respect of any such improvement as aforesaid, as in discharge of an incumbrance authorised by the Settled Land Act to be discharged out of such capital money.

[Discharge of incumbrances.]

20. With reference to the discharge of incumbrances, it has been held that the words "incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land" in sub-sect. 2 of sect. 21,

(a) As to the effect of this enactment in enabling the Court to direct payment out of Court under the Lands Clauses Act, 1845, of purchase-moneys of settled lands to trustees, see Re Smith, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 386, and ante, p. 529. A tenant for life, who has power to cut and sell the timber and apply the proceeds to his own use, is not absolutely entitled to the proceeds, if he sells the timber as standing timber along with the estate; Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317; and trustees appointed under s. 38 are not persons absolutely entitled; Cookes v. Cookes, 34 Ch. D. 498.

(b) Commission charged by an estate agent for procuring a lease of settled land for a tenant for life, is within this clause; Re Maryon Wilson's Settled Estates, (1901) 1 Ch. 934; but agents' commission for obtaining a tenant for a short occupation lease granted by the tenant for life, is a charge payable out of income: Re Leveson-Gower's Settled Estate, (1905) 2 Ch. 95.

(c) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69, s. 14. An application under the section by the Settled Land Act trustees for payment out of Court to them, under sect. 21 (ix.) and sect. 33 of the Act of 1882, may be made by petition: Re Torry Hill Estate, (1909) 1 Ch. 468.

(d) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61, s. 29.

(e) The first part of the schedule relates to improvements to which the landlord's consent is required, and comprises:

(1) Erection or enlargement of buildings.

(2) Formation of silos.

(As to the Court authorising the formation of silos, see Re Broadwater Estate, 33 W. R. 738; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 1104.)

must be taken in their ordinary sense as referring to mortgages, charges for portions, and the like (a), and not as meaning incumbrances such as charges for land drainage and improvements created under the Land Improvement Act, 1864, and other similar Acts, which, although in one sense affecting the inheritance, are in numerous cases charges rather affecting the tenant for life than the remainderman (b); and therefore where, before the passing of the Settled Land Act, 1882, charges of this nature had been created, the tenant for life was not entitled to have them discharged out of capital. [Land Improvement charges.]

Now by the Settled Land Acts Amendment Act, 1887 (c), sect. 1, "where any improvement of a kind authorised by the Act of 1882 has been or may be made either before or after the passing of this Act, and a rent-charge, whether temporary or perpetual, has been or may be created in pursuance of any Act of Parliament, with the object of paying off any moneys advanced for the purpose of defraying the expenses of such improvement, any capital money expended in redeeming such rent-charge, or otherwise providing for the payment thereof, shall be deemed to be applied in payment for an improvement authorised by the Act of 1882." Under this enactment "capital money" may be applied in redeeming a terminable rent-charge by paying not only the unpaid balance of principal, but also a proper sum by way of bonus as compensation for loss of interest consequent on the redemption (d); but not in repayment [Settled Land Acts Amendment Act, 1887.]

(3) Laying down of permanent pasture.
(4) Making and planting of osier beds.
(5) Making of water meadows or works of irrigation.
(6) Making of gardens.
(7) Making or improving of roads or bridges.
(8) Making or improving of watercourses, ponds, wells, or reservoirs, or of works for the application of water power or for supply of water for agricultural or domestic purposes.
(9) Making of fences.
(10) Planting of hops.
(11) Planting of orchards or fruit bushes.
(12) Reclaiming of waste land.
(13) Warping of land.
(14) Embankment and sluices against floods.

The second part of the schedule relates to drainage, an improvement in respect of which notice to the landlord is required.

(a) E.g. a debt secured by a mortgage of a long term of years; Re Frewen, 38 Ch. D. 383; arrears of jointure secured by a term of years: Re Duke of Manchester's Settlement, (1909) W. N. 212; or an annuity charged upon tithes; Re Esdaile, W. N. 1886, p. 47; 54 L. T. N.S. 637.

(b) Re Knatchbull's Settled Estates, 27 Ch. D. 369, per Pearson, J.; affirmed 29 Ch. D. 588; and see Re Duke of Leinster's Estate, 23 L. R. Ir. 152, 161; Re Howard's Settled Estates, (1892) 2 Ch. 233; Re Dalison's Settled Estates, (1892) 3 Ch. 522.

(c) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 30.

(d) Re Lord Egmont's Settled Estates, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 395; disapproving Re Lord Sudeley's Settled Estates, 37 Ch. D. 123.

of a sum paid by the tenant for life, in order to obtain a reduction of interest, to the holders of the rent-charge as an inducement to them to transfer it (a). In the exercise of its discretion, the Court declined to allow capital money to be applied in redeeming terminable charges on glebe land of a benefice, to the detriment of the owners of the advowson (b). The section is not retrospective, so as to allow the recoupment to the tenant for life of instalments paid by him before the time when he has called upon the trustees to pay them (c), nor does the provision of sect. 15 of the Act of 1890 (d) enable this to be done (e); and the section is not applicable to a sum paid to redeem future annual instalments of tithe rent-charge payable by virtue of an order under the Irish Church Act Amendment Act, 1872, sect. 7 (f).

[Incumbrances affecting part only.]

It is not necessary that the incumbrance should affect the whole of the settled estates; it is sufficient if it affect any land the subject of the settlement (g), and where a part only of settled land is subject to a charge, capital money arising from that part can be applied for the improvement of the other part (h).

[Settled Land Act, 1890.]

By the Settled Land Act, 1890 (i), sect. 11, "where money is required (j) for the purpose of discharging an incumbrance on the settled land or part thereof, the tenant for life may raise the money so required, and also the amount properly required for payment of the costs of the transaction on mortgage of the settled land, or of any part thereof, by conveyance of the fee simple or other estate or interest the subject of the settlement, or by creation of a term of years in the settled land or any part thereof, or otherwise, and the money so raised shall be capital money for that purpose, and may be paid or applied accordingly. Incumbrance in this section does not include any annual sum payable only during life or lives, or during a term of years absolute or determinable" (k).

(a) Re Verney's Settled Estates, (1898) 1 Ch. 508.

(b) Ex parte Vicar of Castle Bytham, (1895) 1 Ch. 348.

(c) Re Howard's Settled Estates, (1892) 2 Ch. 233; Re Marquis of Bristol's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. 161.

(d) See ante, p. 677.

(e) Re Dalison's Settled Estates, (1892) 3 Ch. 522; Re Marquis of Bristol's Settled Estates, ubi sup.

(f) 35 & 36 Vict. c. 13; Re Duke of Leinster's Estate, 23 L. R. Ir. 152, 161.

(g) Re Chaytor's Settled Estate Act, 25 Ch. D. 651; In re Navan and Kingscourt Railway Co., 21 L. R. Ir. 369.

(h) Re Lord Stamford's Settled Estates, 43 Ch. D. 84.

(i) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69.

(j) The word "required" is not confined to cases where a mortgagee has given notice to call in his money, but is to be read as meaning "where money is reasonably required having regard to the circumstances of the settled land". Re Clifford, (1902) 1 Ch. 87.

(k) As to difficulties which may arise in the application of this section to the case of a compound settlement, where one portion of the settled pro-

Under this section, it is competent for a tenant for life to mortgage the whole of a settled estate in order to pay off incumbrances affecting part only, but this power ought not to be exercised in a way which will operate unjustly towards those whose interests the tenant for life is bound under sect. 53 (a) to protect; and where the effect of a proposed mortgage would have been unduly to postpone the charge of annuitants on the land, the Court, although the tenant for life was acting bonâ fide, interfered by granting an injunction to prevent him from mortgaging otherwise than subject to the rights of the annuitants (b). Where the tenant for life is required to pay the cost of paving and other works under sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875, and does so in order to keep the charge under sect. 257 of that Act alive for his benefit, he is entitled to raise the money necessary for discharging the incumbrance and the cost by mortgage of the settled land (c).

[Costs allowed to tenant for life.]

The word "incidental" in clause (10) of sect. 21 of the principal Act has received a liberal construction (d), and it has been held that a tenant for life was entitled to his extra costs of successfully defending an action brought to restrain him from exercising his powers (e), and the costs as between solicitor and client of the solicitor and surveyor of the tenant for life in preparing and carrying out schemes of improvement have been allowed (f); and where a tenant for life, acting honestly and with due diligence in the exercise of his powers, attempted to sell, but the sale was unsuccessful, his costs and expenses properly incurred were allowed, and the Court, under sects. 46, sub-sect. 6, 47, and 55, sub-sect. 3, ordered that they should be paid out of the property subject to the settlement, and raised by a charge on the settled land (g). But the costs of obtaining the consent and concurrence of the mortgagees of the life estate, though "incidental" within the meaning of the clause, ought not as a general rule to be paid out of capital money (h).

[Abortive sale.]

[Concurrence of mortgagees.]

[Commission on sale.]

Where settled property had been put up for sale by auction by the tenant for life under the Act, but withdrawn for want of a sufficient offer, and was afterwards sold by private contract on perty is brought into settlement subject to an existing incumbrance, see Re Monson's Settled Estates, (1898) 1 Ch. 427, 432.

(a) See ante, p. 666.

(b) Hampden v. Earl of Buckinghamshire, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 531.

(c) Re Smith's Settled Estates, (1901) 1 Ch. 689.

(d) Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317; Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 41 Ch. D. (C.A.) 375.

(e) Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317.

(f) Re Lord Stamford's Settled Estates, 43 Ch. D. 84.

(g) Re Smith's Settled Estates, (1891) 3 Ch. 65.

(h) Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 41 Ch. D. (C.A.) 375.

the same day, it was held that the trustees were at liberty to pay out of the purchase-moneys one commission for conducting the sale, including the conditions of sale, and also commission for deducing the title and perusing and completing the conveyance according to the scale of charges contained in Schedule 1, Part I., to the general order under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881 (a); and also the costs occasioned by the concurrence in the sale of the tenant for life's mortgagees, and a proper sum to the auctioneer for his charges (b).

Where several persons together constitute a tenant for life within the Act of 1882, there is no rule which obliges them to employ the same solicitor, and where four persons out of twenty-five in such a case employed separate solicitors to peruse conveyances on a sale under the Act, they were held to be entitled to their costs (c).

[Investment, etc., of capital money.]

21. By sect. 22, sub-sect. 1, capital money arising under the Act is to be paid either to the trustees of the settlement or into Court, at the option of the tenant for life, and is to be invested or applied by the trustees, or under the direction of the Court, as the case may be, accordingly.

Sub-sect. 2. The investment or other application by the trustees is to be made according to the direction of the tenant for life, and in default thereof, according to the direction of the trustees, but in the last-mentioned case subject to any consent required or direction given by the settlement with respect to the investment or other application by the trustees of the trust money of the settlement; and any investment is to be in the names or under the control of the trustees.

Sub-sect. 3. The investment or other application under the direction of the Court is to be made on the application of the tenant for life, or of the trustees.

Sub-sect. 4. Any investment or other application is not during the life of the tenant for life to be altered without his consent.

[Devolution.]

Sub-sect. 5. Capital money arising under the Act, and the securities arising from the investment thereof, are for all purposes of disposition, transmission, and devolution, to be considered as land, and to be held and go "to the same persons successively, in the same manner, and for and on the same estates, interests, and trusts, as the land wherefrom the money arises would, if not disposed of, have been held and have gone under the settlement" (a).

(a) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 44.
(b) Re Beck, 24 Ch. D. 608.
(c) Smith v. Lancaster, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 439.

Sub-sect. 6. The income of the securities is to be paid or applied as the income of the land, if not disposed of, would have been payable or applicable under the settlement. [Application of income.]

Sub-sect. 7. The securities may be converted into money, which is to be capital money arising under the Act.

It will be observed that the tenant for life may direct in what manner, consistently with the Act, the capital money is to be invested or applied; and so long as he exercises his power of direction in good faith, he cannot be controlled by the trustees or the Court (b), otherwise than upon an application under section 26 (c). But the trustees are not bound to invest capital moneys on a particular mortgage on the direction of the tenant for life, unless they are satisfied that the direction has been given upon a proper investigation as to title, a proper report as to the value of the proposed security, and proper advice as to the form of the mortgage; but upon being so satisfied they are bound to make the investment (d). If not so satisfied they may, as we have seen (e), be justified in bringing the matter before the Court (f). The duty of the trustees, therefore, in carrying out the direction of the tenant for life is to a great extent ministerial, and except as above indicated, or where their consent or approval is expressly required, as for an outlay on improvements, the exercise of discretion by them is not involved. But, nevertheless, in order that the tenant for life may exercise his option of directing the payment of purchase-money into Court, it is necessary that there should be trustees for the purposes of the Act in existence (g), and without the concurrence of the trustees there can be no valid discharge to a purchaser (h). [Direction of tenant for life.]

(a) The object of this sub-section is to indicate the nature of the money while it remains in the hands of the trustees uninvested; Re Freme, (1894) 1 Ch. 1, 9, per Smith, L.J., and see Re Duke of Marlborough, (1897) 1 Ch. 712, 718. In Beddington v. Baumann, (1903) A. C. (H.L.) 13, affirming S. C. (nom. Re Moses), 1902 1 Ch. (C.A.) 100, where a testator having exercised a special power of appointment by his will, afterwards granted leases under the Settled Land Acts in consideration of fines and premiums, it was held that this enactment, jointly with s. 4 of the Settled Land Act, 1884, had not the effect of making the fines and premiums pass to the appointees.

(b) Re Lord Coleridge's Settlement, (1895) 2 Ch. 704. But the trustees may select their own broker, as well as solicitor: Re Duke of Cleveland's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 350.

(c) See Re Keck's Settlement, 73 L. J. Ch. 262, ante, p. 679.

(d) Re Hotham, (1902) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 575.

(e) Ante, p. 668.

(f) Re Hunt's Settled Estates, (1906) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 11.

(g) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334, 345; and see Re Fisher and Grazebrooke's Contract, (1898) 2 Ch. 660.

(h) Re Norton and Las Casas' Contract, (1909) 2 Ch. 59.

The option is exercised by the tenant for life consenting to the payment of the purchase-money into Court, in consequence of the purchaser refusing to complete unless this is done; and money having thus come into Court, it was held that it must remain in Court, and be invested and applied under the direction of the Court pursuant to sub-sect. 3 (a); but now by the Settled Land Act, 1890 (b), sect. 14, all or any part of any capital money paid into Court may, if the Court thinks fit, be at any time paid to the trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts.

[Settled Land Act, 1890.]

[Purchase-money of land sold under Lands Clauses Act.]

22. Independently of this enactment, where settled real estate had been sold under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, and the purchase-money paid into Court, the Court would, in the exercise of its discretion, appoint trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, and order the fund in Court to be paid out to them to be held upon the trusts of the settlement (c).

[Purchases confined to England.]

23. By sect. 23, capital money arising under the Act from settled land in England is not to be applied in the purchase of land out of England, unless the settlement expressly authorises the same.

[Form of conveyance.]

24. By sect. 24, land acquired by purchase, or in exchange, or on partition, is to be made subject to the settlement, as follows: Freehold land is to be conveyed to the uses, on the trusts, and subject to the powers and provisions subsisting with respect to the settled land, or as near thereto as circumstances permit (d), but not so as to increase or multiply charges or powers of charging. Copyhold, customary, or leasehold land is to be conveyed to and vested in the trustees of the settlement on trusts, and subject to powers and provisions corresponding with the uses, trusts, powers, and provisions of the freehold land, but so that the beneficial interest in land held by lease for years shall not vest absolutely in a person who is by the settlement made by purchase tenant in tail, or in tail male, or in tail female, and who dies under twenty-one. Where there is a charge which does not affect the whole of the settled land, the land acquired by purchase, or in exchange, or on partition is not to be subject thereto, unless

(a) Cookes v. Cookes, 34 Ch. D. 498.

(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 69.

(c) Re Harrop's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 717; Re Wright's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 662; Re Duke of Rutland's Settlement, 31 W. R. 947; W. N. 1883, p. 140; Re Rathmines Drainage Act, 15 L. R. Ir. 576; Re Smith, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 386; Re Belfast Improvement Acts, (1898) 1 I. R. 1.

(d) As to the meaning of these words, see Re Duke of Marlborough, (1897) 1 Ch. 712, 717.

acquired by purchase with money arising from sale, or by exchange or partition, of land which was subject to the charge (a). This provision is not confined to charges which take priority over the settlement, but extends to charges created by the settlement itself (b); and the expression "the whole of the settled land" is to be read as including heirlooms comprised in the settlement, so that charges affecting the rest of the settled property, but not affecting the heirlooms, will not attach to land purchased with the proceeds of sale of the heirlooms (c).

[Application of money arising from limited interests.]

25. By sect. 34, where capital money arising under the Act is purchase-money paid in respect of a lease for years, or life, or for years determinable on life, or in respect of any other estate or interest in land less than a fee simple, or in respect of a reversion, the trustees of the settlement or the Court, as the case may be, may require the same to be laid out, invested, accumulated, and paid in such manner as in the judgment of the trustees or of the Court, as the case may be, will give to the parties interested in that money the like benefit therefrom, as they might lawfully have had from the lease, estate, interest, or reversion, in respect whereof the money was paid, or as near thereto as may be.

Under this section it will be the duty of the trustee to take care upon a sale by the tenant for life of a leasehold interest, or a reversion, that the proceeds of the sale are so dealt with as not to affect the relative interests of the tenant for life and remainderman (d). This section corresponds with the 74th section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and its construction will be regulated by the decisions under that Act (e). Thus, if the property is subject to a lease at a rent less than the income produced by the investment of the purchase-money, the tenant for life will be entitled, during the remainder of the term for which the property was let, to a sum equal only to the rent, and the residue of the income should be accumulated at compound interest until the end of the term, after which the tenant for life will be entitled to the whole of the income, including the income of the accumulation (f).

So, on the other hand, if the property sold was a lease for a short term, the tenant for life is entitled to receive an annuity

(a) Sect. 24, sub-s. 5.

(b) Re Lord Stamford's Settled Estates, 43 Ch. D. 84, 94.

(c) Re Duke of Marlborough, (1897) 1 Ch. 712.

(d) See Re Griffith's Will, 49 L. T. N.S. 161; and see Re Broadwood's Settlement, (1908) 1 Ch. 115, ante, p. 342.

(e) Cottrell v. Cottrell, 28 Ch. D. 628.

(f) Re Wootton's Estate, 1 L. R. Eq. 589; Re Mette's Estate, 7 L. R. Eq. 72; Re Wilkes' Estate, 16 Ch. D. 597; Cottrell v. Cottrell, 28 Ch. D. 628.

of such an amount as will exhaust the proceeds of sale in the number of years which the lease had to run (a).

[Heirlooms.] 26. By sect. 37, sub-sect. 1, where personal chattels are settled on trust so as to devolve with land until a tenant in tail by purchase is born, or attains the age of twenty-one years, or so as otherwise to vest in some person becoming entitled to an estate of freehold of inheritance in the land, a tenant for life of the land may sell the chattels or any of them; and by sub-sect. 2, the money arising by the sale is to be capital money arising under the Act, and to be paid, invested, or applied, and otherwise dealt with in like manner in all respects as by the Act directed with respect to other capital money arising under the Act, or may be invested in the purchase of other chattels of the same or any other nature, which are to be settled and held on the same trusts, and to devolve in the same manner as the chattels sold (b); but by sub-sect. 3, no sale or purchase of chattels under this section is to be made without an order of the Court. In giving its sanction to any proposed sale the Court must be satisfied that, under the circumstances of the case, such sale is reasonable and proper, having regard to the interests of all persons entitled, the interests of persons more remotely entitled being of less weight than those of persons nearer in succession; but the leaning of the Court is against a sale (c); and the fact that the tenant for life has got himself into difficulties by his extravagance will have no weight with the Court in favour of a sale (d). Where the application is for leave to sell a unique and historical heirloom, such as a famous jewel, the Court will have special regard to the intention of the settlor and the wishes of the remaindermen (e). And by force of sect. 53, the tenant for life is in the position of a trustee with a discretionary power of sale, and must have a like regard to the interests of other persons entitled as well as to his own (f). Where circumstances rendered it expedient, the Court sanctioned the removal of some of the heirlooms to another family mansion, and the sale of the rest (g). The Court has no jurisdiction to

[Sanction of Court to sale.]

(a) Askew v. Woodhead, 14 Ch. D. (C.A.) 27; and see Re Lingard, (1908) W. N. 107.

(b) In Re Waldegrave, 81 L. T. N.S. 632, under special circumstances, an order was made that the proceeds of sale of heirlooms should be applied for reparation of heirlooms remaining unsold.

(c) Re Earl of Radnor's Will, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402, 419, 424; and see Re Beaumont's Settled Estates, 58 L. T. N.S. 916; Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estates, W. N. 1891, p. 167; Re Hope, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 679.

(d) Re Hope, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 679.

(e) Re Hope, sup.

(f) Re Earl of Radnor's Will, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402, 418.

(g) Browne v. Collins, W. N. 1890, p. 78; 62 L. T. N.S. 566.

sanction a sale of heirlooms ex post facto, but where an advantageous sale had been effected, the Court protected the trustees by directing them to take no steps for the recovery of the heirlooms sold (a).

[Title of honour.]

A dignity or title of honour which descends to the heirs general or heirs of the body, is within the definition of land, and heirlooms settled so as to devolve with the dignity or title may be sold under this section (b).

[Whether proceeds of heirlooms devolve as personalty.]

Reference has already been made to the sections regulating the application or disposition of capital money arising under the Act (c), and it is to be observed that under sect. 22, sub-sect. 5, capital money is "for all purposes of disposition, transmission, and devolution, to be considered as land," and is to be "held for and go to the same persons successively, in the same manner, and for and on the same estates, interests, and trusts, as the land wherefrom the money arises would, if not disposed of, have been held and have gone under the settlement" (d). The effect of this sub-section in relation to money arising from heirlooms has been discussed in Re Duke of Marlborough's Settlement (e), in which different views were expressed by the judges; but the balance of opinion seems to be in favour of the view that the devolution of the proceeds of the sale of chattels and of any interim investments thereof follows the devolution which originally belonged to the chattels. The tenant for life may, however, apply the moneys arising under sect. 37 for any of the purposes authorised by sect. 21, notwithstanding that the effect of such application may be to alter the devolution, as, for instance, in paying off incumbrances affecting the inheritance of the settled land, without keeping such incumbrances on foot so as to preserve existing

(a) Re Ames, (1893) 2 Ch. 479.

(b) Re Sir J. Rivett Carnac's Will, 30 Ch. D. 136; Re Earl of Aylesford's Settled Estate, 32 Ch. D. 162.

(c) See ante, p. 679.

(d) See ante, p. 686. It has been doubted whether this sub-section has any application to money arising from the sale of personal chattels; and there seems no sound reason for making the money arising from the chattels devolve as land, while if it is reinvested in other chattels they are to devolve as personalty. The latter part of the sub-section points to money arising from land as being the subject matter to which it relates, and it would be construing the sub-section in direct opposition to the spirit in which it is framed, to hold that, although its apparent object was to leave the estates and interests of the persons beneficially interested in land unaffected by the sale, yet when applied, by reference, to money arising from personal chattels, it is to have the effect of altering the nature of the estates, and in most cases, of changing an absolute estate in remainder into a mere tenancy in tail. To effectuate such a change the language of the Act should be clear and unambiguous, and it is conceived that the language of sub-sect. 5 does not meet that test, and that the devolution of the moneys arising from personal chattels will remain unaffected by the sale.

(e) 30 Ch. D. 127; 32 Ch. D, (C.A.) 1,

rights; and so long as the moneys are applied for such authorised purposes, the tenant for life cannot be prevented from directing any such application, on the ground of his being a trustee of the power under sect. 53, although the effect of the application may be to alter the course of devolution (a).

[Receipts.] 27. By sect. 40, the receipt in writing of the trustees of a settlement, or where one trustee is empowered to act, of one trustee, or of the personal representatives or representative of the last surviving or continuing trustee, for any money or securities paid or transferred to them or him is made a good discharge, and, in the case of a mortgagee or other person advancing money, exonerates him from being concerned to see that the money advanced is wanted for any purpose of the Act, or that no more than is wanted is raised. It would seem that this power extends to trustees appointed by the Court under sect. 38 (b).

In construing sect. 40, sect. 39 must be borne in mind, which expressly prohibits the payment of capital money to fewer than two persons as trustees of a settlement, unless the settlement otherwise provides; and, taking the two sections together, it seems to follow that, in the absence of any special direction in the settlement, a sole personal representative of the last surviving or continuing trustee cannot give a good discharge for capital money under the Act.

[Indemnity and reimbursement.] 28. Sects. 41 and 43 supply the usual indemnity and reimbursement clauses for the trustees of the settlement.

[Protection of trustees.] 29. By sect. 42, the trustees of a settlement, or any of them, are not liable for giving any consent, or for not making, bringing, taking, or doing any such application, action, proceeding, or thing, as they might make, bring, take, or do; and in case of purchase of land with capital money arising under the Act, or of an exchange, partition, or lease, are not liable for adopting any contract made by the tenant for life, or bound to inquire as to the propriety of the purchase, exchange, partition, or lease, or answerable as regards any price, consideration, or fine, and are not liable to see to or answerable for the investigation of the title, or answerable for a conveyance of land, if the conveyance purports to convey the land in the proper mode, or liable in respect of purchase-money paid by them by direction of the tenant for life to any person joining in the conveyance as a conveying party, or as giving a receipt for the purchase-money, or in any other character, or in respect of any other money paid by them by direction of the tenant for life on the purchase, exchange, partition, or lease.

(a) Re Duke of Marlborough's Settlement, 30 Ch. D. 127; 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1; and see Re Duke of Marlborough, (1897) 1 Ch. 712, ante, p. 689; and see Re Lord Stafford's Settlement, (1904) 2 Ch. 72.

(b) See Cookes v. Cookes, 34 Ch. D. 498.

Under this section the trustees are under no liability if they stand by and take no active part while the tenant for life is exercising his powers, but it is apprehended that the protection given by this section to the trustees only holds good so long as they have not actual notice that the tenant for life is acting fraudulently or improperly. At any rate, trustees who, with the knowledge that the tenant for life is committing a fraud upon his powers, take no active steps for the protection of the remaindermen, relying on this section, would be acting most imprudently, and would have little reason to complain if they were made personally liable for any loss arising from their negligence.

[Trustees must see that conveyance is in the proper form.]

It will be observed that trustees, in order to have the benefit of this section where land is brought into the settlement upon a purchase, exchange, partition, or lease, must see that the conveyance purports to convey the land in the proper mode, but they are not bound to do more than take care that the deed, on the face of it, is properly drawn, and is duly executed by the conveying parties, and that the person to whom the purchase-money is paid by the direction of the tenant for life properly joins in the conveyance.

[Differences between tenant for life and trustees.]

30. By sect. 44, if at any time a difference arises between a tenant for life and the trustees of the settlement, respecting the exercise of any of the powers of the Act, or respecting any matter relating thereto, the Court may, on the application of either party, give such directions respecting the matter in difference, and respecting the costs of the application, as the Court thinks fit. It would be right for the trustees to avail themselves of this section if a sale were proceeding which they disapproved of as being improvident (a).

31. By sect. 55, the powers conferred by the Act are exercisable from time to time, and in exercising the powers the tenant for life and trustees may respectively execute, make, and do, all necessary and proper deeds, instruments, and things.

[Additional powers.]

32. By sect. 57, sub-sect. 1, nothing in the Act is to preclude a settlor from conferring on the tenant for life, or the trustees of the settlement, any powers additional to or larger than those conferred by the Act; but by sub-sect. 2, any such additional or larger powers are to operate and be exercisable in the like manner, and with all the like incidents, effects, and consequences as if they were conferred by the Act, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the settlement.

(a) Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334, 344; Re Hunt's Settled Estates, (1906) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 11, ante, p. 668.

[Infant entitled absolutely or for life.]

33. By sect. 59, where a person who is in his own right seised of or entitled in possession to land is an infant, then for the purposes of the Act the land is settled land, and the infant is to be deemed tenant for life thereof; and by sect. 60, where a tenant for life, or a person having the powers of a tenant for life under the Act, is an infant, or an infant would, if he were of full age, be a tenant for life, or have the powers of a tenant for life, the powers under the Act may be exercised on his behalf by the trustees of the settlement, and if there are none, then by such person and in such manner as the Court, on the application of a testamentary or other guardian or next friend of the infant, either generally or in a particular instance, orders. And persons appointed by the Court under this section can make a good title without the necessity of appointing under sect. 38 trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Act (a). But in such a case, the order ought to contain a direction that the purchase-money be paid into Court (b). Under these sections the Court in Ireland refused, where an infant was entitled to an undivided share of land, to appoint one of his co-owners to exercise on his behalf the powers of the Act, but required the appointment of an independent person (c). The Court in directing the mode of sale under this section, can order it to be made out of Court (d).

[Tenant for life a married woman.]

34. By sect. 61, sub-sect. 1, the foregoing provisions of the Act do not apply in the case of a married woman; but by sub-sect. 2, a married woman entitled for her separate use, or entitled under any statute for her separate property, or as a feme sole, is, without her husband, to have the powers of the Act; and by sub-sect. 3, where she is entitled otherwise than as aforesaid, she and her husband together are to have the powers. By sub-sect. 4, the provisions of the Act referring to a tenant for life extend to a married woman entitled to property as her separate estate, or as a feme sole, and this appears to bring the case of an infant married woman so entitled within sect. 60,

(a) Re Countess of Dudley's Contract, 35 Ch. D. 338.
(b) S. C.
(c) Re Greenville Estate, 11 L. R. Ir. 138; and see Re MClintock, 27 L. R. Ir. 463.
(d) Re Price, 27 Ch. D. 552.

so that her powers can during infancy be exercised by the trustees of the settlement.

[Settlement containing a trust or direction for sale.]

35. Where the settlement contains a trust or direction for the sale of the property, the rights and powers of the trustees and tenant for life stand upon a different footing, and are governed by the independent enactment contained in the 63rd section (a). The construction of this section is somewhat obscure, and the extent to which the powers of trustees were affected by it was a question of grave difficulty; but by the Settled Land Act, 1884 (b), the powers given by the 63rd section of the Act of 1882 to tenants for life or other persons having limited interests are not to be exercised without the leave of the Court, which leave is to be given by order naming the persons to exercise the powers, and until such an order is made and registered as a lis pendens, it seems clear that the trustees may execute all trusts and powers reposed in them by the settlement as if the Settled Land Acts had not been passed, while after an order has been made and registered, and so long as it remains in force, the powers of the trustees are suspended, so far as relates to any purpose for which leave is given by the order to exercise a power conferred by the Act of 1882. Under these circumstances no conflict can now arise, under sect. 63, between the trustees and the tenant for life as to the exercise of their powers, and it seems unnecessary to consider what is the proper construction of the section in this respect.

The submission by the tenant for life of a scheme for improvements, pursuant to sect. 15 of the Act of 1890 (c), being merely a preliminary to the giving of directions as to the application of capital moneys, is not an exercise of his "powers" under sect. 7 of the Act of 1884, requiring the leave of the Court (d).

[Trustees of such settlement.]

36. Where the powers of the Act are exercisable, and any necessity arises for trustees of the settlement for the purposes of the Act, they are by sect. 63, which follows with the necessary variation the definition contained in sect. 2 (e), defined to be

(a) As to this section and the extent to which the powers given by the settlement to trustees are affected by it and the Settled Land Act, 1884, see Chap. XXIV. s. 2, v. A settlement of property purely personal containing a power to trustees to invest in the purchase of lands, which power was exercised, was held to be within the section, so that the tenant for life was entitled to be recouped for expenditure on improvements upon purchased land: Re Child's Settlement, (1907) 2 Ch. 348.

(b) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18, s. 7. For cases in which the leave was granted, see post, Chap. XXIV. s. 2, ad fin.

(c) Ante, p. 677.

(d) Re Wormald's Settled Estates, (1908) W. N. 214.

(e) Ante, p. 652.

the persons, if any, who are, for the time being, under the settlement trustees for sale of the settled land, or having power of consent to, or approval of, or control over the sale, or if under the settlement there are no such trustees, then the persons, if any, for the time being, who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for purposes of the Act.

[Application of Act to such settlement.]

37. By sub-sect. 2 of sect. 63, the provisions of the Act referring to a tenant for life, and to a settlement, and to settled land, are to extend to cases under that section with certain exceptions, of which the following are the material ones for the present purpose:—

(A) Capital money is not to be applied in the purchase of land unless such application is expressly authorised by the settlement in the case of capital money arising thereunder from sales or other dispositions of the settled land, but may, in addition to any other mode of application authorised by the Act, be applied in any mode in which capital money arising under the settlement from any such sale or other disposition is applicable thereunder, subject to any consent required or direction given by the settlement with respect to the application of trust money of the settlement.

(B) Capital money and the securities in which the same is invested shall not for any purpose of disposition, transmission, or devolution, be considered as land unless the same would, if arising under the settlement from a sale or disposition of the settled land, have been so considered, and shall be held in trust for and shall go to the same persons successively in the same manner, and for and on the same estates, interests and trusts, as the same would have gone, and been held, if arising under the settlement from a sale or disposition of the settled land, and the income of such capital money and securities shall be paid or applied accordingly.

(C) Land of whatever tenure acquired under the Act by purchase, or in exchange, or on partition, shall be conveyed to and vested in the trustees of the settlement, on the trusts, and subject to the powers and provisions which, under the settlement or by reason of the exercise of any power of appointment or charging therein contained, are subsisting with respect to the settled land, or would be so subsisting if the same had not been sold, or as near thereto as circumstances permit, but so as not to increase or multiply charges or powers of charging.

[Universities and College Estates Act, 1898.]

38. It may here be mentioned that by the Universities and College Estates Act, 1898 (a), certain of the powers conferred on a tenant for life under the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, are, subject to certain modifications, made exercisable by universities and colleges. The powers of sale, enfranchisement, exchange, and partition, and the power of granting building leases with option of purchase are, however, not to be exercised without the consent of the Board of Agriculture, and capital money payable in such cases is to be paid to the Board of Agriculture (b).]

(a) 61 & 62 Vict. c. 55.

(b) The Act applies only to the universities and colleges to which the Universities and College Estates Acts, 1850 to 1880, apply (sec. 7).

CHAPTER XXIII

OF JUDICIAL TRUSTEES AND THE PUBLIC TRUSTEE

[Judicial Trustees Act, 1896.]

[By the Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 (a), which came into operation on the first of May, 1897 (b), an entirely new class of trustees (c) was called into existence, by the name of "Judicial Trustees." These trustees, as their name indicates, are appointed by, and act under the control of, the Court, and their special functions are regulated by the Act and the rules which have been made thereunder (d).

1. Sect 1 of the Act is as follows :—

[Power of Court on application to appoint judicial trustee.]

"(1) Where application is made to the Court by or on behalf of the person creating or intending to create a trust, or by or on behalf of a trustee or beneficiary, the Court may, in its discretion, appoint a person (in this Act called a judicial trustee) to be a trustee of that trust, either jointly with any other person or as sole trustee, and, if sufficient cause is shown, in place of all or any existing trustees.

"(2) The administration of the property of a deceased person, whether a testator or intestate, shall be a trust, and the executor or administrator a trustee, within the meaning of this Act.

"(3) Any fit and proper person nominated for the purpose in the application may be appointed a judicial trustee, and, in the absence of such nomination, or if the Court is not satisfied of the fitness of a person so nominated, an official of the Court may be (a) 59 & 60 Vict. c. 35. The Act does not extend to Scotland or Ireland, nor to any charity, whether subject to or exempted from the Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1894.

(b) Sect. 6, sub-s. 6.

(c) Persons discharging similar functions to those of these new judicial trustees, have for more than 150 years been appointed in Scotland, and known as "judicial factors," and the numerous cases decided in that country as to the duties and liabilities of such persons may be of use in reference to the duties and liabilities of judicial trustees in this country. The subject from this point of view is dealt with in the treatise on the Act by Gerald J. Wheeler, Esq.

(d) The Judicial Trustee Rules, 1897 (31st August, 1897), printed in extenso in Law Reports, Current Index, 1897, pp. lxxiii. to lxxviii., and also in the treatise above mentioned.

appointed (a), and in any case a judicial trustee shall be subject to the control and supervision of the Court as an officer thereof.

"(4) The Court may, either on request or without request, give to a judicial trustee any general or special directions in regard to the trust or the administration thereof (b).

"(5) There may be paid to a judicial trustee out of the trust property such remuneration, not exceeding the prescribed limits, as the Court may assign in each case, subject to any rules under this Act respecting the application of such remuneration where the judicial trustee is an official of the Court, and the remuneration so assigned to any judicial trustee shall, save as the Court may for special reasons otherwise order, cover all his work and personal outlay.

"(6) Once in every year the accounts of every trust of which a judicial trustee has been appointed shall be audited, and a report thereon made to the Court by the prescribed persons, and, in any case where the Court shall so direct, an inquiry into the administration by a judicial trustee of any trust, or into any dealing or transaction of a judicial trustee, shall be made in the prescribed manner (c)."

Under this section the appointment of a judicial trustee is not matter of right, but entirely within the discretion of the Court. As the administration of the property of a deceased person is a "trust," and the "executor" is a "trustee," it is competent to the Court to remove an executor and appoint a judicial trustee in his place. Where a testator had manifested an intention that his widow and sole executrix, who was tenant for life under his will, should have the sole control of his estate, and there was no ground of complaint against her, the Court refused to appoint a judicial trustee at the instance of the reversioner (d).

2. Sect. 2 of the Act is as follows:—"The jurisdiction of the Court [Court to exercise jurisdiction.]

(a) If, on an application for the appointment of a judicial trustee, the Court is not satisfied of the fitness of the named person, there is jurisdiction to appoint a person suggested by the retiring judicial trustee; and the Court is not bound under this subsection to appoint only an official trustee: Douglas v. Bolam, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 749.

(b) Rule 12 provides that a judicial trustee may at any time request the Court to give him directions as to the trust or its administration. The request is to be accompanied by a statement of facts, and a fee of 2*s*. 6d. (see schedule); and the Court may require the trustee or any other person to attend at chambers, where that course is necessary or convenient.

(c) By Rule 14, the Court is to give directions as to the date to which the accounts are to be made up in each year, and the time within which they are to be delivered for audit. The audit is to be by the officer of the Court, but in cases of difficulty reference may be made to a professional accountant.

(d) Re Ratcliff, (1898) 2 Ch. 352.

under this Act may be exercised by the High Court, and as respects trusts within its jurisdiction by a palatine court, and (subject to the prescribed definition of the jurisdiction) by any county court judge to whom such jurisdiction may be assigned under this Act."

[Section 3.] 3. Sect. 3 of the Act, which has reference to the general jurisdiction of the Court in cases of breach of trust, will be dealt with in its appropriate place in this work (a).

[Rules.] 4. By sect. 4 it is provided that rules may be made for carrying the Act into effect.

[Persons to be appointed judicial trustees.] 5. As regards the persons to be appointed to the office of judicial trustee, it is provided by the rules that the Court shall not be precluded by any existing practice as to the appointment of trustees from appointing any person to be a judicial trustee by reason of that person being a beneficiary, or relation, or husband or wife of a beneficiary, or a solicitor to the trust or to the trustee of any beneficiary, or a married woman, or standing in any special position with regard to the trust, and that a person may be appointed to be a judicial trustee of a trust although he is already a trustee of the trust (b).

[Executors and administrators.] Any person who is an executor or administrator may be appointed a judicial trustee for the purpose of the collection and distribution of the estate of a deceased person, in the same manner and subject to the same provisions as a person may be appointed judicial trustee of a trust (c).

[Public Trustee Act, 1906.] 6. The Public Trustee Act, 1906 (d), which came into operation on January 1st, 1908, is of a wider scope than the Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, and may prove to be of considerable public utility. By this Act (e) and the rules made in pursuance of it (f), the office of

[Office of public trustee.] the public trustee is established (g), and it is enacted that he "shall be a corporation sole under that name, with perpetual succession

(a) See post, Chap. XXXI. s. 3.

(b) Rule 5. The Court is unwilling to appoint a judicial trustee to act jointly with a private and gratuitous trustee; Re Martin, W. N. (1900) 129.

(c) Rule 25. For further consideration of the subject of judicial trustees see the last edition of this work.

(d) 6 Edw. VII. c. 55.

(e) Sect. 1.

(f) Under sect. 14. The Public Trustee Rules, 1907 (Nov. 29, 1907), are printed in extenso in Law Reports, Current Index, 1907, pp. lxxxii. to lxxxvi.

(g) See Rule 3. His appointment and status are regulated and defined by sect. 8 of the Act. He is to have a central office in London (Rule 4), and provision is made for the establishment of branch offices (Ib.), and the appointment of deputy public trustees at such branch offices (Rule 5). As to the security required from officers, see Rule 6. As to the liability of the Consolidated Fund to make good any personal liability of the trustee, see sect. 7 of the Act.

and an official seal, and may sue and be sued under the above name like any other corporation sole, but any instruments sealed by him shall not, by reason of his using a seal, be rendered liable to a higher stamp duty than if he were an individual" (a).

[General powers of public trustee.]

7. Subject to and in accordance with the Act and rules the public trustee may (b), if he thinks fit, (a) act in the administration of estates of small value; (b) act as custodian trustee; (c) act as an ordinary trustee; (d) be appointed to be a judicial trustee (c); or (e) be appointed to be the administrator of the property of a convict under the Forfeiture Act, 1870 (d). In any of these capacities he may act either alone or jointly with any person or body of persons, and have the same powers, duties, and rights as a private trustee acting in the same capacity (e). He may decline, either absolutely or except on prescribed conditions, to accept any trust, but he is not to decline to accept any trust on the ground only of the small value of the trust property (f).

[Acting as ordinary trustee.]

8. Of the several functions of the public trustee the most important is that of an "ordinary trustee." By sect. 5 of the Act it is enacted that "the public trustee may by that name, or any other sufficient description, be appointed to be trustee of any will or settlement or other instrument creating a trust (g), or to perform any trust or duty belonging to a class which he is authorised by the rules made under this Act to accept, and may be so appointed whether the will or settlement or instrument creating the trust or duty was made or came into operation before or after the passing of this Act, and either as an original or as a new trustee, or as an additional trustee, in the same cases, and in the same manner, and by the same persons or Court, as if he were a private trustee, with this addition, that, though the trustees originally appointed were two or more, the public trustee may be appointed sole trustee (h). Where the public trustee has been

[Appointment as sole trustee.]

(a) Sect. 1, sub-s. 2.
(b) Sect. 2, sub-s. 1.
(c) See ante, p. 698.
(d) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 28; see ante, p. 27.
(e) Sect. 2, sub-s. 2.
(f) Sect. 2, sub-s. 3.
(g) By Rule 7 it is provided that he shall not accept the trusts of any instrument made solely by way of security for money.
(h) Sect. 5, sub-s. 1. As to the general practice of the Court in respect to the appointment of a sole trustee, see post, Chap. XXVI. sect. 32. Resort to the new enactment may often be found useful, as in Re Kensit, W. N. (1908) 235, where, on an application under sect. 25 of the Trustee Act, 1893, the public trustee was appointed in the place of a trustee who was about to go abroad and desired to retire, and whose co-trustee was willing to appoint a new trustee, but declined to appoint the public trustee; and there being no evidence that the continuing trustee's conduct was improper, the usual order was made as to costs.

[Retirement of trustee.] appointed a trustee of any trust, a co-trustee may retire from the trust under and in accordance with sect. 11 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (a), notwithstanding that there are not more than two trustees, and without such consents as are required by that section (b). The public trustee shall not be so appointed either as a new or additional trustee where the will, settlement, or other instrument creating the trust or duty contains a direction to the contrary, unless the Court otherwise order" (c).

[Notice of appointment.] 9. Notice of any proposed appointment of the public trustee is to be given, where practicable, in the prescribed manner (d) to the beneficiaries, or, if infants, to their guardians, and any person to whom notice has been given may, within twenty-one days, apply to the Court for an order prohibiting the making of the appointment; but a failure to give any notice is not to invalidate the appointment (e).

[Appointment by testator.] A testator may appoint the public trustee to be trustee or custodian trustee under any testamentary instrument without previously applying to him for his consent to act as such (f), but no such appointment by a testator or any other person is to [Consent to act.] have effect unless the consent of the public trustee to act is obtained (g).

The application to the public trustee to act may be made by a trustee or beneficiary under a testamentary instrument, by any person beneficially interested under an intestacy, or by any person having power under the Act to make the appointment (h).

[Power as to granting probate.] 10. Under sect. 6 of the Act (i) as supplemented by the rules (j), the public trustee is authorised to accept by that name probates of wills or letters of administration, and "the Court having jurisdiction to grant probate of a will or letters of administration may grant such probate or letters to the public trustee by that name, and for that purpose the Court shall consider the public trustee as in law entitled equally with any other person or class of persons to obtain the grant of letters of administration, save that the consent or citation of the public trustee shall not be required for the grant of letters of administration to any other person, and

(a) See post, Chap. XXVI. s. 12.
(b) Sect. 5, sub-s. 2. This appears to be a useful provision.
(c) Sect. 5, sub-s. 3.
(d) That is, by notice addressed to the person at his last known place of abode or place of business, and served by post; see Rule 40 (2, 3).
(e) Sect. 5, sub-s. 4.
(f) Rule 9 (1).
(g) Rule 9 (2); it is further provided that in the case of an appointment by a testator, the public trustee, after the fact of the appointment has come to his knowledge, may act as if formal application had been received by him.
(h) Rule 10 (1).
(i) Sect. 6, sub-s. 1.
(j) Rule 7 (1a).

that, as between the public trustee and the widower, widow or next-of-kin of the deceased, the widower, widow or next-of-kin shall be preferred, unless for good cause shown to the contrary. Any executor who has obtained probate, or any administrator who has obtained letters of administration, and notwithstanding he has acted in the administration of the deceased's estate, may, with the sanction of the Court, and after such notice to the persons beneficially interested as the Court may direct, transfer such estate to the public trustee for administration either solely, or jointly with the continuing executors or administrator, if any. And the order of the Court sanctioning such transfer shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, give to the public trustee all the powers of such executor and administrator, and such executor and administrator shall not be in any way liable in respect of any act or default in reference to such estate subsequent to the date of such order, other than the act or default of himself or of persons other than himself for whose conduct he is in law responsible" (a).

[Retirement of executor or administrator, and substitution of public trustee.]

The public trustee is prohibited from accepting "any trust which involves the management or carrying on of any business, except in the cases in which he may be authorised to do so by rules" made under the Act, "nor any trust under a deed of arrangement for the benefit of creditors, nor the administration of any estate known or believed by him to be insolvent" (b).

[Management of business.]

11. By sect. 3 of the Act, "any person who in the opinion of the public trustee would be entitled to apply to the Court for an order for the administration by the Court of an estate, the gross capital value whereof is proved to the satisfaction of the public trustee to be less than 1000*l*., may apply to the public trustee to administer the estate; and, where any such application is made, and it appears to the public trustee that the persons beneficially entitled are persons of small means, the public trustee shall administer the estate, unless he sees good reason for refusing to do so (c). On the public trustee undertaking, by declaration in writing signed and sealed by him, to administer the estate, the trust property other than stock shall, by virtue of this Act, vest in him, and the right to transfer

[Administration of small estates.]

[Vesting in public trustee.]

(a) Sect. 6, sub-s. 2. This is an important provision.

(b) Sect. 6, sub-s. 4. By Rule 8 (2) the public trustee is empowered to accept as ordinary trustee under exceptional circumstances a trust which involves the management or carrying on of any business, but upon the conditions that, except with the consent of the Treasury, he shall only carry on the same (a) for a short time not exceeding eighteen months; and (b) with a view to sale, disposition or winding up; and (c) if satisfied that the same can be carried on without risk of loss.

(c) Sect. 3, sub-s. 1.

or call for the transfer of any stock forming part of the estate shall also vest in him, in like manner as if vesting orders had been made for the purpose by the High Court under the Trustee Act, 1893, and that Act shall apply accordingly." As from such vesting any trustee entitled under the trust to administer the estate is to be discharged from all liability attaching to the administration, except in respect of past acts. The public trustee, however, is not to transfer stock without the leave of the Court; and as to copyhold land he is to have the like powers as if he had been appointed by the Court under sect. 33 of the Trustee Act, 1893, to convey (a), and sect. 34 of that Act is to apply accordingly (b).

[Powers and resort to the Court.]

The general powers of the public trustee in these administrations are regulated by the Act and rules (c), and there are provisions enabling him, without judicial proceedings, to take the opinion of the High Court upon any question arising in the administration (d).

[Transfer by Court of administration proceedings to public trustee.]

12. By sect. 3, sub-s. 5, "where proceedings have been instituted in any Court for the administration of an estate, and by reason of the small value of the estate it appears to the Court that the estate can be more economically administered by the public trustee than by the Court, or that for any other reason it is expedient that the estate should be administered by the public trustee instead of the Court, the Court may order that the estate shall be administered by the public trustee, and thereupon (subject to any directions by the Court) this section shall apply as if the administration of the estate had been undertaken by the public trustee in pursuance of this section" (e).

[Custodian trustee.]

13. The public trustee may, if he consents to act, and whether or not the number of trustees has been reduced below the original number, be appointed to be custodian trustee of any trust by (1) order of the Court made on the application of any person on whose application the Court may order the appointment of a new trustee; or (2) by the testator, settlor, or other creator of any trust; or (3) by the person having the power to appoint new trustees (f). The trust property is to be transferred to the

[Appointment.]

(a) See post, Chap. XXVI., sects. 33, 34.

(b) Sect. 3, sub-s. 2.

(c) Sect. 3, sub-ss. 3, 4, and RR. 14-17.

(d) Rule 17. The duty of advising upon such questions has been assigned by the Lord Chancellor to Mr Justice Joyce.

(e) This clause appears to be wider in its terms than sect. 3, sub-s. 1. It does not, for instance, contain any requirement as to the beneficiaries being persons of "small means."

(f) Sect. 4, sub-s. 1.

custodian trustee as if he were sole trustee, and for that purpose vesting orders may, where necessary, be made under the Trustee Act, 1893 (a). The management is to remain vested in the other or managing trustees (b), but the custodian trustee is to have the custody of the securities and documents of title (c). The custodian trustee is to concur where necessary in the acts of the managing trustees, but not where the matter is a breach of trust or involves a personal liability; and unless he concurs he is not to be liable for any act or default of the managing trustees (d). All payments are to be made to or by the custodian trustee, but he may allow dividends or income to be paid to the managing trustees (e). The power of appointing new trustees continues with the managing trustees, but the custodian trustee has the same power as they have of applying to the Court for the appointment of a new trustee (f). It is further provided that "in determining the number of trustees for the purposes of the Trustee Act, 1893, the custodian trustee shall not be reckoned as a trustee" (g). The custodian trustee is protected in reference to evidence of title and acting on legal advice (h), and provision is made for terminating the custodian trusteeship (i). [Powers and duties.]

By sect. 4, sub-s. 3, the provisions of the section are to apply in like manner as to the public trustee to any banking or insurance company or other body corporate entitled by rules made under the Act (j) to act as custodian trustee, with power for such company or body corporate to charge and retain or pay out of the trust property fees not exceeding the fees chargeable by the public trustee as custodian trustee. [Corporate bodies as custodian trustees.]

14. Provisions as to investigation and audit of trust accounts are contained in sect. 13 of the Act. The principal one is as follows (k):— [Audit of trust accounts.]

"Subject to rules under this Act (l), and unless the Court otherwise orders, the condition and accounts of any trust shall, on an application being made and notice thereof given in the prescribed manner (m) by any trustee or beneficiary, be investigated

(a) Sect. 4, sub-s. 2, Clause (a). As to vesting orders see post, Chap. XXVI., ss. 13 et seq.
(b) Clause (b).
(c) Clause (c).
(d) Clause (d).
(e) Clause (e).
(f) Clause (f).
(g) Clause (g).
(h) Clause (h).
(i) Clause (i).
(j) See Rule 36, which (by sub.-r. 1) provides that the bodies corporate entitled to act as custodian trustees are to be any such incorporated banking or insurance or guarantee or trust company or friendly society, and any such body corporate established for charitable or philanthropic purposes as may be approved by the public trustee and the Treasury.
(k) Sub-s. 1.
(l) See RR. 37 to 39.
(m) See RR. 38, 40.

and audited by such solicitor or public accountant as may be agreed on by the applicant and the trustees or, in default of agreement (a), by the public trustee or some person appointed by him: Provided that (except with the leave of the Court) such an investigation or audit shall not be required within twelve months after any such previous investigation or audit, and that a trustee or beneficiary shall not be appointed under this section to make an investigation or audit."

The statute provides for access by the auditor to books and accounts, and the forwarding by him of copies of the accounts and of his certificate, showing the sufficiency or deficiencies of the accounts, and that he has had the securities produced to him (b); for inspection by beneficiaries (c); for removal and replacement of the auditor (d); for remuneration and expenses (e); and for application to the Court by the auditor in case of obstruction (f).

It is further provided that "subject to rules of Court (g), applications under or for the purposes of this section to the High Court shall be made to a judge of the Chancery Division in Chambers" (h); and penalties by way of fine or imprisonment are imposed on any person who "in any statement of accounts, report, or certificate required for the purposes of this section, wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular" (i).

[Appeal to the Court.]

15. By sect. 10, "(1) a person aggrieved by any act or omission or decision of the public trustee in relation to any trust may apply to the Court (j), and the Court may make such order in the matter as the Court thinks just. (2) Subject to rules of Court, an application under this section to the High Court shall be made to a judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court in chambers" (k).

[Reward.]

16. Except as provided by the Act neither the public trustee nor any of his officers may act for reward (l). The public trustee may, subject to the rules, employ for the purposes of the [Employment of agents by trustee.]

(a) By Rule 38, if within three months from the date of the notice, no solicitor or public accountant shall have been appointed by the applicant and the trustees to conduct the investigation and audit, there is to be deemed to be a "default of agreement," within the section, and the applicant may apply to the public trustee accordingly.

(b) Sect. 13, sub-s. 2.

(c) Sect. 13, sub-s. 3.

(d) Sect. 13, sub-s. 4.

(e) Sect. 13, sub-s. 5.

(f) Sect. 13, sub-s. 6.

(g) By Rule 37, any application under sub-s. 1 is to be to the public trustee.

(h) Sect. 13, sub-s. 7.

(i) Sect. 13, sub-s. 8.

(j) By sect. 15 the expression "Court" means the High Court and, as respects trusts within its jurisdiction, the County Court.

(k) As to the procedure provided for in reference to small estates, see ante, p. 703. The application of the Act to palatine courts is provided for by sect. 12.

(l) Sect. 11, sub-s. 1.

trust such solicitors, bankers, accountants and brokers, or other persons as he may consider necessary. In determining the persons to be employed he is to have regard to the interests of the trust, but subject to this is to take into consideration the wishes of the creator of the trust, the other trustees, and the beneficiaries as in the Act mentioned (a). On behalf of the public trustee, such person as may be prescribed may take any oath, make any declaration, verify any account, give personal attendance at any court or place, and do any act or thing whatsoever which the public trustee is required or authorised to take, make, verify, give, or do; but subject to a proviso protective of the rights of barristers and duly certificated solicitors (b). [Representation in proceedings.]

Where any bond or security would be required from a private person upon the grant to him of administration, or upon his appointment to act in any capacity, the public trustee, if administration is granted to him, or if he is appointed to act in such capacity, is not to be required to give such bond or security, but is to be subject to the same liabilities and duties as if he had given such bond or security (c). [Bond or security not required from trustee.]

It is provided that the entry of the public trustee by that name in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust, and a company is not to be entitled to object to enter the name of the public trustee on its books by reason only that the public trustee is a corporation, and, in dealings with property, the fact that the person or one of the persons dealt with is the public trustee, is not of itself to constitute notice of a trust (d). [Entry of trustee's name in books of company.]

17. In reference to administration generally the rules provide for the following matters:—That a principal register as indicated of all trusts in which the public trustee is acting is to be kept at the central office in London (e); that the trustee may invest in any investment authorised by the trust instrument or by law, but not so as to expose himself to liability (f); that the trust securities and documents are to be kept at the bank to the trust or some other safe place allowed by the Treasury (g); that a separate account, as indicated, is to be kept for every trust or estate (h); that the accounts of the trustee are to be audited (i); [General provision as to administration.] [Register.] [Investment.] [Custody of documents.] [Accounts.]

(a) Sect. 11, sub-s. 2. Rule 18 provides that, subject to the Act, Rules, and terms of the particular trust, the public trustee may take and use professional advice and assistance in regard to legal and other matters, and may act on credible information (though less than legal evidence) as to matters of fact.

(b) Sect. 11, sub-s. 3.

(c) Sect. 11, sub-s. 4.

(d) Sect. 11, sub-s. 5.

(e) Rule 19. (f) Rule 20.

(g) Rule 21. (h) Rule 22.

(i) Rule 23.

[Payment into bank.] [Assurances.] [Payments to parties.] [Evidence.] [Information.] [Secrecy.] that "all payments of money to or from the capital of the trust property shall be made through the bank to the trust or estate" (a); that all transfers and assurances by the public trustee shall be under his hand and official seal, or under the hand and seal of an authorised officer (b); as to the mode of payment of sums payable out of income or capital (c); as to mode of payment of income to persons entitled (d); enabling the public trustee in a proper case to pay income to his co-trustee on his undertaking to apply it (e); and to make advances for administration purposes out of monies found by the Treasury (f); to require evidence as to persons entitled (g); and in cases where any such person cannot be found, or it is not known whether he is living or dead, to apply to the Court for directions, and retain any sum payable until order made (h). There is a provision requiring the public trustee to give to persons interested due inspection of accounts and documents, and information as to the trust property, and subject as aforesaid, he is to observe "strict secrecy in respect of every trust or estate in course of administration by him" (i).

[Deputies and officers.] 18. Power to appoint deputies is conferred in wide terms on the public trustee (j), and any officer authorised by him in writing may take any oath, make any declaration, verify any account, and give personal attendance at any court or place (k).

[Fees.] 19. The fees to be charged by the public trustee are regulated by sect. 9, and the Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1907 (l), and Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1909 (m). It is provided by the Act that the incidence of the fees and expenses under the section as between capital and income shall be determined by the public trustee (n).

[Exception of religious or charitable trusts.] 20. Lastly, it is to be observed that the public trustee is not to accept any trust exclusively for religious or charitable purposes, and nothing in the Act contained, or in the rules to be made under the powers in the Act contained, is to abridge or affect the powers or duties of the official trustee of charity lands or official trustees of charitable funds (o).]

(a) Rule 24. (b) Rule 25.
(c) Rule 26. (d) Rule 27.
(e) Rule 28. (f) Rule 29.
(g) Rule 30. (h) Rule 31.
(i) Rule 32.
(j) Rule 33. By Rule 34 no deputy, and no firm or member of a firm of solicitors of which such deputy is a member shall, except with the consent in writing of the public trustee, and subject to such conditions as he may impose, act as solicitor or solicitors to a trust or estate which is in course of administration by such deputy.
(k) Rule 35.
(l) Current Index, 1907, p. lxxxvi. (Dec. 21).
(m) Current Index, 1909, p. clxi. (Mar. 1).
(n) Sect. 9, sub-s. 5.
(o) Sect. 2, sub-s. 5.

CHAPTER XXIV

THE POWERS OF TRUSTEES

THE powers of trustees are either General or Special; the former, such as by construction of law are incident to the office of trustee virtute officii; the latter, such as are conferred vi terminorum, i.e. by the settlor himself by an express proviso in the instrument creating the trust.

SECTION 1

OF THE GENERAL POWERS OF TRUSTEES

Powers of trustees at law distinguished from their powers in equity.

1. In a Court of Law, the trustee, as the absolute proprietor, may of course exercise all such powers as the legal ownership confers; but in equity the cestui que trust is the absolute owner, and the question we have to consider in this place is, how far the trustee may deal with the estate without rendering himself responsible in the forum of a Court of Equity.

General rule as to powers of trustees in simple trusts.

2. With respect to the simple trust, as the trustee is a mere passive depositary, he can in equity neither take any part of the profits, nor exercise any dominion or control over the corpus, except at the instance of the cestui que trust.

In special trusts.

3. In the special trust, the authority of the trustee is, as a general rule, equally limited, except so far as the execution of the trust itself may invest him with a proprietary power, and the duties thus prescribed to him the trustee is bound strictly to pursue without swerving to the right hand or to the left.

Exceptions.

4. But, under particular circumstances, the trustee is held capable of exercising the discretionary powers of the bonâ fide proprietor; for the trust estate itself might otherwise be injuriously affected. The necessity of the moment may demand immediate action, while the sanction of the parties who are beneficially interested could not be procured without great inconvenience (as where the cestuis que trust are a numerous class), or perhaps could not be obtained at all (as where the cestuis que trust are under disability, or not yet in existence). It is, therefore, evidently in furtherance of the cestuis que trust's own interest, that, where the circumstances of the case require it, the trustee should be at liberty to exercise a reasonable discretionary power (a). But a trustee for adults should not take any proceeding without consulting his cestuis que trust; and if he do, and the proceeding is disavowed by them, he may have to pay the costs (b).

Notice of trustee's intention to cestui que trust.

5. Where the trust is not definite and precise, and it is doubtful what ought to be done under the trust, it is said that the trustee may give notice to the cestui que trust of his intention to do a particular act, and that unless the cestui que trust interferes to stop it, the Court might well hold the trustee not to be liable for doing the act (c).

Validity of an act without suit.

6. It is a rule of equity, that what is compellable by suit, or would have been ordered by the Court, is equally valid if done by the trustee without suit, i.e. without the sanction of the Court (d). The difficulty with which the trustee has to struggle is the danger of assuming that the Court, on application to it, would view the matter in the same light in which he regards it himself (e).

Matter of form may be dispensed with.

7. Trustees, to avoid circuity, may dispense with forms, the observance of which would only lead to expense. If, for instance, the transfer of a sum of stock be secured to trustees of a settlement, and they have power by the settlement to sell out the fund and invest on mortgage, they need not insist on a transfer of the stock in specie for the purpose of immediately selling out and investing the proceeds on mortgage, but if they have the mortgage ready may take the value of the stock and hand it over to

(a) See Angell v. Dawson, 3 Y. & C. 317; Darke v. Williamson, 25 Beav. 622; Harrison v. Randall, 9 Hare, 407; Forshaw v. Higginson, 8 De G. M. & G. 827; Ward v. Ward, 2 H. L. Cas. 784.

(b) Bradby v. Whitchurch, W. N. 1868, p. 81.

(c) Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 74, per L. J. Turner.

(d) Lee v. Brown, 4 Ves. 369, per Cur.; Earl of Bath v. Bradford, 2 Ves. 590, per Lord Hardwicke; Cook v. Parsons, Pr. Ch. 185, per Cur.; Inwood v. Twyne, 2 Eden, 153, per Lord Northington; Hutcheson v. Hammond, 3 B. C. C. 145, per Buller, J.; Terry v. Terry, Gilb. 11, per Lord Cowper; Shaw v. Borrer, 1 Keen, 576, per Lord Langdale; Seagram v. Knight, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 630; Gilliland v. Crawford, 4 Ir. R. Eq. 42, per Cur.; [Brown v. Smith, 10 Ch. D. (C.A.) 377]. The same rule holds also at law, see Co. Lit. 171, a.

(e) See Forshaw v. Higginson, 3 Jur. N.S. 476.

the mortgagor (a). So trustees, having a power to lay out a certain sum in the purchase of an annuity for A. B., may pay the sum to A. B. direct, without going through the form of purchasing the annuity (b).

Repairs.

8. Where the legal estate is vested in trustees in trust for one person for life, with remainders over to others, it is clearly settled that the trustee cannot (where there is no special clause of management) interfere with the possession of an equitable tenant for life who neglects to repair (c). [But it is the duty of trustees, for the purpose of properly performing their trust, to see that the trust property does not fall into decay from want of repair, and if the occasion for repairs arises they should apply to the Court to direct the proper repairs and the mode in which the expenses of such repairs are to be borne (d).]

Legal rights.

9. In other respects the rights in equity must, it is conceived, be governed by those at law. Thus a legal tenant for life may cut timber for the purpose of repairs (e), though he may not cut timber to sell it and apply the produce (f), or to repay himself the outlay in repairs (g); and similarly, the trustee may, it is conceived, as against the remainderman, cut timber for necessary repairs, if the tenant for life will consent to an application of income towards repairs in making use of the timber. The repairs by a tenant for life, however substantial and lasting, are his own voluntary act, and do not arise from any obligation, and he cannot claim any charge for them upon the inheritance (h). Nor [before the Settled Land Act, 1882,] would the Court at his instance direct lasting improvements to be made (i); and though Equitable rights.

Repairs and improvements.

(a) See Pell v. De Winton, 2 De G. & J. 20; George v. George, 35 Beav. 382.

(b) Messeena v. Carr, 9 L. R. Eq. 260; [Stokes v. Cheek, 28 Beav. 620; Re Mabbett, (1891) 1 Ch. 707, 712; Re Ross, (1900) 1 Ch. 162; Re Robbins, (1906) 2 Ch. 648; Re Brunning, (1909) 1 Ch. 276].

(c) Powys v. Blagrave, Kay, 495; 4 De G. M. & G. 458, and cases there cited by Lord Cranworth; Harnett v. Maitland, 16 M. & W. 257; [Re Cartwright, 41 Ch. D. 532, and cases there cited; Re Freman, (1898) 1 Ch. 28, 32;] and see Re Skingley, 3 Mac. & G. 221; Gregg v. Coates, 23 Beav. 33; [Brereton v. Day, (1895) 1 I. R. 519].

[(d) Re Hotchkys, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 408; Re M'Clure's Trusts, (1906) W. N. 200 (where the amount of repairs was directed to be raised by mortgage).]

(e) Co. Lit. 54 b. [And see the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 29.]

(f) Co. Lit. 53 b. [But see now the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 35, post, p. 715.]

(g) Gower v. Eyre, G. Coop. 156; and see Duke of Marlborough v. St John, 5 De G. & Sm. 181.

(h) Hibbert v. Cooke, 1 S. & S. 552; Caldecott v. Brown, 2 Hare, 144; and see Bostock v. Blakeney, 2 B. C. C. 653; Hamer v. Tilsley, Johns. 486; Dent v. Dent, 30 Beav. 363; Floyer v. Bankes, 8 L. R. Eq. 115; Gilliland v. Crawford, 4 Ir. R. Eq. 35; Re Leigh's Estate, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 887; [Ferguson v. Ferguson, 17 L. R. Ir. 552; Rowley v. Ginnever, (1897) 2 Ch. 503].

(i) Nairn v. Majoribanks, 3 Russ. 582.

it was said by the Court in one case that the rule might not be absolutely without exception, as if there were a settled estate, and a fund directed to be laid out in the purchase to the same uses, it might be more beneficial to the remainderman that part of the trust fund should be applied to prevent buildings on the settled estates from going to destruction, than that the whole should be laid out in the purchase of other lands (a), yet an extraordinary case was requisite to create such exception (b). [But where trustees having moneys in their hands directed to be invested in lands to be strictly settled, entered into an agreement for purchase of an estate, and the farm buildings, and cottages on the property were out of repair, the Court sanctioned the application of 1000*l.* out of the moneys in their hands in repairing, improving and rebuilding the farm buildings and cottages (c); and money paid into Court under the Lands Clauses Act has been applied in defraying expenditure necessarily incurred for the preservation of the trust estate (d).

[Under Settled Land Act.]

10. Now by the Settled Land Act, 1882, sect. 26, the tenant for life may, with the approval of the trustees of the settlement, or the approval of the Court as the case may require, according as the money to be expended is in the hands of the trustees or in Court, expend any capital money arising under the Act in any of the improvements specified in sect. 25 of the Act (e).

And as, under sect. 59, an infant entitled in possession to land is for the purposes of the Act to be deemed tenant for life thereof, and by sect. 60, the powers of an infant tenant for life may be exercised on his behalf by the trustees of the settlement, or if there are none, by the nominees of the Court, all proper improvements may be effected under the Act, notwithstanding the infancy of the beneficial owner.

[Drainage or sanitary works.]

11. The expenses of drainage or sanitary works, executed under the powers of statutes relating to Public Health, and payable by the trustees as "owners" under the statutes, are in general a charge

(a) Caldecott v. Brown, 2 Hare, 145, per Sir J. Wigram; and see Re Barrington's Estates, 1 J. & H. 142; [Ferguson v. Ferguson, 17 L. R. Ir. 552].

(b) Dunne v. Dunne, 3 Sm. & G. 22; Dent v. Dent, 30 Beav. 363. [Ferguson v. Ferguson, 17 L. R. Ir. 552, where a tenant for life was allowed expenditure necessarily incurred by him in order to prevent previous expenditure by the settlor from being totally lost; and see ante, p. 591.]

[(c) Lord Cowley v. Wellesley, 46 L. J. N.S. Ch. 869; and see ante, p. 591.]

[(d) Re Leigh's Estate, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 887; Re Aldred's Estate, 21 Ch. D. 228.]

[(e) As to payment out of capital money for improvements under the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883, see s. 29 of that Act, and ante, p. 682.]

on the corpus, which may be provided for out of capital money (a).

12. Independently of the powers of the Settled Land Act] a trustee holding an estate for the benefit of a person absolutely entitled, but incapable from infancy or otherwise to give directions, may make necessary repairs, but he must not go beyond the necessity of the case, as by ornamental improvements, or the expense will not be allowed (b). The trustees of a will were to permit the testator's son to have "the use and enjoyment" of a house, and were "empowered" during the son's "occupation" to make "repairs," and Lord Romilly, M.R., held that the trustees were to keep the house in a habitable state, but not to make ornamental repairs (c). Where a mansion-house was dilapidated at the date of the testator's will, and he empowered his trustees "to keep all the buildings in good repair, and to make such improvements by draining, walling, building, liming, or manuring, as they should think proper," the trustees had no power to rebuild the mansion-house (d). But under a power to "improve the estate by erecting farm-houses and out-buildings, or by draining and planting," it was held that the trustees could erect agricultural cottages (e). And where the trustees of a term of 1000 years were specially authorised to keep the premises in good repair and "generally to superintend the management" of the estate, the Court held that the latter words conferred a general power without limit, that is, according to the discretion of the trustees, and allowed the sums expended by them in erecting and repairing farm-houses and buildings, in draining, fencing, sinking wells, putting up pumps, constructing a bridge, and forming, repairing, and altering roads (f). If trustees, without any special power to authorise it, lay out money in improving the estate (as in building a villa upon ground intended to be a Generally.

[(a) Re Barney, (1894) 3 Ch. 562; Re Lever, (1897) 1 Ch. 32; and see Re Legh's Settled Estates, (1902) 2 Ch. 274; and see Re Farnham's Trusts, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 561, where an inquiry was directed to ascertain what part of the works was in the nature of permanent improvements, and for that part at all events assignees of the life interest, who had caused the works to be executed, were held to be entitled to a charge in subrogation to the trustee; and see Re Pizzi, (1907) 1 Ch. 607, (where the works were under the Private Street Works Act, 1892).]

(b) Bridge v. Brown, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 181; and see Attorney-General v. Geary, 3 Mer. 513; Gilliland v. Crawford, 4 Ir. R. Eq. 35; [Re Gerard's Settled Estates, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 252, ante, p. 675, note].

(c) Maclaren v. Stainton, M.R., March 14, 1866, MS.; [and see Re Colyer, 55 L.T. N.S. 344; 50 L. J. Ch. 79].

(d) Bleazard v. Whalley, 2 Eq. Rep. 1093; see ante, p. 632.

(e) Lord Rivers v. Fox, 2 Eq. Rep. 776.

(f) Bowes v. Earl of Strathmore, 8 Jur. 92.

building ground, and which object they are advised will be promoted by the erection of the villa), they cannot justify the expenditure, but on the other hand, the cestuis que trust cannot take the benefit and repudiate the whole outlay, but the trustees will be liable only for the loss to the estate (a). [And where the mansion-house had been burnt down and the trustee applied a large sum, in addition to the insurance moneys, in restoring the mansion-house, the Court was of opinion that it had no jurisdiction to order a sale or mortgage of the settled estates to raise the amount of the outlay, or to authorise the expenditure, for the restoration, of moneys which were subject to a trust for reinvestment in land; but it appearing that the estate had been benefited to the full amount of certain funds in Court, which had arisen from the sale of part of the settled estates, Kay, J., sanctioned the application of those funds towards recouping the trustee, on the ground that the trustee having bonâ fide expended money for building on the estate, under a reasonable expectation that the Court would sanction the expenditure, and having improved the estate to the full amount of the funds in Court, might be recouped the amount so expended (b).] If the trust be to make repairs out of the rents, and the trustees borrow money to make the repairs, and then repay themselves out of the rents, they will not be allowed the interest on the money borrowed, for the trust was to apply the rents after they had accrued (c).

[Allowances to tenant for life.]

[13. Where trustees of a term are authorised to make improvements on the trust property, and to raise the sums required by mortgaging the hereditaments comprised in the term, or out of the rents, issues, and profits, and subject to the term the property is strictly settled, the tenant for life is entitled to have the amount of income applied by the trustees in permanent improvements raised out of the corpus of the estates (d).

[Personal estate advanced for benefit of real estate.]

Where there was no power to manage or cultivate the real estate, and a farm was in hand, and no tenant could be found, the Court, on evidence that the outlay would be to the advantage of infant remaindermen, allowed 1000*l*., part of the personalty which was held on the same trusts as the realty, to be advanced to the tenant for life, who was one of the trustees, on his bond,

(a) Vyse v. Foster, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 309; affirmed 7 L. R. H. L. 318.

[(b) Jesse v. Lloyd, 48 L. T. N.S. 656.]

(c) Fazakerley v. Culshaw, 19 W. R. 793; 24 L. T. N.S. 773.

[(d) Re Marquess of Bute, 27 Ch. D. 196.]

he undertaking to expend it in stocking, taking, and cultivating the farm to the satisfaction of his co-trustee (a).]

Land Improvement Act.

14. By the Improvement of Land Act, 1864 (b), trustees in the actual possession or receipt of the rents or profits of land are enabled, by the 24th section, to apply for and make, in conformity with the provisions of the Act, the several improvements mentioned in the 9th section, such as drainage, reclamation of land, erection of farm buildings, planting, &c.

Cutting timber.

15. Where an estate was devised to A. and his heirs upon trust to settle on B. for life, subject to impeachment of waste, remainder to C. for life, without impeachment of waste, remainder to C.'s first and other sons in tail, and before any settlement was executed the trustee, with the concurrence of B. and C., cut down timber which showed symptoms of decay, Sir L. Shadwell said "he considered the timber to have been cut by the authority of the trustee, who had a superintending control over the estate; that it was not a wrongful act; and that the effect of it must be the same as if it had been done with the sanction of the Court" (c). And in a later case (d), the Court seemed to think that a tenant for life, impeachable for waste, would not be chargeable with interest during his own life as to such timber felled by him as the Court would have ordered to be cut, but that the onus would be on the tenant for life to make out that such was the case.

[Settled Land Act.]

[16. Now by the Settled Land Act, 1882, sect. 35, a tenant for life impeachable for waste may, on obtaining the consent of the trustees of the settlement or an order of the Court, cut and sell timber ripe and fit for cutting; but three fourth parts of the net

[(a) Re Household, 27 Ch. D. 553; and see Conway v. Fenton, 40 Ch. D. 512, 517, where the Court sanctioned expenditure in repairing buildings; and see ante, p. 592.]

(b) 27 & 28 Vict. c. 114. Extended by the Limited Owners Residences Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 56), to building and improvement of mansions; [and by 40 & 41 Vict. c. 31, to the construction and erection of reservoirs and other works of a permanent character for the supply of water; and by the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 30, to all improvements authorised by that Act, see s. 25, ante, p. 674. In Re Dunn's Settled Estate, W. N. 1877, p. 39, it was held that the sum to be charged under 33 & 34 Vict. c. 56, was not confined to two year's rental of the particular estate on which the mansion was to be built, but extended to two year's rental of all the estates comprised in the settlement. Kay, J., considered that s. 9 of the Act of 1864 was in some respects more extensive than s. 25 of the Act of 1882, but this view was dissented from by Cotton, L.J., see Re Newton, W. N., 1890, p. 24. As to the power of a tenant for life, with the consent of the owner of a rent-charge created under the Act of 1864, and without the intervention of the Board of Agriculture, to exonerate a part of the land, and charge the entire rent-charge on the remainder, see Re Earl of Strafford and Maples, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 235].

(c) Waldo v. Waldo, 7 Sim. 261; and see Gent v. Harrison, Johns. 517; Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 1 L. R. Eq. 656.

(d) Bagot v. Bagot, 32 Beav. 509; 2 New Rep. 297.

proceeds of the sale are to be set aside as capital money arising under the Act (a).

[Management of land and receipt and application of income during minority.]

17. In the case of instruments coming into operation after the 31st December, 1881, under which an infant, not being a married woman, is beneficially entitled to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of land or hereditaments corporeal or incorporeal, large powers of management during the minority of the infant have, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the instrument, been provided by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881. Sect. 42 of that Act enacts that:—

(1) If and as long as any person who would but for this section be beneficially entitled to the possession of any land is an infant, and being a woman is also unmarried, the trustees appointed for this purpose by the settlement, if any, or if there are none so appointed, then the persons, if any, who are for the time being under the settlement trustees with power of sale of the settled land (b) or of part thereof, or with power of consent to or approval of the exercise of such a power of sale, or if there are none, then any persons appointed as trustees for this purpose by the Court, on the application of a guardian or next friend of the infant, may enter into and continue in possession of the land; and in every such case the subsequent provisions of this section shall apply (c).

(2) The trustees shall manage or superintend the management of the land, with full power to fell timber or cut underwood from time to time in the usual course of sale, or for repairs or otherwise, and to erect, pull down, rebuild, and repair houses, and other buildings and erections, and to continue the working of mines, minerals, and quarries which have usually been worked, and to drain or otherwise improve the land or any part thereof, and to insure against loss by fire, and to make allowances to and arrangements with tenants and others, and to determine tenancies, and to accept surrenders of leases and tenancies, and generally to deal with the land in a proper and due course of management; but so that, where the infant is impeachable for waste, the trustees shall not commit waste, and shall cut timber on the same terms only, and subject to the same restrictions, on and subject to which the infant could, if of full age, cut the same (a).

[(a) If the timber is sold by the tenant for life along with the land the proceeds must be treated as capital money; Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317.]

[(b) Trustees appointed for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, and empowered by s. 60 of the Act of 1882 to exercise the powers of an infant tenant for life during his minority, are not thereby constituted "trustees with power of sale of the settled land" within the above enactment, so as to be entitled to possession of the infant's land as against his testamentary guardian: Re Helyar, (1902) 1 Ch. 391.]

[(c) The enactment applies to the case of an infant taking by descent: Re Cowley, (1901) 1 Ch. 38; Re Glover, (1899) 1 I. R. 337; Re Bradshaw, (1904) 1 I. R. 19.]

(3) The trustees may from time to time, out of the income of the land, including the produce of the sale of timber and underwood, pay the expenses incurred in the management, or in the exercise of any power conferred by this section, or otherwise in relation to the land, and all outgoings not payable by any tenant or other person, and shall keep down any annual sum, and the interest of any principal sum, charged on the land.

(4) The trustees may apply at discretion any income which, in the exercise of such discretion, they deem proper, according to the infant's age, for his or her maintenance, education, or benefit, or pay thereout any money to the infant's parent or guardian, to be applied for the same purposes. [Maintenance of infant.]

(5) The trustees shall lay out the residue of the income of the land in investment on securities on which they are by the settlement, if any, or by law, authorised to invest trust money, with power to vary investments; and shall accumulate the income of the investments so made in the way of compound interest, by from time to time similarly investing such income and the resulting income of investments; and shall stand possessed of the accumulated fund arising from income of the land and from investments of income on the trusts following (namely): [Accumulations of income.]

(i.) If the infant attains the age of twenty-one years, then in trust for the infant;

(ii.) If the infant is a woman and marries while an infant, then in trust for her separate use, independently of her husband, and so that her receipt after she marries, and though still an infant, shall be a good discharge; but accumulated fund is derived by descent, and not by purchase, or the infant is tenant for an estate in fee simple, absolute or determinable, then in trust for the infant's personal representatives, as part of the infant's personal estate; but the accumulations, or any part thereof, may at any time be applied as if the same were income arising in the then current year.

(iii.) If the infant dies while an infant, and being a woman without having been married, then, where the infant was, under a settlement, tenant for life, or by purchase tenant in tail or tail male or tail female, on the trusts, if any, declared of the accumulated fund by that settlement; but where no such trusts are declared, or the infant has taken the land from which the

[(a) By the Settled Land Act, 1882, the powers of cutting timber conferred on a tenant for life by that Act, may be exercised on behalf of an infant tenant for life or absolute owner, by the trustees of the settlement, or if there are none, by such person and in such manner as the Court, on the application of a testamentary guardian or other next friend of the infant, orders; see ss. 59, 60.]

(6) Where the infant's estate or interest is in an undivided share of land, the powers of this section relative to the land may be exercised jointly with persons entitled to possession of, or having power to act in relation to, the other undivided share or shares.]

Trustees authorised to oppose a bill in Parliament prejudicial to cestuis que trust.

18. Conservators of public works and similar quasi trustees are authorised to apply the funds under their control in opposing a bill in Parliament, the effect of which, if passed, would be injurious to the interests confided to them. "Every trustee," said Lord Cottenham, "is entitled to be allowed the reasonable and proper expenses incurred in protecting the property committed to his care. But if they have a right to protect the property from immediate and direct injury, they must have the same right where the injury threatened is indirect, but probable" (a).

Applications to Parliament.

19. On the other hand, quasi trustees, such as those before referred to, are not entitled to apply the funds of an existing undertaking in or towards the expense of obtaining other or larger Parliamentary powers (b).

[Settled Land Act.]

[By the Settled Land Act, 1882, it is provided that the Court may approve of any petition to Parliament, parliamentary opposition, or other proceeding to be taken for protection of settled lands, and may direct that any costs, charges, or expenses incurred in relation thereto be paid out of property subject to the settlement (c). Costs of proceedings in the House of Lords whereby a claim to a peerage was established, and which resulted in the recovery of estates settled on corresponding limitations, were allowed under the section (d).

(a) Bright v. North, 2 Ph. 220; Reg. v. Norfolk Commissioners of Sewers, 15 Q. B. 549; Attorney-General v. Andrews, 2 Mac. & G. 225; Attorney-General v. Eastlake, 11 Hare, 205; [Attorney-General v. Mayor of Brecon, 10 Ch. D. 204; Reg. v. White, 14 Q. B. D. 358, reversing S. C. 11 Q. B. D. 309; and see Leith Council v. Leith Harbour and Docks Commissioners, (1899) A.C. (H.L.) 508].

(b) Attorney-General v. Andrews, 2 Mac. & G. 225; Vance v. East Lancashire Railway Company, 3 K. & J. 50; Attorney-General v. Guardians of the Poor of Southampton, 17 Sim. 6; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Norwich, 16 Sim. 225; Stevens v. South Devon Railway Company, 13 Beav. 48; [Buckham v. Trustees of Whitehaven, 55 L. T. N.S. 694].

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 36; and see to the like effect the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 18), s. 17.]

[(d) Re Earl of Aylesford, 32 Ch. D. 162. As to allowance of such costs independently of statute, see post, Chap. XXV. s. 2.]

As to Insurance.

20. The duty of a trustee in reference to insuring the property was until recently not very clearly defined; it was conceived that] under special circumstances, and in due course of management, he would be justified in insuring (a); but that where there was a tenant for life, he could not be advised to do so out of the income without the tenant for life's consent. [But now by the Trustee Act, 1893 (b), sect. 18, it is enacted that "a trustee may insure against loss or damage by fire any building or other insurable property (c) to any amount (including the amount of any insurance already on foot) not exceeding three equal fourth parts of the full value of such building or property, and pay the premiums for such insurance out of the income thereof or out of the income of any other property subject to the same trusts, without obtaining the consent of any person who may be entitled wholly or partly to such income"; but the section does not apply to the case of a trustee who is bound forthwith to convey absolutely to any beneficiary (d).]

By mortgagee.

If an annuity and a policy on the life of the cestui que vie be made the subject of a settlement, it is implied that the trustee is to pay the premiums out of the income (e). A mortgagee is not regarded as a trustee; and if, in the absence of any stipulation on the subject, he effects an insurance, it is on his own account, and he cannot claim to be entitled to the premiums under just allowances. It is the same as if a lessor or lessee insured, in which case the other would have no claim to the benefit of the policy (f).

Breaking up testator's establishment.

21. An executor is allowed a reasonable time for breaking up the testator's establishment, and a period of two months in one case was considered not to be excessive (g). Executors, as a general rule, do not pay legacies until the expiration of one year from the testator's death; but this is a rule of convenience,

(a) Ex parte Andrews, 2 Rose, 412; and see Fry v. Fry, 27 Beav. 146.

[(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, reproducing s. 7 of the Trustee Act, 1888.]

[(c) This expression includes heirlooms, see Re Earl of Egmont's Trusts, (1908) 1 Ch. 821, ante, p. 330.]

[(d) Where trustees insured a mansion-house, and settled chattels and furniture by two separate policies, the infant tenant for life was entitled to the whole of the policy moneys payable in respect of the chattels; but the remaindermen were entitled to have the policy moneys recovered on the house policy applied in rebuilding; Re Quicke's Trusts, (1908) 1 Ch. 887.]

(e) Darcy v. Croft, 9 Ir. Ch. Rep. 19.

(f) Dobson v. Land, 8 Hare, 216; and see Ex parte Andrews, 2 Rose, 410; Phillips v. Eastwood, Ll. & G. t. Sugden, 289. [But see Lord Cranworth's Act (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145), s. 11; since repealed and its place supplied by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 19, sub-s. 1 (ii.), conferring a power to insure where the mortgage is by a deed not expressing a contrary intention.]

(g) Field v. Peckett (No. 3), 29 Beav. 576.

and, therefore, if the assets be clearly sufficient for payment of debts and legacies, there is nothing to prevent the executors from discharging the legacies before the expiration of the year (a).

[Carrying on trade of testator.]

[22. As it is the duty of executors to realise their testator's estate to the best advantage, they may carry on his business for such reasonable time as is necessary to enable them to sell it as a going concern (b), and if they do so, may be entitled even as against the testator's creditors to an indemnity out of the estate in respect of liabilities properly incurred (c); and, as regards beneficiaries under the will, a power in the executors to carry on the business for a reasonable time may be implied from a general power to postpone the sale and conversion of the estate, although the business is not specially referred to (d). But, except for such purpose of realisation, executors are not justified in continuing to carry on the testator's business unless there is a distinct and positive direction and authority given by the will to that effect (e), nor can the Court, where infants are interested, authorise an administrator to carry on the trade of the intestate (f).

[Power to postpone sale.]

Where a will contained an express reference to the testator's business, and a general power to the trustees and executors to postpone sale and conversion "for such period as to them should seem expedient," it was held that there was an implied power to carry on the business until sale, and that the trustees were justified in having carried it on for twenty-two years (g); but where there was a special direction for sale of the business with all convenient speed, and a general power to postpone sale for so long as the trustees should think fit, it was held that the trustees would not be justified in carrying on the business indefinitely, but, under the circumstances, the Court authorised the continuance of it for two years from the testator's death (h).

[Indemnity of executors where business properly carried on.]

Where the testator's business has been properly carried on (a) Angerstein v. Martin, 1 T. & R. 241, per Lord Eldon; Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Sch. & Lef. 12, per Lord Redesdale; and see Garthshore v. Chalie, 10 Ves. 13.

[(b) Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 356, 365, 366, per Romilly, M.R.; Garrett v. Noble, 6 Sim. 504; Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A. C. 190. As to the carrying on of a business under the Public Trustee Act, 1906, see ante Chap. XXIII. p. 703.]

[(c) Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A.C. 190, 199, per Lord Herschell.]

[(d) Re Chancellor, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 42.]

[(e) Kirkman v. Booth, 11 Beav. 273; Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 356; and see Re Sykes, (1909) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 241, observing upon Smith v. Langford, 2 Beav. 362.]

[(f) Laud v. Laud, 43 L. J. Ch. 311.]

[(g) Re Crowther, (1895) 2 Ch. 56.]

[(h) Re Smith, (1896) 1 Ch. 171.]

in accordance with the provisions of the will and with the assent of the creditors, and in their interest as well as in that of the beneficiaries, the executors will be entitled, in priority to creditors, to indemnity out of the general estate, and not merely out of that portion of the assets which has come into existence since the testator's death (a); and this principle is applicable where, in the absence of an express power in the will, the business is carried on under the direction of the Court in an administration action (b).

[Execution against trust chattels.]

As a Court of Equity will never take trust property out of the hands of the trustee without seeing that his costs and expenses are reimbursed to him, the trustee carrying on his testator's business is entitled to a primâ facie lien on goods forming part of the assets of the business, and this lien will pass on his bankruptcy to his trustee in bankruptcy, and, in the absence of evidence as to the state of account between the bankrupt and the trust estate, will prevail as against an execution creditor suing in respect of a personal debt of the bankrupt (c).

[Special direction in will.]

In a case in Ireland (d), it was held that a general bequest in the will of a trader to trustees upon trust to permit his wife to carry on his business, so long as she should remain a widow, empowered the trustees to allow her to use the property employed by the testator himself in the trade, and that the assets, to the extent of such property, were liable to pay for goods supplied to the testator's widow for the trade carried on by her; and where a will contained a direction that the testator's business was to be carried on for a specified time, without any actual disposition of his property beyond a direction for the payment by the executors of certain legacies, the executors were held to be entitled, so long as the business was carried on for the purposes of the will, to the free use and occupation of the business premises and the fixed plant and machinery without paying any rent for the same (e). Where a testator gave all his real and personal estate to trustees upon trust for sale and conversion, and

[(a) Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A. C. 190, varying the decision of the Court of Appeal, 40 Ch. D. 536; Hodges v. Hodges, (1899) 1 I. R. 480; and as to the priority of this right of indemnity over the plaintiff legatee's costs of action, and the right of the trade creditors by subrogation, see Moore v. McGlyn, (1904) 1 I. R. 334.]

[(b) Re Brooke, (1894) 2 Ch. 600; but not where there is an administration decree only, and no direction authorising the carrying on of the business: M'Aloon v. M'Aloon, (1900) 1 I. R. 367.]

[(c) Jennings v. Mather, (1902) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 1.]

[(d) Gallagher v. Ferris, 7 L. R. Ir. 489; and see Re Johnson, 15 Ch. D. 548; Strickland v. Symons, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 245; Boylan v. Fay, 8 L. R. Ir. 374.]

[(e) Re Cameron, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 19.]

empowered them to carry on his business and employ therein all the capital invested therein at his death, and to increase or abridge the business and his capital therein, an equitable mortgage by the trustees of the testator's real estate to raise moneys which were applied for the purposes of the business, was held to be within their powers (a).]

Appropriation of legacy.

23. An executor may appropriate a legacy without the necessity of a suit, where the appropriation is such as the Court itself would have directed (b); [and an administrator may appropriate part of the estate to his own share as one of the next of kin (c). By the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (d), personal representatives are empowered to appropriate any part of the residuary estate, which under that Act includes land, in or towards satisfaction of any legacy.

[Contingent legacy without interest.]

Where a legacy is given upon a contingency, but without interest in the meantime, so that it cannot be inferred that the testator intended that a fund should be set apart and invested to answer the legacy, it is not competent for the executor or trustee to appropriate an investment to the legacy, so as to throw upon the legatee any loss by depreciation in value previously to the happening of the contingency (e).

[Trust legacy.]

Where a legacy is to be held by the executors upon trust, and the will is silent as to the mode of investment, the powers of the Trustee Act, 1893 (f), will be applicable, so that an investment in the securities authorised by the Act will be a proper mode of appropriation (g). Where several legacies are given, the executors may be justified in setting aside one entire amount without dividing it into portions, but the proper course, as a general rule, is to invest each particular sum in separate

[(a) Re Dimmock, 52 L. T. N.S. 494.]

(b) Hutcheson v. Hammond, 3 B. C. C. 128, see 145, 148; and see Cooper v. Douglas, 2 B. C. C. 231; Roper on Legacies, 4th ed. 931; [Re Lepine, (1892) 1 Ch. 210].

[(c) Barclay v. Owen, 60 L. T. N.S. 220; as to appropriation of shares of residue, see post, p. 740; and as to an executor converting himself into a trustee, ante, p. 228.]

[(d) 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65, s. 4, sub-s. 1.]

[(e) Re Hall, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 226, q.v. per Romer, L.J., at p. 233, as to the course to be adopted in such a case in order that the administration of the estate may be proceeded with.]

[(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53; see ante, p. 362.]

[(g) It may be observed that it must not be assumed that a general power of investment contained in the will is applicable to the investment of the particular fund, although it may occur, as in Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, that such general power is wide enough to cover all the purposes of the will requiring investment. The question must necessarily turn upon the construction of the will. Where there is a general investment clause containing prohibitory words, the safe course is for the trustees to keep within the terms of that clause, as well as within the statutory power. See ante, p. 367.]

investments, and such investments should not be varied without reasonable cause (a). As the question whether an appropriation has been made is necessarily one of fact, and may be one of difficulty, it is obviously desirable that evidence of the appropriation should be preserved, and that distinct notice of it should be given to all the beneficiaries who are sui juris. The wishes and opinions of the tenants for life may properly be taken into consideration, so long as no undue favour is shown to them at the expense of the remaindermen (b).

[Effect of appropriation.]

Where an appropriation has been validly made it will be binding on the beneficiaries, who will alike share in any increment in value, and bear any loss arising from depreciation, of the investments of the severed fund (c), and thereafter there can be no community of loss or gain between appropriated legacies inter se as to either income or capital (d); nor can the trustees claim any right of indemnity for subsequent loss as against the general trust estate (e). But an appropriation by means of an investment on an unauthorised security, as, for instance, on an equitable mortgage effected by the executors, when the will authorised investments on legal mortgages only, cannot stand (f).

[Bequest of unascertained sum.]

Where the testator, instead of bequeathing a particular sum, directs the executors to set apart a sufficient sum on specified securities to answer a particular purpose, there can be no fund to which the powers of the Trustee Act, 1893, are applicable, until the directions of the will have been observed. Thus, where a testator empowered the trustees of his will to set apart and invest on any of the investments thereby authorised, such a sum as would be sufficient at the time of investment to satisfy an annuity, it was held that the trustees would not be justified in making an investment for that purpose in India 3½ per cent. stock, which was not one of the investments authorised by the will (g).]

[Ex. gr., to provide an annuity.]

[(a) Re Walker, 59 L. J. Ch. 386.]

[(b) Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, 864, 878.]

[(c) Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, 865, 878, citing Roper on Legacies, 4th ed. p. 942; Re Waters, W. N. 1889, p. 39, where Kay, J., referring to the authorities last cited, said that it was clear that where a deferred legacy was bonâ fide set apart by an executor, the legatees must take it "for better or worse," and his lordship added (though the words do not appear in the report), "If the security improves in value, so much the better; if it deteriorates the loss must be theirs; but the executors have full power to make the appropriation without coming to the Court for an authority so to do, and when it is done, it is final and conclusive, and binding upon everybody. That is the undoubted law." And see Re Richardson, (1896) 1 Ch. 512.]

[(d) Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, at p. 865, per Lord Selborne.]

[(e) S. C.]

[(f) Re Waters, ubi sup.]

[(g) Re Owthwaite, (1891) 3 Ch. 494. Where an annuity is a charge upon Maintenance.

24. A trustee may expend sums of money for the protection and safety, or support, of a cestui que trust who is incapable of taking care of himself, but the more prudent course is to apply to the Court (a).

Out of interest.

25. If a legacy be left to an infant, and the Court, upon application, would, from the inability of the parent to support his child, order maintenance out of the interest, the trustee, should he make advances for that purpose without suit, would be allowed them in his account (b). In the case of Andrews v. Partington (c), Lord Thurlow refused to indemnify the trustee; but the authority of that decision has been repeatedly denied, and may be considered as overruled (d). And the maintenance of each year need not be confined to the interest of that year, but the trustee will be allowed in his accounts to set off the gross amount of the maintenance against the gross amount of the interest (e).

[Conveyancing Act, 1881.]

[Now by the 43rd sect. of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (f), it is provided as follows:—

(1) "Where any property is held by trustees (g) in trust for an infant, either for life, or for any greater interest, and whether absolutely, or contingently on his attaining the age of twenty-one years, or on the occurrence of any event before his attaining that age, the trustees may at their sole discretion pay to the infant's parent or guardian, if any, or otherwise apply for or towards the infant's maintenance, education, or benefit the income of that property, or any part thereof, whether there is the whole personal estate of a testator, it seems clear that the executor cannot affect the legatee's right to the entire annuity by any appropriation; Williams on Executors, 9th ed. p. 1259. Where an annuity is payable out of the clear residuary estate of a testator, the Court has jurisdiction, notwithstanding the opposition of the annuitant, to set apart a sufficient sum to answer the annuity, and pay the balance to the residuary legatees; Harbin v. Masterman, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 351.]

(a) Duncombe v. Nelson, 9 Beav. 211; and see Chester v. Rolf, 4 De G. M. & G. 798, and cases there cited; [and Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. p. 261].

(b) Sisson v. Shaw, 9 Ves. 285; Prince v. Hine, 26 Beav. 634; [and for a consideration of the rules by which the Court is guided in granting maintenance to infants under its inherent jurisdiction, see Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. pp. 261, et seq.].

(c) 3 B. C. C. 60.

(d) See Sisson v. Shaw, 9 Ves. 288; Maberly v. Turton, 14 Ves. 499; Lee v. Brown, 4 Ves. 369; Ex parte Darlington, 1 B. & B. 241; Cotham v. West, 1 Beav. 381.

(e) Carmichael v. Wilson, 3 Moll. 79; Edwards v. Grove, 2 De G. F. & J. 210; [and see Re Wise, (1896) 1 Ch. 281].

[(f) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

[(g) Where residue is bequeathed to an infant, the executor, when the estate is cleared and the residue ascertained, becomes trustee for the infant within the meaning of the section; Re Smith, 42 Ch. D. 302; an administrator cum testamento annexo may be a "trustee" within the meaning of this section; Re Adams, (1906) W. N. 220.]

any other fund applicable to the same purpose, or any person bound by law to provide for the infant's maintenance or education, or not.

(2) "The trustees shall accumulate all the residue of that income in the way of compound interest, by investing the same and the resulting income thereof from time to time on securities on which they are by the settlement, if any, or by law, authorised to invest trust money, and shall hold those accumulations for the benefit of the person who ultimately becomes entitled to the property from which the same arise (a); but so that the trustees may at any time, if they think fit, apply those accumulations or any part thereof, as if the same were income arising in the then current year.

(3) "This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument under which the interest of the infant arises, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to the provisions therein contained.

(4) "This section applies whether that instrument comes into operation before or after the commencement of this Act." The Act (b) repeals the corresponding section of Lord Cranworth's Act (c). [Lord Cranworth's Act.]

26. Upon the construction of the enactment of 1881, as of that for which it is substituted, various questions of difficulty have arisen. The consideration which first presents itself is as to the circumstances under which trustees can be said to hold property in trust for an infant in the manner indicated in the section. [Construction of Acts attended with difficulty.]

27. The corresponding section in Lord Cranworth's Act, the wording of which was very similar, was held to be confined to cases of absolute and contingent gifts, and not to apply to the case of a gift absolute in the first instance, but liable to be defeated in the event of the legatee not attaining twenty-one. In such a case the accumulations of income were held to belong to the infant's estate, notwithstanding his death under age (d). It may be doubted whether that case was not intended to be covered by the enactment, but it does not fall within the strict letter of it, and it would seem that no distinction can be drawn in this respect between the language of the corresponding sections in Lord Cranworth's Act and the Conveyancing Act of 1881. [Income of gift absolute in form but liable to be defeated.]

[(a) As to the meaning of these words see Re Scott, referred to post, p. 729.]

[(b) See s. 71.]

[(c) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 26.]

[(d) Re Buckley's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 583.]

[Income of contingent gift.]

28. Where the infant was entitled contingently on his attaining twenty-one, or on some event before his attaining that age, to a legacy carrying interest in the meantime, the power of maintenance in Lord Cranworth's Act applied (a), as does also the power under the Conveyancing Act; but where a further contingency is involved in the gift, as, in addition to attaining twenty-one, the contingency of surviving a particular person, the case does not come within either of the enactments, and neither the trustees nor the Court can apply the income for maintenance, and there is no obligation to accumulate (b).

[Contingent legacy not carrying interest.]

29. Another question which arises is, whether, under sect. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, an infant is entitled to maintenance out of the income of property to which he is entitled contingently on his attaining twenty-one, in a case where, independently of the section, he could never have become entitled to such income; as for instance in the case of a pecuniary legacy, given by a person not the parent or in loco parentis, to an infant contingently on his attaining twenty-one. By Lord Cranworth's Act, where an infant was contingently entitled to property, the trustees were empowered to apply towards his maintenance and education "the whole or any part of the income to which such infant might be entitled in respect of such property"; and it was held in Re George (c), that this power did not extend to the case of a contingent pecuniary legacy not carrying interest until the time of payment. In this state of the law, the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, was passed, and sect. 43 omitted the words, "to which such infant might be entitled in respect of such property," but notwithstanding the variation in the language of the Act of 1881, it has been held by the Court of Appeal, affirming Kay, J., that the section does not apply to the case of a pecuniary legacy given by a person not a parent or in loco parentis to an infant contingently on his attaining twenty-one, followed by a residuary gift. Cotton, L.J., was of opinion that there is in such a case no property held in trust for an infant within the meaning of the section, until the time arrives for severing the legacy from the residue, i.e. until the infant attains twenty-one; while Fry, L.J., though expressing his assent to this view, preferred to rest his judgment on the ground that the gift of residue which, independently of the section, carries the income accruing during the minority to the residuary legatee, is a sufficient expression of a contrary intention within sub-sect. 3, to take the case out of the Act (a).

[(a) Re Cotton, 1 Ch. D. 232.]

[(b) Re Judkin's Trusts, 25 Ch. D. 743; see Tuthill v. Tuthill, (1902) 1 I. R. 429, where the Court appointed the trustees to be trustees for the purposes of s. 42 (v. sup. p. 716), so as to enable them in their discretion to apply the share of income and accumulations of their infant cestui que trust for his benefit.]

[(c) 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 837.]

From this and subsequent decisions, it appears that in considering whether the section is applicable where a legacy is contingent, it is necessary to ascertain in the first instance, upon the construction of the will (b), whether the infant, on the happening of the event, will become entitled to the interim income as well as to the capital. If he will not, then the section has no application. If he will, then by what has been described by the late Lord Justice Kay as "very arbitrary legislation" (c), income to which the infant may in event never become entitled is made by the section applicable for his maintenance. Upon the question of construction, it appears to be well settled, that where a legacy is given, by one who is not in loco parentis, to an infant simpliciter on the happening of a contingent event, the interim income accruing before the event happens does not pass (d), but that where the donor is in loco parentis to the infant, or the subject matter of the gift is residue (e), or is severed from the general estate for the benefit of the legatee, the income, on the happening of the event, passes with the capital, and the section is accordingly applicable (f). Such a severance is deemed to have taken place wherever a fund is directed to be invested and held by trustees on certain trusts, or is otherwise set apart for the benefit of the infant legatee (g), but where trustees were directed to "raise and pay" the legacies at a particular time, and upon the construction of the will it appeared that the direction was given for convenience of administration rather than the benefit of the legatees, it was held that there was no such severance (h). Though a legacy to an infant contingently on his attaining twenty-one bears interest from the testator's death, it is none the less contingent, and if the infant dies under twenty-one, the surplus income not applied for his maintenance does not pass to his representatives (i).

[Effect of the recent decisions.]

[(a) Re Dickson, 28 Ch. D. 291, 297; affirmed 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 331.]

[(b) Re Holford, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 30, 49.]

[(c) Re Holford, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 30, 52.]

[(d) See Re Clements, (1894) 1 Ch. 665, 669; Re Woodin, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 309, 316, and cases there referred to.]

[(e) Genery v. Fitzgerald, Jac. 468; Earl of Bective v. Hodgson, 10 H. L. Cas. 656; 1 H. & M. 376; Re Holford, (ubi sup.).]

[(f) Re Woodin, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 309; Kidman v. Kidman, 40 L.J. Ch. 358; Re Medlock, 55 L. J. Ch. 738; 54 L. T. 828; Johnson v. O'Neil, 3 L. R. Ir. 476; Re Clements, (1894) 1 Ch. 665.]

[(g) Re Woodin, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 309, 317.]

[(h) Re Inman, (1893) 3 Ch. 518.]

[(i) Re Bowlby, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 685.]

Where there was a gift of residuary personal estate among a class of persons contingently on their attaining twenty-one, it was held by North, J., on the authority of a decision very briefly reported (a), that the whole income belonged exclusively to those members of the class who had attained that age at the time when it accrued, and that therefore there was no scope for the application of the section (b), but this decision was questioned (c), and has now been overruled by the Court of Appeal, and it has been held that in such a case, the members of the class as they respectively attain twenty-one take the income of their respective shares, and that the income of the shares of those who from time to time are infants is applicable for their maintenance under the section (d).

[Where property held for an infant for life.]

30. The section of the Conveyancing Act gives rise to this further question; the power applies to the case of "property held in trust for an infant for life," but the surplus accumulations are to be held "for the benefit of the person who ultimately becomes entitled to the property from which the same arise" (e). It has been thought to be difficult (f), without construing the word "property" in different senses in the same section, to attach any other meaning to these words than that the accumulations are to be added to and go with the corpus of the property, a construction which would have the effect of depriving an infant, who has an absolute life interest, of the income accrued during his minority, and not required for his maintenance.

However, in a case (g) where an infant was tenant for life of a share of residue, North, J., relying on the authority of Re Buckley's Trusts (h), held that on attaining her majority the infant became absolutely entitled to the accumulations of the past income of her share, and observed that he was by no means satisfied that the expression "the property from which the accumulations arise," did not refer to the income from which

[(a) Furneaux v. Rucker, W.N. (1897) 135. In Re Woodin, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 309, 318, Kay, L.J., expressed the hope that this case would not be cited again as an authority for anything.]

[(b) Re Jeffery, (1891) 1 Ch. 671; Re Adams, (1893) 1 Ch. 329.]

[(c) Re Burton, (1892) 2 Ch. 38.]

[(d) Re Holford, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 30; and see Re Jeffery, (1895) 2 Ch. 577.]

[(e) Similar words occur in Lord Cranworth's Act, and their occurrence formed a ground for the decision in Re Buckley's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 583, where Fry, J., observed that if he were to extend that Act to a defeasible legacy he should deprive a person defeasibly entitled to the principal, of the interest he would otherwise be entitled to.]

[(f) The difficulty may have arisen from the language of Lord Cranworth's Act (which did not apply to a life interest), having been copied without the appropriate modification, and see Re Humphreys, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 1, 8.]

[(g) Re Wells, 43 Ch. D. 281.]

[(h) 22 Ch. D. 583.]

the accumulations had arisen, that it was not necessary to say that "property" meant capital exclusively (a), and that "the object of the Conveyancing Act was to shorten and simplify conveyances, and it was not intended to alter the devolution of property"; but in a recent case in the Court of Appeal, where there was a similar gift of an immediate vested life interest in a share of residue, the Court, while leaving the point of construction suggested by North, J., open until the necessity for deciding it arose, and acquiescing in the view that the statutory provision was not intended to alter the rights of the infant, preferred to base their decision on the ground that the terms of the gift showed such a contrary intention within sub-sect. 3 of sect. 43 as to preclude any conversion of the income given to the infant into capital (b). In the most recent case on the subject it was held that the words of sub-section 2 are to be construed as equivalent to "shall hold those accumulations for the benefit of the person who in the events which happen becomes entitled to the property (namely the income) from the accumulation of which the accumulations arise," and therefore a daughter, whose share is to be retained on trust for her for life, and afterwards for her children, is entitled to the accumulations of income existing when her share becomes vested in her on her attaining twenty-one (c); but this decision has been disapproved by the Court of Appeal, and it has been held that these words mean "the property the income arising from which has been accumulated," so that if the contingent legacy is settled, the surplus income and accumulations thereof form an accretion to the original legacy, and the tenant for life, on the happening of the contingency, is entitled only to the interest during his life arising from the aggregate amount (d).

[Past maintenance.]

31. The opinion has been expressed that under the recent enactment trustees have a discretionary power to apply past accumulations of income in payment for past maintenance (e).

[Contrary intention.]

32. A direction to trustees to accumulate the income of the shares of children who are entitled contingently on their attaining twenty-one, or being daughters on attaining that age or

[(a) The suggested construction seems to be not inconsistent with the natural import of the words "property," "income," and "accumulations," and would, if it could be adopted, make the section easy of application, inasmuch as the accumulations would simply follow the destination, whatever it might be, of the unspent income from which they had arisen.]

[(b) Re Humphreys, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

[(c) Re Scott, (1902) 1 Ch. 918.]

[(d) Re Bowlby, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 685.]

[(e) Re Pitt's Settlement, W. N. 1884, p. 225; but see S. C. Ib. p. 242, showing that the question did not in fact arise.]

marrying, and to pay the same to them as and when their presumptive shares become payable, is not the expression of a contrary intention within sub-sect. 3 of sect. 43 (a).

[Concurrent powers under the recent Act.]

33. It is to be observed that cases may easily arise in which the trustees would be in a position to exercise either the powers of sect. 42, or those of sect. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, as for instance if under an instrument coming into operation since the 31st December, 1881, real estate were vested in them in trust for an infant for life, and the trustees had a power of sale or of consenting to the exercise of a power of sale.

Having regard to the recent decisions, it is not certain that any case can arise in which the ultimate destination of accumulations of income under the two sections would be different, but sect. 42 contains provisions applicable to the case of a female infant who marries while an infant, which are not to be found in sect. 43. It is conceived that wherever the infant is beneficially entitled to the possession of land, the income of which is received by the trustees, they will be treated as having entered into possession under sect. 42, but that other cases, where the trustees merely receive the income as legal owners, and are not called upon to exercise any of the powers of sect. 42, must be regarded as governed by sect. 43.]

Maintenance out of principal.

34. Where the amount of an infant's legacy is inconsiderable, as 100*l.*, the Court would, in the absence of other means, direct maintenance to the child out of the principal itself (b); the executor therefore, who, under similar circumstances, but without the authority of the Court, breaks in upon the capital, would not be liable, on the cestui que trust's coming of age, to account for the expenditure (a). But where payments of this kind, which were not strictly authorised, were made by executors or trustees, and the propriety of them was questioned in a suit, and there was a deficiency of assets, the costs of suit had priority over the allowances to the executors or trustees (b). Where the legacy was not more than 300*l*., Sir W. Grant determined that the trustee had exceeded his duty, and said his impression was that the rule had been never to permit trustees of their own authority to break in upon the capital (c); but the case of Barlow v. Grant, which is clearly to the contrary, must have escaped his Honour's recollection (d). The general rule is, however, not to break into capital for maintenance, and where the legacy is considerable, as 1000*l*., or the like, as the Court itself would most probably not order the application of part of the principal, the trustee would not be safe in exceeding of his own authority the amount of the interest (e).

[(a) Re Thatcher's Trusts, 26 Ch. D. 426; and see King Harman v. Cayley, (1899) 1 I. R. 39.]

(b) Ex parte Green, 1 J. & W. 253; Ex parte Chambers, 1 R. & M. 577; Ex parte Swift, Ib. 575; Re Mary England, Ib. 499; Harvey v. Harvey, 2 P. W. 21; Ex parte Hays, 3 De G. & Sm. 485. [In Re Howarth, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 415, the Lords Justices held that the Court had jurisdiction to order maintenance, where there were no other means, out of the corpus of an infant's freehold estate; and in De Witte v. Palin, 14 L. R. Eq. 251, V. C. Malins allowed maintenance to be raised by a charge on reversionary property; but the decision in Re Howarth was rested upon the ground that where a judgment can be obtained against an infant for necessaries, the Court can charge his real estate with the amount so recoverable; and in Re Hamilton, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 291, the Court of Appeal held that there was no jurisdiction to charge maintenance on a reversionary estate tail, inasmuch as such an estate could not be delivered in execution, and the principle of Re Howarth did not apply to it; and a similar view was also taken in Cadman v. Cadman, 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 397, where it was doubted whether the Court was warranted in making the order which was made in Re Howarth; and these cases have recently been followed; Re Hambrough, (1909) 2 Ch. 621.]

Maintenance where father alive.

35. Where the father of an infant is alive, trustees should, in granting maintenance, bear in mind that the Court never allows a father maintenance out of his children's property without a previous inquiry as to his ability to maintain them himself (f). The term ability, however, is relative to the position of the father and children; and maintenance has been allowed to a father who had 6000*l*. a year (g). And an express declaration in the instrument of trust, or a previous contract, as in the case of a marriage settlement to which the father is a party, may confer on the father a right to have maintenance for his children out of the settlement funds (h). But the decisions in this respect have gone as far as can be justified upon principle (i).

[In exercising their discretion trustees should consider what is most for the benefit of the infant, and they should not be deterred from doing what is for the infant's benefit, because it is also a

(a) Barlow v. Grant, 1 Vern. 255; Carmichael v. Wilson, 3 Moll. 79; Bridge v. Brown, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 181, 189.

(b) Robinson v. Killey, 30 Beav. 520.

(c) Walker v. Wetherell, 6 Ves. 473.

(d) See also Prince v. Hine, 26 Beav. 636.

(e) Barlow v. Grant, 1 Vern. 255, per Lord Guildford; Davies v. Austen, 1 Ves. jun. 247; S. C. 3 B. C. C. 178; Beasley v. Magrath, 2 Sch. & Lef. 35.

(f) See 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 26; [since repealed, and its place supplied by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 43].

(g) Jervoise v. Silk, 1 G. Coop. 52; Ex parte Williams, 2 Coll. 740; Culbertson v. Wood, 5 I. R. Eq. 23, see 41.

(h) Mundy v. Lord Howe, 4 B. C. C. 223; Meacher v. Young, 2 M. & K. 490; Stocken v. Stocken, 4 Sim. 152; 2 M. & K. 489; 4 M. & Cr. 95; White v. Grane, 18 Beav. 571; Ransome v. Burgess, 3 L. R. Eq. 773; Newton v. Curzon, 16 L. T. N.S. 696; [Malcolmson v. Malcolmson, 17 L. R. Ir. 69].

(i) Thompson v. Griffin, Cr. & Ph. 321, per Lord Cottenham; [Wilson v. Turner, 22 Ch. D. (C.A.) 521;] and see Re Kerrison's Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 422, the case of a voluntary settlement.

benefit to the father, though on the other hand they must not act with a view to the father's benefit apart from that of the infant (a).

Where there was a power of maintenance in the usual form in the discretion of the trustees, and the trustees, without exercising any discretion in the matter, paid the whole income to the father of the infant, it was held that the father's estate must account for the income received by him (b).

Where the father had borrowed money to enable him to keep his infant children at school, and was unable to repay the debt, the Court allowed him to be recouped the amount so borrowed as an allowance for past maintenance (c).]

After death of father.

36. It was formerly much doubted whether after the death of the father maintenance should be granted to the mother, so long as she continued a widow, without an inquiry as to her ability (d). But it was ruled that where she had married again there should be no inquiry as to ability, the second husband being, it was said, under no liability to maintain his wife's children (e). It has been since settled that no inquiry as to the mother's ability will be directed even during her widowhood (f); and as a widow is undoubtedly liable at law to maintain her children (g), the direction of the inquiry cannot be regarded as depending upon the legal liability. It would seem to follow that the enactment rendering a husband liable to maintain his wife's children by a former marriage (h) ought not to make (and it is believed that it has not in fact made) any alteration in the practice of the Court of granting maintenance where the mother has married again, without any inquiry as to ability.

[Where accumulation directed.]

[37. Where a testator left property to the value of 10,000*l.* a year to be accumulated for twenty-one years, and directed that the accumulations should be laid out in the purchase of lands which, after the expiration of the twenty-one years, were to be held for A. for life, and after his death for his sons in strict settlement, and A.'s income was insufficient to enable him to

[(a) Re Lofthouse, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 921, 932.]

[(b) Wilson v. Turner, 22 Ch. D. (C.A.) 521; and see Re Byrant, (1894) 1 Ch. 324.]

[(c) Davey v. Ward, 7 Ch. D. 754.]

(d) As to the mother's right to be recouped for past maintenance of a child, see Re Cottrell's Estate, 12 L. R. Eq. 566.

(e) Billingsly v. Critchet, 1 B. C. C. 268.

(f) Douglas v. Andrews, 12 Beav. 310; and see the note, p. 311.

(g) Poor Relief Act, 1601 (43 Eliz. c. 2), s. 6; Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834 (4 & 5 W. 4. c. 76), s. 56.

(h) 4 & 5 W. 4. c. 76, sect. 57.

bring up and educate his infant sons in a manner suitable to their prospective positions in life, V.C. Malins allowed him 2700*l.* a year out of the income of the property, with liberty to apply for an increased allowance, if necessary, when the children grew older (a); and this decision was followed by Pearson, J. (b). But in a case in Ireland where the circumstances were similar, the Court refused to follow the decision of V.C. Malins, and held that where there is an imperative trust to accumulate, it is the duty of the Court to carry out the testator's intention, and that the Court has no discretion to allow maintenance out of the income (c).

A direction by a testator that a specified yearly sum shall be allowed for the maintenance and education of an infant tenant in tail, and that surplus income shall be accumulated, is not necessarily to be taken as excluding an intention that the estate should be kept up and the infant maintained suitably to his position, and, the estate being considerable, a yearly sum very much larger than the specified sum may be allowed for keeping up the estate and maintenance of the infant (d).

[Interests of third parties protected.]

38. Where an accumulation has been directed by a testator, and the Court allows maintenance out of the accumulations, the order should be framed so as to protect the interests of third parties, by directing the interests of the infants in any legacy or share of residue to be held as a security for recouping any diminution in the accumulations (e).

Where an infant was entitled, contingently on her attaining twenty-one or marrying, to a large property, the Court sanctioned a scheme for providing for her past and future maintenance, by effecting a policy of assurance payable on her death before either attaining twenty-one or marrying under that age, and mortgaging the policy and charging the infant's contingent interest to secure the necessary advances and compound interest, but it was expressly provided that the interest of any person other than the infant was not to be affected (f).]

[(a) Havelock v. Havelock, 17 Ch. D. 807; and see Bennett v. Wyndham, 23 Beav. 521; and S. C. 4 De G. F. & J. 259.]

[(b) Re Collins, 32 Ch. D. 229.]

[(c) Kemmis v. Kemmis, 13 L. R. Ir. 372; affirmed 15 L. R. Ir. 90; following Shaw v. M'Mahon, 8 Ir. Eq. R. 584; and see Re Smeed, 54 L. T. N.S. 929; Re Alford, 32 Ch. D. 383; King Harman v. Cayley, (1899) 1 I. R. 39.]

[(d) Re Walker, (1901) 1 Ch. 879.]

[(e) Re Colgan, 19 Ch. D. 305; see this case, and Re Arbuckle, 2 Set. on Dec. 6th ed. 1002, for form of order providing for the recoupment.]

[(f) Re Bruce, 30 W. R. 922; and see Re Tanner, 53 L. J. N.S. Ch. 1108; 51 L. T. N.S. 507, as to adopting a similar course for the security of the other persons interested where an advance is required for an infant whose interest is only contingent.]

Advancement out of capital.

39. A part of the capital may be sunk by a trustee without the direction of the Court for the advancement of a child, where the same sums if expended for maintenance would not have been allowed (a). [But as an "advancement" is merely a payment before the time fixed for the obtaining of an absolute interest by the beneficiary, a power of advancement will not, in the absence of express words, be construed to authorise an advance out of corpus, where by the terms of the instrument the beneficiary can never become entitled to a share of corpus (b).]

Advancement when there is a limitation over.

40. A trustee cannot apply part of the principal towards the advancement of the child where the legacy is subject to a limitation over in favour of a stranger, for in such a case the Court itself could not make an order to that effect.

Thus in Lee v. Brown (c), where a testatrix gave 100*l.* to trustees upon trust to apply the produce to the maintenance and education of A. B., and when he should attain twenty-one to transfer to him the capital, but in case he died under that age the testatrix gave the legacy to his brother and sister equally, Lord Alvanley said: "It certainly was not competent under this trust to the executor, nor could he, if he had applied, have obtained permission from this Court, to advance any part of the capital of the legacy in putting the child out in the world; for if it had been such a case that the Court would have authorised the act that was done, I desire to be understood that it would be considered as properly done; for the principle is now established, that if an executor does without application what the Court would have approved, he shall not be called to account, and forced to undo that merely because it was done without application" (a). But where an infant was entitled on a contingency, and at a certain time which had not arrived there was a power of advancement, and the trustee took upon himself the risk as against the person entitled if the contingency did not happen, and applied part of the capital for the advancement of the infant, he was allowed it in his account as between him and the infant, who in the event became entitled (b).

(a) Swinnock v. Crisp, Freem. 78; Walker v. Wetherell, 6 Ves. 477; and see Ex parte M'Key, 1 B. & B. 405. [As to what purposes will fall under the description of advancement, see Boyd v. Boyd, 4 L. R. Eq. 305; Roper-Curzon v. Roper-Curzon, 11 L. R. Eq. 452; Re Gore's Settlement Trusts, W. N. 1876, p. 79; Taylor v. Taylor, 20 L. R. Eq. 155; Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. pp. 190, 191, 324 et seq.] In Taylor v. Taylor an advancement by way of portion was said to be something given by a parent to establish his child in life, a provision for him, and not a casual payment; [and this has been followed in Re Scott, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 1, see ante, p. 479]. Under portions would be ranked the following, viz. sums advanced on marriage (Lloyd v. Cocker, 27 Beav. 643), on setting up a child in business or putting him into a profession (Warr v. Warr, Prec. Ch. 213; Roper-Curzon v. Roper-Curzon, 11 Eq. 452), [paying an apprenticeship fee to a chartered accountant, Curtis v. Curtis, (1901) 1 I. R. 374], buying the goodwill of a business, and giving stock-in-trade, or supplying further capital for carrying on the business (Gilbert v. Wetherall, 2 S. & St. 254; Taylor v. Taylor, 20 L. R. Eq. 155), or paying the entrance fee to an Inn of Court with a view to the Bar (Boyd v. Boyd, 4 L. R. Eq. 305), or buying a commission and providing the outfit (Taylor v. Taylor, sup.; Boyd v. Boyd, sup.). So a large sum given to a child in one payment might be presumed, in the absence of evidence, to be an advancement by way of portion. But the qualities of a portion would not attach to small sums paid by a father to a child, whether an infant or adult (Morris v. Burroughs, 1 Atk. 403; Pusey v. Desbouverie, 3 P. W. 317, note (o); Re Peacock's Estate, 14 Eq. 236; Watson v. Watson, 33 Beav. 574), or to temporary assistance in the discharge of his debts, or to payment of his travelling expenses, as a passage to India, or to the payment of a fee to a special pleader (Taylor v. Taylor, sup.), which would come rather under preliminary education than advancement. [But in the case of Re Blockley, 29 Ch. D. 250, Pearson, J., dissented from the view that a sum given by a father to his son to enable him to pay his debts could not be treated as an advancement. And as to advances by way of portion under the Statute of Distributions, see Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. p. 190.]

[(b) Re Aldridge, 55 L. T. N.S. 554, 556.]

(c) 4 Ves. 362.

Where there are cross limitations amongst the children.

41. And where legacies were given to children payable at twenty-one or marriage, with a limitation over on the death of any child before attaining twenty-one or marriage, not in favour of a stranger, but for the benefit of such of the children as should attain twenty-one or marry, a trustee, who had paid a premium on the apprenticeship of a child who died under twenty-one, was allowed it by the Court (c). The case turned upon the same principle as where a legacy is given to a class, all or some of whom must take the fund absolutely, when, as all have an equal chance of survivorship, the individuals of the class will be ordered maintenance even before their shares in the fund have become actually vested (d). This power is exercised by the Court, but cannot be exercised by trustees without the authority of the Court, nor can the Court itself make such an order in a summary way without the institution of a suit (e).

[Power of advancement.]

[42. Where there is a power of advancement, the question of the propriety of any particular advance must necessarily depend on the wording of the power, and the extent of the discretion conferred on the trustees. With this discretion, as in the

(a) 4 Ves. 369.

(b) Worthington v. M'Craer, 23 Beav. 81; [and for instances in which advances have been allowed in the absence of a power, see Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. p. 325].

(c) Franklin v. Green, 2 Vern. 137. That the limitation over was for the benefit of the children is not mentioned in the report, but appears from Reg. Lib.

(d) See Rop. Leg. Chap. XX. s. 5; Greenwell v. Greenwell, 5 Ves. 194; Cavendish v. Mercer, cited Ib.; Brandon v. Aston, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 30; [Simpson on Infants, pp. 282, 326].

(e) Re Breeds' Will, 1 Ch. D. 226; [and see Re Lofthouse, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 921, 929].

analogous case of a power of maintenance (a), the Court will not readily interfere (b), though where the trustees fail to exercise the power, an inquiry has been directed as to the proper exercise of it (c). The trustees in exercising the discretion should, of course, regard the benefit of the cestui que trust as the primary consideration (d), but where it is clear that the proposed application will be beneficial to him, considerable latitude as to the mode of application may be permissible (e).

[Consent of tenant for life.]

Where the power is exercisable with the consent of the tenant for life, and the tenant for life becomes a bankrupt, his power of consenting is not extinguished, but can only be exercised with the consent of his trustee in bankruptcy acting under the directions of the Court of Bankruptcy (f).]

General power of advancing tenant for life.

Where trustees had a power to apply a moiety of a trust fund in or towards the preferment or advancement of the tenant for life, or otherwise for his benefit, in such a manner as they should in their discretion think fit, it was held that they might apply the moiety in payment of the debts of the tenant for life, the interest of which absorbed nearly the whole of his income, and the principal of which he was unable to pay out of his own resources (g). [So a power of applying the capital for the benefit and advancement in the world of the tenant for life, coupled with words showing that the power of advancement was a large one, has been held to justify applications of the trust funds for the benefit of the tenant for life which were not strictly advancements (h).

[Implied powers where no estate in land.]

43. Where powers of advancement and maintenance out of income of land were given to trustees, but no estate in the land itself, the Court implied powers of entry and revocation of uses

[(a) French v. Davidson, 3 Mad. 396; Livesey v. Harding, Taml. 460; Collins v. Vining, C. P. Coop. Rep. 1837-38, 472; Brophy v. Bellamy, 8 Ch. 798; Re Bryant, (1894) 1 Ch. 324; and other cases cited in s. 2 of this chapter.]

[(b) Edgeworth v. Edgeworth, Beatt. 328; Re Brittlebank, 30 W. R. 99.]

[(c) Lewis v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 162; Robinson v. Cleator, 15 Ves. 526; Kilvington v. Gray, 10 Sim. 293; and see Re Sanderson, 3 K. & J. 497.]

[(d) Simpson v. Brown, 13 W. R. 312; 11 L. T. N.S. 593.]

[(e) Thus in the case of a married daughter, an advance for setting up her husband in business has been allowed, Phillips v. Phillips, Kay, 40; Re Kershaw, 6 Eq. 322; but not for payment of the husband's debts, Talbot v. Marshfield, 3 Ch. 622; and see Molyneux v. Fletcher, 67 L. J. Q. B. 392 (where the husband was indebted to the trustee who was pressing for payment); and for other instances, see Simpson on Infants, 2nd ed. p. 327, and as to the mode in which applications to the Court for maintenance and advancement are to be made, Ib. p. 330.]

[(f) Re Cooper, 27 Ch. D. 565.]

(g) Lowther v. Bentinck, 19 L. R. Eq. 166; and see Re Breeds' Will, 1 Ch. D. 226; [Re Gore's Settlement Trusts, W. N. 1876, p. 79; Re Price, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 603, at p. 605].

[(h) Re Brittlebank, 30 W. R. 99.]

sufficient to enable them to execute the powers of advancement and maintenance (a).]

Debts barred by the Statute of Limitations.

44. An executor has never been held responsible for paying a debt due and owing from the testator's estate, the remedy for which has been barred by the Statute of Limitations; and upon the same principle he may retain his own debt though barred (b). But an executor is not at liberty to pay such a debt after a decree for the administration of the testator's estate, for from that time any other creditor, or even a legatee, specific, pecuniary, or residuary, may plead the statute in taking the accounts (c), except to the debt of a plaintiff in a creditor's suit, to which debt the defendant, the executor, did not plead the statute by his statement of defence, and on the basis of which the decree has been made (d). [Nor may an executor pay such a debt after a claim by the creditor in an administration action has been dismissed on the ground that the debt is barred by statute (e).] If after a decree neither the executor nor the parties beneficially interested before the Court plead the statute, the Court will not set up the statute on behalf of absent parties, but if the executor omits to plead the statute, it is at his own risk (f).

[Retainer of such debt not assisted by Court.]

[The Court will not assist a legal personal representative to retain a statute-barred debt, and where, by reason of the length of time which had elapsed before representation was taken out, an inquiry was directed in the presence of the representative as to the person entitled to a fund belonging to the deceased (g), the Court declined to pay the fund to the representative in order to enable him to exercise his right of retainer (h).

[Principle not to be extended.]

And as the principle of these cases, being an exception to the general rule that it is the duty of an executor to protect

[(a) Dean v. Dean, (1891) 3 Ch. 150.]

(b) Stahlschmidt v. Lett, 1 Sm. & G. 415; Hill v. Walker, 4 K. & J. 166; Hunter v. Baxter, 3 Giff. 214; Dring v. Greetham, 1 Eq. Rep. 442; Louis v. Rumney, 4 L. R. Eq. 451; [Midgley v. Midgley, (1893) 3 Ch. 282; Trevor v. Hutchins, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 844].

(c) See Fuller v. Redman, 26 Beav. 614; Shewan v. Vanderhorst, 1 R. & M. 347; 2 R. & M. 75; Dring v. Greetham, 1 Eq. Rep. 442; [Re Wenham, (1892) 3 Ch. 59].

(d) Adams v. Waller, 35 L. J. N.S. Ch. 727; 14 W. R. 789; 14 L. T. N.S. 727; Fuller v. Redman, (No. 2), 26 Beav. 614; Briggs v. Wilson, 5 De G. M. & G. 12; S. C. 2 Eq. Rep. 153; Ex parte Dewdney, 15 Ves. 496. [In Re Lacey, (1907) 1 Ch. 330, persons in the position of cestuis que trust of specifically devised real estate were held to come within the exception to this rule given by Turner, L.J., in Briggs v. Wilson (sup.), and so to be entitled to plead the statute against the plaintiff.]

[(e) Midgley v. Midgley, (1893) 3 Ch. 282.]

(f) Alston v. Trollope, 2 L. R. Eq. 205; S. C. 35 Beav. 466; and see Dring v. Greetham, 1 Eq. Rep. 442.

[(g) According to the principle of Loy v. Duckett, Cr. & Ph. 305, see ante, p. 566.]

[(h) Trevor v. Hutchins, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 844.]

the estate against demands which cannot be lawfully enforced, is anomalous, it will not be extended (a)].

Promise of subscription.

45. It sometimes happens that the deceased made some promise, written or verbal, to subscribe a certain sum for the promotion of some "charitable or public purpose." If nothing has been done in consequence of such promise, the executor or administrator must treat the promise as voluntary, and therefore null. [It has been said, and some authorities have been thought to lend countenance to the view, that if] other persons have acted on the faith of the promise, and would suffer loss if it were not observed, the executor or administrator would be justified in giving it effect (b). [But in a recent case where a testator promised to give 20,000*l.* to the Congregational Union in five annual instalments, and having paid three instalments, died, leaving the remaining instalments unpaid and unprovided for, and the Union had incurred liabilities in consequence of the promise, it was, nevertheless, held that there was no enforceable contract (c).

[When trustees may apply under Settled Estates Act.]

46. If an estate is vested in trustees, and there is not for the time being any beneficial owner of the rents and profits, the trustees are the proper persons to apply to the Court under the 23rd section of the Settled Estates Act, 1877, to exercise the powers conferred by the Act (d).]

Power to release or compound debts.

47. A trustee may, under circumstances, release or compound a debt (e). But if a trustee release or compound a debt without some sufficient ground in justification (f), or if he sell the debt for a grossly inadequate consideration (g), he will clearly be answerable to the cestuis que trust for the amount of the devastavit.

Lord Cranworth's Act.

Executors under wills executed after the 28th August, 1860, were expressly authorised "to accept any composition, or any security, real or personal, for any debts due to the deceased, and to allow any time for payment of any such debts as they should think fit, and also to compromise, compound, or submit to arbitration all debts, accounts, claims, and things whatsoever

[(a) Midgley v. Midgley, (1893) 3 Ch. 282, 299; Re Rownson, 29 Ch. D. 358, where it was held that an executor is bound to plead the Statute of Frauds.]

(b) See Cooper v. Jarman, 3 L. R. Eq. 98; Baxter v. Gray, 3 Man. & G. 771; Shallcross v. Wright, 12 Beav. 558.

[(c) Re Hudson, 33 W. R. 819.]

[(d) Vine v. Raleigh, 24 Ch. D. 238.]

(e) Blue v. Marshall, 3 P. W. 381; and see Ratcliffe v. Winch, 17 Beav. 216; Forshaw v. Higginson, 8 De G. M. & G. 827.

(f) Jevon v. Bush, 1 Vern. 342; Gorge v. Chansey, 1 Ch. Rep. 125; Wiles v. Gresham, 5 De G. M. & G. 770. A trustee is not liable for omitting to compound; Ex parte Ogle, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 715, per Cur.

(g) Re Alexander, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 137.

relating to the estate of the deceased, without being responsible for any loss to be occasioned thereby" (a). [But this section has been repealed, and its place is now supplied by the Trustee Act, 1893 (b), which as to executorships and trusts constituted or created either before or after the commencement of the Act, provides by sect. 21, that "an executor or administrator (c) may pay or allow any debt or claim on any evidence that he thinks sufficient"; and that "an executor or administrator, or two or more trustees, acting together, or a sole acting trustee where, by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, a sole trustee is authorised to execute the trusts and powers thereof, may, if and as he or they think fit, accept any composition, or any security, real or personal, for any debt or for any property, real or personal, claimed, and may allow any time for payment of any debt, and may compromise, compound, abandon, submit to arbitration, or otherwise settle any debt, account, claim, or thing whatever relating to the testator's or intestate's estate or to the trust," and may execute and do all such releases and things as may seem expedient without being responsible for any loss occasioned by anything done in good faith. But the section is subject to any contrary intention expressed in the instrument creating the trust. [Trustee Act, 1893.]

In exercising the powers of this section in a case where there are several trustees, it is conceived that all the trustees must act together, except in cases in which, independently of the section, a majority of the trustees are by law capable of binding the minority (d). It was not the object of the section to enable some of the trustees to act without the concurrence of their co-trustees.

It will be observed that the powers of this section are exercisable by a sole acting trustee only in cases where a sole trustee is by the instrument, if any, creating the trust "authorised to execute the trusts and powers thereof," but by the 22nd section (e), as to trusts created by instruments coming into operation after the 31st December, 1881, any trust or power vested in two or more trustees jointly, in the absence of a contrary intention in the instrument creating the trust or power, may be exercised or

(a) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 30. [This section was held not to be confined to claims in the nature of debts, but to extend to claims of legatees; Re Warren, 53 L. J. N.S. Ch. 1016; 51 L. T. N.S. 561; 32 W. R. 916.]

[(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 21, reproducing s. 37 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

[(c) The words "or administrator" were not in the Conveyancing Act.]

[(d) As to a majority binding a minority in charity trusts, see ante, pp. 635, 642; and see post, p. 747.]

[(e) Reproducing s. 38 of the Act of 1881.]

performed by the survivor for the time being, and it seems to follow that in the case of trusts falling within this section the powers of sect. 21 may be exercised by a sole surviving trustee.

This enactment has largely extended the powers of executors and trustees, and it would seem that in future the only question will be whether the executors or trustees have acted in good faith in relation to any of the matters authorised by the section.

[Discretion of executors.]

Independently of the enactment, executors have a discretion whether they will press a debtor for payment, and will not be held liable for wilful neglect or default if they have exercised their discretion honestly and fairly in giving time to a debtor, although loss may result from the delay (a); and it has recently been held that, in a proper case, it is competent to an executor to compromise the claim of his co-executor against the estate (b).]

Settlement with one residuary legatee.

48. Executors and trustees of a will, when they have discharged the funeral and testamentary expenses, debts and legacies, may come to a final account with any of the residuary legatees, [including one of themselves (c)] separately, and if such residuary legatee be paid only what is his fair share at the time, he will not be made to account to the other residuary legatees, if the undistributed part afterwards become depreciated or lost (d). [And it is competent for an executor or trustee to appropriate a mortgage belonging to the testator to a legatee of a share of residue in respect of his share, and such an appropriation, if made bonâ fide, will stand, though the legatee's legal title to the mortgage has not been completed by actual transfer (e). Where there is a trust for sale and conversion, the principle upon which this right of appropriation is based is that the executors and trustees have power to sell the particular asset to the legatee and to set off the purchase-money against the legacy; and the doctrine is not confined to pure personal estate, but extends to leaseholds, and, it would seem, to real estate which is subject to a trust for sale (f).]

Appropriation of residue.

49. Where the residue consists of a great variety of securities, the question arises whether the trustees, in the absence of any special power, can virtute officii, where infants are concerned, divide the residue by appropriating some securities to one residuary legatee and other securities to another, but so that

[(a) Re Owens, 47 L. T. N.S. 61.]

[(b) Re Houghton, (1904) 1 Ch. 622; but it was intimated that in such a case an executor would be well advised if he came to the Court for directions.]

[(c) Re Richardson, (1896) 1 Ch. 512.]

(d) Peterson v. Peterson, 3 L. R. Eq. 111; [Re Winslow, 45 Ch. D. 249; Re Lepine, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 210.]

[(e) Re Lepine, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 210; and see Re Nickels, (1898) 1 Ch. 630.]

[(f) Re Beverly, (1901) 1 Ch. 681.]

the distribution is a fair one according to the market price of the day of the funds so appropriated. [It has been held by Stirling, J., that trustees, acting fairly in the administration of the trust, do possess such a power (a); but in any case of difficulty it will be safer for them to resort to the Court, and obtain its sanction to the appropriation in the presence of parties separately representing the interests of the infants.] Where trustees are directed to invest the infants' share on any particular securities, they might, it would seem, accept securities of the nature prescribed at the market price, as the transaction when resolved would be the payment of so much money, and the investment of it by the trustees in the requisite securities. Where there are no special powers, the trustees [might be justified in turning] the whole of the irregular species of property into money, and dividing the proceeds.

[Where a testator directed sale and conversion of his estate, and empowered his trustees to postpone the sale and conversion and payment of legacies (which were numerous and many of them to infants), and declared that all legacies not paid within a year from his death should carry interest at 4 per cent., it was held that the trustees could not free the residue by setting apart proper securities to answer the legacies to infants, but could pay the legacies into Court under sect. 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (b), whereupon the clause as to interest would cease to operate (c).

[Appropriation under Land Transfer Act, 1897.]

By the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (d), sect 4, sub-s. 1, the personal representatives of a person dying on or after 1st January, 1898, are empowered in the absence of any express provision to the contrary contained in the will of the deceased person, with the consent of the person entitled to any legacy given by the deceased person, or to a share in his residuary estate, or, if the person entitled is a lunatic or an infant, with the consent of his committee, trustee, or guardian, to appropriate any part of the residuary estate of the deceased in or towards satisfaction of that legacy or share, and for that purpose to value, in accordance with the prescribed provisions, the whole or any part of the property of the deceased person in such manner as they think fit; but it is provided that, before any such appropriation is effectual, notice of such intended appropriation shall be given to all persons interested in the residuary estate, any of whom may thereupon within the prescribed time apply to the Court, and such valuation and

[(a) Re Nickels, (1898) 1 Ch. 630.]
[(b) See ante, p. 424 et seq.]
[(c) Re Salaman, (1907) 2 Ch. 46.]
[(d) 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65.]

appropriation is to be conclusive save as otherwise directed by the Court. This enactment applies as well to personal as to real estate, but it has not taken away from executors and trustees the power of appropriation which existed before the Act, at all events in cases where there is a trust for sale and conversion (a).]

Release of equity of redemption.

50. Trustees of an equity of redemption of lands mortgaged for more than their value, may, it is conceived, release the equity of redemption to the mortgagee, rather than be made defendants to a foreclosure suit, the cost of which, so far as incurred by themselves, would fall upon the trust estate.

Whether trustees who are mortgagees can release part of the land in mortgage.

51. Where trustees are mortgagees they are often requested to release part of the land from the security, in order to enable the mortgagor to deal with it for his own convenience. Where the value of the land is not excessive as compared with the debt, it would, of course, be a gross breach of trust to deteriorate the security. But suppose the value of the part left in mortgage to be (say) double the amount of the debt, may the trustees release the residue? It is presumed that trustees can never justify the abandonment of any part of the security on the mere ground of consulting the convenience of the mortgagor; and they must be prepared to show that the act was calculated under the circumstances to promote the interest of the cestuis que trust. But if the mortgagor be ready to pay off the mortgage on a transfer of the security, unless the trustees will consent to release, and the existing mortgage, even when confined to the narrower parcels, is a clearly beneficial one, and the value still abundantly ample, the trustees would surely incur no responsibility by acceding to the arrangement (b). The prevailing opinion of conveyancers appears to be that where trustees have a power of investing on mortgage and of varying securities, the transaction will be considered as tantamount to repayment of the mortgage money, and reinvestment by the trustees on a mortgage of the hereditaments retained as a security, and that the purchaser of the released hereditaments is not bound to see to the sufficiency of the new security, or that the acceptance of the new security does not involve a breach of trust (c).

[Whether bound to consolidate mortgages.]

[52. It is conceived that although trustees holding independent securities from the same mortgagor may have the right to consolidate them, it is not imperative upon them to do so, but that they may deal with the securities independently, or allow one or more of them to be redeemed, without incurring any liability for loss which may arise from subsequent depreciation in the other securities. They should, however satisfy themselves, before parting with any of the securities, or allowing any of them to be redeemed, that the margin of value on those which are retained is then sufficient to justify a present advance to the amount remaining due to the trustees upon such securities.]

[(a) Re Beverly, (1901) 1 Ch. 681.]

(b) See Whitney v. Smith, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 513; Pell v. De Winton, 2 De G. & J. 13. [But the prudent course, in this as in other similar cases, would be for the trustees to apply by originating summons for the direction of the Court.]

(c) See Davidson's Preced. Vol. II. p. 285, 4th ed.; Dart's V. & P. Vol. II. p. 689, 6th ed.

Discharge of a mortgage on a settled estate.

53. Trustees of a settled estate with a power of sale and reinvestment may, it is conceived, sell part of the estate to pay off a mortgage affecting the estate, though not mentioned in the settlement, for this in substance is a reinvestment, and a fortiori if the trustees have a power of investing on real securities until a purchase can be found, they can sell part of the estate and apply the proceeds in taking a transfer of the mortgage, provided it be an adequate security (a).

Sale of limited interests.

54. Trustees for sale of a limited interest in an estate (as a remainder), or of an aliquot part of the estate (as an undivided one-fourth), may concur with the other parties in a sale of the whole estate for one entire sum (b), and may agree afterwards as to the apportionment of the purchase-money, and if the parties cannot agree the apportionment will be made by the Court (c). But otherwise, if there be not any intelligible principle upon which the apportionment can be made (d).

Reimbursement of expenses on account of the trust.

55. A trustee may reimburse himself a sum of money bonâ fide advanced by him for the benefit of the cestui que trust, or even for his own protection in the execution of his office. For "As it is a rule," said Lord Chancellor King, "that the cestui que trust ought to save the trustee harmless, so within the reason of that rule, when the trustee has honestly and fairly, without any possibility of being a gainer, laid down money by which the cestui que trust is discharged from being liable for the whole

[(a) As to the discharge of mortgages under the powers of the Settled Land Acts, see ante, p. 682.]

[(b) See now s. 13 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), as to trusts created by instruments coming into operation after 31st December, 1881.]

(c) Clark v. Seymour, 7 Sim. 67; Rede v. Oakes, 32 Beav. 555; see Earl Poulett v. Hood, 5 L. R. Eq. 115, and ante, p. 509.

(d) Rede v. Oakes, 32 Beav. 555; 10 Jur. N.S. 1246; S. C. 4 De G. J. & S. 505.

money lent, or from a plain and great hazard of being so, he ought to be repaid" (a).

Power of trustees for sale to clear the estate.

56. A trustee for sale has been held to be justified in applying part of the purchase-money in paying off a charge without satisfaction of which the purchaser refused to complete, and which the trustee was professionally advised was still subsisting, though the charge itself was open to doubt (b).

Power to grant leases.

57. A trustee of lands may grant a reasonable husbandry lease (c) in the fair management of the estate (d). But he has no power to demise where it is a simple trust, and the cestui que trust is in possession, except he do it with the cestui que trust's concurrence. And primâ facie a trustee for sale would not be justified in granting a lease (e). And though a trustee may grant a farming lease, it does not follow that he could grant a mining lease, for the latter is pro tanto a destruction of the corpus (f).

[Trustees having power to grant leases to "any person or persons" may lease to a limited company (g). A wide power of leasing in indefinite terms was held to extend to building leases (h). A lease by a trustee to himself and others would appear to be objectionable (i). Under powers to grant building and mining leases, a building lease with reservation of minerals may be granted (j).

By sect. 43 of the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883 (k), when, by any instrument, a lease of a holding is authorised to be made, provided that the best rent or reservation in the nature of rent is reserved, on a lease to the tenant of the holding, it shall not be necessary, in estimating such rent or reservation, to take into account against the tenant the increase

(a) Balsh v. Hyham, 2 P. W. 453. [As to the trustee's general right to indemnity, see post, p. 799.]

(b) Forshaw v. Higginson, 8 De G. M. & G. 827.

(c) See Naylor v. Arnitt, 1 R. & M. 501; [Fitzpatrick v. Waring, 11 L. R. Ir. 35;] Bowes v. East London Waterworks Company, Jac. 324; Drohan v. Drohan, 1 B. & B. 185; Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 268; [and cf. Ferraby v. Hobson, 2 Phil. 255]. But see contra, Wood v. Patteson, 10 Beav. 541; Re Shaw's Trust, 12 L. R. Eq. 124.

(d) See Attorney-General v. Owen, 10 Ves. 560; [and see Re North, (1909) 1 Ch. 625, where trustees of an open brickfield were held to have power under the will to let the brickfield from year to year.]

(e) Evans v. Jackson, 8 Sim. 217; and see Micholls v. Corbett, 34 Beav. 376, and ante, p. 502.

(f) Wood v. Patteson, 10 Beav. 544; [but see Re Barker, 88 L. T. 685].

[(g) Re Jeffcock's Trusts, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 507; as to the power of trustees to grant leases in Ireland to a sanitary authority, see 48 & 49 Vict. c. 77.]

[(h) Re James, 64 L. J. Ch. 686].

[(i) See Boyce v. Edbrooke, (1903) 1 Ch. 836.]

[(j) Re Duke of Rutland's Settled Estates, (1900) 2 Ch. 206.]

[(k) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61.]

(if any) in the value of such holding arising from improvements made or paid for by him.]

Powers of directors, &c.

58. The managers of a trading company or partnership have no power, whatever the necessity of the case, to borrow money beyond the capital prescribed by the Act or deed of settlement, so as to give the lenders a remedy against the company (a). And where, without any special authority being conferred by the deed of settlement, money is borrowed for launching or enlarging the concern, the managers (though made to pay upon their personal liability under the contract) have no remedy over against the other members of the company (b). But every business must be carried on at either a profit or loss, and as the members of the company take the profit, they must also bear the loss, and therefore if the managers incur debts or expenses by employing labour or ordering goods in the ordinary course of business, or borrow money and apply it to these purposes, they must be indemnified in equity by the other members of the company (c).

Trustees' shares.

59. Trustees of shares in an unlimited banking company have no power, unless specially authorised by their settlement, to accept new shares allotted to them, though issued at a premium (d). [But such a transaction may be sanctioned by the Court under its administrative jurisdiction in a case of emergency (e).]

Enfranchisement of copyholds.

60. By 15 & 16 Vict. c. 51, sect. 32, trustees of copyholds were empowered on enfranchisement to charge the expenses on the estate enfranchised, but this section was repealed by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 94, sect. 2, and re-enacted in effect by the 21st section, which authorises all persons enfranchising to charge the expenses, with the consent of the commissioners (f), on the estate. [Further powers are conferred by the Copyhold Act, 1894 (g), which provides, by sect. 44, sub-sect. 1, that anything by that Act required or authorised to be done by a lord of a manor or by a tenant may

[Copyhold Act, 1894.]

(a) Burmester v. Norris, 6 Exch. 796; Ricketts v. Bennett, 4 C. B. 686; and see Hawtayne v. Bourne, 7 M. & W. 595; Hawken v. Bourne, 8 M. & W. 703.

(b) Re Worcester Corn Exchange Company, 3 De G. M. & G. 180; Ex parte Chippendale, 4 De G. M. & G. 43; see Australian, &c., Company v. Mounsey, 4 K. & J. 733.

(c) Ex parte Chippendale, 4 De G. M. & G. 19; Troup's case, 29 Beav. 353; Hoare's case, 30 Beav. 225; Brice on Ultra vires, 2nd ed. p. 776; [Towers v. African Tug Company, (1904) 1 Ch. 558].

(d) Sculthorpe v. Tipper, 13 L. R. Eq. 232; [and see Re Morris, W. N. 1885, p. 31; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 388; 52 L. T. N.S. 462; 33 W. R. 445; and see Re Pugh, W. N. 1887, p. 143, where the Court approved the acceptance of the new shares by the trustees, but intimated the opinion that they ought to realise them as speedily as possible.]

[(e) Re New's Settlement, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 534, see ante, p. 392.]

[(f) Now the Board of Agriculture.]

[(g) 57 & 58 Vict. c. 46.]

be done by him, notwithstanding that he is a trustee, and by subsect. 2, that where the lords or the tenants are trustees, and one or more of the trustees is abroad, or is incapable or refuses to act, any proceedings necessary to be done by the trustees for effecting an enfranchisement under that Act may be done by the other trustee or trustees.]

Any enfranchisement of a trust estate should be made to the trustee who has the legal estate, and not to the cestui que trust (a).

[Enlarging long term into fee.]

[61. By the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, trustees in receipt of the income in right of a long term, or having the term vested in them in trust for sale, may exercise the powers of the Act for enlargement of the term into a fee simple. The estate in fee simple so acquired is to be subject to all the same trusts, powers, executory limitations over, rights, and equities as the term would have been subject to if it had not been enlarged. But where such long leaseholds have been settled in trust by reference to freeholds so as to go along with them as far as the law permits, and at the time of the enlargement the ultimate beneficial interest in the term has not become absolutely and indefeasibly vested, the estate in fee simple is, without prejudice to any conveyance for value previously made, to be conveyed and settled, and devolve in the same manner as the freeholds (b).

[Compensation for agricultural improvements.]

62. By the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883, sect. 1 (c), a tenant who has made on his holding certain improvements specified in the first schedule to the Act is entitled, on quitting his holding at the determination of his tenancy, to compensation from the landlord for such improvements, to be ascertained as provided by the Act. But by sect. 31, where the landlord is a trustee, the amount of compensation is not to be recoverable from him personally, but is to be charged on and recoverable against the holding only. And by sect. 42, subject to certain provisions as to Crown, duchy, ecclesiastical and charity lands, a landlord, whatever may be his estate or interest in his holding, may give any consent, make any agreement, or do or have done to him any act in relation to improvements, in respect of which compensation is payable under the Act, as if he were, in the case of an estate of inheritance, owner thereof in fee, and in the case of a leasehold, possessed of the whole estate in the leasehold.

(a) See Minton v. Kirwood, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 614.

[(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 65; and see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 39, s. 11.]

[(c) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61.]

By the Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886, a tenant for life of land subject to an extraordinary charge or a rent-charge under the Act, may borrow any money required for redemption thereof, or may charge the inheritance with repayment of the money so borrowed with interest (a).]

Powers of majority of trustees.

63. The general powers allowed to trustees must in a private trust be exercised by all the trustees as a joint body, but in charitable or public trusts the voice of the majority will bind the rest (b), and in certain cases the majority can give effect to their resolution by passing the legal estate under a statutory power (c), but of course, in the absence of express statutory authority, a majority of trustees cannot pass the legal estate (d).

Case of suit instituted and a decree made.

64. The powers assigned in the preceding pages to trustees must be taken subject to the qualification, that, if a suit has been instituted, and a decree made, for the execution of the trust, the powers of the trustees are thenceforth so far paralysed that the authority of the Court must sanction every subsequent proceeding (e). Thus the trustees cannot commence or defend any action or suit, or interfere in any other legal proceeding, without first consulting the Court as to the propriety of so doing (f); a trustee for sale cannot sell (g); the committee of a lunatic cannot make repairs (h); an executor cannot pay debts (i), or deal with the assets for the purpose of investment (j). But an executor as to a chattel, not the subject of the suit specifically, can after decree give a good title to a bonâ fide purchaser not having actual notice of the lis pendens (k), and it is presumed that he can equally, where there is no receiver appointed, sign a valid receipt for any part of the testator's personal estate (l). [And where an

[(a) 49 & 50 Vict. c. 54, s. 6 (2).]

[(b) See ante, p. 291, and Re Whiteley, (1910) W. N. 63.]

(c) See ante, pp. 635, 642.

[(d) See Re Ebsworth and Tidy's Contract, 42 Ch. D. (C.A.) 23.]

(e) Mitchelson v. Piper, 8 Sim. 64; Sheven v. Vanderhorst, 2 R. & M. 75; S. C. affirmed, 1 R. & M. 347; Minors v. Battison, 1 App. Cas. 428.

(f) See Jones v. Powell, 4 Beav. 96. The Court [was formerly in some cases] reluctant to give leave to institute or defend a suit, but held out that if the trustee or executor acted bonâ fide the Court would protect him. [But under the modern procedure, the Court will always grant leave in a proper case,] and a trustee or executor cannot be advised to commence or defend a suit without, at least, submitting the case to the Court.

(g) Walker v. Smalwood, Amb. 676; Annesley v. Ashurst, 3 P. W. 282.

(h) Anon. case, 10 Ves. 104.

(i) Mitchelson v. Piper, 8 Sim. 64; King v. Roe, L. J. 27th May, 1858; Irby v. Irby, 24 Beav. 525; and see Jackson v. Woolley, 12 Sim. 13.

(j) Widdowson v. Duck, 2 Mer. 494; Bethell v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 24.

(k) Berry v. Gibbons, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 747; [Re Hoban, (1896) 1 I. R. 401].

[(l) And see post, p. 771.]

administration action has been heard on further consideration, and no subsequent further consideration has been reserved, but general liberty to apply has been given, trustees may exercise their power without obtaining the sanction of the Court (a).]

Case of suit and no decree.

65. An action in which a writ merely has been issued is distinguishable from one in which a decree has been made, for until decree the plaintiff may dismiss his action at any moment, and should he do so, the progress of the trust may have been arrested for no purpose (b). However, even in this case the trustees cannot be advised to act without first consulting the Court, and if by their acting independently of the Court expenses be incurred which might have been avoided had the trustees applied to the Court, they may be made to bear them personally (c).

Duties of executor after decree.

66. After decree made the trustee is not absolved from the duties imposed by his office. Thus after a decree in an administration suit an executor was held liable for having allowed a policy of insurance to drop without any sufficient reason (d).

SECTION II

THE SPECIAL POWERS OF TRUSTEES

UPON this branch of our subject we shall consider, First, The different kinds of powers; Secondly, The construction of powers; Thirdly, The effect of disclaimer, assignment of the estate, and survivorship among the trustees; Fourthly, The control of the Court over the exercise of powers; [and Fifthly, The restrictions on the powers of trustees imposed by the Settled Land Acts.]

First. Of the different kinds of powers.

Powers legal and equitable distinguished.

1. In applying the doctrine of powers to the subject of trusts it may be useful to regard powers as either legal or equitable: the former, such as operate upon the legal estate, and so are matter of cognisance in Courts of common law; the latter, such as affect the equitable interest only, and so fall exclusively under the notice of Courts of equity. Thus, if lands be limited to the use of A. for life, remainder to B. and his heirs, and a power operating under

[(a) Re Mansel, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 883; 52 L. T. N.S. 806; 33 W. R. 727.]

(b) Cafe v. Bent, 3 Hare, 249; Neeves v. Burrage, 14 Q. B. 504.

(c) Attorney-General v. Clack, 1 Beav. 467; and see Cafe v. Bent, 3 Hare, 249.

(d) Garner v. Moore, 3 Drew. 277.

the Statute of Uses be given to C., the execution of the power works a conveyance of the legal estate; but if lands be limited to the use of A. and his heirs upon trust for B. for life, and after his death for C. and his heirs, and a power not operating under the Statute of Uses be given either to the trustee or to the cestui que trust, the execution of such a power will have no effect at law, but will merely serve to transfer the beneficial interest in equity, and may therefore be designated by the name of an equitable power.

Equitable powers, whether annexed to the estate or simply collateral.

2. An equitable, the same as a legal power, may be either annexed to the estate or be simply collateral; but whether it shall be taken as the one or the other will depend on the question, whether the donee of the power be possessed of the equitable, that is, of the beneficial interest or not. Thus, where a testator devised an estate to his sister and her heirs for ever, upon trust to settle it on such of the descendants of the testator's mother as his sister should think fit, [with a direction whereby in effect the appointment was not to take place until the sister's death or the previous determination of her life interest,] and the devisee having married, the question was raised whether the execution of the power by her, as she was under coverture at the time, was to be considered as valid, Lord Hardwicke held that this was a power without an interest, i.e. without any beneficial interest, and could therefore be executed by the feme covert (a). On the other hand, where the legal estate was devised to trustees in fee upon trust for an infant feme covert for her sole and separate use during her life, and upon trust to permit her by deed or writing executed in the presence of three or more witnesses, notwithstanding her coverture, to dispose of the estate as she should think fit, and the testator died leaving the feme covert his heiress-at-law, and she, during the continuance of the coverture and infancy, exercised the power by will, Lord Hardwicke, upon the question whether the power had been duly executed, observed, that this was a power coupled with an interest, which was always considered different from naked powers: it was admitted that if this execution was to operate on the estate of the infant it might not be good: now this was clearly so, for she had the trust in equity for life, with the trust of the inheritance in her in the meantime, so that this was directly a power over her own inheritance, which could not be executed by an infant (b).

(a) Godolphin v. Godolphin, 1 Ves. 21; Belt's Supplement, p. 22.

(b) Hearle v. Greenbank, 1 Ves. 298, see 306; and see Blith's case, Freem. 91; Penne v. Peacock, For. 43.

[Exercise of powers by infant.]

[3. In the case of personal estate, however, an infant may exercise a power in gross. Thus, where under a marriage settlement an infant feme covert, to whom the income of the settled property was given for her life for her separate use, had, in the events which happened, a general power of appointing the trust funds, in default of issue and subject to the interest of her husband, by deed or will, and she exercised the power by deed, and died an infant, it was held by Sir G. Jessel, M.R., and affirmed by the Court of Appeal, dissentiente Cotton, L.J., that the power was well exercised, and the M.R. observed: "If it is clearly settled that the first class of powers—powers simply collateral—can be exercised by an infant, there can be no reason why the second class of powers—powers in gross—should not be so exercised when the exercise cannot affect the infant's interest; I can see no sufficient distinction between the two cases. It can make no difference that the infant has some interest under the settlement, so long as that interest cannot be affected by the exercise of the power" (a).]

Bare powers, and powers coupled with a trust.

4. Again, powers, in the sense in which the term is commonly used, may be distributed into mere powers, and powers coupled with a trust (b). The former are powers in the proper sense of the word—that is, not imperative, but purely arbitrary; powers which the trustee cannot be compelled to execute, and which, on failure of the trustee, cannot be executed vicariously by the Court (c). The latter, on the other hand, are not arbitrary, but imperative, have all the nature and substance of a trust, and ought rather, as Lord Hardwicke observed, to be designated by the name of trusts (d). "It is perfectly clear," said Lord Eldon, "that where there is a mere power, and that power is not executed, the Court cannot execute it. It is equally clear, that wherever a trust is created, and the execution of the trust fails by the death of the trustee or by accident, this Court will execute the trust. But there are not only a mere trust and a mere power, but there is also known to this Court a power which the party to whom it is given is intrusted with and required to execute; and with regard to that species of power, the Court considers it as partaking so much of the nature and qualities of a trust, that if the

[(a) Re D'Angibau, 15 Ch. D. (C.A.) 228; and see ante, p. 38.]

(b) See Gower v. Mainwaring, 2 Ves. 89; Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 43; Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 13 Ir. Eq. Rep. 332.

(c) See Cowper v. Mantell, 22 Beav. 231, and cases there cited; and Re Eddowes, 1 Dr. & Sm. 395.

(d) Godolphin v. Godolphin, 1 Ves. 23.

person who has the duty imposed upon him does not discharge it, the Court will, to a certain extent, discharge the duty in his room and place" (a).

Strict powers, and powers directory.

5. Again, powers have been dealt with by the Court as either of a strict or of a directory character: the former such as only arise under the exact circumstances prescribed by the settlement; the latter such as being merely monitory may be taken with a degree of latitude. Thus, where an advowson was vested in trustees upon trust to elect and present a fit person within six months from the incumbent's decease, it was considered that the clause was directory, and that the trustees might equally elect and present, although that period had elapsed (b). So, where six trustees were empowered when reduced to three to substitute others, and all died but one, it was held competent to the sole survivor to fill up the number (c). And where in the case of twenty-five trustees, the direction was, that when reduced to fifteen the survivors should nominate, it was determined by the Court that, although seventeen remained, the survivors were at liberty to exercise their power, but that, when reduced to only fifteen, they were compellable to do so (d).

Charity.

6. These were cases of charitable trusts, in which it seems a greater latitude of construction is allowed. But in another case, where the trusts were not charitable, and estates were devised to trustees upon trust to sell "with all convenient speed, and within five years after the testator's decease," it was held that these words were directory only, and that the trustees could sell and make a good title, although the five years had expired (e).

Secondly. We proceed to consider the construction of powers. As the powers of trustees are regulated by the doctrines applicable to powers in general, and as the admirable treatise of Lord St. Leonards is in every one's hands, we shall advert only to some cases of most frequent occurrence.

Power to "A. and B. and their heirs."

1. If a power be given to "A. and B. and their heirs," it is perfectly clear, that, although the limitation of an estate in such (a) Brown v. Higgs, 8 Ves. 570; [and see Re Weekes' Settlement, (1897) 1 Ch. 289, and ante, p. 17. Whether it is possible, as a matter of law, to execute by anticipation a special power not created until after the alleged execution, quære; Re Hayes, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 529].

(b) Attorney-General v. Scott, 1 Ves. 413, see 415.

(c) Attorney-General v. Floyer, 2 Vern. 748; and see Attorney-General v. Bishop of Lichfield, 5 Ves. 825; Attorney-General v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 139; but see Foley v. Wontner, 2 J. & W. 245.

(d) Doe v. Roe, 1 Anst. 86.

(e) Pearce v. Gardner, 10 Hare, 287; and see Cuff v. Hall, 1 Jur. N.S. 973.

terms would so vest it in the grantees that they might convey it to a stranger, and the survivor devise it, the power is not to be construed as intended in like manner to be assignable and devisable (a).

Chief Justice Wilmot's opinion.

Upon the subject of such a power where it was given personally, and unaccompanied by any estate, to A. and B. and their heirs, Lord Chief Justice Wilmot observed: "It is asked, What must become of the power upon the death of one of the trustees? It must be considered as a tenancy in common. Had the words been 'their several and respective heirs,' it would have been clear; and in common parlance, and according to the common apprehension of mankind, when an estate is given to two men and their heirs, no one not illumined with the legal nature of joint-tenancy could ever conceive the estate was to go to the heirs of the survivor. It is equivalent to saying, With consent of both while they live; and when one dies, that consent shall devolve upon his heir; the heir of the dead trustee shall consent as well as the surviving trustee. One may abuse the power; I will supply the loss of one by his heir, and the loss of both by the heirs of both" (b).

Mere power.

But this was where A. and B. had a mere power, for where A. and B. are trustees of an estate limited to them and their heirs, and the power constitutes an essential part of the trust, it will pass with the estate to the survivor (c).

Townsend v. Wilson.

In Townsend v. Wilson (d), a power of sale was given to three trustees to preserve contingent remainders and their heirs; and it was directed that the money to arise from the sale should be paid into the hands of the trustees or the survivors or survivor of them, and the executors, administrators, or assigns of such survivor, and there was a power of appointment of new trustees, with a direction that such appointment should take place as often as any one or more of the trustees should die, &c. One of the trustees died, and it was determined by the Court of Queen's Bench, that the survivors alone were incapable of exercising the power of sale. Lord Eldon was dissatisfied with this decision, and asked: "Did the Court of Queen's Bench consider that the two surviving trustees and the heir of the deceased trustee were to act together? for it was one thing to say that the survivors could not act until another was appointed; and a different thing to say, the heir of the deceased trustee could act in the

(a) Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 46, per Sir W. Grant.

(b) Mansell v. Vaughan, Wilm. 50, 51.

(c) See post, p. 763.

(d) 1 B. & Ald. 608; 3 Mad. 261; and see Cooke v. Crawford, 13 Sim. 91.

meantime" (a). But his Lordship so far bowed to the authority of the decision, that he refused under similar circumstances to compel a purchaser to accept the title (b). In Townsend v. Wilson the trustees had not the fee, and the power was not to be executed as part of a trusteeship, and it is therefore no authority against the execution of a trust by the surviving trustees. Indeed, where an estate was devised to three trustees and their respective heirs, upon trust that they and their respective heirs should sell, the word "respective" was rejected for surplusage, and it was held that the survivors could make a title (c).

Execution of trust by surviving trustees.

2. In Hewett v. Hewett (d), a testator devised his estate to four persons to uses in strict settlement, with a power to the tenants for life, when in actual possession, to cut such trees as the four devisees to uses, or the survivors or survivor of them (omitting the words "and the heirs of the survivor") should direct; and all the trustees being dead, the question was whether the power was gone. Lord Henley held, that, upon the construction of the will, the testator intended the power to be co-extensive with the life-estates, and that the trustees were interposed as supervisors only to prevent destruction; and that the office of the trustees was not personal, but such as might be executed by the Court. He, therefore, considered the power as subsisting, and referred it to the Master to inquire what timber was fit to be cut. The Court, therefore, did not regard the authority to the trustees as a mere power, but as a trust.

Hewett v. Hewett.

Power co-extensive with life estate.

3. Where a discretionary legal power is expressly limited to "A. and his assigns," the grantee or devisee of A., and even a claimant under him by operation of law as an heir or executor, may exercise the power (e); but in a trust, if an estate be vested in a trustee upon trust that he, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns shall sell, &c., the introduction of the word assigns will not authorise the trustee to assign the estate to a stranger (f), nor, if the assignment be made, will the stranger be capable of exercising the power (g).

Power to "trustee and his assigns."

4. In a mortgage, with a power of sale limited to the mortgagee, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, the intention is that the power should go along with, and be annexed Power given to a mortgagee.

(a) Hall v. Dewes, Jac. 193; and see Jones v. Price, 11 Sim. 557.
(b) Hall v. Dewes, Jac. 189.
(c) Jones v. Price, 11 Sim. 557.
(d) 2 Eden, 332; Amb. 508; and see Bennett v. Wyndham, 23 Beav. 528.
(e) How v. Whitfield, 1 Vent. 338, 339; 1 Freem. 476.
(f) The case of Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 109, cannot in this respect be supported.
(g) See post, p. 760.

to, the security; and therefore, if the mortgage be assigned to a stranger, and the legal estate be conveyed to the stranger or to a trustee for him, the stranger, alone or with the concurrence of the trustee, can give a good legal and equitable title (a); and even if a mortgage be made to A. and B. to secure a joint advance, and the power of sale and signing receipts be limited to A. and B., their heirs and assigns, it has been held that as the power and the security were plainly meant to be coupled together, and the security enures to the benefit of the survivor (the advance being a joint one), the survivor may also sell (b). [But where in a mortgage by way of trust for sale, it was provided that the trustee "and his heirs" should sell upon the request of the mortgagee, his executors, administrators, and assigns, it was held that the trust thus vested in the heirs of the trustee could not be exercised by an assign (c), and in a case where, in a mortgage to a building society, the power of sale was given to the trustees or trustee of the society for the time being, without any reference to "assigns," it was held that the power could not be exercised by a transferee of the mortgage (d).]

Power indicating personal confidence to "A. and his executors."

5. If a power indicating personal confidence be given to a "trustee and his executors," and the executor of the trustee dies having appointed an executor, the latter executor, though by law the executor not only of his immediate testator, but also of the trustee, will not, it is said, be so considered for the purposes of the power (e); for a matter of personal confidence is not to be extended beyond the express words and clear intention of the settlor, and in this case, the settlor may have meant the power to be exercised exclusively by the executors whom the trustee had himself named, and not by a person who is executor of the trustee by operation of law only. This, however, is a narrow construction, and the liberality of modern times may not improbably hold that, if a power be given to executors, the settlor must be taken to have contemplated generally every one whom the law invests with that character (f).

Power to "executors," "trustees," &c.

6. A power limited to "executors" or "sons-in-law" may be

(a) Saloway v. Strawbridge, 1 K. & J. 371; 7 De G. M. & G. 594.

(b) Hind v. Poole, 1 K. & J. 383.

[(c) Bradford v. Belfield, 2 Sim. 264.]

[(d) Re Rumney, (1897) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 351.]

(e) See Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 44; post, p. 761; Stile v. Tomson, Dyer, 210, a; Perk. s. 552; Moore, 61, pl. 172; Sugd. Powers, 129, 8th ed.

[(f) See Re Smith; Eastwick v. Smith, (1904) 1 Ch. 139, referred to post, p. 755, note (d), dissenting from the general principle of Cole v. Wade (sup.), as being inconsistent with Crawford v. Forshaw, post, p. 755.]

exercised by the survivors so long as the plural number remains (a), and if a power be limited to a number of "trustees," we may reasonably conclude that, whether they have any estate or not—i.e. whether the power be an adjunct to the trust or collateral to it, it may be exercised by the surviving trustees. And a power given to "executors" will, if annexed to the executorship, be continued to the single survivor (b); [and where a power of selection was given to "my executors herein named," it was held to be so annexed and not to be personal (c)]. So a power given to "trustees" will, as annexed to the estate and office, be exercisable by the single survivor (d); but it cannot be exercised by one trustee in the lifetime of the other who has not effectually disclaimed (e). And it has been said that if a power to vary the rights of parties be communicated to the "trustees for the time being," it cannot be exercised by a single trustee (f). And where there was a trust for sale, but no sale was to be made without the consent of the testator's sons and daughters, and he left seven sons and daughters, and one died, it was held that a sale with the consent of the survivors was too doubtful a title to be specifically enforced (g).

Power to "trustees and survivors."

7. A discretionary power to four trustees "and the survivors of them" cannot, it seems, be executed by the last survivor (h); for though a power to trustees may, in general, be held to survive, an intention to the contrary may be fairly inferred; the settlor may be supposed to have said: "I repose a confidence in any two

(a) Sugd. Powers, 128, 8th ed.

(b) Sugd. Powers, 128, 8th ed.; Houell v. Barnes, Cro. Car. 382; Brassey v. Chalmers, 4 De G. M. & G. 528, reversing the decision of the Master of the Rolls, 16 Beav. 231.

[(c) Crawford v. Forshaw, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 261.]

(d) Lane v. Debenham, 11 Hare, 188; [and see Re Smith; Eastwick v. Smith, (1904) 1 Ch. 139, 144, where it was said by Farwell, J., that the result of the authorities and of sections 22 and 37 of the Trustee Act, 1893, is that every power given to trustees which enables them to deal with or affect the trust property is primâ facie given to them ex officio as an incident of their office, and passes with the office to the holders or holder thereof for the time being: whether a power is so given ex officio or not depends in each case on the construction of the document giving it, but the mere fact that the power is one requiring the exercise of a very wide personal discretion is not enough to exclude the primâ facie presumption, and little regard is now paid to such minute differences as those between "my trustees," "my trustees A. and B.," and "A. and B., my trustees": the testator's reliance on the individuals to the exclusion of the holders of the office for the time being, must be expressed in clear and apt language].

(e) Lancashire v. Lancashire, 2 Ph. 664.

(f) Lancashire v. Lancashire, 2 Ph. 664.

(g) Sykes v. Sheard, 2 De G. J. & S. 6.

(h) Hibbard v. Lamb, Amb. 309. Note, further directions were declared necessary on the death of either of the surviving executors; see Eaton v. Smith, 2 Beav. 236.

of the trustees jointly, but in neither one of them individually."

To "trustees and survivor."

But if a power be limited to four trustees "and the survivor of them," it may well be argued that, on the death of one, the power may still be exercised by the survivors; for there can be no valid reason why a person who trusted the four jointly, and each of them individually, should refuse to repose a confidence in the survivors for the time being (a).

Trower v. Knightley.

8. In a case before Sir J. Leach, a testator devised an estate to trustees upon trust as to one moiety for A. for life, remainder to her children at twenty-one, and as to the other moiety for B. for life, remainder to her children at twenty-one, and gave the trustees a power of sale "during the continuance of the trust." A. died, and her children attained twenty-one, and the question was whether the trustees could, under the power, sell the whole estate, the children of B. being infants. The Vice-Chancellor held that if the children of A. could call for a present conveyance of their moiety, it would have the effect of depriving B. and her children of the benefit of the power of sale, and also of the leasing power given to the trustees, for that an undivided moiety could not advantageously be sold or leased, and that the testator must have meant to continue the powers of ownership to the trustees until there were owners competent to deal with the whole estate (b).

Power "during the continuance of the trust."

9. But if a power be given to trustees to be exercised "during the continuance of the trust," it cannot be exercised after the time when the trust ought to have been completed, though, from the delay of the trustees, it happens that the trust has not in fact been executed (c).

[Power to postpone sale.]

[Where trustees for sale of land have a discretionary power of postponement, and the proceeds are settled in trust for several persons, the vesting in possession of the share of one of the beneficiaries does not determine the power, or entitle the beneficiary to call for an immediate sale of the entirety, or a conveyance of his undivided share (d).]

Powers cease when settlement is at an end, [except for purpose of division within period allowed by law].

10. And though the power be not confined expressly to the continuance of the trust, yet in [general, the power can be exercised only whilst the purposes of the settlement remain

(a) See Crewe v. Dicken, 4 Ves. 97; in which case it seems to have been assumed that the receipt of the survivors would be a sufficient discharge; [and see Delany v. Delany, 15 L. R. Ir. 55].

(b) Trower v. Knightley, 6 Mad. 134; and see Taite v. Swinstead, 26 Beav. 525.

(c) Wood v. White, 2 Keen, 664. It was determined on appeal that the trusts in this case were still in being, 4 M. & Cr. 460.

[(d) Re Horsnaill, (1909) 1 Ch. 631.]

unexhausted (a), and where the land is "at home," as it has been called, i.e. has vested in fee simple in possession in persons sui juris, the power is no longer exercisable. But it is a question of intention, on the construction of the instrument, whether or not the power is exercisable after the estates have thus become vested (b), and where a power of sale was given for the express purpose of division on the determination of a life interest, it was held by Sir G. Jessel, M.R., that the power did not determine on the death of the tenant for life, but was exercisable within a reasonable time afterwards, such time being well within the limit allowed by the law against perpetuities (c). In another case where the power was not expressed to be for the purpose of division, but was expressly limited to the period allowed by law, it was held by Fry, L.J., upon an examination of the limitations of the instrument, that an intention was sufficiently manifested that the power should continue to be exercisable after the beneficial interest in the property had become absolutely vested in persons sui juris (d); and in a recent case on the subject, the circumstance that the testator contemplated a distribution among a very numerous class of persons was regarded as an indication that the power, though not expressed to be for purposes of division, was intended so to be, and it was accordingly held that the power was exercisable within a reasonable time after the death of the tenant for life, which was the period of distribution (e). But the Court declined to draw this inference in the case of a direct gift to a small number of persons (f); and it is apprehended that such a construction could not prevail if the period of distribution might by possibility be postponed beyond the limit of time allowed by law (g).]

Joint powers.

11. Powers given to trustees must be exercised by them jointly, but an act by one trustee, with the sanction and approval of a co-trustee, will be deemed the act of both (h).

[(a) Wolley v. Jenkins, 23 Beav. 53; Mortlock v. Buller, 10 Ves. 315; Wheate v. Hall, 17 Ves. 86; Lantsbery v. Collier, 2 K. & J. 709.]

[(b) Re Lord Sudeley, (1894) 1 Ch. 334, per Chitty, J.; Re Dyson and Fowke, (1896) 2 Ch. 720, where the residuary realty being charged with debts and legacies according to the principle of Greville v. Brown, 7 H. L. C. 689, the power of sale was held to continue until those purposes were satisfied. In Re Jump, (1903) 1 Ch. 129, a power of sale for purposes of maintenance of a lunatic was held not to be determined by the lunatic's becoming absolutely entitled, he being unable to call for a conveyance.]

[(c) Peters v. Lewes and East Grinstead Railway Company, 18 Ch. D. (C.A.) 429, (but see S. C. 16 Ch. D. 703); Re Tweedie and Miles, 27 Ch. D. 318; Re Lord Sudeley, sup.; Re Douglas and Powell, (1902) 2 Ch. 296.]

[(d) Re Cotton's Trustees and School Board for London, 19 Ch. D. 624.]

[(e) Re Lord Sudeley, ubi sup.]

[(f) Re Dyson and Fowke, (1896) 2 Ch. 720.]

[(g) For cases in which a power has been held void ab initio for remoteness, see ante, p. 110.]

(h) Messeena v. Carr, 9 L. R. Eq. 260.

[Contract for lease by tenant for life carried out by trustees.]

[12. Where a power of leasing was given to a legal tenant for life, and after his death to trustees, during the minority of a legal tenant in tail, and the tenant for life entered into a contract to grant a building lease, but died before the lease was granted, it was held that the trustees had power to effectuate the contract of the tenant for life by executing a lease (a).]

Moral considerations.

13. Trustees in the exercise of their powers must act bonâ fide and impartially for the benefit of their cestuis que trust—i.e. the persons claiming under the settlement, and must not deviate from the terms of the trust from moral considerations, or seek to do what they may think right, if in excess of their trust (b).

Thirdly. Of the effect of disclaimer, assignment, and survivorship of the estate.

I. Of disclaimer.

Effect of disclaimer upon powers.

1. If a power be given to several trustees, and one of them disclaims [the trust], the power may be exercised by the continuing trustees or trustee (c).

In Hawkins v. Kemp (d), a purchaser at first objected that the accepting trustees could not exercise the power, or not without the appointment of a new trustee in the place of the trustee who had disclaimed, but the point was afterwards abandoned by the purchaser's counsel as untenable. And the late Vice-Chancellor of England, in a subsequent case, observed: "I have always understood, ever since the point was decided in Hawkins v. Kemp, or rather was, as the judges said in that case, properly abandoned by the defendant's counsel as not capable of being contended for, that where two or more persons are appointed trustees, and all of them, except one, renounce, the trust may be executed by that one" (e).

Adams v. Taunton.

Adams v. Taunton (f) is a direct decision by Sir J. Leach to the same effect. A testator had devised his estates to A. and B. upon trust to sell and apply the proceeds amongst his children, and declared that the receipts of the said A. and B. should be

[(a) Davis v. Harford, 22 Ch. D. 128; and a succeeding tenant for life can make any conveyance which is necessary for giving effect to a contract validly made by his predecessor, Settled Land Act, 1890, s. 6; and as to the exercise of powers by trustees where the tenant for life is an infant, see Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 60, and ante, p. 694.]

(b) Ellis v. Barker, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 104.

(c) Jenk. 44; Crewe v. Dicken, 4 Ves. 97; Earl Granville v. M'Neile, 7 Hare, 156; White v. M'Dermott, 7 I. R. C. L. 1.

(d) 3 East, 410.

(e) Cooke v. Crawford, 13 Sim. 96.

(f) 5 Mad. 435; and see Bayly v. Cumming, 10 Ir. Eq. Rep. 410; Cooke v. Crawford, 13 Sim. 96; Sands v. Nugee, 8 Sim. 130.

sufficient discharges. A. renounced, and Sir J. Leach, after having taken time to consult the authorities, said: "It being now settled that a devise to A., B., and C. upon trust is a good devise to such of the three as accept the trust, it follows by necessary construction that by the receipt of the trustees is to be intended the receipt of those who accept the trust" (a).

Power to "trustees" or "executors."

2. If the power be not given to the trustees by name, but to the "trustees" or "executors," it is clear, a fortiori, that if one disclaim, the acting trustees or executors may exercise the power (b).

[Disclaimer of power under Conveyancing Act, 1882.]

[3. By the Conveyancing Act, 1882, sect. 6, which applies to powers created by instruments coming into operation either before or after the commencement of the Act, "a person to whom any power, whether coupled with an interest or not, is given, may by deed disclaim the power; and after disclaimer shall not be capable of exercising or joining in the exercise of the power. On such disclaimer the power may be exercised by the other or others, or the survivors or survivor of the others, of the persons to whom the power is given, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument creating the power" (c). But this section does not authorise a trustee to disclaim a particular power so as to vest the exercise of it in his co-trustees while he continues a trustee for other purposes (d).

[Renunciation.]

4. It has been held in Ireland that the renunciation by one executor, by an instrument under seal, of the office of executor operates as a disclaimer under this section of powers annexed to the executorship (e).]

II. Of assignment.

Effect of assignment of the estate.

1. The power is not appendant to the estate, so as to follow along with it in every transfer by the trustee, or devolution by course of law (f). But where the estate is duly transferred to

(a) From his Honour's words, "the receipt of the trustees," it might be thought the power had been given, not to A. and B. by name, but to "the trustees": the Reg. Lib. has been consulted, and it appears, as stated in the report, that the power was given to "the said A. and B."

(b) Worthington v. Evans, 1 S. & S. 165; Boyce v. Corbally, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 102; and see Clarke v. Parker, 19 Ves. 1; White v. M'Dermott, 7 I. R. C. L. 1; [Delany v. Delany, 15 L. R. Ir. 55; Crawford v. Forshaw, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 261].

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 39, s. 6.]

[(d) See Re Eyre, 49 L. T. N.S. 259.]

[(e) Re Fisher and Haslett, 13 L. R. Ir. 546. A renunciation by an executor was held by Kekewich, J., not to preclude such executor from exercising a power of selection or distribution conferred on "my executors herein named," Crawford v. Forshaw, 43 Ch. D. 643; but this decision was reversed on appeal on the ground that on the true construction of the will the power was given to the executors in their official capacity, (1891) 2 Ch. 261.]

(f) Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 47, per Sir W. Grant; Crewe v. Dicken, 4 Ves.

persons regularly appointed trustees under a power in the settlement creating the trust, the transferees take the estate and the office together, and can exercise the power. Where the settlement contains no such power, it seems that the appointment of new trustees by the Court would not, but for recent Acts, communicate arbitrary or special discretionary powers (a), unless they were expressly (b), or in fair construction, limited to the trustees for the time being (c). If powers be given to trustees, their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, and the Court appoints new trustees and makes a vesting order, the new trustees are duly constituted assigns, and may therefore be justly considered within the purview of the settlement. But assigns from a trustee mero motu, and without competent authority, would not be so considered.

[Trustee Act, 1893, s. 37.]

[2. By a recent enactment "every trustee appointed by any Court of competent jurisdiction shall, as well before as after the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act as if he had been originally nominated a trustee by the instrument creating the trust" (d).]

Release with intention of disclaiming.

3. We have seen that if one trustee disclaims in the strict sense of the word, the power will not be extinguished, but will survive to the co-trustee; but, according to the old doctrine, if a trustee instead of disclaiming had assigned the estate, that was a virtual acceptance of the trust, and then the conveyance of the retiring trustee did not pass the power into the hands of the continuing trustee (e); but at the present day it seems a release with the intention of disclaimer would have all the operation of a formal and actual disclaimer (f).

Whether the power will remain in the trustee after alienation of the estate.

4. Though an assignment of the estate will not carry the power to the assignee, it does not follow that the power will remain in the assignor, so as to be transmissible to his representative; for where it was the settlor's intention that the 97; Re Burtt's Estate, 1 Drew. 319; Wilson v. Bennett, 5 De G. & Sm. 475. The case of Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 109, is an anomaly.

(a) Doyley v. Attorney-General, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 194; Fordyce v. Bridges, 2 Ph. 497, see 510; Newman v. Warner, 1 Sim. N.S. 457; Cooper v. Macdonald, 35 Beav. 504; and see Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 44, 47; Hibbard v. Lamb, Amb. 309.

(b) Bartley v. Bartley, 3 Drew. 384; Brassey v. Chalmers, 4 De G. M. & G. 528.

(c) Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 66.

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, reproducing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 33, which section took the place of the corresponding section in Lord Cranworth's Act (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145), s. 27.]

(e) Doyley v. Attorney-General, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 194; Crewe v. Dicken, 4 Ves. 97.

(f) Ante, p. 220.

estate and power should be coupled together, the trustee, by severing the union through the alienation of the estate, may intercept the execution of the power by the representative. Thus [where, prior to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, an estate was] limited to A. and his heirs upon a trust to be executed by A. and his heirs, and A. in his lifetime conveyed away the estate, or devised it by his will, it was held that the heir of A. could not execute the power (a); for the heir was no heir quatenus this estate; for it was not allowed to descend, but was aliened or devised away from the person who would have been heir; [and the same principle equally applies to a case falling under the Conveyancing Act (b), where the estate is conveyed away by the trustee in his lifetime, so as not to vest in his personal representative, who consequently cannot execute the power].

Case of real and personal estate coupled together.

5. In Cole v. Wade (c), a testator gave the residue of his real and personal estate to Ruddle and Wade (whom he appointed his executors), their executors, administrators, and assigns, and directed his said trustees and executors, after making certain payments thereout, to convey and dispose of the said residue of his real and personal estate unto and amongst such of his relations and kindred, in such proportions, manner and form, as his said executors should think proper, his intention being that everything relating to that disposition should be entirely at the discretion of the said trustees and executors, and the heirs, executors and administrators of the survivor of them (d). Wade, the survivor, devised and bequeathed the real and personal estate of the testator to William and Edward Bray, their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, upon the trusts of the will, and named them his executors for that specific purpose only, appointing his wife and another person executors as to his own estates. The question was discussed whether William and Edward Bray could exercise the power of distribution among the relations. Sir W. Grant said: "The original trustees and executors were the same persons; all the real and personal estate was vested equally in them; but the heirs and executors of the surviving trustee might be different persons; yet all the directions about the distribution of the residue proceed upon the supposition that the same persons are to select the objects and

(a) Wilson v. Bennett, 5 De G. & Sm. 475; and see Re Burtt's Estate, 1 Drew. 319.

[(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 30.]

(c) 16 Ves. 27.

(d) The testator used this last form of expression elsewhere in the will.

settle the proportions in which they are to take; but if the real estate is to go to one, and the personal estate to another, the testator has left it entirely uncertain how the power is to be executed. Whether the Messrs Bray can in any sense be the executors of Wade, with whose own property they are not to intermeddle, it is not material to determine." His Honour, therefore, decided that the power had become extinguished.

The estate may be severed from the powers.

6. But the existence of a power annexed to a trust and forming an integral part of it does not depend on the continuance of the legal estate per se in the donee of the power, where there is no express declaration to the contrary; as, where a testator gave a sum of money to be invested in the funds in the names of the head of a college at Oxford, the junior bailiff of the city, and the elder churchwarden of a parish, the dividends to be applied to certain purposes as the trustees should approve, and the bailiff and churchwarden being annual officers, the investment as directed by the will would have been accompanied with frequent transfers of the stock, the Court ordered that the money should be invested in the names of two new trustees jointly with the head of the college, but that the objects of the charity should be nominated and approved in the manner pointed out by the will (a).

[Release of powers under Conveyancing Act.]

[7. By the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, "a person to whom any power, whether coupled with an interest or not, is given may by deed release, or contract not to exercise, the power"; and that, whether the power was created by an instrument coming into operation before or after the commencement of the Act (b). The section has been held not to apply to a power coupled with a duty; as to which Kay, J., observed: "A trustee who has a power coupled with a duty is bound, so long as he remains a trustee, to preserve that power, and to exercise his discretion as circumstances arise whether the power shall be used or not, and can no more by his own voluntary act destroy a power of that sort than he can voluntarily put an end to any other trust that may be committed to him" (c); but unless the power is coupled with a duty to exercise it, there is nothing to prevent the donee of the power from releasing it (d),

[Does not apply to power coupled with a duty.]

(a) Ex parte Blackburne, 1 J. & W. 297; and see Hibbard v. Lamb, Amb. 309.

[(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 52.]

[(c) Re Eyre, 49 L. T. N.S. 259; Saul v. Pattinson, 55 L. J. Ch. 831.]

[(d) Smith v. Houblon, 26 Beav. 482; Re Little, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 418; Re Radcliffe, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 227; Re Somes, (1896) 1 Ch. 250; whether a trustee in bankruptcy can release a special power of appointment for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, quære; see Re Rose, (1904) 2 Ch. 348; (1905) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 94].

though his object in so doing is to benefit himself; and therefore, where a parent has a power of appointment amongst his children, it is competent to him to release the power either for the purpose of vesting a share of the fund in himself as the administrator of a deceased child (a), or to enable himself with the concurrence of a child to obtain money for his own purposes (b). The enactment enables a married woman who is entitled for life subject to a restraint on anticipation, with a power of appointment amongst her children, to release the power by deed unacknowledged (c).]

III. As to survivorship.

Survivorship of powers.

1. The survivorship of the estate carries with it the survivorship of such powers as are annexed to the trust. If a mere power be given to A., B., and C., and one of them die, it is perfectly clear that the power cannot be exercised by the survivors; but if trustees have an equitable power annexed to the trust, and forming an integral part of it, as if an estate be vested in three trustees upon trust to sell, then, as the power is coupled with an interest, and the interest survives, the power also survives (d).

Trust powers.

The principle that trust powers survive with the estate appears to be as old as the time of Lord Coke, for he observes: "If a man deviseth land to his executors to be sold, and maketh two executors, and the one dieth, yet the survivor may sell the land, because as the estate, so the trust shall survive; and so note the diversity between a bare trust and a trust coupled with an interest" (e). At the present day a trust, that is, a power imperative, whether a bare power, or a power coupled with an interest, would be

[(a) Re Radcliffe, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 227, where it was held that the parent, being tenant for life, must surrender his life interest in order to entitle himself to a transfer, as there could be no merger of estates held in different rights, and Cunynghame v. Thurlow, 1 Russ. & M. 436, n, was commented on; and see Re French-Brewster's Settlements, (1904) 1 Ch. 713, 716.]

[(b) Re Somes, (1896) 1 Ch. 250, where Chitty, J., observed: "There is no duty imposed on the donee of a limited power to make an appointment; there is no fiduciary relationship between him and the objects of the power beyond this—that if he does exercise the power of appointment, he must exercise it honestly for the benefit of an object or the objects of the power, and not corruptly for his own personal benefit; but I cannot see any ground for applying that doctrine to the case of a release of a power. The donee of the power may or he may not be acting in his own interest, but he is at liberty in my opinion, to say that he will never make any appointment under the power, and to execute a release of it."]

[(c) Re Chisholm's Settlement, (1901) 2 Ch. 82.]

(d) Lane v. Debenham, 11 Hare, 188; and see Gouldsb. 2, pl. 4; Peyton v. Bury, 2 P. W. 628; Mansell v. Vaughan, Wilm. 49; Eyre v. Countess of Shaftesbury, 2 P. W. 108, 121, 124; Butler v. Bray, Dyer, 189, b.; Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58; Jenk. 44; Co. Lit. 112, b, 113, a; Flanders v. Clark, 1 Ves. 9; Potter v. Chapman, Amb. 100; Jones v. Price, 11 Sim. 557.

(e) Co. Lit. 113, a; and see Ib. 181, b.

equally carried into execution in the forum of a Court of Equity; for the maxim now is, The trust or power imperative is the estate. But in the time of Lord Coke, had a bare power been devised to A. and B. to sell an estate, as for payment of debts, the authority was one which A. and B., during their joint lives were compellable by subpœna in Chancery to execute for the benefit of the creditors; but if A. happened to die before the sale was carried into effect, the trust was extinguished, and the heir, who had always retained a right to the intermediate rents and profits, was then seised of the absolute and indefeasible inheritance. But in case the testator had devised the estate to A. and B. to sell for payment of debts, then, as the trust was not a mere power, but a power coupled with an interest, it received a more liberal construction, and as upon the death of A. the whole estate passed by survivorship to B., the power, being annexed to the estate, was held to survive with it (1).

Survivorship where the power is given to trustees by name.

2. A distinction may perhaps be thought to exist between cases where the language of the trust is indefinite as to the persons by whom it is to be exercised (for example, where an

Before Statute of Uses a power given by will over the legal estate was void.

But over the use was good.

The execution of the power over the use passed the legal estate.

The power might be vested in the feoffees.

Until the power was executed the feoffees were trustees for the heir.

The object of the power could have compelled the execution.

If no specific object of the power, the execution was optional.

(1) In examining the cases of powers before the Statute of Uses, the following points may be usefully noticed: 1. A person seised of the legal estate of lands could not, before the Statute of Wills, have devised them directly, and therefore he could not have gained his object indirectly by means of a power: had a testator devised that A. and B. should sell his estate, the authority was void. 2. But a use was devisable, and therefore, if cestui que use had devised the lands to a stranger, though the legal estate did not pass (the Statute of Richard the Third, which made mention of feoffments and grants, not extending to wills), the devisee might still have sued his subpœna in Chancery, and have compelled the feoffees to execute a conveyance of the estate. 3. If cestui que use had devised that A. and B. should sell, and A. and B. in pursuance of the authority had made a feoffment or grant, this assurance seems to have operated retrospectively as the assurance of the testator, and so, falling within the words of the Statute of Richard, served to pass even the legal estate. 4. And cestui que use might have devised such an authority even to his feoffees, and the power would have been construed in the same manner as if it had been devised to a stranger. Thus where a man enfeoffed A. and B. to his own use, and afterwards devised that the said A. and B. should sell the estate and apply the proceeds, &c., and A. and B. on the decease of the testator, enfeoffed C. and D. to the like uses, it was ruled that A. and B. might still sell under the power, although they had parted with the legal fee. 5. Until the sale was effected, the feoffees were trustees for the testator's heir, and were bound to account to him for the accruing rents and profits; and if the power which, whether given to a stranger or to the feoffees, was construed as a naked authority, became extinguished by any means, as by the death of the donees of the power, the heir was as absolutely entitled to the use in fee, as if no will had been made. 6. So long as the power subsisted, the person who would suffer by the extinguishment of the power might have compelled the donees, by filing a bill in Chancery, to execute the power. 7. But if the proceeds of the sale were to be distributed in pios usus, as no one could plead a personal loss by the non-execution of the power, there was no one to sue a subpœna, and the donees of the power were left to the arbitrary exercise of their own discretion. See case temp. H. 7, Treat. of Powers, Appendix No. 1, 6th ed.

estate is vested in trustees and their heirs in trust to sell, &c.)' and those cases where the estate is limited to persons by name, as upon trust that "the said A. and B.," or that "the said trustees" (which is equivalent to naming them), shall sell; but the Courts have never relied upon any distinction of the kind, and it seems to be now decided that even where the trust is reposed in the trustees by name, the survivor, who takes the estate with a duty annexed to it, can execute the trust (a); and the rule of survivorship applies not only to trusts, or powers imperative which are construed as trusts, but also to such discretionary powers as are annexed to the office of trustee, and are meant to form an integral part of it (b).

Powers not annexed to the trust.

3. But powers which are purely arbitrary, and independent of the trust, and not intended in furtherance of the trust, must, it is conceived, be construed strictly, and be governed by the rules applicable to ordinary powers. If, for instance, the trustees by name have a power of revoking the limitations, and shifting the property into a different channel, this discretion is evidently meant to be personal, and not to be annexed to the estate or office (c).

[Trustee Act, 1893, s. 22.]

[4. Now, as to trusts constituted after or created by instruments coming into operation after the 31st December, 1881, it is enacted that "where a power or trust is given to or vested in two or more trustees jointly, then, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the power or trust, the same may be exercised or performed by the survivor or survivors of them for the time being" (d). But it is conceived that this section does not apply to a purely arbitrary and personal power given to trustees nominatim.]

Fourthly. Of the control of the Court over the exercise of powers.

Control of the Court over arbitrary powers.

1. Where a power is given to trustees to do, or not do, a particular thing at their discretion, the Court has no discretion to lay a command or prohibition upon the trustees as to the exercise of that power, provided their conduct be bonâ fide, and their determination is not influenced by improper motives (e).

(a) Lane v. Debenham, 11 Hare, 188; Hall v. May, 3 K. & J. 585; [Re Cooke's Contract, 4 Ch. D. 454].

(b) Warburton v. Sandys, 14 Sim. 622; [Crawford v. Forshaw, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 261; Re Waidanis, (1908) 1 Ch. 123].

(c) See Lane v. Debenham, 11 Hare, 192.

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 22, reproducing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 38.]

(e) Thomas v. Dering, 1 Keen, 729; Re Eddowes, 1 Dr. & Sm. 395; Talbot v. Marshfield, 2 Dr. & Sm. 285; French v. Davidson, 3 Mad. 396; Sillibourne v. Newport, 1 K. & J. 602; Walker v. Walker, 5 Mad. 424; Bankes v. Le Despencer, 11 Sim. 527, Pink v. De Thuisey.

Thus, in Pink v. De Thuisey (a), a testatrix gave 1000*l.* to A. upon a condition precedent, but left "her executor at liberty to give the said sum if he found the thing proper" though the condition should not have been performed. A. died without having fulfilled the condition or received the money, and his personal representative filed a bill against the executor of the testatrix to compel payment of the legacy. A. in his lifetime had applied or the money, but the executor had not thought right to comply with the request. Sir T. Plumer, in dismissing the bill, observed: "The executor says he did not think proper to advance the legacy: is the Court to decide upon the propriety of the executor's withholding the legacy? That would be assuming an authority confided by the will to the discretion of the executor: it would be to make a will for the testatrix, instead of expounding it." [So, where trustees were given an absolute discretion to pay the whole or only a portion of the annual income of a specified fund to A., the assignee of A. had no higher right than A. had, and could not call upon the trustees to pay over the whole income (b).

But where a testator bequeathed certain moneys to his executor upon trust for such charitable purposes as he might think right, the Court, in an administration action, while holding that it had no right to interfere with the discretion given to the executor, refused to allow the fund to be paid out of Court without an affidavit by the trustee, showing how he proposed to apply it, on the ground that the trustee might possibly consider some application of it as charitable which the Court would not so regard (c).]

Power with a duty.

2. But where the power is accompanied with a duty, and meant to be exercised (as a power of leasing), the Court will compel the execution or execute it in the place of the trustees (d). So where per Sir L. Shadwell; Attorney-General v. Governors of Harrow School, 2 Ves. 551; Cowley v. Hartstonge, 1 Dow, 378, per Lord Eldon; Potter v. Chapman, Amb. 99, per Lord Hardwicke; Carr v. Bedford, 2 Ch. Rep. 146; Wain v. Earl of Egmont, 3 M. & K. 445; Livesey v. Harding, Taml. 460; Collins v. Vining, C. P. Coop. Rep. 1837-38, 472; Kekewich v. Marker, 3 Mac. & G. 326, per Lord Truro; Re Coe's Trust, 4 K. & J. 199; Brophy v. Bellamy, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 798; [Gisborne v. Gisborne, 2 App. Cas. 300, per Lord Cairns, at p. 367; Tabor v. Brooks, 10 Ch. D. 273; Marquis Camden v. Murray, 16 Ch. D. 161; Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 571, per Jessel, M.R., at p. 578; Thomas v. Williams, 24 Ch. D. 558; Re Blake, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 913; Re Courtier, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 136; Re Burrage, 62 L. T. N.S. 752; Re Lever, 76 L. T. N.S. (C.A.) 71; reversing S.C. 75 L. T. N.S. 383].

(a) 2 Mad. 157.

[(b) Train v. Clapperton, (1908) A.C. (H. L.) 342.]

[(c) Hagan v. Duff, 23 L. R. Ir. 516.]

(d) Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 576, note; [Re Burrage, 62 L. T. N.S. 752; and see Re Bryant, (1894) 1 Ch. 324].

the trustees had a power of sale, "if they should consider it advisable, but not otherwise," it was held that the power, though discretionary in form, was given to the trustees for the purposes of the will, and if those purposes could not be effected without the exercise of the power, they were bound to exercise it (a).

Where trustees are required to do an act.

3. The Court will not in general control the discretion of trustees in reference to the adoption of any particular species of investment (b). But where trustees were "authorised and required," with the consent and direction of the tenant for life, to invest in leaseholds, the clause was held to be imperative upon the tenant for life's demand, and the trustees were not even allowed to say that the leaseholds would impose personal liabilities upon themselves, for by being parties to the settlement they had engaged to do it (c). But where the trustees were required to lend money to the husband on his bond, and he took the benefit of the Insolvent Debtors Act, it was held that, under such altered circumstances, the trustees were justified in refusing a loan to the husband (d); and where a variation of securities was to be with the consent of the tenant for life, and the fund was in danger, the Court called in the fund, though the consent of the tenant for life was refused (e).

[Maintenance of lunatic.]

[4. Where property was held upon trust to pay the income in such way, at such time, and in such manner, as the trustees should think fit towards the maintenance of a lunatic during her life, with power to invest any surplus not required for the purpose as capital, it was held that the trustees had no such discretion as would oust the jurisdiction of the Court to apply the income in the lunatic's maintenance in exoneration of her absolute property (f).]

Maintenance of infants.

5. If a fund be applicable to the maintenance of children at the discretion of trustees, the Court will not take upon itself to regulate the maintenance, but will leave it to the trustees (g). [But the discretion must be exercised within the limits of a sound

(a) Nickisson v. Cockill, 3 De G. J. & S. 622; 2 New Rep. 557; [and see Re Courtier, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 136].

(b) Lee v. Young, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 532.

(c) Beauclerk v. Ashburnham, 8 Beav. 322; Cadogan v. Earl of Essex, 2 Drew. 227.

(d) Boss v. Godsall, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 617.

(e) Costello v. O'Rorke, 3 I. R. Eq. 172.

[(f) Re Weaver, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 615.]

(g) Livesey v. Harding, Taml. 460; Collins v. Vining, C. P. Coop. Rep. 1837-38, 472; Brophy v. Bellamy, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 798; [Re Bryant, (1894) 1 Ch. 324, where, under the peculiar circumstances, the Court held that the trustees were justified in declining to exercise the discretionary trust].

and honest execution of the trust (a): and where the Court was of opinion that the exercise of the discretion had not been proper, it set it aside and regulated the maintenance irrespective of the wishes of the trustees (b). But the Court has no jurisdiction on a summons for maintenance intituled only "in the matter of the infant" to control the discretion of the trustees; this can only be done in an action, or on an originating summons, to which the trustees are made parties (c).

[Payment by guardian to co-guardian.]

6. Where trustees are guardians of infants, and one guardian pays the income to the other guardian for the maintenance and education of the infants, he will not be discharged by such payment, but must show that the infants have been properly maintained and educated, and that the amount paid to the other guardian was a proper allowance for the purpose (d).]

Mode of execution of trust.

7. Where a fund is bequeathed to executors or trustees upon trust to distribute among the testator's relations, or apply the fund to any other specific purpose in such manner as the executors or trustees may think fit, the executors or trustees, if willing to execute the trust, will not, even on a suit being instituted for carrying the trusts into execution, be deprived of their discretionary power, but may propose a scheme before the judge in chambers for the approbation of the Court (e).

Power as to the objects of the trust.

8. Where the objects of a charity are from time to time to be at the discretion of the trustees (as if annual sums be made distributable either to private individuals or public institutions, as the trustees may think fit), the Court will not even order a scheme to be proposed, but will leave the trustees to the free exercise of their power with liberty for all parties to apply (f).

Selection of particular objects.

9. So where trustees had the power of selecting a lad for education from certain parishes, and if there were no suitable candidate, then from any other parish, and the trustees upon consideration rejected the candidate from the specified parishes, and selected a lad from another parish, it was held that the Court could not control the discretion. The trustees had assigned no

[(a) Costabadie v. Costabadie, 6 Hare, 410; Davey v. Ward, 7 Ch. D. 754.]

[(b) Davey v. Ward, 7 Ch. D. 754; Re Roper's Trusts, 11 Ch. D. 272.]

[(c) Re Lofthouse, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 921.]

[(d) Re Evans, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 58.]

(e) Brunsden v. Woolredge, Amb. 507; Bennett v. Honywood, Id. 708; Mahon v. Savage, 1 Sch. & Lef. 111; Supple v. Lowson, Amb. 729, &c.

(f) Waldo v. Caley, 16 Ves. 206; Horde v. Earl of Suffolk, 2 M. & K. 59; and see Powerscourt v. Powerscourt, 1 Moll. 616; Holmes v. Penney, 3 K. & J. 103; [Re Lea, 34 Ch. D. 528; Shuldham v. Royal National Lifeboat Institution, 56 L. J. Ch. 784; 57 L. T. N.S. 17; 35 W. R. 710; Warren v. Clancy, (1898) 1 I. R. (C.A.) 127].

reason for their choice, but that the Court said was not necessary, and in many cases would not be proper (a). [And so where a scholarship was to be awarded to the qualified candidate who should pass the best examination, the trustees were justified in withholding the scholarship from the candidate who obtained the highest number of marks, on the ground that he was not deserving of so valuable a scholarship (b).]

Reasons for exercise of the power.

10. But though trustees invested with a discretionary power are not bound to assign their reasons for the way in which they exercise it; yet, if they do state their reasons, and it thereby appears that the trustees were labouring under an error, the Court will set aside the conclusion to which they came upon such false premises (c).

Powers not to be exercised nunc pro tunc.

11. Where the trustees have a discretionary power they must exercise their judgment according to the circumstances as they exist at the time, and they cannot, therefore, anticipate the arrival of the proper period by affecting to release it or by pledging themselves beforehand as to the mode in which the power shall be executed in futuro (d).

[Exercise of the power by will.]

[12. Where a trustee had an absolute discretion to apply the trust funds for certain charitable purposes as he might think fit, and he died without exercising the power by act inter vivos, but by his will gave definite directions as to the application of the funds, it was held that the power was duly exercised (e).]

Fraud.

13. There is sufficient ground for the interference of the Court, wherever the exercise of the discretion by the trustees is infected with fraud (f), or misbehaviour (g), or they decline to undertake

(a) Re Beloved Wilkes's Charity, 3 Mac. & G. 440.

[(b) Rooke v. Dawson, 65 L.J. Ch. 31.]

(c) Re Beloved Wilkes's Charity, 3 Mac. & G. 448; King v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 15 East. 117.

(d) Weller v. Ker, 1 L. R. Sc. App. 11; [Moore v. Clench, 1 Ch. D. 447, 453; Chambers v. Smith, 3 App. Cas. 795, 815; Oceanic Steam Navigation Company v. Sutherberry, 16 Ch.D. (C.A.) 236; Saul v. Pattinson, 55 L. J. Ch. 831; 54 L. T. N.S. 670; 34 W. R. 562; and see Thacker v. Key, 8 L. R. Eq. 408; Re Wise, (1896) 1 Ch. 281, and ante, p. 350; and similarly, a covenant to exercise a special testamentary power in a particular way is void: Re Bradshaw, (1902) 1 Ch. 436. Executors selling some shares in a company and retaining others may agree with the purchaser to vote as members in a particular way, if such agreement is beneficial to the estate, and the agreement being valid may be enforced by injunction: Greenwell v. Porter, (1902) 1 Ch. 530].

[(e) Copinger v. Crehane, 11 I. R. Eq. 429.]

(f) Attorney-General v. Governors of Harrow School, 2 Ves. 552, per Lord Hardwicke; Potter v. Chapman, Amb. 99, per eundem; Richardson v. Chapman, 7 B. P. C. 318; French v. Davidson, 3 Mad. 402, per Sir J. Leach; Talbot v. Marshfield, 4 L. R. Eq. 661; and on appeal, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 622; Thacker v. Key, 8 L. R. Eq. 408.

(g) Maddison v. Andrew, 1 Ves. 59, per Lord Hardwicke; Attorney-General v. Glegg, Amb. 585, per eundem; Willis v. Childe, 13 Beav. 117; and see Re

the duty of exercising the discretion (a); or generally where the discretion is mischievously and ruinously exercised, as if a trustee be authorised to lay out money upon Government, or real or personal security, and the trust fund is outstanding upon any hazardous security (b). [But where the course pursued by the trustees is within the letter of the power, the onus is on the persons challenging their conduct to show that their discretion has been mischievously, or ruinously, or fraudulently exercised (c).]

Powers in case of charity.

14. And where the trustees of a charity were empowered to lease for three lives or thirty-one years, the Court expressed an opinion that the discretion might be controlled, if it appeared for the benefit of the charity that such a power should not be acted upon (d).

The Court will exercise a surveillance where the trustees are before it.

15. Where proceedings had been taken for controlling the discretion of the trustees, Lord Hardwicke said: "Though he could not contradict the intent of the donor, which was to leave it in the discretion of the trustees, yet he would not dismiss the information but would still keep a hand over them" (e).

After decree trustee cannot exercise even a special power without the sanction of the Court.

16. Where a suit has been instituted for the administration of the trust, and a decree has been made, that attracts the Court's jurisdiction, and the trustee cannot afterwards exercise the power without the concurrent sanction of the Court: as if a trustee have a power of investment, he cannot make any investment without the approval of the Court (f); or if a trustee have a power of appointment of new trustees, he is not excluded from the right of nominating the person, but the Court must give its sanction to the choice (g); [and if the Court does not approve the nominee of Beloved Wilkes's Charity, 3 Mac. & G. 440; Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 65.

(a) Gude v. Worthington, 2 De G. & Sm. 389. This was apparently the ground on which the case was decided, but the refusal of the trustees to act does not sufficiently appear on the report. And see Mortimer v. Watts, 14 Beav. 622; Re Sanderson's Trust, 3 K. & J. 497; Prendergast v. Prendergast, 3 H. L. Cas. 195; Palmer v. Newell, 25 L. T. N.S. 892; Bennett v. Wyndham, 23 Beav. 528; Gray v. Gray, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 218; 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 404.

(b) De Manneville v. Crompton, 1 V. & B. 359; Costello v. O'Rorke, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 172; and see Lee v. Young, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 532.

[(c) Re Brittlebank, 30 W. R. 99; and where trustees have an absolute discretion as to the payment of the income of a fund, there is no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver; Reg. v. Judge of County Court of Lincolnshire, 20 Q. B. D. 167.]

(d) Ex parte Berkhampstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 138.

(e) Attorney-General v. Governors of Harrow School, 2 Ves. 551.

(f) Bethell v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 24.

(g) Webb v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 7 Ves. 480; —— v. Robarts, 1 J. & W. 251; Middleton v. Reay, 7 Hare, 106; Kennedy v. Turnley, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 399; Consterdine v. Consterdine, 31 Beav. 333; Gray v. Gray, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 404; [Minors v. Battison, 1 App. Cas. 428; Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 571; Re Norris, 27 Ch. D. 333; Cecil v. Langdon, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1; Re Hall, 51 L. T. N.S. 901; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 527].

the trustee, it will call upon the trustee to make a new nomination, and will not appoint a person not nominated by the trustee merely on the ground that the nominee was not approved. Nor will the Court appoint a person not nominated by the trustee on the mere ground of such person being more eligible than the nominee of the trustee (a).

[Effect of Order 55.]

Where an action was commenced by writ for the general execution of the trusts of a will, and an order was made under Order 55, Rule 3, directing certain inquiries, including an inquiry whether new trustees had been appointed, and whether any and what steps ought to be taken for the appointment of new trustees, and pending the inquiry the surviving trustee appointed a new trustee under the powers of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, it was held, that by the order the powers of the trustee were not interfered with, except so far as the exercise of them must necessarily clash with the particular inquiries directed; that it was the duty of the trustee not to fill up the vacancies in the trusteeship without the approval of the Court; and that the proper course would have been for the trustee to apply in chambers, stating that he intended to appoint the new trustee, and if it was found that there was no objection to the appointment, it would have been approved (b).]

Acts before decree.

17. But if no decree has been made, then, as the plaintiff may abandon his suit at any moment, the trustee must not assume that a decree will be made, but must proceed in all necessary matters with the due execution of the trust (c). It would not be prudent, however, except in formal matters, to act without first consulting the Court. It was held in one case, that the trustees had not exceeded their duty by appointing new trustees after the filing of a bill, as no extra costs had been thereby occasioned (d); but in another case it was said that the trustees ought, under the difficulties in which they were placed, to have consulted the Court, and as, instead of so doing, they had acted independently and made an appointment, which, though they entered into evidence, they could not justify, and great extra costs had arisen out of their conduct, the extra costs which had been occasioned were thrown upon the trustees personally (e).

[(a) Re Gadd, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 134; and see Middleton v. Reay, 7 Hare, 106; Thomas v. Williams, 24 Ch. D. 558, 567; Re Higginbottom, (1892) 3 Ch. 132.]

[(b) Re Hall, 51 L. T. N.S. 901; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 527; 33 W. R. 509.]

(c) See Williams on Executors, p. 891, 4th ed.; p. 1915, 9th ed.

(d) Cafe v. Bent, 3 Hare, 245; [Thomas v. Williams, 24 Ch. D. 558, 567].

(e) Attorney-General v. Clack, 1 Beav. 467; and see Turner v. Turner, Lord St Leonards' Act, and Amendment Act.

18. [By 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, sect. 30, amended by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, sect. 9, trustees were authorised to] apply to any judge of the Court of Chancery, by petition or summons in chambers, for the opinion or direction of the judge respecting the management or administration of the trust property; [but the improved procedure under the new Rules of Court (a) rendered these enactments obsolete, and they have been repealed by the Trustee Act, 1893 (b).

[Order 55.]

19. Attention has already been called to the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order 55, Rule 3, under which an originating summons may be taken out in the chambers of a judge of the Chancery Division for directing executors, administrators, or trustees, to do or abstain from doing any particular act in their character as such executors, or administrators, or trustees; and the scope and effect of this rule has been considered (c). By Rule 12, the issue of the summons is not to interfere with or control any power or discretion vested in any executor, administrator, or trustee, except so far as such interference or control may necessarily be involved in the particular relief sought; and an order made upon such a summons will not interfere with the powers or discretions, except so far as they necessarily clash with the directions of the order (d).

[Questions under Settled Land Act.]

20. If any question arises, or doubt is entertained, respecting any matter within sect. 56 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, being the section which saves powers of the tenant for life, or trustees under a settlement, which are concurrent with those under the Act, and restricts the exercise by trustees of such powers to the extent to be presently pointed out, the Court may on the application of the trustees of the settlement, or of the tenant for life, or of any other person interested, give its decision, opinion, advice, or direction thereon (e).

The application should be by summons to be served upon the tenant for life, if not the applicant. But unless the judge otherwise direct, no person except the tenant for life need be served in any case (f).

Fifthly. Of the restrictions on the powers of trustees imposed by the Settled Land Acts.

30 Beav. 414; Talbot v. Marshfield, 4 L. R. Eq. 661; 3 L. R. Ch. App. 622; Bethell v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 24.

[(a) Ante, p. 420.]

[(b) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 51, & sched.]

[(c) See ante, p. 420.]

[(d) Re Hall, 51 L. T. N.S. 901; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 527; 33 W. R. 509.]

[(e) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 56, (3).]

[(f) Settled Land Act Rules, 1882, Rules 4, 5.]

[Powers under Settled Land Act cumulative.]

1. The Settled Land Act, 1882, vests in the tenant for life, including any other limited owner to whom under sect. 58 the powers of a tenant for life are given, large powers of dealing with the settled land (a), which powers cannot be released, or defeated, or avoided, either by the tenant for life or the settlor; but sect. 56 enacts as follows: "Nothing in this Act shall take away, abridge, or prejudicially affect any power for the time being subsisting under a settlement, or by statute or otherwise, exercisable by a tenant for life, or by trustees with his consent, or on his request, or by his direction or otherwise; and the powers given by this Act are cumulative." This enactment does not take away from the trustees named in any settlement the powers given to them by that settlement, but leaves those powers exercisable concurrently with the powers created by the Act (b). To obviate, however, the difficulty which might arise from the existence of concurrent powers, and in order to give full effect to the powers given by the Act to the tenant for life, the section further enacts as follows:—"But, in case of conflict between the provisions of a settlement and the provisions of this Act, relative to any matter in respect whereof the tenant for life exercises or contracts or intends to exercise any power under this Act, the provisions of this Act shall prevail; and, accordingly, notwithstanding anything in the settlement, the consent of the tenant for life shall, by virtue of this Act, be necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the settlement or other person of any power conferred by the settlement exercisable for any purpose provided for in this Act."

[Consent of tenant for life to exercise of powers.]

This clause has given rise to some difficulty, but has been interpreted by Pearson, J., by treating the first part of it as relating to concurrent powers in the tenant for life; in which case, if the powers under the settlement are less beneficial to him than those under the Act, he is entitled to exercise the powers under the Act notwithstanding any restriction in the settlement. The latter part of the clause, however, relates to the case of concurrent powers in the trustees of the settlement, or some other person under the settlement, and in the tenant for life, and requires the consent of the tenant for life to the exercise of the powers in addition to the requirements of the settlement (c); and such concurrence is necessary, although the tenant for life

[(a) As to what is included in the term "settled land", see sect. 2 of the Act.]

[(b) Re Duke of Newcastle's Estates, 24 Ch. D. 129.]

[(c) Re Duke of Newcastle's Estates, 24 Ch. D. 129.]

be a lunatic not so found (a). The "conflict" referred to, means a conflict between provisions connected with the execution of the power, as, for example, the consent of a third person, and not with the results of such execution, and therefore where a tenant for life has under the settlement a power of leasing which is more advantageous than that given by the Act, the provisions of the Act will not override those of the settlement (b). Where by a will a power of sale is given to the trustees of the whole estate, but undivided shares are separately settled, the consents of all the persons who are tenants for life, or persons having the powers of tenants for life, of the undivided shares are necessary to the exercise of their power of sale by the trustees of the will (c). Where the tenant for life is capable of exercising his powers, the Court will not, even though he be a bankrupt, make an order under the Settled Estates Act, giving general powers of sale or of leasing to any other person, but if the tenant for life wrongfully refuse to exercise his powers, so as to prevent obvious and practicable improvements from being effected, and the persons interested come before the Court with a well-considered scheme, and show that it is for the benefit of the estate that some particular lease should be granted, and that the tenant for life without sufficient reason refuses to exercise his power, the Court will make an order under the Settled Estates Act (d).

[Settled Estates Act.]

Powers already given by an order of the Court under the Settled Estates Act are not affected by sect. 56 of the Act of 1882, and the proper course, if it is desired to supersede them, is to apply under the Settled Estates Act for that purpose (e).

[General powers of trustees not affected.]

2. It may be observed that the powers of the trustees, for the exercise of which the consent of the tenant for life is required, are those conferred by the settlement, and the enactment does not touch general powers exercisable by the trustees virtute officii.

[Effect of enactment.]

3. The effect of the enactment stated shortly is that any special power, given to trustees for any of the purposes for which similar powers are given by the Settled Land Acts to the tenant for life, cannot be exercised without his concurrence.

[Consent of all tenants for life in possession required by Act of 1882.]

4. By the definition of a tenant for life it is provided (f) that if, in any case, there are two or more persons entitled for life to

[(a) Re Atherton, W. N. 1891, p. 85.]

[(b) Earl of Lonsdale v. Lowther, (1900) 2 Ch. 687.]

[(c) Re Osborne and Bright's Limited, (1902) 1 Ch. 335.]

[(d) Re Mansel's Settled Estates, W. N. 1884, p. 209; and see Cecil v. Langdon, 54 L. T. N.S. 418.]

[(e) Re Poole's Settlement, 32 W. R. 956; 50 L. T. N.S. 585; Re Barrs Haden's Settled Estates, 32 W. R. 194; 49 L. T. N.S. 661.]

[(f) Sect. 2, sub-s. 6.]

possession of settled land as tenants in common, or as joint tenants, or for other concurrent estates or interests, they together constitute the tenant for life for the purposes of the Act. And by sect. 58, the limited owners therein specified are to have the powers of a tenant for life, and the provisions of the Act referring to a tenant for life are to extend to each of such limited owners, and reading these provisions with the 56th section, it resulted that where several persons were concurrently entitled as tenants for life, or as such limited owners, in possession to the income of the settled land, the consent of all of them was necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the powers affected by the section (a). This was found in practice to lead to useless delay and expense, and to remedy the evil it was enacted by the Settled Land Act, 1884 (b), that where two or more persons together constitute the tenant for life for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882, then notwithstanding anything contained in sub-sect. 2 of sect. 56 of that Act, requiring the consent of all those persons, the consent of one only of those persons is by force of that section to be deemed necessary to the exercise by the trustees of the settlement, or by any other person, of any power conferred by the settlement exercisable for any purpose provided for in that Act. And the section applies to dealings as well before as after the passing of the Act.

[Consent of one sufficient under Act of 1884.]

As the law, therefore, now stands, the trustees can exercise their powers if the concurrence can be procured of any one of the persons concurrently interested under the settlement, as tenant for life, or limited owner in possession of any share of the settled property (c).

5. Hitherto we have been considering the case where there is no trust for sale, or imperative direction to the trustees to sell. Where, however, there is such a trust or direction the case falls within sect. 63 of the Act of 1882, and the right of the trustees to exercise their powers for any purpose for which similar powers are conferred by the Act is subject to restrictions of an entirely different nature, which we proceed now to consider.

[Case of trust for sale or direction to sell.]

6. By sect. 63 of the Act of 1882, sub-sect. 1, it is provided that any land, or any estate or interest in land, which under or by virtue of any deed, will, or agreement, covenant to surrender,

[Sect. 63.]

[(a) Re Collinge's Settled Estates, 36 Ch. D. 516.]

[(b) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18, s. 6 (2).]

[(c) But not where the shares are separately settled, as then the tenants for life of undivided shares do not together constitute a tenant for life for the purposes of the Act of 1882; and see Re Osborne and Bright's Limited, (1902) 1 Ch. 335.]

copy of Court Roll, Act of Parliament, or other instrument, or any number of instruments, whether made or passed before or after, or partly before and partly after, the commencement of the Act, is subject to a trust or direction for sale (a) of that land, estate, or interest, and for the application or disposal of the money to arise from the sale or the income of that money, or the income of the land until sale, or any part of that money or income for the benefit of any person for his life, or any other limited period, or for the benefit of two or more persons concurrently for any limited period, and whether absolutely, or subject to a trust for accumulation of income for payment of debts or other purpose, or to any other restriction, shall be deemed to be settled land, and the instrument or instruments under which the trust arises shall be deemed to be a settlement; and the person for the time being beneficially entitled (b) to the income of the land, estate, or interest aforesaid until sale, whether absolutely or subject as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be tenant for life thereof; or if two or more persons are so entitled concurrently, then those persons shall be deemed to constitute together the tenant for life thereof; and the persons, if any, who are for the time being under the settlement trustees for sale of the settled land, or having power of consent to, or approval of, or control over the sale, or if under the settlement there are no such trustees, then the persons, if any, for the time being, who are by the settlement declared to be trustees thereof for purposes of that Act, are for purposes of the Act trustees of the settlement. And by sub-sect. 2, in every such case the provisions of the Act referring to a tenant for life and to a settlement, and to settled land, are to extend to the person or persons aforesaid, and to the instrument or instruments under which his or their estate or interest arises, and to the land therein comprised, subject to certain exceptions not material to the present purpose.

[(a) As to the meaning of these words, see Re Horne's Settled Estate, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 84, from which case it would seem that the trust or direction to which the property is "subject" must be presently exercisable and not postponed; but the fact that a trust for sale cannot be exercised without the consent of the tenant for life, does not prevent its being a trust or direction for sale within the section: Re Wagstaff's Settled Estates, (1909) 2 Ch. 201. A trust for sale that may never arise is not within the section; Re Goodall's Settlement, (1909) 1 Ch. 440. An implied trust or direction, e.g. by reason of a devise on trust to pay debts, is sufficient; Re M'Curdy, 27 L. R. Ir. 395; and a settlement of purely personal property with a power (which has been exercised) to invest in the purchase of land, may be within the section; Re Child's Settlement, (1907) 2 Ch. 348, ante, p. 695.]

[(b) That is, entitled in præsenti; see Re Horne's Settled Estate, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 84.]

This obscure section gave rise to many difficulties, and in many cases added considerably to the costs of administering trust estates, by unnecessarily obstructing the free disposition by the trustees of property vested in them upon trust for sale. Thus, the effect of the section was, where the proceeds of sale, or any share of the proceeds of sale, were held in trust for a person or several persons concurrently, any of whom had a life or other limited interest, to render various consents necessary (a); and it was a question of difficulty whether, even where the first trust affecting the proceeds of sale was for payment of debts, and the residue only, or a share of such residue, was held in trust for persons in succession, such consents could be dispensed with, though the better opinion seems to have been that such consents were in that case unnecessary. [Difficulties under the section.]

It is not proposed, however, to discuss what consents were required under the section, as the inconveniences which arose from requiring any consents were found to be so serious that the legislature intervened, and enacted by the Settled Land Act, 1884 (b), sect. 6, sub-sect. 1, that in the case of a settlement within the meaning of sect. 63 of the Act of 1882, any consent not required by the terms of the settlement is not, by force of anything contained in that Act, to be deemed necessary to enable the trustees of the settlement, or any other person, to execute any of the trusts or powers created by the settlement. And by sub-sect. 3, the section applies to dealings before, as well as after, the passing of the Act. But sect. 7 provides that, with respect to the powers conferred by sect. 63 of the Act of 1882, the following provisions are to have effect:— [Remedy provided by Settled Land Act, 1884.]

(1) Those powers are not to be exercised without the leave of the Court.

(2) The Court may by order, in any case in which it thinks fit, give leave to exercise all or any of those powers, and the order is to name the person or persons to whom leave is given.

(3) The Court may from time to time rescind, or vary, any order made under this section, or may make any new or further order.

(4) So long as an order under this section is in force, neither

[(a) In Taylor v. Poncia, 25 Ch. D. 646, a distinction was drawn between the case where there was an absolute trust for sale at a particular time, without any discretion in the trustees as to the time at which the sale should take place, and the ordinary case of a trust for sale with a discretion in the trustees to postpone the sale, and it was held that in the former case the section did not apply, and the trustees could sell without any consent.]

[(b) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18.]

the trustees of a settlement, nor any person other than a person having the leave, shall execute any trust or power created by the settlement, for any purpose for which leave is, by the order, given to exercise a power conferred by the Act of 1882.

(5) An order under this section may be registered and re-registered, as a lis pendens, against the trustees of the settlement named in the order, describing them on the register as "Trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882."

(6) Any person dealing with the trustees from time to time, or with any other person acting under the trusts or powers of the settlement, is not to be affected by an order under this section, unless and until the order is duly registered, and when necessary re-registered, as a lis pendens.

(7) An application to the Court under this section may be made by the tenant for life, or by the persons who together constitute the tenant for life, within the meaning of sect. 63 of the Act of 1882.

(8) An application to rescind or vary an order, or to make any new or further order under this section, may be made also by the trustees of the settlement, or by any person beneficially interested under the settlement.

(9) The person or persons to whom leave is given by an order under this section, shall be deemed the proper person or persons to exercise the powers conferred by sect. 63 of the Act of 1882, and shall have, and may exercise those powers accordingly.

(10) This section is not to affect any dealing which has taken place before the passing of this Act, under any trust or power to which this section applies.

[Effect of enactments.]

7. The effect of these enactments is, that where property is subject to a trust or direction for sale, as distinguished from a mere power of sale, the trustees may execute the trust, and exercise their powers irrespective of the restrictions arising under the Settled Land Act, 1882, until an order has been made by the Court giving leave to some other person or persons to exercise all or any of the powers conferred by sect. 63 on the tenant for life; and that until such an order has been made no tenant for life or other limited owner is able, under the Act of 1882, to exercise any power conferred by that Act. But when such an order has been made, and so long as the order remains in force, the trustees cannot execute any trust or power created by the settlement for any purpose to which the leave given by the order extends (a). The powers under the settlement and the Act will thus never be concurrent, and as every order, to be effectual, must be registered, and re-registered as a lis pendens, there will never be any difficulty in ascertaining, by a search for lites pendentes, whether the trustees are in a position to execute their trusts and powers. Moreover, as the persons to whom leave is given to exercise the powers "are to be deemed the proper persons to exercise them, and may accordingly exercise them," any person dealing with such persons will acquire a statutory title from them, and will not be under any obligation to ascertain that the leave was properly given.

[(a) Re Harding's Estate, (1891) 1 Ch. 60, 64.]

[Instrument creating the trust.]

8. It has been held that, in determining whether land vested in trustees upon trust for sale is subject to the provisions of the Settled Land Act, 1882, the Court must look simply at the instrument which created the trust for sale, and that if at the time when a contract for sale is entered into by the trustees, there is no person who, by virtue of the provisions of that instrument, is entitled to the income of the money arising from the sale, or of the land until sale, for his life or any other limited period, sect. 63 does not apply, notwithstanding that, under other instruments subsequent to that creating the trust for sale, there may be tenants for life or persons with other limited interests (a).

[Leave to tenant for life to sell.]

9. Where the tenants for life of the income of the proceeds of sale were two elderly maiden ladies, and in default of their having children, the proceeds belonged beneficially to the persons who were constituted trustees for sale, leave was granted to the tenants for life to sell the land, North, J., observing that it was the simplest possible case, and if he were not to say that these tenants for life were to have leave he could not imagine any case in which leave should be given (b).

[Tenant for life let into possession.]

10. Where the tenant for life applies to the Court for possession, and leave to exercise the powers conferred by sect. 63, the Court, on being satisfied that the case is one in which possession ought to be granted, will insert in the order any such undertakings by him as are proper for the protection of all persons interested in the estate, and as the application is for his convenience, the costs must be borne by him (c).]

[(a) Re Earle and Webster's Contract, 24 Ch. D. 144.]

[(b) Re Harding's Estate, (1891) 1 Ch. 60, 65.]

[(c) Re Bagot's Settlement, (1894) 1 Ch. 177, where the tenant for life, a married woman restrained from anticipation, was let into possession, and leave given to her to exercise all the powers of a tenant for life under the Acts, except those of sale and exchange; and see post, Chap. XXVII. as to the circumstances under which the Court will let an equitable tenant for life into possession.]

CHAPTER XXV

OF ALLOWANCES TO TRUSTEES

Now that we have discussed the duties of trustees, and the extent of their powers, we may next enter upon subjects very closely interwoven with the execution of the office, viz. First, Allowances to trustees for their time and trouble; and, Secondly, Allowances to trustees for actual expenses.

SECTION I

ALLOWANCES FOR TIME AND TROUBLE

General rule.

1. It is an established rule in general, that a trustee shall have no allowance for his trouble and loss of time. One reason given is, that on these pretences, if admitted, the trust estate might be loaded and rendered of little value; besides the great difficulty there would be in settling and adjusting the quantum of such allowance, especially as one man's time may be more valuable than that of another; and there can be no hardship in this respect upon the trustee, for it lies in his own option whether he will accept the trust or not (a). The true ground, however, is, that if the trustee were allowed to perform the duties of the office, and to claim compensation for his services, his interest would be opposed to his duty; and, as a matter of prudence, the Court would not allow a trustee or executor to place himself in such a false position (b).

(a) Robinson v. Pett, 3 P. W. 251, per Lord Talbot; Gould v. Fleetwood, cited Ib. note (A.); How v. Godfrey, Rep. t. Finch, 361; Brocksopp v. Barnes, 5 Mad. 90; Ayliffe v. Murray, 2 Atk. 58; Re Ormsby, 1 B. & B. 189, per Lord Manners; Charity Corporation v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 406, per Lord Hardwicke; Bonithon v. Hockmore, 1 Vern. 316, &c.

(b) New v. Jones, Exch. 9th Aug. 1833, cited 9th Jarm. Prec. 338, per Lord Lyndhurst; and see Burton v. Wookey, 6 Mad. 368.

Executors, mortgagees, receivers, committees of lunatics.

2. And the rule applies not only to trustees in the strict and proper sense of the word, but to all who are virtually invested with a fiduciary character, as executors and administrators (a), mortgagees (b), receivers (c), committees of lunatics' estates (d), a surviving partner (e), &c.

Trustees of West India estates.

3. But trustees for absentees of estates in the West Indies are allowed a commission for their personal care in the management and improvement of the property. However, if, instead of remaining upon the island, they commit the management to the hands of agents, the Court will reject the claim; for it would be a strange construction that one allowed a commission on account of the proprietor's absence should insist upon his reward when he had been absent himself (f). But a manager, though he forfeits his commission during the period of his absence, will be repaid the sums actually disbursed by him for the care of the estate by others, provided the payments he has made be in themselves reasonable and proper (g).

Executor in the East Indies.

4. An executor appointed in the East Indies and administering in that country, and then returning to England, was formerly, if called upon in a Court of Equity to render an account, allowed a commission of 5 per cent. upon the receipts or payments, [where, according to the existing practice of the Indian Courts, a similar allowance would have been made in India (h).] If, however, an

(a) Scattergood v. Harrison, Mos. 128; How v. Godfrey, Rep. t. Finch, 361; Sheriff v. Axe, 4 Russ. 33.

(b) Bonithon v. Hockmore, 1 Vern. 316; Langstaffe v. Fenwick, 10 Ves. 405; French v. Baron, 2 Atk. 120; Carew v. Johnston, 2 Sch. & Lef. 301; Arnold v. Garner, 2 Ph. 231; Matthison v. Clarke, 3 Drew. 3; Barrett v. Hartley, 12 Jur. N.S. 426; [Re Wallis, 25 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 176; Stone v. Lickorish, (1891) 2 Ch. 363 (as to costs of solicitor-mortgagee)]. Mortgagees were also disabled formerly by the effect of the usury laws from claiming anything beyond their principal and legal interest. [As to professional charges by a solicitor who is a mortgagee, see the Mortgagees Legal Costs Act, 1895 (58 & 59 Vict. c. 25), ss. 2, 3; Day v. Kelland, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 745; and as to opening settled accounts, see Cheese v. Keen, (1908) 1 Ch. 245, post, p. 783.]

(c) Re Ormsby, 1 B. & B. 189.

(d) Anon. case, 10 Ves. 103; Re Walker, 2 Ph. 630; Re Westbrooke, Ib. 631.

(e) Burden v. Burden, 1 V. & B. 170; Stocken v. Dawson, 6 Beav. 371.

(f) Chambers v. Goldwin, 9 Ves. 273.

(g) Forrest v. Elwes, 2 Mer. 68; and see Williams on Executors, 9th ed. pp. 1766, 1767.

(h) Chetham v. Lord Audley, 4 Ves. 72; Matthews v. Bagshaw, 14 Beav. 123. [But now by the India Act, No. II. of 1874, sect. 56, no person other than the Administrator-General acting officially is to receive or retain any commission or agency charges for anything done by the executor or administrator under any probate or letters of administration or letters ad colligenda bona which have been granted by the Supreme Court, or High Court at Fort William in Bengal, since the passing of the Act No. VII. of 1849, or by either of the Supreme or High Courts at Madras and Bombay, since the passing of the Act No. II. of 1850, or which have been or shall be granted by any Court of competent jurisdiction within the meaning of ss. 187 and 190 of the Indian Succession

Indian executor, after collecting part of the assets, came over to this country, he was allowed a commission on those assets only that were collected by himself in India, and not on the assets subsequently collected by his agents and transmitted to this country, for the Courts here allowed the commission because the Indian Courts allowed it, and the Indian Courts allowed it on the ground of residence in India (a).

Constructive trustees.

5. A person who has carried on a business with another man's money under circumstances which make him liable to account for profits, will be allowed a compensation for his skill and exertions in the management of the concern (b).

Express trustee has no allowance for management of a trade.

6. But a person will not be permitted, except under very special circumstances (c), to charge anything for his management of a trade or business, where he has been clothed in express terms with the character of a trustee or executor (d).

Solicitors.

7. A solicitor who sustains the character of trustee will not be permitted to charge for his time, trouble, or attendance, but only for his actual disbursements (e). Lord Lyndhurst observed: "It would be placing his INTEREST at variance with the duties he has to discharge. It is said, the bill may be taxed, but that would not be a sufficient check; the estate has a right not only to the protection of the taxing officer, but also to the vigilance and guardianship of the executor or trustee: a trustee placed in the situation of a solicitor might, if allowed to perform the duties of

Act, 1865. But this enactment is not to prevent any executor or other person from having the benefit of any legacy bequeathed to him in his character of executor, or by way of commission or otherwise. By the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 (Act II. of 1882), sect. 50, it is provided that "in the absence of express directions to the contrary, contained in the instrument of trust, or of a contract entered into with the beneficiary or the Court at the time of accepting the trust, a trustee has no right to remuneration for his trouble, skill, and loss of time in executing the trust," but nothing in this section is to apply to any official trustee, Administrator-General, Public Curator, or person holding a certificate of administration.]

(a) Campbell v. Campbell, 13 Sim. 168; and see 2 Y. & C. C. C. 607. An executor in India was only allowed the commission where the testator himself had not left him a legacy for his trouble: Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 24; but if the amount of the legacy was an inadequate compensation for the duties of the office, the executor, so as he signified his resolution in proper time, might renounce the intended legacy, and take advantage of the commission, Id. 28.

(b) Brown v. De Tastet, Jac. 284; and see Sir Samuel Romilly's argument in Crawshay v. Collins, 15 Ves. 225; and Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 22 Beav. 84. To this principle must also be referred the decision in Brown v. Litton, 1 P. W. 140; 10 Mod. 20.

(c) Forster v. Ridley, 4 N. R. 417; S. C. 4 De G. J. & S. 452.

(d) Stocken v. Dawson, 6 Beav. 371; Burden v. Burden, 1 V. & B. 170; Brocksopp v. Barnes, 5 Mad. 90. See Marshall v. Holloway, 2 Sw. 432.

(e) New v. Jones, Exchequer. 9th Aug. 1833, 9 Jarm. Prec. 338. See the result of the various decisions stated ante, pp. 312, et seq.

a solicitor and to be paid for them, find it very often proper to institute and carry on legal proceedings which he would not do, if he were to derive no emolument from them himself, and if he were to employ another person" (a).

Settled accounts.

8. If a cestui que trust settle accounts with a trustee, who is a solicitor, and execute a general release, and the accounts contain items of charges for professional services, the cestui que trust, if he had no legal advice, and was not expressly informed that professional services might have been disallowed, may open the accounts as regards any objectionable items (b); but [in order to do this, the cestui que trust must at least make out a primâ facie case showing some error in the account (c), and if he] had independent legal assistance, he is bound by the release (d). [The trustee in such a case should cause a detailed bill of costs to be incorporated with the account (e).]

Purchaser.

9. The doctrine against professional charges by a trustee, who is a solicitor, is so rigidly applied, that where a security has been given for payment of such professional charges, it may be set aside, even as against a purchaser for valuable consideration, if he had notice (f).

Allowance directed by the settlor.

10. The rule against allowances to trustees is merely a general one in the absence of express directions to the contrary; for there is no objection to the settlor himself directing compensation to the trustee for his services, either by the gift of a sum in gross, or by the allowance of a salary (g).

Allowance does not cease on institution of a suit.

11. And if a testator give an executor a salary for his trouble, the allowance will not cease on the institution of a suit; for though the management be thenceforward under the direction of the Court, the executor is still called upon to assist the Court in the administration with his care and vigilance (h). If the executor be wholly incapacitated, even by the act of God, from discharging the duties of executor (i), and a fortiori if the

(a) New v. Jones, 9 Jarm. Prec. 338; Clarkson v. Robinson, (1900) 2 Ch. 722, ante, p. 313.

(b) Todd v. Wilson, 9 Beav. 486; [and see Re Fish, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 413; Re Webb, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 73, 83, 85; Cheese v. Keen, (1908) 1 Ch. 245 (case of mortgagee solicitor).]

[(c) Re Webb, ubi sup.]

(d) Stanes v. Parker, 9 Beav. 385; Re Wyche, 11 Beav. 209.

[(e) Re Webb, ubi sup., per Davey, L.J.]

(f) Gomley v. Wood, 3 Jon. & Lat. 678, [where the solicitor having acted for the purchaser, the purchaser was treated as having notice of all that the solicitor knew, see p. 693].

(g) Webb v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 7 Ves. 480; Robinson v. Pett, 3 P. W. 250, per Sir J. Jekyll; Willis v. Kibble, 1 Beav. 559. [And as to the effect of such clauses, see ante, p. 312, et seq.]

(h) Baker v. Martin, 8 Sim. 25; see ante, p. 747.

(i) Re Hawkins' Trusts, 33 Beav. 570; Hanbury v. Spooner, 5 Beav. 630.

executor, being capable, do not act when there is nothing to prevent his acting (a), he cannot claim a legacy given to him for his trouble in the executorship (b), and an annuity, limited to a trustee during the continuance of his office, cannot be claimed when the duties of the office have ceased by the absolute vesting of the property (c).

Amount of allowance not expressed.

12. Where the settlor has directed a remuneration to the trustee, but has not declared the amount, a reference will be directed to settle the quantum meruit, according to the circumstances of the case (d).

Contract for an allowance with the cestui que trust.

13. The trustee may also, at the time of accepting the trust, contract for an allowance or remuneration for his services (e); but bargains of this kind are watched by the Court with exceeding jealousy (f), and must be freely made and not submitted to from pressure (g); and where the person about to become trustee and bargaining for remuneration is a solicitor, who is acting as such in the preparation of the instrument of trust which purports to confer the right of remuneration, there would seem to be considerable difficulty in upholding the contract unless the client had independent professional advice, or unless, at all events, the solicitor can show that the precise nature of the arrangement was distinctly explained to the client (h).

Terms of the contract must be fulfilled to the letter.

14. Where the contract is valid originally, the conditions of it must be fulfilled to the letter, or the trustee is not entitled to his reward. An executor, who had no legacy, and where the execution of the trust was likely to be attended with trouble, agreed with the residuary legatees, in consideration of 100 guineas, to act in the executorship. He died before the execution of the trust was completed, and his executors brought a bill to be allowed those 100 guineas out of the trust money in their hands; but the Court said all bargains of this kind ought to be discouraged, as tending to eat up the trust, and here the executor had died before he had finished the affairs of the trust; and so the plaintiffs' demand was disallowed (i).

Contract for an allowance with the Court.

15. A trustee dealing with the Court is at liberty, before

(a) Slaney v. Witney, 2 L. R. Eq. 418.

(b) Re Hawkins' Trusts, 33 Beav. 570; Hanbury v. Spooner, 5 Beav. 630.

(c) Hull v. Christian, 17 L. R. Eq. 546.

(d) Ellison v. Airey, 1 Ves. 111, see 115; and see Willis v. Kibble, 1 Beav. 559.

(e) Re Sherwood, 3 Beav. 338; Douglas v. Archbutt, 2 De G. & J. 148.

(f) Ayliffe v. Murray, 2 Atk. 58.

(g) Barrett v. Hartley, 12 Jur. N.S. 426.

(h) Moore v. Frowd, 3 M. & Cr. 48.

(i) Gould v. Fleetwood, cited Robinson v. Pett, 3 P. W. 251, note (A).

accepting the trust, to stipulate for any remuneration which the Court may choose to give him (a). But if he omitted to contract with the Court before entering upon his duties, he will have great difficulty in obtaining compensation afterwards, and we may add that in no case will the Court remunerate a trustee for his trouble by permitting him to make professional charges where the settlor has not so directed, but will compensate him for his trouble, if at all, by a regular and fixed salary (b).

Mortgagee.

16. During the continuance of the usury laws a mortgagee could not, as a general rule, have bargained for a compensation exceeding together with the actual interest the legal rate, for an agreement of this kind would have tended to usury (c). But after a long struggle certain special exceptions were established in favour of mortgagees not in possession of West Indian estates (d).

[Effect of repeal of usury laws.]

[The rule that the mortgagee should not be allowed to stipulate for any collateral advantage beyond his principal and interest does not depend on the laws against usury (e), and a stipulation by the mortgagee that he should receive a bonus was, under special circumstances, held invalid on this ground (f); and for the same reason, a covenant in a mortgage for payment of any sum which may become owing from the mortgagor to the mortgagee, who is a solicitor, will not include profit costs and agency charges (g); but sums actually deducted by a mortgagee for commission and bonus at the times of making the advances, in accordance with the mortgage contract, entered into deliberately and without any unfair dealing on the part of the mortgagee, were allowed, the return thus made by the mortgagor to the mortgagee being regarded as part of the consideration for the accommodation to him (h).]

Employment of agents.

17. As a trustee will not be permitted to charge for his

(a) Marshall v. Holloway, 3 Sw. 452, 453; Newport v. Bury, 23 Beav. 30; Brocksopp v. Barnes, 5 Mad. 90, per Sir J. Leach; Re Freeman's Settlement, 37 Ch. D. 148; and see Morison v. Morison, 4 M. & Cr. 215.

(b) Bainbrigge v. Blair, 8 Beav. 588. See the observations of Lord Langdale, pp. 595, 596; [and see Re Freeman's Settlement, 37 Ch. D. 148, where a commission of 5 per cent. was allowed to an English trustee for receiving rents, all the cestuis que trust and the other trustees being resident out of the jurisdiction].

(c) See Chambers v. Goldwin, 9 Ves. 271.

(d) See the history of the struggle detailed in Lord Brougham's judgment in Leith v. Irvine, 2 M. & K. 277.

[(e) James v. Kerr, 40 Ch. D. 449, 460, per Kay, J.]

[(f) James v. Kerr, ubi sup.]

[(g) Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, (1894) 1 Ch. 218.]

[(h) Mainland v. Upjohn, 41 Ch. D. 126; following Potter v. Edwards, 26 L. J. Ch. 468; and see Marquess of Northampton v. Pollock, 45 Ch. D. (C. A.) 190, 212; S. C. in H. L. nom. Salt v. Marquess of Northampton, (1892) A. C. 1.]

personal care and loss of time, it is but just he should be allowed on proper occasions to call in the assistance of agents at the expense of the estate.

Collector of rents.

18. Thus a trustee, though he may not act as a collector himself with a commission (a), may, if the case require it, appoint a collector of rents (b), [or of book debts (c),] at a commission. [But trustees who under an order of the Court receive rents and are allowed a commission, will not be allowed additional charges in respect of a collector of rents (d).]

Bailiff.

19. As a man is not bound to be his own bailiff, if a trustee employ a skilful person in that capacity, the salary must be allowed (e); at least the Court will grant that indulgence where the estate is at such a distance that the trustee must have appointed a bailiff had the estate been his own (f).

Attorney.

20. An executor employed a person who had been his clerk to transact some business for him relative to the testator's affairs, and the Master insisted it was the executor's own duty, and refused to allow the expense. But Lord Hardwicke said, "it was clear that if an executor paid an attorney for his trouble and attendance in the management of the estate, he ought to be repaid the sums he had so disbursed," and ordered a reference to the Master to tax the items of the bill (g).

Accountant.

21. If the accounts be complicated, and the executor or trustee take upon himself to adjust and settle them, although it may occupy a great deal of his time and attention, the principle of equity is that he cannot claim a compensation; but if he choose to save his own trouble by the employment of an accountant, he is entitled to charge the trust estate with it under the head of expenses (h).

Weiss v. Dill.

22. In Weiss v. Dill (i), the executor of a trader had employed

(a) Nicholson v. Tutin, 3 K. & J. 159; [Re Bedingfield, 57 L. T. N.S. 332].

(b) Davis v. Dendy (the case of a mortgagee), 3 Mad. 170; Stewart v. Hoare, 2 B. C. C. 633; and see Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 2 S. & S. 237; Re Westbrooke, 2 Ph. 631; [but as to the propriety of trustees employing the solicitor to the trust estate to collect rents and receive a commission, see Re Weall, 42 Ch. D. 674].

[(c) Re Brier, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 238.]

[(d) Cox v. Bennett, 39 W. R. 308.]

(e) Bonithon v. Hockmore, 1 Vern. 316; Chambers v. Goldwin, 9 Ves. 272, per Lord Eldon.

(f) Godfrey v. Watson (as to a mortgage), 3 Atk. 518, per Lord Hardwicke. [As to the employment of professional advisers under the Public Trustee Act, 1906, see ante, p. 706.]

(g) Macnamara v. Jones, 2 Dick. 587.

(h) New v. Jones, Exch., 9th Aug. 1833, cited 9 Jarm. Prec. 338; Henderson v. M'Iver, 3 Mad. 275.

(i) 3 M. & K. 26; and see Giles v. Dyson, 1 Stark. N. P. C. 32; Hopkinson v. Roe, 1 Beav. 180; Day v. Croft, 2 Beav. 488.

an agent to collect debts, which were numerous and only paid after repeated applications, at a commission of 5 per cent. The Master had reduced the commission to $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.; and, the executor upon that ground taking an exception to the report, Sir J. Leach said: "Executors, generally speaking, are not allowed to employ an agent to perform those duties which, by accepting the office of executors, they have taken upon themselves; but there may be very special circumstances in which it may be thought fit to allow them the expenses they have incurred in the employment of agents; I have some doubt whether in this case the Master ought to have made any allowance, but with the allowance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. the executor must be content." The observations of Sir J. Leach might seem at first either to cast doubt upon the general right of a trustee to employ salaried agents in fitting cases, or to establish a distinction between the collection of debts and the collection of rents, but it cannot be supposed that his Honour intended to reverse his previously expressed views on the general principle (a), and there seems no ground for any such distinction as that adverted to. The decision in substance was, that the Court declined to overrule the Master's opinion on the question of quantum.

SECTION II

ALLOWANCES TO TRUSTEES FOR EXPENSES

General rule.

1. Though a trustee is allowed nothing for his trouble, he is allowed everything for his expenses out of pocket (b). "It flows," said Lord Eldon, "from the nature of the office, whether expressed in the instrument or not, that the trust property shall reimburse him all the charges and expenses incurred in the execution of the trust" (c). Even where trustees had been wrongfully appointed, but acted bonâ fide, and believed themselves to have been duly appointed, they were allowed their costs, charges, and expenses, notwithstanding the defect of title (d).

(a) See Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 2 S. & S. 237; [and see Re Brier, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 238].

(b) How v. Godfrey, Rep. t. Finch. 361; Re Ormsby, 1 B. & B. 190, per Lord Manners; Hide v. Haywood, 2 Atk. 126; Caffrey v. Darby, 6 Ves. 497, per Sir W. Grant; Godfrey v. Watson, 3 Atk. 518, per Lord Hardwicke; Feoffees of Heriot's Hospital v. Ross, 12 Cl. & Fin. 512, 515, per Lord Cottenham.

(c) Worrall v. Harford, 8 Ves. 8; and see Dawson v. Clarke, 18 Ves. 254; Attorney-General v. Mayor of Norwich, 2 M. & Cr. 424; Morison v. Morison, 7 De G. M. & G. 214.

(d) Travis v. Illingworth, W. N. 1868, p. 206.

Travelling expenses.

2. A trustee will be entitled to be reimbursed his travelling expenses (a), provided they be properly incurred (b).

Employment of solicitor.

3. Trustees are justified in employing a solicitor for the better conduct of the trust (c). And a trustee is entitled to be paid all costs properly incurred for which he is liable to the solicitor so employed; as where two executors, defendants in an administration suit, gave a joint retainer to a firm of solicitors, and one of the executors became bankrupt and was a debtor to the estate, it was held that the other executor, being liable for the whole costs under the joint retainer, was entitled to the whole costs as against the estate (d). [But this case has been dissented from by Sir G. Jessel, M.R., who held, in a similar case, that the solvent executor should be allowed only his own proportion of the costs up to the bankruptcy out of the estate, the defaulter's proportion being set off against the debt due from him, but that the costs incurred by both subsequently to the bankruptcy should be allowed in full (e). And this view has since been approved (f). The proportion of the common costs which should be allowed to the solvent trustee is a matter for the Taxing Master (g).] And the sums paid will, at the instance of the cestui que trust, though not liable to taxation, be looked over and moderated (h). And trustees, if they employ one of themselves as solicitor, instead of engaging a third person, will be answerable for all the consequences, if they be misled by the professional advice of such trustee solicitor (i).

(a) Ex parte Lovegrove, 3 D. & C. 763; and see Ex parte Elsee, 1 Mont. 1; Ex parte Bray, 1 Rose, 144. These were cases of assignees who by 6 G. 4. c. 16, s. 106 (the Bankrupt Act then in force), were to have "all just allowances," but trustees are equally entitled to all just allowances virtute officii; see Blackford v. Davis, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 305.

(b) Malcolm v. O'Callaghan, 3 M. & Cr. 62; and see Bridge v. Brown, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 181.

(c) Macnamara v. Jones, 2 Dick. 587.

(d) Watson v. Row, 18 L. R. Eq. 680.

[(e) Smith v. Dale, 18 Ch. D. 516. This case probably referred to a bankruptcy under the law as it existed prior to the Act of 1869, as under that Act the bankrupt trustee would not have been entitled to his costs after the bankruptcy until he had made good his default. See post, Chap. XXXIII. s. 5.]

[(f) M'Ewan v. Crombie, 25 Ch. D. 175.]

[(g) Smith v. Dale, M'Ewan v. Crombie, ubi sup.]

(h) Johnson v. Telford, 3 Russ. 477; Langford v. Mahony, 2 Conn. & Laws. 317.

(i) Alton v. Harrison (a legatee's suit), and Poyser v. Harrison (a residuary legatee's suit), cases which were consolidated and heard before V. C. Sir J. Stuart on 6th and 8th June, 1868. The testatrix, who died in 1851, devised her real and personal estate to two trustees, Ingle and Harrison (the former a solicitor, the latter a manufacturer), upon the usual trusts for sale and conversion; and as to the residue after payment of legacies and annuities to invest upon sufficient securities in trust for a class of persons. The trustees lent 500*l.* upon mortgage to one Thornley, and another 500*l.* to one Walker, and in 1853 Ingle died insolvent. It afterwards turned out that

[If in conveyancing matters regulated by the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881, the solicitor of the trustees elects under Rule 6 of the General Order of August, 1882, to be remunerated according to the old system, it may be matter for the consideration of the trustees whether they should continue to employ him on those terms (a).]

4. A trustee may give fees to counsel and shall have allowance thereof (b). Fees to counsel.

[5. A trustee will be allowed the costs of opposing a bill in Parliament which affects the trust estate (c). [Costs of opposing Bill in Parliament.]

And the Court will sanction the payment by the trustees of settled estates of costs which have been properly incurred by the [Of protecting the estate.]

both Thornley's security and Walker's security were second mortgages, and the whole money was lost. Ingle had been solicitor of the testatrix, and had made her will and acted as solicitor to the trust. The plaintiffs sought to make Harrison liable for the two sums of 500*l.* each as lent upon insufficient security. Harrison declared on oath that the value of the mortgaged property, free from incumbrance, was personally known to him, and was far in excess of the loan, and that the loss had arisen not from the inadequacy of value, but from the defect of title, viz. in the two mortgages being second mortgages; that when the advances were made he fully believed that in each case the security was a first mortgage, and that he had relied as to the title upon the legal advice of Ingle, who had frandulently represented the security as a fit and proper one; that the trustees had a right to employ one of themselves as solicitor to the trust (though no professional profits could be allowed), and that Harrison was entitled to the same protection from the legal advice given by Ingle, as if the trustees had employed a third person as solicitor, who had approved the title on their behalf. However, the Vice-Chancellor ruled that two trustees, one of whom was a solicitor, were liable to all the consequences if they employed one of themselves as such solicitor, instead of calling in a third person; and his Honour put the case of a single trustee, a solicitor, and asked whether it could be contended that such trustee was not liable for the consequences if he acted without other professional advice, and his Honour decided that Harrison was made liable for both the sums lent. This point seems to have arisen for the first time, and the judgment of the V.C. may be supported on principle; for if two persons be appointed trustees, they ought in matters of title to take professional advice, and for that purpose to employ a competent solicitor; but the selection of a proper legal adviser must be the joint act of the two, and as a man cannot be judge in his own case, they cannot appoint one of themselves to the office. A fortiori if there be a single trustee, a solicitor, he cannot act himself as solicitor and claim the same protection as if he had appointed another. When a settlor appoints a person as trustee, who is also a solicitor, he does not, in the absence of any special direction, mean him also to act as solicitor; for a person may be a very good trustee, and yet a very bad solicitor. The settlor selects his trustee, not because he is a solicitor or valuer, or fills any other scientific capacity, but because he is a person to be trusted with the property, and capable of managing it with the aid of professional advice.

[(a) See Re United Kingdom Land and Building Association, 37 W. R. 486; and see Re Evans, (1905) 1 Ch. 290, showing that the right of the solicitor to elect is not taken away by the fact that his clients are persons in a fiduciary capacity.]

(b) Cary, 14; Poole v. Pass, 1 Beav. 600.

[(c) Re Nicoll's Estates, W. N. 1878, p. 154; Re Ormrod's Settled Estates, (1892) 2 Ch. 318.]

tenant for life for the protection of the estates, whether as plaintiff or as defendant (a).

And costs incurred with a view to protect the trust estate in taking proceedings to establish a right to a several fishery (b), or to strike off the rolls a solicitor who is a defaulter to the trust, may be allowed (c).

The Settled Land Act, 1882, expressly authorises trustees of a settlement to reimburse themselves or pay and discharge out of the trust property all expenses properly incurred by them (d).]

Extra costs.

6. If a trustee be sued by a stranger concerning the trust, and have his costs paid him as between party and party, and the cestui que trust afterwards institute proceedings for an account, the trustee will be allowed his necessary costs in the former suit, and will not be concluded by the amount of the taxation (e); and if a trustee as defendant be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs, he will, unless he has forfeited his right by some misconduct, be entitled as between him and his cestui que trust to be reimbursed the costs which he has paid, and also those which he has himself incurred (f). The fact of a trustee having been unsuccessful in litigation, either as plaintiff or defendant, will not in the absence of misconduct disentitle him to be reimbursed his costs (g), but a trustee will have no claim to reimbursement out of the trust fund, where the legal proceedings were occasioned by his own negligence in the first instance (h); or were improperly instituted by himself (i); and a trustee will not be allowed, without question, whatever sums by way of costs he may have paid his solicitor; for the bill, as between trustee and cestui que trust, though not submitted to a regular taxation (which is between solicitor and client), will be moderated by the Court by a deduction of such charges as may appear irregular and excessive (j); and the trustee will not be allowed interest on Interest not allowed.

[(a) Re Earl de la Warr's Estates, 16 Ch. D. 587; 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 407; Re Lord Rivers' Estate, 16 Ch. D. 588, n. And see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 36.]

[(b) Hamilton v. Tighe, (1898) 1 I. R. 123; and see How v. Winterton, W.N. (1902) 230, where a subscription to a voluntary school, with a view to avoiding the increased expense of a board school, was allowed.]

[(c) Re Davis, 57 L. J. N.S. Ch. 3; 57 L. T. N.S. 755.]

[(d) Sect. 43.]

(e) Amand v. Bradburne, 2 Ch. Ca. 138; Ramsden v. Langley, 2 Vern. 536; and see Fearns v. Young, 10 Ves. 184.

(f) Lovat v. Fraser, 1 L. R. H. L. Sc. 37, per Lord Kingsdown.

(g) Courtney v. Rumley, 6 Ir. R. Eq. 99.

(h) Caffrey v. Darby, 6 Ves. 497; Courtney v. Rumley, 6 Ir. R. Eq. 99.

(i) Peers v. Ceeley, 15 Beav. 209; Leedham v. Chawner, 4 K. & J. 458.

(j) Johnson v. Telford, 3 Russ. 477; Allen v. Jarvis, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 616; [and see Brown v. Burdett, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 244, 254; Re Scowby, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 741]. As to the right of the costs, though at the time he paid them he had no trust moneys in his hands (a).

[7. Where a bill was filed to set aside a decree for a compromise on the ground of personal fraud in one of the trustees in obtaining the decree, but the charge of fraud was disproved, and the bill dismissed with costs to be paid by the next friend of the plaintiff, who, however, was unable to pay them, it was held that the trustee was entitled to have his costs discharged out of the trust estate, for the defence was by him, not on his own behalf, but for the benefit of the trust estate, and his right was not affected by the fact that his character was incidentally cleared in the suit (b). And this decision has been referred to as a very strong illustration of the general rule that a trustee is entitled in an ordinary case to recover out of the trust estate, as costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred, all his costs of an action which he has properly defended, and as showing that where a tenant for life has properly defended an action to restrain him from exercising his powers under the Settled Land Act, the difference between solicitor and client and party and party costs may be treated as charges and expenses incidental to the exercise of the power (c). But in view of the ease and comparatively small expense with which a trustee can, under the present procedure, obtain the opinion of the Court as to the propriety of defending an action, he should, in all cases of doubt, adopt that course, and if, acting on a doubtful opinion of counsel, he defends an action

[Costs of trustee defending his conduct in the trust.]

the cestui que trust to obtain a taxation, as against the solicitor, see Re Drake, 22 Beav. 438; Re Dickson, 3 Jur. N.S. 29, and cases there cited; Re Dawson, 28 Beav. 605; Re Press, 35 Beav. 34; Re Brown, 4 L. R. Eq. 464, in which it was held, that the costs are to be taxed as between solicitor and client; but that if not proper having regard to the nature of the trust, they can only be recovered from the trustee personally, and are not chargeable as between the solicitor and the cestui que trust; [Re Wellborne, (1901) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 312, holding that the discretion given to the Court by section 39 of the Solicitors Act, 1843, is limited by the proviso in section 41, so that the application by the cestui que trust for taxation must be made within twelve months after payment: Re Miles, (1903) 2 Ch. 518, holding that the ultimate incidence of the costs amongst the beneficiaries is a question outside the scope of such a taxation].

(a) Gordon v. Trail, 8 Price, 416. But if he pays off a debt carrying interest, he stands in the place of the creditor in respect of interest; Re Beulah Park Estate, 15 L. R. Eq. 43; Finch v. Pescott, 17 L. R. Eq. 554.

[(b) Walters v. Woodbridge, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 504; but see Hosegood v. Pedler, 66 L. J. Q. B. 18, where an executor who separately defended an unsuccessful action brought against him and the residuary legatees, was held by Charles, J., not to be entitled to be indemnified by them, as the outlay, being to protect himself against a charge of devastavit, was not in the strict line of his duty towards his cestuis que trust; and see Re Dunn, (1904) 1 Ch. 648.]

[(c) Re Llewellin, 37 Ch. D. 317, 327, per Stirling, J., and see ante, p. 685.]

defence to which is hopeless, he will not be allowed his costs (a).]

Allowance for expenses besides remuneration for trouble.

8. Even a specific remuneration given by the testator to his trustees for their services in the trust is no reason for excluding them from the usual allowance for expenses. A testator bequeathed to his acting trustees for the time being the yearly sum of five guineas apiece for the care and trouble they might have in the execution of the trust. The testator's estates consisted in part of about fifty houses in London, thirty-four of which were let to weekly tenants. The trustees employed a person to collect the rents, and Sir John Leach said: "The annuity was given to them as a recompense for the care and trouble which would attend the due execution of the office; and if it was consistent with the due execution of the office to employ a collector, they were entitled to the annuity. A provident owner might well employ a collector in such a case, and the labour of such a collection could not be imposed on the trustee" (b). [But where annuities were expressly given to trustees for "their services and collecting of rents" it was held that they could not claim the annuities in addition to a commission of greater amount allowed to a collector of rents (c).]

Account of expenses.

9. A regular account of the expenses should invariably be kept; but where this has not been done, the Court has ordered a reasonable allowance to be made in the gross, at the same time taking care that the remissness and negligence of the trustee in not having kept any account should not meet with any encouragement. Thus in Hethersell v. Hales (d), the trustee put in a general claim for 2500*l.*, apparently an average estimate of the expenses he had incurred in the trust. "The Court," says the reporter, "took some time to deliberate what was fit to be allowed in a matter of this nature; and having considered that the trustee was a friend to the family, and undertook the trust at their great importunity, and that he had incurred the charge of surveying the whole estate, selling and letting the same, looking after tenants, adjusting their accounts, calling in their rents, returning moneys to creditors, and treating with them and stating their debts, and procuring and

[(a) Re Beddoe, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 547.]

(b) Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 2 S. & S. 237; and see Webb v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 7 Ves. 480; Fountaine v. Pellet, 1 Ves. jun. 337; [and that an annual payment to trustees for their trouble in carrying on the testator's business after his death is liable to legacy duty, see Re Thorley, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 613; so also the benefit of a clause entitling a solicitor trustee to charge profit costs; see Re White, (1898) 1 Ch. 297; (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 217].

[(c) Re Muffet, 56 L. J. Ch. 600; 56 L. T. N.S. 671.]

(d) 2 Ch. Rep. 158.

agreeing with purchasers, and for law charges, and for keeping servants and horses, and employing others in journeys to London and elsewhere, and his care there lying from home a long time, the Court was of opinion that the trustee might well deserve the whole 2500*l.*, yet would not allow but 2000*l.*, which the trustee was to have."

Extraordinary outlay.

10. As it is a rule that the cestui que trust ought to save the trustee harmless from all damages relating to the trust, so within the reason of the rule, where the trustee has honestly and fairly, without any possibility of being a gainer, laid down money by which the cestui que trust is discharged from a loss, or from a plain and great hazard of it, the trustee ought to be repaid (a). So where a trustee employed a bailiff to fell some trees, and the woodcutter allowed a bough to fall on a passer-by, who was injured, and recovered damages from the trustee, it was held that as the trustee had meant well, had acted with due diligence, and had employed a proper agent to do an act which was within the sphere of the trustee's duty, and the agent made a mistake, the trustee was entitled to charge the damages on the trust estate (b).

[Where a trustee, in the reasonable management and working of his testator's colliery business, let down the surface of the land and injured the buildings of an adjoining owner, it was held that the trustee was entitled to be indemnified out of the assets, and that the adjoining owner was entitled to stand in the place of the trustee, and to have the benefit of this right to indemnity so as to obtain payment, directly out of the testator's estate, of damages and costs recovered by him (c).

[Expenses of carrying on a business.]

11. If a trustee is authorised to carry on a business, and to employ certain specific property for that purpose, the creditors of the business have a right to the benefit of indemnity and lien which the trustee has against the property devoted to the business; but this right is subject to any equities subsisting between the trustee and the cestui que trust of the specific property; and where the trustee is in default, and is not entitled to indemnity except upon the terms of making good the default, the creditors will have no right to indemnity except upon the same terms (a). But where the trustee for sale of a business carries on the business without authority for the benefit of the cestuis que trust, and incurs liabilities to tradesmen in so doing, there is no right in the creditors to come against the trust estate, but they must look to the trustee personally (b).

(a) Balsh v. Hyham, 2. P. W. 455, per Lord King; and see Attorney-General v. Mayor of Norwich, 2 M. & Cr. 424; Attorney-General v. Pearson, 2 Coll. 581; Quarrell v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 282; Sandon v. Hooper, 6 Beav. 246; Bright v. North, 2 Ph. 216; James v. May, 6 L. R. H. L. 328; [see Re Bagnall's Trusts, (1901) 1 I. R. 255, where profits or bonus on a policy, effected to secure repayment of money to a trust fund, were held to belong to a trustee who paid, out of his own money, an additional yearly premium in order to make the policy participating; and Re Hope, W.N. (1900) 76, where trustees were held entitled to retain out of income the loss occasioned to the trust estate by the carelessness of the tenant for life in allowing heirlooms left in his possession to be distrained upon by his landlord for arrears of rent].

(b) Bennett v. Wyndham, 4 De G. F. & J. 259.

[(c) Re Raybould, (1900) 1 Ch. 199.]

In a case in Ireland it was held premature for creditors of the business to apply for leave to attend proceedings in an action for the administration of the testator's estate, until on further consideration the executors were proved not to be in default, as in that case alone would the creditors be entitled to stand in the place of the executors in their right to indemnity against the estate (c).

Where a business is carried on by trustees, a trustee who has a clear account is entitled to indemnity independently of any default or breach of trust on the part of another trustee, and therefore the right of the creditors to payment by virtue of the trustees' right of indemnity is not precluded by the fact that one of the trustees has been found a defaulter (d).

Where the business is carried on in accordance with a general direction empowering the executors to continue it, and to employ any part of the general estate therein, and with the assent of the testator's creditors, in their interest as well as in that of the beneficiaries, the executors will be entitled, in priority to the claims of the testator's creditors, to be indemnified out of the general estate against liabilities properly incurred, and the indemnity will not be limited to the portion of the assets which has come into existence since the testator's death (e).]

[(a) Re Johnson, 15 Ch. D. 548; Ex parte Garland, 10 Ves. 110; Re Sumner, W. N. 1884, p. 121; Gallagher v. Ferris, 7 L. R. Ir. 489; Re Blundell, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1, 11. These authorities proceed on this principle, that where a particular part of a trust estate is specifically dedicated to a particular purpose which involves trade debts and liabilities, it is a trust to use it for that particular purpose, and the trustee, though personally liable for the debts which he contracts in the course of the business, has a right to be paid out of the specific assets appropriated for that purpose, and the trade creditors are not to be disappointed of payment so far as the assets so appropriated are concerned, per Selborne, L.C., Strickland v. Symonds, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 248; and see Boylan v. Fay, 8 L. R. Ir. 374.]

[(b) Strickland v. Symons, 22 Ch. D. 666; affirmed 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 245; and see Re Evans, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 597; Re Gorton, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 536, 543; inf., note (e); Jennings v. Mather, (1901) 1 K. B. 108; (1902) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 1.]

[(c) Re Morris, 23 L. R. Ir. 333.]

[(d) Re Frith, (1902) 1 Ch. 342; but see M'Aloon v. M'Aloon, (1900) 1 I. R. 367, referring to Re Morris, 23 L. R. Ir. 333.]

[(e) Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A. C. 190, varying the decision of the Court of Appeal (see Re Gorton, 40 Ch. D.

Expenses a lien on the trust estate.

12. The expenses incurred by a trustee in the execution of his office are treated by the Court as a first charge or lien upon the estate, and the cestui que trust or his assign cannot compel a conveyance in equity without a previous satisfaction of the trustee's just demands (a); and in a suit for the administration of the fund in respect of which the expenses have been incurred, the lien of the trustee will be paid even before the costs of suit (b); [and in priority to a charging order, obtained under the Solicitors Act, 1860, (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), sect. 28, by the solicitors of the beneficiaries, plaintiffs in the action, in respect of property recovered and preserved (c). And the expenses are a first charge upon the income as well as upon the corpus of the estate, and the trustees have therefore the right to retain their expenses out of the income until provision can be made for raising them out of the corpus (d)]. The trustee of a void trust deed cannot charge his expenses as against persons who establish the invalidity of the deed (e), though he will be allowed for improvements (f). [Where, however, a settlement was set aside so far as it limited to the settlor a life interest enduring after his own bankruptcy, the trustees, who had acted properly, were allowed to retain their costs out of arrears of income (g); and where a voluntary settlement was set aside, at the instance of the settlor, on the ground of improvidence and having regard to her youth, the trustees, in the absence of any evidence

(C.A.) 536), limiting the indemnity in the manner indicated; and see Re Brooke, (1894) 2 Ch. 600; Hodges v. Hodges, (1899) 1 I. R. 480. So far as creditors are concerned, the existence of the direction in the will, which is in no way binding on them, seems to be material only as evidence tending to show assent on their part. The right will not be extended to creditors in respect of goods supplied after a decree for administration not authorising the continuance of the business; M'Aloon v. M'Aloon, (1900) 1 I. R. 367.]

(a) See Ex parte James, 1 D. & C. 272; Hill v. Magan, 2 Moll. 460; Re Norwich Yarn Company, 22 Beav. 143; Ex parte Chippendale, 4 De G. M. & G. 19; Re Exhall Coal Company, 35 Beav. 449; Oliver v. Osborn, W. N. 1867, p. 245; Re Layton's Policy, W. N. 1873, p. 49; Brown, P. C. 266; and Trott v. Dawson, 1 P. W. 780, more fully referred to in the 8th edition of this work, p. 639, note (c), where it is shown that the case does not justify the erroneous inference which has been drawn from it, that a trustee gives credit for the expenses, not to the estate, but to the person of the cestui que trust, and that the assignee of the latter is not liable for the trustee's expenses incurred in the time of the assignor.

(b) See Morison v. Morison, 7 De G. M. & G. 226; Re Exhall Coal Company, 35 Beav. 449; [and see Moore v. McGlyn, (1904) 1 I. R. 334.]

[(c) Re Turner, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 126, 539 (notwithstanding that in the result the property became worthless and the action therefore disastrous).]

[(d) Stott v. Milne, 25 Ch. D. (C.A.) 710.]

(e) Smith v. Dresser, 1 L. R. Eq. 651; 35 Beav. 378; [and see Ex parte Russell, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 588, 602; Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 278].

(f) Woods v. Axton, W. N. 1866, p. 207.

[(g) Merry v. Pownall, (1898) 1 Ch. 306.]

of improper motive, were allowed their costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred (a); and where a settlement originally valid, is afterwards avoided under sect. 47 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, the trustees are entitled to their costs of an action unsuccessfully brought to set aside the settlement (b).] There will be no lien for expenses incurred by trustees in respect of an act done in excess of their powers, and therefore in breach of their duty (c). And the Court has refused to give effect to a trustee's lien by a foreclosure decree, or a sale, which would be the destruction of the trust itself; but the Court has gone as far as it could by delivering the deeds into his custody and prohibiting any disposition of the property without previous discharge of the trustee's lien (d).

[Enforcing right to indemnity.]

[13. Where a trustee has a right of indemnity out of the trust estate, he may at any time come to the Court to enforce it, and is under no obligation to wait until the trust estate has been turned into money under the trust (e).]

Advance by cestui que trust.

14. If trustees have to raise a certain sum which is properly chargeable on the corpus, and a cestui que trust, at the request of the trustees, advances money for the purpose, the cestui que trust stands in the place of the trustees and has a lien on the corpus for the amount (f).

Lien does not extend to the trustees' agents.

15. Although the trustees themselves are creditors upon the trust fund for the amount of their expenses, the persons who are employed by them as solicitors, surveyors, &c., have no such lien, [as they are the solicitors, &c., of the trustees personally, and not of the trust estate (g)]. And the law is so settled, notwithstanding an express declaration by the settlor that the trustees shall in the first place pay the expenses of the trust, and though the trustees themselves be charged to be insolvent. In every deed is implied a direction to pay the costs and expenses, and expressio eorum quæ tacite insunt nihil operatur. It would be a mischievous principle to hold, that every person with whom

[(a) Everitt v. Everitt, 10 L. R. Eq. 405; and see James v. Couchman, 29 Ch. D. 212, 217.]

[(b) Re Holden, 20 Q. B. D. 43; and see Re Carter and Kenderdine, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 776, 782.]

(c) Leedham v. Chawner, 4 K. & J. 458, in which case the Court held that there was no lien even as against a cestui que trust who knew and approved of the proceedings, but otherwise remained passive. And see post, p. 800.

(d) Darke v. Williamson, 25 Beav. 622; [and see Bowman v. Hill, (1907) 1 I. R. 451].

[(e) Re Pumfrey, 22 Ch. D. 255, 262; and see post, pp. 799, 800.]

(f) Todd v. Moorhouse, 19 L. R. Eq. 69; Re Layton's Policy, W. N. 1873, p. 49; and see Clack v. Holland, 19 Beav. 262.

[(g) Staniar v. Evans, 34 Ch. D. 470; and that a trustee or executor may retain a solicitor upon the terms that he is to look only to the estate for repayment, see Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 359.]

the trustees had incurred a just and fair demand might sue the trustees, and come for an account of the whole administration (a).

16. But a solicitor in accounting for his receipts to the trustees may set off his costs (b). And a positive direction to the trustees to employ a particular person as auditor or receiver, and allow him a proper salary, will constitute a trust in his favour, and, of course, give him a claim against the trust fund (c). But if a testator merely recommend or express a desire that his trustees should employ him as receiver, the question is, whether the words used amount to a trust, or only to an expression of opinion and advice: and to discover the meaning, the Court examines the provisions of the will, and if it finds that to consider the words as a trust would be inconsistent with the general character of the will, which assumes that the administration of the estate is to be unfettered by such a trust, the Court comes to the conclusion that the words were meant only by way of suggestion (d). [And where a will contained a direction that "the testator's solicitor should be the solicitor to his estate and to his trustees in the management and carrying out the provisions of his will," it was held that no trust or duty was imposed on the trustees to continue the testator's solicitor as their solicitor (e).

Secus if there be a positive direction to employ a particular agent.

17. Where after the death of an administratrix her solicitor, acting upon the instruction of a relative of the deceased person whose estate was being administered, continued to do work for the benefit of the estate, and the person who afterwards took out administration declined to pay the costs incurred during the period while there was no legal personal representative, it was held that there was no obligation upon him to do so (f).]

[Costs incurred while there was no personal representative.]

18. The agent of a trustee is accountable to the employer only, the trustee, and not to the cestui que trust (g); and an action by a cestui que trust against the trustee and his solicitor, alleging improper payments out of the trust fund by the trustee to the Trustee's agents not accountable to the cestuis que trust.

(a) Worrall v. Harford, 8 Ves. 4, see 8; Hall v. Laver, 1 Hare, 571; Feoffees of Heriot's Hospital v. Ross, 12 Cl. & Fin. 507; Francis v. Francis, 5 De G. M. & G. 108; [and see Staniar v. Evans, 34 Ch. D. 470].

(b) Re Sadd, 34 Beav. 650.

(c) Williams v. Corbet, 8 Sim. 349; Hibbert v. Hibbert, 3 Mer. 681; Consett v. Bell, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 569.

(d) Shaw v. Lawless, 1 Ll. & G. t. Sugd. 154; reversed 1 Dr. & Walsh, 512; 5 Cl. & Fin. 129; Ll. & G. t. Plunk. 559; Finden v. Stephens, 2 Ph. 142; Knott v. Cottee, 2 Ph. 192.

[(e) Foster v. Elsley, 19 Ch. D. 518.]

[(f) Re Watson, 18 Q. B. D. 116; 19 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 235.]

(g) Myler v. Fitzpatrick, 6 Mod. 360, per Sir J. Leach; Attorney-General v. Earl of Chesterfield, 18 Beav. 596; and see Langford v. Mahony, 2 Conn. & Laws. 317; Lockwood v. Abdy, 14 Sim. 441; Keane v. Robarts, 4 Mad. 350; Archer v. Lavender, 9 Ir. R. Eq. 225, per Cur.

solicitor, [cannot be maintained as against] the solicitor (a). But under the special provisions of the Solicitors Act, 1843 (b), cestuis que trust may, at the discretion of the Court, obtain an order to tax the bill of the solicitor employed by the trustee (c), and generally cestuis que trust may proceed against an agent where he has not confined himself to the duties of an agent, but by accepting a delegation of the trust (d), or by fraudulently mixing himself up with a breach of trust (e), has himself become a trustee by construction of law.

Agent when liable as trustee de son tort.

Moneys in hands of Secretaries of State.

19. Moneys voted by Act of Parliament for the public service, are not trust funds in the hands of the Secretaries of State for any particular individual, but for the general purposes of the office. The persons employed by them, therefore, have no lien which they can enforce in equity (f).

Trust of two estates.

20. If a person be trustee of different estates for the same cestuis que trust under the same instrument, and he incurs expenses on account of one estate in respect of which he has no funds, it is presumed that he may apply to their discharge any money which has come to his hands from any other of the estates (g); but he would not be justified in mixing up claims under one instrument of trust with those under another (h). [But where different estates are held under the same instrument for different cestuis que trust, the trustee cannot reimburse himself from one estate losses incurred in a bonâ fide administration of the other estate (i).]

(a) Maw v. Pearson, 28 Beav. 196; [Re Spencer, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 271; 30 W. R. 435; 45 L. T. N.S. 645; Re Jackson, 40 Ch. D. 495].

(b) 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 39.

[(c) Re Spencer, ubi sup.] As to the circumstances under which the Court will direct taxation at the instance of a cestui que trust, see Re Drake, 22 Beav. 438; Re Dickson, 3 Jur. N.S. 29, and cases there referred to; and Re Dawson, 28 Beav. 605; [Re Jackson, ubi sup.]

(d) Myler v. Fitzpatrick, 6 Mad. 360; and see Pollard v. Downes, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 6; Lee v. Sankey, 15 L. R. Eq. 204; [but as to the last case, see observation of Kay, L.J., in Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 403; and see M'Ardle v. Gaughan, (1903) 1 I.R. 107.]

(e) See Fyler v. Fyler, 3 Beav. 550; Alleyne v. Darcy, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 199; Portlock v. Gardner, 1 Hare, 606; Ex parte Woodin, 3 Mont. D. & De G. 399; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Leicester, 7 Beav. 176; Pannell v. Hurley, 2 Coll. 241; Bodenham v. Hoskyns, 2 De G. M. & G. 903; Morgan v. Stephens, 3 Giff. 226; Hardy v. Caley, 33 Beav. 365; [Re Barney, (1892) 2 Ch. 265; Mara v. Browne, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199; Midgley v. Midgley, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 282].

(f) Grenville-Murray v. Earl of Clarendon, 9 L. R. Eq. 11.

[(g) But see Re Munster Bank, 17 L. R. Ir. 341, and observations of Fitzgibbon, L.J., at p. 348. It would, however, seem that in that case the cestuis que trust were not the same, and that the decision in no way affects the limited proposition stated above.]

(h) Price v. Loaden, 21 Beav. 508.

[(i) Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855; and cf. Re Johnson, 15 Ch. D. 548.]

How expenses recoverable where no trust estate.

21. If the trust estate fail, the trustee may then institute proceedings against the cestuis que trust on whose behalf and at whose request he acted, to recover from him personally the amount of the money expended (a); and the rule applies to the case of a cestui que trust under coverture, to the extent of any property settled to her separate use, and where her anticipation is not restrained (b); and, generally, trustees acting with the sanction of their cestuis que trust, and not exceeding their powers, may call upon their cestuis que trust personally to reimburse them any necessary outlay (c). [This right arises wherever the relation of trustee and cestui que trust is established (d), unless precluded by the nature of the transaction (e), and is independent of any request from the cestui que trust to incur the liability (f); thus, the legal owner of shares, being made to pay calls, has a right to be indemnified by the equitable owner of the shares for the time being (g);] and it has been held that a trustee who, in that character, had incurred a legal liability, might call upon the cestui que trust in equity to give an indemnity against the liability before any actual loss had accrued (h). [In a recent case, where the plaintiff was holding, as a trustee for the defendant, shares in a company in liquidation which were not fully paid up, but on which no call had been actually made, Fry, J., refused relief by way of indemnity, and observed that the action was a mere action quia timet, and that if it could be maintained it would follow that every person who had undertaken any position of responsibility for another which entitled

[Right to indemnity against cestui que trust personally.]

(a) Balsh v. Hyham, 2 P. W. 453; Ex parte Watts, 3 De G. J. & S. 394; Re Southampton Imperial Hotel Company, 26 L. T. N.S. 384; 20 W. R. 435; Jervis v. Wolferstan, 18 L. R. Eq. 18; [and see Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, 872; and Re Knott, 56 L. J. Ch. 318; 56 L. T. N.S. 161; Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 Ch. D. 256; Whitaker v. Kershaw, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 320.]

(b) Butler v. Cumpston, 7 L. R. Eq. 16; [Whitaker v. Kershaw, ubi sup.]

(c) Ex parte Chippendale, 4 De G. M. & G. 19, see 54; Re Exhall Coal Company, W. N. 1867, p. 244; Ex parte Challis, 16 W. R. 451; 17 L. T. N.S. 637; James v. May, 6 L. R. H. L. 328; and see Hemming v. Maddick, 9 L. R. Eq. 175.

[(d) Hardoon v. Belilios, (1901) A.C. (P.C.) 118.]

[(e) Wise v. Perpetual Trustee Company, (1903) A.C. (P.C.) 139, where the cestuis que trust were the members of a club, and it was held that trustees of a club who have incurred liability under onerous covenants contained in a lease, accepted by them on behalf of the club, may be entitled to indemnity out of property of the club, but are not entitled to a personal indemnity from the members, unless there is a rule of the club to that effect.]

[(f) Hardoon v. Belilios, (1901) A.C. (P.C.) 123.]

[(g) Hardoon v. Belilios, sup.]

(h) Phené v. Gillan, 5 Hare, 1, see pp. 9, 13; [the indemnity was ordered to be given by the recognisance of the defendant, see p. 14;] and see Re Southampton Imperial Hotel Company, 26 L. T. N.S. 384; 20 W. R. 435; [and Re Blundell, 40 Ch. D. 370, 376].

him to indemnity might sue before the right to indemnity accrued, and before the damage had accrued which gave rise to the right to indemnity (a). But where the right to indemnity was denied, it was held that the executor of the sole trustee of shares in a bank which was being wound up, who had received notice from the liquidator that he would be placed on the list of contributories, was entitled to a declaration of indemnity before he was actually placed on the list or any call was made against him (b). Where the trustee acts at the instance of the maker of the trust, at any rate where the maker of the trust is not also beneficially interested under the trust instrument, the trustee has no right to personal indemnity from him, but must look exclusively to the trust funds to make good his expenses or losses (c).]

Where trustee has acted in breach of duty.

22. But the trustee can establish no claim to reimbursement either against the cestuis que trust personally, or against the trust estate, where he has incurred the outlay not in the strict line of his duty, and without either the request or the implied assent of the cestuis que trust (d).

Funds out of which expenses payable.

23. Questions occasionally arise respecting the proper fund for payment of expenses. In one case (e), Sir John Leach decided that a provision made in a will for payment of debts and funeral and testamentary expenses out of a particular fund, did not make that fund primarily liable for costs of administration. In a subsequent case, Lord Langdale arrived at a different conclusion (f); [and after considerable variation of judicial opinion, the later cases have established the rule that the words testamentary expenses include the costs of administration (g)].

[(a) Hughes-Hallett v. Indian Mammoth Gold Mines Company, 22 Ch. D. 561, 564; but see Lord Ranelagh v. Hayes, 1 Vern. 189; Phené v. Gillan, 5 Hare, 1; Wooldridge v. Norris, 6 L. R. Eq. 410; Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 Ch. D. 256, 259; Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 362.]

[(b) Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 Ch. D. 256, 259; and see Re Blundell, 40 Ch. D. 377.]

[(c) Fraser v. Murdoch, 6 App. Cas. 855, 872.]

(d) Leedham v. Chawner, 4 K. & J. 458; [Hosegood v. Pedler, 66 L. J. Q. B. 18, 21; Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. Pinney, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 736]. In Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 368, where the advances were not proper, the M.R. said: "No assets exist out of which the executor could seek for payment, and, of course, it could not be contended that the plaintiffs (who were the cestuis que trust) were liable to repay the advances."

(e) Brown v. Groombridge, 4 Mad. 495.

(f) Wilson v. Heaton, 11 Beav. 492.

[(g) Miles v. Harrison, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 316; Harloe v. Harloe, 20 L. R. Eq. 471; Sharp v. Lush, 10 Ch. D. 468; Penny v. Penny, 11 Ch. D. 440; Morrell v. Fisher, 4 De G. & Sm. 422; Re Chapman, 71 L. T. N.S. 778; Re Clemow, (1900) 2 Ch. 182; but see contra,] Stringer v. Harper, 26 Beav. 585; Linley v. Taylor, 1 Giff. 67; Webb v. De Beauvoisin, 31 Beav. 573; Gilbertson v. Gilbertson, 34 Beav. 354;

Where the trust was for "payment of debts, funeral expenses, and the costs and charges of proving and attending the execution of the will, and the several trusts therein contained" (a), [and where the trust was "to pay debts and executorship expenses and probate duty" (b),] it was held that the words included costs of administration. [Where the will contained a gift of a considerable sum for the benefit of a class of persons, the costs of ascertaining the members of the class, except so far as they were increased by incumbrances on the shares, were held to be "testamentary expenses" payable out of residue (c).

[Costs of administration of real estate.]

Increased costs arising from administering the real estate are, as a general rule, thrown upon the real estate (d); and where a testatrix died intestate as to her real estate, having by her will directed that testamentary expenses should be paid out of her personal estate, the costs of an inquiry as to the heir at law were nevertheless to be borne by the realty (e).]

Exoneration of personalty.

24. Where a testator bequeathed "a leasehold house and all other his personal property" to his wife, and then devised his real estate to be sold, the proceeds to be applied in "payment of funeral and testamentary expenses and debts," and the "residue" to be invested, it was held that the funeral and testamentary expenses and debts were thrown upon the real estate in exoneration of the personal estate, but that the costs of the special case for taking the opinion of the Court were not "testamentary expenses," and therefore fell upon the Hill v. Challinor, W. N. 1867, p. 139; Lees v. Lees, 6 I. R. Eq. 259; M'Cormick v. Patten, 5 I. R. Eq. 295; Re Biel's Estate, 16 L. R. Eq. 577. [In Webb v. De Beauvoisin, sup., where the trust was for "payment of debts, testamentary and other expenses and legacies under the will," and in Coventry v. Coventry, 2 Dr. & Sm. 470, where the trust was "to pay funeral and testamentary and legal expenses," it was held that the words included costs of administration. In Re Clemow, sup., it was held that the expression "testamentary expenses" may include estate duty; and that the word "testamentary" applies to administration although there is no testament. But estate duty payable in respect of the real estate of a testator dying after the Land Transfer Act, 1897, will not be included in "testamentary expenses": Re Sharman, (1901) 2 Ch. 280, nor will settlement estate duty be included; Re King, (1904) 1 Ch. 363. Estate duty in respect of property appointed in exercise of a general testamentary power, is not payable out of that property, but out of the general personal estate: Re Orlebar, (1908) 1 Ch. 136; Re Hadley, (1909) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 20.]

(a) Alsop v. Bell, 24 Beav. 451, see p. 469.

[(b) Sharp v. Lush, 10 Ch. D. 468.]

[(c) Re Vincent, (1909) 1 Ch. 810.]

[(d) Patching v. Barnett, (A.D. 1881) 51 L. J. Ch. 74; see (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 154 note.]

[(e) Re Betts, (1907) 2 Ch. 149: and so legacies, so far as they are by the will chargeable on the realty, must bear their own estate duty, notwithstanding a direction to pay "testamentary expenses" out of a mixed fund of residue; Re Spencer Cooper, (1908) 1 Ch. 130.]

personalty (a); [but having regard to the present rule, it is conceived that this case would not now be followed on the question of costs. An intention to exonerate the personal estate must be shown by express words or necessary implication, and where the real estate is merely devised to the trustees subject to the payment of debts, the personalty is not exonerated (b).]

Trust to pay costs of trust.

25. A trust in a will of real and personal estate to pay out of a fund of personal estate directed to be set apart, the expenses of probate and "the execution of the trusts of the will," was held not to authorise the trustees to apply the fund in payment of any other expenses than those which would be payable by the executors in that character, and therefore not to authorise the application of the personal estate in payment of the expenses incurred in the execution of trusts declared of the testator's real estate (c).

(a) Gilbertson v. Gilbertson, 34 Beav. 354; [and see Re Groom, (1897) 2 Ch. 407; and Re Prince, (1898) 2 Ch. 225 (where it was held that costs of unsuccessfully resisting the will in a probate action, by a plaintiff who sought to set up a previous will, were not testamentary expenses).]

[(b) Re Banks, (1905) 1 Ch. 547.]

(c) Lord Brougham v. Lord Poulett, 19 Beav. 119; and see Sanders v. Miller, 25 Beav. 154.

CHAPTER XXVI

OF THE DISCHARGE OF A TRUSTEE FROM OFFICE AND THE APPOINTMENT OF NEW TRUSTEES

THE subject of the Office of Trustee may fitly be concluded by considering in what manner he may divest himself of that character.

How the trust may be relinquished.

The only modes by which he can accomplish this object are the following: First, He may have the universal consent of all the parties interested; Secondly, He may retire by virtue of a special power contained in the instrument creating the trust, [or a statutory power applicable to the trust;] or, Thirdly, He may obtain his release by application to the Court.

First. By consent.

Trustee may retire with consent of cestuis que trust.

1. As no cestui que trust who concurs in a breach of trust by the trustee can afterwards call him to account for the mischievous consequences of the act, it follows that where all the cestuis que trust, being sui juris, lend their joint sanction to the trustee's dismissal, they are precluded from ever holding him responsible on the ground of delegation of his office (a).

All must concur.

2. But the trustee must first satisfy himself that all the cestuis que trust are parties, for even in the case of a numerous body of creditors the consent of the majority is no estoppel as against the rest (b).

Cestuis que trust not sui juris.

3. And the cestuis que trust who join must be sui juris, not femes covert or infants, who have no legal capacity to consent. But a feme covert is considered to be sui juris as to her separate estate where there is no restraint against anticipation (c); and as to real estate she can, with the consent of her husband, bind her interest by an assurance under the Fines and Recoveries Act.

Not in existence.

4. If the parties interested in the trust fund be not all in existence, as where the limitation of the property is to children unborn, it is clear that, as the trustee cannot have the sanction of all the parties interested, he cannot with safety be discharged from the trust.

(a) Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 276, per Sir J. Leach.

(b) See ante, p. 584.

(c) See post, Chap. XXVIII. s. 6.

Secondly. A trustee may retire by virtue of a special power contained in the original instrument, [or a statutory power applicable to the trust].

Trustee may retire under a power.

1. The person who creates the trust may mould it in whatever form he pleases, and may therefore provide, that on the occurrence of certain events and the fulfilment of certain conditions, the original trustee may retire, and a new trustee be substituted (1).

Usual form of the power.

2. The form of power most commonly in use has been, that in case the trustees appointed by the instrument of trust, or to be appointed under the power (a), or any of them, shall "die or be abroad for twelve calendar months, or be desirous of being discharged from, or refuse, decline, or become incapable (b) to act in the trusts," it shall be lawful for the cestui que trust to whom the power may be given, or (as the proviso is frequently worded) for the surviving or continuing trustee (c), or the executors (d)

(a) The best modern forms contained the additional words, "or by the Court of Chancery or other competent authority," in order to obviate the break in the chain of trusteeship which would otherwise have been occasioned by a resort to the Court, but the addition is now unnecessary [for that purpose; see the Trustee Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53) s. 37; but see Cecil v. Langdon, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1, where the power authorised the appointment of new trustees in the place of those originally appointed or to be appointed under the power, and the Court held that the power came to an end when new trustees were appointed by the Court, so that thenceforth the statutory power was alone available, and that a fetter imposed on the exercise of the former power did not affect the latter; and see Cradock v. Witham, W. N. (1895) p. 75].

(b) "Unfit" may be usefully added; see p. 818, post.

(c) The best forms provide that a refusing or retiring trustee shall, if willing to execute the power, be deemed to be a continuing trustee. As to the object of this addition, see p. 824, post. But it is attended with this inconvenience, that if the refusing or retiring trustee do not join, evidence may be called for that he was not willing. Sometimes the power is given to the surviving, continuing, or other trustee, an addition which has been found useful in practice. See Lord Camoys v. Best, 19 Beav. 414.

(d) Better to say "acting executors or executor or administrators or administrator," as otherwise if several executors be appointed, and one only, proves, it may be objected (though the objection may be untenable) that the other executors must actually or administrators of the survivor, by deed or writing, to nominate some other person to be a trustee; and the power then proceeds to declare that the trust estate shall forthwith be vested jointly in the persons who are in future to compose the body of trustees, and that the new or substituted trustee shall, either before or after the trust estate shall have been so vested, be capable of exercising all the same powers as if he had been originally named in the settlement.

(1) Every instrument where there is a continuing trust of an active character, should, of course, until the modern Acts, have contained a power of appointment of new trustees, but, singularly enough, Lord Thurlow omitted to insert one in his own will, of which Lord Eldon and two others were named trustees. The defect was supplied by a private Act of Parliament, 15th June, 1809 (49 G. 3 cap. clxxv.), by which power was given to the Court of Chancery, in case any of the three trustees "should die, or be desirous of being discharged from, or should refuse, or decline, or become incapable to act in the trusts," to appoint a new trustee in a summary way upon petition.

Several sets of trustees.

3. It often happens that in a settlement there are several sets of trustees—a term of 99 years, for instance, is vested in A. and B., and a term of 500 years in C. and D., and there is a limitation to E. and F. for the life of a person, with powers of sale and exchange, &c., and then a power of appointment of new trustees is given to "the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee." If A. die who can appoint in his place? Is the power in B. as the survivor in that particular trust, or in B., C., D., E., and F. jointly as the survivors of the trustee en masse? This doubt has occasionally in practice led to expense, which might easily have been avoided by a few words in the power declaratory of the intention, as by limiting the power to "the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee of the class in which any such vacancy or disqualification shall occur."

Lord Cranworth's Act.

4. Lord Cranworth's Act (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145), provided against the omission of a power of appointment of new trustees in any instrument of trust, and also against defects in the power, by enacting generally, by the 27th section, that "whenever any trustee, either original or substituted, and whether appointed by the Court of Chancery or otherwise, should die or desire to be discharged from, or refuse or become unfit or incapable to act in the trusts," it should be lawful for the person nominated for that purpose by the instrument creating the trust, or if there should be no such person, or he should be unable or unwilling to act, then "for the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee for the time being, or the acting executor or administrator of the last surviving and continuing trustee, or for the last retiring trustee, by writing, to appoint any other person or persons to be a trustee or trustees," and the Act gave the usual directions for vesting the trust estate (a); and the following section made the Act apply to the case of a trustee dying in the testator's lifetime. But it renounce before the acting executor can exercise the power, see White v. M'Dermott, 7 Ir. R. C. L. 1; Worthington v. Evans, 1 S. & S. 165; Clarke v. Parker, 19 Ves. 1; see post, p. 817, note (e).

(a) 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 27.

will be observed that the Act did not provide for the case of a trustee going abroad, and it cannot be safely assumed that the word "refuse" was meant to include a disclaimer (for a disclaiming trustee never was a trustee (a)); and its operation was, by the 34th section of the Act, restricted to instruments inter vivos executed after the passing of the Act (28th August, 1860), and to wills and codicils made, confirmed, or revived after that date.

[Where probate of a will was granted to one only of three executors, power to prove being reserved to the other two, who died without taking probate, an appointment of new trustees by the proving executor in the lifetime of the other two, was held to be a good appointment by an "acting executor" within the section (b).]

Two trustees in place of one.

It has been held that the donee of the power under this Act could appoint two trustees in the place of an only trustee appointed by the settlor's will (c).

[Trustee Act, 1893.]

[5. The above provisions of Lord Cranworth's Act were, however, repealed by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (d), and their place is now supplied by sect. 10 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (e), which enacts that "where a trustee, either original or substituted, and whether appointed by a Court or otherwise, is dead, or remains out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, or desires to be discharged from all or any of the trusts or powers reposed in or conferred on him, or refuses or is unfit to act therein, or is incapable of acting therein, then the person or persons nominated for the purpose of appointing new trustees (f), by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, or if there is no such person, or no such person able and willing to act (g),

(a) In Viscountess D'Adhemar v. Bertrand, 35 Beav. 19, it was assumed that a disclaiming trustee was within the Act, and it was held that an appointment of a new trustee by the continuing trustee under the Act did not take away the general jurisdiction of the Court to appoint in proper cases an additional trustee; and see Re Jackson's Trusts, 16 W. R. 572; 18 L. T. N.S. 80; and post, p. 816.

[(b) Re Boucherett, (1908) 1 Ch. 180.]

(c) Re Breary, W. N. 1873, p. 48.

[(d) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41; and see Re Lloyd's Trusts, 57 L. J. N.S. Ch. 246, in which case it was held by North, J., that where a special Act incorporated s. 27 of Lord Cranworth's Act with a qualifying proviso requiring that every new trustee should be appointed with the sanction of the Court of Chancery, the effect of the repeal by the Act of 1881 was to repeal the proviso.]

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 10, replacing s. 31 of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

[(f) The words in the Act of 1881 were "for that purpose," but the alteration appears to be merely verbal; see Re Wheeler and De Rochow, (1896) 1 Ch. 315.]

[(g) E.g., where the power was vested in husband and wife who were living apart and were unable to agree: Re Sheppard's Trusts, W.N. 1888, p. 234.]

then the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee for the time being, or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee, may, by writing, appoint another person or other persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of the trustee dead, remaining out of the United Kingdom, desiring to be discharged, refusing, or being unfit or being incapable, as aforesaid." And the Act authorises an increase or reduction in the number of trustees, so that "except where only one trustee was originally appointed, a trustee shall not be discharged under this section from his trust, unless there will be at least two trustees to perform the trust," and provides for the vesting of the trust property, and makes the provisions of the section relative to a trustee who is dead include the case of a person nominated trustee in a will, but dying before the testator, and those relative to a continuing trustee include a refusing or retiring trustee; and the section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of the Act.

It would seem, however, that the section only authorises an increase in the number of trustees when an appointment is being made to supply a vacancy in the trusteeship, and that if a mere addition of a trustee is required recourse must be had to Part III. of the Act (a).

The section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust; but where a power of appointing new trustees had been given by a settlement, made in 1849, to "the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee," which they or he were required to exercise with the consent of the tenant or tenants for life or in tail for the time being entitled in possession, it was held that the fetter imposed by the settlement did not apply to an appointment under the powers of the Act, and that the continuing trustee could appoint new trustees under the Act; the power in the settlement having in the events which had happened, ceased to be exercisable (b). [Contrary intention.]

It would seem that an appointment under this section may be made by the personal representative of a sole trustee (c), but [Section when applicable.]

[(a) Re Gregson's Trusts, 34 Ch. D. 209; see post, pp. 817, et seq. as to the provisions of Part III. of the Act.]

[(b) Cecil v. Langdon, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1; and see Cradock v. Witham, W. N. 1895, p. 75; and as to the effect of an appointment of new trustees in displacing trustees who have become such under section 30 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), see Re Routledge's Trusts, (1909) 1 Ch. 280, ante, p. 248.]

[(c) Re Shafto's Trusts, 29 Ch. D. 247.]

the section does not apply where the sole trustee or all the trustees of a will have predeceased the testator (a).

[Appointment by will.]

The section does not enable a sole surviving trustee to appoint by his will trustees in continuation to himself on his decease, and, notwithstanding any such appointment, the power will remain exercisable by his "personal representatives," which expression (in the case of executors) means the persons in possession of a general grant of probate, and does not include special or limited executors, whether appointed for the express purpose of executing the trust, or otherwise (b).

["Personal representatives."]

[Trustee out of the United Kingdom.]

Where an appointment is made under the Act in the place of a trustee who has been out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, the concurrence of such trustee in the appointment is not necessary unless he is willing and competent to concur, and the onus of showing that he was willing and competent is upon the person disputing the validity of the appointment (c).

[Events not contemplated by settlement.]

A settlement made in 1878 contained a declaration that the husband and wife during their joint lives should have power to appoint new trustees of the settlement. After the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, came into operation, the husband and wife executed a deed appointing a new trustee in the place of one of the trustees who had remained out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, and it was held that the appointment was valid under sect. 31 of the Act; and North, J., observed: "The intention of sect. 31 is that, whenever a person has been nominated by the instrument creating the power as the person to appoint new trustees, he has the power of filling up any vacancy occurring under the provisions of the section" (d).

In this case the husband and wife were nominated to fill up vacancies in the trusteeship generally, and the decision has no application to cases where the settlement has given a power of appointing new trustees in certain special events which do not comprise all the events provided for by the Act, and in such a case the statutory power of appointing new trustees in any of the

[(a) Nicholson v. Field, (1893) 2 Ch. 511; Re Orde, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 271; Re Ambler's Trust, 59 L. T. N.S. 210; Re Lightbody, W. N. 1885, p. 3. The section applies to the case of a lunatic tenant for life being one of the trustees, and the person nominated by the settlement to appoint new trustees; Re Blake, W. N. 1887, p. 173.]

[(b) Re Parker's Trusts, (1894) 1 Ch. 707.]

[(c) Re Coates to Parsons, 34 Ch. D. 370.]

[(d) Re Walker and Hughes' Contract, 24 Ch. D. 698.]

events not contemplated by the settlement will be in the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee, or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee. Thus in a recent case where the husband and wife were empowered to appoint new trustees in the event of a trustee becoming incapable, but not in the event of a trustee becoming unfit, and one of the trustees became unfit but not incapable, an appointment of new trustees by the husband and wife was held to be invalid (a).

[Court will not override statutory power.]

The Court will not interfere with the exercise of the statutory power by the donee of it who is willing to exercise it, even though the application to the Court to appoint new trustees is made by the majority of the beneficiaries (b).

[Trustee Act 1893.]

6. It was doubted whether section 31 of the Act of 1881 applied to trustees appointed for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts (c), but this doubt was removed by an express provision in the Settled Land Act, 1890, and now, by the Trustee Act, 1893 (d), it is provided that all the powers and provisions therein contained, with reference to the appointment of new trustees, and the discharge and retirement of trustees, are to apply to and include trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, whether appointed by the Court or by the settlement, or under provisions contained in the settlement.

[Costs of application under Act.]

7. The representatives of a deceased trustee do not, by declining to exercise the statutory power of appointment, render themselves liable to the costs of an application to the Court to appoint new trustees (e).]

Whether a new trustee is actually such until transfer of the estate to him.

8. The words contained in the ordinary form which expressly confer all powers on the new trustee before the estate has been conveyed, show that a doubt has been felt by the profession whether in the absence of these words the powers could be exercised until after conveyance, and the late Vice-Chancellor of England, in a case where the words referred to did not occur, but there was simply a power of nomination and no direction for a conveyance, expressed his opinion to be that the person to be appointed was not invested with the character of trustee until he had both been nominated to the office by the donee of the power, and the trust property had also been duly conveyed or assigned (f). But in a more recent case before Sir John Noble v. Meymott.

[(a) Re Wheeler and De Rochow, (1896) 1 Ch. 315.]

[(b) Re Higginbottom, (1892) 3 Ch. 132.]

[(c) Re Wilcock, 34 Ch. D. 508; Re Kane's Trusts, 21 L. R. Ir. 112.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 47, replacing the Settled Land Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 69), s. 17; see ante, p. 655.]

[(e) Re Sarah Knight's Will, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 82.]

(f) Warburton v. Sandys, 14 Sim. 622.

Romilly, M.R. (a), where A. and B. were appointed trustees of a settlement, and after a lapse of 18 years A. disclaimed, and B. was desirous of retiring, and the donee of the power nominated C. in the place of A., and D. in the place of B., and B. professed to assign the trust fund (consisting of a share of 3000*l.* in the hands of trustees of another settlement) to C. and D., who filed their bill without their cestuis que trust to have the trust fund paid to them, it was objected against the validity of the appointment that A. had acted, and that consequently B. could not alone pass the trust fund, and that therefore the appointment of trustees was incomplete; but the Master of the Rolls held that, whether A. had acted or not, his disclaimer was a wish to retire, and that C. and D. were duly appointed, and were entitled to call for payment of the trust fund: that the appointment of new trustees and the conveyance of the trust property to them were two distinct and separate matters, that the transfer could only take place when the appointment was complete, and that various difficulties would arise from holding that the transfer of the trust fund was necessary to perfect the appointment. And in a subsequent case before the same learned judge, where there was the usual power of appointment of new trustees, with a direction for the conveyance of the trust estate, and the donee of the power appointed a new trustee in the place of a deceased trustee, but the trust estate was not conveyed, and the surviving trustee and new trustee then sold the estate and signed a receipt for the purchase-money, it was held that the purchaser acquired a good title (b). It would appear, therefore, that at the present day an actual conveyance of the legal estate, unless the power be specially worded, is not essential to the valid appointment of new trustees (c).

[In one case it was held that a renewed lease of part of a testator's property made to four persons, by the direction of the donee of the power of appointing new trustees of the will, coupled with a statement in the lease that the four lessees were "the present trustees" of the will, operated as an exercise of the power of appointing new trustees (d).

Mode of vesting trust estate.

9. Should the trust estate consist of Bank Annuities, or other property transferable in the books of any company, then by one and the same deed the donee of the power may nominate the

(a) Noble v. Meymott, 14 Beav. 471.
(b) Welstead v. Colvile, 28 Beav. 537.
[(c) And see Mara v. Browne, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199, 213, per Rigby, L. J.]
[(d) Re Farnell's Settled Estates, 33 Ch. D. 599.]

new trustee, and the old and new trustee may execute a declaration of trust of the stock or other property intended to be transferred, and after the execution of the deed the stock may be transferred into their joint names accordingly. If the trust estate consisted of chattels real, or other personal estate legally assignable, two deeds, until a modern Act, were necessary. By the first, the old trustee assigned the chattel interest to A., and then A. by indorsement reassigned it to the old and new trustees as joint tenants. But now, by the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (a), a person may assign personal property by law assignable, including chattels real, directly to himself and another person or other persons or corporation, by the like means as he might assign the same to another, so that in such cases one deed will now be sufficient (1); [and the power has, by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (b), been extended to things in action]. If the trust estate be of a freehold nature, and by the terms of the instrument of trust the whole legal estate is to be vested in the trustees, there needs, in general, no other machinery than a simple conveyance under the Statute of Uses; for the old trustee may convey the lands to the joint use of himself and the new trustee, and the statute will operate to transfer the possession. In settlements which invested the trustees with powers, the established form of the proviso [was] thought to occasion the necessity of resorting to the use of two deeds (c); but the prevalent and better opinion is, that a simple conveyance from the old trustee to the use of the old and new trustees will be sufficient (d).

[10. By the Trustee Act, 1893 (e), sect. 12, reproducing sect. 34 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (f), a new and [Statutory mode of vesting the trust property in new or continuing trustees.]

(a) 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 21 (Lord St Leonards' Act).

[(b) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 50.]

[(c) For the reasoning on which this view was grounded, see the eighth edition of this work, pp. 651, 652.]

(d) See Sugd. Powers, 884, note (1), 8th ed.; Davidson's Preced. Vol. III., p. 521, and Vol. IV., p. 609, 2nd edition.

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53.]

[(f) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

(1) The Act does not authorise an assignment by a person to himself (as by an executor to himself as legatee), nor by himself and another or others to himself, as by two co-executors to one of them as trustee, for in the first case he has the legal estate already and a declaration will shift the equitable interest, and in the second case so far as he has not the legal estate in himself the other or others can assign it or release it independently of the Act. The operation of the Act is limited to property assignable at law, for mere equitable interests shift according to the intention, and no legislative interference was required as to them.

simple method of transferring trust property without conveyance or assignment has been introduced, which is now generally adopted where applicable. That section provides, by sub-s. 1, that, "where a deed by which a new trustee is appointed to perform any trust contains a declaration by the appointor to the effect that any estate or interest in any land subject to the trust, or in any chattel so subject, or the right to recover and receive any debt or other thing in action so subject, shall vest in the persons who by virtue of the deed become and are the trustees for performing the trust, that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in those persons, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, that estate, interest, or right."

But the section does not extend "to any legal estate or interest in copyhold or customary land, or to land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust, or to any such share, stock, annuity, or property as is only transferable in books kept by a company or other body, or in manner prescribed by or under Act of Parliament." The exception as to land in mortgage applies to the common practice of keeping notice of the trust off mortgages to trustees (a). But for this provision, when new trustees were appointed, a vesting declaration might be made which would have the effect of transferring the legal estate, but notice of the trust would be fixed on the title (b).

It is to be observed that the declaration of vesting can only be made by the deed by which a new trustee is appointed, and the section will not apply in cases where the appointment is made otherwise than by deed. The expression "the persons who by virtue of the deed become and are the trustees for performing the trust," is not happily worded, but the intention of the legislature, undoubtedly, was to vest the trust property in the persons who immediately upon the execution of the deed of appointment are the trustees for performing the trust, and it is conceived that this intention is sufficiently expressed. The expression "trustees for performing the trust," is not to be limited to trustees with substantial duties to perform, and trustees appointed by mortgagees in lieu of the mortgagor under a power in the mortgage deed were held in a recent case to be within the expression (c).

[Effect of vesting declaration.]

In the case last referred to, the owner of land, on the occasion of his making an equitable mortgage of the land, by deed declared himself to be a trustee of the legal estate for the mortgagees, and thereby authorised the mortgagees to remove him from being a trustee, and to appoint new trustees. He subsequently conveyed the legal estate to an incumbrancer with notice of the equitable mortgage. After this had been done, the mortgagees appointed new trustees by a deed which contained a vesting declaration in accordance with the statute, and it was held that the effect of the declaration was to take the legal estate out of the subsequent incumbrancer, and vest it in the new trustees (a). But this decision, so far as it attributes to a vesting declaration under the statute a more extensive operation than a conveyance by the old trustee to the new trustees could have had, seems to be open to question.]

[(a) See ante, pp. 386, 387.]

[(b) London and County Banking Co. v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642, 649, per North, J.]

[(c) London and County Banking Company v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642.]

Stamp on appointment of new trustees.

11. By [the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39)], the appointment of a new trustee requires a 10*s. stamp*, and by sect. 62, "every instrument and every decree or order of any Court, or of any commissioners, whereby any property on any occasion, except a sale or mortgage is transferred to or vested in any person, is to be charged with duty as a conveyance or transfer of property. Provided that a conveyance or transfer made for effectuating the appointment of a new trustee, is not to be charged with any higher duty than 10s." By sect. 4, "An instrument containing or relating to several distinct matters is to be separately and distinctly charged, as if it were a separate instrument, with duty in respect of each of the matters." [Where by an order of the Charity Commissioners new trustees were appointed of a charity, and a vesting order was also made, it was held, under the corresponding provisions in the Stamp Act, 1870 (b), that two duties of 10s. each were payable, one in respect of the appointment, and the other in respect of that part of the order which vested the trust estate in the new trustees (c). And on the same principle it would seem that a double duty is payable in the ordinary case of an appointment of new trustees by deed with a consequent transfer of the estate.

[Trustee retiring without appointing a new trustee.]

12. Previously to the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, a trustee could not retire from the trust without seeing that a new trustee was appointed in his place, unless the settlement contained a special power authorising him to do so, a circumstance which seldom occurred; but now by the Trustee Act, 1893 (d), sect. 11, replacing sect. 32 of the Act of 1881, it is enacted that—

[(a) London and County Banking Company v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642.]

[(b) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 97, ss. 8, 78.]

[(c) Hadgett v. The Commissioners of Inland Revenue, 3 Ex. D. 46.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53; as to the extension of this enactment in the case where the public trustee is appointed a trustee, see ante, Chap. XXIII. pp. 701, 702.]

"(1) Where there are more than two trustees, if one of them by deed declares that he is desirous of being discharged from the trust, and if his co-trustees and such other person, if any, as is empowered to appoint trustees, by deed consent to the discharge of the trustee, and to the vesting in the co-trustees alone of the trust property, then the trustee desirous of being discharged shall be deemed to have retired from the trust, and shall, by the deed, be discharged therefrom under this Act, without any new trustee being appointed in his place.

(2) Any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property in the continuing trustees alone shall be executed or done.

(3) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.

(4) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act."

By sect. 12, sub-s. 2, where a deed by which a retiring trustee is discharged under the Act contains a declaration by the retiring and continuing trustees, and by the other person, if any, empowered to appoint trustees, to the effect that any estate or interest in any land subject to the trust, or in any chattel so subject, or the right to recover and receive any debt or other thing in action so subject, shall vest in the persons who by virtue of the deed become and are the trustees for performing the trust (a), that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in the continuing trustees alone, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, the estate, interest, or right to which the declaration relates. But the section does not extend to any legal estate or interest in copyhold or customary land, or to land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust, or to any such share, stock, annuity, or property as is only transferable in books kept by a company or other body, or in manner prescribed by or under Act of Parliament.]

Trustee must see that the power contemplated the precise case.

13. It must be carefully ascertained by the trustee that the circumstances under which he retires from the trust are precisely those which are contemplated in the terms of the proviso; for if the case be not within the power, the trustee who resigns will be made responsible for all the mischievous consequences, just as if he had delegated the office.

[(a) As to the effect of the declaration, see ante, p. 812.]

14. And a trustee on retiring must [if a new trustee is to be substituted in his place] be careful not to part with the control of the fund before the new trustee has been actually appointed, for if he transfer it into the name of the intended new trustee, and by some accident the appointment fails to be completed, he still remains a trustee, and will be answerable for the trust fund (a). Retiring trustee must see to completion of the appointment.

If the old trustee obstinately and perversely, without any sufficient reason, refuse to transfer the fund to new trustees duly appointed, he will be visited with the costs occasioned by his wilfulness (b).

15. It is somewhat surprising, considering the frequency of this power, how few questions until recent times arose upon its construction.

In Sharp v. Sharp (c), heard in the Court of Queen's Bench, the terms in which the power was expressed were as follows:— Sharp v. Sharp.

"In case either of the trustees, the said A. and B., shall happen to die, or desire to be discharged from, or neglect, or refuse, or become incapable to act in the trusts, it shall be lawful for the survivors or survivor of the trustees so acting in the trusts, or the executors or administrators of the last surviving trustee, by any writing, &c., to nominate a new trustee." Neither of the trustees being willing to act in the trust, they executed a conveyance to two other persons intended to be new trustees; and the question was raised, whether the power of appointment had, under the circumstances, been effectually exercised, and it was determined in the negative. Lord Tenterden said that by the word "survivor" he understood merely the trustee "continuing to act"; for it was throughout the intention of the testator, that, in case of the death, or incapacity, or refusal of some one of the trustees, the remaining trustee who had been named by him, and was the object of his confidence, should have the power of associating with himself some other person: but it would be giving a much larger construction to the words than they fairly imported, if the trustees, in the event of the whole class declining to act, were to nominate such other persons as they might think fit. Mr Justice Bayley observed, that the word "either" was not uselessly introduced: that it was in effect a proviso that if either of the trustees named in the will should refuse to act, still the testator should have the benefit of the judgment of the other: that the testator might have had good reason for confining the power to the care of one trustee, for he might have had special confidence in the trustees named by himself, and so long as either of those persons acted in the trust he might think his property safe. But if the words were to be read as if they were "both or either," the case would be different; for if both the persons should decline to act, the testator might naturally object to their delegating their trust to other persons, and might then have thought it better that his property should be left to the care of a Court of Equity: that under the words of the power the testator meant by the word "acting" to designate those who had taken upon themselves to perform some of the trusts mentioned in the will, and that he did not contemplate one who in limine refused to act: that the word "survivor" must therefore mean the "continuing" trustee, as contradistinguished both from those who might refuse to act, and those who might be desirous to discontinue acting.

(a) Pearce v. Pearce, 22 Beav. 248.
(b) Re Wise's Trust, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 599.
(c) 2 B. & Ald. 405.

"Refusing or declining" includes "disclaiming."

16. If one trustee disclaims, may the continuing trustee appoint another, or do the words of the power, "if any trustee shall refuse or decline" apply, not to the case of a disclaimer, but only to a refusal after having acted? Although the point decided in Sharp v. Sharp was as stated above, yet from the language of the judges it appears that, had only one trustee disclaimed, the other might have exercised the power; and such, it is presumed, is clearly the rule where there is nothing to narrow the meaning of the words "refusing or declining." There generally follows in the power a direction that the estate "vested in the trustees so refusing or declining" shall be transferred to the new trustee; and hence it has been argued, that as no estate vests in a disclaiming trustee, the power did not contemplate such a case. However, there seems to be but little weight in the argument; for when it is said that the words "if any trustee shall refuse or decline" apply to disclaimer, it is not meant that they do not also apply to a subsequent refusal. At all events, therefore, the direction for the transfer of the estate is not nugatory (a).

"Refusing" or "declining" means also after having acted.

17. On the other hand, it has been doubted whether the words "refusing" or "declining" may not refer exclusively to disclaimer, and have no application to the case of a trustee who, after having accepted the trust, refuses to act any longer in it.

(a) Re Roche, 1 Conn. & Laws. 306; Walsh v. Gladstone, 14 Sim. 2; Mitchell v. Nixon, 1 Ir. Eq. Rep. 155; Crook v. Ingoldsby, 2 Ir. Eq. Rep. 375; Viscountess D'Adhemar v. Bertrand, 35 Beav. 19.

This proposition is also thought to be untenable (a), though some cases have an opposite tendency (b).

Payment into Court is "declining."

18. It has been held that a payment of the trust money into Court under the Trustee Relief Act (c), stamps the trustee with the character of a "refusing or declining trustee" (d).

Power to executors and administrators.

19. If a power of appointing new trustees be given to a person, his executors and administrators, and the donee of the power dies, having appointed three executors, one of whom renounces, the acting executors can exercise the power (e).

[Limited administration for purpose of appointing new trustees.]

[20. In a case in Ireland, where the power of appointing new trustees was given to the acting executors or administrators of the last surviving trustee, and the last surviving trustee was dead, but there was no legal personal representative of his estate, and the persons entitled to take out letters would not do so, the Court of Probate granted administration to the guardian of the infant cestuis que trust, limited to the purpose of appointing himself and A. B. new trustees of the settlement, and to the purpose of transferring to, and vesting in, such new trustees the trust funds (f).]

Death of the trustee in the testator's lifetime.

21. Suppose a testator to appoint two trustees with the usual power of appointment of new trustees, and a trustee dies in the testator's lifetime, can the surviving trustee appoint a new trustee? The late Vice-Chancellor of England in one case expressed a doubt upon it (g), and in a subsequent case decided in the negative (h); but this was a narrow construction of the power, and it has since been ruled that a trustee who has survived the testator may appoint a new trustee in the place of one who predeceased the testator (i).

Morris v. Preston.

22. In Morris v. Preston (j), the proviso was, that "in case of (a) Travis v. Illingworth, 2 Dr. & Sm. 344.

(b) See Re Woodgate's Settlement, and Re Armstrong's Settlement, 5 W. R. 448.

[(c) Replaced now by section 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), see ante, p. 424.]

(d) Re Williams's Settlement, 4 K. & J. 87.

(e) Earl Granville v. M'Neile, 7 Hare, 156. The Reporter speaks of the third executor as "declining," but renunciation is meant, as assumed by the judgment, and expressly stated; 13 Jur. 252. It would seem, from the principle laid down by the Court, that, had the third executor declined only to act as executor without actual renunciation, the Judge would have arrived at the same conclusion; and see ante, p. 226.

[(f) Re Jackson, 7 L. R. Ir. 318.]

(g) Walsh v. Gladstone, 14 Sim. 2.

(h) Winter v. Rudge, 15 Sim. 596.

(i) Re Hadley, 5 De G. & Sm. 67; Nicholson v. Wright, 26 L. J. N.S. Ch. 312; S. C. nomine Nicholson v. Smith, 3 Jur. N.S. 313; Noble v. Meymott, 14 Beav. 477. As regards the statutory power conferred by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 27, the doubt was guarded against by express enactment; see sect. 28; [and so also as regards the statutory power conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 10, replacing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 31].

(j) 7 Ves. 547.

the death of any or either of the two trustees during the lives of the husband and wife or the life of the survivor, the husband and wife or the survivor should, with the consent of the surviving co-trustee or co-trustees, nominate and appoint a new trustee or trustees, and that upon such nomination or appointment the surviving co-trustee should convey and assign the trust estates in such manner as that the surviving trustee and trustees, and such person or persons so to be nominated and appointed, should be jointly interested in the said trusts in the same manner as such surviving trustee and the person so dying would have been in case he were living." Both the trustees died, and the wife, who survived her husband, executed an appointment of two new trustees in the place of the deceased trustees. A purchaser took the objection, that, as the proviso clearly contemplated the case of one trustee surviving, an appointment of new trustees after the decease of both the original trustees was not warranted by the power. The purchaser abandoned the objection at the hearing without argument — a circumstance much to be regretted, as a judgment from Lord Eldon would have thrown great light upon the subject. However, the case as it stands has been said by the Lord Chancellor of Ireland to be of great authority—viz. in favour of the validity of the appointment (a).

Power to tenant for life with the surviving or continuing trustee.

23. In another case, where two trustees had been appointed by the settlement, and the power was, "that if either of the trustees should die, or reside beyond the seas, or become incapable or unfit to act in the trusts, it should be lawful for the tenants for life, together with the surviving or continuing or acting trustee for the time being, to nominate a new trustee, and that the trust estate should thereupon be vested in the newly-appointed trustee, jointly with the surviving or continuing trustee," upon the trusts of the settlement, and one trustee died and the other became bankrupt, on the suggestion by counsel that there was no surviving or continuing trustee, and therefore the power was gone, the Lord Chancellor of Ireland observed: "That happens in many cases, without the power being affected. The construction is not so strait-laced as all that" (b).

Bankrupt trustee is "unfit."

24. It was ruled in the same case, that a trustee who became bankrupt was "unfit" within the words of the power. But if the power be worded "in case the trustee shall become incapable to act," without the addition of the words "or unfit," a bankrupt

(a) Re Roche, 1 Conn. & Laws. 308. 2 Dru. & War. 287.
(b) Re Roche, 1 Conn. & Laws. 306;

trustee is not within the description, for by "incapable" is meant personal incapacity and not pecuniary embarrassment (a). And a bankrupt, who has obtained a first-class certificate, [and has since the bankruptcy made a fresh start in life, and ceased to be impecunious,] cannot be regarded as unfit to be a trustee (b). [But the mere fact that the bankruptcy arose from misfortune, and not from any fault on the part of the bankrupt, does not remove his unfitness unless it can also be shown that since his bankruptcy he has become a person of means (c).]

Trustee resident abroad.

25. The Court held in one case that a trustee who went to reside permanently abroad, came within the description of a trustee "incapable to act" (d), but this seems scarcely in harmony with correct principle (residence abroad being rather a question of unfitness than incapacity), and cannot be reconciled with other authorities (e). And the Court has since intimated an opinion that incapacity means personal incapacity (f).

"Unable" to act.

26. If the power provide that if any one of three trustees become "unable" to act, "the trustees or trustee for the time being, whether continuing or declining to act," may appoint a new trustee, the two trustees who remain capable can appoint a new trustee in the place of a lunatic trustee (g).

Temporary absence.

27. If the settlement provide that a trustee shall cease to be such "on departing the United Kingdom from whatever cause or motive or under whatever circumstances," the clause nevertheless does not apply to a mere temporary absence with the intention of returning (h). [So if the power is to arise in the event of a trustee "remaining out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months," a residence by him of a week in England during a current year is sufficient to preclude the exercise of the power (i).

[Appointment of person to be trustee when he returns to England.]

But where a person resident abroad is appointed by a testator to be trustee "if and when he shall return to England," and

(a) Re Watt's Settlement, 9 Hare, 106; Turner v. Maule, 15 Jur. 761; Re East, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 735; [and see Re Wheeler and De Rochow, (1896) 1 Ch. 315].

[(b) Re Bridgman, 1 Dr. & Sm. 164.]

[(c) Re Adams' Trust, 12 Ch. D. 634; and see Re Barker's Trust, 1 Ch. D. 43; Re Hopkins, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 61.]

(d) Mennard v. Welford, 1 Sm. & G. 426; S. C. 1 Eq. Rep. 237; and see Re Bignold's Settlement Trusts, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 223.

(e) Withington v. Withington, 16 Sim. 104; Re Harrison's Trusts, 22 L. J. N.S. Ch. 69; and see Re Watt's Settlement, 9 Hare, 106; O'Reilly v. Alderson, 8 Hare, 104.

(f) Re Bignold's Settlement Trusts, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 223; [and see Re Wheeler and De Rochow, (1896) 1 Ch. 315].

(g) Re East, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 735.

(h) Re Moravian Society, 26 Beav. 101; [and see Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288, 296].

[(i) Re Walker, (1901) 1 Ch. 259.]

eight years after the testator's death he comes to England for his health, remains for six months, and then returns to his home abroad, he has fulfilled the condition, and, in the absence of evidence that he has dissented from or disclaimed the trusteeship, the trust estate vests in him (a).]

Two trustees retiring, and appointing a single successor.

28. If there be two trustees of a settlement, and both be anxious to retire from the trust at one and the same time, they would not be justified in putting the property under the control of a single trustee appointed in their joint places (b).

Single trustee retiring and appointing two to succeed.

29. And, vice versâ, [until the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, a single trustee, had he wished to retire, could not have appointed] more than a single trustee in his place; for though, in the substitution of more trustees than one, he would be chargeable rather with too much than too little caution, yet he ought not to clog the estate with unnecessary machinery. The idea of the settlor may have been, that by increasing the number of the trustees the vigilance of each, individually, would be diminished. "A great number," observed Lord Mansfield, "may not do business better than a smaller, and it would be attended with more expense" (c). [But now by the Trustee Act, 1893, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the instrument creating the trust, the number of trustees may, on the appointment of a new trustee, be increased, and the section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of the Act (d).

D'Almaine v. Anderson.

30. Independently of statute] the power may be so specially worded as to authorise the substitution of several trustees in the place of one or of one in the place of several. Thus, where a testator appointed two trustees, and directed "that if the trustees thereby appointed, or to be appointed as thereinafter mentioned, should die, &c., it should be lawful for the surviving or continuing trustee or trustees for the time being, or the executors or administrators of the last surviving or continuing trustee, to appoint one or more person or persons to be a trustee or trustees, in the room of the trustee or trustees so dying, &c., and thereupon the trust estates should be vested in the new trustee or trustees, jointly with the surviving or continuing trustee or trustees, or solely, as occasion should require,"

[(a) Re Arbib, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 601.]

(b) Hulme v. Hulme, 2 M. & K. 682.

(c) See Rex v. Lexdale, 1 Burr. 448; Ex parte Davis, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 468; 3 Mont. D. & De G. 304; and see Re Breary, W. N. 1873, p. 48.

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 10, replacing s. 31 of the Conveyancing Act of 1881.]

and the surviving trustee appointed two trustees in the room of the deceased trustee, the late Vice-Chancellor of England held that such a case was immediately contemplated by the proviso (a).

[31. So where a testator appointed four trustees and declared that "as often as his first or future trustees or any of them should die, he empowered the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee, or if there should be no such trustee, then the retiring or renouncing trustees or trustee, and if there should be no such last mentioned trustee, then the executors or administrators of the last deceased trustee, by any deed to appoint any other person or persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of the trustee or trustees so dying, &c.; and upon the appointment of every such new trustee, all the trust estates, money and premises, should be thereupon vested in such new trustee or trustees, either solely or jointly with the surviving or continuing trustee or trustees, as occasion should require"; and two of the trustees died, and one renounced, and the surviving trustee appointed a single co-trustee, the M.R. said "he was not aware of any rule making it compulsory on the donees of a power appointing new trustees to keep up the full number of trustees except in the case of a charity. If the testator wished the number to be kept up, he must expressly say so. In that case it was clear from the words of the will that the testator contemplated the possibility of a single trustee acting alone." And he held that the appointment was valid (b). So where one trustee disclaimed, and the other retired, the appointment of a single trustee under the power in Lord Cranworth's Act was supported (c).] [Reduction in number of trustees authorised.]

32. And where the Court itself is appointing new trustees, it does not at the present day, though doubts appear to have been formerly felt on the point (d), consider itself bound to fill up only the precise number mentioned in the instrument of trust. It has added two new trustees to the two original trustees (e), Court does not limit itself to original number.

(a) D'Almaine v. Anderson, V.C. 1st Feb. 1841, M.S.; in Meinertzhagen v. Davis, 1 Coll. 335, the special form of the power was held to authorise the appointment of three trustees in the place of two; in Emmet v. Clarke, 3 Giff. 32, three trustees were held to have been well appointed in the place of four; and in Hillman v. Westwood, 3 Eq. Rep. 142, the Court thought that two trustees could be appointed in the place of one; and see Corrie v. Byrom, V. C. Wigram, 26th April, 1845, M.S. [the facts of which case are stated in the eighth edition of this work, p. 660, note (a);] and Re Breary, W. N. 1873, p. 48.

[(b) Cunningham and Bradley's Contract for Sale to Wilson, W. N. 1877, p. 258; West of England and South Wales District Bank v. Murch, 23 Ch. D. 138.]

[(c) West of England and South Wales District Bank v. Murch, 23 Ch. D. 138.]

(d) Devey v. Peace, Taml. 78.

(e) Re Boycott, 5 W. R. 15.

appointed four where the testator originally appointed three (a), three where the testator originally appointed two (b), and two where the testator originally appointed one (c). In these cases the number has been increased, but if the original number was excessive, the Court may also reduce it (d). If, however, two were originally appointed, the Court for security will not, at least where money is concerned, substitute one only (e).

Trustee should be within the jurisdiction.

33. In general, the new trustees appointed under a power should be persons amenable to the jurisdiction of the Court, but where the personal property of a lady was settled on her marriage with a foreigner, whose domicile was in America at the time of the marriage, the subsequent appointment of three Americans to be trustees was decided to be justifiable (f). But though the parties who have a power of appointment may exercise it in this way, the Court in substituting trustees by its own jurisdiction has refused to appoint new trustees who are out of the jurisdiction (g). [However, in a case where all the parties interested were of age, and they were all resident either in Australia or New Zealand, the Court appointed two persons resident in Australia new trustees of a settlement (h), and where an infant domiciled in Australia was entitled to a small share of real estate, persons resident in Australia were appointed trustees of the share for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882 (i), and the like course has been adopted in other cases where some of the cestuis que trust have been infants (j). But it is only in very exceptional circumstances that such an appointment will be made, and in a recent case where three trustees were appointed, two of whom were out of the jurisdiction, the Court required the two to undertake, in case the power of appointing new trustees should become exercisable by them or either of them, not to appoint any new trustee resident out of the jurisdiction without the consent of the Court (k); and the Court

(a) Plenty v. West, 16 Beav. 356.

(b) Birch v. Cropper, 2 De G. & Sm. 255.

(c) Plenty v. West, 16 Beav. 356; Re Tunstall's Will, 4 De G. & Sm. 421; Grant v. Grant, 34 L. J. Ch. 641.

[(d) Re Fowler's Trusts, W. N. 1886, p. 183; 55 L. T. N.S. 546; and see Re Leon, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 348; Re Lees, (1896) 2 Ch. 508.]

(e) Re Ellison's Trusts, 2 Jur. N.S. 62; Re Porter's Trust, 2 Jur. N.S. 349; and see Re Roberts, 9 W. R. 758.

(f) Meinertzhagen v. Davis, 1 Coll. 335; [and see Re Smith's Trusts, 20 W. R. 695; Re Cunard's Trusts, 48 L. J. N.S. Ch. 192; 27 W. R. 52; but see Re Long's Settlement, 17 W.R. 218; Re Austen's Settlement, 38 L. T. N.S. 601].

(g) Re Guibert, 16 Jur. 852.

[(h) Re Drewe's Settlement Trusts, W. N. 1876, p. 168.]

[(i) Re Simpson, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 256.]

[(j) Re Liddiard, 14 Ch. D. 310; and see the cases cited, sup. note (f).]

[(k) Re Freeman's Settlement Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 148.]

refused to authorise money arising under the Settled Land Act to be sent out to executors in America for investment (a).]

One of two trustees retiring, and appointment of the co-trustee.

34. Should one of two trustees be desirous of retiring, of course he cannot do so without the substitution of another in his place (b), and the power of appointment of new trustees would not authorise the appointment of the continuing trustee as sole administrator of the trust (c); for this would, in effect, amount to a relinquishment of the trust without the appointment of any successor (d).

Appointment of one trustee in the place of several.

35. [Independently of the power conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893 (e),] a surviving trustee cannot be advised (though it has been sometimes done), to vest the trust estate in himself, and a new trustee appointed in the place of one of several deceased trustees, but should refuse to part with the property unless the original number of trustees be restored. Still less could the representative of the last surviving trustee be advised to vest the property in a single new trustee nominated in the place of one only of the several deceased trustees. And where a settlement constitutes three trustees with a power of appointment of new trustees in the usual form, and two die, the survivor should refuse to retire in favour of a single new trustee appointed in his place, for, as the original settlement provided three trustees to execute the trust, the donee of the power should not execute the power partially, but should restore the original number (f). In a trust for sale, if this precaution were not observed, a purchaser on a sale by the new trustee might give trouble by objecting to the title (g). The strongest ground for supporting the sale would be, that probably many titles depend on the validity of such an execution of the power, and in recent cases the appointment has been supported (h). Fieri non debuit, factum valet. Where the power in the will was "to appoint one or more new trustee or trustees in the room of the trustee or trustees so dying," and both trustees died, and the donee of the power appointed a single trustee in the place of both, the appointment was established (i).

[(a) Re Lloyd, 54 L. T. N.S. 643; W. N. 1886, p. 37.]

(b) Adams v. Paynter, 1 Coll. 532.

(c) Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272.

(d) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 412, per Lord Eldon.

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53.]

(f) See Barnes v. Addy, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 244; but see Forster v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 351.

(g) See Earl of Lonsdale v. Beckett, 4 De G. & Sm. 73; Meinertzhagen v. Davis, 1 Coll. 344.

(h) Re Pool Bathurst's Estate, 2 Sm. & G. 169; Reid v. Reid, 30 Beav. 388; and see Re Fagg's Trust, 19 L. J. N.S. Ch. 175.

(i) Wood v. Ord, M.R. 1st July, 1793, MS.

[Trustee Act, 1893.]

[36. Now, by the Trustee Act, 1893 (a), sect. 10, on an appointment of a new trustee, it shall not be obligatory to appoint more than one new trustee, where only one trustee was originally appointed, or to fill up the original number of trustees, where more than two trustees were originally appointed; but, except where only one trustee was originally appointed, a trustee shall not be discharged under this section from his trust unless there will be at least two trustees to perform the trust.]

Rectification of bad appointment.

37. If A. and B. be trustees, with a power of appointment of new trustees limited to "the acting trustees or trustee, or the executors or administrators of the surviving trustee," and then A. dies, and B. retires and appoints C. a trustee in his own place, and afterwards dies and appoints an executor, who, as the donee of the power for the time being, appoints C. and D. in the place of A. and B., the two new trustees are properly appointed, and can sign receipts; for either the original appointment of C. was good, and the subsequent appointment of D. [having been made with the concurrence of C.] filled up the number, or the original appointment of C. was invalid, and then the appointment of both C. and D. by the donee of the power was effectual (b).

[Concurrence of retiring trustee not necessary.]

[38. Where the power of appointing new trustees is given to the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee, and a trustee retires, his concurrence is not necessary in the appointment of a new trustee in his place, but such appointment rests with the other trustees or trustee who do not retire (c).]

A surviving trustee appointing two trustees in the place of himself and the deceased trustee.

39. It sometimes happens where the power of appointment of new trustees is limited to the "surviving or continuing trustee," that one trustee dies, and then the other, wishing to retire, proposes to appoint two new trustees at the same time in the place of himself and the deceased trustee. A doubt has, however, been suggested whether the word surviving must not be read as applicable only to an appointment in the room of a deceased trustee; and, as the word continuing cannot include retiring, the safer course is for the surviving trustee first to appoint a person in the room of the deceased trustee, and then the person so substituted may, as the continuing trustee, appoint a new trustee in the place of the trustee desirous of retiring (d).

[(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 10, sub-s. 2 (c).]

(b) Miller v. Priddon, 1 De G. M. & G. 335.

[(c) Re Norris, 27 Ch. D. 333; Travis v. Illingworth, 2 Dr. & Sm. 344; Re Coates to Parsons, 34 Ch. D. 370; but see Re Glenny and Hartley, 25 Ch. D. 611.]

(d) See Nicholson v. Wright, 26 L. J. N.S. Ch. 312; S. C. nom. Nicholson v. Smith, 3 Jur. N.S. 313. But see Pell v. De Winton, 2 De G. & J. 17.

Case of both trustees wishing to retire.

40. And if there be two trustees, and a power of appointing new trustees be given to "the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee," it has been held that they cannot both retire at the same time, but that there must be two successive appointments, as in the case last mentioned (a); and if there be three trustees with the like power, and two die, and the surviving trustee wishes to retire, then he is not a continuing trustee, and therefore he cannot retire and appoint two others in the place of himself and a deceased trustee (b).

[But under the Trustee Act, 1893, the provisions of the Act relative to the appointment of new trustees by a continuing trustee include a refusing or retiring trustee, if willing to act in the execution of those provisions (c); and a retiring trustee can, accordingly, under the Act, appoint new trustees in the place of himself and a deceased trustee, or in the place of himself alone if he was originally the sole trustee.]

Power to "other trustee."

41. Where four trustees were appointed originally, and the power was to the surviving or continuing or other trustee to appoint, it was held that the survivor of the four trustees who desired himself to be discharged, could, by force of the words "other trustee" appoint four new trustees in the place of himself and three others (d).

[Power to donees to appoint "other" persons.]

[42. Where the power was to the husband and wife or the survivor, and after the decease of such survivor, the continuing trustees or trustee, or if no continuing trustee, the retiring or refusing trustees or trustee, or the executors or administrators of the last acting trustee, to appoint any "other" person or persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of a trustee or trustees dying, or going to reside abroad, or desiring to retire, or refusing or becoming incapable to act, it was held that the terms of the power required that the trustee or trustees to be appointed should

(a) Stones v. Rowton, 17 Beav. 308; S. C. 1 Eq. Rep. 427.

(b) Travis v. Illingworth, 2 Dr. & Sm. 344; [Re Norris, 27 Ch. D. 333. Travis v. Illingworth has been directly called in question by V. C. Bacon in Re Glenny and Hartley, 25 Ch. D. 611, in which case the V. C. expressed his opinion that the retiring trustees could execute the power. It is, however, to be observed that the power in that case contained special words, showing that the words "continuing trustees" were not used in their strict sense, but as including trustees who were being discharged, and on the general question the argument of the V. C. does not seem to be so well founded as that of V. C. Kindersley in Travis v. Illingworth, and has since been disapproved of, see Re Norris, sup., and Re Coates to Parsons, 34 Ch. D. 370.]

[(c) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 10, sub-s. 4, replacing 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 31, sub-s. 6.]

(d) Lord Camoys v. Best, 19 Beav. 414.

be some person or persons "other" than the person or persons making the appointment (a).]

Power to "acting trustees."

43. Where persons are nominated trustees in a will, and a power of appointing new trustees is given to the "acting" trustees, should all the trustees disclaim, the power of appointment is gone, and the hiatus in the trust can only be filled up by the Court. It has, occasionally, been suggested that the trustees, instead of disclaiming, should accept the trust to the extent of exercising the power only, and should, by virtue of it, appoint new trustees (b); but it is conceived that trustees who availed themselves of the office for the purpose only of introducing other parties into the trust would be rather "refusing" than "acting" trustees, and that the exercise of the power, under such circumstances, would be nugatory, and might involve the outgoing trustees in serious liabilities.

Power to the "said trustees."

44. The power of appointment is sometimes given "to the said trustees," and then the question arises whether a sole survivor can appoint. It is conceived that "the said trustees" means the persons or person representing the trust for the time being under the settlement, and that the survivor can therefore exercise the power.

Appointment of a cestui que trust or near relative of cestui que trust as trustee.

45. On a change of trustees it is not uncommonly proposed to appoint one of the cestuis que trust to that office, but such an arrangement is evidently irregular, as each cestui que trust has a right to insist that the administration of the property should be confided to the care of some third person whose interest would not tend to bias him from the line of his duty. Should proceedings be instituted for the removal of the cestui que trust, and the substitution of some indifferent person as trustee, the costs might be thrown upon the parties who had improperly filled up the trust (c). But it is presumed that this rule affects the parties to the trust only, and that if a cestui que trust who has been appointed a trustee sell real estate under a power of sale, he may sign a receipt, and that the purchaser is not bound to look to the proper exercise of the discretion in such a case (d). Cestuis que trust are not absolutely incapacitated from being trustees, as the Court itself, under special circumstances, appoints a cestui que trust a trustee (e). The

[(a) Re Skeat's Settlement, 42 Ch. D. 522.]

(b) See Sharp v. Sharp, 2 B. & Ald. 415; and Re Hadley, 5 De G. & Sm. 67, where power was expressly given to a declining trustee.

(c) See Passingham v. Sherborn, 9 Beav. 424.

(d) See Reid v. Reid, 30 Beav. 388; Forster v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 351.

(e) Ex parte Clutton, 17 Jur. 988; Ex parte Conybeare's Settlement, 1 W. R. 458; Forster v. Abraham, 17 L. R. Eq. 351.

question is merely one of relative fitness. A fortiori, the circumstance of near relationship to the cestui que trust creates no absolute disqualification for the office of trustee, though Sir John Romilly, M.R., objected, where it could be avoided, to appoint relatives as trustees (a).

[Appointment of tenant for life or his solicitor.]

[46. The Court declines to appoint the tenant for life (b), or the solicitor of the tenant for life (c), to be a trustee for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882; and has even refused to appoint two brothers trustees, and required two independent persons to be appointed (d). And it is conceived that the course of the Court would in general be the same in the exercise of its general jurisdiction (e), but the donee of a power of appointing new trustees is not precluded from making an appointment which the Court would refuse to make (f), and in a recent case an appointment by a tenant for life under a power, of her own solicitor to be trustee was, under the circumstances, upheld (g).]

Whether donee of power can appoint himself trustee.

47. The question has often been asked, whether the donee of the power can appoint himself a trustee, and, as no one can be judge in his own case, such an appointment has been regarded as open to objection (h); [and the power being fiduciary, it is not in general proper for the donee to exercise it by appointing himself either alone or jointly with others (i); but there is no absolute rule precluding him from doing so, and in special circumstances such an appointment may be made, and may be sanctioned by the Court (j).] Should, however, the execution of the trust have been committed to trustees and the survivor of them, his executors and administrators, and the trustees die, and the power of appointment is in the executor of the survivor, here it may be said that as by the terms of the trust the executor was declared to be a proper person to execute the trust, the executor has the settlor's warrant for the appointment of himself and another. It may still,

(a) Wilding v. Bolder, 21 Beav. 222; and see ante, pp. 41, 42.

[(b) Re Harrop's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 717.]

[(c) Re Kemp's Settled Estates, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 485; Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288; Re Spencer's Settled Estates, (1903) 1 Ch. 75.]

[(d) Re Knowles' Settled Estates, 27 Ch. D. 707.]

[(e) Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288.]

[(f) Re Earl of Stamford, sup.; Re Kemp's Settled Estates, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 485; and see ante, p. 822.]

[(g) Re Earl of Stamford, sup.]

[(h) See Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 58 L. T. N.S. 221, 223.]

[(i) Re Skeat's Settlement, 42 Ch. D. 522; Re Newen, (1894) 2 Ch. 297; Re Sampson, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 331. And it has been intimated that the principle extends to the case of a donee of a power of leasing, so as to preclude him from granting a lease to a trustee for himself: Boyce v. Edbrooke, (1903) 1 Ch. 836.]

[(j) Montefiore v. Guedalla, (1903) 2 Ch. 723; but see Re Sampson, sup.]

however, be observed, that the exercise of every power should be regulated by the circumstances as they stand at the time, and that the limitation to executors a priori cannot dispense with the discretion to be applied afterwards.

Of severing a trusteeship.

48. Where estates of a different description, or held under a different title, or limited upon different trusts, have been vested in the same trustees by the settlor, and there is a single power of appointment of new trustees in the usual form, it [was at one time thought] that there was no authority for afterwards dividing the trust by the appointment of one set of new trustees to execute the trusts of the one estate, and a distinct set of new trustees to execute the trusts of the other (a); and it [was even held in one case] upon a petition under the Trustee Acts, that the Court had no jurisdiction to make such an order (b). [But where there was no opposition to the order, the Court in several subsequent cases appointed new trustees under the Trustee Acts of one of several trust funds, held under the same instrument without dealing with the other funds (c); and in an administration action it was held by Fry, J., that the Court had jurisdiction to appoint separate sets of trustees (d). Now, by the Trustee Act, 1893 (e), sect. 10, it is enacted, that on an appointment of new trustees, a separate set of trustees may be appointed for any part of the trust property held on trusts distinct from those relating to any other part or parts of the trust property, notwithstanding that no new trustees or trustee are or is to be appointed for other parts of the trust property, and any existing trustee may be appointed or remain one of such separate set of trustees (f); or, if only one trustee was originally appointed, then one separate trustee may be so appointed for the first-mentioned part; and this section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of the Act. And the appointment may be made even although in certain events the trusts of the several properties may become identical (g).]

(a) See Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 27; Re Anderson, Ll. & G. t. Sugd. 29.

(b) Re Dennis's Trusts, 12 W. R. 575; 3 N. R. 636.

[(c) Re Cotterill's Trusts, W. N. 1869, p. 183; Re Cunard's Trusts, 48 L. J. N.S. Ch. 192; 27 W. R. 52, and the cases there cited; Re Paine's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 725; Re Moss's Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 513.]

[(d) Re Grange, 29 W. R. 502; 44 L. T. N.S. 469.]

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 10, sub-s. 2 (b), replacing s. 5 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882.]

[(f) This section by these words incorporates s. 6 of the Conveyancing Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 13), passed to obviate the difficulty which arose in Savile v. Couper, 36 Ch. D. 520; and in Ireland in Re Nesbitt's Trusts, 19 L. R. (Ir.) 509; but see Re Moss's Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 513.]

[(g) Re Hetherington's Trusts, 34 Ch. D. 211; and see Re Moss's Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 513; Re Paine's

Directory powers.

49. The proviso is sometimes of such a directory character as to authorise the appointment of new trustees upon one event, without the intention of confining the exercise of the power to the occurrence of that event exclusively. Thus, where six trustees were empowered, when reduced to three, to fill up the number, and all died but one, it was held competent to the survivor to execute the appointment (a). So, where the original number of trustees was twenty-five, and they were directed, when reduced to fifteen, to proceed to nominate others, it was determined that, when seventeen remained, the survivors might elect, but when reduced to only fifteen they were compellable to elect (b). It should be observed that these were cases of charitable trusts, in which a greater latitude of construction is allowed than in ordinary trusts (c).

Tenant for life disposing of his life estate.

50. If a tenant for life has a power of appointing new trustees, and sells his life interest, the power [is not thereby destroyed, but is still exercisable with the consent of the person to whom the beneficial interest has been aliened (d). So if the tenant for life] has only mortgaged his life interest, he may not be able to appoint a trustee behind the back of the mortgagee, but there can be no objection to such an exercise of the power, if it be done with the consent of the mortgagee.

[It has been intimated (e), that the power is exercisable by the tenant for life, even without the consent of the alienee, but it is submitted that this must be subject to the implied condition that there is nothing in the appointment prejudicial to the interest of the alienee. This condition has been expressly recognised in several of the earlier cases (f), and is in accordance with

Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 725. The enactment appears to contemplate the existence of separate and distinct "parts" of the trust estate, so that, for example, a settled legacy charged on the settled land, and not duly invested or appropriated in exoneration of the land, would seem not to be within the provision.]

(a) Attorney-General v. Floyer, 2 Vern. 748; and see Attorney-General v. Bishop of Lichfield, 5 Ves. 825; but see Foley v. Wontner, 2 J. & W. 245.

(b) Doe v. Roe, 1 Anst. 86.

(c) See ante, p. 751.

[(d) Alexander v. Mills, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 124. See Holdsworth v. Goose, 29 Beav. 111, and cases cited Ib.; Nelson v. Seaman, 1 De G. F. & J. 368; Lord Leigh v. Ashburton, 11 Beav. 470; Eisdell v. Hammersley, 31 Beav. 255; Walmesly v. Butterworth, Coote on Mortgages, App. 3rd Ed. p. 572; Warburton v. Farn, 16 Sim. 625.]

[(e) Hardaker v. Moorhouse, 26 Ch. D. 417, per North, J.; but in the case of Re Bedingfield, (1893) 2 Ch. 232, before the same learned judge, a contrary opinion was expressed by him, but the actual question did not there arise.]

[(f) Alexander v. Mills, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 124; Holdsworth v. Goose, 29 Beav. 111; Eisdell v. Hammersley, 31 Beav. 255; and see Re Cooper, 27 Ch. D. 565; Re Bedingfield, sup.; and cf. the Settled Land Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 38), s. 50; Earl of Lonsdale v. Lowther, (1900) 2 Ch. 687; ante, p. 773.]

sound principle; and it is conceived that the wiser course will be to procure the consent of the alienee to the appointment.

[Donee of power becoming lunatic.]

51. Where the donee of a power of appointing new trustees is a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition, the Court in lunacy has power, under the provisions of the Lunacy Act, 1890 (a), to appoint a person to exercise the power on behalf of the lunatic, either generally or by appointing specified persons (b).]

Trustee cannot retire in consideration of a premium, or in favour of another who intends to commit a breach of trust.

52. Advantage cannot be taken of the power for the purposes of profit; and therefore if the donee of the power appoint a person a trustee in consideration of a sum of money paid by him for the office, the appointment cannot stand (c). And if a trustee refuse, when solicited, to commit a breach of trust himself, but declares his willingness to resign in favour of some other person less scrupulous, the Court, acting upon the principle of qui facit per alium facit per se, and considering that it is equally incumbent on the trustee in this ultimate act of office to fulfil the duty imposed on him as at any other time, may hold the trustee who retires responsible for the misbehaviour of the trustee he has substituted (d). [But in order to make retiring trustees liable for a breach of trust committed by their successors it must be shown, and shown clearly, that the very breach of trust which was in fact committed was not merely the outcome of the retirement and new appointment, but was contemplated by the former trustees when such retirement and appointment took place. It will not suffice to prove that the former trustees rendered easy or even intended a breach of trust if it was not in fact committed. They must be proved to have been guilty, as accessories before the fact, of the impropriety actually perpetrated (e).] And upon principle it would seem that a bond of indemnity given to the retiring trustee would be a very doubtful security against the consequences of the act, for the bond itself, if found to be infected with fraud, could afford no just ground for action (f). However, it was held by the Court of Exchequer that the common law Courts have no such cognisance of breaches of trust as to treat a bond of indemnity

[(a) 53 Vict. c. 5, ss. 116, 128, 129.]

[(b) Re Shortridge, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 278; and see Re A., (1904) 2 Ch. 328, 333, and ante, p. 669.

(c) Sugden v. Crossland, 3 Sm. & G. 192.

(d) Norton v. Pritchard, Reg. Lib. B. 1844, 771; Le Hunt v. Webster, 8 W. R. 434; reversed 9 W. R. 918; Clark v. Hoskins, 36 L. J. N.S. Ch. 689; reversed on appeal, 37 L. J. N.S. Ch. 561; Palairet v. Carew, 32 Beav. 567; [Head v. Gould, (1898) 2 Ch. 250, 273, 274].

[(e) Head v. Gould, ubi sup., per Kekewich, J.; Clark v. Hoskins, ubi sup.]

(f) See Shep. Touch. 132, 371.

against an act amounting in equity to a breach of trust as necessarily containing anything illegal (a).

Improper appointment by donee of power.

53. If a tenant for life, with a power of appointment of new trustees, appoint improper persons to the trust, he will be personally liable for the costs of a suit for removing the objectionable trustees (b).

Result where a new trustee is ineffectually appointed.

54. If a new trustee be ineffectually appointed, the old trustees may exercise the powers given to them by the instrument of trust, notwithstanding the ineffectual attempt (c). But if a trustee retire upon the appointment of a new trustee, and from want of the proper formalities being observed the appointment is not legal, the old trustee cannot lie by for a long interval and then exercise a power of mere concurrence in the deed, without bonâ fide exercising his own judgment and discretion (d).

Lis pendens.

55. If the administration of the trust be in the hands of the Court, the donee of the power cannot exercise it without having first obtained the Court's approbation of the person proposed (e). However, if the old trustees do appoint without the leave of the Court, the act is not to be considered as altogether void in itself, but it puts the burthen upon them of proving, and that by the strictest evidence, that what was done was perfectly right; and also saddles them with the costs of that proof. If the act was not proper, of course the appointment will be cancelled (f).

How the costs are to be borne.

56. On the appointment of a new trustee under a power, the costs, [including those of the donee of the power (g),] fall on the corpus of the trust estate. In strictness the costs of appointing new trustees should be governed by the same principles as the payment of fines on admission to copyhold (h). But on the appointment of new trustees by the Court the costs are always thrown upon the estate, and the practice in Court regulates the practice out of Court (i). Where there is no fund readily available the costs are often paid by the tenant for life.

Enrolment in case of charity.

57. On the appointment of new trustees of a charity, the

(a) Warwick v. Richardson, 10 M. & W. 284; and see Lord Newborough v. Schröder, 7 C. B. 342; Dugdale v. Lovering, 10 L. R. C. P. 196.

(b) Raikes v. Raikes, 32 Beav. 403.

(c) Warburton v. Sandys, 14 Sim. 622; Miller v. Priddon, 1 De G. M. & G. 335.

(d) Lancashire v. Lancashire, 2 Ph. 657; 1 De G. & Sm. 288.

(e) Webb v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 7 Ves. 480; Attorney-General v. Clack, 1 Beav. 467; Peatfield v. Benn, 17 Beav. 552; Middleton v. Reay, 7 Hare, 106; Kennedy v. Turnley, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 399; [Re Gadd, 23 Ch. D. 134; and see ante, p. 771.]

(f) Attorney-General v. Clack, 1 Beav. 473, per Lord Langdale; and see Cafe v. Bent, 3 Hare, 249.

[(g) Harvey v. Olliver, W. N. 1887, p. 439; 59 L. T. N.S. 249.]

(h) See ante, p. 453.

(i) Palmer's Settlement, V. C. Kindersley, 18th April, 1857; Carter v. Sebright, 26 Beav. 376; see post, p. 834.

conveyance of real estate which is already in mortmain need not be enrolled (a).

Power of new trustees.

58. Where new trustees are appointed under a power, it is presumed that they can exercise all the powers given to the original trustees in that character; but in penning a power of appointment of new trustees, all questions should be obviated by an express direction that the new trustees shall have the same powers as if originally appointed (b).

Attested copies.

59. A trustee upon transferring the trust estate to a newly appointed trustee is not allowed to charge it with the expense of an attested copy of the settlement where he has already an ordinary copy, or with the expense of a duplicate of the deed of new appointment, though he is entitled to an examined copy of it. The extra evidence is considered as incurred for the satisfaction of the trustee from an excess of caution, and, if required, must be paid for by himself (c).

Inquiries to be made by incoming trustee.

60. If newly appointed trustees omit to inquire of a retiring trustee whether he has notice of any charge, and then having no notice, they distribute the fund to the prejudice of the incumbrancer, they will not be liable to him on the ground that it was their duty to have made inquiry of the retiring trustee, in which case they would have known of the incumbrance (d). [But new trustees are bound to look into the documents relating to the trust to ascertain of what incumbrances their predecessors have had notice (e).]

Matrimonial Causes Act, 1859.

61. Under sect. 5 of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 61, the Court has jurisdiction, where a final decree of nullity of marriage or dissolution of marriage has been made, to extinguish or vary the power of appointing new trustees of the settlements made by the parties to the marriage (f).

Thirdly. Of the discharge of the trustee and the appointment of new trustees by the authority of the Court.

[(A) Under the general jurisdiction of the Court.]

Suit to be discharged from the trust.

1. The trustee may, in every proper case, although the contrary

(a) Ashton v. Jones, 28 Beav. 460; and see Shelf. Mortm. 130.

[(b) In appointments under the statutory powers this is expressly provided for; Lord Cranworth's Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145), sect. 27; Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), sect. 10.]

(c) Warter v. Anderson, 11 Hare, 301; S. C. 1 Eq. Rep. 266.

(d) Phipps v. Lovegrove, 16 L. R. Eq. 80.

[(e) Hallows v. Lloyd, 39 Ch. D. 686, 691.]

[(f) Oppenheim v. Oppenheim, 9 P. D. 60; Maudslay v. Maudslay, 2 P. D. 256; Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. pp. 967, 968; Allcard v. Walker, (1896) 2 Ch. 369.]

appears to have been at one time supposed (a), get himself discharged from the office on application to the Court. A power of appointment of new trustees is very frequently omitted in settlements, or the donee of the power either cannot or will not exercise it, and were there no means by which a trustee could ever denude himself of that character, it would operate as a great discouragement to mankind to undertake so arduous a task.

Where no new trustee can be found.

2. Where no new trustee can be found willing to act, the trustee's right to be discharged must depend upon the circumstances of the case. "It is quite a mistake," observed Lord St Leonards, "to suppose that a trustee who is entitled to be discharged from his trust is bound to show to the Court that there is some other person ready to accept the trust. The Court refers it to the Master to appoint a new trustee; but if no person will accept the trust, it may find itself obliged to keep the trustee before the Court and not discharge him. The Court will, however, take care that the trustee shall not suffer thereby in the meantime" (b). This was said in a case where the trustee, from the conduct of the cestui que trust, could claim to be discharged; but if a trustee wish to retire from mere caprice, it is not clear that the Court can or will discharge him, unless another trustee can be found in substitution (c). It is certain that the Court cannot divest him of the estate before some one can be found to take it, and even as to the office it is not unreasonable that if a man once engages to undertake it, he shall not retire from it without any reason, and so leave the estate without a trustee. But a trustee may, in a proper case, relieve himself from the liabilities of the office by submitting the administration of the trusts to the jurisdiction of the Court (d); [and in such an action the Court, in a proper case, will exercise its jurisdiction to discharge a trustee without appointing a new trustee in his place (e).]

How application to be discharged from the trust should be made.

3. Formerly the application to the Court to be discharged from the trust was in general made by bill, in order to give the Court an opportunity of examining into the merits of the case (f),

(a) Hamilton v. Fry, 2 Moll. 458.

(b) Courtenay v. Courtenay, 3 Jon. & Lat. 533; and see Forshaw v. Higginson, 20 Beav. 487; [Re Chetwynd's Settlement, (1902) 1 Ch. 692, where it was said that in the passage quoted above, Lord St Leonards was referring to the case of a sole trustee being desirous of retiring, or to a case in which it was for any reason undesirable that the continuing trustees should act alone].

(c) Ardill v. Savage, 1 Ir. Eq. Rep. 79.

(d) See Forshaw v. Higginson, 20 Beav. 485; Gardiner v. Downes, 22 Beav. 397. [As to the practice of the Court under its statutory jurisdiction, see post, p. 835 et seq.]

[(e) Re Chetwynd's Settlement, (1902) 1 Ch. 692.]

(f) See Ex parte Anderson, 5 Ves. 243; Re Fitzgerald, Ll. & G. t. Sudg. 22; Re Anderson, Ib. 29.

but if a suit were already pending, the trustee might then solicit his dismissal by petition or motion (a). It was formerly not the custom of the Court to look through the proceedings, but a reference was ordered to the Master (b). Under the present practice the Court, except in cases of special difficulty, usually appoints a trustee without a reference to chambers, and without a suit, under the statutory provisions.

Part of the trust estate lost.

4. If part of the original trust estate is supposed to be lost, or is not forthcoming, the Court will not appoint new trustees of the residue, so as to make them partial trustees only, but will appoint them trustees generally; and, if required, will at the same time, for the protection of the trustees, direct an inquiry whether any part of the trust fund has been lost, and what steps should be taken for its recovery (c).

Costs.

5. The costs where the trustee retires from caprice or without sufficient reason must be borne by himself (d); but where he retires from necessity, or on good and sufficient ground, they will be thrown upon the trust estate (e). Where the trust was originally a simple one, but has become embarrassing from its complications, the trustee may commence an action to be relieved, and will be allowed his costs, for although he might have paid the trust fund into Court under the Trustee Relief Act (f), this would not have saved him from being sued, except as to the particular sum paid into Court (g).

Application by representative of deceased trustee.

6. A distinction was taken by Lord Langdale between the case where the same person who accepted the trust comes to be relieved from it, in whom it would be caprice to relinquish the trust without any sufficient reason, and the case where on that person's death, the trust devolves on his representative by operation of law, and the representative applies to the Court (h). And where the executor of a trustee declined to act as trustee, and a bill was filed against him to have new trustees appointed, and that the executor might pay the costs, the Court said the executor had a perfect right to decline acting in the trusts, and allowed him his costs (i).

(a) —— v. Osborne, 6 Ves. 455; —— v. Robarts, 1 J. & W. 251.

(b) —— v. Osborne, 6 Ves. 455.

(c) Bennett v. Burgis, 5 Hare, 295.

(d) Howard v. Rhodes, 1 Keen, 581; Porter v. Watts, 16 Jur. 757; Hamilton v. Fry, 2 Moll. 458.

(e) Greenwood v. Wakeford, 1 Beav. 581; Forshaw v. Higginson, 20 Beav. 486; Courtenay v. Courtenay, 3 Jon. & Lat. 529; Gardiner v. Downes, 22 Beav. 395; see ante, p. 831.

[(f) Now replaced by s. 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893, see ante, p. 424 et seq.]

(g) Barker v. Peile, 2 Dr. & Sm. 340.

(h) Greenwood v. Wakeford, 1 Beav. 582; and see Aldridge v. Westbrooke, 4 Beav. 212.

(i) Legg v. Mackrell, 1 Giff. 165; 2 De G. F. & J. 551; [and see Re Ridley, (1904) 2 Ch. 774.]

Complication of the trust by the acts of the tenant for life.

7. Where the settlement contained a power of appointment of new trustees, and the tenant for life having incumbered his life estate with annuities and other charges, the original trustees were desirous of relieving themselves from the difficulties of their situation by retiring from the trust, and the tenant for life, who was the donee of the power, could not find any person to undertake the trust, the costs of the suit which the trustees had instituted for their discharge were thrown exclusively upon the fund of the tenant for life (a).

Executor cannot be discharged.

8. An executor is regarded in some sense as a trustee, but he cannot, like a trustee, be discharged even by the Court, from his executorship. When the funeral and testamentary expenses, debts, and legacies have been satisfied, and the surplus has been invested upon the trusts of the will, the executor then drops that character and becomes a trustee in the proper sense, and may then be discharged from the office like any other trustee.

[(B) Of the appointment of new trustees under the statutory jurisdiction of the Court.

First, by the High Court of Justice.

[Scope and object of Trustee Acts, 1850, 1852, and 1893.]

1. The statutory jurisdiction of the Court as to the appointment of new trustees and the vesting of trust property has in modern times been mainly derived from the Trustee Acts, 1850 (b), and 1852 (c), which have now been replaced by Part III. of the Trustee Act, 1893 (d). The Act of 1850 was intituled "An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the transfer of real and personal property vested in mortgagees and trustees." The object of these enactments, as shown by the wording of them, is to facilitate the performance of trusts, and not to declare or enforce them, or to confer upon the Court any jurisdiction to decide on disputed questions of title (e).

[Definition of "trust" and "trustee."]

2. By the definition clause of the Act of 1893 (f), "the expression 'trust' does not include the duties incident to an estate

(a) Coventry v. Coventry, 1 Keen, 758.

[(b) 13 & 14 Vict. c. 60.]

[(c) 15 & 16 Vict. c. 55.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53. For the Act printed in extenso, see App. No. 1; and for the Rules of Court applicable, and cases thereunder, see App. No. 2. As to the appointment of new trustees under the Settled Land Acts, and the Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, and Public Trustee Act, 1906, see ante, Chapters XXII. and XXIII.]

[(e) Re Draper's Settlement, 9 W. R. 805. Where on the purchase of land by a company, the land was conveyed to their secretary as absolute owner, North, J., doubted whether he had jurisdiction under the Acts to appoint a new trustee in his place, until the trusteeship had been established in an action; Re Martin's Trusts, W. N. (1886) p. 183.]

[(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 50. This definition is substantially identical with the definition in sec. 2 of the Act of 1850.]

conveyed by way of mortgage; but with this exception, the expressions 'trust' and 'trustee' include implied and constructive trusts, and cases where the trustee has a beneficial interest in the trust property, and the duties incident to the office of personal representative of a deceased person."

The exception of the duties incident to an estate conveyed by way of mortgage is to be read as confined to the continuance of the security, during which no relation of trustee and cestui que trust is constituted, and does not extend to a case where there is an express trust, as, for example, a provision that the mortgagor shall hold in trust for the mortgagee (a). And although a mortgagee, on being paid off, becomes a trustee for the mortgagor, he cannot be treated as such in the absence of clear evidence of payment binding on him, and, accordingly, where one of joint mortgagees was out of the jurisdiction, and the mortgage money was paid to the joint account of the joint mortgagees, the Court refused to make a vesting order (b).

[Implied and constructive trusts.]

Previously to the provisions of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (c), whereby the personal representative of a vendor is empowered to convey, where at his death an enforceable contract is subsisting (d), difficulties often arose by reason of the death of a vendor of real estate intestate before conveyance, and it was held that in such a case the infant heir of the vendor was not a constructive trustee for the purchaser (at least in cases where the trust could possibly be disputed), until the trust had been declared by the judgment of the Court (e). A vendor after contract was held to be a trustee of shares in a joint stock bank for the purchaser (f); and cases of constructive trusteeship have also been

[(a) London and County Bank v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642.]

[(b) Re Osborn's Mortgage, 12 L. R. Eq. 392; see Re Walker's Mortgage Trusts, 3 Ch. D. 209.]

[(c) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 4.]

[(d) And see as regards vendors dying after 31st December, 1897, the Land Transfer Act, 1897, (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 1, ante, p. 248.]

[(e) Re Carpenter, 1 Kay, 418; Re Colling, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 333; Re Burt, 9 Hare, 289; Re Dickenson, 17 L. T. 231; Cust v. Middleton, 7 Jur. N.S. 151; Re Weeding's Estate, 4 Jur. N.S. 707; Re Faulder, W. N. 1866, p. 83; Jackson v. Milfield, 5 Hare, 538; Re Milfield, 2 Ph. 254; Morgan v. Swansea Urban Sanitary Authority, 9 Ch. D. 582. Re Wise, 5 De G. & Sm. 415, is distinguishable; and see Re Propert's Purchase, 22 L. J. N.S. Ch. 948. Where a vendor died before acceptance of the title, having devised the estate to an infant, and the executors prayed that the infant might be declared a trustee within the Act, and that the property on payment of the purchase-money might be conveyed to the purchaser, who had accepted the title, and the prayer was supported by the infant's counsel, the Court made the order; Re Lowry's Will, 15 L. R. Eq. 78.]

[(f) Re Angelo, 5 De G. & Sm. 278: for form of order where vendor died before completion, leaving infant heir, see Re Beaufort's Will, W.N. (1898) 148, referring to Re Pagani, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 236.]

held to arise where a vendor refuses to convey after tender of a deed settled by the judge, or to receive the purchase-money (a), or the owner of copyholds covenants to surrender, and declares that he will stand seised upon trust for the covenantee in the meantime (b). And the following persons have been held to be constructive trustees within the Act:—The infant devisee of a testator, who had signed an agreement to convey certain easements in compromise of an action, no title being in question (c); an infant who was the sole beneficial owner of stock standing in his name, subject to a provision or direction for his maintenance, which was vested in some other person (d); an executor holding a legacy bequeathed to persons successively (e); the husband of a feme covert, a trustee of stock, as the Bank acted on his directions (f); an heir, taking by descent, but who was bound under the doctrine of election to hold upon the trusts of a will (g); an heir taking the trust estate by the disclaimer of the trustees (h), or by the death of the trustee in the testator's lifetime (i); one of three assignees of a bankrupt who had resigned his office and gone abroad (j); an heir of a mortgagee who had taken possession (k); a mortgagee who was a trustee of the mortgage money (l); a mortgagee, nominee of third persons to whom the mortgage money belonged, no declaration of trust having been made by him (m); and a defendant

[(a) Warrender v. Foster, Seton on Judgments, 6th edit. p. 2288. By the order the vendor was declared a trustee, and on the purchaser paying his purchase-money into Court, his solicitor was to execute the conveyance for the vendor.]

[(b) Re Collingwood's Trusts, 6 W.R. 536; and see Steele v. Waller, 28 Beav. 466. And even where there is no such declaration, yet if the contract be not in fieri, but has been carried out and completed, the covenantor is a trustee within the Act; Re Cuming, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 72; Re Bradley's Settled Estate, 54 L. T. N.S. 43; 34 W. R. 140; and see Re Colling, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 333; Re Ruthven's Trusts, (1906) 1 I. R. 236 (where the Court in Scotland had decreed conveyance).]

[(c) Re Taylor, W.N. 1866, p. 5.]

[(d) Gardner v. Cowles, 3 Ch. D. 304; Set. on Judgments, p. 1244; and see Re Findlay, 32 Ch. D. 221, 641.]

[(e) Re Davis's Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 214.]

[(f) Re Wood, 7 Jur. N.S. 323. See now the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 75), ss. 6, 7.]

[(g) Dewar v. Maitland, 2 L. R. Eq. 834.]

[(h) Wilks v. Groom, 6 De G. M. & G. 205.]

[(i) Re Gill, Set. on Judgments, 6th edit. pp. 1255, 1256.]

[(j) Re Joyce's Estate, 2 L. R. Eq. 576; 12 Jur. N.S. 1015. An order was made vesting the legal estate in the two acting assignees.]

[(k) Re Skitter's Mortgage, 4 W. R. 791.]

[(l) Re O'Gorman's Trusts, 25 L. R. Ir. 93. Where one of three joint mortgagees, who were trustees, refused to concur in a transfer of the mortgage which was executed by the other mortgagees, a new trustee was appointed in his place, and on a petition for a vesting order, it was held that the recusant trustee was a trustee within the meaning of the Act for the transferee of the mortgage; Re Walker's Mortgage Trusts, 3 Ch. D. 209.]

[(m) Re Barber's Mortgage Trusts, W. N. 1888, p. 11; 58 L. T. N.S. 303.]

against whom an absolute decree for foreclosure upon an equitable mortgage had been made (a).

In view of the provisions of sect. 30 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, and of sect. 1 of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, already referred to (b), many of these cases will now be unlikely to occur except in the comparatively rare event of there being no legal personal representative of a deceased trustee.

[Power of the Court to appoint new trustees.]

3. By sect. 25 (c) of the Trustee Act, 1893, it is provided that (1) "The High Court may (d), whenever it is expedient to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, and it is found inexpedient, difficult, or impracticable so to do without the assistance of the Court, make an order for the appointment of a new trustee or new trustees either in substitution for or in addition to any existing trustee or trustees, or although there is no existing trustee. In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the Court may make an order for the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for a trustee who is convicted of felony, or is a bankrupt. (2) An order under this section, and any consequential vesting order or conveyance, shall not operate further or otherwise as a discharge to any former or continuing trustee than an appointment of new trustees under any power for that purpose contained in any instrument would have operated. (3) Nothing in this section shall give power to appoint an executor or administrator."

[Expediency of appointing trustee.]

4. The first requirement of sect. 25 is that the proposed appointment should be shown to be "expedient." Cases of expediency have been held by the Court to arise where the trustee appointed by a will is an infant (e), or is by age and infirmity incapable

[(a) Lechmere v. Clamp, 30 Beav. 218; 31 Beav. 578.]

[(b) See ante, p. 248.]

[(c) This section replaces ss. 32 and 36 of the Act of 1850, ss. 8 and 9 of the Act of 1852, and s. 147 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, all of which, by s. 51 and schedule of this Act, are repealed.]

[(d) Where the power of appointing new trustees is vested in a lunatic the High Court has jurisdiction to appoint a new trustee, not (as in lunacy, see post, p. 861) under the special power given to the lunatic, but under the general statutory power; Re Sparrow, L. R. 5 Ch. 662. The Court has jurisdiction under the section, either upon summons or petition, to appoint a new trustee in substitution for a trustee who has been convicted of felony, but it depends on the circumstances of the case whether or not the Court will exercise the jurisdiction: Re Dawson's Trusts, W. N. (1899) 134; 48 W. R. 73.]

[(e) Re Porter's Trust, 2 Jur. N.S. 349; Re Gartside's Estate, 1 W. R. 196. But the order should be without prejudice to an application by the infant on his coming of age to be restored to the trust; Re Shelmerdine, 33 L. J. N.S. Ch. 474; Re Brunt, W. N. 1883, p. 220; Re Tallatire, W. N. 1885, p. 191.]

of acting as a trustee (a), or has become bankrupt, never surrendered, and absconded (b), or where there is great difficulty in obtaining administration to the deceased trustee, or last surviving trustee (c), or where a dissolution of a society under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893 (d), has taken place before the society has handed over any of its property to the person nominated by the instrument of dissolution, under sects. 58 and 61 of the Act, to realise the assets (e), or generally where there is no personal representative of a surviving trustee (f). And where two trustees were desirous of retiring, and it was doubtful whether the power in the settlement of appointing new trustees applied to the case, it was deemed expedient to appoint new trustees (g).

[Case for the assistance of the Court.]

5. In considering whether the assistance of the Court is required, the existence of a power to appoint new trustees is of course very material. In general, where there is a power of appointment of new trustees, which the donee is willing to exercise (h), the Court will not appoint new trustees (i), though it is suggested that the power will be improperly exercised (j). But in one case, where the parties having the power of appointing new trustees were resident in India (k), and in another, where the power of appointment was vested in husband and wife jointly, and the wife had obtained a judicial separation, and the husband was resident abroad, the Court made an order (l).

[Where no existing trustee.]

6. The statutory power to appoint a trustee is available, "although there is no existing trustee," a provision which was inserted in

[(a) Re Lemann's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 633; Re Phelps' Settlement Trusts, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 351; and see Re Barber, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 187; Re Weston's Trusts, W. N. (1898) 151.]

[(b) Re Renshaw's Trusts, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 783.]

[(c) Davis v. Chanter, 4 Jur. N.S. 272; Re Matthews, 26 Beav. 463.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 39, ss. 58, 61.]

[(e) Re Ruddington Land, (1909) 1 Ch. 701.]

[(f) Re Davis' Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 214.]

[(g) Re Woodgate's Settlement, 5 W.R. 448; Re Armstrong's Settlement, Ib.]

[(h) If this is not so, the petition should so state; Re Sutton, W. N. 1885, p. 122.]

[(i) Re Higginbottom's Trusts, (1892) 3 Ch. 132; Re Gadd, 23 Ch. D. 134; Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 21 Ch. D. 571. As to appointment of the public trustee, see ante, pp. 701, 702.]

[(j) Re Hodson's Settlement, 9 Hare, 118. Where the sole trustee of a will, who had acted and was in no way personally disqualified from continuing to act in the trusts, was desirous of being discharged from the trusts of a particular fund forming a portion of the trust property, and had expressed his intention of lodging such fund in Court unless new trustees were appointed in respect of it, whom he declined to appoint himself, it was held that there was not a case of expediency for the appointment of additional trustees; Re Nesbitt's Trusts, 19 L. R. Ir. 509.]

[(k) Re Humphry's Estate, 1 Jur. N.S. 921.]

[(l) Re Somerset, W. N. 1887, p. 122. As to the case where the power of appointing new trustees is vested in a lunatic, see post, p. 861.]

sect. 9 of the Act of 1852 in order to remove a doubt which had been entertained under the Act of 1850 (a); and where the three trustees appointed by a testator died in his lifetime, the Court appointed new trustees (b). But as the power is only to appoint a "new" trustee or trustees, the Court would appear to have no jurisdiction under the statute (c) to make an appointment where no trustees have been appointed by the testator, unless the circumstances are such that the executor or heir may be deemed a constructive trustee (d).

[Convict or bankrupt trustee.]

7. The section expressly empowers the Court to make an order for the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for a trustee who is convicted of felony or is a bankrupt, but does not, as regards a bankrupt trustee, introduce the words "whether voluntarily resigning or not," which were contained in section 147 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (e). It is apprehended, however, that the words of the section are sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the Court to remove a bankrupt trustee against his will (f).

[Removal of trustee.]

In other cases, not so specially provided for, it is held that the Court cannot under the statute remove a trustee who is willing to act (g). Thus, where one of the two trustees was residing out of the jurisdiction, but it did not appear whether such residence was likely to be permanent, the Court refused to appoint a new trustee in his room (h), and where it was alleged that a trustee was of unsound mind, but the trustee denied the allegation, and was unwilling to be removed, the Court refused to make an order (i).

[(a) See Re Tyler's Trust, 5 De G. & Sm. 56; Re Hazeldine, 16 Jur. 853; Re Frost's Settlement, 15 Jur. 644.]

[(b) Re Smirthwaite's Trusts, 11 L. R. Eq. 251.]

[(c) But the Court has authority to do it by its inherent jurisdiction independently of the Act; Dodkin v. Brunt, 6 L. R. Eq. 580.]

[(d) Re Davis' Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 214; Re Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778, and see Re Gillett's Trusts, 25 W. R. 23.]

[(e) Repealed, see ante, p. 838, note (c).]

[(f) See Coombes v. Brookes, 12 L. R. Eq. 61; Re Adams' Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 634. A bankrupt trustee who had obtained his discharge was removed on the application of his co-trustee, who was also a beneficiary, although the application was opposed by beneficiaries entitled to larger shares than the petitioner; Re Foster's Trusts, 55 L. T. N.S. 479.]

[(g) Re Hodson's Settlement, 9 Hare, 118; Re Hadley, 5 De G. & Sm. 67; Re Garty's Settlement, 3 N. R. 636; Re Combs, 51 L. T. N.S. 45.]

[(h) Re Mais, 19 Jur. 608; see Re Lincoln Primitive Methodists, 1 Jur. N.S. 1011. But where one of the trustees had gone to Australia, and it was not known where he was, the Court appointed a new trustee in his place; Re Harrison's Trusts, 22 L. J. N.S. Ch. 69. And where an assignee in bankruptcy had resigned his office and gone abroad, and the creditors had accepted his resignation, the Court made a vesting order; Re Joyce's Estate, 2 L. R. Eq. 576; and in another case, where a trustee had gone abroad to reside permanently, the Court appointed a trustee in his place; Re Bignold's Settlement Trusts, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 223.]

[(i) Re Combs, 51 L. T. N.S. 45.]

If there be ground for removing a trustee for misconduct or other cause, the application to the Court should be by action, as it was not the intention of the Act to deprive retiring trustees of their right to have their accounts taken in the presence of their cestuis que trust, or of their lien upon the trust estate for any balance due to them (a).

[Re-appointment of trustees already appointed.]

8. Where trustees have been already appointed under a power, the Court has in some cases appointed them again for the purpose of making a vesting order (b), but in Re Vicat (c), a case in lunacy, L.JJ. Cotton and Lindley considered that it was not proper to reappoint trustees of the validity of whose appointment under the power there was no doubt, and declined to make such an order, and in the subsequent case in Chancery of Re Dewhirst's Trusts (d), the Court of Appeal followed Re Vicat, and held that the earlier authorities must be treated as overruled (e).

[Persons eligible to be appointed by the Court.]

9. The Court will not in general appoint persons trustees who are resident out of the jurisdiction (f); but has done so in several cases, where the special circumstances rendered that course advisable (g). It has been the general rule of the Court not to appoint one of the cestuis que trust a trustee, if it can be avoided (h), but

[(a) Re Blanchard, 7 Jur. N.S. 505. Even a solicitor, though an officer of the Court, was held not to be removable by petition against his will, on grounds of misconduct in his character, not of solicitor, but of trustee; Re Blanchard, 3 De G. F. & J. 131.]

[(b) Re Mundel's Trust, 2 L. T. N.S. 653; Re Pearson, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 982; Re Chell, 49 L. T. N.S. 196; Re Carson's Settlement Trusts, W. N. 1867, p. 32; Re Clay's Settlement, W. N. 1873, p. 129; Re Dalgleish's Settlement, 4 Ch. D. (C.A.) 143, reversing S. C. 1 Ch. D. 46; Re M'Carthy's Trusts, 1 L. R. Ir. 16.]

[(c) 33 Ch. D. 103.]

[(d) 33 Ch. D. 416; and see Re Gardiner's Trusts, 33 Ch. D. 590; Re Driver's Settlement, 19 L. R. Eq. 352; Re Kenny's Trusts, (1906) 1 I. R. 531.]

[(e) And see Re Cane's Trusts, (1895) 1 I. R. 172. In Re Stocken, W. N. (1893), p. 203, one of the newly appointed trustees retired, and a new trustee was appointed in his place, and the vesting order made consequential thereon.]

[(f) Re Guibert, 16 Jur. 852; Re Curtis's Trust, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 429.]

[(g) Re Liddiard, 14 Ch. D. 310; Re Austen's Settlement, 38 L. T. N.S. 601; Re Cunard's Trusts, 48 L. J. N.S. Ch. 192; 27 W. R. 52; Re Hill's Trusts, W. N. 1874, p. 228; Re Freeman's Settlement, 37 Ch. D. 148. In one order the Court inadvertently appointed an alien a trustee, and afterwards refused to substitute a natural born subject without the consent of the Crown, which was not given. The order was then reheard by the same judge pro formâ and discharged, and a natural born subject appointed in the place of the alien; Re Giraud, 32 Beav. 385. See now the Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 Vict. c. 14), s. 2. Where the cestuis que trust were living abroad, and English trustees could not be found, the Court appointed aliens; Re Hill's Trusts, W. N. 1874, p. 228. As to the appointment of persons resident out of the jurisdiction to be trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, see ante, p. 656. The Court can appoint new trustees where a trust is an office without any estate; Re Boyce, 4 De G. J. & Sm. 205; 10 Jur. N.S. 138; and see Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1247.]

[(h) Ex parte Clutton, 17 Jur. 988; Re Clissold's Settlement, 10 L. T. N.S.

the husband of a cestui que trust was appointed jointly with another, on the husband's undertaking that if he became sole trustee he would immediately take steps for the appointment of a co-trustee (a). It is apprehended that the Court, at all events in cases where the powers of the Settled Land Acts are likely to be exercised, would be unwilling to appoint the solicitor of the tenant for life (b).

[Number of trustees to be appointed.]

10. The Court, in appointing new trustees under this section, does not limit itself necessarily to the number named in the original instrument of trust. Thus it has appointed two instead of one (c), and has added two new trustees to the two original trustees (d); but it never appoints a single trustee where there were originally more trustees than one (e). The Court has appointed two trustees where there were originally three (f), and three where there were originally four (g), and, where there was a power of appointing new trustees, with a direction that the number might be augmented or reduced, and one of the three trustees wished to retire, but no new trustee could be found, the Court appointed the two continuing trustees to be the sole trustees (h). This practice of the Court was, however, arrested by the case of In re Colyer (i), in which

642; Ex parte Conybeare's Settlement, 1 W. R. 458; and see Re Giraud, 32 Beav. 385. As to the appointment of a near relative of a cestui que trust, see ante, p. 827, and as to the removal of these restrictions under the Rules of Court in reference to the appointment of judicial trustees, see ante, p. 700.]

[(a) Re Hattatt's Trusts, 21 L. T. N.S. 781; 18 W. R. 416; Re Burgess's Trusts, W. N. 1877, p. 87; Re Lightbody's Trusts, 52 L. T. N.S. 40; but this undertaking was not required in Re Jesson, (In Lunacy, 7th August, 1878, M.S.), where three new trustees were appointed, one of whom was the husband of the tenant for life.]

[(b) See Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288, 299; Re Spencer's Settled Estates, (1903) 1 Ch. 75. For a case in which one of the firm of solicitors who acted for the petitioners was appointed trustee, see Re Brentnall's Trusts, W. N. 1872, p. 77.]

[(c) Re Tunstall's Will, 4 De G. & Sm. 421.]

[(d) Re Baycott, 5 W. R. 15.]

[(e) Re Ellison's Trust, 2 Jur. N.S. 62; Re Porter's Trust, 2 Jur. N.S. 349; Re Tunstall, 15 Jur. 645; Re Dickinson's Trust, 1 Jur. N.S. 724. But where there was only one trustee originally and the trust was coming to an end, the Court appointed a single trustee; Re Reynault, 16 Jur. 233.]

[(f) Bulkeley v. Earl of Eglinton, 1 Jur. N.S. 994; Re Marriot's Settlement, 18 L. T. N.S. 749.]

[(g) Emmet v. Clarke, 7 Jur. N.S. 404; and where a fund was bequeathed to a single trustee upon trust for a person for life, with remainder to two others, and the remaindermen petitioned for the appointment of an additional trustee, the Court made the order, but threw the costs upon the remaindermen; Re Brackenbury's Trusts, 10 L. R. Eq. 45; Re Gregson's Trusts, 34 Ch. D. 209.]

[(h) Re Stokes' Trusts, 13 L. R. Eq. 333; and this decision was subsequently followed in Re Tatham's Trusts, W. N. 1877, p. 259; Re Harford's Trusts, 13 Ch. D. 135; Re Gibbin's Trusts, W. N. 1880, p. 99; Re Shipperdson's Trusts, 49 L. J. N.S. Ch. 619; Re Northorp, 29 W. R. 134; and see Re Mace's Trusts, W. N. 1887, p. 232; Re Fowler's Trusts, 55 L. T. N.S. 546.]

[(i) 50 L. J. N.S. Ch. 479. In Re Aston, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 217, the M.R.,

the L. J. Cotton, on a lunacy petition, declined to follow it, and required the whole number of trustees to be filled up. But recently, in view of the wide terms of the Trustee Act, 1893, and the Lunacy Act, 1890, orders have been made both in the Chancery Division and in Lunacy, vesting trust property in three continuing trustees, where four were originally appointed (a); and in two, where there were originally three (b). And certain statutory exceptions to the general practice of the Court have been introduced by the Public Trustee Act, 1906 (c).

Where the whole of the fund is immediately divisible, the Court has not been in the habit of requiring the number of trustees to be filled up by the appointment of a new trustee (d).

[Separate sets of trustees.]

11. Where there are two distinct trust estates under the same will, but only one set of trustees, the Court, with the consent of the representative of the surviving trustee, will appoint new trustees of one estate without dealing with the other estate (e); and generally the Court has assumed the like power of appointing separate trustees of separate shares (f).

[Exception as to appointment of executor or administrator.]

12. The concluding sub-sect. of sect. 25, providing that nothing contained in the section shall give power to appoint an executor or administrator, is a new enactment. It must be read in connection with the definition, and so read, the effect of it appears to be that the Court cannot appoint a trustee to perform duties with the concurrence of the other members of the Court, while adhering to his decision in Re Harford's Trusts, declined to follow it, on the ground of L. J. Cotton's objection, and to secure uniformity of practice in the Chancery Division and in Lunacy, and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ., concurred: and see Re Lamb's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 77; Re Gardiner's Trusts, 33 Ch. D. 590; Re Chetwynd's Settlement, (1902) 1 Ch. 692, where Farwell, J., said: "Either, therefore, from want of jurisdiction or from refusal to exercise it, the Court did not in fact discharge trustees under the Trustee Act, 1850, without appointing new trustees in their place; and the same practice must obtain under the Trustee Act, 1893."]

[(a) Re Leon, (1892) 1 Ch. 348, in lunacy; Re Lees, (1896) 2 Ch. 508, Chitty, J.; and see Dugmore v. Suffield, W. N. (1896) p. 50; Re Price, W. N. (1894) p. 169. Quære whether, having regard to the provisions of the Act, two continuing trustees are not in ordinary cases a sufficient number.]

[(b) Re Fitzherbert's Settlement Trusts, W. N. (1898) p. 58.]

[(c) See ante, Chap. XXIII. p. 701.]

[(d) See Re Martyn, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 745; Re Lambs' Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 77; and in one case where an action was pending to execute the trusts, the Court dispensed with a new trustee on the continuing trustees undertaking to bring the trust funds immediately into Court in the action; Davies v. Hodgson, 42 Ch. D. 225. In the case of a charity, the Court appointed ten new trustees and vested the estate in the whole body, and directed that when reduced to three the trustees should apply at Chambers for the appointment of new trustees; Re Bergholt, 2 Eq. Rep. 90.]

[(e) Re Dennis, 12 W. R. 575.]

[(f) Re Cotterill's Trusts, W. N. 1869, p. 183; Re Cunard's Trusts, 48 L. J. N.S. Ch. 192; 27 W. R. 52; Re Paine's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 725; Re Moss's Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 513.]

which belong not to the office of a trustee, but only to that of an executor, but that when the estate is cleared by payment of debts, and the executor assumes the character of trustee, a new trustee may, in a fit case, be appointed in his place (a).

[Vesting orders as to land.]

13. The general provisions of the Trustee Act, 1893 (b), in reference to vesting orders as to land (c), are contained in sect. 26 (d), which enacts that "In any of the following cases, namely:—

(i.) Where the High Court appoints or has appointed (e) a new trustee; and

(ii.) Where a trustee entitled to or possessed of any land (f), or entitled to a contingent right therein, either solely or jointly (g) with any other person—

(a) is an infant (h), or

(b) is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court (i), or

(c) cannot be found (j); and

[(a) See Eaton v. Daines, W. N. (1894) p. 32, and ante, p. 835. Under the former Acts it had been held by Kay, J., in Re Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778, that the Court had jurisdiction to appoint a trustee to perform executorial duties, but this decision was doubted by Cotton, L.J., in Re Willey, W. N. 1890, p. 1.]

[(b) 56 & 57 Vict c. 53.]

[(c) The late Vice-Chancellor Parker was not disposed to make a vesting order in cases where a conveyance could be had; Langhorn v. Langhorn, 21 L. J. N.S. Ch. 860. But it is clear that the Court has power to make, and according to the present practice, it frequently does make, vesting orders even where there is no incapacity in the person seised or possessed of the legal estate to convey to the new trustee; Re Manning's Trusts, Kay, App. xxviii.]

[(d) Replacing ss. 7-15 of the Act of 1850, and s. 2 of the Act of 1852.]

[(e) The new trustee may be appointed in a suit and an order made subsequently, see Re Hughes' Settlement, 2 H. & M. 695.]

[(f) By s. 50 the expression "land" includes manors and lordships, and reputed manors and lordships, and incorporeal as well as corporeal hereditaments, and any interest therein, and also an undivided share of land.]

[(g) The word "jointly" is not limited to a legal joint tenancy, but is used in a wide sense, and applies to the case of lands descending to the co-heiress and the surviving heir, or (if the case fall within s. 30 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881), the personal representative of a deceased co-heiress of the deceased trustee; Re Greenwood's Trusts, 27 Ch. D. 359; Re Templer's Trusts, 4 N.R. 494; but see M'Murray v. Spicer, 5 L. R. Eq. 527.]

[(h) As to an infant of unsound mind, see post, p. 846.]

[(i) A temporary absence, as where the captain of a merchantman was abroad on a voyage, is not within the Act; Hutchinson v. Stephens, 5 Sim. 499 (a case under the old Act, 11 G. 4. & 1 W. 4. c. 60). A trustee may be treated as out of the jurisdiction, although he appears by counsel; Stillwell v. Ashley, Set. on Judgt., 6th ed. p. 1247. The enactment applies, where the trustee out of the jurisdiction is of unsound mind; Re Gardner's Trusts, 10 Ch. D. 29.]

[(j) Where a company had become automatically dissolved before it had conveyed its property to a purchaser, the Court made an order vesting the property in him for all the estate of the company therein at the date of the dissolution: Re General Accident Assurance Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 147; and similar orders were made where, under similar circumstances, an assignment of leaseholds to purchasers had not been made; Re No. 12 Cable Road, Hoylake, Cheshire, (1904) W.N. 8; and where a transfer of

(iii.) Where it is uncertain who was the survivor of two or more trustees jointly entitled to or possessed of any land; and

(iv.) Where, as to the last trustee known to have been entitled to or possessed of any land, it is uncertain whether he is living or dead; and the High Court may make an order (in this Act called a vesting order) vesting the land in any such person in any such manner and for any such estate as the Court may direct, or releasing or disposing of the contingent right to such person as the Court may direct.

(v.) Where there is no heir or personal representative (a) to a trustee who was entitled to or possessed of land and has died intestate as to that land, or where it is uncertain who is the heir or personal representative or devisee of a trustee who was entitled to or possessed of land and is dead; and

(vi.) Where a trustee jointly or solely entitled to or possessed of any land, or entitled to a contingent right therein, has been required, by or on behalf of a person entitled to require a conveyance of the land or a release of the right, to convey the land or to release the right, and has wilfully refused (b) or neglected to convey the land or release the right for twenty-eight days after the date of the requirement;

mortgage had been overlooked; Re No. 9 Bomore Road, (1906) 1 Ch. 359. In Re Taylor's Agreement Trusts, (1904) 2 Ch. 737, Buckley, J., being of opinion that, as the Crown was trustee, sect. 35 did not apply, declined, in a similar case, to make the order, but in the result, the Board of Trade, on the suggestion of counsel to the Treasury, directed the Comptroller to register the purchaser as proprietor.]

[(a) It is apprehended that these words must be read as equivalent to "where there is no heir, or where there is no personal representative."]

[(b) A married woman is capable of refusing; Rowley v. Adams, 14 Beav. 130. A refusal is not wilful if the title of the person requiring the conveyance is disputed, and the trustee entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to it; Re Mills' Trusts, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 14, 19, where Cotton, L.J., observed that the corresponding enactment in s. 2 of the Act of 1852 was only intended to apply in clear cases, as, for instance, where a conveyance to a new trustee as to whose title there is no doubt, is asked for. Quære, whether the refusal must be by the person who is trustee at the date of the order; see Re Mills' Trusts, ubi sup. Where a mortgagor covenanted to surrender copyholds to the mortgagee, and refused to surrender for twenty-eight days, the Court made a vesting order, and service on the mortgagor, who could not be found, was dispensed with; Re Crowe's Mortgage, 13 L. R. Eq. 26; and see Re Mills' Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 312, at p. 316. As to the instrument to be tendered in the case of copyholds, see Rowley v. Adams, 14 Beav. 132; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1236, 1269, and as to the form of order in case of refusal to convey, see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1234, 1236, 1247.]

Provided that—

(a) Where the order is consequential on the appointment of a new trustee, the land shall be vested for such estate as the Court may direct in the persons who on the appointment are the trustees; and

(b) Where the order relates to a trustee entitled jointly with another person, and such trustee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found, the land or right shall be vested in such other person, either alone or with some other person."

[Jurisdiction of Court.]

14. Under the corresponding provisions of the former Acts it was held that the Court had jurisdiction to divest the whole estate from the continuing and incapacitated trustees, and to vest it in the new body of trustees, including the continuing trustees, as joint tenants (a), and if the lands were leaseholds for a term of years, to make a vesting order, without the concurrence of the landlord, unless there was a provision against assignment (b), and to vest the estate though it had escheated to the Crown, provided the Crown consented (c). But the Court did not assume jurisdiction to give directions as to the mode in which the trust should be executed by the trustees (d). It would seem that the High Court, when appointing a new trustee in place of a sole lunatic trustee, has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order (e).

[Infant trustee of unsound mind.]

15. By section 143 of the Lunacy Act, 1890 (f), it is expressly enacted that the provisions of that Act as to vesting orders shall not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court as to any lunatic trustee or mortgagee who is an infant, and it seems therefore, that where an infant trustee is of unsound mind, the case does not fall under the lunacy jurisdiction, but under that of the High Court (g.)

[Orders as to the contingent rights of unborn persons.]

16. By sect. 27 of the Trustee Act, 1893, "where any land is subject to a contingent right in an unborn person or class of unborn persons who, on coming into existence would, in respect thereof, become entitled to or possessed of the land on any trust,

[(a) Re Fisher's Will, 1 W. R. 505; Smith v. Smith, 3 Drew. 72, overruling Re Watt's Settlement, 9 Hare, 106, and Re Plyer's Trust, Ib. 220.]

[(b) Re Matthew's Settlement, 2 W. R. 85, &c.; Re Driver's Settlement, 19 L. R. Eq. 352; Re Dalgleish's Settlement, 4 Ch. D. (C.A.) 143, reversing S. C. 1 Ch. D. 46; Re Rathbone, 2 Ch. D. (C.A.) 483. But see Re Farrant's Trust, 20 L.J. Ch. 532.]

[(c) Re Martinez' Trust, W. N. 1870, p. 70; 22 L. T. N.S. 403.]

[(d) Re Tayler, 2 De G. F. & J. 125.]

[(e) Re M., (1899) 1 Ch. 79.]

[(f) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5.]

[(g) See Re Arrowsmith's Trusts, 4 Jur. N.S. 1123. In s. 2 of the Trustee Act, 1850, the definition of person of unsound mind expressly excluded an infant. But the expression "infant" primâ facie includes an infant who is of unsound mind, and the form of vesting order adopted by ss. 134-136 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, is not adapted to the case of an infant.]

the High Court may make an order releasing the land from the contingent right, or may make an order vesting in any person the estate to or of which the unborn person or class of unborn persons would, on coming into existence, be entitled or possessed in the land."

[Mortgagee sections.]

17. Sections 28 and 29 (a) of the Act contain provisions applicable to the case of mortgagees of land, and enabling the Court to make a vesting order in place of a conveyance by an infant mortgagee, or in place of a conveyance by the heir, devisee, or personal representative of a deceased mortgagee.

[Vesting order consequential on judgment for sale or mortgage of land.]

18. By sect. 30 (b) of the Trustee Act, 1893, as amended by sect. 1 of the Trustee Act, 1894 (c), it is provided that where any Court gives a judgment, or makes an order directing the sale or mortgage of any land, every person who is entitled to or possessed of the land, or entitled to a contingent right therein (d), and is a party to the action or proceeding in which the judgment or order is given or made (e), or is otherwise bound by the judgment or order (f), shall be deemed to be so entitled or possessed, as the case may be, as a trustee within the meaning of the Act of 1893 (g); and the High Court may, if it thinks expedient, make an order vesting the land or any part thereof, for such estate as the Court thinks fit, in the purchaser or mortgagee, or in any other person (h).

[Vesting order consequential on judgment for specific performance, &c.]

19. By sect. 31 (i) of the same Act, where a judgment is given

[(a) For these sections, see App. No. 1.]

[(b) Replacing s. 29 of the Act of 1850, and s. 1 of the Act of 1852.]

[(c) 57 Vict. c. 10.]

[(d) In the Act of 1893 the word "therein" was followed by the words "as heir or under the will of a deceased person for payment of whose debts the judgment was given or order made," but by the Act of 1894 these words are repealed.]

[(e) In an administration suit, if the legal estate has descended to the heir of the testator who is not a party, the Court has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order; Gunson v. Simpson, 5 L. R. Eq. 332; and see Gough v. Bage, W. N. 1871, p. 327; 25 L. T. N.S. 738.]

[(f) The section applies to the case where the person to convey is not under disability; Re Lee; Kenyon v. Lee, Set. on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1272; Beckett v. Sutton, 19 Ch. D. 646.]

[(g) A devisee of real estate charged with debts who had become a lunatic, and had subsequently by his committee, with the sanction of the Master in Lunacy, commenced an action for the administration of his testator's estate, was held to be bound by an order for sale of the real estate made in the action, and to be a trustee within the Act; Re Stamper, 46 L. T. N.S. 372.]

[(h) Where copyholds, devised to an infant for life with remainder to his first son in tail, were decreed to be sold for payment of debts, and the infant's guardian had been ordered to surrender to the purchaser in the place of the infant, the purchaser was entitled to an order releasing the contingent rights of the infant's unborn issue: Wood v. Beetlestone, 1 K. & J. 213.]

[(i) Replacing s. 30 of the Trustee Act, 1850, and s. 7 of the Partition Act, 1868.]

for the specific performance of a contract concerning any land (a), or for the partition, or sale in lieu of partition, or exchange, of any land, or generally where any judgment is given for the conveyance of any land either in cases arising out of the doctrine of election or otherwise, the High Court may declare that any of the parties to the action are trustees of the land or any part thereof within the meaning of the Act, or may declare that the interests of unborn persons (b) who might claim under any party to the action, or under the will or voluntary settlement of any person deceased who was during his lifetime a party to the contract or transactions concerning which the judgment is given, are the interests of persons who, on coming into existence, would be trustees within the meaning of the Act, and thereupon the High Court may make a vesting order relating to the rights of those persons, born and unborn, as if they had been trustees (c).

Under the powers conferred by the enactments for which this section has been substituted it was held in a partition suit that instead of giving an infant entitled to a share a day to show cause, the Court might declare him to be a trustee of such parts of the property as were allotted to other parties (d), and in a foreclosure suit by an equitable mortgagee, that the Court, in making an absolute decree for foreclosure and directing a conveyance, could

[(a) For order declaring donee of a power of jointuring a trustee for plaintiff and appointing a person to execute a jointure deed, see Ex parte Mornington, 4 De G. M. & G. 537; Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1265. In suits for the specific performance of a contract for a lease, the Court has on several occasions made orders under the former Acts appointing a person to convey, or vesting the interests of unborn persons; see Hodgson v. Bower, Howell v. Palmer, Set. on Judgments, 6th ed. pp. 1264, 2275, 2288; Hall v. Hale, 51 L. T. N.S. 226; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1264; but in Grace v. Baynton, 25 W. R. 506, Sir G. Jessel, M. R., held that the Court had no power under those Acts to appoint a person to convey in the place of a party refusing to execute the lease; but see now sect. 14 of the Judicature Act, 1884, post, note (c).]

[(b) The expression "unborn persons" has been construed liberally, and held to include the "heirs of a living person"; Basnett v. Moxon, 20 L. R. Eq. 182.]

[(c) By the Judicature Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 61), s. 14, "Where any person neglects or refuses to comply with a judgment or order directing him to execute any conveyance, contract, or other document, or to indorse any negotiable instrument, the Court may, on such terms and conditions (if any) as may be just, order that such conveyance, contract, or other document shall be executed, or that such negotiable instrument shall be indorsed by such person as the Court may nominate for that purpose; and in such case the conveyance, contract, document, or instrument so executed or indorsed shall operate and be for all purposes available as if it had been executed or indorsed by the person originally directed to execute or indorse it." And see sect. 33 of the Trustee Act, 1893, post, p. 850.]

[(d) Bowra v. Wright, 4 De G. & Sm. 265; Brooke v. Brown, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1266.]

add a declaration that the mortgagor was a trustee for the mortgagee, and make a vesting order (a).

[Effect of vesting order.]

20. As regards the effect of a vesting order as to land, several separate provisions contained in the Acts of 1850 and 1852 (b) are now comprised in section 32 of the Act of 1893, which provides that a vesting order under any of the foregoing provisions shall, in the case of a vesting order consequential on the appointment of a new trustee, have the same effect as if the persons who before the appointment were the trustees (if any) had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate as the High Court directs, or if there is no such person, or no such person of full capacity, then as if such person had existed and been of full capacity, and had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate as the Court directs, and shall in every other case have the same effect as if the trustee or other person or description or class of persons to whose rights or supposed rights the said provisions respectively relate had been an ascertained and existing person of full capacity, and had executed a conveyance (c) or release to the effect intended by the order.

[(a) Lechmere v. Clamp, (No. 2), 30 Beav. 218; S. C. (No. 3), 31 Beav. 578; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1271, 1272. In the case of an equitable mortgage where the mortgagor had died having devised his estate to trustees upon trust for sale, and, the trustees having disclaimed, the legal estate descended to the heir of the mortgagor, who was an infant and was made a defendant to a foreclosure action, the Court, in making the usual foreclosure decree, inserted a declaration that in case the plaintiffs were not redeemed, the infant would be a trustee for them within the Act, and that his mother, who was executrix of the mortgagor, should convey on his behalf; Foster v. Parker, 8 Ch. D. 147; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1269, 1270, 1272. In such a case the mother would now take the fee under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), see ante, p. 248. Where the mortgagor who had created an equitable mortgage by deposit died intestate, and the estate descended to the infant heir subject to the mortgage, the judgment directed the infant to convey when he attained twenty-one, and gave him a day to show cause; Mellor v. Porter, 25 Ch. D. 158; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 980, 981, 983, 1273, where Kay, J., said that the enactment "applies to all cases where there is a judgment against an infant for an immediate conveyance, but this is not the form of a judgment for foreclosure in the case of an equitable mortgagee."]

[(b) Sects. 8-15 and 19 of the Trustee Act, 1850, and s. 1 of the Trustee Act, 1852.]

[(c) By s. 50, the expressions "convey" and "conveyance" applied to any person include the execution by that person of every necessary or suitable assurance for conveying, assigning, appointing, surrendering, or otherwise transferring or disposing of land whereof he is seised or possessed, or wherein he is entitled to a contingent right, either for his whole estate or for any less estate, together with the performance of all formalities required by law to the validity of the conveyance, including the acts to be performed by married women and tenants in tail in accordance with the provisions of the Acts for abolition of fines and recoveries in England and Ireland respectively, and also including surrenders and other acts which a tenant of customary or copyhold lands can himself perform preparatory to or in aid of a complete assurance of the customary or copyhold land.]

Where there is an adult tenant for life, with remainder to an infant tenant in tail, with remainders over, a vesting order of the infant's estate, with the consent of the tenant for life as protector, will bar the entail, and all remainders over (a).

The vesting order being a conveyance, should be so worded as to make it clear by the description what property passes (b). The estate vests from the date of the order (c). Vesting orders forming links in title ought to be framed with scrupulous care (d).

Where circumstances require a severance of the property, the Court will, if necessary, make separate vesting orders instead of one general order (e); but in general, in cases of severance, the convenient course is to appoint a person to convey under sect. 33 (f).

In settling the form of order, the Court has had regard to its effect prospectively. Thus where the executor and executrix (a married woman) of a mortgagee applied for a vesting order, the Court, instead of vesting the property in the executor and executrix, when the feme covert in order to part with it would have to acknowledge the deed (g), vested it in such person or persons as the executor and executrix should appoint, and in default thereof, in the executor and executrix (h).

[Power to appoint person to convey.]

21. Sect. 33 (i) of the Trustee Act, 1893, provides that "in all cases where a vesting order can be made under any of the foregoing provisions, the High Court may, if it is more convenient, appoint a person to convey the land or release the contingent right, and a conveyance or release by that person in conformity

[(a) Powell v. Matthews, 1 Jur. N.S. 973; Re Montagu, (1896) 1 Ch. 549; see Seton, 6th ed. p. 1249, and see form of order, Ib. p. 1270. The reference to the mode of conveyance under the Fines and Recoveries Act is unnecessary, and the order should simply vest the land for such estate as the infant could, if of full age, convey; see Re Montagu, sup., and form of order in that case.]

[(b) Re Ord's Trust, 3 W. R. 386; see Seton, 6th ed. p. 1248.]

[(c) Woodfall v. Arbuthnot, 3 L. R. P. & D. 108.]

[(d) An order has been made to vest the legal estate in the devisees of a mortgagor, subject to a charge created by his will; Re Ellerthorpe, 18 Jur. 669. Under the former Acts, and s. 45 of the Copyhold Act, 1887, an order was made vesting in the executors of a deceased mortgagee the legal estate in copyholds outstanding in his infant heir; Re Franklyn's Mortgages, W. N. 1888, p. 217; and an order vesting the property in a person absolutely entitled has been made; Re Godfrey's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 205.]

[(e) Brader v. Kerby, W. N. 1872, p. 174.]

[(f) See Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1249, 1254.]

[(g) See Re Harkness, (1896) 2 Ch. 358; but see now the Married Women's Property Act, 1907, sect. 1, ante, p. 37.]

[(h) Re Powell, 4 K. & J. 338.]

[(i) Reproducing s. 20 of the Trustee Act, 1850; and see section 14 of the Judicature Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict, c. 61), ante, p. 848, note (c).]

with the order shall have the same effect as an order under the appropriate provision."

The question whether a vesting order should be made, or a person appointed to convey, must be determined by considerations of expense and convenience. On a sale in lots where the parties under disability are numerous, the Court will appoint a person to convey (a).

[Effect of vesting order as to copy holds.]

22. By sect. 34 (b) of the Trustee Act, 1893, it is provided that where an order vesting copyhold land in any person, is made under the Act with the consent of the lord or lady of the manor, the land shall vest accordingly (c) without surrender or admittance; and that where an order is made under the Act appointing any person to convey any copyhold land, that person shall execute and do all assurances and things for completing the assurance of the land, and the lord and lady of the manor, and every other person, shall, subject to the customs of the manor and the usual payments, be bound to make admittance to the land, and to do all other acts for completing the assurance thereof, as if the person in whose place an appointment is made were free from disability, and had executed and done those assurances and things (d).

The Court has power without the consent of the lord to vest in the person nominated by the Court all such estate as was vested in the person in respect of whom the inconvenience to be remedied arises. Such an order does not affect the interests

[(a) See Hancox v. Spittle, 3 Sm. & G. 478; but in Shepherd v. Churchill, 25 Beav. 21, a vesting order was made, as being less expensive. For forms of order see Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. pp. 1236, 1261, 1263, 1264, 1266, 1268, 1269, 1270. The conveyance should contain a recital showing that it is made in obedience to the order of the Court, and should be executed by the person appointed to convey in his own name; though the late Vice-Chancellor of England, in a case arising upon the 1 W. 4. c. 60, seems to have considered that the execution by the person appointed to convey, of a deed purporting to be the conveyance of the trustee who refused, would, with a mere reference in the attestation clause to the order appointing the person to convey, be sufficient; Ex Parte Foley, 8 Sim. 395. For form of order appointing a person to convey where the Court orders a sale of land, and a party to the proceedings refuses to execute the conveyance, see Beale v. Bragg, (1902) 1 I. R. 99. As to whether a person appointed to convey for a tenant for life can pass an estate in remainder, see Wood v. Beetlestone, 1 K. & J. 213; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1254.]

[(b) Replacing s. 28 of the Trustee Act, 1850.]

[(c) Where a bare trustee of copyholds had died intestate and without an heir, the Court made an order vesting the copyholds in the beneficial owner; Re Godfrey's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 205.]

[(d) For form of order appointing a person to do all necessary acts to vest copyholds in a new trustee, see Re Hey's Will, 9 Hare, 221. As to the application of the section to the public trustee, under the Public Trustee Act, 1906, see ante, Chap. XXIII. p. 704.]

of the lord, and therefore the petition need not be served upon him. On the order being made, the person in whom the property is vested applies for admission as an ordinary surrenderee would have done. In lieu of making a vesting order, the Court, without the consent of the lord, may appoint a person to convey the copyholds, and then the person so appointed must surrender, and the surrenderee must be admitted. But to prevent circuity, this section allows the lord to consent to a vesting order, and then the estate will vest without the necessity of any surrender or admission (a).

[Vesting orders as to stock and choses in action.]

23. As regards stock and choses in action, the power to make vesting orders is contained in sect. 35 of the Trustee Act, 1893, which comprises provisions contained in several sections of the earlier Acts. Sub-sect. 1 of sect. 35 (b) provides as follows:—

"In any of the following cases, namely:—

(i.) Where the High Court appoints or has appointed a new trustee; and

(ii.) Where a trustee entitled alone or jointly with another person to stock or to a chose in action—

(a) is an infant, or

(b) is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, or

(c) cannot be found (c), or

(d) neglects or refuses to transfer stock (d) or receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action, according to the direction of the person absolutely entitled thereto, for twenty-eight days next after a request in writing has been made to him by the person so entitled, or

[(a) Paterson v. Paterson, 2 L. R. Eq. 31; S. C. 35 Beav. 506; Re Flitcroft, 1 Jur. N.S. 418; Re Hurst, Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1236, 1251; Re Hey's Will, 9 Hare, 221, overruling Cooper v. Jones, 2 Jur. N.S. 59; Re Howard, 3 W. R. 605. Where the lord consents, it may be by act in pais, without appearance in Court; Ayles v. Cox, 17 Beav. 585. Where on the death of a trustee the customary heir was out of the jurisdiction, and the Court appointed a new trustee, the lord claimed two fines, one for the admission of the customary heir and another for the admission of the new trustee, but it was ruled that he could claim one fine only, viz., on the admission of the new trustee; Bristow v. Booth, 5 L. R. C. P. 80; and as to fines payable, see Reg. v. Garland, 5 L. R. Q. B. 269; Garland v. Mead, 6 L. R. Q. B. 441; Hall v. Bromley, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 642. As to admission subsequently on the vesting order, see Scriven on Copyholds, 7th ed. p. 143.]

[(b) Replacing ss. 22-25 and 35 of the Act of 1850, and ss. 3-5 of the Act of 1852.]

[(c) See Re General Accident Assurance Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 147; ante, p. 844, note (j).]

[(d) See also s. 14 of the Judicature Act, 1884, ante, p. 848, note (c), and Re Cathcart, 41 W. R. 277.]

(e) neglects or refuses to transfer stock or receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action for twenty-eight days next after an order of the High Court for that purpose has been served on him; or

(iii.) Where it is uncertain whether a trustee entitled alone or jointly with another person to stock or to a chose in action is alive or dead:

the High Court may make an order vesting the right to transfer or call for a transfer of stock, or to receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action, in any such person as the Court may appoint:

Provided that—

(a) Where the order is consequential on the appointment by the Court of a new trustee, the right shall be vested in the persons who, on the appointment, are the trustees; and

(b) Where the person whose right is dealt with by the order was entitled jointly with another person, the right shall be vested in that last-mentioned person either alone or jointly with any other person whom the Court may appoint" (a).

[Definitions of "stock" and "transfer."]

By sect. 50 of the same Act, the expression "stock" includes fully paid up shares, and, so far as relates to vesting orders made by the Court under the Act, includes any fund, annuity, or security transferable in books kept by any company or society, or by instruments of transfer either alone or accompanied by other formalities, and any share or interest therein. The expression "transfer," in relation to stock, includes the performance and execution of every deed, power of attorney, act, and thing on the part of the transferor to effect and complete the title in the transferee.

The first sentence of the above definition of "stock" is taken from the Trust Investment Act, 1889, and the rest of the clause, as to vesting orders, from the Trustee Act, 1850. Under that Act it was held that "stock" included shares in joint stock companies (b), and also in accordance with the previously

[(a) Where a new trustee had been appointed by deed in the place of a trustee out of the jurisdiction, the Court vested the right to transfer the stock in the continuing trustee and the new trustee; Re Blaine's Trusts, W. N. 1886, p. 203.]

[(b) Re Angelo, 5 De G. & Sm. 278.]

well-established practice, shares not fully paid up (a), and it is apprehended that this holds good under the Act of 1893, so far as vesting orders are concerned.

[Infant trustee.] 24. The powers of sect. 35, sub-sect. 1, are applicable to the case of stock to which an infant is beneficially entitled, standing in the name of the infant and another (b); and where executors have by inadvertence invested money in stock in the name of an infant, the Court has treated the infant as a trustee of the stock, and made a vesting order accordingly (c).

[Lunatic trustee.] 25. It would seem that the High Court, when appointing a new trustee of stock in the place of a sole lunatic trustee, has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order (d).

[Neglect or refusal to transfer.] 26. A tenant for life is not a person "absolutely entitled," competent to give a direction under clause (d) of section 35, except for the purpose of an application limited to the income, nor is one of two trustees (e), but persons who have been duly appointed new trustees are absolutely entitled (f).

The corresponding provisions in the former Acts were held to be applicable where the executor of a surviving trustee had not proved, and declined to say whether he intended doing so, and declined to transfer (g).

Until the expiration of the period of twenty-eight days the jurisdiction of the Court does not arise, and a petition presented

[(a) Re New Zealand Trust and Loan Company, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 403.]

[(b) Re Harwood, 20 Ch. D. 536; Re Barnett, 61 L. T. N.S. 676; Re Dehaynin, (1910) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 223.]

[(c) Rives v. Rives, 14 L. T. N.S. 351; W. N. 1866, p. 144; Gardner v. Cowles, 3 Ch. D. 304; and see form of order, Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1244; and see Sanders v. Homer, 25 Beav. 467; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1243. Where stock was standing in the names of three trustees and an infant, and two of the trustees were dead and the third was out of the jurisdiction, the Court appointed a guardian, and allowed maintenance, and vested the right to receive the dividends in the guardian during the infant's minority; Re Morgan, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1219.]

[(d) Re M., (1899) 1 Ch. 79.]

[(e) Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, 5 De G. & Sm. 338; more fully reported 16 Jur. 723; and see form of order, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1245.]

[(f) Ex parte Russell, 1 Sim. N.S. 404; Re Baxter's Will, 2 Sm. & G. App. v.; Re Ellis's Settlement, 24 Beav. 426.]

[(g) Re Ellis's Settlement, 24 Beav. 426; and see Re Price's Settlement, W.N. 1883, p. 202; Re Trubee, (1892) 3 Ch. 55, where executors duly constituted in Scotland declined to prove the will in England; and see form of order, Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1240; and Re Crum Ewing's Trusts, 29 L. R. Ir. 449; and see, under 1 W. 4. c. 60, Cockell v. Pugh, 6 Beav. 293; Re Lunn's Charity, 15 Sim. 464. And the Court seems to have made a similar order where the next of kin who was entitled to take out administration had refused to make the transfer; Re Stroud's Trusts, W. N. 1874, p. 180. See, however, Re Cane's Trusts, (1895) 1 I. R. 172, intimating that, even if an executor who had not proved and refused to prove could be said to be a trustee within the Act of 1850, he could not be held to be a trustee within the enactment of 1893.]

and served previously is premature (a). Where the refusal to transfer is wholly unjustifiable the recusant trustee may be ordered to pay costs (b).

[Where stock in sole name of deceased trustee.]

27. It will be observed that the Act contains no express provision (such as was contained in sect. 25 of the Act of 1850) for the making of a vesting order as to stock standing in the sole name of a deceased trustee; but in such a case the personal representative is a trustee within the Act (c).

[Where there is no representative of deceased trustee.]

28. Nor under this section is any special provision made, as is done in the case of land by sect. 26, clause v. (d), for the case where there is no personal representative of a sole or last surviving trustee, and in such a case it would seem that the Court has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order (e) otherwise than consequentially on an appointment of new trustees, and that the proper course, therefore, is to apply to the Court for such an appointment and a vesting order (f).

[Appointment of person to transfer stock.]

29. By sub-sect. 2 of sect. 35, "in all cases where a vesting order can be made under this section, the Court may, if it is more convenient, appoint some proper person to make or join in making the transfer" (g).

[Form and effect of vesting order as to stock or chose in action.]

30. The remaining sub-sections of sect. 35 (h) relate mainly to the form and effect of the vesting order, and are as follows:—

"(3) The person in whom the right to transfer or call for the transfer of any stock is vested by an order of the Court under this Act, may transfer the stock to himself or any other person, according to the order, and the Banks of England and Ireland and all other companies shall obey every order under this section according to its tenor.

"(4) After notice in writing of an order under this section it shall not be lawful for the Bank of England or of Ireland or any

[(a) Re Knox's Trusts, (1895) 1 Ch. 538, per Kekewich, J.]

[(b) S. C. (1895) 1 Ch. 538; (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 483.]

[(c) See Re Ellis's Settlement, 24 Beav. 426; and for form of order see Re Bradshaw, Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1217.]

[(d) See ante, pp. 845, et seq.]

[(e) See Re Cane's Trusts, (1895) 1 I. R. 172.]

[(f) Re Herbert's Will, 8 W. R. 272; Re Crowe's Trusts, 14 Ch. D. 304, 610.]

[(g) Replacing s. 20 of the Trustee Act, 1850. By reference to proviso (b), see ante, p. 853, it will be seen that the Court under this provision can only direct a person to transfer in the place of the person creating the difficulty, and therefore where the stock was standing in the names of two persons, one of whom was out of the jurisdiction, it was necessary to order the person within the jurisdiction to join in the transfer; Wade v. Hopkinson; Hodgson v. Hodgson, Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. p. 1254.]

[(h) Replacing s. 26 of the Trustee Act, 1850, s. 6 of the Trustee Act, 1852, s. 31 of the Trustee Act, 1850, and s. 10 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 91).]

other company to transfer any stock to which the order relates, or to pay any dividends thereon except in accordance with the order.

"(5) The High Court may make declarations and give directions concerning the manner in which the right to any stock or chose in action vested under the provisions of this Act is to be exercised.

"(6) The provisions of this Act as to vesting orders shall apply to shares in ships registered under the Acts relating to merchant shipping as if they were stock."

As respects all government stocks, and, in general, all stocks and shares which are fully paid up, the proper form of order is that the right to call for a transfer of, and to transfer the stock or shares, and to receive the dividends thereon, should vest in the new trustees and that they should transfer the stock or shares into their own names (a). This form, which meets the book-keeping requirements of the Bank of England, will not be departed from except in special cases, but the Court has power to adopt another form, and an order vesting the right to call for a transfer and to transfer to "any purchaser or purchasers" has been made under peculiar circumstances (b).

The Bank of England, it seems, objects to an order authorising an unlimited severance of the dividends from the capital, and where one of four trustees was out of the jurisdiction, and an order had been made vesting the right to receive the dividends in the three trustees, on the objection of the Bank the order was limited to the dividends to accrue during the lives of the three trustees (c); and where a person of unsound mind was entitled to a sum of stock as trustee, and also entitled to another sum of the same stock beneficially, as the Bank would not apportion the past dividend between the trust estate and the beneficial estate, the Court, in appointing new trustees, vested the right to receive the whole dividend in the new trustees, upon their undertaking that they would invest in the name of the old trustee so much as belonged to him beneficially (a).

[(a) Re Gregson, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 233; Re Joliffe, W. N. (1893) p. 84; Re Price, W. N. (1894) p. 169; Re Glanville's Trusts, W. N. 1877, p. 248; 1878, p. 21. See form, Set. on Judgt., 6th ed. p. 1253.]

[(b) See Re New Zealand Trust and Loan Co., (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 403, where there was a liability on the shares for unpaid calls; and Re Peacock, 14 Ch. D. 212; 50 L. J. Ch. 280 (q.v. for form of order), where part of the trust funds had been invested in unauthorised securities, and it was desired to sell them and reinvest, and the order contained an undertaking by the trustees to hold the proceeds on the trusts of the settlement. The objection to such a form of order is that it imposes on the Bank or Company the necessity of making an investigation into extraneous facts, ex. gr. the identity of the purchaser or purchasers.]

[(c) Re Peyton's Settlement, 2 De G. & J. 290; 25 Beav. 317; and see Re Hartnall, 5 De G. & S. 111.]

[National Debt Stockholders Relief Act, 1892.]

31. By the National Debt Stockholders Relief Act, 1892 (b), where by virtue of any provision in an Act of Parliament, the right to stock for the time being transferable in the books of the Bank of England (c) is vested in any person, he shall by virtue of the same provision be deemed to be entitled to make a valid transfer of the stock, and to receive and give a valid receipt for any accrued or accruing dividends on the stock; and where by virtue of any such provision the right to transfer stock is vested in any person, he shall by virtue of the same provision be deemed to be entitled to receive, and give a valid receipt for any accrued or accruing dividends on the stock.

It is also provided (d), that in the following cases, namely—(a) Where an infant is the sole survivor in an account; and (b), where an infant holds stock jointly with a person under legal disability; and (c), where stock has by mistake been brought in or transferred into the sole name of an infant, the Bank may, at the request in writing of the parent, guardian, or next friend of the infant, receive the dividends and apply them to the purchase of like stock, and the stock so purchased shall be added to the original investment (e).

[Persons entitled to apply for orders.]

32. Sect. 36 (f) of the Act of 1893 is as follows:—

"(1) An order under this Act for the appointment of a new trustee or concerning any land, stock, or chose in action subject to a trust, may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the land, stock, or chose in action, whether under disability or not, or on the application of any person duly appointed trustee thereof.

"(2) An order under this Act concerning any land, stock, or chose in action subject to a mortgage may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the equity of redemption, whether under disability or not, or of any person interested in the money secured by the mortgage."

In sales by the Court the purchaser, as beneficially interested in the property sold (g), or the plaintiffs in the suit, as beneficially

[(a) Re Stewart, 2 De G. F. & J. 1; see Hodges v. Wheeler, Set. on Judgt. 6th ed. p. 1254.]

[(b) 55 & 56 Vict. c. 39, s. 4.]

[(c) See sect. 8.]

[(d) Sect. 3.]

[(e) In the case of Re Alice Kemp, W. N. 1888, p. 138; 59 L. T. N.S. 209; 36 W. R. 729, the Bank refused to act on an order directing the accumulation of dividends of consols standing in the sole name of an infant.]

[(f) Reproducing s. 37 of the Trustee Act, 1850.]

[(g) Ayles v. Cox, 17 Beav. 584; Rowley v. Adams, 14 Beav. 130.]

interested in the proceeds, are respectively entitled to apply to the Court (a); and of course the purchaser or several purchasers and the plaintiffs can join in making the application (b).

A person contingently entitled to a beneficial interest is within the meaning of the Act (c), but not so the committee of a lunatic cestui que trust (d).

The fact that a cestui que trust is entitled to apply under the Act for an appointment of new trustees does not preclude him from instituting a suit for the same purpose (e), but the Court may hold him answerable for any additional costs occasioned by his taking that course (f).

[Powers of new trustee appointed by Court.]

33. Sect. 37 (g) of the Trustee Act, 1893, provides that "every trustee appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction shall, as well before as after the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, have the same powers authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust."

[Power to charge costs on trust estate.]

34. By sect. 38, "the High Court may order the costs and expenses of and incident to any application for an order appointing a new trustee, or for a vesting order, or of and incident to any such order, or any conveyance or transfer in pursuance thereof, to be paid or raised out of the land or personal estate in respect whereof the same is made, or out of the income thereof, or to be borne and paid in such manner and by such persons as to the Court may seem just."

In general the costs of applications for the appointment of new trustees, being for the benefit of the whole estate, come out of the corpus of the trust fund (h). Where new trustees of two funds were appointed upon the same petition, the costs were borne by

[(a) Re Wragg, 1 De G. J. & S. 356.]

[(b) Rowley v. Adams, 14 Beav. 130, 135; as to the mode of application, see Rules of Court in App. No. 2.]

[(c) Re Sheppard's Trusts, 4 De G. F. & J. 423; and, semble, so is a new trustee duly appointed; Ex parte Russell, 1 Sim. N.S. 404.]

[(d) Re Bourke, 2 De G. J. &. S. 426, where the petition was directed to be amended by making the lunatic a co-petitioner.]

[(e) Legg v. Mackrell, 1 Giff. 165; 4 L. T. N.S. 568.]

[(f) Thomas v. Walker, 18 Beav. 521. Upon an originating summons for administration and the appointment of new trustees, all persons interested being parties, the Court, in the exercise of its general jurisdiction, made an appointment; Re Allen, 56 L. J. Ch. 779; 56 L. T. N.S. 611, and see post, Appendix No. 2.]

[(g) Replacing s. 33 of the Trustee Act, 1850, and s. 33 of the Conveyancing and law of Property Act, 1881. The former section provided that the new trustee should have the same rights and powers as he "would have had if appointed by decree in a suit duly instituted."] the two funds rateably according to their respective values (a); and where a petition was presented for vesting the legal estate of lots sold by the Court in the purchasers, it was held that the petition might properly be presented by the purchasers, and that the costs of the purchaser of each lot were payable out of the purchase-money of such lot (b).

[(h) Re Fellows's Settlement, 2 Jur. N.S. 62; Re Fulham, 15 Jur. 69; Ex parte Davies, 16 Jur. 882; Re Parby, 29 L. T. N.S. 72; Carter v. Sebright, 26 Beav. 374.]

On appointing new trustees of real estate, the Court has directed the amount of the costs to be raised by mortgage (c).

[Trustees of charities.]

35. Section 39 (d) provides that the powers conferred by the Act as to vesting orders may be exercised for vesting any land, stock, or chose in action in any trustee of a charity or society over which the High Court would have jurisdiction upon action duly instituted, whether the appointment of the trustee was made by instrument under a power, or by the High Court under its general or statutory jurisdiction (e).

[Orders made upon certain allegations to be conclusive evidence.]

36. By sect. 40 (f), "where a vesting order is made as to any land under this Act or under the Lunacy Act, 1890, or under any Act relating to lunacy in Ireland, founded on an allegation of the personal incapacity of a trustee or mortgagee, or on an allegation that a trustee or the heir or personal representative or devisee of a mortgagee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found, or that it is uncertain which of several trustees or which of several devisees of a mortgagee was the survivor, or whether the last trustee or the heir or personal representative or last surviving devisee of a mortgagee is living or dead, or on an allegation that any trustee or mortgagee has died intestate without an heir, or has died and it is not known who is his heir or personal representative or devisee, the fact that the order has been so made shall be conclusive evidence of the matter so alleged in any Court upon any question as to the validity of the order; but this section shall not prevent the High Court from directing a

[(a) Re Grant's Trusts, 2 J. & H. 764.]

[(b) Ayles v. Cox, 17 Beav. 584.]

[(c) Re Crabtree, V. C. Wood, 11 Jan. 1866, Set. on Judgt., 5th ed. p. 1076; and see Ex parte Davies, 16 Jur. 882, where the Court, though after some hesitation, declared that certain costs incurred under the Act should, with interest at 4 per cent., form a charge on the inheritance.]

[(d) Replacing s. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1850.]

[(e) See orders under the former Act, Re Norton Folgate, Re Basingstoke School, Seton on Judgments, 6th ed. pp. 1303, 1304. Under 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 28, where the value of the property exceeds 30*l.* per annum, any person authorised by the Charity Commissioners under s. 17 may apply to the judge at chambers for any order which may be made by such a judge, notwithstanding any lunacy; Re Davenport's Charity, 4 De G. M. & G. 839. By order LV., rule 13, applications under this enactment are to be by summons.]

[(f) Replacing s. 44 of the Trustee Act, 1850, and s. 140 of the Lunacy Act, 1890.]

reconveyance or the payment of costs occasioned by any such order if improperly obtained."

[Application of vesting order to land out of England.]

37. By sect. 41 (a), the powers of the High Court in England to make vesting orders under the Act are extended to all land and personal estate in His Majesty's dominions, except Scotland. The High Court in England may therefore make a vesting order as to lands or personal estate in Ireland (b).

[Ireland.]

By sect. 2 of the Trustee Act, 1894 (c), the powers conferred by this section on the High Court in England are conferred also on the High Court in Ireland.

Secondly. Where the jurisdiction is exercised in lunacy.

[Jurisdiction in lunacy.]

1. By sect. 116 (d) of the Lunacy Act, 1890 (e), the powers of that Act relating to management and administration extend not only to lunatics so found by inquisition and to every person lawfully detained as a lunatic (f), but also to "every person not so detained and not found a lunatic by inquisition, with regard to whom it is proved, to the satisfaction of the judge in lunacy, that such person is, through mental infirmity arising from disease or age, incapable of managing his affairs" (g). Where, therefore, any such person, not being an infant (h), or resident out of the jurisdiction (i), is a trustee, the jurisdiction of the Court in

[(a) Replacing s. 54 of the Trustee Act, 1850.]

[(b) Re Hewitt's Estate, 6 W. R. 537; Re Taitt's Trusts, W. N. 1870, p. 257; Re Lamotte, 4 Ch. D. (C.A.) 325: Re Hodgson, 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 888; Re Steele, W. N. 1885, p. 218; 53 L. T. N.S. 716. So as to lands in Canada, Re Schofield, 24 L. T. 322; Re Groom, 11 L. T. N.S. 336; and notwithstanding that the title arises under a will which has not been proved in this country; Re Best's Settlement, (unreported, C.A., overruling Kay, J., 1888). As the Lunacy Act, 1890, (53 Vict. c. 5) does not extend to Ireland (see s. 2), the judge in lunacy cannot, by force of that Act, make a vesting order as to property in Ireland, where such property is vested in an English lunatic; but the judges of the Court of Appeal, who have jurisdiction in lunacy, being also additional judges of the Chancery Division for the purposes of applications connected with lunacy (see post, p. 861), can under the two jurisdictions appoint new trustees and make a vesting order; Re Lamotte, ubi sup.; Re Hodgson, ubi sup.; Re Bowyer Smyth, 55 L. T. N.S. 37.]

[(c) 57 Vict. c. 10.]

[(d) See App. No. 3, where the sections of the Lunacy Acts, 1890 and 1891, relating to trustees will be found in extenso.]

[(e) 53 Vict. c. 5.]

[(f) The expression "lawfully detained as a lunatic," means "lawfully detained" under the provisions of the Acts of Parliament of this country, as ex. gr., under the Idiots Act, 1886 (49 & 50 Vict. c. 25): Re Whalley, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 565, explaining and distinguishing Re Watkins, (1896) 2 Ch. 336.]

[(g) The corresponding definition in the Trustee Act, 1850, only extended to infirmity of mind and not of body; Re Barber, 39 Ch. D. 187; and see Re Martin, 34 Ch. D. 618; overruling Re Phelps' Settlement Trusts, 31 Ch. D. 351.]

[(h) See ante, p. 846.]

[(i) Re Gardner's Trusts, 10 Ch. D. 29, where the existing trustee being of unsound mind, and out of the jurisdiction, new trustees were appointed in Chancery, and a vesting Lunacy, as defined by the Lunacy Acts of 1890 and 1891, arises. Where the incapacity arises from physical and not from mental infirmity, the matter is within the jurisdiction of the Chancery Division (a).

[Jurisdiction by whom exercisable.]

2. By virtue of sect. 108 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, sect. 51 of the Judicature Act, 1873 (b), and the request of the Lord Chancellor made pursuant to that section, the judges of the Court of Appeal are enabled to act as additional judges of the Chancery Division, not only in all applications under the Trustee Act, 1893, but in all applications in lunacy which require also the exercise of the jurisdiction of the Chancery Division (c); but in lunacy matters this jurisdiction can only be exercised in aid of the jurisdiction in lunacy (d).

[Appointment of new trustees by Court in lunacy.]

3. Under sect. 128 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, "where a power is vested in a lunatic in the character of trustee (e) or guardian, or the consent of a lunatic to the exercise of a power is necessary in the like character, or as a check upon the undue exercise of the power (f), and it appears to the judge to be expedient that the power should be exercised or the consent given, the committee of the estate, in the name and on behalf of the lunatic, under an order of the judge, made upon the application of any person interested, may exercise the power or give the consent in such manner as the order directs," and under this section and sect. 129, the judge in lunacy can empower the committee of a lunatic to exercise in the name, and on behalf of the lunatic, a power of order made; but see Re Barker's Trusts, (1904) W.N. 13, where the Court, under the special circumstances, declined to exercise the jurisdiction in Chancery, but gave liberty to amend the petition by entitling it in Lunacy.]

[(a) Re Barber, 39 Ch. D. 187; Re Weston's Trusts, W.N. (1898) 151. The jurisdiction conferred by the section does not extend to the exercise, on behalf of a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition, in respect of land of which he is only tenant for life, of the power of sale given by s. 7 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845: Re S. S. B., (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 712, following Re Baggs, (1894) 2 Ch. 415, (see ante, p. 669,) and discussing Re Salt, (1896) 1 Ch. 117.]

[(b) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66.]

[(c) Re Platt, 36 Ch. D. 410; Re Blake, W.N. (1895) 51; 72 L. T. N.S. 280; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1259.]

[(d) Re Barber, 39 Ch. D. 187.]

[(e) These words were held to be wide enough to include a power of appointment among children contained in the lunatic's marriage settlement, and exercisable by her jointly with her husband: Re A., (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 328. (Per Vaughan Williams and Romer, L.JJ., diss. Cozens Hardy, L.J.)]

[(f) The consent (under the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 56) of a tenant for life, a lunatic not so found, to the exercise of a power of sale contained in a settlement is neither "necessary in the character of trustee" nor "as a check upon the undue exercise of the power," and therefore the power cannot be exercised by his quasi-committee appointed under sec. 116; Re De Moleyns & Harris's Contract, (1908) 1 Ch. 110.]

appointing new trustees vested in the lunatic, and any person appointed is to have all the same rights and powers as he would have had if the order had been made by the High Court. And in such a case, the judge in lunacy, where it seems to him to be for the lunatic's benefit and also expedient, may make any order respecting the property subject to the trust which might have been made on the appointment of a new trustee or trustees under the Trustee Act. Under these sections the Court in lunacy made an order authorising the sister of a lunatic to exercise a power of appointing new trustees on behalf of the lunatic by appointing certain persons named in the order, and directing that "upon the appointment" of the new trustees, "they be and are hereby appointed to call for a transfer of and to transfer into their joint names" a sum of consols, and a deed reciting the order and appointing the trustee was duly executed. The Bank of England objected to the order as casting upon them the duty of ascertaining whether the deed of appointment was genuine. The Court held that it had power thus to authorise the exercise of a power to appoint new trustees, and combine with it an order for a future transfer of stock, but intimated that in future the Bank ought in such a case to be supplied with something in the nature of a certificate by the master in lunacy identifying the deed on which the bank have to act (a).

By sect. 141 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, it is provided that "in every case in which the judge in lunacy has jurisdiction to order a conveyance or transfer of land or stock, or to make a vesting order, he may also make an order appointing a new trustee or new trustees."

[Vesting orders in lunacy as to land.]

4. By sect. 135 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, when a lunatic is solely or jointly seised or possessed of any land, or solely or jointly entitled to a contingent right in any land, upon any trust, or by way of mortgage, the judge in lunacy is empowered to make an order vesting the land in such person or persons for such estate, and in such manner, as he directs, or by order to release the land from the contingent right and dispose of the same to such person or persons as he directs (b). Any such order is to have "the same effect as if the trustee or mortgagee had been sane, and had executed a deed conveying the land for the estate named in the order, or releasing or disposing of the contingent right" (c).

[(a) Re Shortridge, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 278.]

[(b) Sub-ss. 1, 2, see Appendix No. 3.]

[(c) Sub-s. 3. Orders in lunacy for vesting or appointing a person to convey or transfer any property are

Where one of three trustees became lunatic, and a new trustee had been appointed in his place, it was held that a petition for a vesting order must be entitled in Chancery as well as in Lunacy, as otherwise the vesting order would sever the joint tenancy (a).

Where the person of unsound mind is tenant in tail, it is not necessary in the vesting order to refer to the Fines and Recoveries Act, or to the manner in which the trustee could have conveyed if sane (b). The order should simply direct the property to vest for all the estate which the person of unsound mind could convey if sane (c). Where a person who had agreed to grant a lease with a covenant for quiet enjoyment became lunatic before the lease was granted, it was held that under a vesting order of the interest of the lunatic, the lessee would not obtain the benefit of the covenant for quiet enjoyment (d). As to copyhold land, the section contains provisions similar to those contained in sect. 34 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (e).

[Vesting orders in lunacy as to stock or choses in action.]

5. By sect. 136 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, where a lunatic is solely entitled, or where any persons are jointly entitled with a lunatic, to any stock or chose in action upon trust or by way of mortgage, the judge in lunacy is empowered to make an order vesting the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock, or to sue for the chose in action in any person or persons, and either in the persons jointly entitled with the lunatic, or in them jointly with any other person or persons (f), and a similar power is conferred as to stock standing in the name of a deceased person, whose personal representative is lunatic, and as to a chose in action vested in a lunatic as the personal representative of a deceased person (g).

to be drawn in the form employed for similar orders in the Chancery Division, and schedules, and any other devices, may be employed for shortening orders; Practice Note, (1908) W.N. (C.A.) 75.]

[(a) Re Pearson, 5 Ch. D. 982; Re Chell, 49 L. T. N.S. 196. The Court has power under the section, on payment of purchase-money of leaseholds, belonging to a lunatic, which he contracted to sell before he was found lunatic, to make a vesting order: Re Pagani, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 236; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1258.]

[(b) Re Montagu, (1896) 1 Ch. 549; see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1249, 1270.]

[(c) Mason v. Mason, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 707.]

[(d) Cowper v. Harmer, 57 L. J. N.S. Ch. 461; 57 L. T. N.S. 714.]

[(e) See ante, p. 832.]

[(f) Sub-ss. 1, 2, see App. No. 3. In Re Nash, 16 Ch. D. 503, where consols were standing in the names of three trustees, one of whom was a lunatic, L. J. Cotton refused to make an order vesting the right to transfer until a new trustee had been appointed in the place of the lunatic. But where there was no object to be attained by such appointment it was dispensed with; Re Watson, 19 Ch. D. 384; and see Re Ray, 47 L. T. N.S. 500.]

[(g) Sub-s. 3. In Re Wacher, 22 Ch. D. 535, one of three executors of the surviving executor of a testator being of unsound mind, an

The Court in lunacy will not administer a trust, and therefore, where a sole surviving trustee of stock had become of unsound mind, the Court declined to make an order vesting the right to transfer the stock in the persons beneficially entitled to it, as that would in effect be an administration of the trust, but on a petition intituled in the Chancery Division as well as in Lunacy, the Court appointed the beneficiaries new trustees of the settlement, and vested the right in them in that capacity (a); and similarly, the Court declined to make a vesting order in a person absolutely entitled, but appointed a new trustee, and left the owner to take further steps to put an end to the trust (b).

Where a mortgage debt and stock were vested in two trustees of a settlement, one of whom was lunatic and the other resident out of the jurisdiction, and new trustees of the settlement had been appointed, the Court made an order vesting the mortgage debt and the right to call for a transfer of the stock, first in the trustee resident out of the jurisdiction, and then, it appearing that he was out of the jurisdiction, in the new trustees (c).

Where a legacy bequeathed to a lunatic not so found is paid into Court under the Trustee Act, 1893, sect. 42, an application by the next friend for allowance for maintenance out of income and capital, so far as income is insufficient, ought to be made in Lunacy, where there are facilities for requiring the person appointed as receiver to furnish periodical accounts (d).

[Trustee a criminal lunatic.] As the Lunacy Act, 1890, gives no jurisdiction to make a vesting order in the case of a trustee who is a criminal lunatic, the old jurisdiction in such a case under sect. 5 of the Trustee Act, 1850, is preserved (under sect. 342 of the Act of 1890), and the Court in Lunacy will exercise that jurisdiction by making a vesting order under the Act of 1850 (e).

[Evidence.] Where the application in lunacy is to vest or procure the order was made vesting the right to transfer stock belonging to the estate of the original testator and still standing in his name.]

[(a) Re Currie, 10 Ch. D. 93.]

[(b) Re Holland, 16 Ch. D. 672; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1260.]

[(c) Re Batho, 39 Ch. D. 189.]

[(d) Re Barker's Trusts, (1904) W.N. 13, but see Re Carr's Trusts, (1904) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 792, where, on a similar application, an order was made, upon the undertaking of the trustees to transfer stock into Court and to deposit in Court the deeds relating to property in mortgage, that the interest on the stock and on the mortgage should during the life of the non compos, or until further order, be paid to her sister, she undertaking to apply the same for the maintenance, comfort, and benefit of the non compos. See ante, pp. 431 et seq.]

[(e) Re R., (1906) 1 Ch. 730 (q.v. as to the effect of a saving clause in an Act of Parliament preserving jurisdiction under a repealed Act).]

conveyance or transfer of outstanding property in or to trustees, it is not necessary, unless in any particular case the Court otherwise directs, to deduce the beneficial title to the property, or to serve beneficiaries (a).

[Powers of Masters in Lunacy.]

6. By sub-sect. 1 of sect. 27 of the Lunacy Act, 1891 (b), the jurisdiction of the judge in lunacy "as regards administration and management" may be exercised by the Masters; these powers are not confined to those contained in the group of sections (116-130) so headed in the Lunacy Act, 1890 (c), but extend to any matters of administration and management provided for in the Act of 1890 (d); they are, however, strictly limited to what can properly be described as administration or management of the lunatic's estate. Therefore a master in lunacy has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order as to trust property vested in two trustees, one of whom has become lunatic (e). On the other hand, it has been held that when a master in lunacy, under s. 128 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, appoints a person to exercise a power of appointing new trustees which is vested in a lunatic, he may also, under s. 129, make an order vesting the trust property in the new trustees when appointed (f).

[Appointment of person to convey land or transfer stock.]

7. In all cases where a vesting order can be made, the judge in lunacy is empowered, if it is more convenient, to appoint a person to convey the land, or release the contingent right (g), or to make or join in making a transfer of stock (h).

[Costs.]

8. Sect. 142 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, confers on the judge in lunacy power as to costs similar to that conferred on the High Court by sect. 38 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (i).

If the lunatic, against whom an order is sought, be a trustee, the trust estate or the cestui que trust must bear the costs of the proceedings under the Act. If he be a mortgagee, and it appears upon the face of the mortgage deed that the lunatic mortgagee is a trustee for a third party, the costs will fall on the mortgagor (j); but if the mortgagor had no notice of the fact that the lunatic was a trustee, the costs may, it seems, in some cases be borne by the lunatic's estate (k); but it does not

[(a) Practice Note, (1908) W. N. (C.A.) 75.]
[(b) See Appendix No. 3.]
[(c) See Appendix No. 3.]
[(d) Re Browne, (1894) 3 Ch. 412.]
[(e) Re Langdale, (1901) 1 Ch. 3.]
[(f) Re Fuller, (1900) 2 Ch. 551.]
[(g) Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 135, sub-s. 4.]
[(h) Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 136, sub-s. 4.]
[(i) See ante, p. 858.]
[(j) Re Lewes, 1 Mac. & G. 23.]
[(k) Re Townsend, 1 Mac. & G. 686; Re Jones, 2 Ch. D. 70. It would seem that where the lunatic is beneficially interested in the mortgage money, the costs of the petition, which should be presented by the appear from the cases that any general rule on the subject has been established.]

committee and need not be served on the mortgagor, are (exclusive of the costs of the mortgagor if served), by force of authority rather than upon principle, to be borne by the lunatic's estate; Re Wheeler, 1 De G. M. & G. 436; Re Stuart, 4 De G. & J. 319, and cases cited Ib.; Re Phillips, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 629; but that in all other cases the costs must be paid by the mortgagor; see Ex parte Clay, Shelf. Lun. p. 510, 2nd edit., where the mortgage money had not been paid; and see Re Stuart, 4 De G. & J. 317; Re Jones, 2 De G. F. & J. 554, where the mortgage money had been paid; and see also Re Viall, 8 De G. M. & G. 439; Re Rowley's Lunacy, 1 N. R. 251; Re Townsend, 2 Ph. 348, and cases there cited. Where a mortgagee became of unsound mind, but was not so found by inquisition, and an order was made on the petition of the mortgagor authorising him to pay the mortgage debt into the Bank of England, and vesting the estate in the petitioner, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the mortgagee or his estate bear the costs where the application was made by the mortgagor; and no costs were allowed on either side; Re Sparks, 6 Ch. D. 361.]

PART III

THE CESTUI QUE TRUST

CHAPTER XXVII

IN WHAT THE ESTATE OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST PRIMARILY CONSISTS

HAVING concluded the subject of the estate and office of the trustee, it follows next that we investigate the nature and properties of the Estate of the cestui que trust; and in the present chapter we shall inquire in what the estate of the cestui que trust primarily consists, First, In the simple trust; and Secondly, In the special trust.

SECTION I

OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST'S ESTATE IN THE SIMPLE TRUST

In the simple trust the equitable ownership is compounded of the Pernancy of the profits and the Disposition of the estate—the jus habendi and jus disponendi (a).

First. The equitable owner is entitled to the pernancy of the profits.

Cestui que trust entitled to possession of lands.

1. In a trust of lands the cestui que trust may compel the trustee to put him in possession of the estate (b); and if the cestui que trust be ejected from the possession by the trustee, the cestui que trust may compel the trustee to account not only for the rents actually received, but for the whole rents legally demandable from the tenants (c).

(a) Smith v. Wheeler, 1 Mod. 17, per Pemberton, J.

(b) Brown v. How, Barn. 354; Attorney-General v. Lord Gore, Id. 150, per Lord Hardwicke.

(c) Kaye v. Powel, 1 Ves. jun. 408.

Rule applicable only to simple trust.

2. The rule which gives the cestui que trust the possession is applicable only to the simple trust in the strict sense, for where the cestui que trust is not exclusively interested, but other parties have also a claim, it rests in the discretion of the Court whether the actual possession shall remain with the cestui que trust or the trustee, and if possession be given to the cestui que trust, whether he shall not hold it under certain conditions and restrictions (a).

Blake v. Bunbury.

Thus a testator devised all his real estate to trustees in fee upon trust to convey the same for a term of 500 years (the trusts of which were to raise certain annuities and sums in gross), and subject thereto to the use of A. for life, with remainders over. A. filed a bill, praying to be let into possession. At the hearing of the cause a general account was directed of the testator's estates and of the charges upon them, and the plaintiff further desired that he might be let into immediate possession; but Lord Thurlow said: "It is impossible for me to let him into possession till I have the accounts before me, and even till the trusts are executed, unless, as he now offers, he pays into Court a sum sufficient to answer all the purposes of the trust. The Court, perhaps, has let a tenant for life into possession, where it has seen that the best way of performing the trusts would be by letting him into possession, as where an annuity of 100*l.* a year is charged upon an estate of 5000*l.* a year; but till the account is taken I do not know but the purposes of the trust may take up the whole, and if I was to do it now, perhaps I should only have to resume the estate" (b). The accounts were afterwards taken, and the plaintiff was let into possession on giving security to the amount of 10,000*l.* to abide the order of the Court as to the annuities and other incumbrances (c).

Tidd v. Lister.

In another case (d), a testator devised and bequeathed all his real and personal estate to trustees upon trust to pay his funeral expenses and debts, to keep the buildings upon the estate insured against fire, to satisfy the premiums upon two policies of insurance on the lives of his two sons, to allow his said sons an annuity of sixty guineas each, and subject thereto upon trust for his daughter for life, with remainders over; and the

(a) Jenkins v. Milford, 1 J. & W. 629; Baylies v. Baylies, 1 Coll. 537; and see Denton v. Denton, 7 Beav. 388; Pugh v. Vaughan, 12 Beav. 517; Hoskins v. Campbell, W.N. 1869, p. 59; Etchells v. Williamson, W. N. 1869, p. 61.

(b) Blake v. Bunbury, 1 Ves. jun. 194. See the case more fully stated, Ib. 514; 4 B. C. C. 21.

(c) S.C. 1 Ves. jun. 514; 4 B. C. C. 28.

(d) Tidd v. Lister, 5 Mad. 429.

personal estate having sufficed to discharge the funeral expenses, debts, and annuities, the daughter, who was then a feme covert, filed a bill praying to be let into possession upon securing the amount of the premiums of the policies; but Sir J. Leach said that if a testator, who gave in the first instance a beneficial interest for life only, thought fit to place the direction of the property in other hands, which was an obvious means of securing the provident management of that property for the advantage of those who were to take in succession, a Court of Equity ought not to disappoint that intention by delivering over the estate to the cestui que trust for life, unprotected against that bias which he must naturally have to prefer his own interest to the fair right of those who were to take in remainder. There might be cases in which it was plain from the expressions in the will, that the testator did not intend the property should remain under the personal management of the trustees; there might be cases in which it was plain from the nature of the property, that the testator could not mean to exclude the cestui que trust for life from the personal possession of the property, as in the case of a family residence. There might be very special cases in which the Court would deliver the possession of the property to the cestui que trust for life, although the testator's intention appeared to be that it should remain with the trustees; as, where the personal occupation of the trust property was beneficial to the cestui que trust; in which case the Court, by taking means to secure the due protection of the property for the benefit of those in remainder, would in substance be performing the trust according to the intention of the testator. And his Honour, considering that there was no such ground of exception in the case before him, refused the application (a).

Cestui que trust for her separate use.

3. In one case a feme covert was entitled to her separate use for her life, and it was not thought incompatible with the nature of such an estate that she should be put into possession, though the claim was opposed by the trustees (b). A tenant for life cannot claim possession as a right, but only at the discretion and by the sufferance of the Court (c); and therefore, where trustees were directed as managers of the estate to pay insurances and repairs and other necessary outlays, and apply the net annual income to the separate use of a person for life, it was held that such tenant for life was not a person "entitled to possession or receipt of the rents and profits" for life within the meaning of the Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 120), and could not therefore grant leases under the Act (a). Such a power would in fact pro tanto neutralise the powers of management vested in the trustees (b).

[(a) And see Re Bentley, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 782; 33 W. R. 610.]

(b) Horner v. Wheelwright, 2 Jur. N.S. 367; and see Hoskins v. Campbell, W.N. 1869, p. 59; Taylor v. Taylor, 20 L. R. Eq. 297; [Re Bentley, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 782].

[(c) See Re Bagot's Settlement, (1894) 1 Ch. 177; Re Hunt, W. N. (1900) 65, where the application was by the assignee of the life interest.]

[Discretionary power of Court enlarged since Settled Land Acts.]

[4. The extensive powers conferred by the Settled Land Acts on tenants for life afford an additional ground for the exercise in a fit case of the discretion of the Court in favour of letting an equitable tenant for life into possession (c); and accordingly, although large powers of management are conferred on the trustees by the testator, and although the interest of the tenant for life is determinable on alienation (d), or the tenant for life is a married woman restrained from anticipation (e), or the property is leasehold, so that the trustees are personally liable under the covenants, or the life interest is subject to a mortgage (f), or to an antecedent term of years vested in trustees upon trust to pay off incumbrances which remain undischarged (g), the discretion may be exercised, but the Court will insert in the order all such directions and undertakings as are necessary for the protection and indemnity of all persons interested in the estate (h). In considering the matter, the Court will have regard to all the circumstances of the case, and will not make an order if for reasons which it can judicially notice, there is a probability that within a very short time it would be right to restore possession to the trustees (i).

[Accumulation directed for payment of mortgages.]

5. Where a testator directed an accumulation of rents for the

(a) Taylor v. Taylor, 20 L. R. Eq. 297. [But see observations of L. J. James in Taylor v. Taylor, 3 Ch. D. (C.A.) 147.]

[(b) See Vine v. Raleigh, 24 Ch. D. 238, where it was held that if an estate is vested in trustees, and there is not for the time being any person beneficially entitled to the rents and profits, the trustees are the persons who may, under the 23rd section of the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 18), apply to the Court to exercise the powers conferred by the Act; and a distinction was drawn between the language of that section and that of the 46th section, under which the person entitled to the possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the settled estates for an estate for life, &c., either in his own right or in right of his wife (words pointing to a beneficial ownership), is authorised to grant leases for twenty-one years; and see Re Bentley, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 782; 33 W. R. 610.]

[(c) Re Bagot's Settlement, (1894) 1 Ch. 177; Re Wythes, (1893) 2 Ch. 369; Re Newen, (1894) 2 Ch. 297.]

[(d) Re Wythes, ubi sup.]

[(e) Re Bagot's Settlement, ubi sup.]

[(f) Re Newen, ubi sup.]

[(g) Re Richardson, (1900) 2 Ch. 778; Re Money Kyrle's Settlement, (1900) 2 Ch. 839.]

[(h) For form of order see Re Money Kyrle's Settlement, ubi sup., Seton, 6th ed. p. 1758; and see Re Paddon, (1909) W. N. 162.]

[(i) Re Bagot's Settlement, ubi sup., at p. 182, per Chitty, J.]

purpose of paying off mortgages, and that the tenant for life under the will should not receive any part of the rents until the mortgages were paid off, and the mortgagees sold the estates comprised in their mortgages, but the proceeds being insufficient to pay them in full, the balance was paid out of the accumulations, it was held that the tenant for life was entitled to be let into possession of the estates remaining unsold, and to receive the surplus accumulations (a).]

Cestui que trust cannot recover the possession at law.

6. Until the Judicature Act, 1873, to be noticed presently, the cestui que trust's right to the possession was recognised, we must remember, in a court of equity only; for in a court of law the cestui que trust was merely tenant at will (b), and this tenancy was determinable at any time on demand of possession by the trustee, though not before such demand (c). In the day of Lord Mansfield it was maintained that a cestui que trust, a plaintiff in ejectment, could not be non-suited by a term outstanding in his trustee (d); and that a trustee, a plaintiff in ejectment, could not recover against his own cestui que trust (e). It was even decided that, where a term had been created for securing an annuity, and subject thereto upon trust to attend the inheritance, the tenant of the freehold was entitled to recover the possession (provided he claimed subject to the charge), notwithstanding the legal term was outstanding in a trustee upon trusts that were still unsatisfied (f). Such at least were the doctrines in cases of clear trusts: for where the equity was at all doubtful, the rights of the parties were even then referred to the proper tribunal (g). "Lord Mansfield," as Lord Redesdale observed, "had on his mind prejudices derived from his familiarity with the Scotch law, where law and equity are administered in the same Courts" (h). From the time of Lord Mansfield, and until the Act of 1873 it was established:—First, that a cestui que trust could not recover in ejectment (i), unless a

[(a) Norton v. Johnstone, 30 Ch. D. 649; following Tewart v. Lawson, 18 L. R. Eq. 490; and see Blake v. O'Reilly, (1895) 1 I. R. 479.]

(b) Garrard v. Tuck, 8 C. B. 231; Melling v. Leak, 1 Jur. N.S. 759; Parker v. Carter, 4 Hare, 400; Perry v. Shipway, 1 Giff. 1; and see Geary v. Bearcroft, O. Bridgm. 486-490; Bac. Us. 5; Doe v. Jones, 40 B. & Cr. 718; Doe v. M'Kaeg, 10 B. & Cr. 721; post, Chap. XXXI. s. 1.

(c) Doe v. Phillips, 10 Q. B. 130.

(d) Lade v. Holford, B. N. P. 110. The doctrine is said to have originated with Mr Justice Grundy.

(e) Armstrong v. Peirse, 3 Burr. 1901.

(f) Bristow v. Pegge, 1 T. R. 758, note (a); overruled by Doe v. Staple, 2 T. R. 684.

(g) Doe v. Pott, Doug. 695, per Lord Mansfield; Goodright v. Wells, Id. 747, per eundem.

(h) Shannon v. Bradstreet, 1 Sch. & Lef. 66.

(i) Doe v. Staple, 2 T. R. 684; see Barnes v. Crowe, 4 B. C. C. 10 & 11; Doe v. Sybourn, 7 T. R. 3; Goodtitle v. Jones, 7 T. R. 45, and following pages; Doe v. Wroot, 5 East, 138.

surrender to him of the legal estate could be reasonably presumed (a) (which, of course, could not be where the circumstance of the outstanding legal estate appeared on the declaration or special case (b)), and the cestui que trust had no alternative but to bring his action in the name of the trustee, who was to be indemnified against the costs (c): Secondly, that the trustee, as the tenant of the legal estate, might recover in ejectment from his own cestui que trust (d); and the cestui que trust had no defence to the action at law, but must have had recourse to an injunction in equity (e), and the clause in the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, which authorised an equitable defence at law, did not apply to ejectment (f). However, a lessee under a feme covert entitled to her separate use might protect himself by equitable plea against trespass by the husband, in whom the legal estate was vested (g).

Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24.

7. Now, generally, by 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, sect. 24, equitable defences are to be recognised in all the Courts, so that for the time to come the full merits, both at law and in equity, will be administered in the same action.

Leases by a cestui que trust.

8. As a tenant is not allowed to dispute his landlord's title, if a cestui que trust, having only an equitable estate, grant a lease, then, as between lessor and lessee, the lessor may distrain and exercise the other rights of a landlord in the same way as if at the date of the demise he had been the legal owner (h). The title of the lessor might be such, that on his death the person claiming under him could not prove the devolution of the estate without showing upon the pleadings that at the date of the lease the lessor's interest was equitable, and in such a case it is presumed the estoppel would not apply, and the remedy would be in equity (i). But if there were no difficulty upon the pleadings, the persons claiming under the lessor, as, for instance, his trustee in bankruptcy, had always the same benefit of the rule as the lessor had (j).

(a) Doe v. Sybourn, 7 T. R. 2; see Doe v. Staple, 2 T. R. 696; Goodtitle v. Jones, 7 T. R. 45, and following pages; Roe v. Reade, 8 T. R. 122.

(b) Goodtitle v. Jones, 7 T. R. 43; see Doe v. Staple, 2 T. R. 696; Roe v. Reade, 8 T. R. 122.

(c) Annesley v. Simeon, 4 Mad. 390; and see Reade v. Sparkes, 1 Moll. 11; Jenkins v. Milford, 1 J. & W. 635; Ex parte Little, 3 Moll. 67.

(d) See Roe v. Reade, 8 T. R. 122, 123.

(e) Shine v. Gough, 1 B. & B. 445.

(f) Neave v. Avery, 16 C. B. 328; and see Smith v. Hayes, 1 I. R. C. L. 333; Clarke v. Reilly, 2 I. R. C. L. 422.

(g) Allen v. Walker, 5 L. R. Ex. 187.

(h) Alchorne v. Gomme, 2 Bing. 54; Blake v. Foster, 8 T. R. 487; Parker v. Manning, 7 T. R. 537.

(i) See Noke v. Awder, Co. Eliz. 373, 436. See 2 Lord Raymond, 1553.

(j) Parker v. Manning, 7 T. R. 537.

Notice to quit.

9. If the trustees put the cestui que trust in possession, and the cestui que trust grants a lease and afterwards serves a notice on the lessee to quit, the cestui que trust is the agent of the trustees for the purposes of the notice, and an ejectment by the trustees can be sustained as if the notice had been given by themselves (a).

Injunction between tenants in common.

10. If there be two cestuis que trust tenants in common, and one of them be put into possession, and cuts timber, and becomes insolvent, the other cestui que trust can obtain an injunction (b).

Possession of the title-deeds.

11. The title-deeds of an estate form no part of the usufructuary enjoyment; and therefore if a person vests an estate in trustees upon particular trusts, one of which is to receive the rents and pay them over to the settlor for life, and the deeds are delivered into their possession, they have a right to the custody of them for the benefit of all parties interested (c), and should the settlor obtain them from the trustees, and thereby be entitled to deal with the estate as absolute owner, the trustees, if it appeared they had acted fraudulently, or under such gross negligence as amounted to constructive fraud, would be held personally responsible for the consequences (d). However, a tenant for life, if the estate be legal, is entitled to the custody of the deeds (e), and may bring an action of detinue (f), or, unless he has shown that he cannot be safely trusted with the deeds (g), may take proceedings in equity for the recovery of them (h); and as equity follows law, the Court, in the absence of special trusts requiring the possession of the deeds by the trustees, will not take the deeds from the tenant for life who has got possession of them (i); and where the tenant for life in equity is not the settlor, and therefore cannot by suppressing the settlement make a title to the fee simple, the Court has ordered the deeds to be delivered to the tenant for life in equity (j), subject of course to the remainderman's right

(a) Jones v. Phipps, 3 L. R. Q. B. 567.

(b) Smallman v. Onions, 3 B. C. C. 621.

(c) See Garner v. Hannyngton, 22 Beav. 630; Stanford v. Roberts, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 307.

(d) See Evans v. Bicknell, 6 Ves. 174.

(e) In Foster v. Crabb, 12 C. B. 136, the Court seems to have approved the rule laid down in early times, that whoever first gets possession of the deeds, whether tenant for life or in remainder, keeps them. But see Garner v. Hannyngton, 22 Beav. 627; Webb v. Webb, 1 Eden, 8; Duncombe v. Mayor, 8 Ves. 320; [Leathes v. Leathes, 5 Ch. D. 221; Re Beddoe, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 547, 557;] and Sugd. Vend. and P., 14th edit. p. 445, note (1).

(f) Allwood v. Heywood, 1 N. R. 289.

(g) See Jenner v. Morris, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 603.

(h) Garner v. Hannyngton, 22 Beav. 627.

(i) Taylor v. Sparrow, 4 Giff. 703; 9 Jur. N.S. 1226; and see Denton v. Denton, 7 Beav. 388.

(j) Langdale v. Briggs, 8 De G. M. & G. 391; Taylor v. Sparrow, 9 Jur. N.S. 1227; [Leathes v. Leathes, 5 Ch. D.

to production and inspection to a reasonable extent (a), [and has required him to undertake not to part with them without the consent of the trustees, and to produce them to the trustees upon all reasonable occasions (b). And in general where the equitable tenant for life is let into possession by the Court, custody of the title-deeds will be committed to him in a proper case (c); but mortgagees of the life estate are entitled to insist on the retention of the deeds by the trustees (d).] Where the legal estate, whether of freeholds, copyholds, or leaseholds, is vested in a trustee or executor in trust, not for certain persons entitled in succession, but for cestuis que trust entitled absolutely in possession, the cestuis que trust, or if they are infants, their guardians, may institute proceedings to have the deeds delivered up to them. But as to leaseholds [under the general law, and as to real estate under the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (e)], an executor may hold the deeds until all debts have been paid and the estate cleared (f).

[The trustee in bankruptcy of the husband of a legal tenant for life (not entitled to the property as separate estate) has not an absolute right to the custody of the title-deeds during the coverture; but where the circumstances require it, they will be ordered to be brought into Court for safe custody (g).]

Cestuis que trust entitled to inspect documents.

12. Cestuis que trust have a right at all seasonable times to inspect the documents relating to the trust (h), and at their own expense to be furnished with copies of them, and the rule extends to cases submitted and opinions of counsel taken by the trustees for their guidance in the discharge of their duty, for as 221, disapproving dictum in Warren v. Rudall, 1 J. & H. 1].

(a) Davis v. Dysart, 20 Beav. 405; Pennell v. Dysart, 25 Beav. 542.

[(b) Re Burnaby's Settled Estates, 42 Ch. D. 621; Re Wythes, (1893) 2 Ch. 369; Re Money Kyrle's Settlement, (1900) 2 Ch. 839, 845, as corrected, Re Paddon, (1909) W. N. 162.]

[(c) Re Wythes, (1893) 2 Ch. 369.]

[(d) Re Newen, (1894) 2 Ch. 297.]

[(e) 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65; in case of testators dying on or after 1st January, 1898. As to the exception of copyholds from "real estate," see ante, p. 248.]

(f) Smith v. Pavier, V. C. Wood, 18th July, 1852. In this case J. Smith devised freeholds and leaseholds for long terms to Wade and Pavier and their heirs to the use of Joel Smith for life, with remainder to Wade and Pavier to preserve contingent remainders, with remainder to the children of Joel Smith (who were infants at the filing of the bill) and the heirs of their bodies, with remainders over, including limitations to Wade and Pavier, who were also executors, to preserve contingent remainders. Wade and Pavier took possession of the title-deeds on the testator's death, and held them during the life of Joel Smith. On his death the infant children by their next friend, with two other persons as co-plaintiffs (being their guardians appointed by the Court), filed their bill against Pavier, the surviving executor, for delivery of the deeds, and there being no allegation of unpaid debts, the delivery of the deeds to the two guardians was ordered.

[(g) Ex parte Rogers, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 31.]

[(h) Re Cowin, 31 Ch. D. 179.]

the expense falls upon the trust estate, it stands to reason that the cestuis que trust may see the opinions and cases for which they pay. But the right does not arise until the relation of trustee and cestui que trust has been established to the satisfaction of the Court (a).

Custody of deeds may be committed to one of the trustees.

13. As the deeds and documents relating to the trust cannot be held by all the trustees (unless they be deposited with bankers with a direction not to part with them except on the authority of the whole number), co-trustees have been held to be justified in committing the custody of the deeds to one of themselves; and where the deeds are a security for money, the possession by the one is no implied authority from the co-trustee to him who holds them to receive the principal money secured (b).

Privileges of cestui que trust.

14. Upon the principle that the cestui que trust is in foro conscientiæ entitled to the pernancy of the profits, he has been invested by the express language of some statutes, and by the equitable construction of others, with the various privileges conferred by the legislature upon the legal tenants of real estate.

Qualification of cestui que trust to be a juror.

15. By the Juries Act, 1825 (6 Geo. 4. c. 50), sect. 1, every man between the ages of 21 and 60, residing in any county in England, who shall have in his own name or in trust for him within the same county 10*l.* by the year, above reprises, in real estate, &c., &c., is qualified to serve as a juror (c).

Right of cestui que trust to vote at election for members of Parliament.

16. By the Parliamentary Voters Registration Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 18), sect. 74, "no trustee of lands or tenements shall in any case have a right to vote in any such election (i.e. for a Member of Parliament), for or by reason of any trust estate therein, but the cestui que trust in actual possession, or in the receipt of the rents and profits thereof, though he may receive the same through the hands of the trustee, shall and may vote for the same notwithstanding such trust" (d).

[Protector of the settlement.]

[17. The person entitled to the beneficial enjoyment of the rents and profits of settled property, under a settlement made since the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833, is the protector of the settlement under sect. 22 of the Act, as owner of the prior estate, and not the trustees in whom the legal estate is vested;

[(a) Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421.]

(b) Cottam v. Eastern Counties Railway Company, 1 J. & H. 243; Goldney v. Bower, cited Ib. 247. [Upon the general question as to the proper mode of custody of title-deeds by trustees, see ante, p. 328.]

(c) And see Co. Litt. 272 a, 272 b.

(d) See Wallis v. Birks, 5 L. R. C. P. 222; and see ante, p. 262.

and in a settlement made before the Act, if the estates are equitable the beneficial owner is also protector (a).]

Income and corpus distinguished.

18. The question frequently arises, both in construing Acts of Parliament which speak of a limited amount of income, and also in determining the relative rights of tenants for life and remaindermen, what is income and what is corpus, and it has been held that a tenant for life of a manor is entitled to the fines payable on all customary grants (b), or on admissions (c), and where leaseholds are annually renewable, the tenant for life of the reversion is entitled to the annual fines for renewal (d); [and where leaseholds for lives are perpetually renewable on the dropping of the lives, the tenant for life of the reversion is entitled to the heriots and fines for renewal, as they are of the nature of casual profits accruing during his tenancy for life (e); and so where money is paid as the consideration for his accepting the surrender of a lease (f); but not where the lease was granted by an equitable tenant for life under the Settled Land Acts (g).] So a tenant for life is entitled to underwood and thinnings of plantations in ordinary course (h), [or under a local usage which must have been in the contemplation of the testator (i)], and to rents and royalties payable under the lease of an open mine (j), [or a lease of unopened mines under a contract entered into by the testator (k)], or of a brickfield, whether the lease was granted by the testator or by the trustee of his will under a power in the will (l), and to the produce of gravel, loam, peat, or bog-earth got annually according to the usual custom (m). But a tenant for life is not entitled to trees in woodlands not cut periodically according to custom, though cut for the sake of improving the growth of the rest (n).

[Mines and timber.]

[19. Under the Settled Land Act, 1882, a tenant for life, whether impeachable for waste or not, can now grant mining leases of mines either opened or unopened, and is entitled if

[(a) Re Dudson's Contract, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 628; Re Ainslie, 51 L. T. N.S. 780; and see ante, p. 457.]

(b) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 640; [Re Medows, (1898) 1 Ch. 300].

(c) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 641.

(d) Milles v. Milles, 6 Ves. 761.

[(e) Brigstocke v. Brigstocke, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 357.]

[(f) Re Hunloke's Settled Estates, (1902) 1 Ch. 941.]

[(g) Re Rodes, (1909) 1 Ch. 815.]

(h) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 635.

[(i) Dashwood v. Magniac, (1891) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 306.]

(j) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 639.

[(k) Re Kemeys-Tynte, (1892) 2 Ch. 211.]

(l) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 638.

(m) S. C., 35 Beav. 639.

(n) S. C., 35 Beav. 635; and see ante, p. 211.

impeachable for waste, to one fourth part of the rents, and if not impeachable for waste, to three fourth parts of the rents (a). And as a tenant for life, although impeachable for waste, has a right to continue the working of open mines, he will be entitled, if a lease is granted of such mines under the powers of the Act, to three-fourths of the rents (b). Under the same Act a tenant for life, impeachable for waste, may, on obtaining the consent of the trustees of the settlement, or an order of the Court, cut and sell timber, ripe and fit for cutting, and is entitled to one fourth part of the net proceeds, but the remaining three-fourths are to go as capital (c).

[Loss on business held in trust for persons successively.]

20. Where a business was held in trust for successive tenants for life, and remaindermen, and was carried on by a receiver and manager at a loss during the life of the first tenant for life, it was held that the loss must be made good out of the profits earned during the life of the next tenant for life, and not out of the corpus (d); but the adjustment of the relative rights of tenant for life and remainderman in such a case necessarily depends on the construction of the particular will (e).

[Shares.]

21. Under an ordinary bequest of shares, the tenant for life is entitled to the fruit of the shares in the shape of dividends duly declared during his life; but when a bonus dividend is declared [Bonus.] by a company out of accumulated profits, it is a question of fact, involving a consideration of the constitution of the company, and often very difficult to determine,] whether such bonus is to be regarded as capital or income, and where in such a case it appeared that the company had not paid or intended to pay any sum as dividend, but intended to appropriate the undivided profits as an increase of their capital, it was held that the tenant for life was not entitled to the bonus, but that it must be treated as capital (f). The mere fact that the profit is carried to a

[(a) Sects. 6, 11. Such leases may be granted, even though the remaindermen be to some extent prejudiced, if the provisions of s. 53 are complied with: Re Aldam's Settled Estate, (1902) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 46. And a building lease with a reservation of minerals may be granted under the Act by the tenant for life: Re Gladstone, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 101.]

[(b) Re Chaytor, (1900) 2 Ch. 804. As to the circumstances under which a mine contiguous to another is to be deemed a separate unopened mine, see Re Maynard's Settled Estate, (1899) 2 Ch. 347.]

[(c) Sect. 35.]

[(d) Upton v. Brown, 26 Ch. D. 588; but see Gow v. Forster, 26 Ch. D. 672, the decision in which seems to have turned on the wording of the will, and not on any general principle; and see Re Millichamp, 52 L. T. N.S. 758.]

[(e) See Gow v. Forster, 26 Ch. D. 672, 677; Re Millichamp, 52 L.T. N.S. 758.]

[(f) Bouch v. Sproule, 12 App. Cas. 385, and cases there cited; and see Re Bramley, 55 L. T. N.S. 145; Re Alsbury, 45 Ch. D. 237; Re Northage, 60 L. J. N.S. Ch. 488; 64 L. T. N.S.

reserve fund is not sufficient to show that it has been appropriated as capital (a); [but where a reserve fund, representing undistributed profits, was, after the liquidation of the company, returned to the shareholders as surplus capital, it was held to be corpus as between tenant for life and remainderman (b).

[New shares.] 22. Where new shares are allotted and paid for out of income, it must be remembered that any diminution in value of the old shares, consequent upon the issue of the new shares, is part of the consideration, and where new shares are allotted in lieu of dividend, the tenant for life is primâ facie entitled as income to so much only of the value of the new shares as represents the dividend declared (c).]

Succession duty. 23. The tenant for life of an estate must bear the expense of accounts necessary to be taken for the discharge of the succession duty payable by the tenant for life as successor (d), and must discharge the rates and taxes payable during his life (e).

Fencing. 24. The expenses of fencing newly acquired enclosures will fall upon the corpus (f).

Cestui que trust's possession of chattels. 25. Hitherto we have spoken of the cestui que trust's right to the pernancy of the profits in respect of lands. In trusts of chattels personal, as where heirlooms are vested in a trustee upon trust for the persons successively entitled under the limitations of a strict settlement, the cestui que trust for the time being is equally entitled to the use and possession of the goods during the continuance of his interest; and upon the ground of this right the goods are not forfeited on the bankruptcy of the tenant for life, though left in the possession of the bankrupt by permission of the legal owner, for they are left with him according to the title (g); [and possession by the cestui que trust in accordance with the trust instrument is in law the possession of the 625, where a declaration of bonus dividend, and issue of new shares to the amount thereof, being regarded as separate transactions, the tenant for life was held entitled to the dividend. The true rule to be inferred from Bouch v. Sproule and other cases is that the tenant for life of shares in a company is entitled to all payments out of profits made by the company, unless they have been validly capitalised: Re Piercy, (1907) 1 Ch. 289.]

[(a) Re Alsbury, 45 Ch. D. 237, 247; commenting on Bouch v. Sproule, ubi sup.]

[(b) Re Armitage, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 337; and see Re Taylor's Trusts, (1905) 1 Ch. 734 (where a tenant for life was held not to be entitled to any part of the proceeds of sale of bonds on which a deficient amount of cumulative interest had been paid.)]

[(c) Re Malam, (1894) 3 Ch. 578.]

(d) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 642.

(e) Fountaine v. Pellet, 1 Ves. jun. 337, see 342.

(f) Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Beav. 641.

(g) See ante, p. 272.

trustee, who can maintain an action against a wrongdoer for the conversion of the chattels (a).]

Household goods.

26. In a bequest to a person of the use of household goods, it seems the legatee may use them in his own or any other person's house, and either alone or promiscuously with other goods, or, it is said, may let them out to hire (b); but, where the chattels are heirlooms annexed to a house, and their continuance in the mansion is evidently a constituent part of the trust, they cannot be let to hire except together with the house itself (c). Of course the use of the chattels by the tenant for life does not enable him to pawn them beyond the extent of his own interest (d).

[Heirlooms.]

[27. By the Settled Land Act, 1882, sect. 37, a tenant for life may sell personal chattels settled as heirlooms, and the money arising by the sale is to be capital money under the Act, and to be dealt with accordingly, or it may be invested in the purchase of other chattels to be settled and held on the same trusts. But no sale or purchase of chattels under the section is to be made without an order of the Court (e).]

Stock in the funds.

28. Where the trust fund consists of stock, the cestui que trust is usually put into possession of the dividends by a power of attorney from the trustee to the cestui que trust's bankers, with a written authority from the trustee to the bankers to credit the cestui que trust with the dividends as and when received, by which arrangement the trustee is spared the trouble of repeated personal attendances at the Bank of England, and the entries in the books of the private bankers are sufficient evidence of the receipt. In cases where the cestui que trust is tenant for life, this course seems free from objection; but where his interest is one which may determine in his lifetime, some risk is incurred of the power of attorney and authority being acted upon by the bankers after the determination of the cestui que trust's estate; and it is conceived that the trustee would be liable to the other cestuis que trust for any misappropriation thus taking place. The trustee must be careful to see that the power of attorney extends only to the receipts of the dividends, and not to the sale of the stock itself; otherwise, if the bankers sell out the stock and the proceeds are misapplied, the trustee will be answerable (f).

[(a) Barker v. Furlong, (1891) 2 Ch. 172, citing White v. Morris, 11 C. B. 1015.]

(b) Marshall v. Blew, 2 Atk. 217.

(c) Cadogan v. Kennet, Cowp. 432; [and see Re Brown's Will, 27 Ch. D. 179].

(d) Hoare v. Parker, 2 T. R. 376.

[(e) As to this section, see ante, p. 690.]

(f) See Sadler v. Lee, 6 Beav. 324.

Secondly. Of the jus disponendi.

Cestui que trust's right of disposition of the legal estate.

1. The cestui que trust may call upon the trustee to execute conveyances of the legal estate as the cestui que trust directs (a). If the trustee refuses to comply, and the cestui que trust institutes proceedings to compel him, the trustee will be visited with the costs (b), unless there was some reasonable ground for his refusal (c), or he acted bona fide under the advice of counsel (d); and the trustee has been made to pay costs, though the cestui que trust, instead of filing a bill, might have enforced a conveyance by the summary process of a petition (e). But a trustee has a right to be satisfied by the fullest evidence that the party requiring the conveyance is the exclusive cestui que trust (f); and a cestui que trust cannot call for the conveyance of a larger legal estate than he has equitable: an equitable tenant in tail, for instance, cannot call for a conveyance of the legal fee-simple (g). And Lord Eldon was of opinion that a cestui que trust could not require the trustee to divest himself from time to time of different parcels of the trust estate; for the trustee had a right to say, "If you mean to divest me of my trust, divest me of it altogether, and then make your conveyances as you think proper" (h). And a trustee, like a mortgagee, cannot be called upon to convey the estate by any other words or description than that by which the conveyance was made to himself (i). And a trustee cannot be compelled to execute a conveyance containing inaccurate recitals; but where all the cestuis que trust are parties, he cannot insist

(a) Payne v. Barker, Sir G. Bridgm. Rep. 24. [A devisee of land since the Land Transfer Act, 1897, cannot call for a conveyance from the personal representative, but must be content with his assent: Re Pix, W. N. (1901) 165.]

(b) Jones v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 199; Willis v. Hiscox, 4 M. & Cr. 197; Thorby v. Yeats, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 438; Penfold v. Bouch, 4 Hare, 271; Firmin v. Pulham, 2 De G. & Sm. 99; Palairet v. Carew, 32 Beav. 565; and see Campbell v. Home, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 664.

(c) Goodson v. Ellisson, 3 Russ. 583; Poole v. Pass, 1 Beav. 600.

(d) Angier v. Stannard, 3 M. & K. 556; and see Devey v. Thornton, 9 Hare, 232; Field v. Donoughmore, 1 Dru. & War. 234; [Stott v. Milne, 25 Ch. D. (C.A.) 710; Re Beddoe, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 547].

(e) Watts v. Turner, 1 R. & M. 634.

(f) Holford v. Phipps, 3 Beav. 434; and see Etchells v. Williamson, W. N. 1869, p. 61.

(g) Saunders v. Neville, 2 Vern. 428. But though this point may have been mooted in the case and ruled as reported, yet the principal question in the cause was a different one, viz. whether under the circumstances the plaintiff was entitled to call for a conveyance of the legal estate even to him, and "the heirs of his body." See note by Raithby, correcting the text from the Reg. Book.

(h) Goodson v. Ellisson, 3 Russ. 594. But if the cestuis que trust of a fund, as tenant for life and remainderman, assign part of the fund, it is conceived that the trustee cannot refuse to transfer that part to the assignee. The owner of an aliquot share has a separate claim in respect of it: Smith v. Snow, 3 Mad. 10.

(i) Goodson v. Ellisson, ubi sup.

on the insertion of recitals against the wishes of his cestuis que trust (a); and a trustee in whom any property is vested which is liable to succession duty, must see that the duty is satisfied, or he becomes personally liable (b). Succession duty.

[2. Where property is disposed of by the beneficial owner under the provisions of the Settled Land Act, 1882, as by the 20th section he is empowered to convey the property for the estate or interest the subject of the settlement, and can therefore pass the legal estate (c), if comprised in the settlement, without the concurrence of the trustees, it is conceived that the trustees would not be compelled to join in the assurance.] [Under the Settled Land Act.]

3. A trustee for the separate use of a married woman with restraint of anticipation, holds upon a special trust during the coverture; but if the husband die, the trust for the separate use is suspended, and the feme has an absolute power of disposition, though on a future coverture the separate use and non-anticipation clause, if not prevented by previous disposition, would revive. The trustee, therefore, after the death of the husband, holds upon a simple trust for the feme, and is bound at her direction to convey the legal estate to her (d). Trustee for separate use.

4. It not infrequently happens that when property is held upon trust for a tenant for life, with a power of appointment among his children, and in default of appointment for the children, the trustee is called upon to make a conveyance by the joint direction of the parent and such of the children as are the appointees, and the trustee has a shrewd suspicion that undue influence has been used, or that there is an underhand bargain in derogation of the rights of the other children, who take nothing by the appointment. In these cases, if the nature of the transaction be such as to show on the face of it that there is good ground for suspicion, the trustee will, on refusing to convey, be protected by the Court, and be entitled to his costs (e). But, although it may be the duty of the trustee to make inquiry as to the bonâ fides of the transaction, yet, if he cannot prove any mala fides, the mere possibility of fraud or undue influence will Fraudulent appointments.

(a) Hartley v. Burton, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 365.

(b) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 51, s. 44; [and see the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1889 (52 Vict. c. 7), ss. 6, 12.]

[(c) As to the effect of a conveyance by a tenant for life who has incumbered his life estate, see Re Sebright's Settled Estates, 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 429; and Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 40 Ch. D. 338, 342; 41 Ch. D. (C.A.) 375, 376.]

(d) Buttanshaw v. Martin, Johns. 89.

(e) Hannah v. Hodgson, 30 Beav. 19; King v. King, 1 De G. & J. 663. [As to the right of the donee of a power to release the power and so bring about a result which might well arouse suspicion, see ante, pp. 762, 763.]

not be sufficient, and if a trustee decline to convey without any better reason, he will have to bear the costs of a suit for compelling him, though he will still be entitled to his charges and expenses properly incurred, not being costs in the cause (a).

Inquiry into a collateral trust.

5. Trustees who are bound to make a conveyance of their trust estate, cannot justify their refusal to convey by alleging a duty to inquire into another trust recited in their trust deed, but which is wholly distinct from the trust in question (b).

Delivery of possession to remainderman.

6. Where the legal estate is vested in trustees for A. for life, with remainder to B., and on the death of A. application for a conveyance is made by B., the trustees sometimes object that they cannot convey until they have recovered all the arrears of rent that accrued in the lifetime of A. (c). In such a case the trustees are, at all events, bound to use due diligence, and must not from their laches postpone the rights of the remainderman. But the better course would be to give the trustees an indemnity on delivery of possession, or an undertaking to receive the arrears, and account for them to the tenant for life's estate.

Trustee's conveyance.

7. The 4th section of the Real Property Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 106), enacts that the word "grant" shall not imply any covenant in law except so far as the same may, by force of any Act of Parliament, imply a covenant; and therefore, whatever may have been the case formerly, a conveying trustee cannot now draw any liability upon himself by the use of the word grant alone. But, as to lands in Yorkshire, it must be remembered that the Yorkshire Registry Acts (d) gave the force of covenants for title to the combined words "grant, bargain, and sell." And by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, the word "grant" in conveyances by companies within the provisions of the Act is made to carry with it the ordinary covenants for title (e).

[By the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, the use of the word "grant" is rendered unnecessary for the conveyance of hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, whether in instruments before or after the commencement of the Act (f).]

(a) Firmin v. Pulham, 2 De G. & Sm. 99; Campbell v. Home, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 664.

(b) Palairet v. Carew, 32 Beav. 564.

(c) See Bacon's Abridg. "Distress." This claim was made by the trustees in Hogg v. Jones, reported upon another point, 32 Beav. 45, and M.R. ordered delivery of possession to the remainderman, on his undertaking in effect to use due diligence in receiving the arrears and handing them over.

(d) 6 Anne, c. 35, ss. 30, 34; 8 G. 2. c. 6, s. 35. [Repealed as from the 1st January, 1885, by 47 & 48 Vict. c. 54.]

(e) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, s. 132.

[(f) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 49.]

A series of equitable interests.

8. In general, in the simple trust, there are no intermediate steps of the equitable interest, so that if A. be trustee for B., who is trustee for C., A. holds in trust for C., and must convey the estate as C. directs (a). But if any special confidence or discretionary power be reposed in B., which requires him to have the legal estate, he may then call upon the original trustee to execute a transfer to himself (b). And if a fund be vested in trustees in trust for a feme covert for life for her separate use, with remainder upon such trusts as she may by will appoint, and she by will gives legacies, and disposes of the residue and appoints executors, the original trustees are bound to transfer the fund to the executors to be administered by them (c), [or to an administrator cum testamento annexo, even though the testatrix was a married woman who died before the coming into operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (d); and where the original trustees, instead of transferring the fund to the executors, paid it into Court under the Trustee Relief Act (e), they were made to pay the costs of the petition for getting the fund out of Court (f). If, however, the donee of a special power of appointment appoints the fund to trustees in trust for the objects of the power, the trustees so nominated are not necessarily entitled to call for a transfer of the fund (g), but the question must depend on the intention of the instrument creating the power, and if an intention is there shown that the trustees of that instrument shall administer, that intention must prevail; but the fact that provision is made for a sale by those trustees is not conclusive evidence of such an intention, as such provisions may be intended to be in aid of, and not to interfere with, the appointment by the donee of the power, and if so, then the trustees under the appointment are primâ

(a) Head v. Lord Teynham, 1 Cox, 57; and see —— v. Walford, 4 Russ. 372. [As to the effect of notice to B. in such a case, see post, p. 913.]

(b) Wetherell v. Wilson, 1 Keen, 86; Cooper v. Thornton, 3 B. C. C. 96, 186; Woods v. Woods, 1 M. & Cr. 409; Angier v. Stannard, 3 M. & K. 571; Onslow v. Wallis, 16 Sim. 483; 1 Mac. & G. 506; —— v. Walford, 4 Russ. 372; Poole v. Pass, 1 Beav. 600.

(c) Re Philbrick's Trust, 13 W. R. 570; and see Hayes v. Oatley, 14 L. R. Eq. 1.

[(d) Re Peacock's Settlement, (1902) 1 Ch. 552.]

[(e) Now replaced by s. 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), see ante, pp. 424 et seq.]

[(f) Re Hoskin's Trusts, 5 Ch. D. 229; 6 Ch. D. (C.A.) 281; but see as to this case, Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 303.]

[(g) Busk v. Aldam, 19 L. R. Eq. 16; Von Brockdorff v. Malcolm, 30 Ch. D. 17; but see Scotney v. Lomer, 29 Ch. D. 535, where North, J., was of the opposite opinion. Scotney v. Lomer was affirmed on appeal, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 380, but on different grounds from those upon which North, J., based his judgment, and the Court of Appeal do not seem to have questioned the authority of Busk v. Aldam; and that case has since been followed by North, J., in Re Tyssen, (1894) 1 Ch. 56.]

facie the proper persons to administer (a). Thus where trustees of a settlement, having a general power of sale, were directed to hold upon trust "to pay and transfer" to the appointees under a special power, and the donee of the special power by his will appointed to trustees for sale and conversion upon complicated trusts, the trustees of the will were held to be the proper persons to sell the property, and call for a conveyance from the trustees of the settlement (b)].

Trustees for appointees.

9. Where trustees hold a fund upon such trusts as a person by an instrument to be executed in a particular manner may appoint, they must of course be careful in transferring it to the appointees to see that all the formalities attending the power have been duly observed, for if the execution of it be not regular, the trustees (except in those cases where Courts of Equity aid a defective execution) will be personally liable for the fund to the parties claiming in default of the execution of the power (c).

Costs.

10. The costs incurred by the trustee in relation to the conveyance must be paid by the cestui que trust, or, which is the same thing, must be discharged out of the trust estate.

SECTION II

OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST'S ESTATE IN THE SPECIAL TRUST

Cestui que trust's estate in special trust.

1. This may be said to be, The right to enforce in equity the specific execution of the settlor's intention to the extent of that cestui que trust's particular interest. The other parties entitled may express a desire that the trust should be differently administered; but if such a divergence from the donor's will would prejudice or injuriously affect the rights of any one cestui que trust, that cestui que trust may compel the trustees to adhere strictly and literally to the line of duty prescribed to them (d).

Special trust may be converted into a simple trust.

2. If there be only one cestui que trust, or there be several cestuis que trust, and all of one mind (in each case sui juris), the specific execution may be stayed, and the special trust will then acquire the character of a simple trust; for whatever

[(a) Re Paget, (1898) 1 Ch. 290; referring to Kenworthy v. Bate, 6 Ves. 793, and Cowx v. Foster, 1 J. & H. 30; and see Stephens v. Green, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 148, post, p. 913.]

[(b) Re Adams' Trustees and Frost's Contract, (1907) 1 Ch. 695.]

(c) Hopkins v. Myall, 2 R. & M. 86; Cocker v. Quayle, 1 R. & M. 535; Reid v. Thompson, 2 Ir. Ch. Rep. 26.

(d) See Deeth v. Hale, 2 Moll. 317.

modifications of the estate the settlor may have contemplated, through whatever channel he may have originally intended his bounty to flow, the cestuis que trust, as the persons to be eventually benefited, are in equity, from the creation of the trust, and before the trustees have acted in the execution of it, the absolute beneficial proprietors. Thus, if a fund be given to trustees upon trust to accumulate until A. attains twenty-four, and then to transfer the gross amount to him, A., on attaining twenty-one, may, as the person exclusively interested, call for the immediate payment (a); [and a like principle is applicable where the legatees exclusively interested are charitable institutions (b).] So if real estate be devised with a direction that the devisees are not to have the enjoyment until they attain the age of twenty-five years, unless there be a clear indication of an intention on the part of the testator, not only that his devisees are not to have the enjoyment of the property until the age mentioned, but that some other person is to have the enjoyment—or unless the property is so clearly taken away from the devisees up to the time of their attaining twenty-five as to induce the Court to hold that, as to the previous rents and profits, there has been an intestacy—the Court does not hesitate to strike out of the will the direction as to non-enjoyment, and give the property at once to the devisees as the absolute owners (c). So if a legacy be bequeathed to trustees upon trust to purchase an annuity, the intended annuitant, if sui juris, [or the legal personal representative of the annuitant, if deceased, (d),] may claim the legacy without going through the form of investment (e); and if a fund be vested in trustees in trust for the personal support, clothing, and maintenance of A., an adult, A. is exclusively entitled to the benefit of the fund, and if he become bankrupt, it passes to his trustee in bankruptcy (f), [and directions by a testator as to mode of enjoyment by a legatee exclusively interested will not

(a) Josselyn v. Josselyn, 9 Sim. 63; Saunders v. Vautier, 4 Beav. 115; Cr. & Ph. 240; and see Curtis v. Lukin, 5 Beav. 147; Rocke v. Rocke, 9 Beav. 66; Magrath v. Morehead, 12 L. R. Eq. 491.

[(b) Harbin v. Masterman, (1894) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 184; S. C. in H. L. nom. Wharton v. Masterman, (1895) A. C. 186.]

(c) Gosling v. Gosling, Johns. 265.

[(d) Re Robbins, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 8; S. C. (1906) 2 Ch. 648 (where the annuitant died before probate); Re Brunning, (1909) 1 Ch. 276 (where a payment had been made by the trustees to the annuitant).]

(e) Dawson v. Hearn, 1 R. & M. 606, and cases there cited; Re Browne's Will, 27 Beav. 324; [Re Friend, (1898) W. N. 26; and see Re Couturier, (1907) 1 Ch. 470].

(f) Younghusband v. Gisborne, 1 Coll. 400; [and see Re Ashby, (1892) 1 Q. B. 872, and ante, p. 111.]

preclude his right to payment of his legacy (a), and even an express contract by the cestuis que trust with the settlor and the trustees not to put an end to the special trust, will not prevent their subsequently determining the trust, if there is no other person interested in or entitled to insist on the enforcement of the contract (b).]

Land to be sold and proceeds paid to A. A. is equitable owner of the land.

3. To illustrate this subject further, where a conveyance had been made to trustees upon trust to sell, and with the proceeds to purchase other lands to be settled on the daughters of W. J. as tenants in common in tail, with remainder to them in fee, and the daughters levied a fine of the lands to be sold to the uses and upon the trusts of their respective marriage settlements, the question was, whether the entail had been effectually barred; and Sir W. Grant said: "In the lands to be sold they (the daughters) had no interest, legal or equitable, expressly limited to them; but the equitable interest in those lands must have resided somewhere; the trustees themselves could not be the beneficial owners; and if they were mere trustees, there must have been some cestuis que trust. In order to ascertain who they are, a Court of Equity inquires for whose benefit the trust was created, and determines that those who are the objects of the trust have the interest in the thing which is the subject of it. Where money is given to be laid out in land, to be conveyed to A., though there is no gift of the money to him, yet in equity it is his, and he may elect not to have it laid out; so, on the other hand, where land is given upon trust to sell, and pay the produce to A., though no interest in the land is expressly given to him, in equity he is the owner, and the trustee must convey as he shall direct; if there are also other purposes for which it is sold, still he is entitled to the surplus of the price, as the equitable owner subject to those purposes; and if he provide for them he may keep the estate unsold. The daughters by electing to keep this estate have acquired the fee, and it was discharged of every trust to which it had been subject" (c).

Special trust proceeds till countermanded by the cestui que trust.

4. But until the cestui que trust or the joint cestuis que trust countermand the specific execution, the special trust will proceed; as if lands be devised to trustees upon trust to sell, and pay the proceeds to A., the property will remain personal estate in A.

[(a) Re Johnston, (1894) 3 Ch. 204; Re Skinner's Trusts, 1 Jo. & H. 102.]

[(b) Re Hale and Clarke, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 550; 34 W. R. 624; 55 L. T. N.S. 151.]

(c) Pearson v. Lane, 17 Ves. 101.

until he discharge the character impressed upon it by electing to take it as land (a).

Accounts.

5. As an incident to the beneficial enjoyment by the cestui que trust of his interest, he has a right to call upon the trustee for accurate information as to the state of the trust (b). Thus, in a trust for sale and payment of debts, the party entitled subject to the trust may say to the trustee, What estates have you sold? What is the amount of the moneys raised? What debts have been paid? &c. (c). It is therefore the bounden duty of the trustee to keep clear and distinct accounts of the property he administers, and he exposes himself to great risks by the omission (d). It is the first duty, observed Sir T. Plumer, of an accounting party, whether an agent, a trustee, a receiver, or an executor (for in this respect they all stand in the same situation), to be constantly ready with his accounts (e).

Sanction of co-trustee's accounts.

6. Not only is a trustee bound to render accurate accounts, but if he stand by and sanction the rendering of improper accounts by a defaulting trustee, he becomes liable himself for the misrepresentation (f).

Legatee.

7. A legatee, [though his interest be contingent or reversionary,] as being a quasi cestui que trust, is entitled to have a satisfactory explanation of the state of the testator's assets and an inspection of the accounts (g), but not to require a copy of the accounts at

(a) See Walter v. Maunde, 19 Ves. 429.

(b) Springett v. Dashwood, 2 Giff. 521; Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 58, per Lord Eldon; Newton v. Askew, 11 Beav. 152; Gray v. Haig, 20 Beav. 219; Burrows v. Walls, 5 De G. M. & G. 253; [Re Dartnall, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 474].

(c) Clarke v. Ormonde, Jac. 120, per Lord Eldon.

(d) Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 43, per Lord Eldon.

(e) Pearse v. Green, 1 J. & W. 140; and see Hardwicke v. Vernon, 14 Ves. 510; White v. Lincoln, 8 Ves. 363; Turner v. Corney, 5 Beav. 515; Anon. 4 Mad. 273; Jeffreys v. Marshall, 23 L. T. N.S. 548; 19 W. R. 94; Underwood v. Trower, W. N. 1867, p. 83; [In an action for money had and received the agent is, since the Judicature Acts, chargeable with interest from the date of refusal by him to pay; Harsant v. Blaine, 56 L. J. Q. B. 511.] As to the costs of suits arising out of a refusal to render accounts, see Springett v. Dashwood, 2 Giff. 521, and the cases there cited; Kemp v. Burn, 4 Giff. 348; Wroe v. Seed, 4 Giff. 425; Payne v. Evans, 18 L. R. Eq. 356; Heugh v. Scard, 33 L. T. N.S. 659; 24 W. R. 51; Jeffreys v. Marshall, ubi sup.; [Re Skinner, (1904) 1 Ch. 289]. In taking accounts against the trustee after a long lapse of time, the Court will show every indulgence it can to the trustee for enabling him to clear his accounts; Banks v. Cartwright, 15 W. R. 417. [And trustees (though one of them be a solicitor), on being requested by a person who claims to be interested as a cestui que trust to furnish accounts, are entitled to demand that they shall be guaranteed against the expense; Re Bosworth, 58 L. J. Ch. 432. As to audit of accounts under the Public Trustee Act, 1906 (6 Edw. VII. c. 55) see ante, Chap. XXIII., p. 705.]

(f) Horton v. Brocklehurst (No. 2), 29 Beav. 504; [and see Brazier v. Camp, 63 L. J. Q. B. 237; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1130, 1131].

(g) Ottley v. Gilby, 8 Beav. 602; [Re Tillott, (1892) 1 Ch. 86; Re Dartnall, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 474].

the expense of the estate (a). [Where the fund is invested in consols, the legatee is entitled to an authority from the trustee to the Bank of England enabling the legatee to ascertain for himself whether there is any charging order or notice in lieu of distringas affecting the fund (b).

[Notice of terms of condition.]

Where a legacy is given upon a condition, an executor, who takes a beneficial interest on the breach of the condition, owes no duty to the legatee to give him notice of the terms of the condition (c).]

(a) Ottley v. Gilby, 8 Beav. 602.

[(b) Re Tillott, (1892) 1 Ch. 86.]

[(c) Re Lewis, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 656, considering dictum of Lord Hardwicke in Chauncy v. Graydon, 2 Atk. 616, 619; and see Re Mackay, (1906) 1 Ch. 25.]

CHAPTER XXVIII

PROPERTIES OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST'S ESTATE

We shall next enter upon the properties of the cestui que trust's estate as affected by the acts of the cestui que trust, or by operation of law.

SECTION I

OF ASSIGNMENT

Under this head we shall treat: First. Of the assignable quality of an equitable interest; Secondly. Of the rule that the assignee of an equity is bound by all the equities affecting it; Thirdly. Of Notice to the trustee; and, Fourthly. Of the rule Qui prior est tempore potior est jure.

First. Of the assignable quality of an equitable interest.

General rule.

1. It may be laid down as a general rule that an equitable interest may be assigned, though it be a mere possibility (a), and that either with or without the intervention of the trustee (b). And the assignee of the cestui que trust may call upon the trustee to clothe the equitable interest with the legal estate, and on his refusal may by suit compel a conveyance without making the assignor a party (c). But a mere right to sue a trustee for an alleged breach of trust, and which right is not annexed to any transfer of the trust estate, or any part thereof, is not assignable, or at least will not pass by a deed for 5s. consideration so as to enable the nominal purchaser to sue in respect of it (d).

(a) Courthope v. Heyman, Cart. 25; Warmstrey v. Tanfield, 1 Ch. Rep. 29; Goring v. Bickerstaff, 1 Ch. Ca. 8; Cornbury v. Middleton, Ib. 211, per Judges Wyld and Rainsford; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 195, per Sir T. Clarke; 21 Vin. Ab. 516, pl. 1; Smith v. Grant, W. N. 1874, pp. 78, 120.

(b) Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 127, per Lord Alvanley.

(c) Goodson v. Ellisson, 3 Russ. 583; Jones v. Farrell, 1 De G. & J. 208; [and see Bence v. Shearman, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 582].

(d) Hill v. Boyle, 4 L. R. Eq. 260; [but see Re Park Gate Wagon Co., 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 234].

Restraint of alienation.

2. A restriction against alienation (except in the case of a married woman) will have no more effect in equitable than in legal interests, but will be rejected as contravening the policy of the law (a); but in a limitation to the separate use of a feme covert, in order to give full effect to the estate itself, a clause against anticipation during the coverture is allowed (b).

Equitable interest in land.

3. As to lands, the transfer of an equitable interest might before the Statute of Frauds have been made by parol, but by the 9th section of that Act all grants and assignments of any trust or confidence are required to be in writing signed by the party granting or assigning the same, or else are utterly void. A writing, therefore, is all that is necessary, but it is the practice to employ the same species of instrument and the same form of words in the transfer of equitable as of legal estates.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 106.

4. By the Real Property Act, 1845 (c), it is enacted that an assignment of a chattel interest in lands not being copyhold shall be void at law unless made by deed, but it is conceived that this enactment affects legal interests only, and that the legislature cannot have intended to require a more solemn instrument for the assignment of an equitable chattel interest than for the conveyance of the equitable fee.

Equitable entail.

5. The power of an equitable tenant in tail to dispose of the equitable fee-simple has been differently viewed at different periods. At common law all inheritable estates were in fee-simple, and it was the statute de donis (d) that first gave rise to entails and expectant remainders. As this statute was long prior to the introduction of uses, had equity followed the analogy of the common law only, a trust limited to A. and the heirs of his body, and in default of issue to B., would have been construed a fee-simple conditional, and the remainder over would have been void; but the known legal estates of the day, whether parcel of the common law or ingrafted by statute, were copied without distinction into the system of trusts, and, equitable entails indisputably existing, the question in constant dispute was, by what process they were to be barred. After much fluctuation (e), it was finally established by Lord Hardwicke, that as entails with expectant remainders had gained a footing

(a) Snowdon v. Dales, 6 Sim. 524; Green v. Spicer, 1 R. & M. 395; Graves v. Dolphin, 1 Sim. 66; Brandon v. Robinson, 18 Ves. 429; Rochford v. Hackman, 9 Hare, 480; [Re Fitzgerald, (1903) 1 Ch. 933, 940; (1904) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 573, 593.]

(b) See post, Chap. XXVIII., s. 6.

(c) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 3.

(d) 13 Ed. 1. st. 1, c. 1.

(e) See an account of the fluctuation in 3rd. ed. 601-604.

in trusts by analogy to the statute de donis, a Court of Equity was bound to follow the analogy throughout, and therefore that a tenant in tail of a trust could not bar his issue, or the remainderman, except by an assurance analogous to one which would have been a bar had the entail been of the legal estate.

Summary of the law before the Fines and Recoveries Act.

6. The doctrines of equity, as finally settled upon this principle, were as follows:—

a. For a good equitable recovery there must have been an equitable tenant to the præcipe, that is the beneficial owner (a) of the first equitable freehold must necessarily have concurred (b).

β. An equitable recovery was a bar to equitable only, and not to legal remainders (c).

γ. An equitable recovery was not vitiated by the circumstance that the equitable tenant to the præcipe had also the legal freehold (d).

δ. An equitable remainder was well barred, though it was vested in a person who had also the legal fee (e).

Fines and Recoveries Act.

7. At the present day, by the operation of the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833 (f), the equitable tenant in tail may dispose of (g) the equitable fee by the same modes of assurance and with the same formalities as if he were tenant in tail of the legal estate.

Enrolment of disentailing deed of copyholds.

8. A deed to bar the entail of an equitable interest in copyholds must, though not so expressly enacted, be entered on the Court Rolls within six calendar months from the date thereof (h).

Estates pur autre vie.

9. An estate pur autre vie was not even at law within the statute de donis; but a quasi entail (an estate of the most anomalous character) was introduced into legal estates, and was thence imported into trusts. The present doctrine of the Court appears to be this:—

a. If quasi tenant in tail in equity, with remainder over, be in possession, he may at any time, by a simple conveyance, dispose of the absolute interest, as against the issue and the

(a) Penny v. Allen, 7 De G. M. & G. 425.

(b) North v. Williams, 2 Ch. Ca. 64, per Lord Nottingham; Highway v. Banner, 1 B. C. C. 586; and see Wickham v. Wickham, 18 Ves. 418.

(c) Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 128, per Lord Alvanley; Salvin v. Thornton, Amb. 585; S. C., 1 B. C. C. 73, note.

(d) Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 126, per Lord Alvanley; Marwood v. Turner, 3 P. W. 171; Goodrick v. Brown, 2 Ch. Ca. 49; S. C., Freem. 180.

(e) Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 120; Robinson v. Comyns, Cas. t. Talb. 164; S. C., 1 Atk. 172.

(f) 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 74.

[(g) A mere declaration of trust is not such a disposition as will bar an estate tail under the Act; Green v. Paterson, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 95; Carter v. Carter, (1896) 1 Ch. 62.]

(h) Honywood v. Foster, 30 Beav. (No. 1), 1; [Green v. Paterson, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 95; Gibbons v. Snape, 1 De G. & Sm. 621].

remainderman, and may even bind them in equity by his contract.

β. But if quasi tenant in tail be in remainder after a prior estate under the same settlement, he must have the consent of the tenant for life or other precedent freeholder, as otherwise, though he may bind his issue, he cannot destroy the remainder.

γ. If lands held pur autre vie be limited to or in trust for A. and the heirs of his body, with remainder over, the entirety of the estate is vested in A., and the issue and the remainderman stand in the light of mere special occupants, that is, they have no title jure suo to any present interest, but merely take the estate by devolution where the owner has made no disposition.

δ. A limitation in quasi entail of an estate pur autre vie has been commonly assimilated to an estate in fee-conditional; but the natures of the two estates are not to be confounded. The tenant of a fee-conditional can only aliene after issue born, but tenant in quasi entail pur autre vie may dispose absolutely as above without reference to the fact of there being issue or not (a).

Assignee bound by all equities.

Secondly. The assignee of an equity is bound by all the equities affecting it (b).

1. In order to understand the limits of the rule, it will be necessary before entering upon the cases to make a few preliminary remarks.

Application of rule to choses in action.

If A. be possessed of a legal chose in action (c), as if he be obligee of a bond, and assign it in equity for valuable consideration, here at the time of the assignment no equity existed in A.; and yet, as this case is confessedly within the operation of the rule, the maxim might be more accurately expressed by saying that the owner of an equity by assignment is bound by all the equities affecting what is assigned.

Exception as to conflicting equities of persons claiming under assignor.

Again, if A., having a debt due to him, or being entitled to an equitable interest, charges it in favour of B., the equity which remains in A. is the debt or equitable interest subject to the charge. If, therefore, A. afterwards assign the same subject matter to C., it might be thought that C. could take nothing more than the interest of A. subject to the charge. This, however, is not the case, for the priorities of B. and C. will be regulated by the better or inferior equities of the respective parties. The rule does not mean that the assignee of an equity shall be bound by all the equities affecting the assignor as between him and previous purchasers or incumbrancers under the assignor, but only by such as affect the assignor as between himself or his debtor and any persons not claiming under himself. The assignor can indisputably only give what he himself has, but as between two persons claiming through him a conflict of right may well arise. This will be better understood by the instances exemplifying the rule, to which we now proceed.

(a) See the law upon this subject collected by Lord St Leonards in Allen v. Allen, 1 Conn. & Laws. 427; 2 Dru. & War. 307; and see Edwards v. Champion, 1 Eq. Rep. 419; Betty v. Humphreys, 9 I. R. Eq. 332; Batteste v. Maunsell, 10 I. R. Eq. 97, 314; [Re Barber's Settled Estates, 18 Ch. D. 624; Blackhall v. Gibson, 2 L. R. Ir. 49].

[(b) A right of set-off subsisting between the assignor and the person against whom the equity is enforceable, being a right not attaching to the equity, but personal to the parties, will not affect the assignee; Beresford v. Chambers, 5 Ir. Eq. R. 482; Burrough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558; Re Dublin and Rathcoole Railway Company, 1 L. R. Ir. 98.]

(c) Choses in action are now made assignable if notice in writing be given to the debtor or trustee, [but they are expressly made subject in the hands of the assignee to the subsisting equities]. See the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25, subs. 6; post, p. 919.

Transfer of equitable mortgage.

2. A person taking an equitable mortgage, with notice of a prior charge, transfers his mortgage to another who has no notice of the prior charge. The assignee is bound by the equity with which the assignor was affected (a).

Transfer of equitable interest obtained by fraud.

3. A. mortgages or sells an equitable interest to B., which mortgage or sale is fraudulently obtained, and then B. transfers to C. Here C., whether he has notice of the fraud or not, takes subject to A.'s equity to have the mortgage or sale set aside (b).

Trustee or cestui que trust debtor to trust estate.

4. A trustee or executor has a beneficial interest, but is a debtor to the trust or executorship, and then assigns his beneficial interest to a stranger. The assignee cannot claim the beneficial interest without discharging the debt (c). And a similar equity attaches upon an assignee from a cestui que trust who is a debtor to the estate (d), [or whose interest is liable to be impounded by reason of his complicity in a breach of trust (e). And where at

(a) Ford v. White, 16 Beav. 120.

(b) Cockell v. Taylor, 15 Beav. 103; Barnard v. Hunter, 2 Jur. N.S. 1213; Daubeny v. Cockburn, 1 Mer. 626, see 638; Parker v. Clarke, 30 Beav. 54; [but as to the last case, see Bickerton v. Walker, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 151; French v. Hope, 56 L. J. Ch. 363; Powell v. Browne, (1907) W. N. 152, 228; and see Perham v. Kempster, (1907) 1 Ch. 373, where a bank, knowing that a customer, with whom they were dealing, was a trustee mortgaging trust estate, were subject to a prior equity, notwithstanding their subsequent acquisition of the legal estate].

(c) Clack v. Holland, 19 Beav. 262; Barnett v. Sheffield, 1 De G. M. & G. 371; Cole v. Muddle, 10 Hare, 186; Wilkins v. Sibley, 4 Giff. 442.

(d) Priddy v. Rose, 3 Mer. 86; Willes v. Greenhill (No. 1), 29 Beav. 376; Stephens v. Venables (No. 1), 30 Beav. 625; [Corr v. Corr, 3 L. R. Ir. 435; Re Moore, 45 L. T. N.S. 466; Re Langham, 74 L. T. N.S. 611].

[(e) Bolton v. Curre, (1895) 1 Ch. 544.]

the time of the assignment of a legacy, a suit by the legatee was pending to recall the probate, and the suit failed with costs to be paid by the legatee, the executor was allowed to set off the costs against the legacy, notwithstanding the assignment (a). But where assets have been set apart and appropriated by executors to meet a trust legacy, no part of the appropriated assets can be retained or impounded to satisfy a debt from the legatee to the general estate of the testator, for the right of the legatee or his assignee is against the holders of the appropriated assets in their character of trustees, while the liability of the legatee is to them in their capacity of executors (b).] And where the assignor is a trustee or executor it is immaterial whether the debt to the trust or executorship was contracted before or after the assignment of the beneficial interest (c), [or whether the beneficial interest of the trustee devolved on him directly under the trust instrument or was derived subsequently by purchase or otherwise (d)]. But if the assignor did not become trustee or executor until after the date of the assignment there is no equity against the assignee in respect of a subsequently incurred debt (e). If the assignor be a cestui que trust, the trustee after notice cannot create any new charge or right of set-off, as between him and the assignor, so as to bind the assignee (f).

[The right to consolidate mortgages being an equitable right, the assignee of a mortgagee can have no better right to consolidate than his assignor (g).]

Debtor and creditor.

5. A creditor transfers his debt to a person who has no notice that part of it has been discharged. The assignee is, nevertheless, bound by the state of the accounts at the time of the assignment (h); and when the assignee does not give notice to the

[(a) Re Knapman, 18 Ch. D. 300; Re Jones, (1897) 2 Ch. 190. It must be borne in mind that the right to set off costs against costs in another matter or against a money payment is, in general, subject to the solicitor's lien, and can only be exercised with his consent, or where his interest will not be prejudiced by the exercise; Ex parte Cleland, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 808; Re Harrald, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 435; 48 L. T. N.S. 352; 53 L. J. N.S. Ch. 505; 51 L. T. N.S. 441. But the lien does not interfere with the right to set off costs payable out of a trust fund against a debt due to that trust, the lien of the solicitor being itself subject to this equitable right of set-off; Re Harrald, 53 L. J. N.S. Ch. 505; 51 L. T. N.S. 441.]

[(b) Ballard v. Marsden, 14 Ch. D. 374.]

(c) Hopkins v. Gowan, 1 Moll. 561; Morris v. Livie, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 380; [Re Hervey, 61 L. T. N.S. 429].

[(d) Doering v. Doering, 42 Ch. D. 203; Jacubs v. Rylance, 17 L. R. Eq. 341; and see Re Carew, (1896) 1 Ch. 527, 535; S. C., (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 311.]

(e) Irby v. Irby, 35 Beav. 632.

(f) Stephens v. Venables (No. 1), 30 Beav. 625.

[(g) Bird v. Wenn, 33 Ch. D. 215.]

(h) Ord v. White, 3 Beav. 357; Smith v. Parkes, 16 Beav. 115; Rolt v. White, 31 Beav. 520; Re Natal Investment Company, 3 L. R. Ch. App.

debtor of the assignment so as to dissolve the relation of debtor and creditor between the original parties, the assignee is compelled to allow the payments to the creditor subsequent to the assignment (a); [unless the knowledge of another is to be imputed to the debtor, as it may be where he has put himself entirely in the hands of his solicitor (b)].

Set-off as affecting assignee.

6. It was decided in the case of Cavendish v. Geaves (c), that the assignee is liable to the same equities as his assignor, not merely in respect of the actual payments, but in regard to the right of set-off. In that case Sir John Romilly, M.R., laid down the following canons:—

Cavendish v. Geaves.

α. If a customer borrow money from his bankers, and give a bond to secure it, and afterwards, on his general banking account, a balance is due to the customer from the same bankers, who are obligees of the bond, a right to set off the balance against the money due on the bond will exist both at law and in equity.

β. If the firm be altered, and the bond be assigned by the original obligees to the new firm, and notice of that assignment be given to the debtor (d), and if, after this, a balance be due to him from the new firm (the assignees of the bond), then no right of set-off exists at law, because the assignment of the chose in action would be inoperative at law, and the obligees of the bond and the debtors on the general account are different persons; but as, in equity, the persons entitled to the bond and the debtors on the general account are the same persons, a right of set-off exists in equity, and the customer is entitled to set off the balance due to him against the bond debt due from him.

γ. If the bond be assigned to strangers, and no notice of that assignment be given to the original debtor (the obligor of the bond), then his rights remain the same. Thus, if the assignment be made to the stranger before any alteration of the firm, then the right of set-off still remains at law, where the obligees of the bond and the debtors on the general account are the same persons, and in equity also, if the matter of account be brought into Chancery, as the assignees of the chose in action would be bound by the equities affecting their assignors.

355; [and see Government of Newfoundland v. Newfoundland Railway Company, 13 App. Cas. 199, 210, 213].

(a) Norrish v. Marshall, 5 Mad. 475; and see Stocks v. Dobson, 4 De G. M. & G. 11; [Turner v. Smith, (1901) 1 Ch. 213].

[(b) Dixon v. Winch, (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 736.]

(c) 24 Beav. 163, see 173; [see Re Dublin and Rathcoole Railway Company, 1 L. R. Ir. 98].

(d) See as to this the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25.

δ. If notice of the assignment be given to the original debtor, no right of set-off exists in equity for the balance subsequently due by the bankers to the obligor; because the persons entitled to the bond are, as the obligor knew, different persons from the debtors to him on the general account, with whom he had continued to deal.

ε. If the assignment of the bond be made to the new firm, with notice to the obligor, the new firm would, if debtors on the general account, be liable to the same rights of set-off in equity as if they had been the obligees.

ζ. If after the alteration of the firm and after the assignment of the bond to the new firm, with notice to the debtor or obligor, the bond be assigned by the new firm to strangers, and no notice of that second assignment given to the obligor, then the rights of set-off still remain to him in equity as against the first assignees, of whose assignment he had notice, and the second assignees would in equity be bound by it; because the assignees of the bond take it subject to all the equities which affect the assignors.

Set-off recognised in equity previously to statutes of set-off.

7. It may be observed that the right of set-off, though unknown to the common law, was recognised in equity previously to the statutory enactments on the subject. Thus where A. and B. were mutually indebted by simple contract dealings, and B. died also indebted to others by simple contract and to one by specialty, in such a case, though it was contended that if A. could set off his own debt, he was to that extent paid in full, in preference to the other simple contract creditors, and at the expense of the specialty creditor, yet a Court of Equity presumed an agreement between A. and B. that such set-off should be had, and as B. in his lifetime could not have recovered from A. without the set-off, it held that the personal representative of B. was bound by the same equity (a).

Autre droit.

8. The equity jurisdiction in respect of set-off has been chiefly, if not entirely, confined to cases where one or both of the cross demands is or are of an equitable kind (b). And it seems to be established that set-off will not be allowed, even in equity, where the mutual demands are between the parties in different rights; as if A. give a legacy to B., and appoint C. his executor, or executor and residuary legatee, B. may sue C. for the legacy, and C. cannot set off a debt owing by B. to C. not as executor, but in C.'s own right (a). [So where an executorship account was kept with bankers in the joint names of two executors, one of whom was the residuary legatee under the will, but the executorship account had never been wound up so as to make the executors mere trustees for the residuary legatee, on the failure of the bankers it was held that the residuary legatee was not entitled to have another account of his own with the bankers, which was overdrawn, set off against the executorship account; for "the case could not be brought within the rules of equitable set-off or mutual credit, unless the residuary legatee was so much the person beneficially interested that a Court of Equity, without any terms or further inquiry, would have obliged the other executor to transfer the account into the name of the residuary legatee alone" (b). But where, at the time of the failure of a bank, two accounts were standing in the name of a customer, one his private account, which was overdrawn, and the other an executorship account, and the executor, who was also residuary legatee, had assets in his hand, independently of the balance at the bank, more than sufficient to satisfy the pecuniary legacies and all other claims against the estate, it was held that he was entitled to set off the one account against the other, on the ground that there was a clear legal right of set-off, and that there were no such equities affecting the money standing to the executorship account as to prevent the customer from treating the balance as a fund to which he was beneficially as well as legally entitled (a). And an executor or administrator] may make such admissions in an action as to preclude himself from objecting to the set-off at the hearing (b). And an admission of assets for payment of the legacy will not be material, for the right of set-off exists independently of the amount of the assets (c). A legacy to one of the members of a firm may be set off against a debt owing by the firm (d), [and money due to a testator from a specific legatee of the profits of the testator's business may be retained by the executors out of such profits received by them pursuant to the will (e).] But a legacy bequeathed in reversion to a married woman, and assigned by her under the Married Women's Reversionary Interests Act, 1857 (f), cannot, when it becomes payable, be retained by the executor as against the assignee in discharge of a debt by the husband to the testator's estate (g).

(a) Downam v. Matthews, Pr. Ch. 580; see Jeffs v. Wood, 2 P. W. 128; and see 2 G. 2. c. 22; 8 G. 2. c. 24, s. 5; [since repealed by 42 & 43 Vict. c. 59, and 46 & 47 Vict. c. 49; and see the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), and Rules of Supreme Court, Ord. XIX. Rule 3].

(b) See now the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), and Rules of Supreme Court, Ord. XIX. Rule 3. [Where a trustee sues to recover a debt due to him as such, the defendant is entitled to plead that the cestui que trust is indebted to him in a sum for unliquidated damages exceeding the amount of the claim: Bankes v. Jarvis, (1903) 1 K. B. 549.]

(a) Whitaker v. Rush, Amb. 407; Bishop v. Church, 3 Atk. 691; Freeman v. Lomas, 9 Hare, 109; Chapman v. Derby, 2 Vern. 117; Medlicott v. Bower, 1 Ves. 207; Middleton v. Pollock, 20 L. R. Eq. 29; [Ballard v. Marsden, 14 Ch. D. 374]. Cherry v. Boultbee, 4 M. & Cr. 442, which was questioned by V. C. Wigram in Freeman v. Lomas, 9 Hare, 115, turned on the facts that C. F. Boultbee never proved her debt so as to make it a liability of the assignees, and that T. Boultbee never claimed his certificate, so that his liability remained, and thus the legacy was owing to one set of persons, viz. the assignees, and the debt from another, viz. T. Boultbee. In Bell v. Bell, 17 Sim. 127, it does not appear whether the creditor had or not proved under the insolvency. If he had, the case could not be supported on the authority of Cherry v. Boultbee, but if he had not it must stand or fall with that case. It is believed that in a subsequent stage of the suit, V. C. Kindersley decided the other way. See also Stammers v. Elliott, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 195; Taylor v. Taylor, 20 L. R. Eq. 159; [Re Hodgson, 9 Ch. D. 673, in which case Cherry v. Boultbee was followed].

[(b) Ex parte Morier, 12 Ch. D. (C.A.) 491.]

[Debt statute-barred.]

[And although the remedy for the debt is barred by the Statute of Limitations, yet as the debt itself still subsists, the executor may deduct the amount of it from the legacy (h), as he is entitled to say that the legatee has so much of the assets already in his hands, and consequently is satisfied pro tanto (i); and in a recent case, where residuary real and personal estate was given to trustees and executors upon trusts for conversion, payment of debts, and distribution of the proceeds, it was held that beneficiaries, from whom debts, statute-barred, were owing to the testator, were bound to bring the debts into account as against their shares of the proceeds of sale of the residuary real estate, as well as of the personal estate, and it was said that the

[(a) Bailey v. Finch, 7 L. R. Q. B. 34; and see the observations on this case in Ex parte Morier, 12 Ch. D. (C.A.) 491, where Cotton, L.J., at p. 502, observed: "As I understand it, the principle of the decision (whether right or wrong) was this, not that the fund was a trust fund from the nature of the account, or that the bankers had notice of that, but that they had notice that it was an account against which claims were likely to be made, and that if claims had at the time of the bankruptcy been made against it, they would have prevented the legal right of set-off from arising, but that, as it was not shown there were any equitable claims against the fund, the legal right of set-off could not be interfered with."]

(b) Jones v. Mossop, 9 Hare, 568, 576.

(c) Freeman v. Lomas, 9 Hare, 109.

(d) Smith v. Smith, 3 Giff. 263, see 270.

[(e) Re Taylor, (1894) 1 Ch. 671.]

(f) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 57, see ante, p. 21.

(g) Re Batchelor, 16 L. R. Eq. 481; [and see Re Briant, 39 Ch. D. 471].

[(h) Courtenay v. Williams, 3 Ha. 539; S. C. on appeal, 15 L. J. N.S. Ch. 204; Coates v. Coates, 10 Jur. N.S. 532; 33 Beav. 249; Gee v. Liddell, 35 Beav. 629; Re Cordwell, 20 L. R. Eq. 644; and see Cherry v. Boultbee, 4 My. & Cr. 442; Re Watson, (1896) 1 Ch. 925; Re Lloyd, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 385, 401.]

[(i) Courtenay v. Williams, 15 L. J. N.S. Ch. 208.]

principle to be deduced from the authorities was that a person who owes an estate money, that is, who is bound to increase the general mass of the estate by a contribution of his own, cannot claim an aliquot share given to him out of that mass without making the contribution which completes it (a). But the principle was held inapplicable as to freehold and leasehold properties specifically given to the beneficiaries (b); nor does the principle apply so as to entitle executors to the benefit of a statute-barred debt as against a person who is claiming a legal right to damages against the testator's estate (c), nor unless the legal relation of debtor and creditor subsists (d).

[Debt due by testator and debt due to executor.]

A mortgagee who, on realising his security after the death of the mortgagor, had a surplus in his hands after paying himself the mortgage debt, was held not to be entitled, as against the executor of the mortgagor, to retain such surplus in satisfaction of an unsecured debt owing to him by the mortgagor (e); and North, J., in so deciding, said that there was ample authority for the proposition, that "there can be no set-off between a debt due by a testator and a debt accruing to his executor."

A right to damages against an assignor which does not ripen into a debt until after his assignment of a debt due to him, cannot be set off against such debt (f); and a debt due from a liquidating debtor who has not obtained his discharge, cannot, during three years from the close of the liquidation, be set off against a legacy bequeathed to him (g); and executors are not entitled to retain a share of residue as against future instalments of a debt payable by the legatee of the share to the testator (h).

[Bankruptcy of debtor or creditor.]

Where a legatee becomes bankrupt after the death of the testator, the executors, not having proved in the bankruptcy, may retain out of his legacy the amount paid by them in respect of a liability incurred by the testator as surety for the legatee (i), but it would seem that there can be no such retainer so long as the

[(a) Re Akerman, (1891) 3 Ch. 212, per Kekewich, J.; and see Re Taylor, (1894) 1 Ch. 671; Re Goy & Co., [1900] 2 Ch. 149, 153; Re Palmer's Decoration and Furnishing Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 743; Re Rhodesia Goldfields, (1910) 1 Ch. 239.]

[(b) Re Akerman, sup.; and see Re Taylor, sup.]

[(c) Dingle v. Coppen, (1899) 1 Ch. 726.]

[(d) Re Bruce, (1908) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 682, where a legatee, entitled to a share of residue under a will, was held not bound to bring into account the amount of a statute-barred debt due to the estate from a testatrix of whom he was sole residuary legatee and also an executor.]

[(e) Re Gregson, 36 Ch. D. 223.]

[(f) Ex parte Theys, 22 Ch. D. 122; 25 Ch. D. (C.A.) 587; Re Goy & Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 149, 153; Re Brown & Gregory, (1904) 1 Ch. 627, 631.]

[(g) Re Rees, 60 L. T. N.S. 260; and see Re Smith, 22 Ch. D. 586.]

[(h) Re Abrahams, (1908) 2 Ch. 69.]

[(i) Re Watson, (1896) 1 Ch. 925.]

principal creditor remains unpaid (a). A person who owes a debt to a bankrupt at the time of his bankruptcy and has no right of set-off, cannot acquire such a right by taking an assignment of another debt due to a creditor of the bankrupt (b); nor can a creditor who has at the time of the debtor's bankruptcy no right of set-off, acquire such a right by any subsequent transaction (c). And where there are mutual dealings between a debtor and his creditors, the line as to set-off must, as a general rule and in the absence of special circumstances, be drawn at the date of the commencement of the bankruptcy (d).

[Purchaser completing bankrupt's contract without notice of bankruptcy.]

9. Where a bankrupt before adjudication contracted to sell leasehold property, and received a deposit in respect of the purchase-money, and after the adjudication, but before the purchaser had any notice of any act of bankruptcy, received the balance of the purchase-money from the purchaser, it was held that the trustee in bankruptcy could not be compelled to assign the lease to the purchaser except upon the terms of his paying him the purchase-money. The equity of the purchaser under the contract was to have the property conveyed to him upon payment of the purchase-money to the person to whom the property belonged; and it was the purchaser's misfortune if he paid the money to a person who had ceased to be the owner of the property (e).

[Trustees holding on separate trusts.]

10. Where a policy of assurance on the life of H. was taken in the names of trustees, and a settlement was executed binding the policy in the hands of the trustees, but it was expressly provided that nothing in the settlement should vest in the trustees any bonus, and H. obtained possession of and misappropriated part of the trust funds, it was held, in an action by the executrix of H. to recover bonuses received by the trustees after the death of H., that the trustees held the bonuses under a resulting trust independently of the settlement, and could not retain them against the losses incurred in respect of the funds misappropriated by H., and that as the claim of the executrix was in respect of money which was never payable to H. personally, but only after his death, while the claim of the trustees was for money due from him in his lifetime, there was no right of set-off on the footing of mutual debts (f).

[(a) Re Binns, (1896) 2 Ch. 584.]

[(b) Per Lord Selborne, L.C., Ex parte Theys, 25 Ch. D. 592.]

[(c) Re Gillespie, 14 Q. B. D. 963.]

[(d) Re Gillespie; Ex parte Reid, 14 Q. B. D. 963; 33 W. R. 707.]

[(e) Ex parte Rabbidge, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 367.]

[(f) Hallett v. Hallett, 13 Ch. D. 232; and see Rees v. Watts, 11 Exch. 410; Newell v. National Provincial Bank of England, 1 C. P. D. 496.]

11. Shares in joint stock and other companies, being by various statutes made transferable at law, rest upon a different footing from ordinary choses in action (a), and a bonâ fide transferee for value of such shares who has completed his legal title to them by registration or otherwise, or, semble, who has fulfilled all necessary conditions to give him as between himself and the company "a present, absolute, unconditional right to have the transfer registered, before the company is informed of the existence of a better title" (b), will not be bound by the equities which affected the transferor (c), but until the transferee has thus acquired the full status of a shareholder (or, semble, its equivalent as above indicated), a prior equitable title will prevail against him (d); and of course even the full legal title will not avail if it is acquired with notice of a prior equitable title (e). [Shares in companies.]

12. In the case of securities issued by companies, the following rules seem to apply— [Securities issued by companies.]

(1) Where a company has power to issue securities, an irregularity in the issue cannot be set up against even the original holder if he has a right to presume omnia rite acta.

(2) If the security be legally transferable, such an irregularity, and a fortiori any equity against the original holder, cannot be asserted by the company against a bonâ fide transferee for value without notice.

[(a) The question whether shares are choses in action was considered but not decided in Colonial Bank v. Whinney, 11 App. Cas. 426, 439; S. C., 30 Ch. D. (C.A.) 261, where it was held that shares in an incorporated company, whether choses in action or not, were things in action within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 44, sub-s. iii.]

[(b) Société Générale de Paris v. Walker, 11 App. Cas. 20, 29, per Lord Selborne. In applying this principle the difficulty would seem to be to ascertain the point of time at which the transferee acquires the right indicated. By the Companies Act, 1862, s. 22, shares are "capable of being transferred in manner provided by the regulations of the company," so that in many cases the solution of the question will turn upon the construction of the company's articles of association, see Moore v. North Western Bank, (1891) 2 Ch. 599, 603, and cases there cited; Ireland v. Hart, (1902) 1 Ch. 522.]

[(c) Société Générale de Paris v. Walker, ubi sup.; Roots v. Williamson, 38 Ch. D. 485; Moore v. North Western Bank, ubi sup.; Briggs v. Massey, 42 L. T. N.S. 49; London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, (1892) A. C. 201, distinguishing Sheffield v. London Joint Stock Bank, 13 App. Cas. 333; Collis v. Hibernian Bank, 31 L. R. Ir. 261; Rearden v. Provincial Bank, (1896) 1 I. R. 532. That knowledge of the existence of debentures which are a mere floating security is not equivalent to notice of an assignment, see Biggerstaff v. Rowatt's Wharf Co., (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 93. As to the general law upon the subject (which it is beyond the scope of this work to enter upon) see Lindley on Companies, 6th ed., p. 652, et seq., and Buckley on Companies, 8th ed. p. 517.]

[(d) See Powell v. London and Provincial Bank, (1893) 2 Ch. 555, 562.]

[(e) Nanney v. Morgan, 37 Ch. D. 346; Dodds v. Hills, 2 H. & M. 424.]

(3) Nor can such an equity be set up against an equitable transferee, whether the security was transferable at law or not, if by the original conduct of the company in issuing the security, or by their subsequent dealing with the transferee, he has a superior equity.

(4) Nor can such an equity be set up against an equitable transferee of a security, purporting on the face of it to be legally transferable, who has taken an equitable transfer bonâ fide and without notice from a transferor who, by reason of notice of the irregularity, could not have enforced the security. But in this case the transferee can only recover the amount actually advanced or given by him upon the transfer (a).]

Thirdly. Of Notice to the trustee.

Notice.

1. As between assignor and assignee notice to the trustee is not necessary for the completion of an assignment (b), even though the assignment be voluntary (c). Nor is notice necessary for the purpose of making the assignment effectual as against subsequent volunteers (d), or as against persons claiming only a general equity under the assignor, such as a judgment creditor who obtains a charging order (e), or a garnishee order under Order XLV. (f), or equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver subject to existing incumbrances (g). But the omission of notice may be followed by very dangerous consequences by the operation of the

[(a) Per Kay, J., Re Romford Canal Company, 24 Ch. D. 85, 92; Fountaine v. Carmarthen Railway Company, 5 L. R. Eq. 316; Webb v. Commissioners of Herne Bay, 5 L. R. Q. B. 642; Re Agra and Masterman's Bank, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 391; Re Blakely Ordnance Company, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 154; Dickson v. Swansea Vale Railway Company, 4 L. R. Q. B. 44; Higgs v. Northern Assam Tea Co., 4 L. R. Ex. 387.]

(b) Burn v. Carvalho, 4 M. & Cr. 702; Bell v. London and North Western Railway Company, 15 Beav. 552; Dufaur v. Professional Life Assurance Company, 25 Beav. 599; Re Lowe's Settlement, 30 Beav. 95; [Gorringe v. Irwell India Rubber and Gutta Percha Works, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 128].

(c) Donaldson v. Donaldson, Kay, 711.

(d) Justice v. Wynne, 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 289; Re Webb's Policy, 36 L. J. N.S. Ch. 341.

(e) Scott v. Hastings, 4 K. &. J. 633; [Pickering v. Ilfracombe Railway Co., 3 L. R. C. P. 235; Robinson v. Nesbitt, Ib. 264; Gill v. Continental Gas Co., 7 L. R. Ex. 332; Punchard v. Tomkins, 31 W. R. 286; Re Bell, 54 L. T. N.S. 370; Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. 1].

[(f) Re General Horticultural Co., 32 Ch. D. 512; Badeley v. Consolidated Bank, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 238; Re Marquis of Anglesey, (1903) 2 Ch. 727; but as to the effect of a Scotch arrestment, which is equivalent to assignment with notice, see Re Queensland Mercantile Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 536; (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 219; and that notice of an action pending as to the subject matter of the assignment is equivalent to notice of a solicitor's right to a lien under the Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28, see Cole v. Eley, (1894) 2 Q. B. 180; Ib. (C.A.) 350; Faithful v. Ewen, 7 Ch. D. 495.]

[(g) Arden v. Arden, 29 Ch. D. 702.]

reputed ownership clause under the bankrupt laws (a), or the acquisition of priority by subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers. And if the title be a derivative one, and not one that appears upon the face of the instrument creating the settlement, the trustee may, having neither express nor constructive notice, pay upon the footing of the original title, and in that case he cannot be made to pay over again to the assignee under the derivative title (b).

Priority of charge from priority of notice,

2. If the owner of an equitable interest in money or stock, or generally of any chose in action, assign it to A., who gives no notice of the transfer to the trustee or debtor, and then for valuable consideration assigns it over again to B., who having had no notice of the prior assignment when he advanced his money, gives notice of his own assignment to the trustee or debtor, in this case B. has priority over A. That a purchaser's notice will secure to him this advantage of priority has been only settled in modern times. In Cooper v. Fynmore (c), Sir T. Plumer, V.C., decided that mere neglect to give notice would not postpone an incumbrancer, but that such laches ought to be shown as, in a Court of Equity, would amount to fraud; but in Dearle v. Hall (d), and Loveridge v. Cooper (e), nine years after, his Honour, when Master of the Rolls, came to a contrary conclusion, and delivered a very elaborate argument that notice would gain priority. His Honour's judgments were affirmed on appeal (f), and the doctrine, [whatever may be the difficulty of defining the precise principle upon which it is based (g)], has been recognised in numerous subsequent cases (h).

Dearle v. Hall.

(a) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 44. [See ante, p. 271; and see Ex parte Arkwright, 3 Mont. D. & De G. 129; Bartlett v. Bartlett, 1 De G. & J. 127; Re Webb's Policy, 36 L.J.N.S. Ch. 341; Daniel v. Freeman, 11 I. R. Eq. 233, 638; Re Irving, 7 Ch. D. 419, where it was held that an equitable assignment created a trust for the assignee and so took the case out of the order and disposition clause: Re Power, 11 L. R. Ir. 93; Rutter v. Everett, (1895) 2 Ch. 872, where it was held that under a mortgage of book debts neither the appointment of a receiver by the mortgagee nor a like appointment by the Court was sufficient to take the case out of the clause, unless followed, within a reasonable time, by notice to the debtors.]

(b) Cothay v. Sydenham, 2 B. C. C. 391; Leslie v. Baillie, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 91; [and see Re Lord Southampton's Estate, Banfather's Claim, 16 Ch. D. 178; Re Lord Southampton's Estate, Roper's Claim, 50 L. J. N.S. Ch. 155].

(c) 3 Russ. 60; A. D. 1814.

(d) 3 Russ. 1; A. D. 1823.

(e) Ib. 30.

(f) Ib. 38, 48.

[(g) See Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369, per Lord Macnaghten; S. C., Re Wyatt, (1892) 1 Ch. 188, 206, per Fry, L.J.; Lloyds' Bank v. Pearson, (1901) 1 Ch. 865.]

(h) Hutton v. Sandys, 1 Younge, 602, see 607; Smith v. Smith, 2 Cr. & M. 231; Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 297, see 307; [Ward v. Duncombe, sup.; Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449; Stephens v. Green, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 148; Re Wasdale, (1899) 1 Ch. 163; Lloyds' Bank v. Pearson, sup.]. For the principles upon which Sir T. Plumer proceeded, see 3 Russ. pp. 12-14, 20-22.

[Application of rule.]

[3. The rule thus established applies where the owner of the equitable interest has died after making an assignment, and his legal personal representative has made a subsequent assignment of the interest to a purchaser for value, without notice of the prior assignment (a). But the priority is only gained so far as regards the particular fund as to which notice is given, and if the assignment deals with two distinct funds, and the notice relates only to one of them, the priority gained by the notice will be confined to such fund (b).]

As against trustees in bankruptcy.

And this rule as to gaining priority by notice has been held to prevail not only as between two purchasers for value, but also as between a purchaser for value and the assignees of a bankrupt neglecting to give notice; as, if A. being entitled to an equitable interest become bankrupt, and then assign it to a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of the bankruptcy, who serves notice on the trustee, the purchaser gains priority over the assignees who gave no notice (c). In a case, however, arising under the Bankruptcy Act of 1849, it was held that an assignment, after bankruptcy, to an assignee who gave notice to the trustee before the assignees in bankruptcy, could not prevail against the title of the latter (d); [and in a subsequent case (e), where the same view was adopted by the Court of Appeal, L. J. Baggallay held that the 141st section of the Act of 1849, which governed the case, applied equally to all bankruptcies under the Act of 1861]. The judgment of the Court was grounded on the strong negative words in the Act (f); but similar words occur in the original Bankrupt Act of James I. (g), and the principle of the former decisions was that, as regards equitable interests, the Act can pass nothing more than the fullest assignment which the bankrupt could have made, and that assignees by operation of law cannot in a Court of Equity be viewed as under less obligation to give notice than a particular assignee, who, generally speaking, is more favoured. It would seem that the rule as to

[(a) Re Freshfield's Trust, 11 Ch. D. 198; Montefiore v. Guedalla, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 26, where the first assignment was a "Ketubah" or contract in Morocco by way of settlement.]

[(b) Mutual Life Assurance Society v. Langley, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 460.]

(c) Re Barr's Trusts, 4 K. & J. 219; Re Atkinson, 4 De G. & Sm. 548; 2 De G. M. & G. 140; Re Russell's Policy Trusts, 15 L. R. Eq. 26; [Palmer v. Locke, 18 Ch. D. (C.A.) 381; Re Stone's Will, W. N. (1893) p. 50]; and see post, p. 917.

(d) Re Mary Coombe's Will, 1 Giff. 91.

[(e) Re Bright's Settlement, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 413; see the observations on this case in Palmer v. Locke, 18 Ch. D. (C.A.) 381, and in Re Jakeman's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 344; and see Robson on Bankruptcy, p. 421.]

(f) "And after such appointment (i.e. of assignees) neither the bankrupt, nor any person claiming through or under him, shall have power to recover the same," &c.; 12 & 13 Vict. c. 106, s. 141.

(g) 1 Jac. 1. c. 15, s. 13.

notice cannot be applied as against assignees in bankruptcy where the subject matter of assignment is a debt which was recoverable at law by the bankrupt, since in that case the legal title vests in the assignees.

[As against incumbrancers under assignments antecedent to the bankruptcy, the trustee in bankruptcy, being only statutory assignee of the bankrupt's choses in action subject to existing equities, cannot obtain priority by giving notice (a). [Notice by trustee in bankruptcy does not give priority.]

4. A solicitor having a lien for costs on a policy of insurance in his possession, is under no obligation to give any notice of his lien to the insurance company, for the fact of his having possession of the document is notice to all the world of the only fact (viz. possession) necessary to raise the lien, and he has no right to convert the insurance office into trustees for him, but merely the negative right of retention of the document. A subsequent assignee of the policy who has given notice will accordingly not gain priority (b). [Solicitor's lien.]

5. As respects the shares of companies registered under the Companies Act, 1862, it is provided by the 30th section of that Act that no notice of any trust expressed, implied, or constructive shall be entered on the register (c), and accordingly it has been held that the principle of Dearle v. Hall (d) does not apply to such shares as between the company and a person having an equitable title (e). The course which the assignee of an equitable interest in such shares should adopt for his protection is to serve a notice in lieu of distringas on the company under the Court of Chancery Act, 1841 (5 Vict. c. 5), s. 5, and Order XLVI. of the Rules of the Supreme Court, which will prevent any legal transfer being made of the shares without notice to the equitable assignee, and will give him an opportunity to obtain an order restraining the transfer (f). [Shares in companies.]

It must not, however, be assumed that the directors of a company may safely ignore a notice given to them, and allow shares, which are to their knowledge affected by equitable rights, to be fraudulently transferred so as to destroy such rights. For if knowledge of the fraud can be brought home to the directors they would be liable as parties to the fraud; and in the opinion

[(a) Re Wallis, (1902) 1 K. B. 719.]

[(b) West of England Bank v. Batchelor, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 199; 46 L. T. N.S. 132; 30 W. R. 364.]

[(c) As to registration of trusts in which the public trustee is acting, see ante, Chap. XXIII. p. 707.]

[(d) 3 Russ. 1.]

[(e) Société Générale de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 424; S. C. nomine Société Générale de Paris v. Walker, 11 App. Cas. 20, 30, per Lord Selborne; and see Roots v. Williamson, 38 Ch. D. 485; Simpson v. Molson's Bank, (1895) A. C. 270.]

[(f) See post, Chap. XXXIII. s. 1.]

of Cotton, L.J., "where directors are asked to register a transfer, which from circumstances in fact known to them at the time would be in violation of the rights of others, they cannot either safely to themselves or without disregard of their duty register the transfer without allowing time for inquiry and for the assertion of the equitable rights, if any, inconsistent with the claim to register the transfer"; and in the opinion of Lindley, L.J., "a refusal by directors or an omission on their part to pay attention to a notice given to them by a person having an equitable interest in shares, and requiring the directors not to register a transfer for such time as might be necessary to allow him to apply for a proper restraining order, would be primâ facie improper. Such conduct on the part of directors would be strong evidence of fraud" (a).

Thus where a shareholder deposited his share certificates as a security, and the depositees gave notice to the company, the notice was effectual to prevent the company from asserting a right of lien under their articles in respect of money which subsequently became due to them, as the depositees by giving the notice did not seek to affect the company with notice of a trust, but only in their capacity of traders with notice of the interest of the depositees (b); and where the directors had by the articles of the company powers in reference to the approval of transfers, and notice of an equitable title was given to them after a transfer was sent in, but before its approval, it was held that they were justified in refusing to proceed further with the transfer until the claimants should obtain the direction of the Court in an action, which they at once instituted (c).]

Purchase by a trustee without notice of prior charge by the cestui que trust.

6. If a cestui que trust charges his interest, but gives no notice to the trustees, or gives notice to one trustee, who dies, so that the notice falls to the ground (d), and then a trustee subsequently appointed, and having no notice of the charge, purchases from the cestui que trust, or takes a mortgage of his interest, such trustee stands in the position of an assignee, who, having no notice of

[(a) Société Générale de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 14 Q.B. D. (C.A.) at pp. 445, 453. But see the observations of M.R., at p. 440.]

[(b) Bradford Banking Co. v. Briggs & Co., 12 App. Cas. 29; 31 Ch. D. 19; and see Rearden v. Provincial Bank, (1896) 1 I. R. 532; and as to the nature and effect of such lien, see Bank of Africa v. Salisbury Gold Mining Co., (1892) A. C. 281; Everitt v. Automatic Weighing Machine Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 506.]

[(c) Moore v. North Western Bank, (1891) 2 Ch. 599, 604; and see Ireland v. Hart, (1902) 1 Ch. 522.]

[(d) But see observations of Lord Macnaghten in Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369.]

the prior charge and giving notice of his own charge, gains a priority (a).

Precautions in assignment of equitable interests.

7. There are two precautions which the purchaser of an equitable interest in choses in action should, for his security, never dispense with. First, he should make inquiries of the trustee or debtor whether the equity or claim of the vendor has been made the subject of any prior incumbrance.

[Trustee not bound to answer inquiries.]

[The trustee, however, is under no equitable obligation to answer inquiries made by a person about to deal with his cestui que trust. Such a person can have no greater rights than the cestui que trust himself, and though it is the duty of a trustee to give his cestui que trust on demand information with respect to the mode in which the fund has been dealt with, and where it is (b), yet it is no part of his duty to tell his cestui que trust what incumbrances the cestui que trust has created, nor which of his incumbrancers have given notice of their respective rights. If the trustee thinks fit to answer the inquiry, he is not bound to do more than give an honest answer, that is to say, to do more than answer to the best of his actual knowledge and belief. He may, no doubt, undertake greater responsibility; he may bind himself by a warranty, or he may so express himself as to be estopped from afterwards denying the truth of what he had said; but unless he does one or the other he will not, consistently with the decision of the House of Lords in Derry v. Peek (c), if he answers honestly, expose himself to liability (d).]

[Nor to do more than answer honestly.]

Secondly, upon the execution of the assignment, the purchaser should himself give notice of his own equitable title to the trustee

(a) Phipps v. Lovegrove, 16 L. R. Eq. 80; London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 572.

[(b) See cases referred to, ante, p. 887, note (g).]

[(c) 14 App. Cas. 337.]

[(d) Low v. Bouverie, (1891) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 82, per Lindley, L.J. His lordship further observed that Browne v. Savage (4 Drew. 639) is no authority for the proposition that trustees are bound to answer such inquiries; that Burrowes v. Lock (10 Ves. 470), where the trustee was held liable for loss arising from his misrepresentation that the property was not incumbered, is to be supported as a decision on the ground of estoppel, and so regarded is wholly untouched by Derry v. Peek; and that Slim v. Croucher (1 De G. F. & J. 518), fraud on the part of the trustee being in that case negatived, was inconsistent with and therefore overruled by Derry v. Peek; see also Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369, 393. Where intending mortgagees of a trust fund induced a trustee to sign a memorandum that he had not received any notice of prior charge, but made statements leading him to believe (contrary to the fact) that he was signing with the approval of his solicitors, they could not rely upon the memorandum as against a prior charge, notice of which had been received but forgotten by the trustee; Porter v. Moore, (1904) 2 Ch. 367. As to information to be given by the public trustee, see ante, Chap. XXIII. p. 708.]

or debtor, by means of which he will gain precedence of all prior incumbrancers who have not been equally diligent, and will prevent the postponement of himself to subsequent incumbrancers more diligent than himself; and of course the trustee or debtor will be personally responsible, if, after such notice, he part with the fund to any person not having a prior claim (a).

Doctrine of priority by notice not applicable to real estate.

8. Between choses in action and real estate there is an observable distinction. As regards the former the purchaser knows the legal title is outstanding in a third person, and is therefore bound to give notice of his incumbrance; but in lands it often happens that the vendor professes to have the legal ownership in himself, whereas it afterwards appears that it was really vested in some stranger. If the purchaser be not cognisant of the outstanding legal estate, he cannot give notice of his interest, and therefore cannot be held to have forfeited his right by having neglected a precaution that was impossible. On the other hand, to hold that the doctrine of notice does not apply at all to real estate, renders any dealings with equitable interests therein needlessly dangerous. Thus, A. is entitled to an equitable interest, of which the legal estate is in B. upon trusts requiring B. to retain possession of the title-deeds, and not to part with the legal estate. A. conveys his interest to C., who makes no inquiries about incumbrances, and gives no notice to the trustee; A. afterwards, fraudulently concealing the previous assurance, conveys the same interest to D., who makes inquiries of the trustee respecting incumbrances, and gives him notice of his own charge. There seems no sound reason for postponing D., who has taken these precautions, to C., who has merely priority in point of time. It is, however, now settled that the incumbrances in such a case are not governed by the law of notice, but rank primâ facie, and in the absence of other controlling equities, in order of date (b).

Rule as to notice applicable to money charged on land.

However, the rule as to notice, though not applicable to estates in land, whether freehold or leasehold (c), applies when the subject matter is a sum of money to arise from a trust for sale of land (a), or which is charged upon land (b), [or a reversionary interest in the proceeds of land held upon trust for sale (c); but not to the case of a mortgage debt, for although such debt is a chose in action, yet where the subject of the security is land, the mortgagee is treated as having "an interest in land," and priorities are governed by the rules applicable to interests in land, and not by the rules which apply to interests in personalty (d). Where a solicitor held a mortgage of land in his own name as trustee for a client, and deposited the mortgage deed by way of equitable security, the depositees gained no priority over the cestui que trust by giving notice to the mortgagors (e).

(a) Hodgson v. Hodgson, 2 Keen, 704; Roberts v. Lloyd, 2 Beav. 376; Andrews v. Bousfield, 10 Beav. 511.

(b) Lee v. Howlett, 2 K. & J. 531; Wiltshire v. Rabbits, 14 Sim. 76; and see Wilmot v. Pike, 5 Hare, 14; Bugden v. Bignold, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 392; Rochard v. Fulton, 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 131; Rooper v. Harrison, 2 K. & J. 86; Prosser v. Rice, 28 Beav. 68; Pease v. Jackson, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 576; Phipps v. Lovegrove, 16 L. R. Eq. 80; [Union Bank of London v. Kent, 39 Ch. D. 238, 245; Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589; (and see Hopkins v. Hemsworth, (1898) 2 Ch. 347); Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369, 390; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231; Re Baldwin's Estate, (1903) 1 I. R. 339]. As to the effect of notice upon a transfer of railway shares, see Dunster v. Lord Glengall, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 47.

(c) Wiltshire v. Rabbits, 14 Sim. 76; [Union Bank of London v. Kent, 39 Ch. D. 238; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231].

[Secus, a mortgage debt.]

9. Where the Court is administering an English trust fund settled by the will of an English testator, the rights of the claimants to the fund must be regulated by English law, and accordingly, an assignee who has given notice to the trustees will have priority over a previous assignee in New York who has not given notice, although notice is not material according to the law of the state of New York (f).]

[English law when applicable.]

10. A second incumbrancer who advances his money without inquiry as to the existence of previous charges, but afterwards, and before any notice given by the first incumbrancer, gives notice of his own security, obtains thereby priority (g). The reason is, that, in the case supposed, non-inquiry by the second incumbrancer is immaterial, since the answer to any inquiry would have been that there were no prior charges, whereas the absence of notice by the first incumbrancer works an ex post facto injury to the second, who, if informed at the time of giving his own notice of the existence of the earlier charge, would immediately have exerted himself to obtain repayment of his money (h).

Second incumbrancer giving notice, but making no inquiries.

11. If notice be given to one of several co-trustees, it is sufficient as against all subsequent incumbrancers during the Notice to one of several co-trustees.

(a) Lee v. Howlett, 2 K. & J. 531; The Consolidated Investment, &c., Company v. Riley, 1 Giff. 371; Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 297; 9 Bligh, N.S. 332; [Arden v. Arden, 29 Ch. D. 702].

(b) Re Hughes' Trust, 2 H. & M. 89; [Daniel v. Freeman, 11 I. R. Eq. 233, 638].

[(c) Lloyds' Bank v. Pearson, (1901) 1 Ch. 865.]

[(d) Jones v. Gibbons, 9 Ves. 407, 410; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. C.A. 231.]

[(e) Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589; and see post, p. 925.]

[(f) Kelly v. Selwyn, (1905) 1 Ch. 117.]

(g) Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 297; Foster v. Cockerell, 9 Bligh, N.S. 376; Timson v. Ramsbottom, 2 Keen, 49; and see Etty v. Bridges, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 494; Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 478; [Re Lake, (1903) 1 K. B. 151].

(h) Meux v. Bell, 1 Hare, 86, 87.

lifetime of that trustee; for the subsequent incumbrancer should have made inquiry of all the trustees, and if he had done so he would [presumably] have come to a knowledge of the prior charge, so that here non-inquiry is material (a); [and where the one trustee to whom the notice has been given, on inquiry made by the subsequent incumbrancer, returns an evasive or unsatisfactory answer, not disclosing the existence of any prior incumbrance, the subsequent incumbrancer proceeds at his own risk (b)].

Death of the single trustee to whom notice was given.

If a prior incumbrancer content himself with giving notice to one of the trustees, and that trustee dies, and [previously to the death of the trustee a second incumbrancer has given notice of his assignment to all the trustees, the priority gained by the first incumbrancer is not lost by reason of the death (c); but it seems that if, after the death of the trustee, a second incumbrancer gives notice of his assignment to the then existing trustees], then, as the first incumbrancer did not do his utmost to guard against the fraud, and the second incumbrancer had no means in his power of detecting the fraud, the loss will fall on the person who has so far occasioned that he might have prevented it (d). [But the practical application of these principles is attended with difficulty (e).]

Inquiry by incoming trustees of outgoing trustees.

12. If there be two trustees, and notice be given to both of them, and then one dies and the other retires, and new trustees are appointed in the place of both, and the new trustees, having no notice of the charge, distribute the fund, the incumbrancer cannot hold the new trustees liable as for a misapplication on the

(a) Smith v. Smith, 2 Cr. & M. 231; Ex parte Rogers, 8 De G. M. & G. 271; Willes v. Greenhill (No. 2), 29 Beav. 387; S. C., 4 De G. F. & J. 147; and see Ex parte Hennessey, 1 Conn. & Laws. 562; Wise v. Wise, 2 Jon. & Lat. 412.

[(b) Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369; S. C., Re Wyatt, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 188.]

[(c) Ward v. Duncombe, (1893) A. C. 369; S. C., Re Wyatt, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 188.]

(d) See Meux v. Bell, 1 Hare, 73; Ex parte Hennessey, 1 Conn. & Laws. 562; Timson v. Ramsbottom, 2 Keen, 35; [Re Hall, 7 L. R. Ir. 180; Freeman v. Laing, (1899) 2 Ch. 355, 358; Re Phillip's Trusts, (1903) 1 Ch. 183]; but see Willes v. Greenhill (No. 2), 29 Beav. 387. [Where an option of purchase is given to a lessee by trustees, the terms of the instrument must be adhered to, and notice to one of the trustees will not necessarily be notice to all; Sutcliffe v. Wardle, 53 L. T. N.S. 329.]

[(e) The difficulty is well shown by the ingenious puzzle propounded in argument, and dealt with by the L.J. Fry in his judgment, in Re Wyatt (sup.). See also, as to the soundness of the principle last stated, the observations of Lord Macnaghten in the end of his judgment in Ward v. Duncombe (sup.). The case put seems to be analogous to that of judgment creditors, where one by omitting to re-register does not lose an existing priority, but is postponed to one who came on the register during the period of omission; see Re Lord Kensington, 29 Ch. D. 527.]

ground that, when appointed, they ought to have inquired of the retiring trustee whether he had notice of any charge, in which case it would have come to their knowledge (a).

Where the assignor or assignee is one of the trustees.

13. As the rule requiring notice is not only to prevent the trustees from parting with the fund, but also and more particularly to enable future purchasers to ascertain prior incumbrances, it has been held that where the assignor, the party beneficially interested, is also one of the trustees, the notice which he has is not sufficient, as it is so strongly his interest to suppress the assignment (b). But if the assignee be one of the trustees, the notice which he has is sufficient, for he will of course, for his own protection, take care to apprise future incumbrancers of the assignment to himself (c).

[A trustee having himself a charge upon the trust fund is not, in the absence of inquiry, bound to communicate that charge to a person giving him notice of a subsequent charge (d); but a trustee concealing his own prior charge would be narrowly watched by the Court, and it is conceived that if by his conduct he had led the subsequent incumbrancer to believe the fund to be unincumbered, he would lose his priority.]

Notice to all the trustees, and all dying.

14. If an incumbrancer may, by giving notice to one trustee, complete his title for the time, and yet afterwards, by the death of the trustee, be displaced (e), [it has been thought] that if notice be sent to all the trustees, and they all die, a second incumbrancer, who gives notice to the succeeding trustees, will gain priority, notice properly given at the time being held not to make an absolute title, but one liable to be defeated by an alteration of circumstances (f); [but it has recently been decided that if notice is given to all the trustees, the priority thus gained will not be lost by reason of subsequent changes in the trusteeship, and that the assignee who has given such notice is not, for the purpose of preserving priority, bound to renew the notice on any change of trustees (g). Nevertheless, for the purpose of protection,

(a) Phipps v. Lovegrove, 16 L. R. Eq. 80; [and see Hallows v. Lloyd, 39 Ch. D. 686, ante, p. 832].

[(b) Lloyds' Bank v. Pearson, (1901) 1 Ch. 865; following Browne v. Savage, 4 Drew. 635.]

(c) Browne v. Savage, 4 Drew. 635; Willes v. Greenhill, (No. 1), 29 Beav. 376; S. C. (No. 2), 29 Beav. 391; [Newman v. Newman, 28 Ch. D. 674].

[(d) Re Lewer, 4 Ch. D. 101; 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 61.]

[(e) See ante, p. 910.]

(f) Phipps v. Lovegrove, 16 L. R. Eq. 80; and see Meux v. Bell, 1 Hare, 97; but see Etty v. Bridges, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 492; Browne v. Savage, 4 Drew. 635; Re Durand's Trusts, 8 W. R. 33.

[(g) Re Wasdale, (1899) 1 Ch. 163; and see Freeman v. Laing, (1899) 2 Ch. 355, 358; Re Phillip's Trusts, (1903) 1 Ch. 183, 187.]

in many cases] an incumbrancer would do well not only to give notice to all the trustees in the first instance, but to watch as well as he can the changes in the state of the trust, and to take care, by repeating his notice, that there is never a set of trustees of whom there is not at least one who has notice of his charge.

Time of giving notice.

15. Notice of an equitable incumbrance ought to be given to the trustees as early as possible, but if delayed for any length of time, it will be equally efficacious, provided no notice of any other charge has been served in the interval (a). Therefore, if the owner of an equitable interest, who has given no notice to the trustees, contract for the sale of it, the purchaser cannot object to the title on the ground of no notice having been given, unless he can show some intermediate incumbrance; but it is the vendor's duty, by pointing out who have been the trustees from time to time, to furnish full means to the purchaser of inquiring whether or no any such charge has been created (b).

Notice to a person about to become a trustee.

16. Notice to a person who is not actual trustee at the time, but who may and probably will become such, confers no right to priority. Thus, where A. had a first charge, and B. the second charge, on the proceeds to arise from the sale of an officer's commission; and B. first, and then A., gave notice of their respective charges to the army agent of the regiment; but both notices preceded the time when the army agent first actually assumed the character of trustee; it was held that A. retained his priority (c). [Where an officer retires under the Regulation of the Forces Act, 1871 (d), the amount payable on his retirement, though previously lodged with the army agents and entered in their books under the officer's name, cannot be affected by notice of an incumbrance created by him until after his retirement is gazetted (e). But as soon as the retirement is gazetted, the amount lodged becomes the money of the retiring officer in the hands of the army agents, and is liable to set-off in respect of any moneys owing by the officer to the army agents (f).]

[Charge on commission of officer in army.]

(a) Meux v. Bell, 1 Hare, 86, per Sir J. Wigram; Browne v. Savage, 5 Jur. N.S. 1020; and see Stocks v. Dobson, 4 De G. M. & G. 17.

(b) Hobson v. Bell, 2 Beav. 17.

(c) Addison v. Cox, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 76; Buller v. Plunkett, 1 J. & H. 441; Webster v. Webster, 31 Beav. 393; Somerset v. Cox, 33 Beav. 634; [Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 520;] and see Calisher v. Forbes, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 109; Yates v. Cox, 17 W. R. 20; [Re Dallas, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 385, where a like principle was applied as between incumbrancers on the legacy of a sole executor who had renounced probate, priorities being governed by the dates of notice to the administrator; Re Kinahan's Trusts, (1907) 1 I. R. 321].

[(d) 34 & 35 Vict. c. 86.]

[(e) Johnstone v. Cox, 16 Ch. D. 571; 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 17.]

[(f) Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 520; and see Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. (C.A.) 192.]

Cases as to such charges no exception from general rule.

17. These cases do not disturb the great principle that an equitable assignment is complete, if notice be given to the person by whom payment of the assigned debt is to be made, whether that person be himself liable, or is merely charged with the duty of making the payment; and it is not material whether the right to receive the money and the consequent obligation to pay is at the time when the notice is given absolute or conditional, so long as the person who receives the notice is himself bound by some contract or obligation at the time when notice reaches him to receive and pay over, or to pay over if he has previously received, the fund out of which the debt is to be satisfied. The cases on the sales of commissions turn upon the fact that the notice was given to a mere possible agent before he was an actual agent,—before the time when he was in any sense liable to make payment, neither being himself a debtor, nor at that time charged with the duty of paying the money in question (a).

Notice as between volunteers.

18. The doctrine of priority by notice applies only in favour of purchasers; for as between two volunteers notice is not necessary, but qui prior est tempore potior est jure, whether the first assignee did or did not give notice (b).

Simultaneous notices.

19. Where two or more notices are served simultaneously, the incumbrances rank according to their respective dates (c).

[To whom notice should be given.]

[20. In considering to what persons notice ought to be given, it is important to distinguish between notice for the purpose of obtaining priority, and notice for the purpose of protecting the assignee's interest in the property assigned (d). Where there are two settlements, one original and the other derivative, and the subject matter of the assignment is the interest of a cestui que trust under the derivative settlement, notice for the purpose of obtaining priority must in general be given to the trustees of the derivative settlement, but notice to the trustees of the original settlement may constitute a valuable protection which ought not to be overlooked. Thus in Stephens v. Green (e), there was a fund in Court in an action for the administration of a testator's estate; an interest in the fund devolved on, and passed under the will of a

(a) Addison v. Cox, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 79, per L. C. Selborne.

(b) Justice v. Wynne, 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 289. This was so laid down by L. C. Brady, and his opinion carries the greater weight with it, as at the original hearing he had thought otherwise; see S. C., 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 489.

(c) Calisher v. Forbes, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 109; [Johnstone v. Cox, 16 Ch. D. 571; 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 17].

[(d) It is also to be distinguished from notice for the purpose of preventing tacking of mortgages; see Freeman v. Laing, (1899) 2 Ch. 355; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231, 259.]

[(e) (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 148, distinguishing and explaining Bridge v. Beadon, 3 L. R. Eq. 664.]

second testator, and a beneficiary under that will made a marriage settlement of his share in the fund, and then, without disclosing the settlement, assigned such share by way of mortgage; the mortgagees obtained a stop-order, the equivalent of notice to the executor of the first testator (a), but gave no notice to the executor of the second testator; the trustees of the marriage settlement obtained a subsequent stop-order, and gave notice to the executor of the second testator; and it was held that, for the purpose of obtaining priority, the notice to the executor of the second will as trustee for the assignor was the effective step, and that the trustees of the marriage settlement had priority over the mortgagees; but it was pointed out that the stop-order obtained by the mortgagees, though ineffectual to give priority, was a very valuable protection (b). And in Ward v. Duncombe (c), it was observed that if the rule in Dearle v. Hall (d) had never been invented, it would still have been necessary for an equitable assignee, for his own protection, to give notice to the legal holders of the fund the subject of the assignment, and that a solicitor employed in such a transaction would still have incurred serious liability if he neglected so obvious a precaution.] The notice, written or unwritten (e), but better written, should be given to the trustees themselves; [and notice to the solicitors of the trustees will be of no effect unless the solicitors are expressly or impliedly authorised to receive such notices (f)]. Where notice to one trustee would be sufficient, it may be given to one who is not the acting trustee, the law recognising no distinction between an acting and a passive trustee (g).

Officers of company.

Where the trust fund consists of shares in a company, the notice may be sent to the secretary (h); but notice to A., a director, and B., the actuary, was in one case considered sufficient (i); and, in another, notice to A., one of the directors, and B., an auditor (j); and in another, verbal notice, not casually, but in the

[(a) See post, p. 918.]

[(b) S. C. p. 161, per Lindley, L. J.]

[(c) (1893) A. C. 369, 394, per Lord Macnaghten.]

[(d) 3 Russ. 1, see ante, p. 903.]

(e) Smith v. Smith, 2 Cr. & M. 231; Ex parte Carbis, 4 Deac. & Ch. 357, per Sir G. Rose; S. C., 1 Mont. & Ayr. 695, note, per eundem; Browne v. Savage, 4 Drew. 640; Re Tichener, 35 Beav. 317; Re Agra Bank, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 555.

[(f) Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v. Rayner, 14 Ch. D. (C.A.) 406; Arden v. Arden, 29 Ch. D. 702; and see Re Durand's Trusts, 8 W. R. 33;] Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 297, 306; Rickards v. Gledstanes, 3 Giff. 298; Willes v. Greenhill (No. 2), 29 Beav. 392.

(g) Smith v. Smith, 2 Cr. & M. 233.

(h) Ex parte Stright, Mont. 502; and see Alletson v. Chichester, 10 L. R. C. P. 319.

(i) Ex parte Watkins, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 689; S. C., 4 Deac. & Ch. 87; but see Ex parte Hennessey, 1 Conn. & Laws. 559.

(j) Ex parte Waithman, 4 Deac. & Ch. 412; but see Ex parte Hennessey, 1 Conn. & Laws. 559.

way of business, to the board of directors (a). [But the fact that the secretary or any other officer of the company had casual knowledge of any matter, acquired in his individual capacity, or as secretary or officer of another company, and not whilst engaged in transacting the business of the first mentioned company, will not affect that company with notice of it (b).] It was at one time held that, as notice to a partner was notice to the partnership, if by the constitution of an assurance office the person insuring became a partner, the assignment of a policy by him was ipso facto notice of it to the society (c); but this was going very far, as it was the assignor's interest to suppress the assignment, and the point has since been ruled the other way (d). The negotiation for the assignment through a solicitor, who happens to be the local agent of the insurance office, is not notice to the office (e). Incidental mention of the charge to a clerk of the company, though in the office of business, will not be constructive notice to the company itself (f); and the fact that the solicitor to the trustees was a creditor under an insolvency, and must have known of the insolvency, was no notice of it to the trustees (g). [And in general, notice through an agent will not be imputed where the circumstances are such as to raise a conclusive presumption that he would not communicate the fact to his principal (h).]

Partners, &c.

Solicitor, agent, &c.

21. If the notice be by parol it must be clear and distinct (i), [and sufficient to bring to the mind of the trustee an intelligent apprehension of the nature of the dealing with the trust property, so that he may regulate his conduct by it in the execution of the trust (j)].

Notice must be clear.

(a) Re Agra Bank, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 555; and see Ex parte Richardson, Mont. & Ch. 43; Alletson v. Chichester, 10 L. R. C. P. 319.

[(b) Société Générale de Paris v. Tramways Union Company, 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 424; Re Hampshire Land Company, (1896) 2 Ch. 743; Re Fenwick Stobart & Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 507; Re David Payne & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 608.]

(c) Duncan v. Chamberlayne, 11 Sim. 126; Ex parte Rose, 2 Mont. D. & De G. 131; and see Ex parte Cooper, Ib. 1; Re Styan, Ib. 219, and 1 Ph. 105.

(d) Ex parte Hennessey, 1 Conn. & Laws. 559; Thompson v. Speirs, 13 Sim. 469; Martin v. Sedgwick, 9 Beav. 333; and see Powles v. Page, 3 C. B. 16; Ex parte Boulton, 1 De G. & J. 175.

(e) Re Russell's Policy Trusts, 15 L. R. Eq. 26.

(f) Ex parte Carbis, 4 Deac. & Ch. 354; S. C., 1 Mont. & Ayr. 693, note (a).

(g) Re Brown's Trust, 5 L. R. Eq. 88.

[(h) Cave v. Cave, 15 Ch. D. 639, 644, per Fry, J. As to the doctrine of constructive notice generally, see Dart V. & P. 6th ed., pp. 969, et seq.; Fisher on Mortgage, 5th ed., pp. 505, et seq.]

(i) Re Tichener, 35 Beav. 317; Re Brown's Trust, 5 L. R. Eq. 88.

[(j) Lloyd v. Banks, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 488, 490; Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v. Rayner, 14 Ch. D. (C.A.) 406, where it was pointed

By whom notice should be given.

22. It was held by Lord Romilly, M.R., that the notice should be given by or on behalf of the assignee himself, and that notice to a trustee proceeding from a mere stranger would be insufficient (a); but the case on appeal was reversed on the ground that the trustee had received such notice as he would or should have acted upon (b).

Where trustee is incumbrancer.

23. Where the trustee himself is the assignee or incumbrancer, the transaction necessarily carries notice along with it, and no other notice is necessary (c). So in the case of a Joint Stock Bank, the lien of the bank under the deed of settlement for a debt owing from one of its members does not require any further notice than that which the bank, the only trustee, already possesses from the relative position of the parties (d).

Form of the notice.

24. The notice, if it go into details at all, should set forth the entire amount of the assignee's claim, for it has been held that the trustee is affected by notice only of the amount stated upon the face of the memorandum served, and not by notice of all the contents of the instrument to which the memorandum refers (e). But notice of a charge in general terms, without expressing any amount in particular, will be sufficient (f); and if there be no doubt as to the fund intended, a mistake in the description will not vitiate the notice as against a subsequent purchaser, but the Court will not extend the security beyond the amount of the sum mentioned in the notice as intended to be charged (g); [and the notice will not be invalidated by an error in an immaterial point, such as the date of the deed of which notice is given (h)].

Case of the fund being in Court.

25. Where the fund is in Court, the step equivalent to notice to the trustees of a fund out of Court is the obtaining of a stop-order to restrain the transfer of the fund, and as between two assignees the one who first gets a stop-order will have priority (i);

out by James, L.J., that the cases in which it has been held that notice to a person acting as solicitor, was sufficient to take a chose in action out of the order and disposition of the assignor, cannot be relied on for the purpose under consideration, which stands upon a very different footing; and see Bence v. Shearman, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 582.]

(a) Lloyd v. Banks, 4 L. R. Eq. 222; 3 L. R. Ch. App. 488.

(b) 3 L. R. Ch. App. 488; [and see Bateman v. Hunt, (1904) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 530, where Lloyd v. Banks is referred to as showing that no limitations as to the time within which notice is to be given, or the person by whom it is to be given, are found in the rules of Courts of Equity].

(c) Elder v. Maclean, 3 Jur. N.S. 283; Ex parte Smith, 4 Deac. & Ch. 579; Ex parte Smart, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 60; and see ante, p. 911.

(d) Assignees of Dunne v. Hibernian Joint Stock Company, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 82.

(e) Re Bright's Trust, 21 Beav. 430.

(f) Re Bright's Trust, 21 Beav. 430, 434.

(g) Woodburn v. Grant, 22 Beav. 483.

[(h) Whittingstall v. King, 46 L. T. N.S. 520.]

(i) Greening v. Beckford, 5 Sim. 195; Swayne v. Swayne, 11 Beav. 463; Elder v. Maclean, 3 Jur. N.S.

[though the other may have given prior notice to the trustees of the settlement (a); and] though the first stop-order was upon the general fund, and the second stop-order was the first upon the share when carried over to the separate account of the debtor and his incumbrancers (b); [and though the stop-order shows that a life interest only is charged, and does not in terms refer to the dividends (c);] and trustees in bankruptcy who claim under the order and disposition clause in the Bankruptcy Act will lose the benefit of the transfer to them, if an assignee for value give notice to the Court of his incumbrance before any notice is given of the assignment under the bankruptcy (d); but the incumbrancer who obtains the first stop-order will not prevail over an incumbrancer who gave the regular notice to the representative of the trust before the money was paid into Court (e); nor will he prevail over a prior incumbrancer of whose incumbrance he had notice at the time of making his advance (f); but notice of a prior incumbrance acquired after the date of the advance, but before the stop-order is obtained, will not prejudice the right to priority (g).

[But where part of the trust estate was in Court and part in the hands of the trustees, and a mortgagee gave notice to the trustees, but did not obtain a stop-order, and a subsequent incumbrancer both gave notice and obtained a stop-order, the first mortgagee had priority as to the funds in the hands of the trustees, and the subsequent mortgagee had priority as to the fund in Court (h).]

283; [Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449; Stephens v. Green, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 148; Montefiore v. Guedella, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 26].

[(a) Pinnock v. Bailey, 23 Ch. D. 497.]

(b) Lister v. Tidd, 4 L. R. Eq. 462; [but where a fund, having been carried over to a separate account, is released from the general questions in the action, a stop-order obtained by a bonâ fide creditor of the person entitled to the fund may prevail over a liability of such person to the estate of the testator; Re Eyton, 45 Ch. D. 458; and see Edgar v. Plomley, (1900) A.C. (P. C.) 431].

[(c) Mack v. Postle, ubi sup., where see observations of Stirling, J., as to the framing of stop-orders, and the advisability of expressing on the face of them whether capital or income or both are affected; and for forms of orders see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 491, et seq. A notice on the subject for use in his lordship's chambers was issued in which it was intimated that an assignee or incumbrancer of a life interest is entitled to notice of any dealing with the capital whether for change of investment or otherwise.]

(d) Stuart v. Cockerell, 8 L. R. Eq. 607; and see ante, p. 904.

(e) Livesey v. Harding, 23 Beav. 141; Brearcliff v. Dorrington, 4 De G. & Sm. 122; [and see Re Marquis of Anglesey, (1903) 2 Ch. 727, 732,] and in Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & Sm. 423, the same doctrine was applied as between two judgment creditors.

[(f) Re Holmes, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 786.]

[(g) Mutual Life Assurance Society v. Langley, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 460.]

[(h) Mutual Life Assurance Society v. Langley, 26 Ch. D. 686; 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 460, 470.]

Notice to trustee where fund in Court and neither assignee obtains a stop-order, confers priority.

26. Even after the money has been paid into Court, although the legal title is in the Paymaster-General (a), priority may, it seems, be gained by serving notice upon the trustees (b); thus, if an incumbrancer gives notice to the trustees, but neglects to obtain a stop-order, he will still take precedence of a prior incumbrancer, who has neither obtained an order nor given notice, or who had given notice to only one of several trustees, and that trustee had died before the time of the second incumbrance (c). It is true the second incumbrancer did not adopt every precaution, but he resorted to one which the prior incumbrancer neglected to the detriment of the second incumbrancer, while the first assignee either sent no notice, or one which, by the death of the trustee before the time of the second incumbrance, had become equivalent to no notice (d).

Practice where the fund is in Court.

27. If the trust fund be in Court, the following course should be adopted. The intended assignee should inquire at the Paymaster-General's and search at the Registrar's offices whether any stop-order has been made to restrain the transfer of the fund, and also inquire of the trustees whether notice has been given of any prior incumbrance; and, on the completion of his own assignment, he should give notice to the trustees personally, and obtain a stop-order himself, and leave it at the Paymaster-General's office to be noted in the Paymaster's books (e). The inquiry at the Paymaster-General's or search at the Registrar's offices is merely for the purchaser's greater satisfaction, and makes no part of his own title, for neither the Paymaster-General nor any official of the Court is the trustee, but the Court is the trustee, [and the object of obtaining the stop-order is to give effectual notice to the Court (f)]. The stop-order is the effective step, and whether or not previous inquiry or search was made at the offices is immaterial (g).

(a) Thorndike v. Hunt, 3 De G. & J. 563.

(b) Thompson v. Tomkins, 2 Dr. & Sm. 8; Matthews v. Gabb, 15 Sim. 51; Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 477; Bartlett v. Bartlett, 1 De G. & J. 127; [but see Mutual Life Assurance Society v. Langley, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 460; Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449; Seton, 6th ed. p. 498].

[(c) But as to this, see ante, p. 910, note (e).]

(d) Timson v. Ramsbottom, MS.; S. C., 2 Keen, 35, pp. 49 and 50; Matthews v. Gabb, 15 Sim. 51; [Re Hall, 7 L. R. Ir. 180; Re Phillip's Trusts, (1903) 1 Ch. 183].

[(e) The Registrar will pass and enter the order, but it is the duty of the assignee to leave it with the Paymaster; and generally as to the practice respecting stop-orders, see Rules of the Supreme Court, Ord. XLVI., Rules 12 & 13; and Seton on Judgments, 6th ed., Chap. XXVIII. s. 3.]

[(f) Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449.]

(g) See Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 478.

Case where there is no trustee.

28. It may happen that at the time of the incumbrance there is no representative of the trust on whom notice can be served, as if A. be trustee of stock for B., and A. dies intestate, or his executor declines to act. In such a case it has been held that an incumbrancer gains priority by taking all the precautions that under the circumstances are practicable, as if he serves a [notice in lieu of] distringas on the bank (a) where the stock is standing (b).

Purchaser with notice.

29. A purchaser who gives notice, or obtains a stop-order, can gain no priority over an incumbrance of which he has notice himself at the time of his own purchase (c).

Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 6.

30. By 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, sect. 25, sub-sect. 6, any absolute assignment of any debt or legal chose in action by writing under the hand of the assignor (not purporting to be by way of charge only) (d), upon express notice in writing being given to the legal holder of the chose in action, is to be effectual in law to pass the legal right from the date of such notice, but subject to all the equities which would have been entitled to priority had the Act not passed.

[An assignment may be absolute within this enactment although a trust is thereby created, in respect of the proceeds of the debt or chose in action, in favour of the assignor, as in the case of a deed by creditors assigning their debts to a person who is to sue to recover the debts and pay the creditors proportionately out of the money recovered (e).

[Policy of assurance.]

31. The notice of assignment of a policy of assurance which is required to be given by the Policies of Assurance Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 144), to enable the assignee to sue, is not requisite to complete the title of the assignee as against a

[(a) Or company. See post, Chap. XXXIII. s. 1.]

(b) Etty v. Bridges, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 486. [See as to the notice which has been substituted in the place of the writ of distringas, Rules of the Supreme Court, Ord. XLVI., Rules 2, et seq.; and post, Chap. XXXIII. s. 1.]

(c) Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 470; Re Holmes, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 786.

[(d) As to the meaning of the words "absolute assignment" and "not purporting to be by way of charge only," see National Provincial Bank v. Harle, 6 Q. B. D. 626; Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347; Tancred v. Delagoa Bay Co., 23 Q. B. D. 239; Mercantile Bank of London v. Evans, (1899) 2 Q. B. 613; Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co., (1902) 2 K. B. 190; and see Bateman v. Hunt, (1904) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 530, 538 (intimating that the statute does not prescribe any limit of time within which the notice must be given, nor lay down that the notice must be given by any particular person). Part of a debt is not assignable within the statute: Bowles v. Baker, (1910) W.N. 24 (per Bray, J., affirmed in C.A.), not following Skipper v. Holloway, (1909) 79 L. J. K. B. 91.]

[(e) Comfort v. Betts, (1891) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 737; Weisener v. Rackow, 76 L. T. N.S. 448 (C.A.); Fitzroy v. Cave, (1905) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 364.]

subsequent assignee; and accordingly a second incumbrancer who advanced his money with notice of a prior incumbrance, does not, by giving the statutory notice, gain priority over the prior incumbrancer who has neglected to give the notice (a).]

General rule.

Fourthly. Of the rule Qui prior est tempore potior est jure.

1. "The rule," observed V. C. Kindersley (b), "is sometimes expressed in this form:—'As between persons having only equitable interests, qui prior est tempore potior est jure.' This is an incorrect statement of it; for not only is it not universally true, as between persons having only equitable interests, but it is not universally true even where their equitable interests are of precisely the same nature, and in that respect precisely equal, as in the common case of two successive assignments for valuable consideration of a reversionary interest in stock standing in the names of trustees, where the second assignee has given notice, and the first has omitted it. Another form of stating the rule is this:—'As between persons having only equitable interests, if their equities are equal, qui prior est tempore potior est jure.' But even this enunciation of the rule (when accurately considered) seems to involve a contradiction. For when we talk of two persons having equal or unequal equities, in what sense do we use the word 'equity'? For example, when we say that A. has a better equity than B., it means only that, according to those principles of right and justice which a Court of Equity recognises and acts upon, it will prefer A. to B. and will interfere to enforce the rights of A. as against B. And therefore it is impossible (strictly speaking) that two persons should have equal equities, except in a case in which the Court of Equity would altogether refuse to lend its assistance to either party as against the other. To lay down the rule, therefore, with perfect accuracy, I think it should be stated in some such form as this:—' As between persons having only equitable interests, if their equities are in all other respects equal (c), priority of time gives the better equity; or qui prior est tempore potior est jure.'" "Questions of priority between equitable incumbrancers," said L. J. Turner, "are in general governed by the rule qui prior est tempore potior est jure. The rule, as I conceive is founded on this principle, that the creation or declaration of a trust vests an estate in the person in whose favour the trust is created or declared. Where, therefore, it is sought to postpone an equitable title created by declaration of trust, there is an estate or interest to be displaced. No doubt there may be cases so strong as to justify this being done, but there can be as little doubt that a strong case must be required to justify it" (a).

[(a) Newman v. Newman, 28 Ch. D. 674; and see Re King, 14 Ch. D. 179.]

(b) Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 77.

[(c) As to "equal equities," see Re Ffrench's Estate, 21 L. R. Ir. 283, 332; Re Sloane, (1895) 1 I. R. 146.]

All circumstances to be considered.

2. For ascertaining priorities, the Court directs its attention to the nature and condition of the conflicting equitable interests, the circumstances and manner of their acquisition, and the whole conduct of the respective parties: in short, all the circumstances of the case (b). The following instances will suffice for illustration.

[Receipt by vendor.]

3. A vendor has an equitable lien for his purchase money; but if he deliver the deed of conveyance with a receipt for the purchase money indorsed and signed, [or with a receipt in the body of the deed within sect. 55 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (c),] and the purchaser then makes an equitable mortgage of the property by deposit, the equity of the mortgagee, who was deceived by the deed, is better than that of the vendor, who was careless enough to sign the receipt without payment of the money (d). But if the mortgagee have notice of the lien, he of course cannot complain, and is bound by it (e). [Where the vendor signing the receipt in full is a trustee, the estoppel against him does not extend to his cestuis que trust (not being parties to the transaction), and their prior equity will prevail over that of a subsequent innocent purchaser for value (f).

[Receipt signed by mortgagor.]

And the same principle applies as between a mortgagor who has signed a receipt in full for the mortgage money, part of which remains unpaid, and a transferee of the mortgage who has taken his transfer on the faith of the receipt in full, and without notice that part of the mortgage money had not been paid (g).

And where a blank transfer of shares, unaccompanied by the certificate, was deposited with a bank, who allowed the certificate

(a) Cory v. Eyre, 1 De G. J. & S. 167; [Re Vernon Ewens & Co., 32 Ch. D. 165; 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402; Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 8, 15; (1892) A.C. 244, 253, 255, 259; London and County Bank v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642].

(b) Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 78, per V. C. Kindersley; [National Provincial Bank of England v. Jackson, 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1; and see Farrand v. Yorkshire Banking Co., 40 Ch. D. 182].

[(c) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

(d) Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 73; West v. Jones, 1 Sim. N.S. 205; The Queen v. Shropshire Union Canal Company, 8 L. R. Q. B. 420; 7 L. R. H. L. 496; [Lloyd's Bank v. Bullock, (1896) 2 Ch. 192; King v. Smith, (1900) 2 Ch. 425].

(e) Mackreth v. Symmons, 15 Ves. 349.

[(f) Capell v. Winter, (1907) 2 Ch. 376.]

[(g) Bickerton v. Walker, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 154; and see Bateman v. Hunt, (1904) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 530; Berwick & Co. v. Price, (1905) 1 Ch. 632, post, p. 924; Powell v. Browne, (1907) W.N. (C.A.) 228.]

to remain outstanding, and thereby enabled the mortgagor to obtain the certificate and effect a subsequent charge by deposit of blank transfer accompanied by the certificate, it was held in Ireland that as the bank by their negligence had allowed the mortgagor to represent himself as the owner, they had lost priority (a).]

Possession of title-deeds.

4. The possession of the title-deeds is a circumstance which may give the holder a better equity, provided they have come into his possession from want of due activity on the part of the prior incumbrancer, or through some neglect or default of such incumbrancer (b). But the onus lies on the holder to establish a case of blameable conduct against the first incumbrancer (c); and the second incumbrancer gains no priority if the deeds get into his hands by an accident, or by the misconduct of a stranger (d), or the wrongful act of the solicitor of the first incumbrancer (e), for it is not the doctrine of the Court that in the case of mere equitable interests priority can be obtained through the medium of a breach of trust or duty (f). [And an equitable incumbrancer, by getting possession of the title-deeds

[(a) Kelly v. Munster and Leinster Bank, 29 L. R. Ir. 19; and where an agent of a company is entrusted with a certificate of debenture stock, it will be assumed in favour of a purchaser or mortgagee that such agent had full authority to deal with it; Robinson v. Montgomeryshire Brewery Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 841.]

(b) Layard v. Maud, 4 L. R. Eq. 397; see Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 80; Waldron v. Sloper, 1 Drew. 200; Perry-Herrick v. Attwood, 25 Beav. 205; 2 De G. & J. 21; Pease v. Jackson, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 576; Briggs v. Jones, 10 L. R. Eq. 92; Re Russell Road Purchase-moneys, 12 L. R. Eq. 78; [Clark v. Palmer, 21 Ch. D. 124; Re Lambert's Estate, 11 L. R. Ir. 534; 13 L. R. Ir. 234; Lloyd's Banking Company v. Jones, 29 Ch. D. 221;] and see Ratcliffe v. Barnard, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 652; [Spencer v. Clarke, 9 Ch. D. 137; Farrand v. Yorkshire Banking Company, 40 Ch. D. 182; Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. 8, 19; (1892) A. C. 244; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231; Rimmer v. Webster, (1902) 2 Ch. 163].

(c) Allen v. Knight, 5 Hare, 272; 11 Jur. 527; Dixon v. Muckleston, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 155; [Union Bank of London v. Kent, 39 Ch. D. 238; Brown v. Stedman, 44 W. R. 458; Re Ingham, (1893) 1 Ch. 352, where Stirling, J., said that the authorities are adverse in principle to interference against the legal title, except where the owner himself, or some predecessor of his in title, has personally either been guilty of misconduct, or conferred "an apparent authority to deal with the property as if it were unincumbered"; and see Re Castell & Brown, (1898) 1 Ch. 315, where it was held that persons entitled to a mere equitable charge on the property of a company by way of floating security, if they allow the title-deeds to remain in the custody of the company, will be postponed to subsequent equitable mortgagees by deposit of title-deeds without notice of the charge; and see Re Valletort Steam Laundry Company, (1903) 2 Ch. 654].

(d) Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 83.

(e) Cory v. Eyre, 1 De G. J. & S. 149; [Bradley v. Riches, 9 Ch. D. 189; Re Vernon Ewens & Co., 32 Ch. D. 165; 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402].

(f) Cory v. Eyre, 1 De G. J. & S. 170; [Re Vernon Ewens & Co., 32 Ch. D. 165; 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402; Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 8; (1892) A.C. 244; and see Harpham v. Shack- without any default on the part of a person who has previously contracted to purchase the property, does not gain priority over him, but takes subject to his contract (a).

[Negligence of trustees as to title-deeds.]

Where trustees having the legal estate are guilty of negligence in respect of title-deeds, they may be postponed; thus where, by a marriage settlement, land of the husband's was settled on trusts for husband and wife successively for life, and the solicitors who acted for all parties were in possession of a bundle of title-deeds, but were unaware that the settlor still retained the conveyance of the land to him, and he affected to mortgage it to an innocent mortgagee to whom he handed the deed, it was held that the trustees, being guilty of negligence, must be postponed, and that the wife, under the circumstances, was in no better position than the trustees (b).

[What conduct as to title-deeds will postpone mortgagee.]

The whole question as to the conduct in relation to the title-deeds on the part of a mortgagee who has the legal estate, which is sufficient to postpone such mortgagee to a subsequent equitable mortgagee who has obtained the title-deeds without knowledge of the legal mortgage, was fully discussed by the Court of Appeal in the case of Northern Counties of England Fire Insurance Company v. Whipp (c); in which the Court, after reviewing and classifying the earlier cases, arrived at the following conclusions :—

"(1) That the Court will postpone the prior legal estate to a subsequent equitable estate—(A), where the owner of the legal estate has assisted in or connived at the fraud which has led to the creation of a subsequent equitable estate, without notice of the prior legal estate; of which assistance or connivance, the omission to use ordinary care in inquiry after or keeping title-deeds may be, and in some cases has been, held to be sufficient evidence, where such conduct cannot be otherwise explained; (B), where the owner of the legal estate has constituted the mortgagor his agent, with authority to raise money, and the estate thus created has, by the fraud or misconduct of the agent, been represented as being the first estate.

"But (2) that the Court will not postpone the prior legal estate to the subsequent equitable estate on the ground of any mere carelessness or want of prudence on the part of the legal owner" (d).

lock, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 207]. But see The Queen v. Shropshire Union Canal Company, 8 L. R. Q. B. 420; 7 L. R. H. L. 496; [Bradley v. Riches, 9 Ch. D. 189].

[(a) Flinn v. Fountain, 58 L. J. Ch. 389.]

[(b) Walker v. Linom, (1907) 2 Ch. 104.]

[(c) 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 482, 491, per Cotton, Bowen, and Fry, L.JJ.]

[(d) S. C. at p. 494. The whole judgment deserves careful perusal; and see Lloyd's Banking Company v. Jones, 29 Ch. D. 221; Manners v. Mew, 29

[Where prior estate equitable only, quære.]

In a recent case it was held by Kay, J., that this principle applies equally whether the prior estate is legal or equitable, and that in the case of innocent persons taking equitable mortgages from a fraudulent mortgagor, the negligence required to induce the Court to postpone the prior incumbrancer must be gross, i.e. so great as to make him responsible for the fraud committed on the subsequent incumbrancer (a), but in the same case in the House of Lords this proposition was doubted by Lord Macnaghten (b); and a similar doubt has been expressed in the Court of Appeal (c).

[Postponement of legal purchaser to prior equitable mortgagee.]

As between an equitable mortgagee and a subsequent legal purchaser for value without notice, in order that the latter may be postponed it is not necessary to show that he has been guilty of fraud, or of negligence amounting to fraud; it is sufficient that he has been guilty of negligence so gross as to render it unjust to deprive the prior mortgagee of his security, as for example, by omitting to obtain the title-deeds and resting satisfied with the mere statement of the vendor that they were in his possession, but would not be delivered up because they related also to other property (d).

[Constructive notice of sub-mortgage.]

A purchaser who, without requiring delivery or production of title-deeds, takes a title from a mortgagee who has deposited the deeds by way of sub-mortgage, is affected with constructive notice of the sub-mortgage; the legal estate in the purchaser's hands is subject to the equitable incumbrance, and the notice raises a trust to the extent of the sub-mortgage. It is immaterial whether the purchaser employs a solicitor or not, and whether the solicitor, if one is employed, informs the purchaser of the sub-mortgage or not (e).

[Title of cestui que trust prevails in absence of negligence.]

5. If a trustee in whose name shares in a company are standing borrows money for his own purposes and deposits the certificates as a security for his debts, the equitable title of the mortgagee will not, in the absence of negligence on the part of the cestui que trust, prevail against the prior equitable title of the cestui que trust (f). And a cestui que trust is entitled to place reliance upon his trustee, and is not guilty of negligence if, in the absence

Ch. D. 725; and as to the case of a floating security, see ante, p. 922, note (c).]

[(a) Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. 8; reversed by C. A. ibid., but on other grounds.]

[(b) Taylor v. Russell, (1892) A. C. 244, 262, and see Farrand v. Yorkshire Banking Company, 40 Ch. D. 182.]

[(c) Taylor v. London and County BankingCo.,(1901)2Ch.(C.A.)231,260.]

[(d) Oliver v. Hinton, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 264.]

[(e) Berwick & Co. v. Price, (1905) 1 Ch. 632.]

[(f) Shropshire Union Railways and Canal Company v. The Queen, 7 L. R. H. L. 496.]

of anything to raise suspicion, he omit to inquire whether a fraud has been committed upon him by the trustee (a); and as "any person is entitled to vest property in another as trustee for himself, and to leave the title-deeds in the hands of the trustee" (b), where the purchaser of an equity of redemption for his own convenience took the assignment in the name of a confidential clerk, ostensibly as absolute owner, but in fact as trustee, and allowed the assignment to remain in his custody, and the clerk availed himself of possession of the deed to effect an equitable charge, it was held that there was no such negligence as would deprive the cestui que trust of his prior equitable title (c); and so where the owners of shares in a ship allowed them to remain on the register in the name of a trustee as legal owner, they could not be held liable, on the ground of implied authority, to a charge wrongfully effected by a son of the trustee, acting as his business manager (d). These decisions are not applicable to cases governed by the principles of agency, and not of trusteeship, as where, for example, the owner of property gives all the indicia of title to another person with the intention that he should deal with the property, for then any limit which the owner has imposed on his agent's dealing cannot be enforced against an innocent purchaser or mortgagee from the agent (e).

[Lien of banking company on shares.]

6. Where trust funds were invested in the names of two trustees in the shares of a bank, the articles of which provided that the bank should have a paramount charge on the shares held by more persons than one in respect of all moneys owing to the bank from all or any of the holders thereof, alone or jointly with any other person, it was held that the bank had a lien on the shares for a debt owing by a firm in which one of the trustees was a partner, which must prevail over the title of the cestuis que trust (f).]

Secret equity.

7. A party, having a secret equity, who stands by and permits the apparent owner to deal with others, as if he were the absolute

[(a) Ib.; Re Vernon Ewens & Co., 32 Ch. D. 164; 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402; and see Hartopp v. Huskisson, 55 L. T. N.S. 773; Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589; Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231.]

[(b) Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 594, per Stirling, J.]

[(c) Carritt v. Real and Personal Advance Company, 42 Ch. D. 263; and see Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589; Tendring Hundred Waterworks Company v. Jones, (1903) 2 Ch. 615.]

[(d) Burgis v. Constantine, (1908) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 484.]

[(e) Rimmer v. Webster, (1902) 2 Ch. 163, 174.]

[(f) New London and Brazilian Bank v. Brocklebank, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 302; Miles v. New Zealand Alford Estate Company, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 266; but see Bradford Banking Company v. Briggs & Co., 12 App. Cas. 29; 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 19; 29 Ch. D. 149; ante, p. 906.]

owner, and as if there were no such secret equity, will not be permitted to assert such secret equity against a title founded upon such apparent ownership (a). A fortiori, if the person having the secret equity be party to a document which assumes that there is no such equity, or on having notice of a purchaser's claim do not give information of the equity, so as to enable him to proceed against the person by whom he has been deceived (b). ["It is a principle of natural equity which must be universally applicable, that where one man allows another to hold himself out as the owner of an estate, and a third person purchases it for value from the apparent owner in the belief that he is the real owner, the man who so allows the other to hold himself out shall not be permitted to recover upon his secret title, unless he can overthrow that of the purchaser by showing either that he had direct notice, or something which amounts to constructive notice, of the real title, or that there existed circumstances which ought to have put him upon an inquiry that, if prosecuted, would have led to a discovery of it" (c).]

Canons laid down in Thornton v. Ramsden.

8. The doctrines of the Court on this subject were much discussed in the case of Thornton v. Ramsden (d), and the following canons were laid down by the highest authorities in the House of Lords on appeal:—

a. If a stranger begins to build on land, supposing it to be his own, and the real owner, perceiving his mistake, abstains from setting him right, and leaves him to persevere in his error, a Court of Equity will not afterwards allow the real owner to assert his title to the land.

b. But if a stranger builds on land knowing it to be the property of another, equity will not prevent the real owner from afterwards claiming the land, with the benefit of all the expenditure upon it (e).

c. If a tenant builds on his landlord's land, he does not, in the absence of special circumstances, acquire any right to prevent the

(a) Mangles v. Dixon, 1 Mac. & G. 446, per Lord Cottenham; S. C. 3 H. L. Cas. 739, per Lord Truro; Troughton v. Gitley, Ambl. (Blunt's ed.) 633, and cases cited, Ib. note (4); Cornforth v. Pointon, W. N. 1866, p. 189; [Ex parte Bolland, 9 Ch. D. 312; Re Blachford, W. N. 1884, p. 141].

(b) Mangles v. Dixon, 1 Mac. & G. 447; 3 H. L. Cas. 740.

[(c) Per Jud. Com. Ramcoomar Koondoo v. Macqueen, L. R. Ind. App. Supp. Vol. 40.]

(d) 4 Giff. 519; 1 L. R. H. L. 129, nom. Ramsden v. Dyson; and see Bankart v. Tennant, 10 L. R. Eq. 141; [Plimmer v. Mayor, &c., of Wellington, 9 App. Cas. 699].

(e) See also Crampton v. Varna Railway Company, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 562.

landlord from taking possession of the land and buildings when the tenancy has determined.

d. If the tenant, being a mere tenant at will, builds on the land in the belief that he thereby acquires a title afterwards to claim a lease of the land, and the landlord allows him so to build, knowing that he is acting in that belief, and does not interfere to correct the error (semble), equity will interfere to compel the grant of a lease.

e. If a man under a verbal agreement with a landlord for a certain interest in land, or under an expectation, created or encouraged by the landlord, that he shall have a certain interest, takes possession of such land with the consent of the landlord, and upon the faith of such promise or expectation, with the knowledge of the landlord, and, without objection by him, lays out money upon the land, a Court of Equity will compel the landlord to give effect to such promise or expectation (a).

[9. The ground upon which relief is given in these cases is fraud in the possessor of the legal right, and the elements necessary to constitute fraud of this description were enumerated by Fry, J. (b), as follows:— [Wilmott v. Barber.]

"(1) The plaintiff must have made a mistake as to his legal rights.

"(2) The plaintiff must have expended some money, or must have done some act (not necessarily upon the defendant's land) on the faith of his mistaken belief.

"(3) The defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must know of the existence of his own right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by the plaintiff.

"(4) The defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must know of the plaintiff's mistaken belief of his rights (c).

"(5) The defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must have encouraged the plaintiff in his expenditure of money, or in the other acts which he has done, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal right."]

10. The question who has the better equity frequently arises where estates subject to a common charge, become vested in different owners, and each assignee endeavours to throw the charge upon the other. Estates subject to common charge.

11. It has been held in Ireland that if there be an express Express agreement to exonerate from a judgment.

[(a) See Plimmer v. Mayor, &c., of Wellington, 9 App. Cas. 699.]

[(b) Willmott v. Barber, 15 Ch. D. 96, 105; and see Weller v. Stone, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 497.]

[(c) See as to this Plimmer v. Mayor, &c., of Wellington, 9 App. Cas. 699.]

agreement that one estate shall exonerate another from a judgment, a purchaser with notice of the agreement will be bound by it (a). And a covenant that the one estate is free from incumbrances or for quiet enjoyment will amount to such an agreement (b).

Judgments as between two purchasers.

12. It has been further decided in Ireland that where A., the conusor of a judgment, settles an estate for valuable consideration, and afterwards sells an unsettled estate, the purchaser of the latter cannot have the judgment raised by a contribution from both estates (c); and even where a purchaser was not seeking relief against another purchaser, but the plaintiff was the judgment creditor seeking to have his debt raised, it was held that the whole onus must be borne by the subsequent purchaser (d); and the circumstance that the conveyance to the first purchaser contained a covenant against incumbrances or for quiet enjoyment does not appear, where it occurred, to have been the material ground on which the decision was rested (e). Neither did the Court distinguish the case where the subsequent purchaser had no notice of the prior charge. Indeed, in the leading case, the subsequent purchaser on whom the onus was thrown was apparently a purchaser without notice (f).

As between settled and unsettled estates.

13. It has been further ruled in Ireland that where the conusor of a judgment settles an estate with a covenant against incumbrances, the purchasers under the settlement can throw the judgments on the unsettled estates as against subsequent judgment creditors of the settlor, who had merely a general and roving lien, and did not stand in the place of specific purchasers (g), [and where the owner of two freehold properties mortgaged them, and then sold one property and conveyed it to the purchaser without disclosing the mortgage, and without any covenant against incumbrances, but with a covenant for further assurance, it was held by North, J., that as between the purchaser and the devisees of the other property, the burden of the incumbrance must fall on the [Incidence of mortgage debt as between purchaser and devisees.]

(a) Hamilton v. Royse, 2 Sch. & Lef. 315; Handcock v. Handcock, 1 Ir. Ch. Rep. 444.

(b) Handcock v. Handcock, 1 Ir. Ch. Rep. 444; and see Re Roddy's Estate, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 369; Aicken v. Macklin, 1 Dru. &. Walsh, 621.

(c) Hartley v. O'Flaherty, Beat. 61; Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 208; and see Re Roddy's Estate, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 369.

(d) Aicken v. Macklin, 1 Dru. & Wal. 621.

(e) Aicken v. Macklin, 1 Dru. & Wal. 621; Handcock v. Handcock, 1 Ir. Ch. Rep. 444; and see Hughes v. Williams, 3 M. & G. 690; Averall v. Wade, Ll. & G. t. Sugden, 259.

(f) See Hartley v. O'Flaherty, Beat. 69.

(g) Averall v. Wade, Ll. & G. t. Sugden, 252; Hughes v. Williams, 3 Mac. & G. 683; and see Re Roddy's Estate, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 369.

latter (a); but where the settlement or conveyance is voluntary, no such effect can be attributed to a covenant for further assurance, for then the grantee takes only the estate which the grantor had, with all its incidents (b). [As between volunteers.]

So where estates were expressed to be settled for value, subject to charges amounting to 65,000*l.*, with a covenant against incumbrances except "the charges now existing thereon, amounting to the said sum of 65,000*l.*," and a power was reserved of further charging the property to a specific amount, which power was subsequently exercised, but the charges upon the estates at the time of the settlement in fact far exceeded 65,000*l.*, it was held that the purchasers under the settlement were entitled to be recouped, out of the proceeds of sale of the estate, the difference between the charges actually subsisting and the 65,000*l.*, in priority to the mortgagees under the power (c).]

Law in England.

14. The principles which have been acted upon in Ireland, will no doubt be followed to some extent in England. If, for instance, A., possessing Blackacre and Whiteacre [which are subject to a common incumbrance], mortgages Blackacre to B., and covenants that it is free from incumbrances, this is a contract between A. and B., and every purchaser of Whiteacre with notice of the incumbrance and of the contract must be bound by the contract.

Rule in equity in absence of contract.

15. But if there be no express contract between A. and B., then the right of B. depends on a rule of equity, and as against A. himself it is clear that B. can insist on throwing the whole incumbrance on Whiteacre (d); and so as against any person claiming a general and roving lien only as a judgment creditor of A. (e); and even if A. afterwards sell Whiteacre to C., who has notice of the incumbrance and of the mortgage, there is no ground for saying that B. has not the like equity as against C., but if C. have no notice of the incumbrance or no notice of the mortgage, the Court will probably refuse to enforce the rule against him. At least Lord St Leonards seems to have thought that the decisions in Ireland do not affect innocent purchasers — i.e. purchasers for valuable consideration without notice (f). And in the case of Strong v. Hawkes (g), L. J. Turner expressed a doubt whether the cases in Ireland had not gone too far.

[(a) Re Jones, (1893) 2 Ch. 461.]

[(b) Ker v. Ker, 4 I. R. Eq. 15, reversing S. C., 3 I. R. Eq. 489; and see Re Jones, sup.]

[(c) Re Barker's Estate, 3 L. R. Ir. 395.]

(d) See Averall v. Wade, Ll. & G. t. Sugden, 259.

(e) See Averall v. Wade, Ll. & G. t. Sugden, 252.

(f) Vend. & P. p. 746, 14th ed.

(g) 4 De G. & J. 652, & MS.

Barnes v. Racster.

16. In Barnes v. Racster (a), a person mortgaged Foxhall to A., and then to B., and then Foxhall and No. 32 to A., and then Foxhall and No. 32 to C. All parties had notice of the prior transactions. It was held that B. could not compel A. to pay himself exclusively out of No. 32, so as to leave B. the first incumbrancer on Foxhall, but C. was entitled to have the charges thrown proportionately upon Foxhall and No. 32.

Specific or general and roving equity.

17. A purchaser of an equitable interest specifically has a higher equity than a person claiming under a general and roving charge such as a judgment, and therefore the purchaser of such an equitable interest without notice of an equitable judgment was properly held not to be bound by it (b).

[Rule where specific charge on one property and general lien on another.]

[18. If there be a specific charge on one property to secure a sum of money, and there be a general lien on other property (as, for instance, a banker's lien on his customer's securities in his hands) to secure the same sum, the property comprised in the specific charge must be primarily resorted to in exoneration of the property subject to the general lien (c).

[Where goods wrongfully pledged by a firm.]

19. The owner of goods which have been wrongfully pledged by a partnership firm to secure an advance to them, which is further secured by the guarantee of one of the partners, or by the deposit of partnership property, is entitled to have the securities marshalled, and to have the benefit of the guarantee or a lien on the deposited property (d).]

SECTION II

OF TESTAMENTARY DISPOSITION

How trusts of freeholds to be devised.

1. An equitable interest in lands is transmissible by devise (e). Indeed the old use, which preceded the trust, was devisable by

(a) 1 Y. & C. C. C. 401; Bugden v. Bignold, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 377; and see Re Lawder's Estate, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 346; Re Mower's Trust, 8 L. R. Eq. 110; [Flint v. Howard, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 54]. As to the right of judgment creditors to marshal inter se, see Re Lynch's Estate, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 396; [Seton, 6th ed. p. 2092].

(b) Re Grady, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 154. See Wells v. Kilpin, 18 L. R. Eq. 298.

[(c) Re Dunlop, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 583.]

[(d) Ex parte Salting, 25 Ch. D. (C.A.) 148; Ex parte Alston, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 168; M'Mahon v. Featherstonhaugh, (1895) 1 I. R. 83.]

(e) Cornbury v. Middleton, 1 Ch. Ca. 211, per Wyld, Just.; Greenhill v. Greenhill, 2 Vern. 679, per Lord Harcourt; Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 127. [An equitable tenant for life is a "devisee" within sects. 6 and 8 of the Debts Recovery Act, 1830, so that a bonâ fide alienation by him, before action brought by a creditor of the testator, will be protected: Re Atkinson, (1908) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 307.]

parol previously to the Statute of Wills, 32 H. 8. c. 15 (a); but after that Act the trust, by analogy to legal estates, became devisable only by will in writing.

Statute of Frauds.

2. The Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3, followed, which required a devise of "lands" to be by a will, signed by the testator in the presence of and attested by three witnesses. This enactment was applied by the Courts to a devise of the equitable interest in lands. Otherwise a door would have been opened to all the mischiefs and inconveniences the Statute was intended to prevent (b). Whether trusts were within the letter of the Act, or equity brought them under its operation by analogy, it is not easy to determine (c); but undoubtedly the word "lands" has often been extended to include trusts, and, if so, there seems to be little reason why trusts should not have fallen within the express terms of the Statute.

Trusts of copyholds.

3. Copyholds, strictly speaking, are not at common law a devisable interest. A surrender is made to the use of the will, and the gift contained in the will operates as a declaration of the use. The devisee does not come in by the will, but by the surrender and the will taken together, as if the name had been inserted in the surrender itself (d). Thus copyholds at law were out of the Statute of Frauds, and might have been devised by a will neither signed nor attested; and as equity followed the law, the trust of a copyhold was devisable in the same manner (e). And the equitable interest might always have been passed by will, though not preceded by a surrender, which previously to 55 G. 3. c. 192, was required to pass the legal estate (f).

Where no custom to devise the legal estate of copyholds.

4. As equitable interests in copyholds were regulated by analogy to the custom affecting the legal estate, one might have supposed that where the legal estate could not be devised, the equitable estate in like manner must have been left to descend. However, it was decided by the Court, that even assuming the absence of any power to devise the legal estate (g), the owner

(a) Shepp. Touch. 407; and see ante, p. 764, note (1).

(b) Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 259, per Lord Macclesfield; Adlington v. Cann, 3 Atk. 151, per Lord Hardwicke; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 224, per Lord Mansfield.

(c) See Burgess v. Wheate, Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, ubi sup.; Doe v. Danvers, 7 East, 322.

(d) Hussey v. Grills, Amb. 300, per Lord Hardwicke.

(e) Appleyard v. Wood, Sel. Ch. Ca. 42; Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 258; Tuffnell v. Page, 2 Atk. 37; and see Attorney-General v. Andrews, 1 Ves. 225; but see Anon. case, cited Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 261.

(f) Greenhill v. Greenhill, 2 Vern. 679; Tuffnell v. Page, 2 Atk. 37; Gibson v. Rogers, Amb. 93.

(g) As to the validity of a custom restraining surrenders to the uses of a will, see Pike v. White, 3 B. C. C. 286, and note 1, Ib.; Doe v. Thompson, 7 Q. B. 897.

of the equitable estate could pass it by will (a). Whether the will must have been executed according to the Statute of Frauds, or whether any instrument sufficient for declaring the uses on a surrender would have been enough, does not sufficiently appear.

Of customary freeholds.

But in a case of customary freeholds of which the legal estate could not be devised (and customary freeholds are now regarded as copyholds (b)), Lord Hardwicke held that the reason why the equitable interest in copyholds could be devised by an unattested will, was because the legal estate of copyholds could be devised by an unattested will, and that as, in the case of the customary freeholds before him, the legal estate could not be devised, the equitable interest could only pass by a will executed according to the Statute of Frauds (c). And a fortiori where a customary freehold, of which the legal estate was not devisable, was vested in a trustee upon such trusts as the cestui que trust should by will "to be by him legally executed" appoint, it was held that the equitable interest could not be devised by a will not executed according to the Statute of Frauds (d).

Wills Act.

5. Now by the Wills Act (e), as to wills made on or after 1*st January*, 1838, property, of whatever description, whether real or personal, freehold or copyhold, legal or equitable, may be devised or bequeathed by a will in writing, signed by the testator in the presence of and attested by two witnesses, and by such a will only.

Revocation of wills by alteration of estate.

6. If, before this Act, a testator seised of an equitable estate in fee had devised it, and then disturbed the equitable seisin by executing a conveyance and taking back a new estate in the same property, the will was revoked in like manner as if the estate had been legal (f). But if a testator had devised an equitable estate, and afterwards taken a conveyance so as merely to clothe the equitable estate with the legal, or was party to a conveyance for merely changing the trustees, such conveyances were not a revocation of the prior will (g). Now by the

(a) Lewis v. Lane, 2 M. & K. 449; Wilson v. Dent, 3 Sim. 385; [Allen v. Bewsey, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 453; but see Hussey v. Grills, Amb. 299].

(b) See ante, pp. 277, 278.

(c) Hussey v. Grills, Amb. 300. The whole argument in this case assumes that the will as opposed to the codicil was executed according to the Statute of Frauds, and yet the report states that the will was in writing, "but not attested according to the Statute of Frauds." The Reg. Lib. does not state whether the will was or not so executed. Amb. Blunt's edit.

(d) William v. Lancaster, 3 Russ. 108.

(e) 1 Vict. c. 26.

(f) Locke v. Foote, 5 Sim. 618; Earl of Lincoln's case, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 411; S. C., Shower's P. C. 154.

(g) Doe v. Pott, 2 Doug. 710; Watts v. Fullarton, cited 2 Doug. 718; Parsons v. Freeman, 3 Atk. 741; Dingwell v. Askew, 1 Cox, 427; Clough v. Clough, 3 M. & K. 296.

Wills Act, a subsequent disturbance of the seisin, either at law or in equity, does not revoke the will (a).

SECTION III

OF SEISIN AND DISSEISIN

Equitable seisin.

1. The term seisin is properly applicable to legal estates; but a Court of Equity regards actual receipt of the rents and profits under the equitable title as equivalent to seisin at law, and has often adjudicated upon the rights of parties with reference to that circumstance.

Casborne v. Scarfe.

Thus, in Casborne v. Scarfe (b), it was disputed, whether, as curtesy did not attach at law without a seisin in fact, the husband could claim his curtesy out of the wife's equity of redemption; but Lord Hardwicke said: "It is objected there is no seisin whatever of the legal estate in the wife in the consideration of law. But the true question is, if there was such a seisin or possession of the equitable estate in the wife, as in this Court is considered equivalent to an actual seisin of a freehold estate at common law—and I am of opinion there was —actual possession, clothed with the receipt of the rents and profits, is the highest instance of an equitable seisin, both of which were in this case."

Possessio fratris.

2. And so it was held that there was possessio fratris of a trust, in other words, that if a person inherited a trust, and died before actual seisin of the estate by receipt of the rents and profits, it should descend to the brother of the half blood, as heir to the father, in preference to the sister of the whole blood; but that if there had been such a receipt of the rents and profits as constituted equitable seisin, the sister of the whole blood, as heir to the brother, would exclude the brother of the half blood (c).

Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton.

3. The doctrines of the Court upon the subject of equitable disseisin cannot be better illustrated than by a statement of the well-known case of the Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton (d). The circumstances were briefly these:—George, Earl of Oxford, conveyed certain manors and hereditaments to the use of himself for life, remainder to the heirs of his body,

(a) 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 23.
(b) 1 Atk. 603; and see Parker v. Carter, 4 Hare, 413.
(c) See now the Inheritance Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 106).
(d) 2 Mer. 171; 2 J. & W. 1; and see Penny v. Allen, 7 De G. M. & G. 422.

Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton.

remainder as he should by deed or will appoint, remainder to the right heirs of Samuel Rolle, with a power reserved of revocation and new appointment. Some time after, the Earl executed a mortgage in fee, which operated in equity as a revocation of the settlement pro tanto. In 1701 the Earl died without issue and intestate, and upon his death the ultimate remainder (which had been a vested interest in the Earl himself, as the heir of Samuel Rolle at the date of the deed), should have descended to the right heir of the Earl, but, the parties mistaking the law, the person who was heir of Samuel Rolle at the death of the Earl was allowed to enter on the premises, and continue in possession, subject to the mortgage, up to the commencement of the suit. The bill was filed in 1812, by the assign of the right heir of the Earl against the mortgagee and the assign of the right heir of Samuel Rolle, for redemption of the premises, and an account of the profits. It was debated whether, as the legal estate was vested in the mortgagee, and the heir of Samuel Rolle had held the possession subject to a subsisting mortgage, the assign of the Earl's heir, to whom the equity of redemption belonged in point of right, had been disseised of his equitable interest, and was now barred by the effect of time. Sir W. Grant argued, that although there might be what was deemed a seisin of an equitable estate, there could be no disseisin—first, because the disseisin must be of the entire estate, and not of a limited and partial interest in it; and, secondly, because a tortious act could never be the foundation of an equitable title; that an equitable title might undoubtedly be barred by length of time, but could not be shifted or transferred (a); that the equity of redemption subsisted, and it must therefore belong to some one, and could only belong to the original cestui que trust (b); and that the cestui que trust could only be barred by barring the trustee (c). Sir W. Grant did not then decide the point, but directed a case for the opinion of the Queen's Bench on a question of law, and retained the bill in the meantime.

Re-heard.

The cause was afterwards re-heard on the equity reserved before Sir T. Plumer, who determined that the original cestui que trust had been disseised and was consequently barred (d). "The grounds," he said, "upon which it is contended that the holder of the rightful equity is not bound by laches and non-claim are that the tortious possessor does not claim to be the

(a) See Hopkins v. Hopkins, 1 Atk. 590.
(b) 2 Mer. 357-359.
(c) Ib. 361.
(d) 2 J. & W. 1.

holder of more than the equitable estate—that there is no disseisin, abatement or intrusion of a trust—that the possessor is only tenant at will, and may be dispossessed at any time by the trustee of the legal estate, and he has therefore only a precarious and permissive possession—that tortious possession can never be the foundation of an equitable title (a). But this reasoning," he continued, "proceeds on a mistaken view of the manner in which, and the grounds upon which, the bar from length of time operates. The question respects the plaintiff's right to the remedy, not the defendant's title to the estate. A tortious act can never be the foundation of a legal any more than of an equitable title. The question is, whether the plaintiff has prosecuted his title in due time (b). As to the argument that a title in a Court of Equity may be lost by laches, but cannot be transferred without the act of the party, the case is the same in this respect both in equity and law. If the negligent owner has for ever forfeited by his laches his right to any remedy to recover, he has in effect lost his title for ever. The plaintiff is barred of his remedy; the defendant keeps possession without the possibility of being ever disturbed by any one: the loss of the former owner is necessarily his gain; it is more—he gains a positive title under the statute at law, and, by analogy, in equity (c). If the mere existence of an old legal estate would have the effect of preventing the bar attaching upon the equitable estate, all the principles that have been established respecting equitable estates and titles would be overturned. According to this reasoning, whenever the legal estate is outstanding, in an old term, for instance, to attend the inheritance, the earliest equitable title must in all cases prevail; quiet enjoyment for sixty, one hundred, or two hundred years or more, would be no security, if the old term had existed longer; it would always be open to inquiry in whom was vested the equitable title which originally existed when the old term was created" (d).

Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton.

On appeal to the House of Lords his Honour's decision was affirmed, and the principle on which it proceeded was approved. Lord Eldon said: "He could not agree, and had never heard of such a rule as that adverse possession, however long, would not avail against an equitable estate: his opinion was, that adverse possession of an equity of redemption for twenty years was a bar to another person claiming the same equity of redemption, Appeal to the House of Lords.

(a) 2 J. & W. 153.
(b) Ib. 155.
(c) Ib. 155, 156.
(d) Ib. 157.

and worked the same effect as abatement or intrusion with respect to legal estates, and that for the quiet and peace of titles and the world it ought to have the same effect" (a).

SECTION IV

OF MERGER

General view.

1. At law merger is the necessary consequence of the union of two estates in the same person in the same right, but in equity two estates without any intervening interest may meet in the same person in the same right without merger, and, on the other hand, though the estates are separated by an intervening interest, merger may take effect. The principle by which the Court is guided is the intention; and in the absence of express intention, either in the instrument or by parol, the Court looks to the benefit of the person in whom the two estates become vested (b).

Purchase subject to charges.

2. [The doctrine of merger applies to the merger of estates as well as to that of charges (c), but] the chief importance of the doctrine is with reference to charges. Thus A., the owner of an estate subject to a first incumbrance in favour of B., and a second incumbrance in favour of C., contracts to sell the estate to D. Here, if the purchaser knows of both the incumbrances, he of course will not accept the title until they have been discharged. But should he have actual notice of the incumbrance to B. only, and take a conveyance from A. and B. so as to extinguish the charge of the latter, this act (if, by reason of his having constructive notice of C.'s incumbrance or otherwise, the defence of purchase for value without notice is not available) lets in the incumbrance of C. as the first charge (d). If, on the other hand, the purchaser,

(a) 2 J. & W. 190, 191.

(b) Lord Compton v. Oxenden, 2 Ves. jun. 264; Forbes v. Moffat, 18 Ves. 390; Horton v. Smith, 4 K. & J. 630; [Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 634, at p. 646; Re Pride, (1891) 2 Ch. 135; Thorne v. Cann, (1895) A. C. 11, 18; Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 726; S. C. reversed, (1898) A. C. 321; Re Drax, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 781; Thellusson v. Liddard, (1900) 2 Ch. 635, where it was questioned whether the above principle applies where a merger of a legal estate has actually taken place; Re French-Brewster's Settlements, (1904) 1 Ch. 713; Hurley v. Hurley, (1908) 1 I. R. 393 (no merger of term of wife, married before 1883, in reversion purchased by husband)].

[(c) Capital and Counties Bank Limited v. Rhodes, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 631; Ingle v. Vaughan Jenkins, (1900) 2 Ch. 368.]

(d) Toulmin v. Steere, 3 Mer. 210; Medley v. Horton, 14 Sim. 226; Parry v. Wright, 1 S. & S. 369; 5 Russ. 142; Smith v. Phillips, 1 Keen, 694; Brown v. Stead, 5 Sim. 535; Mocatta v. Murgatroyd, 1 P. W. 393. [The case of Toulmin v. Steere, ubi sup., being apprehensive of some outstanding incumbrance, take an assignment of B.'s security to a trustee for him in order that it may be kept on foot, then the charge does not merge in the fee simple; but should C. take proceedings for raising his charge, the purchaser may protect himself by the shield of B.'s incumbrance as the first charge (a).

Purchase by person entitled to the charge.

3. The same principle under different circumstances applies where B., the first incumbrancer, buys up the interest of the owner subject to the charge; for if the charge be not kept on foot the incumbrance of C. will be let in, unless the defence of purchase for value without notice be applicable (b).

Purchaser may require the charge to be kept on foot.

4. The vendor must not be put to extra expense by the form in which the purchaser wishes the conveyance to be made, and where the vendor is under a personal liability he may insist on being discharged from it, but with these qualifications the purchaser can insist on having charges kept up instead of being merged (c). [If an intention to keep a charge alive is inconsistent with the real intention of the parties to the deed, the charge cannot be treated as still subsisting simply because the purchaser afterwards finds that it would have been better for him to have kept the charge alive (d).]

Mode and effect of keeping charge on foot.

5. If the purchaser desire to keep on foot a charge vested in has been doubted, and in Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. 634, 645, Sir G. Jessel, M.R., sitting in the Court of Appeal, while withholding his opinion as to whether it was binding in that Court, observed: "It amounts to no more than this, that in the case of a purchase from the owner of an equity of redemption in which the purchase-money is partly applied in paying off incumbrances, the purchaser with notice, whether actual or constructive, of other incumbrances is not, in the absence of any contemporaneous expression of intention, entitled, as against the other incumbrancers of whose securities he has notice, to say afterwards that the incumbrances so paid off are not extinguished. It does not go beyond that, and there are several authorities which say that this doctrine is not to be carried further." And in an Indian appeal the Privy Council refused to apply the doctrine of Toulmin v. Steere to India, on the ground that it did not rest on any broad intelligible principle of justice; Gokuldoss Gopaldoss v. Rambux Seochand, 11 L. R. Ind. App. 126, 130; and see Re Cork Harbour Docks Co., 17 L. R. Ir. 515; Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 726, 734; S. C. reversed, (1898) A. C. 321; Thorne v. Cann, (1895) A. C. 11, 18, per Lord Macnaghten; Re Howard's Estate, 29 L. R. Ir. 266 (C.A.).] As to Greswold v. Marsham, 2 Ch. Ca. 170, see Dart, 6th ed. p. 1040. See also Anderson v. Pignet, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 180.

(a) Watts v. Symes, 16 Sim. 646, per V. C. Shadwell; Smith v. Phillips, 1 Keen, 699, per Lord Langdale; Parry v. Wright, 1 S. & S. 379, per Sir John Leach.

(b) Parry v. Wright, 1 S. & S. 369; 5 Russ. 142; Garnett v. Armstrong, 2 Conn. & Laws. 458.

(c) Cooper v. Cartwright, Johns. 679.

[(d) Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 726, 734, 735, per Lindley, L.J.; S. C. reversed, (1898) A. C. 321.]

himself, he should take a conveyance of the equity of redemption to a trustee, and the intention should be expressed on the face of the instrument, and if this be done the charge and the inheritance will both be sustained in equity, so as to afford protection against any intervening incumbrance (a).

Merger on a contingency.

6. A purchaser may even have the charge assigned so as to keep it on foot in one event and merge it in another event, should the contingencies affecting the estate make such a course desirable (b).

A trustee not absolutely necessary.

7. The assignment should in prudence be made to a trustee, but if the purchaser have the equity of redemption conveyed to himself, yet if the intention to keep up the charge be clear, no merger will take place (c).

Getting in a charge pending contract for purchase.

8. If a person contracts only for the purchase of an estate, and pays off a first charge with a view to the purchase, but before the completion of it, no merger takes place, but the purchaser stands in the shoes of the first incumbrancer (d).

Where the person who created the second charge buys up the first charge.

9. The question of merger has been spoken of as one of intention (e), but this principle must not be applied where a person has himself created two successive incumbrances, and then buys up the first charge, for in this case the mortgagor when he creates the second incumbrance is under a duty to discharge the debt previously incurred, and though the second mortgagee cannot compel him to do this, yet if the mortgagor do discharge the first debt, the second incumbrancer, whatever may have been the intention, will have the benefit of it. Besides, in most cases a mortgagor, in creating an incumbrance, enters into a covenant for further assurance, and this, independently of any general equity, would, it is conceived, give the incumbrancer a right to call for the assignment to him of any interest in the estate subsequently acquired by the mortgagor. Although, therefore, the mortgagor take an assignment of the prior charge to a trustee for himself to the intent that the same may be kept on foot, yet equity will not allow this as against the second incumbrancer (f).

(a) Bailey v. Richardson, 9 Hare, 736; and see Holt v. Holt, cited 1 P. W. 374.

(b) See Selsey v. Lake, 1 Beav. 146, 148.

(c) See Davis v. Barrett, 14 Beav. 542; Forbes v. Moffatt, 18 Ves. 384; Earl of Clarendon v. Barham, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 688; Keogh v. Keogh, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 179.

(d) Watts v. Symes, 1 De G. M. & G. 240.

[(e) Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 634; Re Cork Harbour Docks Co., 17 L. R. Ir. 515, 526; Re Pride, (1891) 2 Ch. 135, 142; Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 726, 734, 738; S.C. reversed, (1898) A. C. 321.]

(f) Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 657, per V. C. Wood.

Otter v. Vaux.

10. This has been carried so far that where a mortgage was made with a power of sale, and then a second incumbrance was created, and then the mortgagor purchased under the power of sale in the first mortgage, it was held that by this means the second incumbrance was let in as the first charge upon the estate (a). It was clear that if the mortgagor had paid off the first mortgage and taken a reconveyance, this would have enured to the benefit of the second mortgagee; and the substance of the transaction was thought to be the same where the mortgagor took a reconveyance from the mortgagee by the machinery of the power of sale: it was, indeed, said that this would give the second incumbrancer a double security—first, the purchase-money in the hands of the first mortgagee, and then the estate in the hands of the mortgagor; but the answer was that the mortgagee could get no more than he was entitled to, viz. his principal money and interest (b). [This principle applies equally to a case where an existing incumbrancer or creditor ranks pari passu with the incumbrancer who is paid off (c).

[Trustee in bankruptcy buying up charge.]

11. But where the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor purchased from the first mortgagee, it was held that the second mortgagee was unaffected by the transaction, that the trustee stood in the position of transferee of the mortgage, and the second mortgagee was entitled to redeem him upon the usual terms (d).]

Owner of a charge may buy equity of redemption and hold his charge against intervening incumbrancer.

12. It was observed by Sir William Grant (e), that the cases of Greswold v. Marsham (f) and Mocatta v. Murgatroyd (g) were express authorities to show that one purchasing an equity of redemption could not set up a prior mortgage of his own, nor consequently a mortgage which he had got in, against subsequent incumbrances of which he had notice. Now a person who borrows money cannot be his own creditor, or set up an incumbrance of his own, as against his own creditor (h); and if the vendor of the equity of redemption be himself personally liable for the charge, the purchaser will, as a general rule, be bound to indemnify him, but that one purchasing an equity of redemption cannot set up

(a) Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 D. M. & G. 638, 643; [and see Re Cork Harbour Docks Co., 17 L. R. Ir. 515, 526].

(b) Otter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 657.

[(c) Re Tasker & Sons, (1905) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 586 (where debentures were paid off by the company who had issued them, and were then irregularly re-issued as though they were still subsisting).]

[(d) Bell v. Sunderland Building Society, 24 Ch. D. 618.]

(e) Toulmin v. Steere, 3 Mer. 224.

(f) 2 Ch. Ca. 170.

(g) 1 P. W. 393.

(h) Watts v. Symes, 1 De G. M. & G. 244, per L. J. Knight Bruce.

a mortgage of his own, or one which he has got in, as against incumbrances not created by himself (a proposition not established by the authorities cited by Sir W. Grant (a)) is, it is conceived, not law at the present day (b). If the first mortgage be paid off and extinguished, of course the second charge is let in; but, subject to the equities flowing from the contract between the purchaser and his vendor, the first mortgage and the equity of redemption may be so vested in the same person as to keep the two separate, and so exclude the second incumbrance.

Effect of keeping a charge on foot.

13. It must be borne in mind that where the charge and the inheritance do not merge, the person in whom they are vested has two distinct possessions, and in the absence of any indication of intention that the charge shall in equity wait upon and attend the inheritance, the charge will go to the executor, subject to probate and legacy duty (c), and the inheritance to the heir (d). The question, therefore, is constantly arising as between the real and personal representatives, whether the two interests merged in the lifetime of the person entitled to both or were subsisting at the time of his death; and the question of merger or non-merger is held to be an open one up to the death of a testator (e), and for the purpose of collecting the intention parol evidence is admissible (f).

Rule where charge and inheritance become united.

14. Where a person is entitled to a charge and to the inheritance under the same instrument (g), or being first entitled to the charge subsequently acquires the inheritance as devisee (h), or heir (i), or being first entitled to the inheritance acquires the charge by bequest (j), or by succession as next of kin (k), in all

(a) See Watts v. Symes, 1 De G. M. & G. 244; and Dart. V. & P. 6th ed. p. 1040; [Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 634].

(b) See now Hayden v. Kirkpatrick, 34 Beav. 645; Stevens v. Mid-Hants Railway Company, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 1064; [Gokuldoss Gopaldoss v. Rambux Seochand, 11 L. R. Ind. App. 126; Thorne v. Cann, (1895) A. C. 11].

(c) See Swabey v. Swabey, 15 Sim. 502.

(d) Belaney v. Belaney, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 138; 35 Beav. 469. Lord Romilly, M.R., observed that "If the testator had died intestate altogether, and the question had arisen between the heir and the next of kin, I think the term would have gone to the heir." Is it meant by this that a charge cannot be kept up for the benefit of the next of kin, but only for the benefit of persons claiming under a will?

(e) Swinfen v. Swinfen (No. 3), 29 Beav. 199; and see Tyrwhitt v. Tyrwhitt, 32 Beav. 244.

(f) Astley v. Milles, 1 Sim. 298.

(g) Grice v. Shaw, 10 Hare, 76; Richards v. Richards, Johns. 754.

(h) Forbes v. Moffat, 18 Ves. 384; Earl of Clarendon v. Barham, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 688; Davis v. Barrett, 14 Beav. 542.

(i) Chester v. Willes, Amb. 246; Powell v. Morgan, 2 Vern. 90; Thomas v. Kemeys, 2 Vern. 348.

(j) Price v. Gibson, 2 Eden, 115.

(k) Donisthorpe v. Porter, 2 Eden, 162; Lord Compton v. Oxenden, 2 Ves. jun. 260; [Re French-Brewster's Settlements, (1904) 1 Ch. 713].

these cases, in the absence of anything said or done by the owner of the charge and of the estate to show what his intention was (a), the Court presumes the charge to be merged or not, according as merger would or not be for the owner's benefit. If, therefore, the owner would, as in the case of an infant previously to the Wills Act, have had a larger testamentary power over the charge than over the inheritance (b), or if the merger would let in subsequent or competing incumbrances (c) of substantial amount (d), or the debts of the testator or grantor (e), [or the right of a landlord to rent (f)], the Court presumes the intention to have been that the charge and the inheritance, though both vested in the same person, should be kept distinct. But if it clearly appear that to keep the charge on foot could in no way benefit the owner it will merge (g).

Rule where owner pays off a charge.

15. Where a charge is paid off by a person owning an interest in the property charged, the quantum of interest which he owns

(a) See Tyrwhitt v. Tyrwhitt, 32 Beav. 244, in which case Sir John Romilly, M.R., observed: "The three tests usually applied for the purpose of ascertaining whether the owner of the charge intended that it should merge in the inheritance at the time when he became entitled to the absolute interest in the charge are: 1. Any actual expression of that intention; 2. Where the form and character of the acts done are only consistent with the keeping the charge on foot; and 3. Such an intention may be presumed when, though a total silence in all other respects pervades the matter, it appears that it was for the interest of the owner of the charge that it should not merge in the inheritance;" [and see Thorne v. Cann, (1895) A. C. 11; and Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. 726, where it was said by Lindley, L.J., that having regard to the decision in Thorne v. Cann, "it is perhaps now safe to say that where a purchaser of a property pays off a charge on it, without showing an intention to keep it alive, still, if its continuance as an existing charge is beneficial to him, it will be treated in equity as subsisting unless an intention to the contrary can be inferred from the terms of the purchase deed or from other legitimate evidence," adding, with reference to the facts of the particular case, that he did not think that the opportunity of making a very doubtful claim against third parties was such a benefit as was meant in such an enunciation of the doctrine. The case was reversed in H. L. on other grounds, see (1898) A. C. 321. For a case in which, parties having dealt on the footing that a term of years was to be deemed to be in existence, it was held to be inequitable to allow the term to be treated as at an end, see Thellusson v. Liddard, (1900) 2 Ch. 635; and see Capital and Counties Bank v. Rhodes, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 631. See also Phillips v. Gutteridge, 4 De G. & J. 531; Locking v. Parker, 8 L. R. Ch. 30; Re Godley's Estate, (1896) 1 I. R. 45; Smith v. Smith, 19 L. R. Ir. 514, 522].

(b) Powell v. Morgan, 2 Vern. 90; Thomas v. Kemeys, Ib. 348; Duke of Chandos v. Talbot, 2 P. W. 601.

(c) Forbes v. Moffat, 18 Ves. 384; Earl of Clarendon v. Barham, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 688; Grice v. Shaw, 10 Hare, 76; Richards v. Richards, Johns. 754; Keogh v. Keogh, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 179.

(d) Richards v. Richards, Johns. 767.

(e) Davis v. Barrett, 14 Beav. 552; Sing v. Leslie, 2 H. & M. 68.

[(f) Capital and Counties Bank v. Rhodes, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 631.]

(g) Price v. Gibson, 2 Eden, 115; Donisthorpe v. Porter, Ib. 162; Lord Compton v. Oxenden, 2 Ves. jun. 263; Swinfen v. Swinfen, (No. 3), 29 Beav. 199; [Re Godley's Estate, (1896) 1 I. R. 45; Re French Brewster's Settlements, (1904) 1 Ch. 713; Re Hole, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 673].

is, in the absence of direct evidence of intention, the chief guide in determining whether merger takes place. If he be absolutely entitled, the presumption is that he meant to free the property from the charge; if only partially interested, the presumption is that he intended to keep it on foot (a).

Tenant in fee-simple paying off a charge.

16. Thus, if the person paying off the charge be tenant in fee simple, the presumption will be that the charge was meant to be merged (b), unless the assignment of the charge was to a trustee in trust for the owner of the inheritance, his "executors, administrators, and assigns," instead of his "heirs and assigns" (c), or there were other circumstances in the transaction sufficient to exclude the presumption (d).

The mere fact of taking the assignment to a trustee for the person paying off, though a material ingredient in the question of intention, is not alone enough to keep the charge on foot (e).

[And where a person, claiming to be the absolute owner of an estate, borrows money to pay off a mortgage, there being no intermediate incumbrance, the presumption is that he means to extinguish the charge (f).]

Tenant for life paying off a charge.

17. If the person paying off the charge be tenant for life, the Court considers that as his interest ceases with his death, he could never have meant that the charge should be extinguished instead of enuring to the benefit of his representatives (g); [and effect was given to this principle, notwithstanding that the property had been reconveyed "absolutely discharged" from the mortgage debt, the solicitors who prepared the reconveyance being not fully cognisant of the facts (h)]. The same rule applies

[(a) Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 634, 645; Re Pride, (1891) 2 Ch. 135, where an owner of five-sixths paid off a charge on the entirety pending a suit to set aside the sale of one of such five-sixths to him, and took from the mortgagee a reconveyance as to the five-sixths, and a transfer as to the other sixth, and it was held that the charge was kept alive as to the disputed sixth; and see Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. v. Willoughby, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 726, 733; S. C. reversed, (1898) A.C. 321.]

(b) Hood v. Phillips, 3 Beav. 513; Pitt v. Pitt, 22 Beav. 294; Gunter v. Gunter, 23 Beav. 571; Swinfen v. Swinfen (No. 3), 29 Beav. 199; [Re Nunn's Estate, 23 L. R. Ir. 286, 309; Re Lloyd's Estate, (1903) 1 I. R. 145].

(c) Gunter v. Gunter, 23 Beav. 571; and see Tyrwhitt v. Tyrwhitt, 32 Beav. 244.

(d) Keogh v. Keogh, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 179.

(e) Pitt v. Pitt, 22 Beav. 294; Hood v. Phillips, 3 Beav. 513.

[(f) Mohesh Lal. v. Mohunt Bawan Das, 10 L. R. Ind. App. 62.]

(g) Pitt v. Pitt, 22 Beav. 294; Burrell v. Earl of Egremont, 7 Beav. 205: Redington v. Redington, 1 B. & B. 131; Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Hare, 217; Lindsay v. Earl Wicklow, 7 Ir. R. Eq. 192; [Re Nepean's Settled Estate, (1903) 1 Ir. R. 298, where successive tenants for life were recouped rateably, the earlier not being preferred].

[(h) Lord Gifford v. Lord Fitzhardinge, (1899) 2 Ch. 32; and see Conolly v. Barter, (1904) 1 I. R. 144.]

though the tenant for life be or become entitled (subject to remainders to his own issue which fail) to the ultimate reversion in fee (a); [and the fact that the tenant for life is the mother of the remainderman is not of itself sufficient to rebut the presumption (b)]. But even in the case of a tenant for life, positive evidence may be given by parol that he meant to merge the charge (c).

Tenant in tail in possession and of age paying off a charge.

18. As tenant in tail in possession, if of age, has an absolute power of disposition over the estate, subject to his compliance with certain forms, the presumption is, that if he pay off a charge he meant to merge it (d).

Special cases where charge has been kept on foot.

19. But if tenant in fee simple, subject to an executory limitation over, which he cannot destroy (e), or a tenant in tail under an Act of Parliament, who is incapable of acquiring the fee simple (f), or tenant in tail in remainder during the life of the tenant for life whose issue, if any, will be prior tenants in tail (g), pay off a charge, in all these cases, as the interest of the party required the charge to be kept on foot, the presumption is that such was the intention. And where a tenant in tail paid off a charge with the intention of extinguishing it, believing himself to be tenant in fee simple, and assuming that as the basis of the transaction, the Court considered, on the ground of mistake, that the tenant in tail had not merged the charge (h).

Payment of charge and subsequent acquisition of fee.

20. It seems to be settled that where a tenant for life or tenant in tail in remainder pays off a charge, and afterwards the fee devolves on the tenant for life, or the remainder of the tenant in tail vests in possession, this subsequent union of the charge and the inheritance is not per se sufficient to rebut the intention previously shown to keep the charge on foot (i); [and similarly, where a tenant for life in remainder takes a beneficial lease, and subsequently becomes tenant for life in possession, the presumption is against merger (j)].

[Lease taken by tenant for life in remainder.]

(a) Wyndham v. Earl of Egremont, Amb. 753; Trevor v. Trevor, 2 M. & K. 675.

[(b) Re Harvey, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 137.]

(c) Astley v. Milles, 1 Sim. 298.

(d) St Paul v. Dudley, 15 Ves. 173, per Lord Eldon; Jones v. Morgan, 1 B. C. C. 206; Earl of Buckinghamshire v. Hobart, 3 Sw. 199; Keogh v. Keogh, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 179.

(e) Drinkwater v. Combe, 2 S. & S. 340.

(f) Shrewsbury v. Shrewsbury, 3 B. C. C. 120; S. C., 1 Ves. jun. 227; see Earl of Buckinghamshire v. Hobart, 3 Sw. 200.

(g) Wigsell v. Wigsell, 2 S. & S. 364; Horton v. Smith, 4 K. & J. 624.

(h) Earl of Buckinghamshire v. Hobart, 3 Sw. 186; Kirkham v. Smith, 1 Ves. 258.

(i) Trevor v. Trevor, 2 M. & K. 675; Wigsell v. Wigsell, 2 S. & S. 364; Horton v. Smith, 4 K. & J. 624.

[(j) Ingle v. Vaughan Jenkins, (1900) 2 Ch. 368.]

Mortgage by person who has bought up a charge.

21. If a person having both a subsisting charge and the estate, mortgage or convey the latter, without mention of the charge, the security carries with it all the mortgagor's interest, and as between the mortgagor and mortgagee there is a merger (a). If tenant in fee of an estate mortgage it to the trustees of his settlement to secure a fund to which he is absolutely entitled, subject to a life interest limited to his wife, and then dies in the lifetime of the wife, there can be no merger, for during the existence of the wife's interest the trustees could not, without a breach of trust, release the charge to him (b).

[Declaration keeping mortgage on foot.]

[Where the owner of an equity of redemption takes a transfer of an existing mortgage, with a declaration that the mortgage is kept on foot as a subsisting charge for the benefit of himself, his heirs and assigns, the mortgage will pass, upon his death intestate, as personal estate to his next of kin (c).]

Whether charges can be made to attend the inheritance.

22. As charges are not unfrequently assigned like terms of years upon trust to attend the inheritance, it may be useful to add some cautionary remarks. So far as the author is aware, there is no authority for saying that charges can be made to wait upon the inheritance like terms of years. No doubt charges, like heirlooms and other personalty, can be settled to a certain extent to run in the channel of realty, but can they be impressed with the nature of realty itself? Thus A. buys an estate, and settles it by the purchase deed to the use of himself for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail, with remainder over to B., and, suspecting secret incumbrances, has a charge assigned to a trustee upon trust to attend the inheritance; A. dies leaving an only son, who shortly afterwards dies without issue, when the estate becomes vested in B. An incumbrancer now starts up, and the charge is raised. Who is to have the benefit of it? Not, it will be said, A.'s real or personal representative, for by the trust he has parted with the absolute interest in favour of others. Not B., for how can personal estate go after an entail to a remainderman? The practice of assignment of charges, however, is so prevalent that when the point comes to be decided, the Court may go the whole length of holding that charges can attend the devolution of real estate through all its changes, and that they are not barred, &c., and that though latent before, yet they resume their vitality when a secret incumbrance is disclosed. The point must at present be considered an open one.

(a) Tyler v. Lake, 4 Sim. 351; Johnson v. Webster, 4 De G. M. & G. 474; [and see Price v. John, (1905) 1 Ch. 744].

(b) Wilkes v. Collin, 8 L. R. Eq. 338.

[(c) Re Gibbon, (1909) 1 Ch. 367.]

23. Now by the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, sect. 25, sub-sect. 4, there is not any merger by operation of law only of any estate, the beneficial interest in which would not be deemed to be merged or extinguished in equity. [The effect of this enactment "seems to be that, if the circumstances are such that a Court of Equity would have held that there was no merger in equity, there is now no merger at law, and the rights of the parties must be dealt with on that footing" (a).] 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25.

SECTION V

OF DOWER AND CURTESY

Dower and curtesy of a trust.

1. A trust or equitable interest (b) and equity of redemption (c), of freeholds, were until the Dower Act (d) exempt from the lien of dower; but were subject to the curtesy of the husband (e), unless the husband was an alien (f).

Freebench.

2. An equitable interest in copyholds (as the Dower Act does not apply to them (g)) remains as before not subject to freebench (h).

What seisin required to give curtesy.

3. With respect to curtesy, as at law the wife, to entitle her husband to curtesy, must have seisin in deed of the freehold (i),

[(a) Capital and Counties Bank Limited v. Rhodes, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 631, 653, 654, per Cozens-Hardy, L.J.]

(b) Colt v. Colt, 1 Ch. Rep. 254; Bottomley v. Lord Fairfax, Pr. Ch. 336; Attorney-General v. Scott, Cas. t. Talb. 138; Chaplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. W. 229; Shepherd v. Shepherd, Id. 234, note (D); Lady Radnor v. Rotherham, Pr. Ch. 65, per Lord Somers; Goodwin v. Winsmore, 2 Atk. 525. The distinction taken by Sir Jos. Jekyll in Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 700, between trusts created by the husband himself and trusts originating from a stranger, has been overruled by subsequent cases; Curtis v. Curtis, 2 B. C. C. 630; D'Arcy v. Blake, 2 Sch. & Lef. 391; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 197.

(c) Dixon v. Saville, 1 B. C. C. 326; Reynolds v. Messing, cited 1 Atk. 604; Casborne v. Scarfe, 2 J. & W. 194.

(d) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105.

(e) Chaplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. W. 234, per Lord Talbot; Attorney-General v. Scott, Cas. t. Talb. 139, per eundem; Watts v. Ball, 1 P. W. 108: Sweetapple v. Bindon, 2 Vern. 536; Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 174; Casborne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 603; Dodson v. Hay, 3 B. C. C. 405.

(f) See Dumoncel v. Dumoncel, 13 Ir. Eq. Rep. 92. But see now the Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 Vict. c. 14), s. 2.

(g) See post, p. 950.

(h) Forder v. Wade, 4 B. C. C. 521.

[(i) The seisin in deed of the freehold is necessary only in the cases in which, in the language of Lord Coke, "it may be attained unto"; Co. upon Litt. 29a., but where there are no possible means by which the seisin in deed can be acquired, the husband will be entitled to curtesy notwithstanding its absence, for impotentia excusat legem. Thus in the case put by Lord Coke, "a man seised of an advowson or rent in fee hath issue a daughter, who is the question arises whether in the instance of a trust, there must not be such a seisin of the equitable estate in the wife as is considered equivalent to legal seisin, as actual possession of the estate clothed with the receipt of the rents and profits.

No curtesy where there is adverse possession.

4. It seems to be admitted that if the equitable interest be in the possession of a stranger, adversely to the right of the wife, there is no such seisin in deed as to entitle the husband to his curtesy (a).

Executory trusts.

5. But if money be articled or directed by will to be laid out in a purchase of land to be settled on a married woman in fee or in tail, the husband is entitled to curtesy, though no rent or interest may have been actually paid during the coverture (b). This proceeds on the principle that the laches of the trustees shall not prejudice the right of a third person, and, therefore, the claim to curtesy arises in the same manner as if the trustees had actually laid out the money in land and put the parties in possession.

Parker v. Carter.

6. And it has been held, that in the case of an ordinary trust, any seisin of the wife, though she has not possession or receipt of rents, is sufficient to entitle the husband to curtesy. Thus an estate had been vested in trustees upon trust for Carter, during the joint lives of himself and Mary his wife, and upon the death of either of them, and in default of appointment, upon trust for the children in fee. There were two children, a son, and a daughter Elizabeth, and the daughter married Parker; Carter died in 1817, and on his decease the widow, although she had no life estate, held possession of the estate until her own death in 1839. Elizabeth Parker died in 1836, and the question was, whether Parker the husband was tenant by the curtesy, although his wife had never been in receipt of rents. The Vice-Chancellor ruled that the possession of Carter was the possession of his trustee, and gave to the trustee a seisin of the inheritance; that the death of Carter did not interrupt that seisin, but the trustee was still in actual possession, not by a new title then for the married, and hath issue and dieth seised, the wife, before the rent became due or the church became void, dieth, she had but a seisin in law, and yet he shall be tenant by the curtesy, because he could by no industry attain to any other seisin," Co. upon Litt. 29a. So where a testator devised an estate to his daughter, her heirs and assigns, for her separate use, and the daughter died in the lifetime of the testator leaving a husband and an only child, it was held that under the operation of the Wills Act the husband was entitled to curtesy, and that, as there were no possible means by which the husband could have obtained seisin in the wife's lifetime, it was not required; Eager v. Furnivall, 17 Ch. D. 115.]

(a) Parker v. Carter, 4 Hare, 413.

(b) Sweetapple v. Bindon, 2 Vern. 536; Dodson v. Hay, 3 B. C. C. 405.

first time accruing, but by continuance of the seisin acquired during the coverture, that the trustee was in such possession for the benefit of the party lawfully entitled thereto, and that he continued in such possession until the entry of Mary, which might be supposed to be a month or more after the death of her husband, and that such interval, there being no adverse possession, would entitle the husband to his curtesy (a).

Curtesy where there is separate use.

7. If the trust be for the separate use of the wife, so that her seisin would not entitle her husband to the possession or profits, it was formerly doubted whether in this case curtesy was not excluded. Lord Hardwicke was originally in favour of the curtesy (b); but in a subsequent case (without any allusion, however, to his former opinion), he decided against the claim of the husband (c). It has since been determined that the husband is entitled (d).

[Defeated by a disposition by the wife.]

[The right of the husband will, however, be defeated by a disposition by the wife of her inheritance by act inter vivos or by will (e).]

Opinion of Sir John Leach.

8. It was observed by Sir John Leach that at law the husband could not be excluded from the enjoyment of property given to or settled upon the wife, but in equity he might, and that not only partially, as by a direction to pay the rents and profits to the separate use of his wife during coverture, but wholly, by a direction that upon the death of the wife the inheritance should descend to the heir of the wife, and that the husband should not be entitled to be tenant by the curtesy (f); but this doctrine may admit of question, as there appears no reason why a person should be able to exempt equitable any more than legal estates from the ordinary incidents of property. A declaration, for instance, by a settlor, that a trust should be inalienable or not available to creditors would be absolutely void. In the case of Bennet v. Davis (g), which is cited by Sir J. Leach for his position, the question discussed was not whether curtesy attached on an equitable estate, but whether an equitable estate arose. A testator had devised lands "to his daughter, the wife of Bennet, for her separate use, exclusive of her husband, to hold

(a) Parker v. Carter, 4 Hare, 400; see Casborne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 606.

(b) Roberts v. Dixwell, 1 Atk. 609.

(c) Hearle v. Greenbank, 3 Atk. 715, 716.

(d) Morgan v. Morgan, 5 Mad. 408; Follett v. Tyrer, 14 Sim. 125; Appleton v. Rowley, 8 L. R. Eq. 139; [Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 288.] But see contra, Moore v. Webster, 3 L. R. Eq. 267.

[(e) Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 288.]

(f) Morgan v. Morgan, 5 Mad. 411.

(g) 2 P. W. 316.

the same to her and her heirs," and that her husband should not be tenant by the curtesy, nor have the lands for his life in case he survived, but that they should upon his wife's death go to her heirs. It was contended that the wife could not be a trustee for herself, and that the husband could not be a trustee for the wife, they both being one person, and, that consequently, as there was no trustee, the husband was entitled to the estate beneficially. But the Court held that the husband was a trustee for the wife, and observed, "though the husband might be tenant by the curtesy (viz. of the legal estate), yet he should be but a trustee for the heirs of the wife." The remark certainly implies that on the death of the wife the husband would not be tenant by the curtesy of the equitable estate, but that question had not been adverted to at the bar, and apparently, from the context, was not under the consideration of the Court. Even assuming the remark to have been made advisedly, the view of the Court may have been that the curtesy of the husband was excluded on the ground now overruled, viz. that the trust being not simply for the wife and her heirs, but during the coverture for the separate use of the wife, and after her death for her heirs, there was not a sufficient seisin as regarded the husband for the curtesy to attach upon (a).

[Effect of Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

[9. Under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (b), a married woman is enabled to acquire, hold, and dispose of property as her separate estate as if she were a feme sole, without the intervention of any trustee, but the Act does not purport to interfere with the husband's right in case of intestacy, and accordingly he is entitled to his curtesy in the same manner as if the property had, independently of the Act, been settled for the separate use of the wife (c).]

Distinction between dower and curtesy.

10. It must be acknowledged, that as dower and curtesy stand exactly on the same footing upon principle, either the rejection of dower, or the admission of curtesy, was an anomaly. Some high authorities, as Lord Talbot (d), Sir T. Clark (e), and Lord Loughborough (f), regarded the allowance of curtesy as the exception; and the ground upon which they proceeded was that as trusts followed the likeness of the use, and there was no curtesy of the use, there could be none of the trust. On the

(a) See Hearle v. Greenbank, 3 Atk. 715, 716; Morgan v. Morgan, 5 Mad. 408.

[(b) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, sect. 1, sub-s. 1. See as to the effect of the Act, post, pp. 964, et seq.]

[(c) Hope v. Hope, (1892) 2 Ch. 336.]

(d) Chaplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. W. 234; Attorney-General v. Scott, Cas. t. Talb. 139.

(e) Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 196-198.

(f) Dixon v. Saville, 1 B. C. C. 327.

other hand, Sir J. Jekyll (a), Lord Hardwicke (b), Lord Cowper (c), Lord Mansfield (d), Lord Henley (e), and Lord Redesdale (f), thought that consistency would be restored by the admission of the title to dower; for, since the Statute of Frauds, they argued the system of trusts had undergone considerable alteration, and was conducted upon a much more liberal footing: the rule now was, that, as between the cestui que trust and the trustee and all claiming by or under them, whoever would have a right against the legal estate had a like right against the equitable. Thus either argument had a fair show of reason to support it; but the latter view was, no doubt, more in harmony with the system of trusts as eventually established.

How curtesy came to be allowed and not dower.

The Courts, according to Lord Redesdale, were led to refuse dower out of trust estates from a well-founded fear of affecting the titles to a large proportion of the estates in the country, because parties had been acting on the footing that dower did not attach to a trust; but the same objection did not apply to allowing tenancy by the curtesy, inasmuch as no person would purchase an estate without the concurrence of the husband (g).

Dower Act.

11. By the Dower Act, 1833 (h), the widow is entitled to dower in equity where the husband dies beneficially entitled to any interest (not conferring a title to dower at law) which whether wholly equitable, or partly legal and partly equitable, is an estate of inheritance in possession, or equal to an estate of inheritance in possession, other than an estate in joint tenancy (i). But in either case the wife will not be entitled to dower out of any property absolutely disposed of by the husband in his lifetime or by will (j). And by the Act a widow is not entitled to dower out of any land, when in the deed of conveyance thereof to her husband, or in any deed executed by him, it shall be declared that his widow shall not be entitled to dower (k). And

(a) Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 713, 714.

(b) Casburne v. Inglis, 2 J. & W. 200.

(c) Watts v. Ball, 1 P. W. 109.

(d) Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 224.

(e) Ib. 249-251.

(f) D'Arcy v. Blake, 2 Sch. & Lef. 388.

(g) D'Arcy v. Blake, 2 Sch. & Lef. 388.

(h) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105.

(i) Ib. s. 2. [Where the husband had a limited equitable estate in possession which was severed from his legal estate in remainder by the interposition of possible estates tail, it was held that the widow was not entitled to dower; Re Mitchell, (1892) 2 Ch. 87.]

(j) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105, s. 4. But whether the husband has devised his estate in such a way as to manifest an intention that the estate should be free from dower is a question often of great nicety. See Gibson v. Gibson, 1 Drew. 42; Lacey v. Hill, 19 L. R. Eq. 346, and Lord St Leonards on Real Property Statutes, p. 254.

(k) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105, s. 6.

the widow's right of dower may also be barred by declaration contained in the husband's will (a).

Exceptions from Act.

12. The Act does not extend to the dower of any widow married on or before the 1st January, 1834 (b), and does not apply to copyholds (c), though it does to lands of gavelkind tenure (d).

Dower out of equitable fee subject to executory devise.

13. And a widow married since the Act is dowable of an equitable estate limited to the husband in fee, but subject to a limitation over on his dying without issue living at his death, and which event has since occurred (e).

[Intestates' Estates Act, 1890.]

[14. The charge of 500*l.* on an intestate's real and personal estate in favour of his widow, under the Intestates' Estates Act, 1890 (f), has, to the extent to which such charge affects the real estate, priority over her right to dower (g).]

SECTION VI

OF THE ESTATE OF A FEME COVERT CESTUI QUE TRUST

Under the above title we propose, First, To advert shortly to the effect of marriage upon property, held upon trust for a feme covert simply, and not for her separate use, treating, in order, of pure personalty, chattels real, and real estate of freehold or inheritance; and, Secondly, To consider the nature of a wife's separate estate (h).

First. Of a feme covert's equitable interest generally.

[And here we may observe, that the mutual rights of husband and wife in the property of the wife have recently undergone such great changes, that it will be well, for the sake of simplicity, to deal separately with (A), the law as regards cases not affected by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, and (B), the modifications introduced by that Act.

(a) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105, s. 7.

(b) Ib. s. 14.

(c) Powdrell v. Jones, 2 Sm. & G. 407; Smith v. Adams, 5 De G. M. & G. 712.

(d) Farley v. Bonham, 2 J. & H. 177.

(e) Smith v. Spencer, 2 Jur. N.S. 778.

[(f) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 29, ss. 2, 4. The Act does not apply to cases of partial intestacy: Re Twigg, (1892) 1 Ch. 579; but does apply where there is a complete failure by lapse of all beneficial interests under a will, and the person therein named as executor has predeceased the testator: Re Cuffe, (1908) 2 Ch. 500. As to the right to the £500 being barred by a provision in a marriage settlement executed before the Act, see Re Hogan, (1901) 1 I. R. 168.]

[(g) Re Charriere, (1896) 1 Ch. 912.]

(h) This section in the third and fourth editions was added to and much improved by the author's friend, the late Mr F. O. Haynes.

(A) As to cases not affected by the Married Women's Property Act.

The cases to be considered under this head will be confined to those in which property accrued before the 1st January, 1883, to women who were married before that date.]

Pure personal estate not settled to separate use.

1. As respects pure personal estate (by which expression is here meant personalty exclusive of chattels real, such as chattels personal, legacies, and other choses in action), not settled to the wife's separate use, the husband's power over the equitable estate is regulated by his power over the legal estate. A personal chattel, as furniture, held in trust for the wife, belongs in equity to the husband absolutely. But as to choses in action, as legacies, the right of the husband depends upon the fact of reduction into possession (a). If the wife's equitable interest be a present one, and the trustee is willing to facilitate the reduction into possession by payment, transfer, &c., to the husband, the trustee is at liberty to do so, and will not thereby incur any personal responsibility (b). On the other hand, the trustee, in whose hands the wife's chose in action is, may, in a proper case, insist on having it settled; and if for that purpose he pay it, by arrangement with the husband, to the trustees of an existing settlement, to be held by them upon the trusts thereof, such settlement will be as valid as if made by the Court (c). But a wife has no equity to a settlement until her ante-nuptial debts have been discharged (d); and she has no such equity against a purchaser where the fund has been aliened by the husband, and the alienation is binding on the wife from her having taken a fraudulent part in the alienation (e).

Reduction into possession.

An actual reduction into possession (f) is required for defeating the wife's rights (g); and in the absence of reduction into

(a) Purdew v. Jackson, 1 Russ. 45, 46. [Thus if a feme, joint tenant of a chose in action, marries, the joint tenancy is not thereby severed; Re Butler's Trusts, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 286, overruling Bailie v. Treharne, 17 Ch. D. 388.]

(b) See Re Swan, 2 H. & M. 37.

(c) Montefiore v. Behrens, 1 L. R. Eq. 171. In this case, M.R. speaks of the wife's right to have it settled as she pleased, but as to the wife's capacity, see Re Swan, 2 H. & M. 37; and see Re Roberts' Trusts, 38 L. J. N.S. Ch. 708.

(d) Barnard v. Ford, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 247; Miller v. Campbell, W. N. 1871, p. 210.

(e) Re Lush's Trust, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 591; [Cahill v. Cahill, 8 App. Cas. 427; S. C. nom. Cahill v. Martin, 5 L. R. Ir. 227; 7 L. R. Ir. 361].

[(f) As to the circumstances under which a lodgment in Court, of money representing a chose in action belonging to the wife, will amount to a reduction into possession, see Donnelly v. Foss, 7 L. R. Ir. 439.]

[(g) A release by the husband of a chose in action payable in præsenti is effectual to bar the wife's equity to a settlement, and if the release be of a legacy by deed poll it will be operative although there was no legal personal possession by the husband during his life, the equitable interest passes to the wife by survivorship (a). It follows that where the wife's interest remains reversionary until after the husband's death, and the wife survives, she necessarily takes by survivorship (b). And so, if the marriage be dissolved, or a judicial separation be decreed (c), [or a protection order be obtained (d)] before the chose in action is got in, it belongs to the wife. A similar principle applies where the interest of the wife may be viewed as partly possessory and partly reversionary,—as where the wife is entitled during her own life; in which case, the husband cannot bind the interest of the wife beyond the duration of the coverture (e). So, even if the husband assign the wife's reversionary interest, and it subsequently, during the husband's lifetime, becomes possessory, the wife's right by survivorship remains, unless reduction into possession be actually effected by the husband in his lifetime (f).

representative in existence at the time of its execution; and the release is good although the husband was living apart from the wife and not contributing to her support; M'Creery v. Searight, 5 L. R. Ir. 206, 641; Harrison v. Andrews, 13 Sim. 595; see Roper on Husb. & Wife, Vol. I. pp. 240, et seq.]

[(a) If the husband and wife appoint an agent to receive a chose in action of the wife, and he receives it, but does not pay it over to either husband or wife, his receipt, nevertheless, operates as a reduction into possession by the husband; Huntley v. Griffith, F. Moore, 452, Goldsborough, 2nd ed. p. 159, pl. 91; and this will also be the case, where the chose in action is the distributive share of the wife in the estate of an intestate of which she is the adminstratrix; Re Barber, 11 Ch. D. 442. If the wife with the assent of her husband receives a chose in action, it operates as a reduction into possession by him; Rogers v. Bolton, 8 L. R. Ir. 69; but the payment to the wife without the husband's assent will not prevent the husband, if he survive her, from suing for the chose in action as her legal personal representative; S. C.]

(b) Purdew v. Jackson, 1 Russ. 1; Honnor v. Morton, 3 Russ. 65. [In Widgery v. Tepper, 5 Ch. D. 516, affirmed 7 Ch. D. 423, a husband sold his wife's share as one of the next of kin of an intestate in certain chattels, and received the purchase-money for her share. After the husband's death, which occurred in the wife's lifetime, it was discovered that the sale had taken place under circumstances which it was contended rendered it voidable, and on the question as to who was entitled to take proceedings to set the sale aside, it was held that the right of avoidance was in the husband's representatives, and did not survive to the wife.]

(c) Wells v. Malbon, 31 Beav. 48; Re Insole, 35 Beav. 92; Prole v. Soady, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 220; Johnson v. Lander, 7 L. R. Eq. 228: Heath v. Lewis, 4 Giff. 665; Swift v. Wenman, 10 L. R. Eq. 15; and see Fussell v. Dowding, 14 L. R. Eq. 421; 27 Ch. D. 237; Jessop v. Blake, 3 Giff. 639; Fitzgerald v. Chapman, 1 Ch. D. 563; [and see ante, pp. 404, 405].

[(d) Re Coward and Adam's Purchase, 20 L. R. Eq. 159; Nicholson v. Drury Buildings Estate Company, 7 Ch. D. 48; Re Emery's Trusts, 58 L. T. N.S. 197; 32 W. R. 357; and see Re Hughes, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 529.]

(e) Stiffe v. Everitt, 1 M. & Cr. 37; Harley v. Harley, 10 Hare, 325.

(f) Ellison v. Elwin, 13 Sim. 309; Ashby v. Ashby, 1 Coll. 553; Baldwin v. Baldwin, 5 De G. & Sm. 319; and see Hamilton v. Mills, 29 Beav. 193.

Equity to a settlement.

2. The equity to a settlement appears to have had its origin (a) in cases where the trustee, declining to pay, transfer, &c., the wife's possessory interest to the husband, and the husband filing a bill against the trustee to compel payment, transfer, &c., the Court held that those who seek equity must do equity; and declined to assist the husband in obtaining the wife's equitable interest, except upon the terms of some portion of it being settled for the benefit of the wife and her issue.

[But where property is given to husband and wife, inasmuch as by the unity of the persons in law they take by entireties, and the husband is entitled in his own right to the entirety during his life, the wife will have no equity to a settlement out of any part of the property (b).]

Feme may assert her equity to a settlement actively.

3. Whatever may have been the source of this equity, it is undoubtedly one which the wife has a right, according to the established practice of the Court, to assert actively, either by an action (c), or, in the case of an already existing suit, by petition (d) [or summons (e)], at any time before the husband has finally reduced the equitable interest into possession; and possession by the husband in the mere character of executor, or administrator, or trustee, and not as husband in his marital right, will not be deemed a reduction into possession to defeat the equity to a settlement (f). [And the equity may be enforced in

(a) See Bosvil v. Brander, 1 P. W. 458; Browne v. Elton, 3 P. W. 202; Wallace v. Auldjo, 2 Dr. & Sm. 216; Osborn v. Morgan, 9 Hare, 432.

[(b) Atcheson v. Atcheson, 11 Beav. 485; Ward v. Ward, 14 Ch. D. 506; Re Bryan, 14 Ch. D. 516; and see Chamier v. Tyrrell, (1894) 1 I. R. 268; and the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, has not altered the law in this respect; see Re March, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 166; Re Jupp, 39 Ch. D. 148.]

(c) Lady Elibank v. Montolieu, 5 Ves. 737; Duncombe v. Greenacre, 28 Beav. 472; on appeal, 2 G. F. & J. 509. [The right is a personal one in the wife, and, on her death without having taken any steps to assert it, fails, and cannot be set up by her children. If, however, the wife has taken proceedings to enforce her equity, and has obtained a decree or order referring the matter to the judge in chambers to approve a proper settlement, the children are entitled to the benefit of that decree or order, and may bring an action to enforce the settlement. But if the wife dies after the institution of the action, but before a decree or order for a settlement has been made, the children, who have no equity except to enforce a judgment obtained in their favour, cannot compel a settlement; Lloyd v. Williams, 1 Mad. 450; De la Garde v. Lemprière, 6 Beav. 344; Wallace v. Auldjo, 2 Dr. & Sm. 216, 234; and even after a decree for a settlement has been made, the wife may, while the settlement is still in fieri and unexecuted, come into Court and waive her right, and so disappoint the claims of the children; Lloyd v. Williams, ubi sup.; Pemberton v. Marriott, 47 L. T. N.S. 332.]

(d) Greedy v. Lavender, 13 Beav. 62; Scott v. Spashett, 3 Mac. & G. 599; [Re Robinson's Settled Estate, 12 Ch. D. 188].

[(e) See Re Briant, 39 Ch. D. 471.]

(f) Baker v. Hall, 12 Ves. 497; Wall v. Tomlinson, 16 Ves. 413; [Re Birchall, 44 L. T. N.S. 243].

respect of a fund which is possessory although not actually distributable, as in the case of a share of an estate which is being administered by the Court, but which will not be distributable until further consideration (a).

Where the husband and wife are not domiciled in England, and the law of the place of their domicile does not recognise any equity to a settlement in the wife, she cannot assert the right in the English Courts (b).]

Or waive it.

It is equally clear that the equity is one which the wife has a right to waive, by consenting in open Court (c) to the receipt of the equitable interest by the husband, [but an infant is not capable of giving such consent (d)]. The wife may revoke her consent at any time before the actual transfer (e), and she has no power of consenting out of Court, and therefore a trustee who thinks a settlement ought to be executed, which the husband rejects, is justified, notwithstanding the wife's wishes to the contrary, in paying the money into Court (f).

[But where a conveyance by husband and wife of the wife's real estate is duly acknowledged by her, she must be treated as having given up to her husband all claim on the purchase-money, even though part of it is left outstanding in trustees by way of an indemnity fund against charges on the estate (g).]

As to fund under 200*l*.

4. In one case where the fund was under 200*l*., and therefore by the practice of the Court payable to the husband without the consent of the wife, the wife, though the husband had deserted her, had no equity to a settlement (h). But this case has since been overruled, and the Court has directed the whole fund, though it was under 200*l*., to be settled upon the wife and children (i).

[Equity to settlement prevails though husband indebted to estate.]

[5. The wife's equity to a settlement is paramount to the right of the representatives of the testator or intestate under whom

[(a) Re Robinson's Settled Estate, 12 Ch. D. 188.]

[(b) Re Marsland, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 581.]

(c) And as to interests acquired under an instrument made after 31st December, 1857, the wife may, after the fund has become possessory, release her equity to a settlement by deed acknowledged; Married Women's Reversionary Interests Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 57), s. 1; see ante, p. 21.

[(d) Shipway v. Ball, 16 Ch. D. 376.]

(e) Penfold v. Mould, 4 L. R. Eq. 562.

(f) Re Swan, 2 H. & M. 34. But see contra, Re Roberts' Trusts, 38 L. J. N.S. Ch. 708, [where the trustees were saddled with costs for paying the money into Court].

[(g) Tennent v. Welch, 37 Ch. D. 622, q.v., as to effect of acknowledgment generally.]

(h) Foden v. Finney, 4 Russ. 428.

(i) Re Cutler, 14 Beav. 220; [Re Kincaid's Trusts, 1 Drew. 326;] Re Merriman's Trust, 10 W. R. 334; [Barker v. Vogan, 17 L. R. Ir. 447].

her interest is derived, to retain a debt due from the husband to the testator or intestate (a).]

Where the husband, being himself an executor, was a defaulter to the estate, it was held that the wife, one of the residuary legatees, had no equity to a settlement as against the claims of other persons who suffered by the default (b); [but this decision has been doubted (c)].

Equity to settlement prevails against assignees in law or by deed.

6. The wife's equity to a settlement subsists not only against the husband himself, but also, as a general rule, against those claiming under him, as a trustee under his bankruptcy, or an assignee by deed, even for valuable consideration; in fact, the assertion of the equity most commonly takes place in cases where the husband has become bankrupt or has assigned the fund. Where, owing either to the trustee refusing to pay without suit, or to the wife's taking independent proceedings of her own, the fund comes under the control of the Court, the latter commonly considers that payment of one half to the husband or the assignees, and the settlement of the other half on the wife and children, is, in the absence of special circumstances, a reasonable apportionment (d). As the moiety paid to the husband or assignees represents the whole of the husband's interest, the entirety of the other moiety must be settled on the wife and children, to the exclusion of the husband (e), except on failure of issue (f), in which event the husband will take, whether he survive the wife or not (g). It would appear that in Lord Eldon's time a rule existed against giving the wife the whole fund (h). But subsequently, in a case (i) in the Exchequer, where the husband was insolvent, Baron Alderson directed a settlement of the whole fund, considering insolvency to afford ground for a special

Proportion to be settled.

[(a) Re Batchelor, 16 L. R. Eq. 481; Re Cordwell's Estate, 20 L. R. Eq. 644; Re Briant, 39 Ch. D. 471; and see Carr v. Taylor, 10 Ves. 574.]

(b) Knight v. Knight, 18 L. R. Eq. 487.

[(c) Re Briant, 39 Ch. D. 471.]

(d) Spirett v. Willows, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 520; Napier v. Napier, 1 Dru. & War. 407; Vaughan v. Buck, 1 Sim. N.S. 287; Bagshaw v. Winter, 5 De G. & Sm. 468; Marshall v. Gibbings, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 276; Re Grove's Trusts, 3 Giff. 582. In Re Suggitt's Trusts, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 215, the L.JJ. gave the husband a third only; [and see Callow v. Callow, 55 L. T. N.S. 154].

(e) Lloyd v. Williams, 1 Mad. 450; Barker v. Lea, 6 Mad. 330; Whittem v. Sawyer, 1 Beav. 593.

(f) Carter v. Taggart, 5 De G. & Sm. 49; Spirett v. Willows, 12 Jur. N.S. 538; Gent v. Harris, 10 Hare, 383; Bagshaw v. Winter, 5 De G. & Sm. 468.

(g) Croxton v. May, 9 L. R. Eq. 404; Walsh v. Wason, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 482; but see Re Suggitt's Trusts, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 215.

(h) Dunkley v. Dunkley, 2 De G. M. & G. 396.

(i) Brett v. Greenwell, 3 Y. & C. 230. [But Sir E. Sugden, when Lord Chancellor of Ireland, declined to follow this case. See Napier v. Napier, 1 Dru. & War. 407.]

exception. At the present day it is clear that the Court, wherever the special circumstances warrant the step (as, for instance, where the husband has abandoned the wife, or is not in a position to maintain her, and the fund is not more than sufficient for her maintenance), will settle the whole corpus, and, it seems, the arrears of income (a) on the wife and children (b). In every case the Court exercises a discretion as to the amount with reference to the particular circumstances (c)—namely, the conduct of the parties (d), the wife's means of livelihood (e), the settlement, if any, previously made upon her (f), and the sums before received by the husband in respect of the wife's fortune (g); [and the mere fact that the wife and children are in necessitous circumstances, and dependent on her for support, will not alone be sufficient to induce the Court to direct a settlement of more than a half (h)]. Where the wife has been amply provided for, and the husband has not misconducted himself, the Court has dismissed the wife's bill with costs, and left the husband at liberty to follow up his marital rights (i).

Discretion of Court.

[Form of settlement.]

[7. As regards the form of the settlement, the general rule is that the rights of the husband will not be interfered with further than is necessary to give effect to the equity in favour of the wife and children. Thus, the ultimate limitation, in default of children of the wife by any coverture will, in general,

(a) Wilkinson v. Charlesworth, 10 Beav. 324; but see Newman v. Wilson, 31 Beav. 34.

(b) Smith v. Smith, 3 Giff. 121; Bowyer v. Woodman, 3 L. R. Eq. 313; Duncombe v. Greenacre (No. 2), 29 Beav. 378; Re Grove's Trust, 3 Giff. 582; Bray v. Laycock, 2 Eq. Rep. 385; Gardner v. Marshall, 14 Sim. 575; Koeber v. Sturgis, 22 Beav. 589; Re Kincaid, 1 Drew. 326; Watson v. Marshall, 17 Beav. 363; Ward v. Yates, 1 Dr. & Sm. 80; Dunkley v. Dunkley, 2 De G. M. & G. 390; Carter v. Taggart, 5 De G. & Sm. 49; Duncombe v. Greenacre, 28 Beav. 472; Gent v. Harris, 10 Hare, 383; Re Welchman, 1 Giff. 31; Re Tutin's Trust, W. N. 1869, p. 141; Nicholson v. Carline, 22 W. R. 819; Re Cordwell's Estate, 20 L. R. Eq. 644; [Roberts v. Cooper, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 335; and see Taunton v. Morris, 8 Ch. D. 453; 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 779;] Bonner v. Bonner, 17 Beav. 86. In one case, where the wife had been abandoned by her husband for upwards of 20 years, the Court ordered the corpus of the fund to be paid to the wife as a feme sole; Re Pope's Trust, W. N. 1873, p. 79.

(c) Re Suggitt's Trust, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 215.

(d) Gilchrist v. Cator, 1 De G. & Sm. 188; Barrow v. Barrow, 5 De G. M. & G. 782; [Boxall v. Boxall, 27 Ch. D. 220; Reid v. Reid, 31 Ch. D. 402].

(e) Bagshaw v. Winter, 5 De G. & Sm. 467; Ex parte Pugh, 1 Drew. 202.

(f) Scott v. Spashett, 3 Mac. & G. 599; Spicer v. Spicer, 24 Beav. 365; Spirett v. Willows, 12 Jur. N.S. 538.

(g) Gardner v. Marshall, 14 Sim. 575; Vaughan v. Buck, 1 Sim. N.S. 287.

[(h) Roberts v. Cooper, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 335; or, semble, of any portion of the fund, under special circumstances, see Ib. p. 348.]

(i) Giacometti v. Prodgers, 14 L. R. Eq. 253; 8 L. R. Ch. App. 338.

be for the husband whether he survives or not (a). But in special circumstances, as where the property is of small amount, the Court has not unfrequently secured to the wife the capital as well as the income (b). In a case where the wife, upon being examined, expressed a wish that part of the fund to which she was entitled should be retained in Court, and the income paid to her, with liberty for her to apply for payment of the capital at a future period, if she desired it, the Court made the order, settling the fund upon her for life, with remainder to her children, with liberty for her to apply to the judge at chambers for a transfer of all or any part of the capital to her, by way of revocation of the settlement (c). Where the wife and her infant children were in necessitous circumstances, and supported by her, and the husband had received a large proportion of the fund, which was of small amount, the Court ordered 20*l.* a year out of income and capital to be paid to the wife during her life for her separate use, and after her death the remainder to be paid to her children at twenty-one, and if there should be none, then to the representatives of the assignee of the fund (d).]

[Part of the fund retained in Court with liberty to apply.]

8. Upon principle it would seem that the wife's equity to a settlement ought in all cases to be the same, whether it be claimed against the husband, or his trustee in bankruptcy, or his assignee for value. There is, however, an exception where the subject-matter against which the equity is asserted is a life interest of the wife. In this case, so long as the husband maintains the wife, he is entitled to receive the income of her life estate, and there can be no equity to a settlement (e). If, however, he deserts her, or is divorced by reason of his misconduct, the Court will not allow him to receive the income without securing at least a portion of it for the maintenance of the wife (f); and pari ratione, where the husband becomes

How far life interest of wife is subject to equity to a settlement.

[(a) Croxton v. May, 9 Eq. 404; Walsh v. Wason, 8 Ch. 483; Re Robinson's Settled Estates, 12 Ch. D. 188; Roberts v. Cooper, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 335, 348.] For the details of the proper settlement, see Spirett v. Willows, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 407; [Cogan v. Duffield, 2 Ch. D. (C.A.) 44; Re Gowan, 17 Ch. D. 778; and as to giving the wife a power of appointment among the children, see Oliver v. Oliver, 10 Ch. D. 765; which case, however, was disapproved of in Re Gowan, sup.; cf. Re Parrott, 33 Ch. D. (C.A.) 274].

[(b) Boxall v. Boxall, 27 Ch. D. 220, 224; Roberts v. Cooper, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 335.]

[(c) Re Craddock's Trust, W. N. 1875, p. 187; see Boxall v. Boxall, 27 Ch. D. 220, 225.]

[(d) Roberts v. Cooper, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 335, 348.]

(e) Bullock v. Menzies, 4 Ves. 798; Re Duffy's Trust, 28 Beav. 386, and cases there cited. [But see the observations in Taunton v. Morris, 8 Ch. D. 453; 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 779.]

(f) Barrow v. Barrow, 5 De G. M. & G. 782; Tidd v. Lister, 3 De G. M. & G. 870.

bankrupt, and the wife is left without the means of subsistence, the same equity will be enforced against the trustee in bankruptcy (a). But where the husband assigns the income for value while duly discharging the marital obligation of maintenance, and subsequently deserts his wife, the wife is held to have no equity against the particular assignee for value, for the very object of the husband in making the alienation may have been to find the means for better providing for his wife, and the purchaser cannot be involved in such an inquiry (b).

Right by survivorship.

9. It must be remembered that the wife's equity to a settlement and her right by survivorship are two entirely distinct things. The former does not apply where the fund is reversionary (c), but arises only when the fund is ready for reduction into possession, and may be waived by the wife as before stated; the latter the wife cannot, by any act during coverture, deprive herself of, except so far as the provisions of the Married Women's Reversionary Interests Act, 1857 (d), may enable her so to do. Occasionally resort has been had to certain ingenious devices for the purpose of bringing the wife's reversionary interest into possession. Thus, where a fund has been settled on A. for life, and after his decease on B., a married woman, absolutely, the husband of B., in order to reduce the wife's chose in action into possession, has purchased the prior life interest, and had it assigned to himself or his wife. But this scheme will not bear examination, for if the assignment be made to the husband, then, as the life interest was possessed by him in his own right, and the reversionary interest in right of his wife, the two will not coalesce; and if the assignment was made to the wife so that the husband would have both interests in the same right, then the feme, on the coverture ceasing, might disclaim the accession of interest, and so prevent the intended merger. The late Vice-Chancellor of England held in several cases that the chose in action could thus be reduced into possession (e), and on one occasion Lord Cottenham, on an application to take the wife's consent, seems to have assented

(a) Vaughan v. Buck, 1 Sim. N.S. 284; Squires v. Ashford, 23 Beav. 132; Barnes v. Robinson, 1 N. R. 257. [See Taunton v. Morris, 8 Ch. D. 453, affirmed 11 Ch. D. 779, where the Court in the case of an insolvent debtor who contributed nothing to the support of his wife, gave the whole income to the wife to the exclusion of the provisional assignee.]

(b) Tidd v. Lister, 10 Hare, 140; 3 De G. M. & G. 857; Re Duffy's Trust, 28 Beav. 386; [and see Taunton v. Morris, 11 Ch. D. 779].

(c) Osborn v. Morgan, 9 Hare, 432.

(d) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 57 (Malins' Act); see ante, p. 21.

(e) Creed v. Perry, 14 Sim. 592; Bean v. Sykes, Ib. 593; Lachton v. Adams, Ib. 594; Hall v. Hugonin, Ib. 595; Bishop v. Colebrook, 16 Sim. 39; Wilson v. Oldham, 5th March, 1841, MS.; see the opinion of the late Mr Jacob in 3rd ed. of this work, p. 371.

to the doctrine (a). But in a case before Lord Langdale, M.R., the question was considered to involve too much difficulty to be disposed of on petition (b); and the case of Whittle v. Henning (c) before Lord Cottenham, and other cases (d), have since decided that a reversionary chose in action of the wife cannot, by means of this machinery, be reduced into possession, so as to be made disposable. However, if a fund be settled on A. for life, and the remainder be appointed to the feme covert for her separate use, and her power of anticipation is not restrained, the tenant for life and feme covert in remainder can deal with the fund (e).

[10. If the husband assigns the reversionary interest of his wife in a chose in action, and survives her, and the interest is not reduced into possession during her life, administration to the wife's estate must be taken out before the assignee of the husband can compel payment of the interest assigned (f).] [Administration by surviving husband to wife's estate.]

11. As regards the wife's equitable chattels real, the effect of marriage being, as a general rule, the same upon equitable as upon legal interests, it follows, that as the husband may assign the chattels real of the wife at law, so he may assign her trust of a term in equity (g), though it be [reversionary (h) or] merely a contingent interest (i); and without the concurrence of either the wife or the trustee, and without consideration. And this doctrine is not interfered with by the case of Purdew v. Jackson (j); for a trust of chattels real is not a chose in action, but a present interest—an estate in possession (k). If, however, the equitable interest in the chattel be such that it could not by possibility vest in the wife during the coverture, then, inasmuch as the legal interest of a similar kind could not be disposed of Equitable chattels real of feme covert.

(a) Lachton v. Adams, 14 Sim. 594.

(b) Story v. Tonge, 7 Beav. 91; and see Box v. Box, 2 Conn. & Laws. 605.

(c) 2 Ph. 731; [and see Re Davenport, (1895) 1 Ch. 361].

(d) Box v. Jackson, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 174; Williams v. Mayne, 1 Ir. R. Eq. 519; [Re Butler's Trusts, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 138; 3 L. R. Ir. 89].

(e) See Dudley v. Tanner, W. N. 1873, p. 75.

[(f) Re Butler's Trusts, 3 L. R. Ir. 89.]

(g) Roupe v. Atkinson, Bunb. 162; Mitford v. Mitford, 9 Ves. 99, per Sir W. Grant; Re Carr's Trusts, 12 L. R. Eq. 609; Packer v. Wyndham, Pr. Ch. 418, 419, per Lord Cowper; Franco v. Franco, 4 Ves. 528, per Lord Alvanley; Bullock v. Knight, 1 Ch. Ca. 266, per Lord Nottingham; Sanders v. Page, 3 Ch. Rep. 223, per Cur.; Macaulay v. Philips, 4 Ves. 19, per Lord Alvanley; Wikes' Case, Lane, 54, per Barons Snig and Altham; S. C., Roll. Ab. 343; Jewson v. Moulson, 2 Atk. 421, per Lord Hardwicke; Incledon v. Northcote, 3 Atk. 435, per eundem; Clark v. Burgh, 2 Coll. 221; [Re Bellamy, 25 Ch. D. 620].

[(h) Re Bellamy, 25 Ch. D. 620.]

(i) Donne v. Hart, 2 R. & M. 360.

(j) 1 Russ. 1.

(k) See Mitford v. Mitford, 9 Ves. 98, 99; Holland's case, Style, 21; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 223, 224; Box v. Jackson, 1 Drury, 84.

by the husband, he cannot dispose of the equitable interest (a). If a husband mortgage his wife's chattel real, and the wife survives, she has the equity of redemption, though the mortgage deed recited falsely that the husband was absolutely entitled (b). If the equitable interest in the chattel be settled to the separate use of the feme covert, and she does not dispose of it, it survives to the husband (c).

Whether wife entitled to settlement out of equitable chattels real.

12. Whether the doctrine regarding the wife's equity to a settlement extends to the equitable chattels real of the wife, has been much doubted. It was held in one case, by Vice-Chancellor Wigram, as a result of the principles laid down by Lord Cottenham in Sturgis v. Champneys (d), that even where the husband could dispose of the equitable chattel, the wife was entitled to a provision out of the equitable interest, as against the assignee of the husband for valuable consideration (e). The opinion of the Vice-Chancellor himself was the other way, but he considered himself bound by the authority of the Chancellor in the case referred to.

Result of decisions.

13. The result of these decisions is remarkable. Thus, a mortgage by the husband of the wife's legal term bars her of all right, except in the equity of redemption (f); while under a similar mortgage of the equitable term, she would have an equity to a settlement as against the mortgagee. Again, the legal reversionary term of the wife, provided it be such as may by possibility vest during the coverture, is capable of absolute assignment by the husband, and the wife has no right by survivorship, such as exists in the case of her chose in action, while as respects the assignment of a similar equitable interest there would be an equity to a settlement in the wife. The difficulties of applying the doctrine of the wife's equity to the case of chattels real, must, undoubtedly, prove considerable; but it can hardly be expected that the steps, of which Lord Cottenham in Sturgis v. Champneys took the first, will be retraced.

Effect of getting in legal estate of wife's equitable term.

14. It is conceived that if the husband, or the assignee from him of the wife's equitable term, can procure an assignment of the legal estate from the trustee, the wife's equity to a settlement is at an end; but the point is not touched by authority.

Arrears of income.

15. The equitable interest of the wife in a chattel real is not a

(a) Duberley v. Day, 16 Beav. 33.

(b) M'Cullagh v. Littledale, 9 Ir. R. Eq. 465.

(c) Archer v. Lavender, 9 Ir. R. Eq. 220.

(d) 5 M. & Cr. 77; and see Wortham v. Pemberton, 1 De G. & Sm. 644.

(e) Hanson v. Keating, 4 Hare, 1.

(f) Hill v. Edmonds, 5 De G. & Sm. 603; Clark v. Cook, 3 De G. & Sm. 333.

chose in action, but an estate, and therefore, although, according to the principles laid down in Sturgis v. Champneys, the wife can claim an equity to a settlement out of such estate prospectively, yet until such claim is established, the right of the husband prevails. All arrears of income therefore which may have accrued before the claim, whether from an equitable estate in fee or for life, or a term of years, will be exempt from the equity to a settlement, and belong to the husband or his assignee (a).

Estate by elegit in trust for a feme covert.

16. If a judgment be acknowledged to A. in trust for a feme sole, and she marries, and the conusee of the judgment sues out an elegit, and possession of the lands is delivered to him in trust for the wife, the husband may assign the extended interest, as he might have assigned the trust of a term certain (b); and the law is the same where the feme is put in possession of lands by a decree of a Court of Equity until a certain sum is raised by way of equitable elegit (c). But a mere judgment, recovered by the wife before the coverture, is clearly a chose in action, and as such cannot be disposed of by the husband as against the wife surviving (d).

Mortgage term in trust for a feme covert.

17. And it has been held that a mortgage term in trust for the wife (e), or a term in trustees for raising a portion for her (f), may by assigned by the husband, so as to carry the beneficial interest. But in these cases a doubt arises whether the debt or portion may not be held to be the principal thing; and as the doctrine that a chose in action of the wife is not disposable by the husband is of far more recent date than the decisions referred to, the question cannot be considered as settled. The cases in which it has been held under the order and disposition clause in bankruptcy, that the land draws with it the debt, so as to exclude the operation of the clause, tend to support the old authorities (g), but they are hardly conclusive, and a decision of Sir John Romilly, M.R., which was affirmed on appeal, has shaken the authority of the older cases (h).

(a) Re Carr's Trust, 12 L. R. Eq. 609.

(b) Lord Carteret v. Paschal, 3 P. W. 201, per Lord King. But this was before the case of Purdew v. Jackson, 1 Russ. 1.

(c) S. C. Ib. 179.

(d) Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 8 C. B. 611.

(e) Bates v. Dandy, 2 Atk. 207; Packer v. Wyndham, Pr. Ch. 412, see 418.

(f) Walter v. Saunders, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 58; Incledon v. Northcote, 3 Atk. 430, see 435; and see Mitford v. Mitford, 9 Ves. 99; Hore v. Becher, 12 Sim. 465.

(g) Jones v. Gibbons, 9 Ves. 407; and see Rees v. Keith, 11 Sim. 388; [Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589, 596].

(h) Duncombe v. Greenacre, 28 Beav. 472; 2 De G. F. & J. 509.

Wife's equitable interest in lands of freehold or inheritance.

18. The case of the wife's equitable estate in lands of freehold or inheritance, presents in the main the same general similarity to the case of her legal estate in like lands, as has been noticed in respect of chattels real. Thus, the husband without the wife can, in the case of the equitable as in that of the legal interest, convey an estate for the joint lives of himself and of his wife (a), or for his own life after issue born. So, he and his wife conjointly can, by deed acknowledged by the latter under the Fines and Recoveries Act (b), dispose of the equitable and of the legal interest; and can bar an equitable entail as they might a legal entail, by deed enrolled in Chancery.

19. But according to Lord Cottenham's decision in Sturgis v. Champneys (c), the acts of the husband alone cannot affect the wife's equity to a settlement, where the interest of the wife can only be recovered through the medium of a Court of Equity (d).

The propriety of the decision in this case was questioned by the late Lord Westbury (e). But after so long a lapse of time it is not likely that the principle of it will be shaken. It has accordingly been held that as regards an equitable freehold, that is, an estate to which a feme covert is entitled in equity for her own life, she may proceed actively, and institute a suit against the trustee of her bankrupt husband for a settlement of it upon herself (f). But she has no such equity against a purchaser for value from her husband, who at the time was supporting her (g). In short, the principles which cover the wife's equitable interest

(a) As to the legal estate, see Robinson v. Norris, 11 Q. B. 916.

[(b) A wide effect has been given to the expression "interest in land" in the Fines and Recoveries Act (3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 74), ss. 1, 77; thus, in Miller v. Collins, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 573, the expression was held (dissentiente Kay, L.J., and overruling Re Newton's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 181) to extend to an equitable reversionary life interest in money properly invested by trustees for the feme upon a mortgage of land; and in Re Durrant and Stonor, 18 Ch. D. (C.A.) 106, to an equitable reversionary interest in freeholds, purchased by trustees in breach of trust, and still personal estate in equity. See, however, observations of Kay, L.J., in Miller v. Collins, sup.]

(c) 5 M. & Cr. 97.

(d) At law a husband during the coverture and before issue born has the estate for the joint lives of himself and his wife, but in her right only; and even after issue born he has no estate in his own right, for curtesy does not commence until the death of the wife; Jones v. Davis, 8 Jur. N.S. 592. Until the Real Property Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 106), s. 6, a husband could not during the coverture have passed the legal estate for his own life, except by a conveyance which carried the fee tortiously, as by a feoffment; Co. Lit. 30, a.

(e) See Gleaves v. Paine, 1 De G. J. & S. 87.

(f) Barnes v. Robinson, 1 New Rep. 257; Sturgis v. Champneys, 5 M. & Cr. 97; [Fowke v. Draycott, 29 Ch. D. 996].

(g) Tidd v. Lister, 10 Hare, 140; 3 De G. M. & G. 857; Stanton v. Hall, 2 R. & M. 175.

for life, in realty, are the same as those which regulate the like interest of the wife in personalty (a).

[It has been suggested (b), that since the passing of the Judicature Act, 1873, it is immaterial whether the estate of the wife is legal or equitable, and that the equity to a settlement can be enforced against the husband even although his estate is legal; but this conclusion was not necessary for the decision of the case, and seems to be open to grave doubt.]

Equitable estates in fee simple or fee tail.

20. As to the case of an equitable fee simple or fee tail to which a feme covert is entitled, a distinction must be borne in mind between the husband's powers over a wife's personal, and over her real estate. The husband can get possession of the absolute interest of the former and make away with it; and therefore the Court settles the corpus or a competent part of it on the wife and her children; but as to realty, the husband has no power over the corpus, but can dispose only of the interest during the joint lives, or if there be issue, for his own life; and as this limited interest is all that the husband or those claiming under him can deal with, and the husband has the curtesy in his own right, it is only the interest during the joint lives that requires to be settled. As to any ulterior interest, the Court has properly nothing to do with it. If the wife be tenant in fee, why should the heir be disinherited in favour of the children? and if the wife be tenant in tail, why should the issue in tail and remainderman be defeated? "In the case of the wife's real estate," observed V. C. Wood, "she wants no protection out of the corpus of that estate, for she cannot be deprived of it without her own concurrence, which the law requires to be given in such a manner as will protect her from her husband" (c). Where, therefore, the wife is tenant in fee or in tail in equity, the claim of the wife stands on the same footing as where she is tenant for life in equity, and has been so dealt with accordingly (d).

(a) See ante, p. 957.

[(b) See Fowke v. Draycott, 29 Ch. D. 996.]

(c) Durham v. Crackles, 8 Jur. N.S. 1175.

(d) Wortham v. Pemberton, 1 De G. & Sm. 644; Durham v. Crackles, 8 Jur. N.S. 1174. L. J. Knight Bruce on one occasion observed "We do not touch the husband's possible tenancy by the curtesy in the real estate of which we direct a settlement, and, so far as I am concerned, for this reason, that in my opinion we have not jurisdiction to order any settlement which shall interfere with it;" Smith v. Matthews, 3 De G. F. & J. 153. From which it might be inferred that a settlement subject to the curtesy might extend beyond the joint lives; but if the Court under special circumstances, has ever directed a settlement of the equitable fee on the wife and children, the settlement as regards the children must be viewed as the voluntary settlement of the wife, and not the judicial act of the Court. See Gleaves v. Paine, 1 De G. J. & S. 87; Smith v. Matthews, 3 De G. F. & J. 139.

[Real estate held upon trust for sale.]

[21. Where real estate is held upon trust for sale and to pay the proceeds to a married woman, the husband can, after the land has actually been sold, give a good discharge for the purchase-money, but until the sale the husband cannot, by any act of his, bar the wife's right (a).

[Fund in Court representing realty.]

22. Where a fund in Court represents realty to which a married woman is absolutely entitled, she may elect to take it as personalty, and, upon her being separately examined and consenting, it may be paid out to her husband without any deed being executed (b).

[Alimony.]

23. A married woman, to whom permanent alimony has been allowed on a judicial separation from her husband, cannot alienate it, as it is not in the nature of property, but is simply an allowance to provide for the daily maintenance of the wife, and is by its very nature inalienable (c).]

Existence of an outstanding term.

24. The mere circumstance of the existence of a jointure-term, preceding the estate of a feme covert, tenant in tail in possession subject to the term, sufficiently renders the wife's estate equitable to entitle her to a settlement during the joint lives in a suit instituted by her (d). And, indeed, wherever a plaintiff is obliged to come into a Court of Equity he must submit to do equity, though the estate of the wife is legal, as if a husband make an equitable mortgage of land of which his wife is seised at law, the mortgagee cannot obtain a legal mortgage or enforce his security without providing for the wife, if deserted or not maintained at the time of the equitable mortgage (e).

Getting in the legal estate.

25. The effect of the husband, or the husband's assignee, procuring a conveyance of the legal estate so as to clothe his equitable interest therewith, must be the same as in the case of an equitable term of years before adverted to (f).

[(B) Of the modifications introduced by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (g).

[Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

1. By sect. 1, sub-sect. 1 of the Act, it is enacted that "a married woman shall, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, be capable of acquiring, holding, and disposing by will or otherwise, of any real or personal property, as her separate property, in the same manner as if she were a feme sole, without the intervention of any trustee." This is a general section, "pointing

[(a) Franks v. Bollans, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 717.]

[(b) Standering v. Hall, 11 Ch. D. 652; Re Robin's Estate, 27 W. R. 705.]

[(c) Re Robinson, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 160.]

(d) Wortham v. Pemberton, 1 De G. & Sm. 644.

(e) Durham v. Crackles, 8 Jur. N.S. 1174.

(f) See ante, p. 960.

[(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

out the provisions the details of which are to be worked out in the subsequent sections" (a); it must therefore be construed together with sects. 2 and 5 (b).

By sect. 2, "every woman who marries after the commencement of this Act" (1st January, 1883), "shall be entitled to have and to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of in manner aforesaid, all real and personal property which shall belong to her at the time of marriage, or shall be acquired by or devolve upon her after marriage, including any wages, earnings, money, and property gained or acquired by her in any employment, trade, or occupation in which she is engaged, or which she carries on separately from her husband, or by the exercise of any literary, artistic, or scientific skill."

And by sect. 5, "every woman married before the commencement of this Act shall be entitled to have and to hold and to dispose of in manner aforesaid as her separate property all real and personal property, her title to which, whether vested or contingent, and whether in possession, reversion, or remainder, shall accrue after the commencement of this Act, including any wages, earnings, money and property so gained or acquired by her as aforesaid (c)."

[General effect of Act.]

2. The result of this enactment is that as to women married since the 31st of December, 1882, and also as to property accruing after that date to women married before that date, the rights of the husband, during the life of the wife, are entirely excluded, and the wife is enabled to deal with, bind and dispose of her property, whether real or personal, in the same manner as if she were a feme sole. The authorities relating to the rights of the husband over the wife's property during the coverture, and to the equity to a settlement of the wife, and to the wife's right by survivorship have, therefore, no application where the marriage has taken place or the property has been acquired since the 31st of December, 1882.

[Property falling into possession after the commencement of the Act.]

3. It will be observed that the 5th section relates to the accruer of the married woman's title, which must, in order to bring the case within the section, take place after the commencement of the Act, and the section does not deal with the case of a change in the title such as occurs when a contingent interest becomes vested or a reversionary interest falls into possession. A contrary view was indeed for some time entertained, but the question has now been set at rest by the decision of the Court of Appeal (a).

[(a) Re Cuno, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 12, 15, per Cotton, L.J.]

[(b) S. C., and see Re Drummond and Davie, (1891) 1 Ch. 524, 534.]

[(c) As to the protection extended to the trade or business from which the earnings arise, see Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 923.]

[Conversion of land into money.]

If a woman married before the commencement of the Act, acquires a title in reversion to land, and after the commencement of the Act the land, while her title is still reversionary, is converted into money, the conversion gives her no new title, and the section does not apply (b).

[Mere expectancy.]

A mere spes successionis to property as one of a class of possible next of kin is not a "contingent title" within the section; but where property was given upon trust for such a class, and the class became ascertainable subsequently to the passing of the Act, the share, which thus accrued, of a woman (married in 1857) who was a member of the class, was held to belong to her for her separate use under the section, independently of the marital right (c).

[Damages recovered in action by husband and wife.]

Damages awarded to the wife in an action by her and her husband in respect of personal injury to her, even assuming that they are not her separate property under sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, are clearly so under this section (d).

[Rights of husband in property not disposed of by wife.]

4. Whether the rights of the husband after the wife's death in such parts of her property as have not been disposed of by her are affected by the Act, was a question upon which there was some difference of opinion, founded on the use of the words "feme sole" in the 1st section, but it has now been decided (e) that as the Act simply confers on married women the capacity to acquire, hold, and dispose by will or otherwise of property as if they were femes sole, and does not purport to deal with the devolution of property undisposed of, the rights in a married woman's property after her death, so far as such property is not disposed of or bound by her in her lifetime, are unaffected by the Act (f). The husband therefore will be entitled, as to personal chattels and cash by the marital right, and as to choses in action on taking out administration to her estate under

[(a) Reid v. Reid, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 402; overruling Baynton v. Collins, 27 Ch. D. 604; Re Tucker, 33 W. R. 932; 52 L. T. N.S. 23; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 874; Re Adames' Trusts, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 878; 33 W. R. 834; Re Hobson's Settlement, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 300; and see Re Thompson and Curzon, 29 Ch. D. 177; Re Hughes's Trusts, W. N. 1885, p. 62; Re Dixon, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 964; Beckett v. Parker, 19 Q. B. D. 7.]

[(b) Re Bacon, (1907) 1 Ch. 475.]

[(c) Re Parsons, 45 Ch. D. 51, dissenting from Re Beaupre's Trusts, 21 L. R. Ir. 397; and see Molyneux v. Fletcher, 67 L. J. Q. B. 392, 396.]

[(d) Beasley v. Roney, (1891) 1 Q. B. 509; and see post, p. 976.]

[(e) In accordance with the opinion expressed in the eighth edition of this work, p. 752.]

[(f) Re Lambert's Estate, 39 Ch. D. 627; and see Surman v. Wharton, (1891) 1 Q. B. 491, 493.]

the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2. c. 3), sect. 2, to retain her undisposed of personal estate to the exclusion of her next of kin; and to his curtesy in her realty undisposed of (a). And the mere fact that the married woman has made a will appointing executors, to whom probate in general form has been granted under the Probate Rules of March, 1887, will not affect the right of the husband (b), as although such probate enables the executor to get in her assets (whether she had power to dispose of them by will or not), it does not affect the beneficial title (c).

[Extent of application of Act.]

5. The Act has no application where the marriage took place and the property was acquired, or the title to it accrued, before the commencement of the Act, 1st January, 1883, and in such cases the old law applies (d).

Where a testator dies after the Act, but his will was executed before the passing of the Act, the interest which a married woman takes under it will be governed by the Act. Thus, where a residuary estate was given by such a will to A. and B. and C., the wife of B., under which gift before the Act A. would have taken one moiety, and B. and C. the other moiety as if they had been one person, it was held by the Court of Appeal, reversing the decision of Chitty, J., that A. was still entitled to one moiety, but the other moiety belonged to B. and C. as joint tenants, as if she were unmarried. The Court of Appeal expressed no opinion as to what share A. would have taken if the will had been executed after the passing of the Act (e), but it has now been decided that the previous law has not been altered in this respect (f); and it has been observed that "the capacity of a married woman to take property is not altered" by the Act "as between her and the grantor. That was always complete. Whatever property, real or personal, was devised, bequeathed, conveyed, or assigned to a married woman, as between her and the grantor, passed absolutely. The Act only enlarges her capacity to take such property as her separate property" (g).

[Status of married woman not altered as between her and grantor.]

[(a) Hope v. Hope, (1892) 2 Ch. 336.]

[(b) Re Lambert's Estate, 39 Ch. D. 627; and see Re Atkinson, (1898) 1 Ch. 637; (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1, where it was held by Stirling, J., and acquiesced in by the Court of Appeal, that the husband, taking out probate in general form, is no longer to be deemed to have assented to the will as a disposition of property, and that the doctrine to that effect in Ex parte Fane, 16 Sim. 406, is no longer applicable.]

[(c) Smart v. Tranter, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 587; and see Re Atkinson, (1898) 1 Ch. 637; (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

[(d) Re Harris' Settled Estates, 28 Ch. D. 171, followed in Re Batt's Settled Estates, (1897) 2 Ch. 65.]

[(e) Re March, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 166; reversing S. C., 24 Ch. D. 222.]

[(f) Per Kay, J., Re Jupp, 39 Ch. D. 148; but whether this case was rightly decided upon the construction of the particular will, quære; Re Dixon, 42 Ch. D. 306.]

[(g) S. C. per Kay, J., at p. 153.]

[Will of married woman.]

6. Under the power of testamentary disposition conferred on a married woman by sect. 1, sub-sect. 1 of the Act of 1882, "as if she were a feme sole," a will made by a feme covert before the Act will pass separate property which she subsequently acquires by virtue of the Act (a); but as sects. 2 and 5 of the Act of 1882 refer only to separate property, it was held that the will of a married woman was not effectual to pass property acquired by her after the determination of the coverture (b), so that the doctrine of Willock v. Noble (c), that, notwithstanding sect. 24 of the Wills Act, the will of a feme covert requires republication in order to render it effectual to dispose of such property, was still applicable; but now by the Married Women's Property Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 63), sect. 3, it is enacted that "sect. 24 of the Wills Act, 1837, shall apply to the will of a married woman made during coverture, whether she is or is not possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time of making it, and such will shall not require to be re-executed or republished after the death of her husband"; and this enactment applies to every will, whenever executed, of a testatrix who dies after the date of the Act (d).]

[Secus, under Act of 1893.]

Secondly. Of the separate use.

Trusts for separate use of a feme covert.

1. [Independently of the recent enactments affecting the property of married women] the principle at common law is that, as the husband undertakes the debts and liabilities of the wife, he is entitled absolutely or partially, according to the circumstances of the case, to the enjoyment of her property; but in equity a feme is allowed to contract with the husband before marriage, for the exclusive enjoyment of any specific property (e); or a person may make a gift to the wife during the coverture, and shut out the husband's interference by clearly expressing such an intention. Where the separate estate is the result of a special agreement between the parties, the policy of the law can scarcely be said to be transgressed, for the old rule was established for the benefit and protection of the husband, and unusquisque renuntiare potest juri pro se instituto; but that equity should have allowed a stranger to vest property in the wife independently of the husband during the coverture appears

[(a) Re Bowen, (1892) 2 Ch. 291.]

[(b) Re Price, 28 Ch. D. 709; Re Taylor, 57 L. J. Ch. 430; Re Williams, 59 L. T. N.S. 310; Re Smith, 35 Ch. D. 583, at p. 597; Re Cuno, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 12; Re Smith, 45 Ch. D. 632.]

[(c) L. R. 7 H. L. 580.]

[(d) Re Wylie, (1895) 2 Ch. 116; and see Re James, (1910) 1 Ch. 157.]

(e) See Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 228.

a more questionable doctrine, though it may be said that, even in that case, there was no violation of the marital rights, for the property never vested in the feme herself, and the donor might limit any estate which the law did not refuse to recognise. The Court has also permitted the further anomaly of a restriction upon the feme's anticipation (where such an intention has been expressed) of the growing proceeds of the separate estate; but this indulgence appears not a distinct inroad upon the common law incidents of property, but rather an appendage to the separate use for the purpose of more effectually excluding the influence of the husband (a). If the wife were not debarred from anticipating the proceeds, she might, where the husband was not actuated by proper motives, be induced to divest herself of the property, and place it at the husband's disposal.

Not necessary that there should be an express trustee.

2. At the first introduction of the settlement to the separate use it was doubted, whether, to accomplish the object, the interposition of an express trustee was not necessary (b), but it was afterwards determined that this precaution might be dispensed with, for, rather than the intention should be disappointed, the husband himself should be construed a trustee for the wife (c). But [as to cases not falling within the recent statute] whether a trustee be expressly appointed or not, the intention of excluding the husband must not be left to inference, but must be clearly and unequivocally declared; for, as the husband is bound to maintain the wife, he has primâ facie a right to her property (d); but, provided the meaning be clear, the Court will execute the intention, though the settlor may not have expressed himself in technical language (e).

Gift by husband to wife.

The husband may himself during the coverture give any specific property to the wife for her separate use, without the intervention of a trustee (f); [and if a husband permit his wife

[(a) See post, p. 1007.]

(b) Harvey v. Harvey, 1 P. W. 125; Burton v. Pierpont, 2 P. W. 78.

(c) Bennet v. Davis, 2 P. W. 316; Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 583; Rolfe v. Budder, Bunb. 187; Prichard v. Ames, T. & R. 222; Newlands v. Paynter, 10 Sim. 377; 4 M. & Cr. 408; Turnley v. Kelly, Wallis's Rep. by Lyne, 311; Archer v. Rooke, 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 478.

(d) Ex parte Ray, Mad. 207, per Sir T. Plumer; Wills v. Sayers, 4 Mad. 409, per eundem; Massey v. Parker, 2 M. & K. 181, per Sir C. Pepys; Kensington v. Dolland, 2 M. & K. 188, per Sir J. Leach; Moore v. Morris, 4 Drew. 37, per V. C. Kindersley; [Fitzgibbon v. Pike, 6 L. R. Ir. 487; and see Re Sibeth, 14 Q. B. D. 417].

(e) Darley v. Darley, 3 Atk. 399, per Lord Hardwicke; Stanton v. Hall, 2 R. & M. 180, per Lord Brougham; [and see Re Peacock's Trusts, 10 Ch. D. 490].

(f) Lady Cowper's case, cited in Graham v. Londonderry, 3 Atk. 393; Lucas v. Lucas, 1 Atk. 270; Walter v. Hodge, 2 Sw. 92; [Ex parte Whitehead, 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 419].

to carry on a business for her own benefit, independently of him, it becomes her separate property, and the husband becomes, so far as is necessary, a trustee of everything employed in the business for the wife (a).

In the absence of proof of an unequivocal or final intention on the part of a husband to constitute himself a trustee for his wife, the Court will not, after his death, upon her uncorroborated statement, treat the property as belonging to her for her separate use (b).

[Allowance to wife of lunatic.]

An allowance made under an order in lunacy to the wife of a lunatic, living apart from her husband, for her separate maintenance, belongs to her for her separate use (c).

[Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

3. Now by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman can acquire, hold, and dispose of property as her separate estate, in the same manner as if she were a feme sole, without the intervention of any trustee (d); and under the 2nd and 5th sections of the Act (e) all property acquired by any married woman since the 31st of December, 1882, irrespective of the date of her marriage, and also all property belonging to any woman married since that date, are made her separate estate (f).

[Intervention of trustee rendered wholly unnecessary.]

[Application of previous law.]

Notwithstanding the material change thus made in the principle on which the doctrine of the separate use is based, it is conceived that subject to the enlarged rights and liabilities introduced by the Act, many of the principles which regulate the administration of property held for the separate use, will apply equally to any property which by virtue of the Act belongs to a married woman as her separate estate; so that, while the old law has to some extent ceased to be applicable to cases governed by the Act, it will frequently be necessary to refer to it even in connection with property bound by the Act. Moreover, as to

[(a) Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 923; Ex parte Whitehead, 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 419; and see Slanning v. Style, 3 P. W. 334; Calmady v. Calmady, cited in Slanning v. Style, Ib. 338. As to gifts by strangers to the separate use of a married woman before the recent Act, and the distinction between such gifts and paraphernalia of the wife, see Macq., Husb. and Wife, 3rd ed., p. 115. For a case in which articles of wearing apparel, purchased for the wife out of the husband's money, were held, as between him and her execution creditor, to belong primâ facie to her as her separate property, see Masson-Templier & Co. v. De Fries, (1909) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 831.]

[(b) Re Whittaker, 21 Ch. D. 657; Parker v. Lechmere, 12 Ch. D. 256.]

[(c) In the goods of Tharp, 3 P. D. (C.A.) 76.]

[(d) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 1.]

[(e) See ante, p. 965.]

[(f) However, the general power of disposition thus conferred is modified by the provision of s. 19, excepting settlements from the operation of the Act. See post, p. 1006.]

property acquired before the 1st January, 1883, by women married before that date, the law remains unaffected by the Act.

What words will create a trust for separate use.

4. In cases not falling within the recent Act], the marital claims are defeated if the gift be to the wife for her "separate use" (a), or "sole and separate use" (b), or "solely for her own use" (c) (which is construed as separate use), or "solely and entirely for her own use and benefit" (d), [or "for her sole use and disposal" (e), or "for her sole and absolute use and disposal" (f),] or for "her livelihood" (g), or "that she may receive and enjoy the profits" (h), or "to be at her disposal" (i), or "to be by her laid out in what she shall think fit" (j), or "for her own use, independent of her husband" (k), or "not subject to his control" (l), or "for her own use and benefit, independent of any other person" (m), or "to receive the rents from the tenants while she lives, whether married or single," with a direction that no sale or mortgage should be made during her life (n): for such expressions as these are considered inconsistent with the notion of any interference on the part of the husband. So, if the gift be accompanied with such expressions

(a) Massy v. Rowen, 4 L. R. H. L. 294, 299, and 300, per Cur., where it was observed by Lords Colonsay and Cairns, that the word "separate" had acquired a "technical meaning," and that the word "sole" had not.

(b) Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 583; Archer v. Rooke, 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 478.

(c) Re Tarsey's Trust, 1 L. R. Eq. 561; Adamson v. Armitage, 19 Ves. 416; G. Coop. 283; Ex parte Ray, 1 Mad. 199; Ex parte Killick, 3 Mont. D. & De G. 480; Davis v. Prout, 7 Beav. 288; Arthur v. Arthur, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 511; Lindsell v. Thacker, 12 Sim. 178 (the marginal note in the last case is altogether erroneous); and see Massey v. Parker, 2 M. & K. 181; —— v. Lyne, Younge, 562; but as to the latter case, see Tullett v. Armstrong, 4 M. & Cr. 403; and see Gilbert v. Lewis, 1 De G. J. & S. 39; Lewis v. Mathews, 2 L. R. Eq. 177. The word "sole" by itself is a word of equivocal and ambiguous meaning, and takes its colour from the context. It has been held, in Ireland, in a recent case, affirmed on appeal by the House of Lords, not to create per se a separate use in a gift to a legatee, where at the date of the will the legatee was a feme sole; Massy v. Hayes, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 110. S. C. nom. Massy v. Rowen, 4 L. R. H. L. 288. But otherwise, where the legatee was known to the testator to be a married woman; Hartford v. Power, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 204; [Farrow v. Smith, W. N. 1877, p. 21; Re Amies' Estate, W. N. 1880, p. 61].

(d) Inglefield v. Coghlan, 2 Coll. 247.

[(e) Bland v. Dawes, 17 Ch. D. 794.]

[(f) Baker v. Ker, 11 L. R. Ir. 3.]

(g) Darley v. Darley, 3 Atk. 399, per Lord Hardwicke; and see Cape v. Cape, 2 Y. & C. 543; Ex parte Ray, 1 Mad. 208; but see Lee v. Prieaux, 3 B. C. C. 383; Wardle v. Claxton, 9 Sim. 524, sed. qu.

(h) Tyrrell v. Hope, 2 Atk. 558. But this was in marriage articles, and under special circumstances, and must not be taken to establish any general rule.

(i) Prichard v. Ames, T. & R. 222; Kirk v. Paulin, 7 Vin. 96; Secus, probably, if these words had occurred in a gift to a feme sole.

(j) Atcherley v. Vernon, 10 Mod. 531.

(k) Waystaff v. Smith, 9 Ves. 520.

(l) Bain v. Lescher, 11 Sim. 397.

(m) Margetts v. Barringer, 7 Sim. 482.

(n) Goulder v. Camm, 6 Jur. N.S 113; 1 De G. F. & J. 146.

as "her receipt to be a sufficient discharge" (a), or "to be delivered to her on demand" (b); for in these cases the check put upon the husband's legal right to receive could only have been with the intention of giving the wife a particular benefit. So, if the gift be to the husband should he be living with his wife, but if separate then half to the husband and the other half to the wife "absolutely," for the context shows that by absolutely is meant for the separate use (c).

[Where trustees have a discretion to "pay, apply, and dispose of" the income of a trust fund for the maintenance and support of a married woman, they may pay the income to her for her separate use (d).]

What words not sufficient.

5. But if the trust be merely "to pay to her," or "to her and her assigns" (e), or the gift be "to her use" (f), or "her own use" (g), or "her absolute use" (h), or "in trust only for her, her executors, administrators, and assigns" (i), or "to her, her heirs, and assigns, for her or their own sole and absolute use" (j), or "to pay into her own proper hands for her own use" (k), or "to pay to her to be applied for the maintenance of herself and such child or children as the testator might happen to leave at his death" (l), there is no such unequivocal evidence of an intention to exclude the husband.

Husband made a trustee for the wife.

6. Where property was vested in the husband jointly with another, as general trustee of the will, upon trust (inter alia) for the wife, it was held not to be a gift to her separate use (m). Had the husband alone been appointed a trustee for the wife the decision might have been different (n).

[Resumption of cohabitation.]

[7. On the resumption of cohabitation in cases where there has

(a) Lee v. Prieaux, 3 B. C. C. 381; Woodman v. Horsley, cited Ib. 383; Cooper v. Wells, 11 Jur. N.S. 923; Re Molyneux's Estate, 6 I. R. Eq. 411; [Surman v. Wharton, (1891) 1 Q. B. 491, 493;] and see Stanton v. Hall, 2 R. & M. 180.

(b) Dixon v. Olmius, 2 Cox, 414.

(c) Shewell v. Dwarris, Johns. 172.

[(d) Austin v. Austin, 4 Ch. D. 233.]

(e) Dakins v. Berisford, 1 Ch. Ca. 194; Lumb v. Milnes, 5 Ves. 517.

(f) Jacobs v. Amyatt, 1 Mad. 376, n.; Wills v. Sayers, 4 Mad. 411; Anon. case, cited 7 Vin. 96.

(g) Johnes v. Lockhart, in note to Lee v. Prieaux, 3 B. C. C. 383, ed. by Belt (this case is erroneously cited as an authority to the contrary in Lumb v. Milnes, 5 Ves. 520, and Ex parte Ray, 1 Mad. 207); Wills v. Sayers, 4 Mad. 409; Roberts v. Spicer, 5 Mad. 491; Beales v. Spencer, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 651; Darcy v. Croft, 9 Ir. Ch. Rep. 19.

(h) Rycroft v. Christy, 3 Beav. 238.

(i) Spirett v. Willows, 3 De G. J. & S. 293.

(j) Lewis v. Mathews, 2 L. R. Eq. 177.

(k) Tyler v. Lake, 2 R. & M. 183; Kensington v. Dollond, 2 M. & K. 184; Blacklow v. Laws, 2 Hare, 48; but see Hartley v. Hurle, 5 Ves. 545, contra.

(l) Wardle v. Claxton, 9 Sim. 524.

(m) Ex parte Beilby, 1 De G. & J. 167; and see Kensington v. Dollond, 2 M. & K. 184.

(n) Ex parte Beilby, 1 De G. & J. 167; and see Darley v. Darley, 3 Atk. 399.

been a judicial separation or a protection order, the property to which the wife is entitled when such cohabitation takes place belongs to her for her separate use (a).]

Effect after marriage of the trust for separate use.

8. If a feme sole marry without having disposed of the property settled to her separate use, the limitation to the separate use will on the marriage take effect. This doctrine is open to much observation upon principle (b), but Lord Cottenham, in the cases of Tullet v. Armstrong, and Scarborough v. Borman (c), anxious to prevent the consequences that would have flowed from a different decision, and not finding any other safe ground upon which to base his judgment, asserted an inherent power in the Court of Chancery to modify estates of its own creation, and in virtue of that jurisdiction established the validity of the separate use in case of the feme's marriage. If a fund be given to a feme sole for her separate use, without the intervention of a trustee, and she sells out the fund and invests it in another form and then marries, the separate use has been destroyed, and she is regarded as the owner of the new property in the ordinary way (d).

Effect of separate use on second marriage.

9. If property be settled, whether by deed or will, to the separate use of a feme, and the separate use was meant to be confined to a particular marriage, and the husband dies, and the widow marries again, the second husband will not be excluded [by the terms of the instrument] from his ordinary marital rights (e). The question simply is, What was the intention of the settlement or will? So, if real or personal estate be devised or bequeathed to A., a married woman, for her sole and separate use independent of her husband B., the separate use applies only to the existing and not to any future coverture (f); but if the exclusion of any future husband was also

[(a) Matrimonial Causes Acts, viz.: 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 25; 21 & 22 Vict. c. 108, s. 8; 41 Vict. c. 19, s. 4; Re Emery's Trusts, 50 L. T. N.S. 197; 32 W. R. 357.]

(b) Some observations upon this subject will be found in the 3rd ed. of this work, p. 124.

(c) 4 M. & C. 377; and see Newlands v. Paynter, 4 M. & C. 408; Russell v. Dickson, 2 Dru. & War. 138; Archer v. Rooke, 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 478.

(d) Wright v. Wright, 2 J. & H. 647.

(e) Barton v. Briscoe, Jac. 603; Benson v. Benson, 6 Sim. 126; Knight v. Knight, Ib. 121; Jones v. Salter, 2 R. & M. 208; Moore v. Morris, 4 Drew. 33; Tudor v. Samyne, 2 Vern. 270; Sir E. Turner's case, 1 Ch. Ca. 307; 1 Vern. 7. And see Sanders v. Page, 3 Ch. Rep. 224; Pitt v. Hunt, 1 Vern. 18; Howard v. Hooker, 2 Ch. Rep. 81; Edmonds v. Dennington, cited Carleton v. Earl of Dorset, 2 Vern. 17. [But see the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, when the marriage takes place after the 31st Dec. 1882.]

(f) Moore v. Morris, 4 Drew. 33.

in contemplation, it will be carried into effect (a); and if the separate use do extend to any marriage, present or future, even the arrears due to the feme at the time of a subsequent marriage are protected from the after-taken husband (b). And if a jointure or other interest to arise on the cesser of the present marriage be provided for a feme covert, it may be so limited as to enure to her separate use, and be inalienable during the present coverture (c).

[Separate use not arising until death of husband.]

[10. Where policies of assurance on the life of the husband were settled for the benefit of the wife during her life for her separate use, independently of any future husband with whom she might intermarry, it was held in an action by an alleged creditor of hers, claiming a charge on the policies, that the trust for the separate use did not arise during the life of the husband (d).]

The wife's power to dispose of her separate estate.

11. Where property is settled to the separate use, the feme covert, unless her power of anticipation be restrained, may, without the concurrence of her trustees, unless the terms of the settlement require it (e), deal with the property directly and expressly, precisely in the same manner as if she were a feme sole. But, at the same time, she will be protected against fraud, and, therefore, a settlement procured from her by her husband, upon a false representation, will be set aside (f); [but the mere absence of independent advice will not suffice (g).]

General rule.

12. The general principle that governs the law of separate use was laid down by Lord Thurlow, and has been recognised by the highest authorities, viz. that "a feme covert, acting with respect to her separate property, is competent to act in all respects as if she were a feme sole" (h).

(a) Ashton v. M'Dougall, 5 Beav. 56; Re Gaffee, 7 Hare, 101; 1 Mac. & G. 541; [Stroud v. Edwards, 77 L. T. N.S. 280;] Hawkes v. Hubback, 11 L. R. Eq. 5; Re Molyneux's Estate, 6 I. R. Eq. 411.

(b) Ashton v. M'Dougall, 5 Beav. 56; and see Newlands v. Paynter, 4 M. & Cr. 418; England v. Downs, 6 Beav. 269.

(c) Re Molyneux's Estate, 6 I. R. Eq. 411.

[(d) King v. Lucas, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 712.]

(e) Grigby v. Cox, 1 Ves. 518, per Lord Hardwicke; Dowling v. Maguire, Rep. t. Plunket, 19, per Lord Plunket.

(f) Knight v. Knight, 5 Giff. 26; 11 Jur. N.S. 618; and see Sharpe v. Foy, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 35; [and Chaplin & Co., Lim. v. Brammall, (1908) 1 K.B. (C.A.) 233 (where a guarantee for payment of goods supplied on credit, signed by the wife at the instance of her husband, without her understanding it or having it explained to her, was held to be inoperative); and as to the effect of lex loci in invalidating a married woman's contract of suretyship in reference to immoveables, see Bank of Africa v. Cohen, (1909) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 129.]

[(g) Howes v. Bishop, (1909) 2 K.B. (C.A.) 390, where a promissory note by husband and wife for the debt of a third person was upheld, and it was said that there was no rule of equity imposing on the husband the onus of disproving undue influence by him.]

(h) Hulme v. Tenant, 1 B. C. C. 20.

Right of married woman to sue, &c., as to separate estate.

13. A feme covert, therefore, as regards her separate property, sues separately as plaintiff [and since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, without a next friend, and defends separately (a)], and, if out of the jurisdiction, may be served with process by leave of the Court (b), may present a petition without a next friend and without her husband (c), and will be bound by a submission in her pleadings (d), or by a settlement of accounts (e), or by a contract for purchase (f), or sale (g), and may give away the chattels settled to her separate use by manual delivery (h), or may lend money to her husband (i), or may demise land settled to her separate use, when the lessee will be protected even at law, under the equitable plea, against intrusion by the holder of the legal estate (j), may dispose of her equitable interest in freehold estate settled to her separate use, without acknowledgment under the Fines and Recoveries Act (k), and will be bound as to her separate estate, if she agree verbally to accept a lease and take possession (which is part performance) under the agreement (l), and may be made a contributory under a winding-up order (m), and her declarations may be read in evidence against her (n), and she will be liable to an attachment

[(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 1 (2): Rules of Supreme Court, Order 16, Rule 16; and it is not material whether the contract, in respect of which the action is, was entered into before or after the Act: Gloucestershire Banking Company v. Phillipps, 12 Q. B. D. 533.]

(b) Copperthwaite v. Tuite, 13 Ir. Eq. Rep. 68; [Rules of Supreme Court, Order 11].

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 1 (2); Re Outwin's Trusts, 48 L. T. N.S. 410.]

(d) Allen v. Papworth, 1 Ves, 163; Clerk v. Miller, 2 Atk. 379; Bailey v. Jackson, C. P. Cooper's Rep. 1837-38, 495. Husband and wife put in a joint answer, and the wife admitted certain indentures to be in her possession, and claimed the estates to which the indentures related to her separate use for her life. The plaintiff moved for production, but it was argued that the answer was the husband's, and could not be read as an admission by the wife. However, the Court said though there was a logical difficulty, there was none in substance: that if the wife claimed the benefit of the separate use she must take it with its disadvantages; and ordered the production by the wife, and that the husband should permit her to produce; Cowdery v. Way, V.C.K.B. 2nd Nov., 1843. And see Callow v. Howle, 1 De G. & Sm. 531; Beeching v. Morphew, 8 Hare, 129; Clive v. Carew, 1 J. & H. 207.

(e) Wilton v. Hill, 25 L. J. N.S. Ch. 156.

(f) Picard v. Hine, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 274.

(g) Davidson v. Gardner, Sugd. Vend. & Purch. 891, 11th ed.; Stead v. Nelson, 2 Beav. 248; and see Harris v. Mott, 14 Beav. 169; Vansittart v. Vansittart, 4 K. & J. 70; Milnes v. Busk, 2 Ves. jun. 498.

(h) Farington v. Parker, 4 L. R. Eq. 116.

(i) Woodward v. Woodward, 3 De G. J. & S. 672.

(j) Allen v. Walker, 5 L. R. Ex. 187.

(k) Pride v. Bubb, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 64; [and see Carter v. Carter, (1896) 1 Ch. 62].

(l) Gaston v. Frankum, 2 De G. & Sm. 561; S. C. on appeal, 16 Jur. 507.

(m) Re Leeds Banking Company, 3 L. R. Eq. 781; and see Butler v. Cumpston, 7 L. R. Eq. 16.

(n) Peacock v. Monk, 2 Ves. 193, per Lord Hardwicke.

for want of answer where she answers separately (a), and similarly for disobeying the order of the Court in a suit to which she is a party in respect to her separate estate (b), or her separate property may be ordered to be sequestered (c). [And it has been held that a married woman was bound in equity to make good a representation that she was entitled to property, which had been made on her behalf to the Court while she was an infant, and on the faith of which a marriage and settlement had been sanctioned (d).

[Right preserved and extended by Married Women's Property Act.]

14. Since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman, by sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, is capable of entering into and rendering herself liable in respect of and to the extent of her separate property on any contract, and of suing and being sued, in contract or in tort, or otherwise, in all respects as if she were a feme sole, and her husband need not be joined (e) with her as plaintiff or defendant, or be made a party to any action or proceeding, and any damages or costs recovered by her in any such action or proceeding are her separate property; and any damages or costs recovered against her are payable out of her separate property, and not otherwise (f). Under this enactment a married woman may sue without her husband in respect of a tort committed before the commencement of the Act, and the damages recovered belong to her as separate property (g); and it has been intimated that if the action were brought by the husband and wife jointly, the section, which applies only to "any such action," i.e. an action brought by the wife as if she were a feme sole, would not make the damages separate property (h). But in a later case (i) Charles, J., thought that sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, was not necessarily confined to actions brought solely by the

(a) Graham v. Fitch, 2 De G. & Sm. 246; Taylor v. Taylor, 12 Beav. 271; Home v. Patrick (No. 1), 30 Beav. 405, in which case M.R. observed that if the feme had not obtained or concurred in the order to answer separately, there might be a difficulty.

(b) Ottway v. Wing, 12 Sim. 90.

(c) Keogh v. Cathcart, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 280; and see cases cited Ib.

[(d) Per Stirling, J., Mills v. Fox, 37 Ch. D. 153.]

[(e) The meaning is that the joinder is no longer necessary if the plaintiff is seeking satisfaction out of the wife's separate estate alone: Earle v. Kingscote, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 585.]

[(f) A married woman cannot be compelled to give security for costs where she sues as sole plaintiff, even though she may have no separate estate, and there is nothing against which, if she fails, available execution can issue; Re Isaac, 30 Ch. D. (C.A.) 418; Re Thompson, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 317, 318; but she may be ordered to give security for costs of appeal in a proper case; Whitaker v. Kershaw, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 296.]

[(g) Weldon v. Winslow, 13 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 784; Weldon v. De Bathe, 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 339; James v. Barrand, 49 L. T. N.S. 300.]

[(h) Weldon v. Winslow, 13 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 784, 788.]

[(i) Beasley v. Roney, (1891) 1 Q. B. 509, 513.]

wife, and that even where in the same writ the husband was joined as a party, the money recovered by the wife might be her separate property within the meaning of that enactment; and in that case, the husband and wife having sued as co-plaintiffs in respect of injury to the wife, it was held that whatever might be the true construction of sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, the damages recovered were clearly her separate property under sect. 5. Under the sub-section the right to bring an action in respect of any cause of action within sect. 7 of the Statute of Limitations, 21 Jas. 1. c. 16, which accrued before the passing of the Act of 1882, commenced at the date of that Act coming into operation, as the married woman then became "discovert" within the meaning of the Statute of James, and time ran against her as from that date (a); and by force of the words "or otherwise" the feme may be sued in respect of an equitable liability not directly arising out of contract, or any other cause of action on which a feme sole might be sued (b). But the sub-section is limited to actions relating to the married woman personally; thus it does not remove her incapacity to act as next friend or guardian ad litem (c).

[Not retrospective.]

And the sub-section is not retrospective, and does not render a married woman liable in respect of a breach of trust or of implied contract committed previously to the Act (d); nor does it take away her personal liability upon her antenuptial contracts (e).

[Liability for costs.]

The liability of a married woman who is ordered to pay costs attaches when the order against her is made, and consequently affects arrears of income, as to which she was restrained from anticipation, which have become due and payable to her since the commencement of the action, and if the order is for payment of costs by her to the trustees in whose hands the arrears are, they may retain the money in discharge of the costs (f).

[Remedies for protection of separate property.]

By sect. 12 of the Act, every woman, whether married before or after the Act, has in her own name against all persons, including her husband, the same civil remedies for the protection and security of her own separate property, as if such property belonged

[(a) Weldon v. Neal, 51 L. T. N.S. 289; 32 W. R. 828; Lowe v. Fox, 15 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 667.]

[(b) Re Kershaw, 63 L. T. N.S. 203; and as to the right of a married woman to sue in respect of her interest in a partnership of which she is a member, see Eddowes v. Argentine Loan Company, 62 L. T. N.S. 602; S. C., 63 L. T. N.S. 364.]

[(c) Re Duke of Somerset, 34 Ch. D. 465.]

[(d) Davies v. Stanford, 61 L. T. N.S. 234.]

[(e) Robinson King & Co. v. Lynes, (1894) 2 Q. B. 577.]

[(f) Cox v. Bennett, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 617, distinguishing Re Glanvill, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 532, and see post, p. 1009.]

to her as a feme sole; but no husband or wife is entitled to sue the other for a tort (a). Under this section an action will lie at the suit of a married woman against her husband for the return of her personal property (b), the operation of the section not being affected by sect. 17 (c).

General engagement of a feme covert in writing.

15. At a comparatively early period in the history of the law of the separate use, it was established that the separate property of the feme covert might be bound by her engagements. Thus] the Courts determined that if, without any direct or express reference to her separate property, a feme covert, who had property settled to her separate use (d), professed to bind herself by any written instrument, the implication of law was, that she meant to charge her separate estate; for, except with reference to that, the instrument was without meaning and nugatory. Thus, if a feme covert executed a bond (e), even to her husband (f), or joined in a bond with another, even with her husband (g), or signed a promissory note (h), or bill of exchange (i), [or gave a guarantee (j),] though she was not personally bound, yet her separate estate, if anticipation were not restrained (k), was liable. [But if, prior to the recent Act, her anticipation was restrained as to such separate

[(a) An application by a husband against his wife for damages under an undertaking given by her on an injunction which was subsequently dissolved, is not in the nature of an action for tort within this section; Hunt v. Hunt, W. N. 1884, p. 243. Since the Act, the sole undertaking of a married woman as to damages must be accepted where she as sole plaintiff is entitled to an injunction; Re Prynne, W. N. 1885, p. 144.]

[(b) Larner v. Larner, (1905) 2 K. B. 539.]

[(c) Making provision for the decision, in a summary way, of any question between husband and wife as to the title to or possession of property. Where the action by the wife was for an account of her husband's dealings with her property under a power of attorney, the Court had jurisdiction to direct at his instance an inquiry as to her competency to instruct solicitors: Pomery v. P., (1909) W. N. 158.]

(d) As to the power of a married woman to contract under the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 74), in respect of her real estate generally, see Crofts v. Middleton, 2 K. & J. 194; 8 De G. M. & G. 192; Pride v. Bubb, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 64; [and as to her power to make a valid disposition of copyholds by declaring herself a trustee, see Carter v. Carter, (1896) 1 Ch. 62].

(e) Lillia v. Airey, 1 Ves. jun. 277; Norton v. Turvill, 2 P. W. 144; Peacock v. Monk, 2 Ves. 193, per Lord Loughborough; Tullett v. Armstong, 4 Beav. 323, per Lord Langdale.

(f) Heatley v. Thomas, 15 Ves. 596.

(g) Heatley v. Thomas, 15 Ves. 596; Standford v. Marshall, 2 Atk. 68; Hulme v. Tenant, 1 B. C. C. 20.

(h) Bullpin v. Clarke, 17 Ves. 365; Field v. Sowle, 4 Russ. 112; Tullett v. Armstrong, 4 Beav. 323, per Lord Langdale; Fitzgibbon v. Blake, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 328; [Davies v. Jenkins, 6 Ch. D. 728; Devitt v. Faussett, 7 L. R. Ir. 511].

(i) Stuart v. Kirkwall, 3 Mad. 387; Coppin v. Gray, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 205; Tullett v. Armstrong, 4 Beav. 323, per Lord Langdale; M'Henry v. Davies, 10 L. R. Eq. 88; Lancashire and Yorkshire Bank v. Tee, W. N. 1875, p. 213.

[(j) Morrell v. Cowan, 6 Ch. D. 166, reversed on other grounds.]

(k) Re Sykes's Trusts, 2 J. & H. 415.

estate as she was entitled to at the time of entering into the engagement, such engagement had no effect either at law or in equity (a).] Again, if she gave a written retainer to a solicitor, it entitled him to have his costs out of her separate estate (b), though the circumstance that the solicitor of a husband and wife has transacted business relating to the separate estate is not, per se, sufficient to make that estate directly liable for the amount of his costs (c). So, if she entered into a contract in writing for the purchase of an estate, she might enforce it against the vendor, as it created a valid obligation in respect of her property (d). And it was not necessary that the contract should expressly refer to the separate property, or that the vendor should know that the purchaser was a married woman (e).

Bond by feme before marriage.

In one case a feme executed a bond before her marriage, and her property having been settled upon her marriage to her separate use, the obligee filed his bill against the husband and wife to have the debt paid out of her separate estate, and the husband having absconded, the Court made the order (f).

[Costs of raising the charge.]

[The liability of the separate estate extended to the costs of an action to enforce the charge against the estate (g).]

General engagements not in writing.

16. Although it was thus established beyond question that a feme covert made her separate property liable by the execution of any written instrument, yet the principles upon which the liability was held to attach were for some time involved in much doubt. Thus it was considered by Lord Loughborough (h), Sir J. Leach (i), and the late Vice-Chancellor of England (j), that the separate estate of a feme covert was not subject to her general engagements, and this upon the notion that a feme covert could not contract, but that every dealing in respect of her estate was in the nature either of an appointment or of a disposition (k).

[(a) Roberts v. Watkins, 46 L. J. N.S. Q. B. 552.]

(b) Murray v. Barlee, 4 Sim. 82; 3 M. & K. 209.

(c) Callow v. Howle, 1 De G. & Sm. 531; and see Re Pugh, 17 Beav. 336.

(d) Dowling v. Maguire, Ll. & G. Rep. t. Plunkett, 1; but see Chester v. Platt, Sugd. Vend. & Purch. 207, 14th edit.

(e) Dowling v. Maguire, Ll. & G. Rep. t. Plunkett, 1.

(f) Briscoe v. Kennedy, cited Hulme v. Tenant, 1 B. C. C. 17.

[(g) Morrell v. Cowan, 6 Ch. D. 166; and see now the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, s. 1 (2), ante, p. 976.]

(h) See Bolton v. Williams, 2 Ves. jun. 142, 150, 156; Whistler v. Newman, 4 Ves. 145.

(i) See Greatley v. Noble, 3 Mad. 94; Stuart v. Kirkwall, Ib. 389; Aguilar v. Aguilar, 5 Mad. 418; Field v. Sowle, 4 Russ. 114; Chester v. Platt, Sugd. Vend. & Purch. 207, 14th ed.

(j) See Murray v. Barlee, 4 Sim. 82; and see Digby v. Irvine, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 149.

(k) See Bolton v. Williams, 2 Ves. jun. 150; Greatley v. Noble, 3 Mad. 94; Stuart v. Kirkwall, Ib. 389; Aguilar v. Aguilar, 5 Mad. 418; Field v. Sowle, 4 Russ. 114.

However, it was clear that [irrespective of the recent Act] a feme covert could, in respect of her separate use, contract (a), and that her written obligations were not to be viewed as appointments, and did not operate merely by way of disposition. The principles that govern the liability of the feme's separate property have been very satisfactorily explained by Lord Brougham in Murray v. Barlee (b), and by Lord Cottenham in Owens v. Dickenson (c), and their judgments must be held to have clearly established that the dealings of a feme covert with her separate estate did not operate by way of appointment or disposition. This being so, it became difficult to see on what ground any valid distinction could be sustained between written and verbal engagements. If a written promise to pay, as a promissory note, referring neither to the instrument of trust nor to the property, were held to bind the separate estate, upon what ground could a verbal assumpsit be distinguished? So long as it could be maintained that the dealing of the married woman operated by way of disposition of the separate estate, there seemed room for contending that the disposition, as being an assignment of trust, must have been in writing (d); but so soon as it was admitted that the general engagement in writing was binding, it seemed impossible to resist the conclusion that a verbal general engagement must bind likewise. When it was attempted to imply a promise from mere acts of the feme, which might be construed as intended to bind either her husband or herself, there seemed room for a distinction, but an express verbal promise and an express written promise to pay must, it is conceived, stand on the same footing.

Observations of V. C. Kindersley respecting feme's verbal engagements.

The late Vice-Chancellor Kindersley upon this subject expressed himself as follows:—"It has not yet, indeed, been made the subject of positive decision, that the principle embraces a feme's verbal engagements or cases of common assumpsit. Considering, however, the opinions expressed and the reason of the thing, I

(a) See Owens v. Dickenson, Cr. & Ph. 53; Dowling v. Maguire, Rep. t. Plunkett, 19; Master v. Fuller, 4 B. C. C. 19; Stead v. Nelson, 2 Beav. 245; Bailey v. Jackson, C. P. Cooper's Rep. 1837-8, 495; Francis v. Wigzell, 1 Mad. 261; Crosby v. Church, 3 Beav. 489; Tullett v. Armstrong, 4 Beav. 323.

(b) 3 M. & K. 209, at pp. 223, 224. It may be observed that in this case the late V. C. of England, while expressing his opinion upon the hearing below, that the general engagements of the feme covert did not affect the separate estate, does not appear to have conceived that any distinction existed between a written and unwritten obligation; see 4 Sim. 94.

(c) Cr. & Ph. 48, at pp. 53, 54.

(d) See ante, p. 978.

think it very probable that when that question arises for decision, it will be decided in the affirmative" (a).

Cases where writing is required.

But a verbal engagement could not bind the wife where the Statute of Frauds required, in the case of a feme sole, an engagement in writing, as if the feme covert were to undertake verbally to pay the debt of a stranger, or of her husband, who, for this purpose, is a stranger (b). It was even held, in Ireland, that the general engagements of the wife not in writing, could not, by reason of the Statute of Frauds, be satisfied out of any interest in land settled to her separate use (c). But this doctrine seems to involve a confusion between special contracts, which, in the case of a feme sole, are required by the statute to be in writing, and general contracts, which, in the case of a feme sole, are not required to be in writing. In the latter case the remedy is against the feme sole personally, but where the feme is covert, is not against the person, but the property. The satisfaction, therefore, decreed against the separate estate is not the specific performance of a special contract, but an equitable execution by way of legal process for working out the liability created by the general contract.

Whether separate estate can be made liable by operation of law in clear contravention of the intention.

17. It was considered that there was still another distinction, viz. that, allowing the general engagements of the wife, whether written or unwritten, to bind her separate estate, yet, supposing the doctrine of these cases to be founded on the intention to charge the settled property, as implied by the circumstance that otherwise the act would be nugatory, the same result would not follow where it was clearly not the intention of the feme to create any charge—where, in short, there was no contract either expressed or implied. Thus it was decided that where an annuity, granted by a feme covert and charged upon her separate estate, had been set aside as void for want of compliance with the requisitions of the Annuity Acts, the separate estate was not liable to repay the consideration money (d); and the decisions to this effect were cited, without disapprobation, by L. J. Turner (e). And where a married woman received rents, claiming

(a) Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 183; and see Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 673; Newcomen v. Hassard, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 274; Blatchford v. Woolley, 2 Dr. & Sm. 204; Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 182; 53 Beav. 489.

(b) Re Sykes's Trust, 2 J. & H. 415.

(c) Burke v. Tuite, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 467; and see Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 192; Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 514.

(d) Jones v. Harris, 9 Ves. 486; Aguilar v. Aguilar, 5 Mad. 414; and see Bolton v. Williams, 4 B. C. C. 297; S. C., 2 Ves. jun. 138.

(e) Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 513; and see Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 182; 35 Beav. 489.

them as her separate property, but was in fact not entitled, Vice-Chancellor Kindersley held that the rents so received could not be recovered from her separate estate (a).

A feme covert having separate estate is a feme sole to all intents and purposes.

18. The Vice-Chancellor at the same time observed: "The doctrine (of the separate use) is now in a state of transition, and is not clearly established in all its points; but the modern tendency has been to establish the principle, that if you put a married woman in the position of a feme sole in respect of her separate estate, that position must be carried to its full extent, short of making her personally liable" (b).

[This, however, must be understood in respect only of the separate estate to which the married woman was actually entitled at the time of the engagement which it was sought to enforce against her separate estate; for a married woman did not, by having separate estate, acquire an equitable status of capacity to contract debts, so as to enable her to bind separate estate to which she might afterwards become entitled, but could only contract with reference to separate estate to which she was actually entitled, and so as to bind that estate (c). So where an infant feme, in contemplation of her marriage, covenanted to settle all her after-acquired property, and subsequently, after attaining her majority, but prior to the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, confirmed the settlement, it was held that this confirmation made the settlement absolutely binding only so far as related to property which she had already acquired at the time of confirmation, but that as to property which she might afterwards acquire for her separate use, the covenant would remain voidable, and the married woman might, on such subsequent property accruing, elect to avoid the settlement as to it, and take it for her separate use (d).]

True principle.

19. The principle to be deduced from the cases was thus laid down by L. J. Turner. "To affect the separate estate there must be something more than the mere obligation which the law would create in the case of a single woman. What that something more may be must depend in each case upon the circumstances. What might affect the separate estate in the case of a married woman living separate from her husband, might not

(a) Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 673.

(b) Ib. 4 Drew. 685.

[(c) Pike v. Fitzgibbon, Martin v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. 454; and see Re Roper, 39 Ch. D. 482, 488.]

[(d) Smith v. Lucas, 18 Ch. D. 531; and see Buckmaster v. Buckmaster, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 21; S. C., Seaton v. Seaton, 13 App. Cas. 61; Duncan v. Dixon, 44 Ch. D. 211; Harle v. Jarman, (1895) 2 Ch. 419; Greenhill v. North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 474, and see ante, p. 25.]

affect it in the case of a married woman living with her husband," &c. "In order," he continued, "to bind the separate estate by a general engagement, it should appear that the engagement was made with reference to, and upon the faith or credit of that estate, and the question whether it was so or not is to be judged of by the Court upon all the circumstances of the case" (a). These opinions have since been indorsed by the Court as a correct exposition of the law (b); and Lord Justice James, in further illustration of the subject, has observed: "The term general engagement is a misleading one. If it merely mean that goods sold to a married woman in the ordinary course of domestic life—that contracts expressed to be made by her in respect of property not her separate estate—e.g. for buying or selling, or letting or hiring a house—do not necessarily impose a liability to be satisfied out of the separate estate which she may happen to have, in that sense and to that extent the proposition that her separate estate is not liable to her general engagements is quite correct. But that does not affect the rule, as laid down by Lord Justice Turner, as to general engagements, as to which it appears that they were made with reference to, and upon the faith or credit of, the separate estate. It would be very inconvenient that a married woman with a large separate property should not be able to employ a solicitor or a surveyor, or a builder or tradesman, or hire labourers or servants, and very unjust if she did, that they should have no remedy against such separate property" (c).

[20. Thus, where a married woman was living separate from her husband, and moneys were advanced by a stranger in providing her with necessaries, such moneys were held to constitute a debt binding her separate estate (d). [Money advanced to woman living separate from husband.]

21. Now, by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (e), sect. 1, sub-s. 2, already adverted to (f), a married woman is made capable of "entering into and rendering herself liable in respect of and to the extent of her separate property on any contract"; and by the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, it is enacted [Married Women's Property Acts, 1882 and 1893.]

(a) Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 515; see the principle approved and expanded by Sir R. T. Kindersley, V. C., in Re Leeds Banking Company, 3 L. R. Eq. 787; and see the same principle approved by V. C. Malins in Butler v. Cumpston, 7 L. R. Eq. 20; and by V. C. in Ireland, in Hartford v. Power, 3 I. R. Eq. 602; and by Lord Hatherley in Picard v. Hine, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 274.

(b) See London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 591; and see preceding note.

(c) London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 593.

[(d) Hodgson v. Williamson, 15 Ch. D. 87.]

[(e) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(f) Ante, p. 976.]

as follows (a):—"Every contract (b) hereafter entered into by a married woman, otherwise than as agent, (a) shall be deemed to be a contract entered into by her with respect to and to bind her separate property, whether she is or is not in fact possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time when she enters into such contract; (b) shall bind all separate property which she may at that time or thereafter be possessed of or entitled to; and (c) shall also be enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter while discovert be possessed of or entitled to; provided that nothing in this section contained shall render available to satisfy any liability or obligation arising out of such contract any separate property which at that time or thereafter she is restrained from anticipating." The proviso at the end of the section is to be read as qualifying all the three preceding clauses, and the words in the proviso "at that time or thereafter" have the same meaning as the like words in clause (b) of the section (c), and accordingly the proviso protects income which accrues due to a divorced married woman, subsequently to the divorce, in respect of her separate property which was subject to a restraint against anticipation (d); and, in general, separate property as to which a married woman was restrained from anticipation at the date of a contract made by her, cannot be rendered available to satisfy a judgment obtained against her in

[(a) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 63 (passed 5th December, 1893) s. 1, amending and replacing sub-ss. 3 and 4 of sect. 1 of the Act of 1882, which sub-sections are repealed by s. 4 of the Act of 1893. Upon the construction of the repealed provisions, it was held that the Act does not enable a married woman who has no separate property to bind herself by a contract or engagement; Stogdon v. Lee, (1891) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 661; Palliser v. Gurney, 19 Q. B. D. 519; Re Shakespear, 30 Ch. D. 169; and see Pelton v. Harrison, (1891) 2 Q. B. 422; and that a person suing a married woman on an alleged contract must prove that she had, at the time of entering into the contract, separate property free from any restriction on anticipation, as to which she might reasonably be deemed to have contracted; see Tetley v. Griffith, W. N. 1887, p. 218; Branstein v. Lewis, 64 L. T. N.S. 265; Leak v. Driffield, 24 Q. B. D. 98. Moreover, as the Act of 1882 referred to married women and not to widows, and to separate property and not to the property of women in general, the contract of the married woman would not affect property acquired by her after the coverture; or separate property as to which she was restrained from anticipation when she entered into the contract, but which afterwards became free from such restriction by the determination of the coverture; though it would affect separate property acquired by her during a subsequent coverture; see Beckett v. Tasker, 19 Q. B. D. 7; Pelton v. Harrison, (1891) 2 Q. B. 422; Jay v. Robinson, 25 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 467; but these anomalies are now removed.]

[(b) That is, a contract then entered into for the first time, not a mere acknowledgment of existing liability: Re Wheeler, (1904) 2 Ch. 66.]

[(c) Barnett v. Howard, (1900) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 784; Brown v. Dimbleby, (1904) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 28.]

[(d) Barnett v. Howard, sup.]

an action upon the contract after the determination of the coverture (a).

It will be observed that by the Acts no distinction is made between written and verbal engagements of the married woman, and both, therefore, equally bind her separate property. [Verbal and written engagements equally binding.]

A general covenant not to sue will bind the free separate estate of a feme after her decease; and where the covenant was included in an ineffectual release by her of an annuity which she was restrained from anticipating, and her will contained a direction for payment of debts, arrears of the annuity, being free separate estate, were available to answer damages for breach of the covenant (b). [Covenant not to sue.]

22. The separate estate has been made to answer a debt of the wife contracted before marriage (c); and under the Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (d), property belonging to a feme and settled to her separate use without power of anticipation was liable to such a debt (e). [Antenuptial debts.]

Now, by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (f), sect. 13, it is provided that "a woman after her marriage shall continue to be liable, in respect and to the extent of her separate property, for all debts contracted, and all contracts entered into or wrongs committed by her before her marriage, including any sums for which she may be liable as a contributory" to any joint-stock company. The section contains provisions for working out the liability, but there is a proviso that nothing in the Act is to operate to increase or diminish the liability of any woman married before the commencement of the Act for any such debt, &c., except as to any separate property to which she may become entitled by virtue of the Act, and to which she would not have been entitled for her separate use if the Act had not passed. [Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

It has been held that this section extends not only to debts, properly so called, contracted by the feme while sole, but to debts contracted by her under the powers of the Act, and for which judgment has been recovered, during a former coverture (g).]

23. The inquiry now under consideration involves the question how far a feme covert [could, before the Married Women's Liability of estate of feme covert to make good her breaches of trust.

[(a) Brown v. Dimbleby, (1904) 1 K.B. (C.A.) 28.]

[(b) Sprange v. Lee, (1908) 1 Ch. 424.]

[(c) Chubb v. Stretch, 9 L. R. Eq. 555.]

[(d) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 93.]

[(e) Sanger v. Sanger, 11 L. R. Eq. 470; London and Provincial Bank v. Bogle, 7 Ch. D. 773; Re Hedgeley, 34 Ch. D. 379; Axford v. Reid, 22 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 548.]

[(f) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(g) Jay v. Robinson, 25 Q.B.D. (C.A.) 467; Pelton v. Harrison, (1891) 2 Q. B. 422.]

Property Act, 1882,] commit a breach of trust for which her separate estate would be made liable. Where the breach of trust resulted in the loss of the very fund in which the feme had an interest to her separate use, the Court treated her acts as amounting to a disposition of the separate interest which she had power to bind (a). So if a feme covert who was executrix or trustee had wasted the trust estate, the ordinary right of retainer might be exercised against her separate estate under the same instrument (b). And the separate estate of a married woman under a settlement was held liable to make good the loss occasioned by her wrongfully selling absolutely a valuable chattel in which, under the same settlement, she had only a limited interest (c). But where an annuity was devised to a feme sole in trust to apply it for the benefit of another, and the feme afterwards married, and property was settled to her separate use, and then there was a breach of trust in respect of the annuity, the M.R. held that the effect of the marriage was to vest the legal estate of the annuity in the husband, that she could only act as his agent, that she could not be made liable for general torts in reference to trusts any more than for general torts at law—that, strictly speaking, she could not commit torts, but that they were the torts of her husband, and her acts created a liability against her husband: that he acted for her although she remained trustee, just as the husband of an executrix acted for the executrix, that her receipts must be treated as his receipts, and he alone was liable, and on these grounds the M.R. refused all relief against the separate property of the wife (d).

[Where a married woman, having notice of assignment of a contract by her to convey land, conveyed to the assignor, it was held that she had not committed a tort, but a breach of trust or implied contract which would not have bound her separate property before the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (e).

[Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

24. Now, by the recent Act (f), sect. 24, it is provided as follows: "The word 'contract' in this Act shall include the acceptance of any trust, or of the office of executrix or adminis-

(a) Crosby v. Church, 3 Beav. 485; Hanchett v. Briscoe, 22 Beav. 496; [and see Re Davenport, (1895) 1 Ch. 361].

(b) Pemberton v. M'Gill, 1 Dr. & Sm. 266; and see ante, p. 893.

(c) Clive v. Carew, 1 J. & H. 199.

(d) Wainford v. Heyl, 20 L. R. Eq. 321. [As to the liability of a husband, notwithstanding the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, in respect of his wife's torts which are independent of contract, see Earle v. Kingscote, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 585; Beaumont v. Kaye, (1904) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 292; Cuenod v. Leslie, (1909) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 880.]

[(e) Davies v. Stanford, 61 L. T. N.S. 234.]

[(f) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

tratrix, and the provisions of this Act as to liabilities of married women shall extend to all liabilities by reason of any breach of trust or devastavit committed by any married woman, being a trustee or executrix or administratrix, either before or after her marriage, and her husband shall not be subject to such liabilities unless he has acted or intermeddled in the trust or administration." This section must be read in connection with the provisions already referred to (a), with sect. 19, to be hereafter noticed (b), and with sect. 18, which provides that a married woman who is an executrix or administratrix alone or jointly with others, or a trustee alone or jointly of property subject to any trust, may sue or be sued, or transfer or join in transferring any public or other stocks, funds, or investments in that character, without her husband, as if she were a feme sole (c).

[Married woman administratrix.]

An order that a married woman administratrix should pay into court a sum of money, belonging to the intestate's estate and shown by her account of the personal estate to be in her hands, is a personal order against her in respect of the office accepted by her, and if she fails to comply with the order she is liable to attachment. Such an order, therefore, is rightly made in common form, and not confined to payment out of separate estate; but it would seem that if the object of the order were to compel her to make good a loss occasioned by her devastavit, as the liability would be proprietary and not personal, the order must be in the form prescribed in Scott v. Morley (d), and she would not be liable to attachment (e).]

Nature of the relief against the separate estate.

25. Supposing a person entitled to establish his claim against the separate estate, the limits of his remedy appear to be [as follows: Previously to the Act of 1882 he could] not bring an action against the feme covert as the sole defendant and as personally liable (f); but might have brought an action against her and

[(a) Ante, pp. 964, 965, 983, 984.]

[(b) Post, p. 1006].

[(c) The section, it will be observed, does not deal with land, and accordingly, although the Act enables a feme covert to convey, without the concurrence of her husband, land in fee simple, being her separate property, Re Drummond and Davie's Contract, (1891) 1 Ch. 524, 531; or land of which she is a mortgagee, Re Brooke and Fremlin, (1898) 1 Ch. 647; Re West and Hardy's Contract, (1904) 1 Ch. 145; or mortgagee in trust, Re Howgate and Osborn's Contract, (1902) 1 Ch. 451; it has been held that she has no power to convey land of which she is trustee, otherwise than by deed acknowledged under the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833; Re Harkness and Allsopp's Contract, (1896) 2 Ch. 358, but see now the Married Women's Property Act, 1907, sect. 1, ante, p. 37.]

[(d) 20 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 120, see post, pp. 990, 991.]

[(e) Re Turnbull, (1900) 1 Ch. 180.]

[(f) Where a judgment had been obtained against a married woman, it was on her application set aside, after a considerable lapse of time, as her trustees (and the death of her husband, which puts an end to the separate use, either after the commencement of the action (a), or even before it (b), would not have defeated the action), and might have prayed payment of his demand out of all personal estate in the hands of the trustees to which she was entitled absolutely (including arrears of rents), and also out of the accruing rents of real estate, if there were no clause against anticipation, until the claim and costs had been satisfied (c). "I know of no case," said Lord Thurlow, "where the general engagement of the wife has been carried to the extent of decreeing that the trustees of her real estate shall make conveyance of that real estate, and by sale, mortgage, or otherwise, raise the money to satisfy that general engagement on the part of the wife" (d). But it is conceived that if in any case the instrument were so specially worded as to place the corpus of real estate also at the separate disposal of the feme covert, the engagements of the wife would, upon principle, [independently of the Act of 1882,] have bound the whole interest settled to the separate use, whether corpus or income (e).

As against corpus of real estate.

[Where the property is acquired subsequently to the engagement.]

[A judgment recovered against the separate estate of a married woman in respect of an engagement not within the Act of 1882, binds only so much of the separate estate as the married woman was entitled to at the time when the engagement was entered into, and as remains undisposed of at the time of the judgment, and does not affect separate estate acquired subsequently to the engagement (f). In such a case, therefore, the proper inquiry to be inserted in a judgment against the separate estate is "what was the separate estate which the married woman had at the time of contracting the debt or engagement, and whether that separate estate or any part of it still remains capable of being reached by the judgment and execution of the Court" (g).

being irregular and wrong; Atwood v. Chichester, 3 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 722; Davies v. Ballenden, 46 L. T. N.S. 797.]

(a) Field v. Sowle, 4 Russ. 112.

(b) Heatley v. Thomas, 15 Ves. 596; but see Kenge v. Delavall, 1 Vern. 326.

(c) Hulme v. Tenant, 1 B. C. C. 20, per Lord Thurlow; Standford v. Marshall, 2 Atk. 68; Murray v. Barlee, 4 Sim. 82; 3 M. & K. 209; Field v. Sowle, 4 Russ. 112; Nantes v. Corrock, 9 Ves. 182; Bullpin v. Clarke, 17 Ves. 365; Jones v. Harris, 9 Ves. 492, 493, 497; Stuart v. Kirkwall, 3 Mad. 387.

(d) Hulme v. Tenant, 1 B. C. C. 20, 21; and see Boughton v. James, 1 Coll. 26; Nantes v. Corrock, 9 Ves. 189.

(e) See post, p. 1003.

[(f) Pike v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 454; reversing S. C. 14 Ch. D. 837; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 893, 897; Flower v. Buller, 15 Ch. D. 665; Chapman v. Biggs, 11 Q. B. D. 27.]

[(g) Pike v. Fitzgibbon, Martin v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 454; Durrant v. Ricketts, 8 Q. B. D. 177; 30

If there be a clause against anticipation as to any part, the Court directs payment out of the feme's separate estate, except that part of which she has no power of anticipation (a); and separate estate as to which anticipation was restrained at the time the engagement was entered into, would not become available for the payment, by reason of the determination of the coverture before the date of the judgment (b). Where the married woman trades separately from her husband and becomes bankrupt, her separate property subject to restraint on anticipation vests under sect. 1, sub-sect. 5 of the Act of 1882 (c) in the trustee in bankruptcy, and on the death of her husband, the restraint, being in the nature of an incumbrance, is removed, and the property becomes assets available for her creditors (d). [Where clause against anticipation.]

The remedy against the separate estate is in the nature of equitable execution, which may be obtained either by the appointment of a receiver, or by a direction to the trustees to pay, and if any proceedings are pending between the married woman and her creditor, the order may be obtained in such proceedings without instituting a fresh action (e). [Equitable execution without new proceedings.]

26. The rule that the trustees of the property held for the separate use of a feme covert, must be parties to a suit for charging that property, has in recent cases been broken through. Thus, in Picard v. Hine (f), where the trustee of a particular property was a defendant, the Court made a decree in a general form declaring that the separate property of the feme covert, vested in her or in any other person in trust for her, was chargeable with the payment of the plaintiff's debt; and in a later case, V. C. Hall, on the authority of Picard v. Hine, held expressly that it was not necessary to make the trustees parties (g). But [Trustee not a necessary party.]

W. R. 428; Gloucestershire Banking Company v. Phillips, 12 Q. B. D. 533; and see Gallagher v. Nugent, 8 L. R. Ir. 353; Re Roper, 39 Ch. D. 482, 491.]

[(a) Murray v. Barlee, 4 Sim. 95.]

[(b) Pike v. Fitzgibbon, Martin v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 454, reversing S. C., 14 Ch. D. 837; Myles v. Burton, 14 L. R. Ir. 258; Pelton v. Harrison, (1891) 2 Q. B. 422; Brown v. Dimbleby, (1904) 1 K. B. 28, ante, p. 984.]

[(c) See post, p. 1023.]

[(d) Re Wheeler's Settlement, (1899) 2 Ch. 717.]

[(e) Re Peace and Waller, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 405; M'Garry v. White, 16 L. R. Ir. 322. Sums of money ordered to be paid by a husband to a divorced wife are personal, and her creditor cannot take them in equitable execution: Watkins v. Watkins, (1896) P. 222; Paquine v. Sneary, (1909) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 688. If the feme has been ordered to pay costs, her separate estate may be reached under the general jurisdiction which the Court has to protect an equitable fund by the appointment of a receiver: Cummins v. Perkins, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 16.]

[(f) 5 L. R. Ch. App. 274.]

[(g) Davies v. Jenkins, 6 Ch. D. 728; Flower v. Buller, 15 Ch. D. 665; Durrant v. Ricketts, 8 Q. B. D. 177; but see Atwood v. Chichester, 3 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 722.]

any order made in the absence of the trustees must be without prejudice to any claims they may have against the trust estate (a).

[Nor the husband.]

By the Act of 1882, although the ultimate remedy is only against the separate estate, the action may be brought against the married woman as if she were a feme sole, without joining either her husband or any trustee as a party, and a judgment may be obtained against the married woman (b). This judgment could, however, only be enforced against the separate property, but it was available (in cases where the contract in respect of which it was obtained was made after the 31st of December, 1882) against any separate property of the married woman whether acquired before or after the date of the contract (c); and if the contract is subsequent to the Act of 1893, the judgment is enforceable (subject to a proviso as to property which she is restrained from anticipating) by process of law against all property which she may while discovert be possessed of or entitled to (d).

[Form and effect of judgment against separate estate.]

27. Under the recent Acts, judgment in default, or under Order 14 of the Rules of the Supreme Court, may be signed against a married woman, but execution can only issue against her separate property as to which her anticipation is not restrained (e), unless the restraint arises under a settlement made by the married woman herself of her own property (f). The judgment should be expressly limited so as not to extend to any property which is subject to any restriction on anticipation, "unless by reason of sect. 19 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (g), the property be liable to execution notwithstanding such restriction" (h). Judgment in this form against the married

[(a) Collett v. Dickenson, 11 Ch. D. 687; Re Peace and Waller, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 405.]

[(b) Brown v. Morgan, 12 L. R. Ir. 122; Robinson King & Co. v. Lynes, (1894) 2 Q. B. 577.]

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 1; Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; but see Moore v. Mulligan, W. N. 1883, p. 34.]

[(d) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 63, s. 1, see ante, p. 983.]

[(e) Perks v. Mylrea, W. N. 1884, p. 64; and as to the practice before the Act, see Ortner v. Fitzgibbon, 50 L. J. N.S. Ch. 17; 43 L. T. N.S. 60. Where under an order for payment of costs by the feme and her husband, a writ of elegit issues by which execution against her is limited to her separate estate, real property over which she and her husband have a joint general power of appointment cannot be taken in execution: Goatley v. Jones, (1909) 1 Ch. 557.]

[(f) Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; Nicholls v. Morgan, 16 L. R. Ir. 409.]

[(g) See post, p. 1006.]

[(h) Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 120, 132; Seton, 6th ed. p. 885; Nicholls v. Morgan, 16 L. R. Ir. 409; and see Johnstone v. Browne, 18 L. R. Ir. 428. But a writ of sequestration need not be so limited, though it would not

woman is not a personal judgment (a), but only binds her property, and under such a judgment there is no "debt due from her" within the meaning of sect. 5 of the Debtor's Act, 1869, capable of being enforced by committal (b). But although the relief thus given against the married woman is different from that in the case of a feme sole, she is liable to be sued on any ground on which a feme sole could be sued, and this liability to be sued is entirely distinct from her power to contract. Thus, a liability to refund money overpaid in the capacity of residuary legatee may be enforced by an action against the feme, although she is restrained by the will from anticipation (c). Where judgment is recovered against a widow upon a contract entered into by her during coverture before the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, but after the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, the plaintiff is not entitled to judgment against her in the ordinary form as if she were a feme sole, but only to judgment in the form settled in Scott v. Morley (d), with requisite verbal alterations (e). [Judgment against widow.]

28. A person entitled to establish a claim against the separate estate of a feme covert, cannot obtain an interim injunction against her to restrain her from dealing with it until his right has been established by obtaining a judgment (f).] [No injunction to restrain dealing with separate estate until claimant's right established.]

29. It was formerly held, though not without a conflict of judicial opinion, that where the creditor proceeded not against the feme covert personally, but against her separate property as a trust fund, the Statute of Limitations did not apply and could not be pleaded (g). [But it was pointed out by the late Lord Justice Kay that the leading case upon the subject proceeded upon the view that the bond of a married woman Statute of Limitations.

be effectual against separate estate as to which the feme is restrained from anticipation; Hyde v. Hyde, 36 W. R. 708.]

[(a) Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 120; Draycott v. Harrison, 17 Q. B. D. 417.]

[(b) Scott v. Morley, ubi sup.; and as the judgment is not personal, a bankruptcy notice against a feme covert trader cannot be founded on it; Re Lynes, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 113; and see Re Elliot, (1900) 2 I. R. 439; though the judgment is against her in a firm name under which she trades separately: Re Frances Handford & Co., (1899) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 566; but as it is a "judgment" within Rules of Court, 1883, Order XLV., Rule 1, it may be enforced by garnishee proceedings; Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 103.]

[(c) Whitaker v. Kershaw, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 320, 327, 329.]

[(d) Ante, p. 990.]

[(e) Softlaw v. Welch, (1899) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 419; and see Brown v. Dimbleby, (1904) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 28, sup. p. 984.]

[(f) Robinson v. Pickering, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 660, reversing S. C., 16 Ch. D. 371.]

(g) Norton v. Turvill, 2 P. W. 144; [Hodgson v. Williamson, 15 Ch. D. 87;] Vaughan v. Walker, 6 Ir. Ch. Rep. 471; 8 Ir. Ch. Rep. 458.

operated as an appointment making her a trustee for the obligee—a view which is now exploded. And it has now been decided by the Court of Appeal that the Statute of Limitations applies by analogy to the liability of a feme covert in respect of her separate estate (a).]

Stock settled to the separate use.

30. In one case the Court refused to hold the Bank Annuities of a feme covert liable, as stock could not, in the case of a person sui juris, be taken in execution (b); but now that stock is available to the creditor (c), the distinction may be considered as obsolete.

Assignment good against creditor.

31. Process against the separate property of the wife in her lifetime being in the nature of an equitable execution may, like an execution at law, be defeated by a bonâ fide assignment to a purchaser or mortgagee (d).

Creditor's suit after death of feme covert.

32. After the death of the feme covert the creditor may bring an action for payment of his debt out of property which belonged to her as her separate estate (e); and Sir W. Grant ruled that all the creditors, whether by specialty or simple contract, should be paid pari passu (f). But Lord Romilly was of opinion that the debts should be paid in order of priority (g). Two conflicting principles were in fact then at work in different branches of the Court (h): one was, that the general engagements of the wife were charges on the separate property equivalent to so many assignments, and if so, the debts would be payable in order of date: the other was, that the general engagements were not charges, but created a liability, the remedy for which if the feme were sole, would be against the person, but as she was covert, there was no remedy against the person, but the law gave an equitable execution against the property; and in this view the separate estate would be applicable as assets pari passu. Of these two principles the latter is clearly the more correct one (i).

[Earnings.]

[33. The earnings of a feme covert, which under the Married Women's Property Acts belong to her for her separate use, are

[(a) Re Lady Hastings, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 94; and see Re Roper, 39 Ch. D. 482, 489; and as to the effect of an acknowledgment or payment by her, or of her suffering judgment, see Beck v. Pierce, 23 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 316, 322.]

(b) Nantes v. Corrock, 9 Ves. 182.

(c) Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), s. 14.

(d) Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 520, per L. J. Turner.

(e) See Owens v. Dickenson, Cr. & Ph. 48; Gregory v. Lockyer, 6 Mad. 90.

(f) Anon. 18 Ves. 258; and see Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 520.

(g) Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 182. The decision in this case involved a sum of 14*l.* 15*s.* only, so that of course there was no appeal.

(h) Compare Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 494, and Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 182.

(i) See now the observations of the Court in London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lempriere, 4 L. R. P. C. 594.

like her other separate estate, divisible upon her death amongst her creditors pari passu (a).]

Funeral expenses.

34. It has been doubted whether the funeral expenses of the wife should be thrown upon her separate estate (b). [But in a recent case where a married woman exercised a general power of appointment (c), it was held that the husband, who was one of her executors, was entitled to retain out of the appointed property the amount of the expenses of her funeral (d).]

Savings.

35. The savings by a feme covert out of her separate estate form part of it, and are equally at her exclusive disposal, or, according to the language of an early authority, "the sprout is to savour of the root and to go the same way" (e); and the same has been held with respect to savings out of a maintenance allowed on separation (f). Where a fund is settled to the separate use of a married woman and her anticipation is restrained, as the income when actually accrued is at her absolute disposal, any savings from the income, though invested by her in the names of the trustees of the original settlement, will not be subject to the fetter against anticipation which attached to the corpus whence the savings proceeded (g). Savings out of money given to the wife by her husband for household purposes, dress, or the like, belong to the husband (h).

[Savings whether bound by covenant to settle after acquired property.]

[In a recent case where a marriage settlement contained a covenant by the wife in general terms for the settlement of after acquired property, it was held by Kekewich, J., that property acquired out of savings of her separate income under the settlement was bound by the covenant (i); but in a still more recent case, in which the facts were substantially similar, a contrary conclusion was arrived at by Romer, J. (j); and this decision was subsequently followed (k), and has been approved by Lord Davey in the House of Lords (l); but there is no general rule that a gift

[(a) Thompson v. Bennett, 6 Ch. D. 739.]

(b) Gregory v. Lockyer, 6 Mad. 90.

[(c) As to the effect of such appointment, see post, p. 996.]

[(d) Re McMyn, 33 Ch. D. 575.]

(e) Gore v. Knight, 2 Vern. 535; Molony v. Kennedy, 10 Sim. 254; Humphery v. Richards, 2 Jur. N.S. 432; [Fitzgibbon v. Pike, 6 L. R. Ir. 487].

(f) Brooke v. Brooke, 25 Beav. 347; and see Messenger v. Clarke, 5 Exch. 388.

(g) Butler v. Cumpston, 7 L. R. Eq. 16.

(h) Barrack v. M'Culloch, 3 K. & J. 114; see Mews v. Mews, 15 Beav. 539.

[(i) Re Bendy, (1895) 1 Ch. 109.]

[(j) Finlay v. Darling, (1897) 1 Ch. 719, distinguishing Lewis v. Madocks, 8 Ves. 149; 17 Ves. 48; and see Coles v. Coles, (1901) 1 Ch. 711; Kingan v. Matier, (1905) 1 I. R. 272.]

[(k) Re Clutterbuck's Settlement, (1905) 1 Ch. 200, per Buckley, J.]

[(l) Mackenzie v. Allardes, (1905) A. C. (H. L. Sc.) 285, at p. 296.]

from the husband to the wife is to be excluded from the operation of such a covenant (a).]

Power of disposition by will of separate estate.

36. A feme covert has always possessed as incident to her separate estate, a power to dispose of it, whether it be real or personal, not only by act inter vivos, but also by testamentary instrument in the nature of a will (b). [And her after acquired separate property will pass by her will although she had no separate property at the time of making it (c),] and administration with the will annexed, where [no executors are appointed, or where] the executors die in her lifetime, will be granted not to her husband the survivor, but to her residuary legatees (d). And if a feme leave a will and make bequests, the usual course of administration will be observed. Thus, in the payment of her debts, the undisposed of interest will be first applied, then, general legacies, and, if there still be a deficiency, the specific legacies (e); and general legacies will, it is presumed, as in the ordinary case, carry interest, not from the death of the testator, but from the expiration of one year after the death (f). And a general residue will sweep in all arrears of income due at the time of the death (g). [But as the separate property is in the nature of equitable assets distributable pari passu amongst the creditors, the executor has no right of retainer in respect of money due to him (h).]

Separate estate undisposed of survives to the husband.

37. If a feme covert having personal estate settled to her separate use die without disposing of it, the husband will be entitled to it; as to so much thereof as may consist of cash, furniture, or other personal chattels, in his marital right, and as

[(a) Re Ellis' Settlement, (1909) 1 Ch. 618; Re Plumtre's Settlement, (1910) 1 Ch. 609. In the construction of such a covenant the distinction between "property" and "power" is to be observed: Tremayne v. Rashleigh, (1908) 1 Ch. 681, and see Vetch v. Elder, (1908) W.N. 137.]

(b) Fettiplace v. Gorges, 1 Ves. jun. 46; Rich v. Cockell, 9 Ves. 369; Humphery v. Richards, 2 Jur. N.S. 432; Moore v. Morris, 4 Drew. 38; Pride v. Bubb, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 64; Noble v. Willock, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 778; S. C. nom. Willock v. Noble, 7 L. R. H. L. 580; Taylor v. Meads, 4 De G. J. & S. 597; [Bishop v. Wall, 3 Ch. D. 194. But the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, sect. 1, has not the effect of extending the power to property of the feme, married before the commencement of the Act, which is not separate property; Re Cuno, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 12; and see Re Drummond and Davie, (1891) 1 Ch. 524, 534.]

[(c) Charlemont v. Spencer, 11 L. R. Ir. 347, 490; and see the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, s. 1, ante, p. 983.]

(d) Brenchley v. Lynn, 2 Rob. 441; Re Goods of Maria Bailey, 2 Sw. & Tr. 135; and see Re Goods of Pine, 1 L. R. P. & D. 388; Re Goods of M. Fraser, 2 L. R. P. & D. 183.

(e) Norton v. Turvill, 2 P. W. 144.

(f) See Tatham v. Drummond, 2 H. & M. 262; the case of a will executing a special power.

(g) See Tatham v. Drummond, 2 H. & M. 262.

[(h) Thompson v. Bennett, 6 Ch. D. 739].

to so much as may consist of choses in action, upon taking out administration to his wife (a).

Executors take as appointees.

38. If a feme covert [in a case not governed by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, make a will in exercise of a power and] appoint executors, they do not take all the separate property jure representationis, but as appointees under the power to the extent of the fund appointed (b). And therefore if the will do not dispose of [the separate property not subject to the power], the executors take only the [property] disposed of, while the husband takes such chattels as are in possession, and as regards choses in action there must be letters of administration (c). [But if the feme covert being possessed of separate personal estate make a will, not under a power, but by virtue of her right as a married woman to dispose of her separate estate, and appoint executors, and direct them to pay legacies, they are entitled to probate, and all the separate estate vests in them jure representationis (d). And since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, if a married woman make a will in execution of a power, and also appoint executors, they are entitled to probate in general form, and the right of the husband to administration cæterorum is excluded (e). And wherever there is evidence of the existence of separate property probate will be granted to the executor (f),

[Secus, where will not under a power, or made since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

(a) Proudley v. Fielder, 2 M. & K. 57; Molony v. Kennedy, 10 Sim. 254; Bird v. Peagrum, 13 C. B. 639; Johnstone v. Lumb, 15 Sim. 308; Drury v. Scott, 4 Y. & C. 264; Askew v. Rooth, 17 L. R. Eq. 426; Tugman v. Hopkins, 4 Man. & G. 389; Archer v. Lavender, 9 I. R. Eq. 220; [and the law in this respect is not affected by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882; Re Lambert's Estate, 39 Ch. D. 626; and see Surman v. Wharton, (1891) 1 Q. B. 491, 493; Smart v. Tranter, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 587; inf., note (f)].

(b) If a married woman executes by will a power of appointing real estate, the instrument, though in form a will, is in fact a conveyance by means of the appointment exercised, and although an executor is appointed, he takes nothing in his character of personal representative; per Sir James Hannen, Re Goods of Tomlinson, 6 P. D. 209; [and see Re Goods of Hornbuckle, 59 L. J. P. D. 78; 63 L. T. N.S. 464; 39 W. R. 80; and on this principle probate has been refused of a will by a married woman appointing real estate under a power and constituting executors; O'Dwyer v. Geare, 1 Sw. & Tr. 465; Re Goods of Barden, 1 L. R. P. & D. 325; Re Goods of Tomlinson, 6 P. D. 209; but see now the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 1, sub-ss. 1, 2, 3].

(c) Tugman v. Hopkins, 4 Man. & G. 389.

[(d) Brownrigg v. Pike, 7 P. D. 61.]

[(e) Re Goods of Ievers, 13 L. R. Ir. 1; Re Lambert's Estate, 39 Ch. D. 626; q.v. as to the effect of the Probate Rules of March, 1887, and see ante, p. 967.]

[(f) Harding v. Sutton, 59 L. T. N.S. 838; Re Lambert's Estate, 39 Ch. D. 627; and as to the effect of such probate, see ante, p. 967. It may be observed that in Smart v. Tranter, 40 Ch. D. 165; S. C., 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 587, the decision of Kay, J., to the effect that the husband, in order to establish his right to the choses in action there in question, ought to take proceedings in the Probate Division to revoke the probate, proceeded on the footing that the married woman had no separate property, and therefore no power to

although the will deals only with real estate (a). By sect. 23 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, for the purposes of the Act the legal personal representative of any married woman is, in respect of her separate estate, to have the same rights and liabilities and be subject to the same jurisdiction as if she were living; and the husband taking jure mariti is the legal personal representative of the wife within this section, and therefor liable to her debts to the extent to which the property was her separate estate (b).]

Separate property invested in land.

39. If a feme covert, having income settled to her separate use, lay out the savings in a purchase of land in the name of a trustee, [or in her own name,] the land on her dying intestate will descend to the heir, and not be personal estate in equity for the benefit of the administrator (c).

[Appointment not passing property accruing to feme after the termination of the coverture.]

[40. Where property was settled to the separate use of a feme covert for life, with a power of appointment by deed or will, and in default of appointment, in the event of her surviving her husband, for her, her executors, administrators, and assigns, and she exercised the power and survived her husband, investments which had been acquired by her after the determination of the coverture, from the sale and reinvestment of the settled property, and dividends arising after the determination of the coverture were held not to pass by the appointment, inasmuch as they were not separate property within the settlement (d).]

Whether property subject to power of appointment by feme covert becomes assets on exercise of the power.

41. The question whether (independently of the provision in sect. 4 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, to be hereafter noticed) property subject to a power of appointment in a married woman becomes, on her exercising the power, assets available for the satisfaction of her engagements, has been the subject of conflicting opinions. In Johnson v. Gallagher (e), the question was treated by Turner, L.J, as an open one upon the authorities, though a distinction was drawn where the feme covert was guilty of fraud. V. C. Kindersley, on the general question, make a will, whereas in fact, as appears from the report of the case on appeal in 59 L. J. Ch. 363, 364, she had some separate property.]

[(a) Re Goods of Cubbon, 11 P. D. 169.]

[(b) Surman v. Wharton, (1891) 1 Q. B. 491.]

(c) Steward v. Blakeway, 6 L. R. Eq. 479; 4 L. R. Ch. App. 603.

[(d) Mayd v. Field, 3 Ch. D. 587; see ante, pp. 967, 968, 993. Where a married woman has power to appoint by will "during coverture," her appointment by will while covert is good, though she dies discovert: Re Illingworth, (1909) 2 Ch. 297.]

(e) 3 De G. F. & J. 494, 517; see Hughes v. Wells, 9 Hare, 749; Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 165; Blatchford v. Woolley, 2 Dr. & Sm. 204; Hobday v. Peters (No. 2), 28 Beav. 354; Shattock v. Shattock, 2 L. R. Eq. 182; Sugd. on Powers, 8th ed. p. 476.

was of opinion that the appointed funds were not assets (a), but held that if an estate were settled to the separate use of a feme covert for life, with a general power of appointment by will, and in default of appointment to her in fee, and she suppressed her real name, and holding herself out as a feme sole, mortgaged the estate, the mortgagee had a lien upon the estate as against the heir or appointee (b).

[Modern decisions, however, seemed, until very recently, to have established the proposition that on the married woman exercising the power, the property becomes assets available for the discharge of her liabilities in the same manner as her separate estate is available. Thus in a case in the Privy Council], where there was no fraud, and the feme covert had a general power of appointment either by instrument inter vivos or by will, [and there was a gift in default of appointment to her executors or administrators, and she exercised the power by will, it was] held that her general engagements were payable out of the property (c), and the Court went so far as to say, in the broadest terms, that such a settlement amounts in effect to what in common sense, and to common apprehension it would be, viz., an absolute gift to the sole and separate use, and that such a form of settlement on a married woman, without restraint of anticipation, vests in equity the entire corpus in her for all purposes as fully as a similar gift to a man would vest it in him (d). The actual decision of the case in which this general doctrine was laid down was clearly supportable on the ground that there had been an imperfect execution of the power, and there being valuable consideration, equity would supply the defect; and the Court did not mean what the generality of the expressions would imply, that where the power is not executed the property is available for the feme covert's engagements, for the Court expressly approved the doctrine laid down by Sir G. Turner, that where there is a limitation over in default of appointment, and the power has not been exercised, the engagements of the married woman cannot prevail against the parties entitled in default of appointment (e). [In a later case (f), where personal property

(a) Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 165; Blatchford v. Woolley, 2 Dr. & Sm. 204.

(b) Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 363; and see Hobday v. Peters, (No. 2), 28 Beav. 354; [Barrow v. Manning, W. N. 1878, p. 122; Re McIntyre's Trust, 21 L. R. Ir. 42].

(c) London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 572, and see Brewer v. Swirles, 2 Sm. & G. 219.

(d) London Chartered Bank of Australia v. Lemprière, 4 L. R. P. C. 595.

(e) S. C., 592.

[(f) Mayd v. Field, 3 Ch. D. 587; see Skinner v. Todd, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 198.]

was settled upon such trusts as a feme covert should during coverture by deed or will appoint, and, subject thereto, for her separate use for life, and if she survived her husband (an event which happened) for her absolutely, and the feme appointed the property by will, Sir G. Jessel, M.R., held that the property was bound by her general engagements. Again, where property was settled on a feme covert for life for her separate use with a general power of appointing by will, with a gift over in default of appointment, V. C. Hall held that the property appointed by her will was assets for the payment of her debts in the same manner as if it had belonged to her for her separate use (a), and this decision has since been acted upon (b).

[Re Roper.] However, in a more recent case, in which the authorities were fully examined by Kay, J., a conclusion at variance with the previous decisions was arrived at, and it was held that the property appointed by the will of the feme covert was not liable to satisfy her obligations incurred before the Act of 1882, and that the exercise of the power did not make the appointed property available as assets to answer such obligations (c). The grounds upon which this decision was based were that as, according to the principle of Pike v. Fitzgibbon (d), the engagement of a married woman could only bind separate estate to which she was entitled at the time when the engagement was entered into, it followed that property which did not become part of the estate of the feme until the appointment took effect upon her death, could not be resorted to to answer an antecedent engagement, and that the previous decisions, including that in the Privy Council already referred to, were based on the exploded doctrine of Norton v. Turvill (e), that the bond of a married woman operated as an appointment. The law, therefore, upon this subject remains at the present time in a somewhat unsettled condition (f).

[(a) Re Harvey's Estate, 13 Ch. D. 216, and the V. C. observed that it might perhaps, even in the case of a man, be said to be a strong and arbitrary thing to decide that property which was not in the first instance his own, and which he could only appoint, was assets for the payment of his debts. But as to the decision in this case, see the observations by L. J. Cotton in Pike v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 466.]

[(b) Hodgson v. Williamson, 15 Ch. D. 87; Hodges v. Hodges, 20 Ch. D. 749; and see Re De Burgh Lawson, 41 Ch. D. 568.]

[(c) Re Roper, 39 Ch. D. 482.]

[(d) 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 454, see ante, pp. 982, 988.]

[(e) 2 P. W. 144, see ante, pp. 991, 992.]

[(f) In the case of Re De Burgh Lawson, 41 Ch. D. 568, Re Roper was relied on as an authority before Stirling, J., and it was there held that under the will of a married woman, directing her executors to pay her

42. Now by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, sect. 4, it is provided that "the execution of a general power by will by a married woman shall have the effect of making the property appointed liable for her debts and other liabilities in the same manner as her separate estate is made liable under this Act." [Married Women's Property Act, 1882, sect. 4.]

Independently of the Act of 1893 (a), already referred to, and notwithstanding the decision in Palliser v. Gurney (b), it was held that under this section property appointed by a feme covert in execution of a general power is liable for her debts and engagements, although she had no free separate property at the time when she contracted them (c); but this decision has been overruled, and where a married woman, having a general power of appointment over property, entered into a covenant in reference to such property, and afterwards by her will exercised the power, and thus, under the above section, made the property liable for her debts and other liabilities, it was held that, as she had no separate property in respect of which she could be supposed to have contracted at the time when she entered into the covenant, it did not constitute a contract with respect to her separate property, so as to render her estate liable for damages for breach of it (d); and where the feme covert has obtained a protection order under sect. 21 of the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857 (e), the appointed property will be liable for her subsequent debts and liabilities, although incurred previously to the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (f). [Effect of protection order.]

43. Where a married woman was tenant for life for her separate use without power of anticipation, and the trustees were "at her direction to direct repairs and do all such acts as should be proper for that purpose," and the tenant for life herself ordered the repairs, the Court gave effect to the particular engagement out of the particular power to direct repairs, and treated the power as being in effect exercised, and directed the trustees to raise the amount required for the repairs which had [Particular power and particular engagement.]

"debts," and appointing property to the persons named as executors, the principle of Re Tanqueray-Willaume and Landau (20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465) applied, so that the so-called debts were a charge upon the appointed property, and his lordship based his judgment on the fact that there were, as found by the chief clerk's certificate, debts within the meaning of the direction in the will.]

[(a) See ante, p. 983.]

[(b) 19 L. R. Q. B. D. 519; ante, p. 984, note (a).]

[(c) Re Ann, (1894) 1 Ch. 549; Re Hughes, (1898) 1 Ch. 529, 534.]

[(d) Re Fieldwick, (1909) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

[(e) 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85.]

(f) Re Hughes, (1898) 1 Ch. 529, distinguishing Re Roper, 39 Ch. D. 482, ante, p. 998.]

been executed, and to pay the amount to the builder employed by the tenant for life (a).]

Arrears of separate estate.

44. If the husband receive the wife's separate income, it is clear that neither the wife nor those entitled under her can claim against the husband or his estate, or any one standing in his place (b), more than one year's arrears (c), but it is still sub judice whether the wife or representative can claim even so much. Lord Macclesfield (d), Lord Talbot (e), Lord Loughborough (f), Sir W. Grant (g), and Lord Chancellor Brady (h), held that the wife or her representative could claim nothing. On the other hand, in the judgment of Sir T. Sewell (i), Lord Camden (j), Lord King (k), Lord Hardwicke (l), Lord Eldon (m), Sir J. Leach (n), Sir J. Stuart (o), Lord St. Leonards (p), Smith M.R., in Ireland (q), and Dobbs, J., in the Landed Estate Court (r), the husband's estate is liable to an account for one year (s). Where there is such a conflict of authority it is hard to say which way the balance inclines. The better opinion, independently of authority, is thought to be that the wife can recover nothing from the husband's estate. Should the husband die insolvent, could she recover anything from the trustees on the ground of misapplication? And if the payment by the trustees to the husband was a proper one, why should the amount be recoverable from the estate of the husband? The wife's assent must be deemed to continue until revoked by something either expressed or implied.

[(a) Skinner v. Todd, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 198.]

(b) Payne v. Little, 26 Beav. 1.

[(c) See Alexander v. Barnhill, 21 L. R. Ir. 511, 516.]

(d) Powell v. Hankey, 2 P. W. 82.

(e) Fowler v. Fowler, 3 P. W. 353. (N.B.—A case of pin-money.)

(f) Squire v. Dean, 4 B. C. C. 325; Smith v. Camelford, 2 Ves. jun. 716.

(g) Dalbiac v. Dalbiac, 16 Ves. 126.

(h) Arthur v. Arthur, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 511.

(i) Burdon v. Burdon, 2 Mad. 286, note.

(j) Ib. p. 287, note.

(k) Countess of Warwick v. Edwards, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 140. In Thomas v. Bennet, 2 P. W. 341, his Lordship probably held only that ten years' arrears could not be given.

(l) Townshend v. Windham, 2 Ves. sen. 7; Peacock v. Monk, 2 Ves. sen. 190; Aston v. Aston, 1 Ves. sen. 267.

(m) Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 225; Brodie v. Barrie, 2 V. & B. 36.

(n) Thrupp v. Harman, 3 M. & K. 513.

(o) Lea v. Grundy, 1 Jur. N.S. 953.

(p) Property as administered by D. P., p. 169.

(q) Corbally v. Grainger, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 173; Mackey v. Maturin, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 150.

(r) Re Kirwan, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 553.

(s) In Howard v. Digby, 2 Cl. & Fin. 643, 665, Lord Brougham thought that in separate use, as distinguished from pin-money, the wife or her representatives could recover the whole arrears, but this is clearly untenable; see Arthur v. Arthur, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 513. In the same case the V.C. of England, when the cause was before him, hesitated whether the general rule gave an account for a year or none at all; see Digby v. Howard, 4 Sim. 601.

Wife's acquiescence in receipt of her separate income by husband presumed.

45. The principle upon which the relief against the husband's estate is thus denied is, that the Court presumes the acquiescence of the wife in the husband's receipt de anno in annum (a). If, therefore, the wife did not in fact consent to the husband's receipt, but remonstrated, and required that the separate income should be paid to herself, the Court will carry back the account of the arrears to the time of the wife's assertion of her claim (b). But the Court requires very clear evidence that the demand was seriously pressed by the wife, and will not charge the husband's estate from any idle complaints against his receipt which the wife may have occasionally made (c). There can be no acquiescence by the wife, and, therefore, no waiver of her rights where the income has not actually come to the hands of the husband, as where it is still in the hands of a receiver (d).

Case of feme covert being non compos.

46. As the Court proceeds upon the notion of the wife's acquiescence, the question arises where she is non compos, and so incapable of waiving her right, whether the husband's estate shall not be liable for the entire arrears; and it would seem that in such a case the husband's estate must account for the whole, but will be entitled to an allowance for payments made for the wife's benefit, and which ought properly to have fallen on her separate estate (e).

Case of pin-money whether an exception.

47. In Howard v. Digby (f), a woman's pin-money was distinguished from ordinary separate use, and it was held as to pin-money that the wife's representative (g) could make no claim to any arrears. The ground upon which the House proceeded was that pin-money was for the personal use and ornament of the wife, and the husband had a right to see the fund properly applied, and that if the husband himself found the necessaries for which the pin-money was intended, the wife or her representative could have no claim against the husband's estate when the requirements for her personal use and ornament had

(a) Caton v. Rideout, 2 H. & Tw. 41; 1 M. & G. 599; [see Dixon v. Dixon, 9 Ch. D. 587; Re Lulham, 53 L. J. N.S. Ch. 928; Edward v. Cheyne, 13 App. Cas. 385, 398; Re Flamank, 40 Ch. D. 461; Re Blake, 37 W. R. 441; 60 L. T. N.S. 663; Hale v. Sheldrake, 60 L. T. N.S. 292; Alexander v. Barnhill, 21 L. R. Ir. 511; Re Dixon, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 561].

(b) Ridout v. Lewis, 1 Atk. 269; Moore v. Moore, 1 Atk. 272; see Moore v. Earl of Scarborough, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 156; Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 583; [Dixon v. Dixon, 9 Ch. D. 587].

(c) Thrupp v. Harman, 3 M. & K. 512; Corbally v. Grainger, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 173.

(d) Foss v. Foss, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 215.

(e) Attorney-General v. Parnther, 3 B. C. C. 441; 4 B. C. C. 409; Howard v. Digby, 2 Cl. & Fin. 671, 673.

(f) 2 Cl. & Fin. 634; 4 Sim. 588.

(g) Lord Brougham considered that the wife herself might in her lifetime have recovered one year's arrears; see 2 Cl. & Fin. 643, 653, 659.

ceased (a). Lord St Leonards has justly questioned these principles (b), and it remains to be seen whether any distinction between pin-money and separate use generally can be maintained.

Gift of corpus to husband not presumed.

48. As regards the corpus of the separate estate, no presumption arises in favour of a husband who has received it. He is primâ facie a trustee for his wife, and a gift from her to him will not be inferred without clear evidence [leading to the conclusion that she deliberately gave the property to him (c). Thus, where a legacy bequeathed to the separate use of a wife was paid by a banker's draft payable to her order, and she indorsed the draft and handed it over to her husband, who paid it into his own bank, and had the amount carried over to a deposit account in his name, it was held that this was not sufficient to deprive the wife of her right (d). So where shares in a company, which were appropriated to a married woman as part of her share of a residue bequeathed to her for her separate use, were transferred into the name of the husband, and he made an entry in his ledger that the shares were part of his wife's portion of the testator's estate, it was held that the separate use of the wife was not destroyed (e); and the husband's estate was held liable for the proceeds of new shares which had been allotted in respect of old shares, and had been sold by him (f); and it has been regarded as a material circumstance that the wife has concurred in the transfer to the husband without having previously had any independent advice (g).] But the employment of the money by the husband in his business and for his family expenditure with the knowledge and assent of his wife, will, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, amount to a gift by her (h). [And where a joint account was opened at a bank in the names of the husband and wife, and each of them had power to draw on the account, and each of them had also a separate account at other bankers, and the moneys credited to the joint account were chiefly derived from the wife's separate income, it was held that the moneys paid in had ceased to be part of the separate estate of the wife (i).

(a) See too Aston v. Aston, 1 Ves. sen. 267; Fowler v. Fowler, 3 P. W. 355; Barrack v. M'Culloch, 3 K. & J. 110.

(b) Law of Property as administered by D. P., p. 162; [and see Vaizey on Settlements, pp. 788, et seq.].

(c) Rich v. Cockell, 9 Ves. 369; [Re Flamank, 40 Ch. D. 461; Re Blake, 37 W. R. 441; 60 L. T. N.S. 663; and see Wassell v. Leggatt, (1896) 1 Ch. 554].

[(d) Green v. Carlill, 4 Ch. D. 882.]

[(e) Re Curtis, W. N. 1885, p. 29; 52 L. T. N.S. 244.]

[(f) Re Curtis (No. 2), W. N. 1885, p. 55.]

[(g) Re Flamank, 40 Ch. D. 461; Re Blake, 37 W. R. 441; 60 L. T. N.S. 663.]

(h) Gardner v. Gardner, 1 Giff. 126.

[(i) Re Young, 28 Ch. D. 705.]

[Purchase of land out of wife's income.]

Independently of the considerations above referred to, there is no distinction in principle between the presumption of a resulting trust in favour of the wife which arises when her income has been applied to a purchase in her husband's name, and that which arises when her capital has been so applied; and accordingly a husband was held to be a trustee for his wife of land which had been bought out of moneys standing to a joint banking account, but derived from the wife's income, and had been conveyed to him (a).]

Feme not bound to contribute to household expenses.

49. Occasionally a feme covert has a large income from property settled to her separate use, and being of penurious habits accumulates the whole, and yet looks to her much poorer husband for her support. This is a hard case, but it is said that the Court cannot advert to the question whether she accumulates or not (b).

[Trespass on wife's separate property.]

[50. Where the house in which the wife resides is settled to her separate use, and the husband has been guilty of improper conduct, and claims to use the house not for the purpose of consorting with his wife, but for his own purposes, the Court will grant an injunction to restrain him from entering the house (c).

And a married woman, in the sole occupation of a house bought out of her own earnings, can sue a stranger for a trespass in having entered the house without her leave, even though the entry was made under the authority of her husband (d).]

Separate use may extend to corpus or to income beyond coverture.

51. It has never been questioned that if personal estate be given to a feme covert for her separate use, her power of disposition extends over the corpus; and so, if the income of property be limited to a feme covert for her life, either in possession or reversion, for her separate use, or if the absolute interest be given to her in reversion for her separate use, if it appear that the separate use applies not only to the income accruing during the coverture, but to the life estate, or absolute reversionary interest, the feme may aliene the whole life estate, or absolute reversionary interest (e). The question in these

[(a) Mercier v. Mercier, (1903) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 98.]

(b) Re Smith's Trusts, W. N. 1867, p. 283.

[(c) Symonds v. Hallett, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 346; Green v. Green, 5 Hare, 400, n.; Wood v. Wood, 19 W. R. 1049; and see Gaynor v. Gaynor, (1901) 1 I. R. 217.]

[(d) Weldon v. De Bathe, 14 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 339; and see Moore v. Robinson, 48 L. J. N.S. Q. B. 156. So where separate goods of the wife were stolen from the husband's house, in which she was residing, it was not sufficient in the indictment to lay them as the property of the husband: Rex v. Murray, (1906) 2 K. B. (C.C.R.) 385.]

(e) Sturgis v. Corp, 13 Ves. 190; Stead v. Nelson, 2 Beav. 245; Hanchett v. Briscoe, 22 Beav. 503; Stamford, Spalding and Boston Bank v. Ball, 10 W. R. 196; 4 De G. F. & J. 310; Dudley v. Tanner, W. N. 1873, p. 75.

cases is one of construction only, and therefore where the fund was settled upon trust for a feme covert "absolutely," and "during her life for her separate use," her power was held not to extend beyond the life estate (a). But if personalty had been limited to the separate use upon a mere contingency (as on the insolvency of the husband, an event which had not yet occurred), it seems that the feme covert could not, pending the contingency, have aliened or otherwise disposed of her possible interest (b). [But since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, as to cases falling within that Act, a married woman can dispose of a contingent interest (c); and since the Act a life interest to the separate use of a married woman will coalesce with a limitation over to her executors, administrators, and assigns (d).]

Separate use in reference to real estate.

52. As regards realty it was formerly held that the feme covert could not by virtue of the separate use, if there were no express power, dispose of the freehold, at least not for any larger interest than during her life (e), for between real and personal estate it was said there was this distinction, that on the death of the feme in her husband's lifetime, the absolute interest in the personal estate would devolve on the husband, but the inheritance of the real estate would descend upon the heir, who was not to be disinherited but in some formal mode. However, the favour shown anciently to the heir has in later times been disregarded; and at the present day, if lands be conveyed to a trustee and his heirs upon trust as to the fee simple for a feme covert "for her separate use," she may deal with the fee as if she were a feme sole. It is simply a question of intention. A married woman may have limited to her a power of disposition over a fee simple estate, and if it appear clearly that the separate use was meant to extend to the fee, she ought upon principle to be able to deal with the absolute property by virtue of the separate use, whether by act inter vivos, or by testamentary instrument, as fully as she might in the case of personal estate (f). And so

(a) Hanchett v. Briscoe, 22 Beav. 496; Crosby v. Church, 3 Beav. 485; [Shute v. Hogge, 58 L. T. N.S. 546; but see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75].

(b) Mara v. Manning, 2 Jon. & Lat. 311; Bestall v. Bunbury, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 549; S. C. Ib. 349; Keays v. Lane, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 1; and see Luther v. Bianconi, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 194; [Re Shakespear, 30 Ch. D. 169].

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, ss. 1, 2, 5.]

[(d) Re Davenport, (1895) 1 Ch. 361.]

(e) Churchill v. Dibben, 2 Lord Kenyon's Rep. 2nd Part, 68, p. 84; case cited in Peacock v. Monk, 2 Ves. 192; and see 2 Rop. Husb. & Wife, 182, 2nd ed.; 1 Sand. on Uses, 345, 4th ed.; Lechmere v. Brotheridge, 32 Beav. 353.

(f) Stead v. Nelson, 2 Beav. 245; Wainwright v. Hardisty, Ib. 363; Baggett v. Meux, 1 Coll. 138; 1 Ph. 627, see p. 628; Major v. Lansley, 2 R. & M. 355; [Stogdon v. Lee, (1891) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 661]. But see Newcomen v. Hassard, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 274; Harris v. Mott, 14 Beav. 169; Moore v. Morris, 4 Drew. 38.

it has been decided both in Ireland and England (a). But the feme covert has not been regarded as a feme sole in respect of the fee simple, unless it clearly appeared from the instrument itself that the fee simple, and not the mere life estate, was limited to the separate use (b).

[The mere renunciation by an intended husband of his marital rights in his wife's realty is not sufficient to clothe her with a testamentary power, or to constitute a valid declaration of trust of the fee (c).

Under the Act of 1882 (d), the whole interest in real estate given to a married woman belongs to her as her separate estate, and can be disposed of by her accordingly (e).

[Feme covert can bar an equitable entail.]

53. If a married woman be equitable tenant in tail in possession of real estate, which is settled to her separate use, she can, under the provisions of the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833, bar the entail, with the concurrence of her husband (f), and the husband's power of concurring will not be affected by his bankruptcy (g); and in cases falling within the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, the concurrence of the husband is unnecessary (h).]

Feme covert as protector.

54. If a legal estate be limited to a married woman for her life for her sole and separate use, without the interposition of a trustee, with remainder in tail, the wife is the sole protector of the settlement, and the husband's consent in barring the entail is not necessary (i); [and by the Married Women's Property Act (j), 1907, sect. 3, it is enacted that when a married woman, if single, would be protector of a settlement in respect of a prior

(a) Adams v. Gamble, 11 Ir. Ch. Rep. 269; 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 102; Bestall v. Bunbury, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 549; Hall v. Waterhouse, 6 N. R. 20; Atchison v. Lemann, 23 L. T. 302; Pride v. Bubb, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 64; [Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 288;] Re Smallman, 8 I. R. Eq. 249; Taylor v. Meads, 5 N. R. 348; S. C., 4 De G. J. & S. 597; [Bates v. Kesterton, (1896) 1 Ch. 159]. See Haymes v. Cooper, 33 Beav. 431; Bonser v. Bradshaw, 4 Giff. 260; Wilson v. Round, 4 Giff. 416; and see also Allen v. Walker, 5 L. R. Ex. 187.

(b) Troutbeck v. Boughey, 2 L. R. Eq. 534.

[(c) Dye v. Dye, 13 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 147. But see Rippon v. Dawding, Amb. 565, in which case, however, the 7th section of the Statute of Frauds was not referred to; and see the observations of L. J. Turner in Field v. Moore, 7 De G. M. & G. 718, 719.]

[(d) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(e) As to the cases to which the Act applies, see ante, pp. 965, et seq.]

[(f) 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 74, ss. 15, 40.]

[(g) Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 288.]

[(h) See Re Drummond and Davie's Contract, (1891) 1 Ch. 524, where it was held that the concurrence of the husband was not necessary to a deed by the feme (married after the Act of 1882) converting a base fee (created under a disentailing assurance executed by her when a spinster) into a fee simple absolute.]

(i) Kerr v. Brown, Johns. 138; [and see 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75].

[(j) 7 Edw. 7. c. 18.]

estate, which by the Act of 1882 (a) is made her separate property, then she alone shall, in respect of that estate, be the protector. This enactment applies to disentailing assurances and surrenders made after 31st December, 1882, and as well before as after the Act of 1907.

[Exception of settlements from the operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

55. A very important exception from the operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, is contained in sect. 19, which controls the general powers of disposition conferred by the previous sections by providing that "nothing in this Act contained shall interfere with or affect (b) any settlement or agreement for a settlement, made or to be made, whether before or after marriage, respecting the property of any married woman." The construction of this enactment is attended with great difficulty; but the effect of it, so far as can be gathered from the decided cases, is that the operation of a settlement is to be determined just as it would have been under the pre-existing law, so that no one who under that law could have taken any interest is to be deprived thereof (c). The true construction of the section, so far as it affects property of the married woman falling within the operation of sect. 5 (d) has been said by Cotton, L.J., to be that "it prevents the previous enactment" (i.e. sect. 5) "from interfering with any settlement which would have bound the property if the Act had not passed" (e); and this is equally applicable to property of the feme within sect. 2 (f). This construction has led to somewhat remarkable results. Thus where a settlement contained a covenant for settlement of after-acquired property belonging to the wife, such covenant though entered into by the husband only, was held to bind all her property as fully as it would if the Act had never been passed (g), and she was obliged to bring into settlement property to which she would otherwise have been entitled as her separate property under the provisions of the Act. So an agreement, to which the future husband was a party, for settlement on marriage of an infant feme's legacy, not given to her for her separate use, was

[(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(b) I.e. "invalidate" or "render inoperative"; Re Lumley, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 690, per Lindley, L.J., referring to Re Armstrong, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 264.]

[(c) Re Onslow, 39 Ch. D. 622, 625, per Stirling, J.]

[(d) See ante, p. 965.]

[(e) Hancock v. Hancock, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 78, 86.]

[(f) Stevens v. Trevor-Garrick, (1893) 2 Ch. 307.]

[(g) Re Whitaker, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 227; Hancock v. Hancock, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 78; Stevens v. Trevor-Garrick, (1893) 2 Ch. 307; and see Re Stonor's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 195; Re Skelton, 7 Times L. R. 638.]

by virtue of the marital right of the husband, binding on the fund, and incapable of repudiation by her (a).

[Married Women's Property Act, 1907.]

Now by the Married Women's Property Act, 1907 (b), it is enacted, that notwithstanding section 19 of the Act of 1882, a settlement or agreement for a settlement made after 1st January, 1908, by the husband, or intended husband, before or after marriage, respecting the property of the wife, shall not be valid unless executed by her, if she is of age, or confirmed by her, after twenty-one. If she dies an infant, any covenant or disposition by her husband in the settlement or agreement shall bind or pass any interest in any property of hers to which he may become entitled on her death, and which he could have bound or disposed of if the Act had not been passed.

[Interference affecting settlement.]

When it has once been ascertained that a married woman takes an interest under a settlement, the incidents annexed by the Act of 1882 to the property of married women attach to the interest so taken by her, and on her becoming discovert, and then marrying again, she will hold such interest as her separate property in accordance with the Act (c); and an alienation, whether voluntary or involuntary, by the married woman is not an interference with or an act affecting the settlement, even though such an alienation would not have been practicable before the Act. Thus, where the feme carried on a trade separately from her husband and became bankrupt, her separate life interest under a settlement passed to her trustee in bankruptcy under sect. 1, sub-sect. 5 of the Act (d).]

Clause restraining anticipation.

56. It still remains to treat of restraint of anticipation.

The clause against the feme's anticipation is of comparatively modern growth. In Hulme v. Tenant (e) it was held that a limitation to the separate use simply did not prevent the feme from aliening. In Pybus v. Smith (f) great pains had been taken in framing the separate use, and the income was made payable as the feme should by writing under her proper hand from time to time appoint, but it was again decided that the feme could even then dispose of her interest. After this Lord Thurlow happened to be nominated a trustee of Miss

[(a) Buckland v. Buckland, (1900) 2 Ch. 534.]

[(b) 7 Edw. 7. c. 18, sect. 2. Nothing in the section is to invalidate any settlement or agreement for a settlement made under the Infants Settlement Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 43), see ante p. 25.]

[(c) Re Onslow, 39 Ch. D. 622, 625.]

[(d) Re Armstrong, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 264; and see Re Lumley, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 690.]

(e) 1 B. C. C. 16.

(f) 3 B. C. C. 340.

Watson's settlement, and he directed the insertion of the words "and not by anticipation" (a), from which time this has been the usual formulary, and the effect of it for the purpose of excluding the power of disposition has never been questioned.

No particular form of words required to restrain anticipation.

57. But although these words are now almost universally employed they are not absolutely indispensable, for if the intention to restrain anticipation can be clearly collected from the whole instrument, it is sufficient (b); as if there be a direction to pay the income to such persons as the feme shall after it has become due appoint (c), or for her sole separate and inalienable use (d); [or her receipt to the trustees is to be given after the rents shall become due from time to time (e).] But if the limitation be merely to the sole and separate use, or to pay from time to time upon her receipt under her own proper hand (f), or if the trust be to pay her upon her personal appearance (g), the feme is left at liberty to part with her interest, for such expressions are, as Lord Eldon observed, "only an unfolding of all that is implied in the gift to the separate use" (h). Where a testator directs a daughter's share of his estate to be "so settled that she may enjoy the income during her life for her separate use," the trust is executory, and the Court will insert a clause against anticipation (i); and if upon marriage a fund be articled to be vested in the wife and a co-trustee in trust for herself, but not to be disposed of without the consent of both parties, the wife cannot anticipate without the consent of the co-trustee (j).

[Since the Act of 1882 a restraint on anticipation may be

(a) See Jackson v. Hobhouse, 2 Mer. 487; Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 221.

(b) Re Ross's Trust, 1 Sim. N.S. 199; Doolan v. Blake, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 340; and cases cited Ib.; [and see Re Lumley, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 690, where it was held that the fact that the gift to the married woman was "without impeachment of waste" was not inconsistent with the existence of a restraint on anticipation.]

(c) Field v. Evans, 15 Sim. 375; Baker v. Bradley, 7 De G. M. & G. 597; Estate of H. H. Molyneux, 6 I. R. Eq. 411.

(d) D'Oechsner v. Scott, 24 Beav. 239; Spring v. Pride, 10 Jur. N.S. 876; S. C., 4 De G. J. & S. 395.

[(e) Re Smith; Chapman v. Wood, 51 L. T. N.S. 501.]

(f) Ellis v. Atkinson, 3 B. C. C. 565; Clarke v. Pistor, cited Ib. 568; Brown v. Like, 14 Ves. 302; Acton v. White, 1 S. & S. 429; Witts v. Dawkins, 12 Ves. 501; Wagstaff v. Smith, 9 Ves. 520; Sturgis v. Corp, 13 Ves. 190; and see Scott v. Davis, 4 M. & Cr. 87; Hovey v. Blakeman, cited 9 Ves. 524.

(g) Re Ross's Trust, 1 Sim. N.S. 196.

(h) Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 222.

(i) Re Dunnill's Trusts, 6 I. R. Eq. 322.

(j) Hastie v. Hastie, 2 Ch. D. (C.A.) 304. [The existence of the restraint is not sufficient to exclude the life interest from consideration in reference to the right to sue in formâ pauperis; Re Atkin's Trusts, (1909) 1 Ch. 471, where the feme had an income of £52 a year subject to restraint.]

attached to the property of a married woman although the words "separate use," or their equivalent, are not used, an omission which would have been fatal before the Act (a).

58. Although the efficacy of the restraint was not questioned, doubts were entertained as to the point of time at which it ceased to attach to the income, and in one case it was held by the Court of Appeal that the restraint continued until the income came into the hands of the feme (b), but it has now been decided by the House of Lords that the restraint ceases to attach so soon as the income becomes due, and payable to the feme (c). Accordingly, a judgment recovered against a married woman may be enforced against arrears of income due to her at the date of the judgment (d), but not as to arrears which have accrued due subsequently, and were therefore subject to the restraint when the judgment was given (e).] [Restraint on anticipation when ceasing to attach.]

59. A widow may, after her husband's death (f), and a feme sole may, before marriage (g), dispose absolutely of a gift limited to her separate use, though coupled with words purporting to restrain her power of anticipation; and the principle is briefly this—that wherever a person possessing an interest, however remote a possibility, is sui juris, that person cannot be prevented by any intention of the donor from exercising the ordinary rights of proprietorship. The fund may be limited "in trust for the separate use of the feme," or, "in trust for her, and in the event of her marriage, for her separate use," or "in trust for her separate use in the event of her marriage," without the gift of any estate independently of that contingency; but in all these cases the interest, whether vested or contingent, is in favour of one who is now sui juris, and who therefore cannot be restrained from disposing of property to which she either now is, or may eventually become entitled. Effect before marriage of the clause against anticipation.

60. It was formerly held by Sir L. Shadwell, that while the The clause against anticipation will operate upon the marriage.

[(a) Re Lumley, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 690, referring to Stogdon v. Lee, (1891) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 661; and see Re Lavender's Policy, (1898) 1 I. R. (C.A.) 175.]

[(b) Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, (1894) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 559.]

[(c) Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, (1896) A. C. 174.]

[(d) Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, ubi sup.]

[(e) Whiteley v. Edwards, (1896) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 48; approved, Bolitho & Co. v. Gridley, (1905) A. C. (H.L.) 98; Re Lumley, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 690; 65 L. J. Ch. 837.]

(f) Jones v. Salter, 2 R. & M. 208.

(g) Woodmeston v. Walker, 2 R. & M. 197; Brown v. Pocock, Ib. 210; S. C., 2 M. & K. 189; and see Massey v. Parker, 2 M. & K. 174. [In Re Wood, 61 L. T. N.S. 197, a covenant for the settlement of reversionary property entered into by a feme sole was held to remove the restraint on anticipation.]

separate use took effect upon marriage (a), a general clause against anticipation not made with reference to the marriage was nugatory (b). Lord Langdale, with more consistency, held that in the absence of alienation during discoverture, both the separate use and also the clause against anticipation came into operation upon marriage (c). And it was so finally decided by Lord Cottenham on appeal (d).

Brown v. Bamford.

61. It was also held in a case (e) before Sir L. Shadwell, that if a fund were vested in trustees upon trust to pay the proceeds to such persons and for such purposes as a feme covert should, when and as they became due, appoint, but so as not to charge or anticipate the same, and in default of appointment to pay the same into the hands of the feme for her separate use (without the addition of any words to restrain her power of anticipation), if the feme covert assigned the life estate limited to her in default of appointment, it destroyed the power, and the restriction upon the anticipation annexed to it was nugatory. Such a doctrine would have led to great inconvenience, as the precedents of the most approved conveyancers were known to have been frequently expressed in that form, and the decision, after failing to secure the assent of other judges (f), was ultimately reversed on appeal (g). The substantial intention was taken to be, that the payment into her hands, as well as the power to appoint, was not to operate until the annual proceeds had become actually due.

[Release of power of appointment.]

[62. Where property was held in trust for a married woman for life for her separate use, without power of anticipation, and after her death for such persons as she should by will appoint, it was held by the Court of Appeal in Ireland, reversing the decision of the judge of first instance, that she could, while under coverture, extinguish the power (h); and so under section 52 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (i), where the power was to appoint amongst her children (j).

[Gift over on anticipating income.]

63. Where by a will a life interest was given to a married woman

(a) Davies v. Thornycroft, 6 Sim. 420.
(b) Brown v. Pocock, 5 Sim. 663; Johnson v. Freeth, 6 Sim. 423 n.
(c) Tullett v. Armstrong, 1 Beav. 1.
(d) S. C., 4 M. & Cr. 390; and see Sanger v. Sanger, 11 L. R. Eq. 470.
(e) Brown v. Bamford, 11 Sim. 127.
(f) Moore v. Moore, 1 Coll. 54; Harrop v. Howard, 3 Hare, 624; Harnett v. Macdougall, 8 Beav. 187.
(g) 1 Ph. 620. The case of Medley v. Horton, 14 Sim. 222, was decided before the decision of the Vice-Chancellor in Brown v. Bamford had been overruled, and cannot be considered as law.
[(h) Heath v. Wickham, 5 L. R. Ir. 285; 3 L. R. Ir. 376.]
[(i) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]
[(j) Re Chisholm's Settlement, (1901) 2 Ch. 82.]

with a restraint on anticipation, and a gift over on her decease or on her anticipating the income, and she afterwards executed an assignment by way of mortgage, it was held that the assignment being wholly inoperative, no forfeiture had taken place, and that the word "anticipating" could not be read as equivalent to attempting to anticipate (a).]

Absolute gift followed by restraint of anticipation.

64. Where there is an absolute gift of bank annuities—i.e. of a perpetual annuity redeemable by the State, to a married woman followed by a restraint against anticipation, she cannot aliene during coverture (b); and generally, where property is given absolutely to a married woman, but clogged with a clause restraining anticipation, [and an intention is shown by the instrument giving the property that the income only is to be paid to her,] she cannot aliene either income or corpus during the coverture (c). [But where a testatrix gave the proceeds of a mixed fund of realty and personalty to trustees upon trust to invest the residue after payment of debts, funeral and testamentary expenses, and legacies, in specified securities, and to pay the income to A. for life, and after her death (which occurred in the testatrix's lifetime) to divide and pay the said residue between B. and C., one of whom was a married woman, and there was a declaration that every gift to a married woman was to be for her separate use without power of anticipation, V. C. Bacon drew a distinction between a gift of a sum of money and of a fund producing income, and held that in that case the gift was equivalent to a gift of a sum of money, and that the restraint against anticipation would not prevent the married woman from receiving her share of the residue (d).

But this distinction has been disapproved of, and cannot be supported upon principle; and the true test, as to whether a clause against anticipation is effectual to prevent a married woman from requiring the payment or transfer of property given absolutely to her subject to such a restraint, is whether upon

[(a) Re Wormald, 43 Ch. D. 630. The Court in ordering payment of dividends to a woman so restrained from anticipation, added a direction that they were not to be paid to any attorney "except upon an affidavit or statutory declaration by such attorney that he receives them on her behalf, and for her use, and not for any other person to whom she has assigned or purported to assign them"; Stewart v. Fletcher, 38 Ch. D. 627.]

(b) Re Ellis' Trusts, 17 L. R. Eq. 409; [Re Bown, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 411; Re Currey, 32 Ch. D. 361].

(c) Re Ellis' Trusts, 17 L. R. Eq. 412; [Re Benton, 19 Ch. D. 277; Re Sarel, 4 N. R. 321; Re Clarke's Trusts, 21 Ch. D. 748; Re Bown, ubi sup.; Re Grey's Settlements, 34 Ch. D. 85; 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 712].

[(d) Re Croughton's Trusts, 8 Ch. D. 460; Re Clarke's Trusts, 21 Ch. D. 748; Re Taber, 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 721; Re Coombes, W. N. 1883, p. 169.]

the construction of the whole document the intention is or is not shown that the trustees should retain the property and pay the income to the married woman (a). And the mere circumstance that the property given absolutely to the married woman is subject to a particular estate, is not a sufficient ground for confining the restraint to the continuance of that estate (b). But if the interest of the married woman is reversionary, a clause against anticipation will in general be an effectual restraint on her power of assigning it by way of anticipation so long as it is reversionary (c), but will cease to operate when the time for payment arrives (d).

[Where interest reversionary.]

[Enlarging equitable entail into an equitable fee.]

65. A married woman cannot, by a deed acknowledged under the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833, dispose of an interest in land as to which her anticipation is restrained (e). But where an equitable estate tail was limited to a married woman for her separate use, and it was also provided that the rents and profits were to be paid to her without power of alienation or anticipation, it was held that this did not prevent her from barring the entail and limiting the equitable fee to herself. For that was not an alienation so as to deprive herself of anything; it was not, strictly speaking, an alienation at all, except in a very wide sense of the term. It was what was always called an enlargement of the estate (f).

[Enlarging long term into a fee.]

66. So a married woman entitled to a long term for her

[(a) Re Bown, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 411; Re Spencer, 30 Ch. D. 183; Re Currey, 32 Ch. D. 361; Re Grey's Settlements, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 85, 712; Re Hutchings to Burt, 58 L. T. N.S. 6; Re Tippett and Newbould, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 444; Re Fearon, W. N. (1896) p. 175; 45 W. R. 232; and see Re Wood; Wood v. Hooper, 61 L. T. N.S. 197, where the restraint was removed by the covenant of the feme while sole to settle, though her interest was then in reversion; and see Russell v. Lawder, (1904) 1 I. R. 328.]

[(b) Re Tippett and Newbould, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 444.]

[(c) Re Bown, ubi sup.; Re Holmes, 67 L. T. N.S. 335.]

[(d) Re Bankes, (1902) 2 Ch. 333, where it was held that a covenant by the feme for the settlement of after acquired property, entered into before the death of the testator, bound her reversionary interest under the will.]

[(e) Baggett v. Meux, 1 Ph. 627; Heath v. Wickham, 3 L. R. Ir. 376. The Irish statute 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 92, s. 69, contains a clause which is not in the English Act, preventing alienation by a married woman where the settlement contains a valid restriction against anticipation. But this was considered by Lord Lyndhurst, L.C., in Baggett v. Meux, as an expression by the legislature of what was meant by the English Act.]

[(f) Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 288; and a similar conclusion was arrived at in the case of a covenant by the feme, in usual terms, for the settlement of after acquired property; Hilbers v. Parkinson, 25 Ch. D. 200, followed in Re Dunsany's Settlement, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 578; and in Re Pearse's Settlement, (1909) 1 Ch. 304, where the law of Jersey practically rendered it impossible for the feme to perform the covenant strictly.]

separate use may, if the case falls within the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, enlarge the term into a fee simple, notwithstanding her anticipation may be restrained (a).

[Restraint against anticipation not avoided by fraud.]

67. The clause against anticipation cannot be got over even in the case of deliberate fraud by the feme covert. Thus, where a feme covert, by fraudulently suppressing the restraint on anticipation, obtained an advance on the mortgage of property limited to her separate use, it was held, upon an application by her, that the property was protected against the mortgage by the clause restraining her anticipation (b).]

Court could not discharge the clause against anticipation.

68. Where the clause against anticipation had once attached, even a Court of Equity [could not, until a recent Act, have] discharged it, though alienation [might have been] for the feme covert's own advantage (c). An estate so settled may, however, be subject to paramount equities, as for raising costs of suit, [or for antenuptial debts (d),] which may enable the Court to direct a sale (e); and in the case of adultery by the wife may be dealt with by the Divorce Court under the provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 61), sect. 5 (f); and as a married woman whose anticipation is restrained may still employ a solicitor to defend her right to the separate use, the solicitor so employed may acquire a lien on the separate estate for his costs thereby incurred (g).

[In a recent case where a married woman, entitled to the income of a trust fund for her life with a restraint upon anticipation, took proceedings for the execution of the trust, in the course of which an application by her was dismissed with costs, Pearson, J., gave the trustees liberty to retain their costs out of the plaintiff's income, and said "that the restraint on anticipation

[(a) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, ss. 2 (i), 65.]

[(b) Thomas v. Price, 46 L. J. N.S. Ch. 761; Stanley v. Stanley, 7 Ch. D. 589; Re Glanvill, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 532; Cahill v. Cahill, 8 App. Cas. 420, 427; see S. C., nom. Cahill v. Martin, 5 L. R. Ir. 227; 7 L. R. Ir. 361; Lady Bateman v. Faber, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 144, 151.]

(c) Robinson v. Wheelwright, 21 Beav. 214; 6 De G. M. & G. 535; [Lady Bateman v. Faber, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 144, 150].

[(d) London and Provincial Bank v. Bogle, 7 Ch. D. 773; Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 75), s. 19; and see post, pp. 1022, 1026, and ante, p. 985.]

(e) Fleming v. Armstrong, 34 Beav. 109. [Where a feme while sole mortgaged her life interest, and afterwards became covert, and effected a second mortgage, which was inoperative to the extent of a part of her interest as to which she was restrained from anticipation, it was held that the securities must be marshalled, so that the interest due to the first mortgagee should be paid out of the portion of the income which was not available for the second mortgagee; Re Loder's Trusts, 56 L. J. Ch. 230; 35 W. R. 58.]

(f) Pratt v. Jenner, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 493.

(g) Re Keane, 12 L. R. Eq. 115.

was intended for the protection of a married woman outside the Court; it was not intended to enable her to do a wrong in the Court. It did not fetter the power of the Court in any case in which it thought that she was not entitled to that protection" (a). But this is inconsistent with principle and with the earlier authorities, and has since been overruled (b).

[May now, under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

69. Now, by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, sect. 39, "notwithstanding that a married woman (c) is restrained from anticipation, the Court may, if it thinks fit, where it appears to the Court to be for her benefit, by judgment or order, with her consent, bind her interest in any property."

Applications under this section may be made by summons as provided by sect. 69, sub-sect. 3 of the Act (d), but this provision is not obligatory (e).

The power of the Court is discretionary, and only to be exercised where a strong case is made out (f). The Court must be satisfied that it will be for the permanent benefit of the wife to accede to the application (g), and will not bind her interest where the object is to benefit the husband (h), or to raise money to pay debts incurred through the extravagance of her or of her husband (i), or to benefit herself by releasing a power conferred on her to appoint amongst her children (j); or merely to increase her income by changing investments from Court securities into others of a more speculative nature, though sanctioned by the settlement (k); but where a married woman, who was entitled

[(a) Re Andrews, 30 Ch. D. 159; Re Jordan, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 330; and see Re Prynne, W. N. 1885, p. 144.]

[(b) Re Glanvill, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 532.]

[(c) The powers of the section will not apply to the case of a divorced woman; Thomson v. Thomson, (1896) P. (C.A.) 263.]

[(d) Re Lillwall's Settlement Trusts, 30 W. R. 243; Latham v. Latham, W. N. 1889, p. 171. An order under the section enabling a married woman to mortgage her life interest was made without requiring the trustees to be served; Re Little's Will, 36 Ch. D. (C.A.) 701, q.v. also as to form of order. By 52 & 53 Vict. c. 47, s. 10, as regards land and estates in the county palatine of Durham, the Palatine Court of that county may exercise the power conferred by the Act; and as to the jurisdiction of the Lancaster Palatine Court, see 53 & 54 Vict. c. 23.]

[(e) Re Blundell, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 221.]

[(f) Re Little, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 418.]

[(g) Re Flood's Trusts, 11 L. R. Ir. 355; Re Jordan, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 330; Re Currey (No. 2), 56 L. J. N.S. Ch. 389; Re Segrave's Trusts, 17 L. R. Ir. 373; Re Millar, 25 L. R. Ir. 107; Re Tennant's Estate, 25 L. R. Ir. 522; Re Pollard's Settlement, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 552; Re Blundell, sup.]

[(h) Tamplin v. Miller, 30 W. R. 422; Re S.'s Settlement, W. N. (1893) p. 127.]

[(i) Re Pollard's Settlement, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 552; affirming Chitty, J., (1896) 1 Ch. 901.]

[(j) Re Little, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 418, following Cunynghame v. Thurlow, 1 Russ. & My. 436; and see Re Radcliffe, 39 W. R. 457.]

[(k) Re Blundell, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 221.]

to the income of a fund for her life for her separate use without power of anticipation, with remainder in the events which happened for her appointees by will, and in default of appointment for herself absolutely, had contracted debts and was being harassed by her creditors, the Court made an order binding the property (a). So in a case where the wife, who was entitled to a considerable income, was living with her husband who had been adjudged bankrupt, was being harassed by his creditors to whom she had given acceptances, and was suffering in health from pecuniary embarrassment, the Court made an order relieving part of the income from the restraint (b). And where two married women were tenants in common, and by reason of their being restrained from anticipation there was a difficulty in granting leases, the Court made an order (c). The restraint has also been removed for the purpose of enabling the retention of an unauthorised but beneficial investment (d), the carrying on of a trade by trustees for the benefit of a married woman separated from her husband (e), of paying premiums on policies on the life of the husband who was just able to support his family out of his practice as a medical man (f), and of preserving from eviction an estate to which the feme was entitled in reversion for life (g). The Court has no power simply to remove the restraint; it can only bind the married woman's interest in spite of the restraint, when a disposition is made of the property which the Court considers to be for her benefit (h).

Where the money is raised to pay off the husband's debts, the fact that the order does not indicate that he is liable to indemnify his wife cannot be taken as negativing the existence of such a liability (i).

Where the Court is satisfied by the evidence of the consent of the married woman, it will not require her separate examination (j).]

70. The restraint against alienation may also be void for Restraint on anticipation void for perpetuity.

[(a) Hodges v. Hodges, 20 Ch. D. 749; Sedgwick v. Thomas, 48 L. T. N.S. 100.]

[(b) Re C.'s Settlement, 56 L. J. N.S. Ch. 556.]

[(c) Re Currey (No. 2), 56 L. J. N.S. Ch. 389.]

[(d) Re Wright, 15 L. R. Ir. 331.]

[(e) Re Thompson, W. N. 1884, p. 28.]

[(f) Re Milner's Settlement, (1891) 3 Ch. 547.]

[(g) Re Segrave's Trusts, 17 L. R. Ir. 373, q.v. generally as to the circumstances under which the Court will discharge the restraint.]

[(h) Per Cotton, L.J., Re Warren's Settlement, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 928; 49 L. T. N.S. 696.]

[(i) Paget v. Paget, (1898) 1 Ch. 47; Ib. (C.A.) 470.]

[(j) Hodges v. Hodges, 20 Ch. D. 749; but see Musgrave v. Sandeman, 48 L. T. N.S. 215.]

perpetuity, as if a fund be settled on A.'s marriage upon himself for life, with a power to A. to appoint to his issue, A. cannot appoint to his daughters as the issue of the marriage for their sole and separate use without power of anticipation, for this would prevent alienation for more than a life in being, and twenty-one years, which the law does not allow (a).

[Where, in a post-nuptial settlement, the trusts were, after the death of the husband and wife and in default of appointment, for sons at twenty-one and daughters at twenty-one or marriage, but the daughter's shares were for their separate use without power of anticipation, it was held that as to the daughters in esse at the time of the settlement the restraint against anticipation was valid (b); and where a general clause in a will purported to impose a restraint on anticipation on all the shares of daughters of the testator's children, the clause was held good as to members of the class born in the testator's lifetime, but bad as to those subsequently born (c). In one case a restraint on anticipation attached to the interests of the children of a woman who, at the date of the will creating the interest, was past child-bearing, was held valid (d), but this decision has been questioned on the ground that evidence that a person is past child-bearing is not admissible for the purpose of depriving another person of a prospective benefit (e), by giving validity to a gift which would otherwise be void for remoteness (f).

[Election where property subject to the restraint.]

71. Opinions have differed as to whether a feme covert can be put to her election to give up, or make compensation out of property as to which her anticipation is restrained, and the authorities on the point were for some time about evenly balanced (g), but it has now been decided by the Court of

(a) See Armitage v. Coates, 35 Beav. 1, and the cases there cited; and Re Teague's Settlement, 10 L. R. Eq. 564; Re Cunynghame's Settlement, 11 L. R. Eq. 324; Re Michael's Trusts, 46 L. J. N.S. Ch. 651; Re Ridley, 11 Ch. D. 645, in which case Sir G. Jessel, M.R., followed the previous decisions, though he at the same time expressed his disapproval of them; [Re Errington, W. N. 1887, p. 23; Herbert v. Webster, 15 Ch. D. 610, in which case V. C. Hall expressed dissatisfaction with his own decision in Re Michael's Trusts.]

[(b) Herbert v. Webster, 15 Ch. D. 610; and see Wilson v. Wilson, 4 Jur. N.S. 1076.]

[(c) Re Ferneley's Trusts, (1902) 1 Ch. 543, following Herbert v. Webster, sup., and not following Re Michael's Trusts, sup., and Re Ridley, sup.; and see Re Game, (1907) 1 Ch. 276, following Re Ferneley's Trusts, sup., not following Re Ridley, sup., and applying Re Russell, (1895) 2 Ch. 698, vide sup. p. 110.]

[(d) Cooper v. Laroche, 17 Ch. D. 368.]

[(e) Re Hocking, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 567.]

[(f) Re Dawson, 39 Ch. D. 155, following Jee v. Audley, 1 Cox, 324, and Re Sayer's Trusts, 17 Ch. D. 368; and see Re Lowman, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 348, 366.]

[(g) See Willoughby v. Middleton, 2 J. & H. 344; Smith v. Lucas, 18 Ch. D.

Appeal that she cannot be called upon to elect (a). The testator by imposing the restraint on anticipation has evinced an intention inconsistent with the application of the doctrine of election, and this intention prevails although she has become discovert before the time for election arrives (b). And no admission or estoppel can avail as against the protection afforded by the restraint (c).] [Admission or estoppel.]

72. It has been held that a clause against anticipation, though applicable to the fund when raised, does not prevent a feme covert from adjusting the amount of the fund with the trustees (d). Settlement of accounts.

73. Compensation for a breach of trust by a feme covert in respect of settled property cannot be enforced, even against a fund limited by the same settlement to her separate use without power of anticipation (e). Breach of trust.

74. Interest accrues due de die in diem; but if the interest, though due, be not payable under the contract before a particular day, which has not arrived, the interest so accrued is not regarded in the light of arrears, but of future income, and therefore the feme covert, if anticipation be restrained, has no power over it (f). Interest due but not payable.

75. The clause against anticipation does not prevent the operation of the rule, that if the husband be allowed to receive the wife's income, she or her personal representative cannot recover more than one year's income, if so much (g); and the contracts or other engagements of the wife, which would affect Arrears of income.

531; Robinson v. Wheelwright, 6 De G. M. & G. 535; Cahill v. Cahill, 8 App. Cas. 420, 427; S. C., nom. Cahill v. Martin, 5 L. R. Ir. 227; 7 L. R. Ir. 361; Re Wheatley, 27 Ch. D. 606; Re Vardon's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 124; Re Queade's Trusts, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 786; 53 L. T. N.S. 74; 33 W. R. 816; Harle v. Jarman, (1895) 2 Ch. 419.]

[(a) Re Vardon's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 124; Hamilton v. Hamilton, (1892) 1 Ch. 396; but a special condition in the will may put her to election; Whitwell v. Wilson, W. N. 1890, p. 171.]

[(b) Haynes v. Foster, (1901) 1 Ch. 361.]

[(c) Lady Bateman v. Faber, (1897) 2 Ch. 223; (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 144.]

(d) Wilton v. Hill, 25 L. J. N.S. Ch. 156; and in Stroud v. Gwyer, M.R., 27 April, 1865, it was ruled that Mrs Heath, whose share was settled by the will for her separate use without power of anticipation, was bound by a settlement of accounts which had been executed by her; M.S. And see Derbyshire v. Home, 3 De G. M. & G. 113.

(e) Clive v Carew, 1 J. & H. 199; Pemberton v. M'Gill, 8 W. R. 290; Sheriff v. Butler, 12 Jur. N.S. 329; Arnold v. Woodhams, 16 L. R. Eq. 29. See, however, the observations of M.R. (but which were extra-judicial) in Davies v. Hodgson, 25 Beav. 186. As to breaches of trust by femes covert, see further, ante, p. 985; [and as to the provision in s. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1893, whereby the whole or any part of the interest of a beneficiary, at whose instigation or request or with whose written consent a breach of trust has been committed by a trustee, may be (notwithstanding a restraint on anticipation) impounded by way of indemnity to the trustee, see post, Chap. XXXI., s. 3].

(f) Re Brettle, 2 De G. J. & S. 79; 10 Jur. N.S. 349.

(g) Rowley v. Unwin, 2 K. & J. 138; see ante, p. 1000.

her separate use generally, may be enforced against arrears already accrued, and which consequently have become emancipated from the clause against anticipation (a); [and the period of the restraint is determined by the instrument creating it, and will not be enlarged or its cesser arrested by an order of Court made for convenience of administration, and directing payment on specified days (b).

[Liability to costs.]

76. Where a married woman is suing under sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (c), damages or costs recovered against her are payable out of her separate property, and arrears of income as to which anticipation by her was restrained, which have accrued due to her, and which she could therefore validly charge in the hands of her trustees, are available for payment of costs which she is ordered to pay to them in proceedings instituted by her while the restraint was still subsisting (d).

[Married Women's Property Act, 1893.]

It is now provided by the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, that "in any action or proceeding (e) now or hereafter instituted by a married woman or by a next friend on her behalf, the Court before which such action or proceeding is pending shall have jurisdiction by judgment or order from time to time to order payment of the costs of the opposite party (f) out of property which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, and may enforce such payment by the appointment of a receiver and the sale of the property, or otherwise as may be just."

An appeal by a feme covert from an order in an action brought against her is not a proceeding "instituted by her" within the meaning of this section (g), nor is a caveat by her against the probate of a will (h), nor an application by her in a divorce suit for the custody of her child (i); but a claim by her to goods taken in execution is such a proceeding (j); and so is an application for a new trial (k).

(a) Fitzgibbon v. Blake, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 328; Moore v. Moore, 1 Coll. 54; [Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, (1896) A. C. 174, see ante, p. 1009].

[(b) Cox v. Bennett, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 617.]

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(d) Cox v. Bennett, (1891) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 617.]

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 63, s. 2. The section applies to actions commenced prior to and pending at the date of the Act; Re Godfrey, W. N. (1895) p. 12 (C.A.).]

[(f) Where an action by a married woman was dismissed with costs, the words "with liberty to apply for payment out of any property which is subject to a restraint on anticipation" were added to the order; Davies v. Treharris Brewery Co., W. N. (1894) p. 198.]

[(g) Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, (1897) A. C. 177.]

[(h) Moran v. Place, (1896) P. (C.A.) 214.]

[(i) Gordon v. Gordon, (1904) P. (C.A.) 163.]

[(j) Nunn v. Tyson, (1901) 2 K. B. 487.]

[(k) Dresel v. Ellis, (1905) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 574.]

On an application for payment of the defendant's costs, where the action by the feme has been dismissed with costs, the onus is on her to show why the order should not be made (a). [Onus.]

The section applies to the case of an action by husband and wife in which the wife is the real plaintiff (b).

The Court has no jurisdiction under the section to vary an order for payment of costs made before the Act came into operation (c).

77. The 19th section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, after the provision already noticed protecting settlements and agreements for settlements from the operation of the Act (d), proceeds to enact further that nothing in the Act contained "shall interfere with or render inoperative any restriction against anticipation at present attached or to be hereafter attached to the enjoyment of any property or income by a woman under any settlement, agreement for a settlement, will, or other instrument; but no restriction against anticipation contained in any settlement or agreement for a settlement of a woman's own property to be made or entered into by herself shall have any validity against debts contracted by her before marriage, and no settlement or agreement for a settlement shall have any greater force or validity against creditors of such woman than a like settlement or agreement for a settlement made or entered into by a man would have against his creditors" (e). [Restraint on anticipation unaffected by the Act of 1882.]

It follows from this enactment, that a judgment against the feme in respect of an antenuptial debt cannot be enforced against her separate property subject to restriction against anticipation, unless such restriction is contained in a settlement or agreement for a settlement of her own property made or entered into by herself (f).

A debt contracted by the feme during a previous coverture is a debt contracted by her before marriage within the meaning of the section (g).

The concluding clause of the section applies only to settlements made after the passing of the Act (h). It is to be read in connection with the first clause (i), and does not prevent a

[(a) Pawley v. Pawley, (1905) 1 Ch. 593.]

[(b) Huntly (Marchioness of) v. Gaskell, (1905) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 656.]

[(c) Re Lumley, (1894) 3 Ch. 135.]

[(d) Ante, p. 1006.]

[(e) See also the proviso to s. 1 of the Act of 1893, stated ante, p. 984.]

[(f) Birmingham Excelsior Money Soc. v. Lane, (1904) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 35.]

[(g) Jay v. Robinson, 25 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 467.]

[(h) Beckett v. Tasker, 19 Q. B. D. 7; Myles v. Burton, 14 L. R. Ir. 258; Smith v. Whitlock, 55 L. J. Q. B. 286.]

[(i) Hemingway v. Braithwaite, 61 L. T. N.S. 224.]

married woman, as against creditors to whom she incurred debts after her marriage, from settling her separate property by a post-nuptial settlement on herself with a restraint on anticipation (a).

[Powers under Settled Land Act, 1882, not impaired by restraint on anticipation.]

78. A restraint on anticipation in a settlement will not prevent a married woman from exercising any power given to her as a tenant for life, or as a person having the powers of a tenant for life, by the Settled Land Act, 1882 (b).

79. It will be convenient to conclude this section by a reference to the principal provisions of the statutory enactments relating to married women.] By the Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (c), it was enacted:—

Married Women's Property Act, 1870.

Sect. 1. That the wages and earnings of any married woman acquired or gained after the passing of the Act, 9th August, 1870, in any employment, occupation or trade in which she was engaged, or which she carried on separately from her husband, and also any money or property so acquired by her through the exercise of any literary, artistic, or scientific skill, should be deemed and taken to be property held and settled to her separate use (d).

Sect. 2. That any deposit made or annuity granted by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt after the passing of the Act, in the name of a married woman, or a woman who might marry after such deposit or grant, should be deemed to be her separate property.

Sect. 3. That any married woman, or any woman about to be married, might cause any sum in the public stocks or funds, and not being less than 20*l.*, to which she was entitled, or which she was about to acquire, to be transferred into the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England to, or made to stand in, her name or intended name to her separate use, which should thenceforth be deemed her separate property (e).

Sect. 4. That any married woman, or woman about to be married might cause any fully paid up shares, or any debentures or debenture stock, or any stock of an incorporated or joint stock company, to the holding of which no liability was attached, to be registered in the books of the company in her name or intended

[(a) Hemingway v. Braithwaite, 61 L. T. N.S. 224.]

[(b) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 61 (6).]

(c) 33 & 34 Vict. c. 93.

[(d) See Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. 923, 939; Lovell v. Newton, 4 C. P. D. 7; Re Dearmer, 53 L. T. N.S. 905.]

(e) See Re Bartholomew's Estate, 23 L. T. N.S. 433; 19 W. R. 95; Re Tanner's Trust, W. N. 1874, p. 198; Howard v. Bank of England, 19 L. R. Eq. 295.

name to her separate use, which should thenceforth be deemed her separate property (a).

Married Women's Property Act, 1870.

Sect. 5. That any married woman, or woman about to be married, might cause any share, benefit, debenture, right, or claim in, to, or upon the funds of any industrial and provident society or any friendly society, benefit building society or loan society, to the holding of which share, benefit, or debenture no liability was attached, to be entered in her name to her separate use, which should thereupon be deemed her separate property.

Sect. 7. That where any woman married after the date of the Act should during coverture become entitled to any personal property as next of kin (b), or any sum not exceeding 200*l.* under any deed or will (c), such property should belong to her for her separate use.

Sect. 8. That where any freehold or copyhold property should descend upon any woman married after the passing of the Act, the rents and profits (d) thereof should belong to her for her separate use.

Sect. 10. That a married woman might effect a policy of insurance upon her own life, or the life of her husband for her separate use, and that a policy of insurance effected by any married man on his own life, and expressed upon the face of it to be for the benefit of his wife or his wife and children, should be deemed a trust for the benefit of his wife for her separate use, and of the children; [and that when the sum secured by the policy should become payable, or at any time previously, a trustee (e) thereof might be appointed by the Court of Chancery, or the Judge of the County Court of the district in which the insurance office was situated, and that the receipt of such trustee should be a good discharge (f).]

(a) See The Queen v. Carnatic Railway Company, 8 L. R. Q. B. 299.

(b) The amount coming to her as next of kin appears to be without limit; [so now decided, see Re Voss, 13 Ch. D. 504].

[(c) Separate sums of money coming to the feme under one will but by different titles, are not to be aggregated so as to make up the 200*l.*; Re Davies, (1897) 2 Ch. 204; following Re Middleton's Will, 16 W. R. 1107.]

[(d) The object of this section has been held by Stirling, J., to be simply to remove and put aside the interest of the husband, and not to give the wife an enlarged dominion over her property; and accordingly the separate use created by the section does not authorise a dealing with the fee; Johnson v. Johnson, 35 Ch. D. 345.]

[(e) Where the fund was to be retained on behalf of infants, the Court declined to appoint a single trustee under this section; Re Howson's Policy Trusts, W. N. 1885, p. 213.]

[(f) Upon an application under this section the Court declared the rights and interests of the wife and children of the deceased, and directed a proper settlement of the fund; Re Mellor's Policy Trusts, 6 Ch. D. 127. In this case a husband effected a policy on his

Married Women's Property Act, 1870.

Sect. 12. That a husband should not by reason of any marriage after the passing of the Act be liable for the debts of his wife contracted before marriage (a), and that the wife should be liable to be sued for, and any property belonging to her for her separate own life under the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, for the benefit of his wife and children, but the interests they were to take were not otherwise expressed on the face of the policy. On an application to the Chancery Division by the widow and children (who were two daughters), V. C. Malins at first appointed two trustees of the policy moneys, and declared that they were "to hold the moneys when received, upon trust to pay thereout the costs, and to invest the residue in securities authorised by the Court, and to pay the income to the widow for life for her separate use without power of anticipation, with remainder (as to both capital and income) for the children on attaining 21, or on marriage under that age, in equal shares, and if but one the whole for that one, with remainder (as to both capital and income) if neither child attained 21 or married under that age for the widow absolutely." But on a subsequent application in the same matter, 7 Ch. D. 200, the V. C. reconsidered this decision, and directed the policy moneys to be distributed in thirds between the widow and two children. This case was disapproved of in Re Adam's Policy Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 525, where Chitty, J., held that the Court had no jurisdiction under this section to do more than make an order appointing a trustee. An opinion was also intimated in that case that a policy by a husband under this section "for the benefit of his wife and children," should be read in conjunction with the section, and that the proper construction was, by virtue of the words "separate use" in the section, for the benefit of the wife for her life, with remainder to the children as joint tenants; but in Re Seyton, 34 Ch. D. 511, North, J., disapproved of this view, and held that under such a policy, whether it was to be considered alone (as he appears to have thought it ought to be), or jointly with the Act, the widow and children took as joint tenants; and this was followed by Chitty, J., in Re Davies' Policy Trusts, (1892) 1 Ch. 90. The question whether an after-taken wife can participate is one of construction: where the policy (effected under s. 11 of the Act of 1882, v. post, p. 1026) was simply "for the benefit of the wife and children" of the assured, an after-taken wife and her child shared jointly with the children of the first marriage; Re Browne's Policy, (1903) 1 Ch. 188; but where the policy (effected under the Act of 1870) was for the benefit of the wife of the assured, "or, if she were dead, between his children," an after-taken wife was excluded, though her children were let in; Re Griffith's Policy, (1903) 1 Ch. 739. An after-taken wife is within the Act of 1870, and for this purpose there is no difference between sect. 10 of the Act of 1870, and sect. 11 of the Act of 1882; Re Parker's Policies, (1906) 1 Ch. 526. The section remains in force as to policies effected under it, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 11 of the Act of 1882, (see post, p. 1026) and therefore a trustee must be appointed to give a discharge for the policy moneys whether they become payable before or after the Act of 1882, and the application for such appointment need not be entitled under the Act of 1882; Re Turnbull, (1897) 2 Ch. 415; (referring to Re Adam's Policy Trusts, 23 Ch. D 525, and distinguishing Re Soutar's Policy Trusts, 26 Ch. D. 236); Re Kuyper's Policy, (1899) 1 Ch. 38. The Court can under its general jurisdiction appoint two new trustees, Schultze v. Schultze, 56 L. J. Ch. 356; 56 L. T. N.S. 231.]

(a) See Conlon v. Moore, 9 I. R. C. L. 190. [If the husband survives the wife and takes out administration to her estate, he will, notwithstanding this section, be liable to the extent of her assets to the wife's antenuptial debts; Turner v. Caulfield, 7 L. R. Ir. 347; and these debts will be payable pari passu out of the wife's separate estate and her general personal estate; S. C.] use should be liable to satisfy such debts, as if she had continued unmarried (a).

[80. By the Amendment Act of 1874 (b), as to marriages which took place after the 30th July, 1874, by the 1st section the liability of the husband was restored, but by the subsequent sections his liability was confined to the extent of the fortune of the wife received, or which ought to have been received, by him, if he pleaded that limit to his liability ; but it was in the option of the husband either to claim this limit to his liability or not, and if he did not so claim it, he was liable for the wife's debts in the same manner as the husband originally was at common law. Under this Act, therefore, in a statement of claim by a creditor of the wife against the husband and wife, it was not necessary for the plaintiff to allege that the husband had received or with reasonable diligence might have received assets of the wife, but the husband, intending to rely upon the Act, was put to claim the benefit of it in his defence (c). [Married Women's Property Act, 1874.]

81. The Married Women's Property Act, 1870, and the Amendment Act of 1874, have now been repealed by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, but without prejudice to "any act done or right acquired while either of such Acts was in force, or any right or liability of any husband or wife, married before the 1st January, 1883, to sue or be sued under the provisions of the repealed Acts, for or in respect of any debt, contract, wrong, or other matter or thing whatsoever, for or in respect of which any such right or liability shall have accrued" before that date (d). It may therefore still be necessary in many cases to refer to the provisions of the repealed Acts. [Repeal of Acts of 1870 and 1874.]

82. By the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, it is in effect enacted :— [Married Women's Property Act, 1882.]

Sect. 1, sub-sect. (5). That every married woman carrying on a

(a) The separate property will be made available for payment of the debts [even although anticipation be restrained ; London and Provincial Bank v. Bogle, 7 Ch. D. 773 ; Re Hedgeley, 34 Ch. D. 379 ; Axford v. Reid, 22 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 548 ; secus, under the Act of 1882, as s. 19 (see ante, p. 1019) preserves the restraint : Birmingham Excelsior Money Soc. v. Lane, (1904) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 35]. The feme covert herself cannot be made a bankrupt ; Ex parte Holland, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 307, [unless she be trading separately from her husband, 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 1 ; Re Gardiner, 20 Q. B. D. 249 ; though the petition in bankruptcy has come on for hearing and been adjourned at her instance before her marriage : Re a Debtor, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 576 ; and as to form of judgment, &c., see Downe v. Fletcher, 21 Q. B. D. 11.]

[(b) 37 & 38 Vict. c. 50.]

[(c) See Matthews v. Whittle, 13 Ch. D. 811. The liability of the husband ceases on the death of the wife ; Bell v. Stocker, 10 Q. B. D. 129.]

[(d) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, s. 22 : as to the effect of the section, see Re Turnbull, (1897) 2 Ch. 415.]

[45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

trade (a) separately from her husband shall, in respect of her separate property (b), be subject to the bankruptcy laws as if she were a feme sole (c).

Sect. 3. That any money or other estate of the wife lent or intrusted (d) by her to her husband for the purposes of any trade or business carried on by him or otherwise, shall be treated as assets of his estate in case of his bankruptcy (e), she being entitled to a dividend as a creditor for the amount or value of such money or estate after all claims of the other creditors for valuable consideration have been satisfied (f).

[(a) As to the meaning of this expression, see Re Dagnall, (1896) 2 Q. B. 407, where a married woman who had ceased actually to carry on business was made bankrupt in respect of trade debts of hers remaining unpaid; and see Re Worsley, (1901) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 309, approving Re Dagnall. In order to ground the jurisdiction in bankruptcy, it is sufficient that the feme is carrying on a trade separately from her husband; it is not necessary to prove the existence of separate property at the time when the receiving order was made, though that may be material in reference to the exercise of the jurisdiction: Re Simon, (1909) 1 K.B. (C.A.) 201.]

[(b) As to what is separate property within the section, and that it does not include property over which the married woman has only a general power of appointment (by deed or will), which she has not exercised, see Ex parte Gilchrist, 17 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 167, 521; but that it does include property which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, see Re Wheeler's Settlement, (1899) 2 Ch. 717; ante, p. 989.]

[(c) As to the position before the Act of a married woman in regard to the bankruptcy law, see Ex parte Jones, 12 Ch. D. (C.A.) 484; and that her trustee in bankruptcy claiming her life interest under a settlement is not "interfering with or affecting" the settlement within the meaning of s. 19, see Re Armstrong, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 264, ante, p. 1007; and as to the effect of the death of the husband where she is restrained from anticipation, see ante, p. 989. As a judgment against a feme covert is not personal, a bankruptcy notice cannot be founded on it; Re Lynes, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 113.]

[(d) Property of the wife mortgaged by her to secure a debt of her husband, which debt was afterwards discharged by realisation of the property so mortgaged, was held in Alexander v. Barnhill, 21 L. R. Ir. 511, not to come within the words "lent or intrusted by her to her husband."]

[(e) By force of s. 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 77), this applies also where the husband is dead and his estate is insolvent; Re Leng, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 652; but the right of retainer of the executrix of her deceased husband, in respect of a loan made by her to him for the purposes of his business, is in no way affected: Re Ambler, (1905) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 697, and see Simpson v. Simpson, (1895) 1 I. R. 530.]

[(f) This section does not apply to a case where the husband is in partnership, and the money of the wife is lent not to him but to his firm; Re Tuff, 19 Q. B. D. 88. The section is not retrospective; Re Home, 54 L. T. N.S. 301.

Whatever be the meaning of the words "or otherwise," it is clear that the section has no application to a loan by the wife to the husband for purposes unconnected with his trade or business; Re Clark, (1898) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 330; and see Re Tidswell, 56 L. J. Q. B. 548; 35 W. R. 669, followed in Mackintosh v. Pogose, (1895) 1 Ch. 505, notwithstanding Alexander v. Barnhill, 21 L. R. Ir. 511. And as the section refers only to the bankruptcy of the husband it does not preclude a widow as administratrix from retaining, out of the insolvent estate of her intestate husband, money advanced by her out of her separate property to him for the purposes of his business; Re May, 45 Ch. D. 499,

Sect. 6. That all deposits in any post office or other savings bank, or in any other bank, all annuities granted by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt or by any other person, and all sums forming part of the public stocks or funds, or of any other stocks or funds transferable in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, or of any other bank, which, at the commencement of the Act (1st January, 1883), are standing in the sole name of a married woman, and all shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, or other interests of or in any corporation, company, or public body, municipal, commercial, or otherwise, or of or in any industrial, provident, friendly, benefit, building, or loan society, which at the commencement of the Act are standing in her name (a), shall be deemed, unless and until the contrary be shown, to be the separate property of such married woman; and the fact that such property is standing in the sole name of a married woman shall be sufficient primâ facie evidence that she is beneficially entitled thereto for her separate use, so as to empower her to receive or transfer the same, and to receive the dividends, interest, and profits thereof, without the concurrence of her husband, and to indemnify persons mentioned in the Act in respect thereof. [45 & 46 Vict c. 75.]

Sect. 7. That all such deposits, annuities, sums, shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, and other interests as referred to in the last section, which after the commencement of the Act shall be allotted to or made to stand in the sole name of a married woman shall be deemed, unless and until the contrary be shown, to be her separate property, in respect of which, so far as any liability may be incident thereto, her separate estate shall alone be liable.

But nothing in the Act is to require or authorise any corporation or company to admit any married woman to be a holder of any shares or stock therein, to which any liability may be incident, contrary to the provisions of the instrument regulating such corporation or company.

Sect. 8. That the provisions of sects. 6 and 7 shall apply, so far as relates to the estate, right, title, or interest of the married and see Re Ambler, (1905) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 697. In the case of the bankruptcy of the husband the onus was held to lie on the wife, proving for such an amount, to show that it was not lent for the purposes of his trade or business; Re Genese, 16 Q. B. D. 700; but it is not in every case that this onus is thrown upon the wife; see Re Cronmire, (1901) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 480, where, under the circumstances, a mortgage of the wife's property for the husband's benefit was held not liable to postponement.]

[(a) This is apparently an error for "sole name."]

[45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

woman, to any deposits, &c., in the name of any married woman jointly with any persons or person other than her husband.

Sect. 9. That it shall not be necessary for the husband of any married woman in respect of her interest to join in the transfer of any deposit, &c., affected by the 6th, 7th, or 8th sections.

Sect. 11. That a married woman may effect a policy upon her own life or the life of her husband for her separate use.

And that a policy of assurance effected by any man on his own life, and expressed to be for the benefit of his wife, or of his children, or of his wife and children (a), or any of them; or by any woman on her own life, and expressed to be for the benefit of her husband, or of her children, or of her husband and children, or any of them, shall create a trust in favour of the objects therein named (b). And that the insured may by the policy, or by any memorandum, appoint a trustee or trustees of the moneys payable under the policy, and from time to time appoint a new trustee or new trustees thereof, and may make provision for the appointment of a new trustee or new trustees thereof, and for the investment of the policy moneys; and that in default of any such appointment such policy shall vest in the insured in trust for the purposes aforesaid. If, at any time, there shall be no trustee, or it shall be expedient to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, the appointment may be made by any Court having jurisdiction under the Trustee Acts (c).

Sect. 13. That a woman after her marriage shall continue liable to the extent of her separate estate for her antenuptial debts, contracts, or wrongs, and may be sued accordingly, and all sums recovered against her shall be payable out of her separate property, and as between her and her husband, unless there be any contract between them to the contrary, her separate property shall be primarily liable (d).

[(a) Compare sect. 10 of the Act of 1870, ante, p. 1021, and note (f) as to the meaning of these words.]

[(b) Where an insurance is effected by a husband under the section for the benefit of his wife, a trust is created in her favour. But if the wife murders the husband, as it is against public policy that she should benefit by her own criminal act, the trust in her favour fails, and there is a resulting trust for the husband, enabling his executors to recover the money; Cleaver v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, (1892) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 147. The interest of a husband in the life of his wife is presumed, and therefore a husband having effected a policy under the section, can maintain an action upon it, without proving that he has any pecuniary interest in the life of his wife: Griffiths v. Fleming, (1909) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 805.]

[(c) On a motion in Ireland to appoint trustees under this section it was held that there was no jurisdiction upon such an application to adjudicate upon the rights of the widow and children inter se; Re Graham's Policy, 29 L. R. Ir. 498.]

[(d) Under this section a husband

Sect. 14. That a husband shall be liable for his wife's antenuptial debts, contracts, and wrongs, to the extent of her property which he shall have acquired or become entitled to, from or through his wife, after deducting payments made by him, and sums for which judgment may have been recovered against him, in respect of such debts, contracts, or wrongs (a).

Sect. 15. That a husband and wife may be jointly sued in respect of any such debt or liability if the plaintiff shall seek to establish his claim against both of them.

Sect. 21. That a married woman having separate property shall be subject to all such liability for the maintenance of her children and grandchildren (b) as the husband is now by law subject to for the maintenance of her children and grandchildren: provided that nothing in the Act shall relieve her husband from any liability imposed upon him by law to maintain her children or grandchildren (c).

[Agricultural Holdings Act.]

83. The Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883 (d), enacts in sect. 26, that "a woman married before the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, entitled for her separate use to land, her title to which accrued before such commencement as aforesaid, and not restrained from anticipation, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be in respect of land as if she were unmarried." And that "where any other woman married before the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, is desirous of doing any act under this Act in respect of land, her title to which accrued before such commencement as aforesaid, her husband's concurrence shall be requisite," and she is to be separately examined by the County Court, or by the Judge of the County Court, for the place where she for the time being is.

The words "any other woman" here used are inaccurate, but cannot maintain an action against his wife for money lent to her or money paid for her before their marriage at her request; Butler v. Butler, 14 Q. B. D. 831.]

[(a) It will be observed that the language of the 14th section, the effect of which is given shortly in the text, differs materially from that of the Act of 1874 (see ante, p. 1023), and Matthews v. Whittle, 13 Ch. D. 811, has no application to a case under the Act of 1882. Under this and the following section the husband can avail himself of the Statute of Limitations in respect of his wife's antenuptial debt as from the time when the debt accrued due against her; Beck v. Pierce, 33 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 316.]

[(b) The corresponding section in the Act of 1870 did not include grandchildren; Coleman v. Overseers of Birmingham, 6 Q. B. D. 615.]

[(c) Now by the Married Women's Property Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 27) a married woman, having separate property, is made subject to all such liability for the maintenance of her parent or parents as a feme sole is by law subject to.]

[(d) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61.]

are apparently intended to apply to a woman who does not, under the preceding clause, acquire the powers of an unmarried woman. It is, however, conceived that there is nothing in the section empowering a married woman whose anticipation is restrained to bind her interest.

By the same section the County Court is empowered to appoint, and change or remove any next friend of a married woman required for the purposes of the Act (a).]

SECTION VII

OF JUDGMENTS AGAINST THE CESTUI QUE TRUST

Writs of execution at common law.

Before entering upon this topic, it may be useful to notice briefly how legal interests stand affected by judgments.

1. At common law the plaintiff in the action had only two writs of execution open to him against the property of the defendant: the fieri facias, to levy the debt de bonis et catallis; and the levari facias, to levy it de terris et catallis (b). The execution under the latter writ, however, embraced no interest in land of a higher description than a mere chattel interest, and affected not the possession of the lands (c), but merely enabled the sheriff, besides taking the chattels, to levy the debt from the present profits, as from the rents payable by the tenants (d), and the emblements (e), that is, the corn and other crops at the time growing on the lands (f). If the sheriff, when he made his return, had not levied the full amount of the debt, a new levari facias might have issued, to be executed by the sheriff in like manner (g).

Statute of Westminster.

2. In order to provide for the creditor a more effectual remedy, the Statute of Westminster (h) introduced the writ of elegit, and enacted that when the debt was recovered or knowledged, or damages awarded, the suitor should at his choice (whence the term elegit) have a writ of fieri facias (i) from the debtor's lands and chattels, or that the sheriff should deliver to him all the chattels of the debtor, except his oxen and beasts of the

[(a) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 61, s. 26.]
(b) Finch's Law, 471.
(c) Ib.; Sir E. Cooke's case, Godb. 290.
(d) Finch's Law, 472; Davy v. Pepys, Plowd. 441.
(e) 4 Com. Ab. 118.
(f) Harbert's case, 3 Rep. 11 b.; 2 Inst. 304; 2 Bac. Ab. Execution (C) 4, note (b).
(g) Fitzh. N. B. 265.
(h) 13 Ed. 1. st. 1, c. 1, c. 18.
(i) This includes the writ of levari facias; 2 Inst. 395.

plough, and one-half of his land until the debt should be levied upon a reasonable price or extent. It was by virtue of this statute that judgment creditors were first enabled to sue execution of one moiety of the debtor's lands, whether vested in him at the time of the judgment or subsequently acquired.

[Now by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (a), it is enacted that (1), The sheriff shall not under a writ of elegit deliver the goods of a debtor, nor shall a writ of elegit extend to goods; and (2), No writ of levari facias shall hereafter be issued in any civil proceeding.] [Levari facias abolished in civil proceedings.]

We now come to the inquiry, what is the effect of judgments upon equitable interests.

1. With respect to the fieri facias, it is clear that under the system of uses no relief could have been granted; for the creditor, coming in by operation of law, did not possess that privity of estate which could alone confer upon him the right to sue a subpœna. During the earlier period of trusts the same technical notions prevailed; but Lord Nottingham introduced more liberal doctrines, and established the principle that a creditor, prevented from executing the legal process by the interposition of a trust, might come into Chancery, and prosecute an equitable fieri facias (b). Fieri facias as regards trusts.

2. But, as the analogy to law must be strictly pursued, the trust of a chattel could never have been attached in equity until the writ of execution was actually sued out; for till that time there was no lien upon the debtor's effects, which was the very ground of the application (c). Trusts not bound by it before execution sued out.

3. And as equity only follows, and does not enlarge the law, the judgment creditor has no title to relief where the chattel of which the trust has been created is not in itself amenable to any legal process. An opinion, indeed, is subjoined to the case of Horn v. Horn in Ambler (d), that a trust of stock might, before the Judgments Act, 1838 (e), have been taken by a judgment creditor in equitable execution; and Taylor v. Jones (f), before Sir W. Fortescue, M.R., was even a decision to the same Nor where the legal estate is not liable.

[(a) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 146.]

(b) Pit v. Hunt, 2 Ch. Ca. 73; Anon. case, cited 1 P. W. 445; and see Scott v. Scholey, 8 East, 485; Estwick v. Caillaud, 5 T. R. 420; Kirkby v. Dillon, C. P. Cooper's Rep. 1837-38, 504; Simpson v. Taylor, 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 182; Bennett v. Powell, 3 Drew. 326; Gore v. Bowser, 3 Sm. & G. 1; Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705; Partridge v. Foster, 34 Beav. 1; Horsley v. Cox, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 92.

(c) Angell v. Draper, 1 Vern. 399; Shirley v. Watts, 3 Atk. 200; Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705; Partridge v. Foster 34 Beav. 1.

(d) Amb. 79.

(e) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110.

(f) 2 Atk. 600.

effect; but such a doctrine, inasmuch as stock could not have been reached at law, was clearly contrary to all principle, and afterwards incurred the express disapprobation of Lord Thurlow (a), Lord Manners (b), Sir W. MacMahon (c), Sir Archibald Macdonald (d), and Lord Eldon (e); Lord Thurlow observing, that the opinion in Horn v. Horn was so anomalous and unfounded, that forty such would not satisfy his mind (f). However, by the Judgments Act, 1838 (g), various descriptions of property, formerly exempt, are now liable to be taken in execution, and the remedy of the creditor in equity must be deemed to be enlarged accordingly (h); and the same statute provides a special procedure for reaching a judgment debtor's interest in stock whether legal or equitable (i).

Equity of redemption.

4. The judgment creditor is entitled to the like relief against the equity of redemption of a chattel, as against any other equitable interest in a chattel (j).

Whether equity can adopt the elegit by analogy.

5. The elegit owing its origin to a statute, a doubt may suggest itself in limine, whether, when the legislature has passed an enactment against the legal estate, a Court of Equity can, consistently with its general principles, apply by analogy the same provision to the case of a trust. A legal estate, for example, was by Act of Parliament made forfeitable without inquest for treason, and, as the Statute enumerated "uses," it was contended, and seems to be the better opinion, that trusts also under that expression became forfeitable to the Crown; but it was never suggested that, had "uses" not been inserted in the Act, a Court of Equity could have subjected trusts to forfeiture by any inherent jurisdiction of its own. But the Act which originated the elegit was, like the statute de donis, prior to the introduction of the use; and as equity, by analogy to the Statute of Westminster, admitted entails and remainders of trusts, why might it not, by analogy to another Act of the same statute, allow equitable interests to be affected by judgments (k)?

Trusts formerly not subject to elegit. Secus now.

6. It would seem that in Lord Keeper Bridgman's time a trust

(a) Dundas v. Dutens, 2 Cox, 240; and see a note of S. C. in Grogan v. Cooke, 2 B. & B. 233.
(b) Grogan v. Cooke, 2 B. & B. 233.
(c) Plasket v. Dillon, 1 Hog. 328.
(d) Caillaud v. Estwick, 2 Anst. 384.
(e) Rider v. Kidder, 10 Ves. 368.
(f) See Grogan v. Cooke, 2 B. & B. 233.
(g) 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, sect. 12.
(h) See cases ante, p. 85, note (c.); and see Stokoe v. Cowan, 29 Beav. 637.
(i) See post, p. 1040.
(j) King v. Marissal, 3 Atk. 192; Shirley v. Watts, Ib. 200; Burdon v. Kennedy, Ib. 739; Thornton v. Finch, 4 Giff. 515; and see King v. De la Motte, Forr. 162.
(k) See Ryall v. Rolle, 1 Atk. 184.

was not subject to an elegit (a). But it was long ago established that a judgment creditor might redeem a mortgage in fee (b), and it is now equally well settled that he may prosecute his elegit against any other equitable interest (c).

Land to be converted into personalty not bound by a judgment.

7. An estate given by A. to trustees upon trust to convert into personalty for the benefit of B. has in equity all the properties of personalty; and therefore, even under the old law, a judgment against the person to whom the proceeds of the sale were directed to be paid conferred no lien upon the proceeds (d).

Judgment against vendor, after contract to sell.

8. Whether the same principle applied where a judgment was entered up against a person after he had contracted to sell real estate was much doubted.

Serjeant Hill's opinion.

Upon this subject we have the following opinion of Mr Serj. Hill:—H. A. S. seised in fee of an estate, subject to his mother's jointure and to younger children's portions, contracted for the sale of the property in lots to different purchasers. After the date of the contract, H. A. S. executed a conveyance to trustees, upon trust to convey to the different purchasers, and to invest part of the purchase-money in the funds as an indemnity against the jointure and portions, and to pay the residue to himself. Subsequently to the deed of trust, H. A. S. acknowledged a judgment. Mr Serj. Hill was consulted on the part of the trustees, whether they would be safe in paying the money to H. A. S., as against the judgment of which they had notice, and also as against judgments, if any, of which they had no notice. The opinion was as follows: "As to the judgment of which the trustees had notice, though, to many purposes, the estate agreed

(a) See Pratt v. Colt, Freem. 139.

(b) Greswold v. Marsham, 2 Ch. Ca. 170; Crisp v. Heath, 7 Vin. Ab. 52. (The former case has been compared with Reg. Lib., A. 1685, f. 399, and the report appears substantially correct: the latter case has not been found). Plucknet v. Kirk, 1 Vern. 411; Reg. Lib. 1686, B. fol. 181, 184, see post, p. 1065; Sharpe v. Earl of Scarborough, 4 Ves. 538, and the cases cited Ib. 541; Stileman v. Ashdown, 2 Atk. 477; Fothergill v. Kendrick, 2 Vern. 234; and see Steele v. Philips, 1 Beat. 188; Forth v. Duke of Norfolk, 4 Mad. 503; King v. De la Motte, Forr. 162; Freeman v. Taylor, 3 Keb. 307; Hatton v. Haywood, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 229.

(c) Tunstall v. Trappes, 3 Sim. 286; Forth v. Duke of Norfolk, 4 Mad. 504, per Sir J. Leach; Serj. Hill's opinion, Ib. 506, note (a); Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 311, per Sir J. Leach; and see Lodge v. Lyseley, 4 Sim. 70; Kirkby v. Dillon, C. P. Cooper's Rep. 1837-38, 504; Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 9 Sim. 60; 3 M. & Cr. 407; Adams v. Paynter, 1 Coll. 530; Lewis v. Lord Zouche, 2 Sim. 388. Davidson v. Foley, 2 B. C. C. 203; 3 B. C. C. 598; and Plasket v. Dillon, 1 Hog. 324 (commonly cited upon this subject), were cases of a legal elegit, and the judgment creditor was seeking to remove an impediment to the legal execution of it.

(d) Foster v. Blackstone, 1 M. & K. 297; and see Browne v. Cavendish, 1 Jon. & Lat. 633.

to be sold is from the time of the contract the estate of the purchaser; yet I think the vendor is not before payment of the money to be considered a mere trustee, for the estate continues his at law, and even in equity he has a right to detain it until payment of the purchase-money; and, therefore, the judgment creditor hath a right to so much of the purchase-money as is sufficient to satisfy the judgment; and the trustees having notice of his right ought to pay it, if the money is in their hands. As to the judgments, if any, of which the trustees have no notice, I think a Court of Equity will not make them pay the money over again, if they apply it according to the deed of trust, because I think equity in the case of a judgment creditor and a bonâ fide purchaser or a trustee without notice, will not interpose on either side, but will leave the law to take its course" (a).

Sir J. Leach's opinion.

And Sir J. Leach appears to have concurred in this opinion, that the vendor's interest after the contract was bound by a judgment; for in Forth v. the Duke of Norfolk (b), where a person had mortgaged an estate in fee, and then contracted to sell, and afterwards, before the conveyance, acknowledged a judgment, Sir J. Leach said: "An assignee for valuable consideration is discharged of the claim of the judgment creditor, unless he had notice of it before the consideration paid. If A., before the actual conveyance to him, had received notice of the judgment, then, being a purchaser of an equitable interest in a freehold estate from the debtor, and not having paid his purchase-money, he would have been equally affected with the judgment as the debtor himself; and if he had afterwards paid the whole purchase-money to the debtor, he would have still remained liable to the judgment creditor."

Dictum of Sir L. Shadwell.

But in a subsequent case Sir L. Shadwell said "he should not have given the opinion which the learned Serjeant had done, for it appeared to him that from the time H. A. S. entered into binding contracts to sell the lands, he not having judgments against him at that time, the purchasers had a right to file a bill against him and have the legal estate conveyed" (c). And it may be argued that if the vendor die after the contract, but before the conveyance, the purchase-money would go to the executor (a); and that if the contract work a notional conversion of the land into money in respect of the vendor's representatives, the same consequence ought to follow in respect of the vendor's judgment creditors.

(a) Cited Forth v. Duke of Norfolk, 4 Mad. 506, note (a).

(b) 4 Mad. 503.

(c) Lodge v. Lyseley, 4 Sim. 75; and see Craddock v. Piper, 14 Sim. 310, where, however, it does not appear whether the judgments were entered up before the actual sale or the decree for sale.

Whether in case of conveyance upon trust to sell or mortgage, with power of sale, surplus proceeds are bound by a judgment.

9. The case became still more difficult where A. conveyed to trustees upon trust to sell for the discharge of incumbrances, and to pay the surplus to himself, and, before sale, a judgment was entered up against A. (b); or where a mortgage was given with power of sale to the mortgagee, and a judgment was entered up against the mortgagor before sale (c). It was clear that in either case the power of giving receipts was binding as against the judgment creditor, so that a purchaser from the trustee or mortgagee was not concerned to see that the judgments were satisfied (d); but this still left open the question whether the judgment was or was not a lien or charge on the proceeds in the hands of the mortgagee or trustee.

How much of the estate may be taken in execution.

10. The question whether under the old law the lien of the judgment creditor extended to the whole or a moiety of the trust estate was also one of considerable difficulty, and the authorities can only be reconciled by the aid of a somewhat subtle distinction.

On what grounds a judgment creditor may apply to a Court of Equity.

A judgment creditor might have come into a Court of Equity upon two grounds; First, upon a legal title, where he either sought to remove an impediment to the execution of his legal elegit, or, after the death of his conusor, sued for payment of his debt out of the conusor's personal assets, and, if they should be insufficient, then by sale (e) of the real estate; or, Secondly, upon an equitable elegit, on the ground that he had no legal lien, and therefore could have no legal process (f).

Execution of a moiety only of a trust estate.

As the extent of relief ought in both these cases to be the same, and the Court never attempted to make a difference,

(a) See Farrar v. Winterton, 5 Beav. 1; Curre v. Bowyer, Ib. 6, note.

(b) See Bayden v. Watson, 7 Jur. 245; Re Underwood, 3 K. & J. 745.

(c) See Wright v. Rose, 2 S. & S. 323, and Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. 260.

(d) Lodge v. Lyseley, 4 Sim. 75; Alexander v. Crosbie, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 513; Drummond v. Tracy, Johns. 608.

(e) An elegit would at law give the possession of the lands till the satisfaction of the debt, but equity assumed the jurisdiction of facilitating the remedy by a sale. See Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. 61; O'Fallon v. Dillon, 2 Sch. & Lef. 19; O'Gorman v. Comyn, Ib. 139; Stileman v. Ashdown, 2 Atk. 610; but see Bedford v. Leigh, 2 Dick. 709; Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 3 M. & Cr. 417.

(f) These grounds of suit still subsist, in addition to that conferred by the 13th section of the Judgments Act, 1838, giving the judgment creditor a charge in equity. [See Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275.]

the authorities determined upon either head may be relied upon as applicable to the other. The result of the cases upon this principle, notwithstanding an early authority to the contrary (a), appears to be that a judgment creditor could under the old law sue an equitable elegit of a moiety only of a trust estate (b).

Execution of the whole of an equity of redemption.

11. An equity of redemption was, however, governed by a different rule. If A., seised of an estate, mortgaged it to B. in fee, and then confessed a judgment to C., it was clear that C. had a lien which entitled him to redeem B. But should he redeem the whole or a moiety? So far as the judgment creditor had any claim of his own, a moiety only; but as B. could not be compelled to part with the smallest fraction of the estate until he had been satisfied his whole debt, C. was under the necessity of redeeming the entirety. Again when C. had taken a transfer of the security, it followed that, as mortgagee with a judgment against the mortgagor, he had a right to tack, and no one could redeem any part of the estate out of his hands until payment not only of the original mortgage debt but also of the judgment. Thus it arose from a kind of necessity, and not from any wanton violation of principle, that in the instance of an equity of redemption the judgment creditor was paid by a sale of the whole estate (c) (1).

In Stileman v. Ashdown (d), Lord Hardwicke at the same time that he gave a judgment creditor a moiety only of the trust estate, ordered a sale of the whole of the lands in mortgage (e).

(a) Compton v. Compton, cited in Stileman v. Ashdown, Amb. 15; Reg. Lib. A. 1711, f. 134. The authority of this case cannot, however, have much weight, for, as was observed by Lord Hardwicke (Stileman v. Ashdown, Amb. 17), the point whether the whole or a moiety should be sold appears not to have been discussed.

(b) Stileman v. Ashdown, 2 Atk. 477, 608; Rowe v. Bant, Dick. 150; Reg. Lib. B. 1750, f. 427; Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 24; O'Dowda v. O'Dowda, 2 Moll. 483; Anon. case, Ib.; O'Gorman v. Comyn, 2 Sch. & Lef. 137; Burroughs v. Elton, 11 Ves. 33; Williamson v. Park, 2 Moll. 484; Armstrong v. Walker, Ib. In O'Fallon v. Dillon, 2 Sch. & Lef. 13, the sale of the estate was not confined to a moiety; but there the creditor had entered up two judgments the same term, and then as both judgments were of the same date, the creditor might at law have taken both moieties in execution. See Attorney-General v. Andrew, Hard. 23.

(c) Stonehewer v. Thomson, 2 Atk. 440; Sish v. Hopkins, Blunt's Amb. 793.

(d) 2 Atk. 477.

(e) Sir A. Hart, not observing the ground of the distinction, has charged Lord Hardwicke with inconsistency; Leahy v. Dancer, 1 Moll. 322.

(1) It was ruled, upon a similar principle, that, where freeholds and copyholds were blended in one mortgage, the equity of redemption of the whole was liable as assets to a bond creditor, though copyholds by themselves were not assets; Acton v. Pierce, 2 Vern. 480.

So, where there were several incumbrancers by judgment upon an equity of redemption, and the Court decreed a sale, the first judgment creditor was not confined to a moiety of the estate, but the decree was, that the incumbrancers should be paid their full demands out of the proceeds of the sale, according to their priority (a).

Case of a trust by way of mortgage.

12. [The cases of a mortgage by way of trust or of an annuity deed, though the interests derived thereunder border closely upon the nature of an equity of redemption, yet present some features of distinction, for here the legal estate never becomes absolute in the mortgagee or grantee of the annuity, but is held in trust for the mortgagor or grantor, and, strictly speaking, there is nothing to be redeemed, but merely a trust to be executed. However, even in the case of a conveyance of land to ordinary uses to secure an annuity, where the grantor] confessed a judgment, and the question was whether it should affect the whole or only a moiety of the estate, Sir L. Shadwell, on the ground that a judgment creditor might redeem the entirety of the lands in mortgage, held that the lien should extend to the whole (b).

Execution of a trust estate by elegit at law, under Statute of Frauds.

13. We come next to the provision in the 10th section of the Statute of Frauds (c), which enables a judgment creditor in certain cases to sue a writ of execution at law against an equitable estate.

The 10th section enacts in substance that it shall be lawful for the sheriff to deliver execution unto the party suing of all such lands and hereditaments as any other person may be in any manner of wise seised or possessed in trust for the party against whom execution is so sued, like as the sheriff might or ought to have done, if the said party against whom execution is so sued had been seised of such lands and hereditaments of such estate as they are seised of in trust for him at the time of the said execution sued.

Construction of the Statute.

14. Upon the construction of this section the following points have been resolved :—

a. As the statute, though using in one case the words seised or possessed, speaks elsewhere only of lands, &c., of which others are seised in trust for the debtor, it does not extend to trusts of chattels real of which the legal proprietor is said not to be seised, but possessed (a).

(a) Sharpe v. Earl of Scarborough, 4 Ves. 538 ; and see the cases cited Ib. 541 ; and Berrington v. Evans, 3 Y. & C. 384.

(b) Tunstall v. Trappes, 3 Sim. 286, see 300. [The question is more fully discussed in the eighth edition of this work at pp. 801, 802.]

(c) 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

β. An equity of redemption is not within the terms of the Act (b).

γ. A bare and simple trust only is intended—not one of a complicated nature, where the interests of other parties are mixed up with the debtor's title (c).

δ. If after the judgment is entered up, but before actual execution, the estate has been disposed of to a purchaser, so that when execution is sued there is no trust for the debtor in esse, in that case the words of the statute fail to provide a remedy, and the judgment creditor cannot be put in possession (d).

Whether equitable elegit may be had where no legal elegit of a trust under the Statute.

The question has been much discussed whether in the last case, though the judgment creditor could not prosecute a legal execution, he might not subject the purchaser, if affected with notice, to an equitable elegit (e). It was said, that as there was no execution at law, and equity followed the law, the creditor was without redress; but in this argument the principle that equity followed the law seems to be wrongly applied. A judgment bound a legal estate, and, as equity followed the law, a judgment was therefore in equity a lien upon the trust. The Statute of Frauds introduced an additional remedy by enabling the judgment creditor, in certain cases, to take legal execution of a trust. But affirmative statutes do not abridge the common law (f), and therefore the creation of a legal remedy in certain cases provided for by the Act could not preclude the judgment creditor from prosecuting his equitable elegit in other cases for which the statute had made no provision. The enactment was clearly meant to be remedial, but the doctrine contended for would impress on it a restrictive character, and convert it into a disabling statute. The difficulty in the way of the relief was said to be, that no instance of it could be found after the most diligent search. The reason probably was, that judgments had only in modern times been held to bind equitable interests at all; the doctrine was certainly not established before the

(a) Lyster v. Dolland, 3 B. C. C. 478; S. C., 1 Ves. jun. 431; Scott v. Scholey, 8 East, 467; Metcalf v. Scholey, 2 Bos. & Pul. N. R. 461.

(b) Lyster v. Dolland, Scott v. Scholey, Metcalf v. Scholey, ubi sup.; Burdon v. Kennedy, 3 Atk. 739.

(c) Doe v. Greenhill, 4 B. & Ald. 684; Harris v. Booker, 4 Bing. 96; Forth v. Duke of Norfolk, 4 Mad. 504, per Sir J. Leach.

(d) Hunt v. Coles, 1 Com. 226; Harris v. Pugh, 4 Bing. 335.

(e) See 2 Sugden's Vend. and Purch. 10th ed. 386; 14th ed. 535; Coote on Mortg. 3rd ed. p. 53; 6th ed. p. 670; 2 Powell, Mortg. 606; Fisher on Mortg. p. 366.

(f) Attorney-General v. Andrew, Hard. 27; 2 Inst. 472.

Statute of Frauds. But the system of trusts had from that period downwards been gradually maturing, and the principles which governed uses, and were thence transferred into trusts, had since, not indeed been abandoned, but received a much more enlarged and liberal application, and as judgments were acknowledged to be liens upon equitable interests, the consequence necessarily followed that a purchaser was bound by notice of a judgment, as he would be bound by notice of any other equitable incumbrance.

15. We now proceed to an examination of the more recent statutes.

By the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), it is enacted— 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110. (I.) By sect. 11, That execution at law may be had under an elegit of all such lands, including copyholds, as the debtor or any person in trust for him was seised or possessed of, or over which he had a disposing power which he might without the assent of any other person exercise for his own benefit (a), at the time of entering up the judgment or at any time afterwards. (II.) By sect. 13, That in equity a judgment shall operate as a charge upon the whole of the lands, freehold and copyhold, of which the debtor was seised or possessed for any estate or interest whatever at law or in equity, or over which he had a disposing power, at or subsequently to the entering up of the judgment, with a proviso that the creditor shall not be entitled to proceed in equity to obtain the benefit of such charge until after the expiration of a year from the date of the judgment, and that the protection in equity of purchasers for valuable consideration without notice shall not be disturbed. (III.) By sect. 18, That decrees and orders of Courts of Equity, rules of Courts of Common Law, &c., whereby any sum of money, or any costs, charges, or expenses, shall be payable to any person, shall have the effect of judgments (b). But, (IV.) By sect. 19, That no judgments, decrees, or orders, shall affect real estate by virtue of the Act, unless and until they have been registered with the senior master of the Court of Common Pleas (a).

(a) A trust for the separate use of a married woman was held not to be an estate over which she had a disposing power within the meaning of the Act; Digby v. Irvine, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 149. Neither was the power of the settlor to defeat a voluntary settlement by means of the 27 Eliz. c. 4, see ante, p. 80, a disposing power within the Act of Vict.; Beavan v. Earl of Oxford, 6 De G. M. & G. 507.

(b) A decree for an account merely is not within the section; Chadwick v. Holt, 2 Jur. N.S. 918; [Widgery v. Tepper, 6 Ch. D. (C.A.) 364]. Neither is a rule of a Court of Common Law which does not specify the sum to be paid; Jones v. Williams, 11 Ad. & Ell. 175; Doe v. Amey, 8 M. & W. 565; though, as respects costs, the case is different; Jones v. Williams, 8 M. & W. 349; Doe v. Barrell, 10 Q. B. 531.

Remarks on the Statute.

16. It is observable upon these clauses, that an equitable estate, whether of freehold or copyhold tenure, and whether of freehold or leasehold interest, and without any restriction as to the time of execution sued, as in the 10th section of the Statute of Frauds, is subjected by the Act to execution at law by writ of elegit (sect. 11), and to quasi execution in equity by way of charge (sect. 13). In the latter case purchasers without notice are expressly protected (sect. 13), but in the former case not: a purchaser, therefore, even of an equitable interest, after the commencement of the Act, was obliged by this statute to search the registry for judgments entered up against the vendor, and that whether before or subsequently to the Act, for the time for entering up the judgments was immaterial, provided they had been registered. It may be thought anomalous and inconsistent that a purchaser should not be protected at law by want of notice, while he was in equity; but the intention of the legislature probably was, in giving a remedy both at law and in equity, not to disturb the principles upon which the respective Courts acted, and therefore if the trust was a plain one, and so amenable to a legal elegit, the judgment creditor might take the land in execution even against a purchaser without notice; but if the trust was so complicated as to oblige him to apply to a Court of Equity, and treat the judgment as a charge, the Court by the Act was not to disregard its established rules, but, as in all other cases, was to protect a purchaser without notice.

Estate or interest in land capable of being taken in execution.

17. The following cases have been decided upon this Act. A. was entitled to an annuity secured by a covenant and an assignment of leaseholds in trust to sell, and it was held that A.'s interest under the deed might, under the Act, be made available for payment of a judgment debt due from her (b). A testator gave real estate to trustees upon trust to levy and raise, during the life of A., an annuity of 400*l.*, and directed the annuity to be held upon trust for the support, clothing, and maintenance of A., and the Court, having previously decided that the trust was one for the benefit of A. generally (c), held that a judgment

[(a) The registration is now effected at the office of Land Registry, pursuant to s. 5 of the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 51), as amended by the Land Charges Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 26), see post, p. 1056.]

(b) Harris v. Davison, 15 Sim. 128.

(c) Younghusband v. Gisborne, 1 Coll. 400.

creditor of A. was entitled to a charge on the annuity under the Act (a). A person covenanted to pay A. 5000*l.*, and that the sum should be a charge on certain land, and it was held that a judgment creditor of A. was entitled to a charge on the land in respect of A.'s interest therein (b). A mortgage was executed with a power of sale, and the surplus made payable to the mortgagor, his heirs, appointees, or assigns, and before a sale, judgment was entered up against the mortgagor, who was subsequently discharged under the Insolvent Act, and after such discharge the mortgagee sold under the power of sale, and it was held that the judgment creditor was entitled to the surplus proceeds of sale (c). A. was tenant for life of one-third of a trust fund, which at the time was invested on real securities, and it was held, though the trustees had a power of varying the securities, that A.'s interest was bound by the judgment (d). A feme, trustee for sale with a power of signing receipts, married, and then with the concurrence of her husband contracted to sell, and the purchaser objected that, as the feme covert was beneficially entitled to one-third of the produce, and judgments were entered up, but after the contract, against the husband, the wife could not make a title; however, the Court held that the judgments could not neutralise or prejudice the power of sale and signing receipts (e). Where a testator devised an estate to his wife for life, with remainder upon trust to sell and divide the proceeds amongst the testator's sons for life, of whom James was one, it was held by V. C. Kindersley that the share of James was not "any estate or interest in land" within the meaning of the statute (f). But it is observable that of the several previous decisions one only (Harris v. Davison) appears to have been brought to the attention of the Court.

Proviso against suing in equity until a year after judgment.

18. The object of the proviso in sect. 13, restraining the creditor from suing for a year, is not obvious; but most probably the framers of the Act considered, that since he would obtain, as incident to his charge, a right to a sale in equity, while under the elegit he could only hold the land and take the

(a) S. C., 1 De G. & Sm. 209.

(b) Russell v. M'Culloch, 1 K. & J. 313; and see Clare v. Wood, 4 Hare, 81. But by the Judgments Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 15), s. 11, when the mortgagee is paid off, the judgment against him ceases to bind the land.

(c) Robinson v. Hedger, 13 Jur. 846; 14 Jur. 784; 17 Sim. 183; and see Thornton v. Finch, 4 Giff. 515.

(d) Avison v. Holmes, 1 J. & H. 530.

(e) Drummond v. Tracy, Johns. 608.

(f) Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & Sm. 423.

rents and profits, some delay might reasonably be interposed before the exercise of the larger statutory remedy. And, notwithstanding the proviso, it has been held that the judgment creditor is entitled to have the interest of his debtor at once secured for the creditor's protection (a); and as between two judgment creditors the one who first obtains the charging order has priority (b).

Consideration of the Charging Order provisions.

19. The 14th section of the Act, which introduced a species of execution against stocks and shares in public funds and public companies (c), which before were not liable, deserves a separate consideration. By that section it is enacted that if any person against whom any judgment (d) shall have been entered up in any of Her Majesty's superior Courts at Westminster, shall have any Government stock, funds, or annuities, or any stock or shares of or in any company in England, standing in his name in his own right (e), or in the name of any person in trust for him, it shall be lawful for the judge of one of the superior Courts, on the application of any judgment creditor, to order that such stock, &c., shall stand charged with the payment of the amount for which judgment may have been recovered, and such order shall entitle the judgment creditor to all such remedies as he would have been entitled to if such charge had been made in his favour by the judgment debtor, provided that no proceedings shall be taken to have the benefit of such charge until after the expiration of six calendar months from the date of such order; and by the next following section of the Act it is provided that the order of the judge shall be ex parte in the first instance, and shall restrain the Bank or Company from permitting a transfer of the Government stock, funds, annuities,

(a) Yescombe v. Landor, 28 Beav. 80; Partridge v. Foster, 34 Beav. 1; Tillett v. Pearson, 43 L. J. N.S. Ch. 93. And see Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705, and S. C., 10 Hare, 43; Mackinnon v. Stewart, 1 Sim. N.S. 76, 91.

(b) Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & Sm. 423.

[(c) Debentures of a company are not within these words, and therefore a charging order cannot be made on such debentures standing in the name of a trustee for the judgment debtor; Sellar v. Bright & Co., (1904) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 446; nor does the section extend to cash, but by way of equitable execution and in aid of the power conferred by the Judgments Act, 1838, s. 12, of taking money, &c., under a fieri facias, a charging order on cash in court standing to the credit of a judgment debtor can be made under the general jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery now vested in the High Court of Justice; Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 488.]

(d) Extended to Decrees, &c., by s. 18; and by the Judgments Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict. c. 82), s. 1, the property intended to be embraced by this section is further defined, so as to include any interest (as a life estate, [but not a mere spes successionis, Re Ashton, W. N. (1900) 109]) in stock or shares.

[(e) See post, p. 1041.]

stock, or shares affected by the order, and that no disposition of the judgment debtor in the meantime shall be valid as against the judgment creditor, [and that unless the judgment debtor shall within a time to be mentioned in the order, show cause, the order shall be made absolute; but the judge may, upon the application of the judgment debtor or any person interested, discharge or vary the order (a).]

20. The leading points ruled or decided with reference to this species of execution are the following:—

By whom charging order should be made.

a. [The charging order may be made by any Divisional Court or by any judge (b).] The charging order is made ex parte and nisi in the first instance, but when confirmed absolute it operates from the order nisi (c).

Charging order will be made at law without deciding the quantum of interest charged.

β. Where stocks or funds are vested in trustees, and a judgment debtor appears to be interested therein, the charging order will be made at law, so as to affect the interest of the judgment debtor, whatever it may be, leaving it to the trustees, if the precise amount of the debtor's interest is not sufficiently defined, to say they will not act except under the direction of the Court (d). [A charging order cannot be made affecting stocks and shares forming part of a residuary estate in which the debtor is interested, but which are subject to a direction for conversion and to prior trusts (e); but, in general, although conversion of securities is directed by a testator, a beneficiary entitled to a share of residue has nevertheless an interest in the existing securities which may be charged with the amount of a judgment debt (f); and a charging order on

[(a) For forms of orders, see Seton on Judgments, 6th ed., pp. 477, et seq.]

[(b) See Order 46, Rule 1 of the Rules of the Supreme Court. Under the old practice it was held that in the ordinary case of a judgment at law, the application for the charging order must be made to one of the Common Law Judges, even though the stock to be charged were standing in the name of the Paymaster-General; see Hulkes v. Day, 10 Sim. 41. But where a charging order was to be made in furtherance of a decree of the Court of Chancery, it could properly be made by a Judge of the Court of Chancery; see Stanley v. Bond, 7 Beav. 386; Westby v. Westby, 5 De G. & Sm. 516; Wells v. Gibbs, 22 Beav. 204.]

(c) Haly v. Barry, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 452; [Burns v. Irving, 3 Ch. D. 291; Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 488, 495;] and see Widgery v. Tepper, 6 Ch. D. (C.A.) 364.

(d) Fowler v. Churchill, 11 M. & W. 57; Rogers v. Holloway, 5 M. & Gr. 292; Cragg v. Taylor, 12 Jur. N.S. 320; 1 L. R. Ex. 148; 2 L. R. Ex. 131; [South Western Loan Company v. Robertson, 8 Q. B. D. 17].

[(e) Dixon v. Wrench, 4 L. R. Ex. 154; Re Marquis of Anglesey, (1903) 2 Ch. 727, 732.]

[(f) Bolland v. Young, (1904) 2 K.B. (C.A.) 824 (where it was said by Stirling, L.J., that Dixon v. Wrench (sup.) seems to have proceeded on the ground that in that case there was an imperative obligation to convert the shares into money at a definite time, and that the interest of the judgment debtor was in the proceeds of that a fund standing to the credit of a lunatic ought to be an unconditional order on a specified amount of the fund, and not an order directing that the amount to be charged should be determined by the Lords Justices (a).

[No charging order where debtor a trustee.]

γ. A charging order cannot be made on stock or shares standing in the name of the debtor in trust for others (b), even though they constitute his qualification as a director of a company, whose articles of association require that a director's qualifying shares shall be held by him "in his own right" (c).

[No charging order against executor.]

δ. A charging order cannot be made against the executor of the judgment debtor unless in some way judgment has been obtained against him, it being essential under sect. 15 that the person to show cause should be the person against whom the judgment was recovered (d).]

Bank or public company bound to pay dividends to trustee, notwithstanding charging order on interest of cestui que trust.

ε. Where a charging order is made upon the partial interest of a cestui que trust in stock or shares standing in the names of trustees, the Bank or public company whose stock or shares are affected by the charging order, is not concerned with questions arising between the judgment creditor and other persons interested in the trust fund, but is bound, in like manner as before the charging order, to pay the dividends to the trustees (e).

[Judgment for payment in futuro or for account.]

[ζ. A charging order may be made in respect of a judgment made payable on a future day (f), but not of a mere order for conversion, and not in the shares); and see Ideal Bedding Co. v. Holland, (1907) 2 Ch. 157, per Kekewich, J.]

[(a) Horne v. Pountain, 23 Q. B. D. 264.]

[(b) Cooper v. Griffin, (1892) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 740; Howard v. Sadler, (1893) 1 Q. B. 1.]

[(c) See Pulbrook v. Richmond Consolidated Mining Co., 6 Ch. D. 610; Re Blakesley Ordnance Co., 46 L. J. N.S. Ch. 367; 35 L. T. N.S. 617. It is to be observed that the words "in his own right" for the purpose of qualification, and the same words for the purpose of a charging order under the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), s. 14, have not the same meaning. The language of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 14, is "standing in his name in his own right or in the name of any person in trust for him." The juxtaposition of these words shows that the shares to be charged are to be shares in which the judgment debtor has a beneficial interest. The same shares therefore may be held by the judgment debtor "in his own right" for purposes of qualification, but not so as to render them available for the purpose of a charging order: Sutton v. English and Colonial Produce Company, (1902) 2 Ch. 502, 507, 508, per Buckley, J. So where a shareholder was registered as "F., liquidator of the H. company," he was not qualified "in his own right" to be a director: Re Boschoek Proprietary Company v. Fuke, (1906) 1 Ch. 148.]

[(d) Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 386, and quære whether such a judgment can be obtained under the present practice, Ib. Leave under O. XLII., r. 23, to issue execution against the executor does not operate as a judgment, Ib.]

(e) Churchill v. Bank of England, 11 M. & W. 323; [South Western Loan Company v. Robertson, 8 Q. B. D. 17.]

[(f) Younghusband v. Gisborne, 1 De G. & Sm. 209; Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 Ch. D. 130.]

an account of what is due in respect of an annuity and for payment, while the account is still pending (a), nor an order for payment of money to the credit of an action (b).]

Proviso at the end of sect. 14 does not forbid suit for protecting interest of judgment creditor.

η. The proviso at the end of the 14th section, forbidding proceedings until after six calendar months, applies only to proceedings for enforcing immediate payment of the debt by realising the security, and does not prevent the judgment creditor from taking steps to prevent the security given him by the statute from being in the meantime defeated or diminished. Thus, where the funds are standing in the name of the Paymaster-General, the judgment creditor may, within the six months, apply for a stop-order to restrain the debtor from receiving dividends accruing within the six months (c).

Effect of charging order.

θ. It must be considered as now settled, notwithstanding a decision of the Court of Queen's Bench to the contrary (d), that a judgment creditor who obtains a charging order against stock vested in a trustee is only entitled to such interest therein as the debtor has [and can honestly give (e)], and must therefore take subject to all specific charges, whether notice thereof may or not have been given to the trustee before he has notice of the charging order (f). And, as a charging order has no greater effect than an instrument of charge executed by the judgment debtor would have had, if the debt on which the judgment

Prior incumbrances.

[(a) Widgery v. Tepper, 6 Ch. D. (C.A.) 364 ; Chadwick v. Holt, 8 D. M. & G. 584.]

[(b) Ward v. Shakeshaft, 1 Dr. & Sm. 269.]

(c) Watts v. Jefferyes, 3 Mac. & G. 372 ; and see Bristed v. Wilkins, 3 Hare, 235. [Under the new practice it is not necessary, as a preliminary to obtaining a stop-order on a fund in Court in the Chancery Division, by a person who has a judgment in an action in another Division, that he should obtain a charging order in that Division ; Hopewell v. Barnes, 1 Ch. D. 630 ; Shaw v. Hudson, 48 L. J. N.S. Ch. 689 ; and under the Judicature Acts and Supreme Court Fund Rules, 1894, Rule 99, notice of the charging order given at the pay-office will operate as a stop-order to prevent a transfer ; Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 488.]

(d) Watts v. Porter, 3 Ell. & Bl. 743 ; Erle, J., diss.

[(e) Cooper v. Griffin, (1892) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 740, per Lord Herschell.]

(f) Beavan v. Earl of Oxford, 6 De G. M. & G. 507 ; Kinderley v. Jervis, 22 Beav. 34 ; Scott v. Hastings, 4 K. & J. 633 ; [Re Bell, W.N. 1886, p. 46 ; 54 L. T. N.S. 370 ; Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1 ; Punchard v. Tomkins, 31 W. R. 286, in which case a prior unregistered specific charge on lands in Middlesex, was held to have priority over a subsequent general and roving charge ; Re Marquis of Anglesey, (1903) 2 Ch. 727. The case in the text is comparable to that of the lien of brokers on the Stock Exchange ; see Peat v. Clayton, (1906) 1 Ch. 159, where the owner of shares assigned them to trustees for his creditors, and afterwards sold them on the Stock Exchange, and it was held that as the lien of his brokers was only on his interest in the shares, the right of the trustees must prevail over it. See also Jones v. Barker, (1909) 1 Ch. 321, where a like effect was attributed to a deed of assignment to a trustee for creditors generally.]

[Where debtor lunatic.]

and charging order were founded was void, the charging order is inoperative (a); [but this limitation has reference to the extent and priority of the charge, and not to the capacity of the judgment debtor, so that a charging order on stock of a lunatic is binding as against his representatives (b). A charging order on the stock of a lunatic made after the Court in lunacy has assumed the control of the property of the lunatic, will not prevent that Court from disposing of the stock for the lunatic's benefit (c); but if the fund remains in the High Court, the balance only, after satisfying the charging order, will be transferred to lunacy (d).

[Remedies under charging order.]

ι. The judgment creditor is entitled under the charging order to such and the same remedies as he would have had if the charge had been created by contract between himself and the debtor; and must, therefore, to enforce the charge, institute fresh proceedings, without which the Court has no jurisdiction to order a sale of the shares (e). Leave cannot be given for service of a writ out of the jurisdiction under Order XI., Rule 1 (e), in an action to enforce such a charging order (f). The remedy is sale, not foreclosure (g).

[Correction of order.]

κ. Where the order nisi has been made on the interest of the deceased judgment debtor, and not of his executor, the Court will not correct the order under Order XXVIII., Rule 11, if judgment for the administration of the debtor's estate has been given in the interval between the date of the charging order and the time for showing cause against it (h).

[Order absolute cannot be discharged.]

λ. After the order has been made absolute, it cannot be discharged, even upon the application of a person who shows that the shares were standing in the name of the judgment debtor as a mere trustee for the applicant (i).

[Execution under Bankruptcy Act.]

μ. An order nisi is not "an execution against the goods of a debtor" within sect. 45 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 (j).

[Forfeiture on alienation.]

ν. A charging order, being an involuntary alienation, will not work a forfeiture under a forfeiture clause determining a life interest on attempt to assign, charge or incumber (k), but it will

(a) Re Onslow's Trusts, 20 L. R. Eq. 677.

[(b) Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

[(c) Re Plenderleith, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 332.]

[(d) Re Brown, (1900) 1 Ch. 489.]

[(e) Leggott v. Western, 12 Q. B. D. 287; Kolchmann v. Meurice, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 534.]

[(f) Kolchmann v. Meurice, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 534.]

[(g) D'Auvergne v. Cooper, W. N. (1899) 256.]

[(h) Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 386.]

[(i) Jeffryes v. Reynolds, 52 L. J. N.S. C. L. 55; 48 L. T. N.S. 358; Drew v. Lewis, 60 L. J. Q. B. 264; 39 W. R. 310.]

[(j) Re Hutchinson, 16 Q. B. D. 515].

[(k) Re Kelly's Settlement, 59 L. T. N.S. 496, and see ante, pp. 112, et seq.] determine a life interest which is only to endure until the tenant for life makes some assignment, or does or suffers some act, whereby the interest may be incumbered, or the dividends become payable to another person (a). In like manner a charging order is not a "contract, dealing or transaction" within sect. 49 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and therefore is not protected against the trustee under a bankruptcy founded on an act of bankruptcy committed previously to the order (b). [Bankruptcy.]

[c. As a charging order is not a contract, a person desiring to enforce it cannot, under the Rules of Court, obtain leave for service out of the jurisdiction (c).] [Service out of jurisdiction.]

21. The 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, was soon followed by the Judgments Act, 1839 (2 & 3 Vict. c. 11), by which it was enacted:—(I.) By sect. 2, that no judgment whatsoever should affect any lands, tenements, or hereditaments as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, unless previously registered accordingly to the provisions of the Act 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110 (d). (II.) By sect. 4, that all judgments, decrees, rules, and orders registered, or to be registered according to the provisions of the Act 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, should, at the expiration of five years, be null and void against lands, tenements, and hereditaments, as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors (e), unless they should have again been registered within five years before the right, title, estate, or interest of such purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors accrued (f). (III.) By sect. 5, that as against purchasers and mortgagees without 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11.

[(a) Montefiore v. Behrens, 1 L. R. Eq. 171; Roffey v. Bent, 3 L. R. Eq. 759; and see Hurst v. Hurst, 21 Ch. D. 279.]

[(b) Re O'Shea, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 325.]

[(c) Moritz v. Stephen, 36 W. R. 779; Kolchmann v. Meurice, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 534.]

[(d) This section is now repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, see post, p. 1056.]

(e) These words mean purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors becoming such after the omission to re-register, so that, if A. and B. be respectively first and second judgment creditors who both duly register, A. does not, by subsequently omitting to re-register, lose his priority over B.; Beavan v. Earl of Oxford, 6 De G. M. & G. 492; Shaw v. Neale, 6 H. L. Cas. 581; and see Simpson v. Morley, 2 K. & J. 71; Benham v. Keane, 1 J. & H. 697. [Where A., B., and C. were successive judgment creditors, and A. registered his judgment on the 12th of March, 1840, but never re-registered; B. registered his judgment in April, 1842, and re-registered in March, 1848; C. registered his judgment on the 18th of March, 1845, and re-registered on the 16th of March, 1850, it was held that though, by not re-registering, A. did not lose the priority which he had gained over B., nor B. the priority which he had gained over C., yet as A.'s judgment was bad as against C., the result was that C. was first entitled to take the amount due on A.'s judgment, and then that B. was entitled to be paid the full amount of his judgment before C. took anything more in respect of his judgment; Re Lord Kensington, 29 Ch. D. 527; and as to the effect of the Acts generally, see ibid., pp. 531, 532.]

(f) And see the Judgments Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 15), s. 6.

notice, no judgment, decree, or order should have a greater effect than a judgment would have had against such purchaser or mortgagee, before the passing of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110. (IV.) By sect. 8, that judgments, statutes, and recognisances to the Crown (a) should not bind purchasers or mortgagees unless registered as Crown debts (b). By virtue of the above clauses the execution that might under the former statute have been taken out at law against an equitable interest in the hands of a purchaser for value without notice was, in common with every other advantage given by the former statute against such purchaser, recalled, and the purchaser was relieved from the necessity of carrying his search back beyond the period of five years; except as regarded Crown debts, to which the enactment requiring registration did not apply.

Old law still applicable in case of purchase for value without notice.

A singular result of the 5th section was, that in the occasional, though rarely occurring case of a purchase or mortgage without notice of a previously registered judgment, the old law, as it existed before 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, was resorted to for guidance. Thus, by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, judgments were a lien upon leaseholds, but by 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11, sect. 5, if a purchaser or mortgagee thereof had no notice of a registered judgment (for registration is not notice per se), he was not bound by the judgment unless at the time of the purchase or mortgage an elegit had been issued, for by the old law a judgment did not become a lien upon chattels until the writ of execution was lodged in the hands of the sheriff (c).

3 & 4 Vict. c. 82. Notice ineffectual without registration.

22. This Act, however, still left open the question whether, by analogy to the cases under the Registry Acts, a purchaser, mortgagee, or creditor, if he had actual notice of an unregistered judgment, was not bound by it; and the Judgments Act, 1840, (3 & 4 Vict. c. 82), was passed to obviate this. It was thereby enacted, by the second section, that no judgment, decree, order, or rule (not mentioning Crown debts) should, by virtue of the said Act (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), affect any lands at law or in equity

(a) The Act speaks only of recognisances to the Crown, and not of recognisances in general, as on receiverships, which are also liens on real property. The 27 and 28 Vict. c. 112, s. 1, [now repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900] extended to recognisances generally; but the Act was not retrospective, and therefore did not apply to recognisances entered up before the passing of the Act, 29th July, 1864. Recognisances to the Crown were further provided for by the Crown Suits, &c., Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict. c. 104), s. 48, [which has now been repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, see post, p. 1056.]

[(b) These two sections (5 and 8) are now repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, see post, p. 1056.]

(c) Westbrooke v. Blythe, 3 Ell. & Bl. 737.

as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, until registration (a) under the said Act, any notice of such judgment, decree, order, or rule to any purchaser, mortgagee, or creditor, in anywise notwithstanding.

18 & 19 Vict. c. 15.

23. It being, however, doubted whether this Act protected a purchaser, mortgagee, or creditor from the effect of notice as to any remedy against him which the judgment creditor had before, independently of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, or whether its effect was not limited to protection against the additional remedy given to the judgment creditor by that Act (b), it was, in order to obviate this inconvenience, enacted generally, by the Judgments Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 15), sect. 4 (c), that no judgment, decree, order, or rule (d) which might be registered under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, should affect any lands, &c., at law or in equity, as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, unless and until the memorandum, &c., should have been left with the proper officer, any notice of any such judgment, decree, &c., to any such purchaser, mortgagee, or creditor, in anywise notwithstanding.

22 & 23 Vict. c. 35. Crown Debts.

24. The Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859, sect. 22, put Crown debts on the same footing as judgments as regards the necessity of re-registration from time to time, thus reducing the period over which the search for Crown debts should extend to five years, as in the case of judgments, &c.

23 & 24 Vict. c. 38. Issue and registration of writ of execution required.

25. By the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860, (e) sect. 1, freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates were, in respect of judgments (f), statutes, and recognisances, as against purchasers and mortgagees placed upon the same footing, and no such judgments, &c., entered up after the date of the Act (23rd July, 1860), were to affect lands in the hands of purchasers or mortgagees, unless a writ of execution should have been issued and registered before the conveyance or mortgage, and unless execution should be put in force within three calendar months from the registration. A purchaser, therefore, was thus precluded from objecting to the title on the ground of his having

(a) The framer of this Act appears to have overlooked the intermediate Act of 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11, ante, p. 1045, and to have left it doubtful whether re-registration within five years was necessary to exclude the title of a purchaser with notice. This doubt was set at rest by s. 5 of 18 and 19 Vict. c. 15.

(b) See Beere v. Head, 3 Jon. & Lat. 340.

[(c) Now repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, see post, p. 1056.]

(d) N.B.—Not mentioning Crown debts.

[(e) Sections 1 to 5 of this Act are now repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900.]

(f) This, by s. 5, includes decrees, orders in equity and bankruptcy, and other orders having the operation of a judgment.

notice of a judgment entered up after the Act, and registered at the Common Pleas, but upon which no execution had been issued (a).

Who are purchasers.

26. As to the meaning of the word purchasers, it has been held that a wife and children are purchasers under a marriage settlement of the interests limited to them out of the husband's estate, but the husband as to a life interest limited to himself out of his own estate is not a purchaser, and a judgment therefore would attach upon it just as if it were not the subject of settlement (b).

Construction of the Acts.

27. And the construction of the Acts extending the remedies of the judgment creditor, is that as to equitable interests they are to receive the same construction as the Statute of Frauds, and consequently that simple trusts only can be taken in execution at law (c).

27 & 28 Vict. c. 112.

28. We now come to the Judgments Act, 1864, (d), which enacted, by the first section, that no judgment, statute, or recognisance to be entered up after 29*th July*, 1864, should affect any land until actual delivery of the land in execution by a writ of elegit or other lawful authority (e). And by the third section, that every writ or other process of execution must be registered in the name of the debtor. And by the fourth section, that the creditor to whom any land shall have been actually delivered in execution (f), and whose writ or other process of execution shall be duly registered (g) is entitled forthwith to obtain from the Court of Chancery an order (h), to be served upon the debtor only, for the sale of the debtor's interest in the land (i), and thereupon inquiries are to be directed as to the nature and particulars of such debtor's interest (j). And by

(a) Wallis v. Morris, 10 Jur. 740; and see Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & Sm. 423.

(b) Re Browne, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 283.

(c) Digby v. Irvine, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 149.

[(d) Sections 1, 2, & 3 of this Act, and, in section 4, the words "and whose writ or other process of execution shall be duly registered," are repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900, see post, p. 1056.]

(e) The provisions of this Act were by 28 & 29 Vict. c. 104, s. 48, extended, as from 1st November, 1865, to Crown debts.

(f) As to the effect of these words, see Re Cowbridge Railway Company, 5 L. R. Eq. 413.

[(g) See ante, note (d).]

[(h) To be obtained now on summons; see R. S. C. Order LV., r. 9 B.; Re Harrison and Bottomley, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 465.]

[(i) Where the order is made under the erroneous supposition that the Court is dealing with an interest belonging to the judgment debtor, whereas it in fact belongs to a person not a party to or bound by the proceedings, the purchaser will not acquire a title by virtue of sect. 70, sub-s. 1 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881; Jones v. Barnett, (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 370.]

(j) As to the inquiries which the Court directs, see Re Ventnor Harbour Company, W. N. 1866, p. 9; Re Hull the 5th section, that if it be found that the land is charged with any other debt due on any judgment, statute, or recognisance, whether prior or subsequent to the charge of the petitioner, such other creditor is to be served with notice of the order for sale, and is to be at liberty to attend the proceedings; and the proceeds of sale are then to be distributed amongst the parties entitled according to their priorities.

The Act as affecting equitable interests.

29. This Act has a most important bearing upon equitable interests. The object of it, as expressed in the preamble, was "to assimilate the law affecting freehold, leasehold, and copyhold estates to that affecting pure personal estates," and it extends to land "or any interests therein," and therefore comprises all equitable interests. Judgments, therefore, will not affect any equitable interest "until actual delivery of the land in execution by a writ of elegit or other lawful authority." But the words "actual delivery" are to be construed in a liberal sense, for incorporeal hereditaments and equities are not capable of manual delivery, and yet are included in the Act. Indeed, as Lord Justice Mellish observed: "The sheriff (as to a legal elegit) does not give the creditor actual possession of the land itself, but the effect of his return is to vest the legal estate in the creditor, who can then bring an ejectment" (a). The Act speaks of delivery of possession, not only by writ of elegit, but "by other lawful authority," and this has been held to mean, "any lawful authority which could cause such a delivery in execution as the subject matter is capable of; and where a judgment creditor comes into equity to remove a legal impediment, the relief given is substantially a delivery in possession, whether in form it be a writ of assistance or of sequestration, or the appointment of a receiver" (b).

Present state of the law.

A judgment creditor, therefore, who comes under the operation of the Act, may still obtain equitable execution against an equitable interest, but the judgment forms no lien upon the equitable interest until the creditor has reached some process in equity corresponding to actual execution at law, such as sequestration, or the appointment of a receiver, or an order for sale. Thus a creditor having a judgment against a mortgagor and Hornsea Railway Company, 2 L. R. Eq. 262; Gardner v. London, Chatham and Dover Railway Company, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 385.

(a) Hatton v. Haywood, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 236.

(b) Hatton v. Haywood, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 235, per Lord Selborne; [Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275; Ex parte Evans, 11 Ch. D. 691; 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 252; Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 338;] and see Re Bailey's Trust, 38 L. J. N.S. Ch. 237; [Thompson v. Gill, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 760, 766, 768].

may obtain equitable execution against him by the appointment of a receiver of rents and profits, subject to the right of the mortgagee (a), or he may take proceedings against the mortgagor and mortgagee for redemption of the mortgage and foreclosure of the mortgagor (b).

Proceedings before equitable execution, when premature.

Should a judgment creditor, without taking proceedings for equitable execution, make an application in a summary way under the Act for sale of the equitable interest, the application would be dismissed, as the creditor has no lien by virtue of the judgment itself, and the Court has not yet awarded any equitable execution (c); and so, if a creditor having a judgment against a mortgagor bring an action for execution against the equity of redemption, and, before the Court has made any order amounting to equitable execution, the mortgagor becomes bankrupt, the action must be dismissed, for previously to the bankruptcy, which vested the property in the trustee for the benefit of all the creditors equally, no lien had attached (d).

Property not capable of actual delivery.

Where the subject matter is not in possession, and therefore is in its nature not capable of actual delivery by the sheriff, as in the case of a remainder expectant on a particular estate, there, although the sheriff may have made a return of actual delivery, yet, as such return is false in law, and therefore null, an application for sale under the Act founded upon such return cannot be sustained (e).

An elegit need not be actually sued out.

30. If the creditor seeks to remove some impediment to the legal execution of the judgment, he must lay a foundation for the interference of equity [by showing that the legal remedies have been exhausted. For this purpose it was, prior to the Judicature Act, necessary for the creditor to sue] out an elegit at law (f); and the same rule prevailed where the judgment was merely an equitable lien (g); but the elegit need not have been

(a) Wells v. Kilpin, 18 L. R. Eq. 298; [Kidd v. Tallentire, W. N. 1877, p. 21; Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275; Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 743; Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 338, q.v. as to form of order where the property consists of a theatre.]

(b) Beckett v. Buckley, 17 L. R. Eq. 435; and see Ford v. Wastell, 6 Ha 229; Messer v. Boyle, 21 Beav. 559.

(c) Re Duke of Newcastle, 8 L. R. Eq. 700; and see Re Cowbridge Railway Company, 5 L. R. Eq. 413; Re South, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 369.

(d) Hatton v. Haywood, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 229.

(e) Re South, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 369.

(f) See Dillon v. Plasket, 2 Bligh, N.S. 239; Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 3 M. & Cr. 407; Mitford on Plead. 126, 4th ed.

(g) Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 9 Sim. 60; 3 M. & Cr. 407; Godfrey v. Tucker, 33 Beav. 280; Imperial Mercantile Credit Association v. Newry and Armagh Railway Company, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 23, per Cur.; but see Tunstall v. Trappes, 3 Sim. 286; Rolleston v. Morton, 1 Conn. & Laws. 257.

returned (a); and where the trust estates were in three counties, an elegit in one was held to be sufficient (b). [But since the Judicature Act it is not necessary to sue out an elegit if it can be otherwise shown that there is no property of the debtor against which the elegit could be issued for the purpose of satisfying the judgment, and where an affidavit to that effect was made by the creditor, a receiver was appointed although no elegit had issued (c); and a judgment creditor may in the same action establish a charge and enforce it (d).

[Registration not necessary to give priority where land actually delivered in execution.]

[But necessary before sale.]

31. If land has been actually delivered in execution to a creditor it is not necessary to register the judgment, writ, or other process of execution in order to give the creditor a charge on the land in priority to persons claiming under the debtor, including a purchaser for value without notice (e). But the writ or other process of execution must be registered before a summary order for sale can be obtained under sect. 4 of 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112 (f).]

Fi. fa. sufficient in case of equitable chattel real.

32. When the interest sought to be affected is an equitable chattel real, it is sufficient to sue out a writ of fieri facias (g). And when the assistance of the Court is sought in favour of a County Court judgment against an equitable chattel real, it is sufficient to pursue the analogous step of placing a writ of execution in the hands of the high bailiff, pursuant to the County Court Act (h).

Redemption of a mortgage.

33. A judgment creditor may redeem a mortgage without suing out an elegit; for inasmuch as the Court finds the creditor in a condition to acquire a power over the estate by suing out a writ, it gives to the party the right to come in and redeem other incumbrancers upon the property (i).

Proceedings in equity of judgment creditor after death of conusor.

34. Whether a judgment be legal or equitable, if the creditor take proceedings in equity after the death of the conusor for (a) Dillon v. Plasket, 2 Bligh, N.S. 239; and see Campbell v. Ferrall, Rep. t. Plunket, 388; [Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275].

(b) Dillon v. Plasket, 2 Bligh, N.S. 239.

[(c) Ex parte Evans, 11 Ch. D. 691; 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 252; Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275; Re Whiteley, 56 L. T. N.S. 846, 848; Harris v. Beauchamp, (1894) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 801; Flegg v. Prentis, (1892) 2 Ch. 428.]

[(d) Beckett v. Buckley, 17 L. R. Eq. 435; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 544; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75.]

[(e) Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 743.]

[(f) Re Pope, ubi sup.]

(g) Gore v. Bowser, 3 Sm. & G. 1; affirmed 24 L. J. Ch. 440; Smith v. Hurst, 10 Hare, 30; Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705; Partridge v. Foster, 34 Beav. 1.

(h) Bennett v. Powell, 3 Drew. 326.

(i) Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 3 M. & Cr. 416, per Lord Cottenham; and see Godfrey v. Tucker, 33 Beav. 284.

satisfaction of his claim out of the personal assets, and in case of their deficiency, by a sale of the real estate, an actual elegit is not an essential requisite (a).

[Equitable execution by appointment of receiver.]

[35. Equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver is granted where there is an impediment to the obtaining of execution in due course of law by elegit or fieri facias or otherwise, and, notwithstanding the provision in the Judicature Act, 1873, sect. 25, enabling the Court to appoint a receiver whenever "it is just or convenient," will, in general, be granted only in such circumstances as would have enabled the Court of Chancery before the Judicature Act to interfere by way of injunction or receiver at the suit of the judgment creditor, for the enactment does not authorise the Court to invent new modes of enforcing judgments in substitution for the ordinary modes (b). In accordance with these principles, it has been held that a judgment creditor may obtain the appointment of a receiver of an equitable reversionary interest in personalty or proceeds of sale of realty (c), or of a life interest in settled funds (d), or of a debt or sum of money payable to the judgment debtor to which garnishee proceedings are not applicable (e); or where an order has been made for payment into Court by a defaulting trustee who is out of the jurisdiction, so that service of a writ of attachment cannot be effected (f); and under sect. 89 of the Judicature Act, 1873, a County Court has power to appoint a receiver by way of execution against equitable interests in land (g), but not, it would seem, against interests in patents (h). The

(a) Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 24; see the observations of Lord Fitzgibbon, p. 61; Neate v. Duke of Marlborough, 3 M. & Cr. 416.

[(b) Harris v. Beauchamp, (1894) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 801, where the laxity which has prevailed in granting receivership orders on the ground of greater convenience only was animadverted on; Manchester and Liverpool Banking Company v. Parkinson, 22 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 173; Re Shephard, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 131; Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 338; Thompson v. Gill, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 760, 765.]

[(c) Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; Tyrrell v. Painton, (1895) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 202.]

[(d) Oliver v. Lowther, 42 L. T. N.S. 47; 28 W. R. 381.]

[(e) Westhead v. Riley, 25 Ch. D. 413; and see Beamish v. Stephenson, 18 L. R. Ir. 319; Re M'Nulty, 31 L. R. Ir. 391; Picton v. Cullen, (1900) 2 I. R. (C.A.) 612, (where a receiver was appointed of an instalment of salary due to a National schoolmaster); Goldschmidt v. Oberrheinische Metallwerke, (1906) 1 K. B. 373, (where judgment was obtained by the plaintiff against a German firm who had no property in this country, but were known to have divers English customers who were indebted to them, and whose debts they were endeavouring to collect in order to avoid proceedings).]

[(f) Re Coney, 29 L. R. Ch. D. 399, followed in Re Pemberton, (1907) W. N. 118.]

[(g) Rex v. Selfe, (1908) 2 K. B. 121.]

[(h) Edwards & Co. v. Picard, (1909) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 903.]

appointment of the receiver may, under special circumstances, be made ex parte upon an interlocutory application immediately after the institution of the action (a), or without the institution of a fresh action on an interlocutory application in the action in which the judgment was obtained (b). The appointment, though made conditional upon the receiver's giving security, operates as an immediate equitable execution (c), and as an injunction to restrain the judgment debtor from receiving the money over which the receiver is appointed (d), and if the property is already in the hands of a receiver, the Court may appoint another receiver, but not to act until the earlier receiver has been discharged, which will amount to equitable execution (e); and where a receiver of a partnership had been appointed in a Chancery action, the Court gave a judgment creditor of the firm a charge for his debt and costs on all the partnership moneys come or coming to the receiver, the creditor undertaking to deal with the charge according to the order of the Court (f). If the appointment of the receiver is merely for the purpose of giving a charge, and it is not intended that he should go into possession, the Court will make the appointment without security, on the judgment creditor and the receiver undertaking that the receiver shall not act without the leave of the Court (g). An ex parte injunction to restrain a judgment debtor from dealing with property until after the hearing of an application for a receiver, ought not to be granted unless it is shown that there is danger of the property being made away with by him (h).

This form of relief, though styled "equitable execution," is subject to the ordinary rule that equitable relief can be granted only when proper parties are before the Court. Therefore a receiver by way of equitable execution of the property of a

[(a) Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. (C.A.) 275; Ex parte Evans, 11 Ch. D. 691; 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 252; Minter v. Kent, Sussex, and General Land Society, 72 L. T. N.S. 186.]

[(b) Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75; Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 544: Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 743; M'Garry v. White, 16 L. R. Ir. 322.]

[(c) Ex parte Evans, ubi sup.]

[(d) Tyrell v. Painton, (1895) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 202, 206, per Lindley, L. J.; Re Marquis of Anglesey, (1903) 2 Ch. 727.]

[(e) Per Jessel, M.R., Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 544.]

[(f) Kewney v. Attrill, 34 Ch. D. 345; as to the effect of an order in this form, see Ridd v. Thorne, (1902) 2 Ch. 344.]

[(g) Hewett v. Murray, W. N. 1885, p. 53; 54 L. J. Ch. 572; see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 777, 793.]

[(h) Lloyds Bank Limited v. Medway Upper Navigation Co., (1905) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 359.]

deceased person cannot be appointed in the absence of any person to represent the estate (a).

It is to be observed that, as regards personalty, there is no provision in the Judgments Act, 1838, corresponding with the provision in sect. 13 (b) conferring a charge upon real estate, and consequently, the Court has no jurisdiction to make a declaration of charge in favour of the judgment creditor as to personalty, or enforce such charge by sale (c).

["Execution" under Judgments Extension Act, 1868.]

36. Under the Judgments Extension Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 54), which places a Scotch decreet, a certificate of which is registered pursuant to the Act, on the same footing as an English judgment, and confers jurisdiction on the English Court, "in so far only as relates to execution," the word "execution" includes equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver, and an order for such appointment may accordingly be made to enforce such a decreet (d).

[Attachment under Order 45.]

37. In order to found an attachment under Order 45 of the Rules of the Supreme Court, there must be an actual debt at the time, although it need not be then due. Therefore, where a judgment debtor was entitled for life to the income of a trust fund payable half-yearly, and the trustees had duly made the last half-yearly payment and had no money representing income in their hands, it was held that there was nothing to attach. The proper course in such a case is to obtain equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver (e).

[Effect of bankruptcy.]

38. A creditor who has issued execution against the goods or lands of a debtor, or has attached any debt due to him, is not entitled to retain the benefit of the execution or attachment against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, unless he has completed the execution or attachment before the date of the receiving order, and before notice of the presentation of any bankruptcy petition by or against the debtor, or of the commission of any available act of bankruptcy by the debtor. And an execution against goods is completed by seizure and sale; an attachment of a debt by receipt of the debt; and an execution against land by seizure, or, in the case of an equitable interest, by the appointment of a receiver (f).

[Registration of writs and orders affecting land under 51 & 52 Vict. c. 51.]

39. By and under the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act,

[(a) Re Shephard, 43 Ch. D. (C.A.) 131; and see Re Cave, W. N. (1892) p. 142.]

[(b) See ante, p. 1037.]

[(c) Flegg v. Prentis, (1892) 2 Ch. 428.]

[(d) Thompson v. Gill, (1903) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 760.]

[(e) Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 518; see Re Cowan's Estate, 14 Ch. D. 638.]

[(f) Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 45.]

1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 51), sect. 5, there is established and kept at the Office of Land Registry a register of writs and orders affecting land (a), wherein may be registered in the prescribed manner (b) any writ or order affecting land issued or made by any Court for the purpose of enforcing a judgment, statute or recognisance, and any order appointing a receiver or sequestrator of land. Every entry made in pursuance of the section is to be made in the name of the person whose land is affected (c) by the writ or order registered. The registration of a writ or order in pursuance of the Act ceases to have effect at the expiration of five years from the date of the registration, but may be renewed from time to time, and, if renewed, has effect for five years from the date of the renewal. Registration of a writ or order in pursuance of the section is to have the same effect as, and to make unnecessary, registration thereof in the Central Office of the Supreme Court in pursuance of any other Act.

[Protection of purchasers against non-registered writs and orders.]

40. Sect. 6 of the Act provides as follows: "Every such writ and order as is mentioned in sect. 5, and every delivery in execution or other proceeding taken in pursuance of any such writ or order, or in obedience thereto, shall be void as against a purchaser for value (d) of the land unless the writ or order is for the time being registered in pursuance of this Act;" but it is further provided that, when the writ or order is, at the commencement of the Act (1st Jan. 1889), registered in pursuance of 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112 (e), nothing in the section is to affect the operation of such writ or order, until the expiry of the period for which it is so registered (f), and that where the proceeding in which the writ or order was issued or made is for the time being registered as a lis pendens, in the name of the person whose land is affected by the writ or order, nothing in the section shall affect the operation of such registration.

[Definitions of "land," "purchaser for value," "judgment."]

41. By sect. 4 "land" is defined as including "lands, messuages, tenements, and hereditaments, corporeal and incorporeal of any tenure" (g), and "purchaser for value" includes "a mortgagee or lessee, or other person who for valuable consideration takes any

[(a) See definition of land, inf.]

[(b) General rules under the Act have been issued, and will be found in Elphinstone and Clark on Searches.]

[(c) I.e. whose estate or interest is affected, see inf., note (g).]

[(d) See definition, inf.]

[(e) See ante, p. 1048.]

[(f) This proviso is repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900.]

[(g) The definition, it will be seen, does not expressly include equitable interests in land, but it appears to be clear, from the provisions as to registration and otherwise, that they are included. By the Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), in every Act passed after 1850 the expression interest in land or in a charge on land, and 'purchase' has a meaning corresponding with purchaser."

"Judgment" does not include "an order made by a Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy in the exercise of that jurisdiction, but, save as aforesaid, includes any order or decree having the effect of a judgment" (a).

[Effect of enactment.]

42. The general effect of the Act appears to be, that, except in the case of receiving orders under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, or process of execution by the Crown (which is not mentioned in the Act), unless the writ or order is registered under the Act, the lien of a judgment creditor as against a purchaser for value is taken away. It would further seem that, in the absence of such registration, a purchaser without notice will not in future be affected by mere delivery in execution (b). Registration, however, is requisite only as against a purchaser for value, and not as against volunteers or judgment creditors or the debtor himself.

[Land Charges Act, 1900.]

43. By the Land Charges Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 26), which is to be construed as one with the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888, after a provision in sect. 1, already referred to (c), for the transfer of the business relating to the registry of judgments to the Land Registry Office, it is enacted (inter alia) as follows (d):—Section 2:—"(1.) A judgment or recognisance, whether obtained or entered into on behalf of the Crown or otherwise, and whether obtained or entered into before or after the commencement of this Act, shall not operate as a charge on land, or on any interest in land, or on the unpaid purchase money for any land, unless or until a writ or order for the purpose of enforcing it is registered under sect. 5 of the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888.

"(2). This section shall apply to any inquisition finding a debt due to the Crown, and any obligation or specialty made to the Crown, and any acceptance of office from or under the Crown, whatever may have been its date, in like manner as it applies to a judgment.

"(3). Except under an order of the High Court, no entry shall "land" is (unless the contrary intention appears) to include "messuages, tenements, and hereditaments, houses and buildings of any tenure."]

[(a) A County Court judgment would seem to be within the Act, see Elphinstone and Clark on Searches, Supplement, pp. 9, 11.]

[(b) See Elphinstone and Clark on Searches, Supplement, p. 14, where the opinion is expressed that a purchaser without notice will be bound by the effect of delivery in execution, plus registration, and that where there is in fact an entry in the register at the time of the purchase, he will not be protected because he has omitted to search, and had no notice aliunde.]

[(c) See ante, pp. 587, 1054.]

[(d) The Act (except as to the transfer of business) came into operation on 1st July, 1901; see sect. 6.]

be made in any register kept under sects. 19 and 21 of the Judgments Act, 1838, sect. 8 of the Judgments Act, 1839, the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860, the Judgments Act, 1864, or the Crown Suits, &c., Act, 1865."

Sect. 3 :—"Sect. 6 of the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (a), shall apply to every writ and order affecting land issued or made by any Court for the purpose of enforcing a judgment, whether obtained on behalf of the Crown or otherwise, and whether obtained before or after the commencement of this Act, and to every delivery in execution or other proceeding taken in pursuance of any such writ or order, or in obedience thereto."

The Act also provides that the Middlesex Registry Act, 1708, is not to apply to any instrument made after the passing of the Act, and capable of registration under the Act or the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (b), and repeals previous enactments (c).]

SECTION VIII

OF EXTENTS FROM THE CROWN

Extent binds trust.

1. The equitable interest of a term, or of a freehold held in trust, is liable to an extent from the Crown (d); and this not by the effect of any legislative enactment, but per cursum scaccarii at common law (e). The words of the writ issued to the sheriff are to hold inquest of the lands whereof the debtor, not seisitus fuit, but habuit vel seisitus fuit, and a person might be said to have lands, when by subpœna in Chancery he might exercise any dominion over them (f)

Sale of the lands extended.

2. At common law the extent of the Crown did not authorise a sale of the lands, but only the perception of the rents and profits, until the amount of the debt was levied (g). This defect

[(a) See p. 1054.]

[(b) See sect. 4.]

[(c) See sect. 5. The repeals are previously indicated, so far as material, in the notes to this section of the work.]

(d) King v. Lambe, M'Clel. 422, per Sir W. Alexander; Chirton's case, Dyer, 160, a; S. C., cited Sir E. Coke's case, Godb. 293; the cases cited Id. 294; Id. 298; Babington's case, cited Id. 299; King v. Smith, Sugd. Vend. & Purch. Append. No. xv. 11th ed., per Ch. Baron Macdonald; and see Ib. 14th ed. p. 545.

(e) Attorney-General v. Sands, Hard. 495, per Lord Hale.

(f) See Sir E. Coke's case, Godb. 294.

(g) Rex v. Blunt, 2 Y. & J. 122, per Baron Hullock.

was supplied partially by a statute of Elizabeth (a), and more effectually by the Crown Debtors Act, 1785 (25 G. 3. c. 35). It is by the latter statute enacted, that "it shall be lawful for the Court of Exchequer, and the same Court is hereby authorised, on the application of the Attorney-General (b) in a summary way by motion (c) to the same Court, to order that the right, title, estate, and interest of any debtor to the Crown, and the right, title, estate, and interest of the heirs and assigns of such debtor, which have been or shall be extended under or by virtue of any extent or diem clausit extremum, shall be sold as the Court shall direct, and the conveyance shall be made by the Remembrancer in the said Court of Exchequer, or his deputy, under the direction of the said Court, by a deed of bargain and sale to be inrolled in the said Court."

Equity of redemption.

3. By the effect of this enactment, a trust or equity of redemption (d) of a Crown debtor may now be sold upon summary application to the King's Bench Division by motion.

SECTION IX OF FORFEITURE

Trust not forfeitable at common law for attainder.

1. A trust of lands was never forfeitable at common law for attainder of either treason or felony (e); for forfeiture worked only upon tenure, and a trust was holden of nobody. The ground of the forfeiture at law was that all estates were held upon condition of duty and fidelity to the Lord, and upon breach of allegiance they returned to the Crown, from whom they originally proceeded (f).

[Whether forfeitable for treason under statute.]

[2. Under the provisions and upon the construction of the statutes 26 H. 8. c. 13, sect. 5, 27 H. 8. c. 10, and 33 H. 8. c. 20, sect. 2, it was matter of doubt whether a trust of lands was or was not forfeitable on attainder for high treason (g).]

Whether equities of redemption subject to forfeiture.

3. Equities of Redemption appear to have been made forfeitable for attainder of treason by 33 H. 8. c. 20 (h); for the statute

(a) 13 Eliz. c. 4.
(b) See Rex v. Bulkeley, 1 Y. & J. 256.
(c) See Rex v. Blunt, 2 Y. & J. 120.
(d) King v. De la Motte, Forr. 162.
(e) Attorney-General v. Sands, Hard. 495, per Lord Hale; 1 Hale's P. C. 247; Jenk. 190.
(f) Gilb. on Uses, 38.
[(g) See the subject considered in the ninth edition of this work, pp. 931, et seq.]
(h) Anon. case, cited Reeve v. Attorney-General, 2 Atk. 223.

enumerates conditions, and the interest of the mortgagor is a condition, which, though broken at law, is saved whole to him in a Court of Equity.

4. Trusts of chattels, whether real or personal, were always forfeitable to the Crown upon conviction (a); but in these cases the forfeiture did not reach the legal estate vested in the trustee, but entitled the Crown to sue a subpœna in equity (b).

Trusts of chattels forfeitable upon conviction.

Crown entitled to subpœna.

5. Money liable to be laid out in the purchase of land was regarded as land, and so protected from being forfeited as personal estate (c).

Money liable to be laid out in land.

6. Now by the Forfeiture Act, 1870, it is enacted that "from and after the passing of the Act (4th July, 1870), no confession, verdict, inquest, conviction, or judgment of or for any treason, or felony, or felo de se shall cause any attainder or corruption of blood, or any forfeiture or escheat; provided that nothing in the Act shall affect the law of forfeiture consequent upon outlawry" (d).

33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, s. 1.

7. At law a tenant for life might, until the Real Property Act, 1845 (e), by certain tortious acts, as by a feoffment of the fee simple, have forfeited his estate to the remainderman (f); but had an equitable tenant for life affected to dispose of the equitable fee, no forfeiture would have accrued, for nothing passed beyond the grantor's actual interest (g). By the Act last referred to all conveyances are now innocent, that is, they pass nothing but what the grantor can lawfully part with.

Forfeiture by equitable tenant for life.

SECTION X

OF ESCHEAT

1. [Until the Intestates' Estates Act, 1884 (h)], a trust in fee of lands was not subject to escheat (i). This was determined in the great case of Burgess v. Wheate (j), before Lord Northington, Trust formerly not subject to escheat.

Burgess v. Wheate.

(a) Wikes's case, Lane 54, agreed; King v. Daccombe, Cro. Jac. 512; Jenk. 190, case 92; Attorney-General v. Sands, Hard. 495; Pawlett v. Attorney-General, Hard. 467, per Lord Hale; Sir J. Dack's case, cited Rex v. Holland, Aleyn, 16; Re Thomson's Trusts, 22 Beav. 506.

(b) Rex v. Holland, Al. 14; Sir J. Dack's case, as cited by Rolle, J., Id. 16; Attorney-General v. Sands, Hard. 495, per Lord Hale; and see Kildare v. Eustace, 2 Ch. Ca. 188; S. C., 1 Vern. 405, 419, 423, 428, 437.

(c) Harrop's Estate, 3 Drew. 726.

(d) See ante, pp. 27, 28.

(e) 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 4.

(f) See Co. Lit. 251, a.

(g) Lethieullier v. Tracy, 3 Atk. 728, 730; Lady Whetstone v. Bury, 2 P. W. 146.

[(h) 47 & 48 Vict. c. 71.]

(i) Attorney-General v. Sands, Hard. 488; and see 1 Harg. Jurid. Exerc. 383.

(j) 1 Eden, 176; S. C., 1 W. Bl. 123.

assisted by Lord Mansfield and Sir T. Clarke. The arguments of these eminent judges will amply repay a very careful perusal. It may be mentioned generally, that Sir T. Clarke and Lord Mansfield, while they pursued different lines of reasoning, carried their principles to too great an excess. Sir Thomas Clarke contended that trusts must be governed strictly by uses, and, therefore, as no escheat in equity was of a use, there could be none of a trust. But this position is too large; for trusts do not follow absolutely the law of uses: for then no curtesy would be of a trust, the judgment creditor would have no lien, and equitable interests would not be assets. Lord Mansfield, on the other hand, advanced the doctrine that, as lands escheat at law, so trusts must escheat in equity: that trusts, since the Statute of Uses (a), are not regulated by uses, but the maxim is "Equity follows law,"—"The trust is the estate." But to this it must be answered that a trust has always been recognised as a thing sui generis, and not as identical with the legal fee: it binds not, for instance, a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice. The intermediate opinions of Lord Northington are to be regarded as those most in accordance with the general system: trusts, he thought, were to be administered on the footing of uses; but not, as Sir Thomas Clarke maintained, to the exclusion of the improvements adopted subsequently to the statute of H. 8.: he agreed with Lord Mansfield, that trusts imitated the legal possession, but he added the qualification, as between the privies to the trust only, and not as respected strangers: his objection to the claim of the lord was, that it was for the execution of a trust that did not exist: where there was a trust, it should be considered in that Court as the real estate between the cestui que trust and the trustee, and all claiming by or under them; and the trustee should take no beneficial interest that the cestui que trust could enjoy; but he knew no instance where that Court ever permitted the creation of a trust to affect the right of a third person (b).

Trustee retained the estate.

2. The result of the determination in Burgess v. Wheate, as followed in more recent cases, was, that where the owner of the equitable fee died intestate without heirs, the trustee retained the estate (c).

(a) 27 H. 8. c. 10.

(b) 1 Eden, 251.

(c) Taylor v. Haygarth, 14 Sim. 16; Davall v. New River Company, 3 De G. & Sm. 394; Cox v. Parker, 22 Beav. 168; [Keogh v. M'Grath, 5 L. R. Ir. 478; Re Mary Hudson's Trusts, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 789. Where trustees had in their hands proceeds of sale of land under the Settled Land Acts, but no legal estate in the land was ever vested in them, and on the death

3. The same principle was applied by Sir John Romilly, M.R., to an equity of redemption; and his Honour decided, that, where there was a mortgage in fee, and then the mortgagor died intestate without heirs, the equity of redemption did not escheat to the Crown, but belonged to the mortgagee, subject to the mortgagor's debts (a). Principle applied to equity of redemption.

[4. Where a testatrix, who died without heirs, devised copyholds in trust for one for life, with remainder to charitable uses which were void, so that there was a resulting trust for the testatrix, the customary heiress of the survivor of the trustees of the will appointed by the Court was held entitled to be admitted as tenant for her own benefit (b). [Copyholds.]

5. Now by the Intestates' Estates Act, 1884 (c), where after the passing of that Act (14th August, 1884), a person dies without an heir and intestate as to any equitable estate or interest in any corporeal or incorporeal hereditament, whether devised or not devised to trustees by the will of such person, the law of escheat is to apply in the same manner as if the estate or interest were a legal estate in corporeal hereditaments; and where any beneficial interest in the real estate of a deceased person is not effectually disposed of, such person is, for the purposes of the Act, to be deemed to have died intestate as to the part ineffectually disposed of (d). An undisposed-of residue of proceeds of sale of freeholds devised to executors on trust for sale is covered by these provisions (e)]. [Trust estate now subject to escheat.]

SECTION XI

THE DESCENT OF THE TRUST

1. A trust is governed by the same rules of descent as the legal estate is on which the trust is engrafted, and that whether Trust descends as the legal estate.

of the tenant for life the land, if unsold, would have resulted in fee to the settlor, who left no heir or next of kin, it was held that the money belonged to the Crown as bona vacantia: Re Bond, (1901) 1 Ch. 15]. As to estates pur autre vie, see ante, p. 891. And where a trust of real estate was created in favour of an alien, the Crown was entitled to the benefit of the trust as against both the trustee and the heir at law of the settlor; Barrow v. Wadkin, 24 Beav. 1; and see ante, p. 46.

(a) Beale v. Symonds, 16 Beav. 406.

[(b) Gallard v. Hawkins, 27 Ch. D. 298.]

[(c) 47 & 48 Vict. c 71, s. 4; as to procedure in cases of escheat, see the Escheat (Procedure) Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 53).]

[(d) Sect. 7.]

[(e) Re Wood, (1896) 2 Ch. 596.]

the legal estate descends according to the course of common law, or is subject to a lex loci.

Seisin ex parte maternâ.

2. If one seised of land ex parte maternâ convey to a person in fee upon trust, and no trust is expressed, the resulting interest is part of the original estate, and will descend in the maternal line, and, failing the heirs on the part of the mother, would rather absolutely determine, than pass into the paternal line (a). But if one seised ex parte maternâ devise to A. and his heirs upon trust for a person for life, and then in trust to convey to the testator's heir at law, this breaks the descent, and the heir ex parte paternâ is entitled to the equitable remainder (b).

Gavelkind.

3. If the land be subject to gavelkind, borough English, or other custom, the equitable interest will follow the same course of inheritance (c).

Copyholds.

4. And a trust of copyholds as well as of freeholds is governed by the descent of the legal estate (d), [so that the customary heirs will take, unless there is some special custom of the manor confining the custom of descent to a tenant on the rolls or to a tenant dying seised (e).]

Possessio fratris.

5. The analogy to law is so strictly preserved that, until the Inheritance Act, 1833, if the last cestui que trust had no seisin of the equitable estate corresponding to possessio fratris (f) at law, the trust would have descended to the brother of the half blood, not to the sister of the whole blood (g). By the Act referred to, the half blood is now in all cases (but subject to the preferable claim of the whole blood) capable of inheriting estates, whether legal or equitable (h).

Proceeds from sale of gavelkind lands.

6. If a settlement contain a power of sale, with a trust to reinvest the proceeds in a purchase to the same uses, and the lands are sold, but the proceeds are not reinvested, though the bulk of the estate sold was of gavelkind tenure, yet if one of the uses be to A. and his heirs, the proceeds of the sale will descend to the

(a) Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 177, see 186, 216, 256; Langley v. Sneyd, 1 Sim. & St. 45; Nanson v. Barnes, 7 L. R. Eq. 250; [see now the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), ss. 19, 20, under which, on failure of heirs of the purchaser, the heirs of the person last entitled succeed].

(b) Davis v. Kirk, 2 K. & J. 391; [and see Re Douglas, 28 Ch. D. 327].

(c) Fawcet v. Lowther, 2 Ves. sen. 304, per Lord Hardwicke; Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 713, per Sir J. Jekyll; Cowper v. Cowper, 2 P. W. 720; Jones v. Reasbie, 22 Vin. Ab. 185, pl. 7; Buchanan v. Harrison, 1 J. & H. 662.

(d) Trash v. Wood, 4 M. & Cr. 324.

[(e) Re Hudson, (1908) 1 Ch. 665.]

(f) See ante, p. 933.

(g) Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 713, per Sir J. Jekyll; Cowper v. Earl Cowper, Ib. 736, per eundem; Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 174; Co. Lit 14 b; and see the cases cited, Casborne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 604.

(h) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 106, s. 9.

heirs of A. at common law, and not to the heirs by the custom of gavelkind (a).

Limitation to heirs as purchasers.

7. And if gavelkind or borough English lands (b) be limited to a person's heirs as purchasers, the common law heirs and not the customary heirs are entitled; as, where a testator directed trustees to stand seised of gavelkind lands for the separate use of A. for life, and so as her husband should not intermeddle therewith, and after her death upon trust to convey to the heirs of her body for ever, Lord Hardwicke held that the trust was executory, and that the Court must therefore look to the intention, which was to give a life-estate to A., and the remainder to the heirs as purchasers (c); for, as the husband was not to intermeddle therewith, his curtesy was to be excluded, which would not be the case if A. were tenant in tail. A conveyance of the legal estate was therefore directed to the eldest son and the heirs of his body, with remainder to the second son, and the heirs of his body, &c. "Not," added Lord Hardwicke, "according to the custom of gavelkind, because it must go according to the rule of common law, being not a trust executed, but executory" (d).

SECTION XII

OF ASSETS

The general law relating to assets, as it stood previously to the Statute of Frauds may be thus stated.

Legal assets.

1. The executor or administrator of the deceased was bound to apply his personal estate in payment of his debts; and this in the order of their legal priorities, as first of judgments, then of specialties, and then of simple contract debts; or, as it was expressed, the personal estate was legal assets.

Assets by descent.

2. Again, where the deceased had executed an instrument binding himself and his heirs, the heir to the extent of the real estate (except copyholds) which came to him, was bound to satisfy this

(a) Hougham v. Sandys, 2 Sim. 95, see 153.

[(b) Polley v. Polley (No. 2), 31 Beav. 363; Garland v. Beverley, 9 Ch. D. 213.]

(c) Now by the Inheritance Act, 1833, s. 3, a limitation in a deed to the settlor or his heirs, or in a will to the testator's heirs, confers an estate by purchase; [and under a devise to "right heirs," the person who at the testator's death is his heir at law now takes as devisee, and not by descent, and co-heiresses take as joint tenants, and not as co-parceners; Owen v. Gibbons, (1902) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 636].

(d) Roberts v. Dixwell, 1 Atk. 607; and see Thorp v. Owen, 2 Sm. & G. 90; Sladen v. Sladen, 2 J. & H. 369.

obligation of his ancestor, or, in other words, the lands so inherited were assets by descent.

Equitable assets.

3. The 32 Henry 8. c. 15, which first gave the power of devising lands, inadvertently opened a door to fraud, since it was held that if the owner of land devised it away, a creditor claiming by bond or other instrument binding the heir could not sue the devisee, and if he sued the heir, the latter might plead he had no land by descent. Where, however, the owner had by his will charged his lands with or devised them subject to the payment of debts, a Court of Equity viewed the creditors as cestuis que trust, and made the land available in satisfaction of the debts; and in doing this it paid all the creditors pari passu without reference to their legal priorities, that is, the lands so charged or devised were equitable assets.

Equitable interests.

4. With these prefatory remarks we proceed to the consideration of equitable interests as assets before the Statute of Frauds.

Trusts of chattels are assets.

5. The trust of a chattel was always accounted assets in equity (a); by which is meant, not equitable assets, but assets for the due application of which in payment of debts the personal representative was responsible in equity, if not at law.

Trusts of a freehold.

6. But whether the trust of a freehold should be assets in the hands of the heir for payment of debts by specialty in which the heirs were bound was for a long time vexata quæstio. On the one hand it was argued, that the trust ought to follow the use, and that the use was not liable to a bond creditor; on the other hand it was said, that trusts since the Statute of Uses had been conducted by the Courts on more liberal principles, and, as the legal fee was available to the discharge of specialty debts at law, so a Court of Equity ought to adopt the same rule in the administration of trusts.

Bennet v. Box.

It was determined by Lord Hale, Chief Justice Hyde, and Justice Windham, in the case of Bennet v. Box, that a trust in fee should not be assets (b); and Lord Keeper Bridgman afterwards felt himself bound by the authority of this decision in respect of a trust (c), though he doubted somewhat as to an equity of redemption (d); and so the law as to a trust was laid down by Lord Hale in Attorney-General v. Sands (e).

Grey v. Colvile.

The question was renewed before Lord Nottingham in (a) Attorney-General v. Sands, Freem. 131; Barthrop v. West, 2 Ch. Rep. 33; Duke of Norfolk's case, 3 Ch. Ca. 10. See post, p. 1066.

(b) 1 Ch. Ca. 13.

(c) Pratt v. Colt, 1 Ch. Ca. 128; S. C., Freem. 139.

(d) Trevor v. Peryor, 1 Ch. Ca. 148.

(e) Hard. 490; S. C., Freem. 131; S. C., Nels. 135.

Grey v. Colvile (a), when trust estates were declared to be assets in equity. The case was afterwards reheard before Lord Guildford, and is reported by Vernon under the title of Creed v. Colvile (b), and his Lordship said, he "should be much governed by the case of Bennet v. Box, unless they could show that the latter precedents had been otherwise," and directed them to attend him with precedents towards the latter end of the term. The cause was brought on again the December following, and the Court ordered that the parties should attend the two Chief Justices and the Lord Chief Baron, who were desired to certify their opinion on the question (c). In Michaelmas term the next year, upon the motion of the defendants, it was ordered, that, unless plaintiffs, the creditors, procured the certificate of the Lords Chief Justices' and Lord Chief Baron's opinion by the first day of the next term, the bill should be dismissed without further motion (d). No further proceedings appear in the case; and, therefore, it must be concluded that the bill was dismissed. There can be no doubt, however, that Lord Nottingham's decision was correct, and in Goffe v. Whalley (e), the question was renewed, but the result does not appear, unless the overruling of the heir-at-law's demurrer to the creditor's bill was on the ground that the Court held the trust to be assets.

Statute of Frauds.

7. Thus stood the law before the Statute of Frauds (f). By the 10th section of that Act a trust in fee simple was declared to be assets by descent. But the enactment was taken to embrace simple trusts only, and not complicated trusts (g), or equities of redemption (h), so that the question still remained whether such interests as were not within the statute might not still, upon the general principles of equity, be treated as assets by analogy to law. This was expressly so decided as to equities of redemption in Plucknet v. Kirk (i), and other cases (j); and upon principle, the rule governing equities of redemption ought equally to be applied to every other equitable interest.

(a) 2 Ch. Rep. 143.
(b) 1 Vern. 172.
(c) R. L. 1683, A. fol. 166.
(d) R. L. 1684, A. fol. 210.
(e) 1 Vern. 282, Raithby's edit.
(f) 29 Car. 2. c. 3.
(g) The former part of the clause, which enables the sheriff to take a trust in execution, was construed not to include a complicated trust, and therefore it is presumed the latter part of the clause could not be differently interpreted.
(h) Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 293, per Lord Hardwicke; Solley v. Gower, 2 Vern. 61, per Lord Jeffries.
(i) 1 Vern. 411; Reg. Lib. 1686, B. fol. 181, 184; and see Lord Jeffries' opinion in Solley v. Gower, 2 Vern. 61.
(j) Anon., Freem. 115; Acton v. Peirce, 2 Vern. 480; Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 290.

3 & 4 W. 4. c. 104.

8. The question is now of little importance, as it was enacted by the Administration of Estates Act, 1833 (a), that all a person's "estate or interest" (which must include any trust) in lands, tenements or hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, or other real estate, whether freehold, customaryhold, or copyhold, should be assets for the payment of debts as well on simple contract as on specialty.

Whether a trust is legal or equitable assets.

9. There remains to be considered the question, whether a trust shall, as to persons who died before 1*st January*, 1870 (b), be administered as legal or equitable assets.

Trust of a chattel.

10. It has in some cases been considered that the mere circumstance that property was equitable at the testator's death, was sufficient to make it equitable assets (c), but this is clearly erroneous, the question being, not whether the assets can be recovered at law or in equity, but whether the creditor can obtain payment thereout only from a Court of Equity (d). Now if an executor recover money in that character under a trust or other equitable right, the proceeds, when actually come to his hands, will be legal assets, even in a Court of Law (e); and it would be an inconsistency to say, that if the property has been reduced into possession, a Court of Equity shall administer it as legal assets, but if it be outstanding at the time when the creditor institutes proceedings in equity, it shall be administered as equitable assets. Upon this principle it has at length been established, after much fluctuation (f), that equitable interests in personal estate are to be distributed as legal assets (g). "Whether," observed Sir R. Kindersley, "the assets are such that the executor can recover them in a Court of Law or in a Court of Equity only is immaterial. The true test is, whether he recovers them virtute officii. If the assets come to his hands as executor, a Court of Law would treat them as assets, and they are to be administered (in equity) as legal assets" (h).

Trust in fee in the hands of the heir.

11. A trust in fee stands in a very different light from the trust of a chattel in the hands of the executor. As regards the

[(a) See post, p. 1068.]

(b) See post, p. 1070.

(c) Cox's case, 3 P. W. 341, and note Ib.; Hartwell v. Chitters, Amb. 308; Clay v. Willis, 1 B. & C. 372.

(d) Cook v. Gregson, 3 Drew. 549.

(e) Hawkins v. Lawse, 1 Leon. 155, per Periam, J.; Anon. case, 1 Roll. Rep. 56; Harwood v. Wrayman, cited Ib.; S. C., reported Mo. 858.

(f) See cases cited in note (c), supra, and Morgan v. Sherrard, 1 Vern. 293; Wilson v. Fielding, 10 Mod. 426; S. C., 2 Vern. 763; Sharpe v. Earl of Scarborough, 4 Ves. 541.

(g) Cook v. Gregson, 3 Drew. 547; Shee v. French, Ib. 716; Christy v. Courtenay, 26 Beav. 140; and see Lovegrove v. Cooper, 2 Sm. & G. 271; Mutlow v. Mutlow, 4 De G. & J. 539.

(h) Cook v. Gregson, 3 Drew. 547.

inheritance, until modern Acts (a), it was only in respect of creditors by specialty in which the heirs were bound, that the question of legal or equitable assets could in fact have arisen, for specialties in which the heirs were not bound, and simple contract debts, were not payable out of real estate, and statutes and judgments, though liens, to a partial extent, upon the equitable fee, were not payable as debts, but as incumbrances. In respect then of specialties in which the heirs were bound, a plain and simple trust was made assets in a Court of Law in the hands of the heir by the Statute of Frauds, and therefore was legal assets in equity (b); but complicated trusts and equities of redemption were not touched by the statute; and it would seem, upon principle, that as equity subjected the trust to specialty creditors by analogy only to law, the Court ought, by observing the analogy throughout, to adopt the legal course of administration.

Grey v. Colvile.

In the case of Grey v. Colvile, before referred to, in which bond-creditors had, after the debtor's decease, entered up judgments against the heir who took by descent, it appears to have been assumed by the litigants, and was decreed by Lord Nottingham, than whom no Chancellor had a more just conception of the true nature of trusts, that the creditors should be paid according to the priority of their judgments out of a trust in fee (c).

Whether trust in fee devised is legal or equitable assets.

12. In the case of the devise of a trust in fee, the analogy presented by the case of the devise of a legal fee ought, it is conceived, to be pursued. By 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 14, the power of the owner of the land to devise it away in fraud of his creditors (d) was first restrained, and a remedy was given against the heir and devisee jointly, in respect of the property so devised. The statute, however, expressly excepted from its operation, as do also the subsequent Acts enlarging the creditors' remedies (e), devisees clothed with a trust or charge for payment of debts. It is conceived, that the true test whether an equitable estate in fee devised shall be legal or equitable assets, is, whether the

(a) 47 G. 3. c. 74, Sess. 2, as to traders only; and 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 104, post, p. 1068.

(b) Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 293, per Lord Hardwicke; King v. Ballett, 2 Vern. 248.

(c) Grey v. Colvile, 2 Ch. Rep. 143; and see Morrice v. Bank of England, 2 Sw. 585; Dollond v. Johnson, 2 Sm. & G. 301.

(d) See ante, p. 229.

(e) 47 G. 3. c. 74, Sess. 2; the Debts Recovery Act, 1830 (11 G. 4. & 1 W. 4.), c. 47; [Re Atkinson, (1908) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 307, ante, p. 930 ("devisee" including equitable tenant for life)]; the Administration of Estates Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4.), c. 104.

estate if legal and devised in similar terms would have constituted legal or equitable assets (a).

Administration of Estates Act, 1833.

13. By 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 104, it was enacted that when any person should die seised of or entitled to any estate or interest in lands, tenements, or hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, or other real estate, whether freehold, customaryhold, or copyhold, which he should not by his last will have charged with, or devised subject to the payment of his debts, the same should be assets, to be administered in Courts of Equity, for the payment of the just debts of such person, as well debts due on simple contract as on specialty; and that the heir or heirs at law, customary heir or heirs, devisee or devisees of such debtor, should be liable to all the same suits in equity at the suit of any of the creditors of such debtor, whether creditors by simple contract or by specialty, as the heir or heirs at law, devisee or devisees of any person or persons, who died seised of freehold estates, was or were before the passing of that Act liable to, in respect of such freehold estates, at the suit of creditors by specialty in which the heirs were bound: provided always that in the administration of assets under and by virtue of that Act, all creditors by specialty in which the heirs were bound should be paid the full amount of the debts due to them before any of the creditors, by simple contract, or by specialty in which the heirs were not bound, should be paid any of their demands.

Construction of the Act.

Upon the construction of this statute the following observations occur:—

a. The Act creates a general charge on the estate for the benefit of creditors (b), subject only to the right of alienation in the heir or devisee (c).

β. The words "assets to be administered in equity" mean only that the creditor's remedy shall be in equity, and not that the estate shall be administered as equitable assets, and [it would seem], therefore, that the estate is to be administered as legal assets (d).

[γ. No right of retainer is given to the heir or devisee for a

(a) See Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 51, 290; Sharpe v. Earl of Scarborough, 4 Ves. 538; and the observations on those cases in 3rd ed. of this work, p. 690.

(b) Kinderley v. Jervis, 22 Beav. 1.

(c) See cases ante, p. 279, note (c).

(d) See Foster v. Handley, 1 Sim. N.S. 200; more fully reported, 15 Jur. 73; Re Burrell, 9 L. R. Eq. 443, where it was held that creditors by specialty in which the heirs were bound were entitled to priority as against an equity of redemption in copyholds. [In Re Illidge, 24 Ch. D. 654, in which, however, the earlier cases were not cited, it seems to have been assumed by Chitty, J., that the assets were to be administered as equitable assets: and see S. C., on appeal, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 478, 484.]

debt due to him on a simple contract. But it would seem that such a right of retainer in respect of a debt by specialty in which the heirs are bound is not taken away (a).]

δ. The express terms of the Act giving priority to creditors by specialty in which the heirs are bound over creditors by specialty in which the heirs are not bound, have, as a matter of course, had full effect given to them (b).

ε. The Act makes no mention of debts by judgment or by decree of a Court of Equity, so that the remedies for the recovery of these out of the real estate may perhaps be viewed as still depending upon the general law (c).

[(a) Re Illidge, 24 Ch. D. 654; 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 478; explaining Ferguson v. Gibson, 14 L. R. Eq. 379. The foundation of the rule, allowing the right of retainer out of the real estate to an heir at law or devisee being a creditor by specialty in which the heirs were bound, was, that he might not be under a disadvantage by not being able to sue himself; since, if he could not retain, other like creditors might have obtained priority over him by suing him. But a simple contract creditor, or creditor by specialty in which the heirs were not bound, could not get a judgment giving him priority, and so the rule had no application in his case. There appears to be nothing in the Administration of Estates Act, 1833, or in the Administration of Estates Act, 1869, to take away from a creditor by specialty in which the heir is bound the old right of action against the heir or devisee, and it seems to follow that although the former statute makes real estate liable to be administered by Courts of Equity, the right of the heir or devisee to retain is no more taken away than the power of Courts of Equity to administer personal estate takes away an executor's right of retainer; Re Illidge, 24 Ch. D. 654.]

(b) Richardson v. Jenkins, 1 Drew. 477.

(c) Judgments against the testator or intestate and decrees in equity against the testator or intestate are paid out of the personal estate pari passu. Decrees (if for payment of money or costs) were by the Judgments Act, 1838, s. 18 (though they were not formerly; Bligh v. Darnley, 2 P. W. 619; Mildred v. Robinson, 19 Ves. 585) liens upon the real estate; and they always ranked as of equal degree with judgments in the administration of personal estate, and therefore above specialty or simple contract debts; Searle v. Lane, 2 Vern. 37; Foly's case, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 459; Stasby v. Powell, 1 Freem. 333; Peploe v. Swinburn, Bunb. 48. Judgments and decrees against the personal representative are paid out of legal assets in the order of their dates; Dollond v. Johnson, 2 Sm. & G. 301, and cases cited, Ib.; [and see Re Bentinck, (1897) 1 Ch. 673]. When dockets were in use, a judgment against a person had no priority in the administration of his assets over other debts unless it was docketed; Hickey v. Hayter, 6 T. R. 384; Landon v. Ferguson, 3 Russ. 349. But when the docket was closed the judgment had priority per se, and the executor or administrator was bound by that priority though he had no notice, and no means of obtaining notice of the judgments; Fuller v. Redman, 26 Beav. 600. To remedy this inconvenience it was in effect enacted by Lord St Leonards' Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 38), ss. 3, 4, that judgments should have no priority in the administration of assets unless they were registered; Van Gheluwe v. Nerinckx, 21 Ch. D. 189. But the Act does not apply where the judgment is recovered against the executor or administrator, as in that case the personal representative has full notice necessarily, and no remedy is required; Jennings v. Rigby, 33 Beav. 198; Gaunt v. Taylor, 3 Man. & G. 886, and 3 Scott, (N.S.) 700; Re Williams' Estate, 15 L. R. Eq. 270; Re Maggi, 20 Ch. D. 545. And the Act is retrospective, so that an unregistered judgment, though entered up against a debtor living at Hinde Palmer's Act.

14. As regards the administration of estates of persons who may have died on or after the 1st January, 1870, the legislature, by the Administration of Estates Act, 1869 (a), has now abolished the distinction between specialty and simple contract debts, and has directed that all specialty and simple contract debts shall be paid pari passu. [But this does not interfere with or enlarge the right of the executor to retain his own debt, as against creditors in equal degree with himself, except in so far as the Act, by placing the specialty and simple contract creditors on an equality, necessarily increases the fund available for payment of the latter class of creditors (b); nor does the Act affect his general right to pay the testator's debts in any order he thinks fit, and to pay a simple contract creditor in priority to a specialty creditor, notwithstanding that the latter may eventually remain pro tanto unpaid (c).

[Retainer by executor.]

15. Where there are specialty debts and simple contract debts, and the right of retainer of the executor is in respect of a simple contract debt, the assets should be apportioned on the footing the date of the Act, has no preference; Kemp v. Waddingham, 1 L. R. Q. B. 355. But otherwise, where the debtor was dead at the date of the Act, so that the creditor had acquired a vested right; Evans v. Williams, 2 Dr. & Sm. 324. [And the priority of judgment creditors in the administration of assets is not affected by s. 10 of the Judicature Act, 1875; Smith v. Morgan, 5 C. P. D. 337; Re Maggi, 20 Ch. D. 545; but as to voluntary creditors, see Re Whitaker, (1901) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 9.]

(a) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 46.

[(b) Crowder v. Stewart, 16 Ch. D. 368; Wilson v. Coxwell, 23 Ch. D. 764; Re Jones, 31 Ch. D. 440; and see Re Bentinck, (1897) 1 Ch. 673, 677, observing on Re Williams' Estate, 15 L. R. Eq. 270. The right is not extended to real assets by the Land Transfer Act, 1897. Re Williams, (1904) 1 Ch. 52. If made bonâ fide the retainer is good as against creditors of higher degree of whose existence the executor, before fully administering, had no knowledge: Re Fludyer, (1898) 2 Ch. 562. It is the duty of an executor or administrator to exercise his right of retainer for the benefit of his cestuis que trust; Fox v. Garrett, 28 Beav. 16; Re Owen, 23 L. R. Ir. 328; but the legal personal representative of a sole or last surviving trustee, who has himself never acted in the trust, is not bound to exercise, for the benefit of the cestuis que trust, his right of retainer in respect of a debt due to him in the character of trustee, by reason of the default of his testator or intestate: Re Ridley, (1904) 2 Ch. 774; Re Benett, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 216 (where Fox v. Garrett, sup., and Re Owen, sup., were observed upon, and the representative having exercised a power of apppointing new trustees, it was questioned whether the right of retainer continued.) The administrator retaining his own debts is not "unduly preferring" himself as a creditor within the meaning of the common form of administration bond; Davies v. Parry, (1899) 1 Ch. 602; Re Belham, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 52; but as the right of retainer is anomalous, the Court will not willingly lend its assistance to the exercise of it; Trevor v. Hutchins, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 844, 852, and see ante, p. 737.]

[(c) Re Samson, (1906) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 584 (overruling Re Hankey, (1889) 1 Ch. 541); Re Orsmond, 58 L. T. N.S. 24. An order in an administration action under Order XV., Rule 1, merely for an account by an executrix and reserving further consideration, does not affect the right of creditors to sue her, or her right to prefer creditors; Re Barratt, 43 Ch. D. 70.]

of giving all the creditors an equal dividend. The dividend in respect of the specialty debts is payable to the specialty creditors in full, and out of the residue of the assets the executor will retain his debt, and the surplus, if any, is divisible rateably among the other simple contract creditors (a).

16. The Act does not affect the priority of the Crown over creditors in equal degree, and, therefore, where there is a simple contract debt due to the Crown, the assets will be apportioned rateably between the specialty and simple contract creditors, and the Crown debt paid out of the amount apportioned to the latter (b). [Priority of Crown debt.]

17. By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (c), sect. 125, and the Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (d), sect. 21, an order may be made in bankruptcy for the administration, according to the law of bankruptcy, of the estate of a deceased debtor. And where proceedings for administration of the debtor's estate have been instituted in another Court, such Court may, on proof that the estate is insufficient for payment of debts, transfer the proceedings to the Court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy, and thereupon that Court can make an order for the administration of the estate according to the law of bankruptcy. It is, however, in the discretion of the Court in which the estate is being administered to retain the administration (e), and where the estate was small, the number of creditors small, and considerable expense had been incurred in the administration before the application for transfer was made, an order for transfer was refused; and a doubt was expressed whether a creditor who had not proved his debt had any locus standi to apply for the transfer (f); but it has been said that the scheme of the section is to make the administration of the estate of an insolvent deceased person equivalent, as far as possible, to the administration of the estate of a bankrupt living person, and that therefore, unless there is some reason against it, the transfer ought to be made (g). And the circumstances that the executor has a right of retainer, and that he is not bound to plead the Statute of Limitations, are not grounds for directing a transfer (h). By sub-sect. 5 of sect. 125, upon an order being [Administration in bankruptcy of estate of deceased debtor.]

[(a) Wilson v. Coxwell, 23 Ch. D. 764; Re Jones, 31 Ch. D. 440.]

[(b) Re Bentinck, (1897) 1 Ch. 673.]

[(c) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52.]

[(d) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 71.]

[(e) Re Baker, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 262.]

[(f) Re Weaver, 29 Ch. D. 236; and as to the effect of section 125 generally, see Re Williams, 36 Ch. D. 573.]

[(g) Re Kenward, W. N. (1906) 16, per Kekewich, J.]

[(h) Re York, 36 Ch. D. 233; Re Baker, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 262; as to right of retainer of assets by an executor in respect of his own debt, before made for administration, the property of the debtor vests in the official receiver as trustee, and he is to realise and distribute it in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The provisions here referred to are those relating to the property of the debtor, not those relating to the property of other persons; thus, for instance, sect. 47, avoiding certain voluntary settlements executed by a bankrupt, has no application (a); and the administration order under sect. 125 is not equivalent to a receiving order for the purposes of sect. 45 (b), restricting the rights of execution creditors (c); but sect. 55 of the Act, giving the trustee power to disclaim onerous property, applies (d). By sub-sect. 7 of sect. 125, the official receiver is to have regard to any claim by the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor to payment of the proper funeral and testamentary expenses incurred by him, and such claims are to be deemed a preferential debt, and paid in full out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts. By sub-sect. 8, any surplus assets, after payment in full of all debts, costs of administration, and interest, are to be paid over to the legal personal representative of the debtor, or dealt with in such other manner as may be prescribed. By sub-sect. 9, notice to the legal personal representative of a deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under the section, if an order for administration is made thereon, is to be equivalent to notice of an act of bankruptcy, and after such notice no payment or transfer of property made by the legal personal representative is to operate as a discharge as between himself and the official receiver, but save as aforesaid nothing in the section is to invalidate any payment made, or any act or thing done, in good faith, by the legal personal representative before the date of the order for administration.

If an order for administration be made under this section, it is conceived that the executor's right of retainer will, as from the time of his receiving notice of the petition, cease so far as regards any assets not actually retained at the date of the notice (e).]

notice of petition for an administration order by another creditor, see Re Gilbert, (1898) 1 Q. B. 282.]

[(a) Re Gould, 19 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 92, 99.]

[(b) See ante, p. 1054.]

[(c) Hasluck v. Clark, (1899) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 699.]

[(d) Re Mellison, (1906) 2 K. B. 68.]

[(e) But see Re Baker, 44 Ch. D. (C.A.) 262, 271. As to the administration of small estates under the Public Trustee Act, 1906, sect. 3, see ante, pp. 703, 704.]

CHAPTER XXIX

RELIEF OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST AGAINST THE FAILURE OF THE TRUSTEE

We have now pointed out in what the estate of the cestui que trust primarily consists. We have also examined what are the incidents and properties of it by analogy to estates at law or by statute. It follows next that we speak of certain collateral or subsidiary rights, by which the cestui que trust is supported in the enjoyment of his equitable interest against the various accidents to which an estate, not direct, but transmitted through the instrumentality of another, must necessarily be exposed. In the present chapter we shall consider the force of the maxim, "A trust shall not fail for want of a trustee."

Trust follows the estate.

1. It is a general rule that, whenever the intention of the settlor can be clearly collected, and there is no want of consideration, the Court will follow the estate into the hands of the legal owner, not being a purchaser for value without notice, and compel him to give effect to the trust by the execution of the proper assurance.

Trustee dying in testator's lifetime, or otherwise failing.

Thus, if a devisor or settlor appoints a trustee, who either dies in the testator's lifetime (a), or disclaims (b), or is incapable of taking the estate (c), or if the trustee otherwise fail (d), the trust is not thereby defeated, but fastens on the conscience of the person upon whom the legal estate has devolved. "I take it," said Lord Chief Justice Wilmot, "to be a first and fundamental principle in equity, that the trust follows the legal estate wheresoever it goes, except it comes into the hands of a purchaser for

(a) Moggridge v. Thackwell, 3 B. C. C. 528; S. C., 1 Ves. jun. 475, per Lord Thurlow; Attorney-General v. Downing, Amb. 552, admitted; Tempest v. Lord Camoys, 35 Beav. 201.

(b) Backhouse v. Backhouse, V.C. of Eng. 20 Dec. 1844.

(c) Sonley v. Clockmakers' Company, 1 B. C. C. 81; Anon. case, 2 Vent. 349; White v. Baylor, 10 Ir. Eq. Rep. 53, 54.

(d) Attorney-General v. Stephens, 3 M. & K. 347.

valuable consideration without notice. A Court of Equity considers devises of trusts as distinct substantive devises, standing on their own basis, independent of the legal estate; and the legal estate is nothing but the shadow which always follows the trust estate in the eye of a Court of Equity" (a).

Direction to sell and no person to sell named.

2. If a testator direct a sale of his lands for certain purposes, but omits to name a person to sell, the trust attaches upon the conscience of the heir, and he is strictly bound in equity to give effect to the intention (b).

Direction for separate use, and no trustee appointed.

3. So, if [before the Married Women's Property Act, 1882,] the lands were devised (c), or a sum of money was bequeathed (d) to a feme covert for her sole and separate use, but without the interposition of a trustee, the property vested at law in the husband, in her right, but in equity he held upon trust for the separate use of the wife.

Failure of trustee of a power imperative.

4. We have seen, in a former chapter (e), that powers are distributable into powers arbitrary and powers imperative, and that powers imperative do in reality partake of the nature of trusts. Upon this ground the Court protects a cestui que trust from the failure of the donee of a power imperative, as it would do from the failure of any other trustee. "If," said Lord Eldon, "the power be one which it is the duty of the party to execute —made his duty by the requisition of the will—put upon him as such by the testator, who has given him an interest extensive enough to enable him to discharge it, he is a trustee for the exercise of the power, and not as having a discretion whether he will exercise it or not; and the Court adopts the principle as to trusts, and will not permit his negligence, accident, or other circumstances to disappoint the interests of those for whose benefit he is called upon to execute it" (f). "As to the objection," said Lord Chief Justice Wilmot, "that these powers are personal to the trustees, and by their deaths become unexecutable, they are not powers, but trusts, and there is a very essential difference between them. Powers are never imperative—they leave the act to be done at the will of the party to whom they

(a) Attorney-General v. Lady Downing, Wilm. 21, 22.

(b) First clearly settled in Pitt v. Pelham, Freem. 134.

(c) Bennet v. Davis, 2 P. W. 316; Major v. Lansley, 2 R. & M. 355.

(d) Rolfe v. Budder, Bunb. 187; Tappenden v. Walsh, 1 Phillim. 352; Prichard v. Ames, T. & R. 222; Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 583; and see Roberts v. Spicer, 5 Mad. 491; Wills v. Sayers, 4 Mad. 409; Rich v. Cockell, 9 Ves. 375; [Wassell v. Leggatt, (1896) 1 Ch. 554]. At first there was some doubt: Harvey v. Harvey, 1 P. W. 125; Burton v. Pierpoint, 2 P. W. 78.

(e) See ante, pp. 750, 751.

(f) Brown v. Higgs, 8 Ves. 574.

are given. Trusts are always imperative, and are obligatory upon the conscience of the party intrusted. This Court supplies the defective execution of powers, but never the non-execution of them, for the powers are meant to be optional. But the person who creates a trust means it should at all events be executed. The individuals named as trustees are only the nominal instruments to execute that intention, and if they fail, either by death, or by being under disability, or by refusing to act, the constitution has provided a trustee. Where no trustees are appointed at all, this Court assumes the office. There is some personality in every choice of trustees; but this personality is res unius ætatis, and, if the trust cannot be executed through the medium which was in the primary view of the testator, it must be executed through the medium which the constitution has substituted in its place. A college was to be founded under the eye of five trustees: that cannot be: the death of the trustees frustrates that medium. What then? Must the end be lost because the means are by the act of God become impossible? Suppose the question had been asked the testator, 'If the trustees die or refuse to act, do you mean no college at all, and the heirs to take the estate?' 'No: I trust them to execute my intention: I do not put it into their power whether my intention shall ever take place at all'" (a).

Trustee of a discretion dying in testator's lifetime, declining office, &c.

5. If trustees, then, have an imperative power committed to them, and they either die in the testator's lifetime (b), or decline the office (c), or disagree among themselves as to the mode of execution (d), or do not declare themselves before their death (e), or if, from any other circumstance (f), the exercise of the power by the party intrusted with it becomes impossible, the Court will substitute itself in the place of the trustees, and will exercise the power by the most reasonable rule. And the Court assumes the jurisdiction of exercising the power retrospectively (g), and

(a) Attorney General v. Lady Downing, Wilm. 23.

(b) Attorney-General v. Lady Downing, Wilm. 7; S. C., Amb. 550; Attorney-General v. Hickman, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 193; Maberly v. Turton, 14 Ves. 499.

(c) Doyley v. Attorney-General, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 194; Gude v. Worthington, 3 De G. & Sm. 389; Izod v. Izod, 32 Beav. 242; [and see Re Stanger, 39 W. R. 455; 64 L. T. N.S. 693].

(d) Moseley v. Moseley, Rep. t. Finch, 53; and see Wainwright v. Waterman, 1 Ves. jun. 311; [Re Roth, 74 L. T. N.S. 50].

(e) Hewett v. Hewett, 2 Eden, 332; Flanders v. Clark, 1 Ves. 10, per Lord Hardwicke; Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469; Ray v. Adams, 3 M. & K. 243, per Sir J. Leach; Grieveson v. Kirsopp, 2 Keen, 653; Croft v. Adam, 12 Sim. 639; Re Hargrove's Trusts, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 256.

(f) Attorney-General v. Stephens, 3 M. & K. 347; Re Richards, 8 L. R. Eq. 119.

(g) Edwards v. Grove, 2 De G. F.

will take up the trust, whatever difficulties or impracticabilities may stand in the way (a); for, as Lord Kenyon laid down the rule strongly, if the trust can by any possibility be executed by the Court, the non-execution by the trustee shall not prejudice the cestui que trust (b).

Mode of execution.

6. In what mode the Court will execute the power will vary according to the circumstances of the case.

Where the settlor has prescribed a rule, the Court will adopt it.

Where the discretion of the trustee is to be governed by some rule, or to be measured by a state of facts, which the Court can inquire into as effectually as a private person, then the Court can "look with the eyes of trustees," and will substitute its own judgment for that of the individual (c).

Gower v. Mainwaring.

Thus, in Gower v. Mainwaring (d), John Mainwaring executed a trust deed, by which the trustees were to give the residue of the real and personal estate among the settlor's relations where they should see most necessity, and as they should think most equitable and just. Two of the trustees died, and, the third refusing to act, it was discussed how far the discretion of the trustees could be vicariously exercised by the Court. Lord Hardwicke said: "What differs it from the cases mentioned is this, that here is a rule laid down for the trust. Wherever there is a trust or power—for this is a mixture of both—I do not know that the Court can put itself in the place of those trustees, and exercise that discretion. Where trustees have power to distribute generally according to their discretion without any object pointed out or rule laid down, the Court interposes not; unless in case of a charity, which is different, the Court exercising a discretion as having the general government and regulation of charity. But here is a rule laid down: the trustees are to judge of such necessity and occasions of the family: the Court can (e) judge of the necessity: that is a judgment to be made of facts existing, so that the Court can make the judgment as well as the trustees, and, when informed by evidence of the necessity, can judge what is equitable and just on this necessity," and his Lordship decreed a division among the relations (such relations to be restricted to those within the Statute of Distributions) according to their necessities and circumstances, which the and J. 222, per L. J. Turner; Maberly v. Turton, 14 Ves. 499.

(a) Pierson v. Garnet, 2 B. C. C. 46, per Lord Kenyon.

(b) Brown v. Higgs, 5 Ves. 505

(c) Hewett v. Hewett, 2 Eden, 332; Maberly v. Turton, 14 Ves. 499.

(d) 2 Ves. 87.

(e) In Mr Belt's edition of Vesey there is the strange misprint of "cannot judge."

Master should inquire into, and consider how it might be most equitably and justly divided (a).

How the Court will exercise the power where the settlor has laid down no rule.

7. Where the settlor has given no rule or measure by which the discretion is to be governed, the Court cannot in that case act upon mere caprice, but will execute the power by the most reasonable and intelligible rule that the circumstances of the case will admit.

Equality is equity.

And upon ordinary occasions the Court proceeds upon the maxim that equality is equity (b). Thus in Doyley v. Attorney-General (c), a testator gave his real and personal estate to trustees upon trust to dispose thereof to such of his relations on his mother's side who were most deserving, and in such manner as they should think fit, and for such charitable uses and purposes as they should also think most proper and convenient; and the power having devolved upon the Court, Sir J. Jekyll directed that one moiety of the personal estate should go to the relations of the testator on the mother's side, and the other moiety to charitable uses, the known rule that Equality is equity being, he said, the best rule to go by. He had no rule of judging of the merits of the testator's relations, and could not enter into spirits, and therefore could not prefer the one to the other, but all should come in without distinction.

Words of gift and words of power distinguished.

8. With respect to the subject under consideration, the cases in which the donor's intention is expressed in the form of a gift may admit of distinction from those in which it is expressed in the form of a power.

Upon trust for the children of A. as B. shall appoint.

If a fund be limited "upon trust for the children of A. as B. shall appoint," the construction is, that the children of A. take a vested interest by the gift, subject to be divested by the exercise of the power. Therefore, on failure of the power, the children, who were the objects of the power, become absolutely entitled, just as if the discretion had never been annexed (d). But the

(a) 2 Ves. 110; and see Liley v. Hey, 1 Hare, 580. [As to the construction of a bequest to "poor relations," see the 10th edition of this work, p. 1021, note (1), and Williams on Executors, 9th ed. p. 980.]

(b) Doyley v. Attorney-General, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 195; Fordyce v. Bridges, 2 Ph. 497; Longmore v. Broom, 7 Ves. 124; Salusbury v. Denton, 3 K. & J. 536; Penny v. Turner, 2 Ph. 493; Izod v. Izod, 32 Beav. 242; Gray v. Gray, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 404; [Re Douglas, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 473, 485. As to the mode of distribution of money received by way of compensation under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846, commonly known as Lord Campbell's Act (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93), see Bulmer v. Bulmer, 25 Ch. D. 409].

(c) 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 195. See Down v. Worrall, 1 M. & K. 561; but there the two sets of objects were connected not by "and," but by "or"; and Doyley v. Attorney-General was not cited; see V. C. Wood's observations, 3 K. & J. 538.

(d) Davy v. Hooper, 2 Vern. 665; Fenwick v. Greenwell, 10 Beav. 412; Madoc v. Jackson, 2 B. C. C. 588; gift is subject to the exercise of the power, and, therefore, if the power be testamentary, the donee of the power may well appoint in favour of those who may be living at his death, to the exclusion of those who may have predeceased him (a). [And where the will creating the power of appointment contained a recital that the testator had already provided for his children (who were the objects of the power), and did not intend thereby to make any further provision for them, it was held that the power was not a power coupled with a trust, and that the children were not entitled in default of appointment (b).]

[Implication of gift over negatived by recital.]

Upon trust to dispose amongst the children of A.

Where an estate is vested in trustees "upon trust to dispose thereof among the children of A.," in this case the children take nothing by way of gift, but the transmission of their interest must be through the medium of the power. If the trust be to distribute equally among the objects, the bequest, though in the form of a power, must be tantamount to a simple gift (c); and if the trustees be at liberty to distribute unequally, and make no distribution, the Court itself executes the power, and divides the fund equally amongst the objects of it (d).

Discretion as to objects of the power.

9. But, further, a discretion may be given to the trustee, not only in respect of the proportions to be appointed, but also in respect of the objects to whom the appointment is to be made; as where a fund is bequeathed to trustees with a discretionary power of distribution to such of a class as the trustees shall think fit.

Whether to be regarded as a trust or power.

In the last case the question first to be resolved is, Did the settlor intend to communicate a mere power or to create a trust? (e).

Harding v. Glyn.

In Harding v. Glyn (f), a testator gave to Elizabeth his wife a house and certain goods and chattels, "but desired her at or before her death to give the same unto and among such of the testator's relations as she should think most deserving and approve of." The wife died without having made any appointment, and Hockley v. Mawbey, 1 Ves. jun. 143, see 149, 150; Jones v. Torin, 6 Sim. 255; Falkner v. Lord Wynford, 9 Jur. 1006.

(a) Woodcock v. Renneck, 4 Beav. 196; 1 Ph. 72; and see Lambert v. Thwaites, 2 L. R. Eq. 151.

[(b) Carberry v. M'Carthy, 7 L. R. Ir. 328.]

(c) Phillips v. Garth, 3 B. C. C. 64; Rayner v. Mowbray, Ib. 234.

(d) Hands v. Hands, cited Swift v. Greyson, 1 T. R. 437, note; Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689, corrected from Reg. Lib. 2 Sugd. Powers, 650, 6th ed.; Walsh v. Wallinger, 2 R. & M. 78; S. C., Taml. 425; Grieveson v. Kirsopp, 2 Keen, 653; Brown v. Pocock, 6 Sim. 257; Finch v. Hollingsworth, 21 Beav. 112; Re White's Trusts, Johns. 656; [and see Re Douglas, 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 473, 485].

[(e) See Re Weekes' Settlement, (1897) 1 Ch. 289.]

(f) 1 Atk. 469; S. C., stated from Reg. Lib. in Brown v. Higgs, 5 Ves. 501.

the Court considered a trust was created, and divided the estate equally amongst the testator's relations living at the time of the wife's death.

In The Duke of Marlborough v. Lord Godolphin (a), Lord Hardwicke held, in a similar case, that there was merely a power and no trust. [And the like was held in a recent case where the testatrix simply gave "power" to her husband "to dispose of the property, by will amongst our children" (b).] Marlborough v. Godolphin.

In Brown v. Higgs (c), on the contrary, where the introductory words used were, "I authorise and empower," Lord Alvanley decided that there was a trust. The cause was reheard before his Lordship, and, after grave consideration on the subject, he decreed as before (d). The decree was afterwards affirmed on appeal by Lord Eldon (e), and again affirmed in the House of Lords (f). Brown v. Higgs.

The doctrine of Harding v. Glyn has since been affirmed by other authorities (g), and may be now viewed as established. The rule has been thus laid down by Lord Cottenham: "When there appears a general intention in favour of individuals of a class to be selected by another person, and the particular intention fails from that selection not being made, the Court will carry into effect the general intention in favour of the class" (h). The doctrine of Harding v. Glyn now established.

10. The question in favour of what objects a power imperative, whether of distribution merely, or of selection, will be executed by the Court, viz. whether in favour of those living at the death of the testator, or those living at the death of the donee of the power, remains to be considered; and it is conceived that, in reference to this question, the following results may be deduced from the authorities:— In favour of what objects the Court will exercise a power imperative.

First. Where a testator bequeaths property with a power imperative in favour of a class, whether of children, relations, or others, and it appears to be the intention that the distribution or selection should take place as soon as conveniently may be after the testator's death, there the Court will execute the power Case where an immediate exercise of the power is contemplated.

(a) 2 Ves. sen. 61; [and see Re Weekes' Settlement, (1897) 1 Ch. 289.]

[(b) Re Weekes' Settlement, sup.]

(c) 4 Ves. 708.

(d) 5 Ves. 495.

(e) 8 Ves. 561, see p. 576.

(f) 18 Ves. 192.

(g) Birch v. Wade, 3 V. & B. 198; Burrough v. Philcox, 5 M. & Cr. 72; Penny v. Turner, 2 Ph. 493; Walsh v. Wallinger, 2 R. & M. 78; Re Caplin, 11 Jur. N.S. 383; 2 Dr. & Sm. 527; and see Salusbury v. Denton, 3 K. & J. 535; Re White's Trusts, Johns. 656; Re Eddowes, 1 Dr. & Sm. 395; [Pocock v. Attorney-General, 3 Ch. D. (C.A.) 342; Wilson v. Duguid, 24 Ch. D. 244.]

(h) Burrough v. Philcox, 5 M. & Cr. 92; [and see Re Weekes' Settlement, (1897) 1 Ch. 289].

in favour of the class as existing at the date of the testator's death (a).

Where an immediate exercise not contemplated.

Secondly. Where the frame of the will does not of necessity point to an immediate exercise of the power, as where the donee of the power takes a life estate expressly, or by implication, the nature of the power given to the donee has to be taken into consideration:

Where power testamentary.

α. If the devise or bequest be in the form not of a gift, but of a power to be exercised by will only, then, inasmuch as the objects of the power are necessarily those only living at the death of the donee, the Court executes the power in favour of those members of the class only who are in esse at the death of the donee (b). But the rule applies only where the class takes through the medium of a power, for if there be a gift to them in the first instance, in such shares, &c., as the donee of the power shall appoint by will, then, in default of exercise of the power, the whole class take, whether they survive the donee of the power or not (c).

Where power not merely testamentary.

β. Where the power given to the tenant for life is not merely testamentary, but may be exercised either by deed or will, the question whether the class to take is to be ascertained at the death of the testator or of the donee of the power, is involved in still further difficulty. The decisions which support an execution of the power in favour of the class of objects as existing at the death of the donee (d), and those which support an execution in favour of the class as existing at the death of the original testator (e), are almost evenly balanced; but the apparent absence of any full consideration of the question, and the circumstance that in some of the cases the power, though not expressly limited to an exercise by will, did not in terms authorise an execution by deed or writing, and may perhaps have been viewed by the

(a) Brown v. Higgs, 4 Ves. 708, &c.; Longmore v. Broom, 7 Ves. 124. The result will, of course, be the same where a life estate being given to the donee of the power, the donee dies in the testator's lifetime; see Penny v. Turner, 2 Ph. 493; Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 13 Ir. Eq. Rep. 332.

(b) Cruwys v. Colman, 9 Ves. 319; Birch v. Wade, 3 V. & B. 198; Walsh v. Wallinger, 2 R. & M. 78; Brown v. Pocock, 6 Sim. 257; Burrough v. Philcox, 5 M. & Cr. 72; Bonser v. Kinnear, 2 Giff. 195; Re Caplin's Will, 2 Dr. & Sm. 527; Freeland v. Pearson, 3 L. R. Eq. 658; Re Saville, 14 W. R. 603; [Sinnott v. Walsh, 5 L. R. Ir. 27; Farwell on Powers, 2nd ed. 474, 507;] and see the analogous cases of Woodcock v. Renneck, 4 Beav. 190; 1 Ph. 72; Finch v. Hollingsworth, 21 Beav. 112.

(c) Lambert v. Thwaites, 2 L. R. Eq. 151; [Farwell, 472].

(d) Doyley v. Attorney-General, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 195; Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469; Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689, corrected from Reg. Lib. 2 Sugd. Pow. 650, 6th ed.

(e) Hands v. Hands, cited 1 T. R. 437, note; Grieveson v. Kirsopp, 2 Keen, 653; [Wilson v. Duguid, 24 Ch. D. 244].

Court as testamentary, detract from their value as authorities upon this point.

Upon principle, too, as well as upon authority, the question is attended with difficulty. On the one hand, the power may be properly exercised by the donee at any time before his death, and there is no obligation to exercise it earlier, and if any members of the class die before the power is exercised, they, according to the ordinary rule, cease to be objects of it. The donee of the power has an undoubted right to postpone the execution of it until the last moment of his life, and the only default which the Court has to supply, is the non-exercise just before the death, and that default must, therefore, be supplied in favour of those who were objects at the date of the death of the donee (a). On the other hand, the donee of the power may exercise it in favour of the class existing at the time of exercise, to the exclusion of those who have died before, and also, where the power is one of selection, to the exclusion of those who may come into esse subsequently, but the Court cannot act arbitrarily, and cannot show any favour, but must observe equality towards all. Who, then, are the objects of the power? As it was not the duty of the donee of the power to exercise it at one time more than another, the only objects of the power must be all those who might by possibility have taken a benefit under it, that is, those living at the death of the testator, and those who come into being during the continuance of the life estate (b); otherwise, should all the class predecease the tenant for life (an event not improbable, where children or some limited class of relations are the objects), there would be a power imperative which is construed as a trust, and no cestui que trust, a result which, it is conceived, the Court would be somewhat unwilling to adopt.

[In a case where there was a residuary bequest to A., with a direction that "the whole principal at her death was to be divided amongst her children, if she had any, in such proportions as she should think fit," Sir G. Jessel, M.R., held (1) that A. had a power of appointment, either by instrument inter vivos, or by will; and (2) that, as she did not exercise the power, her surviving child and the representatives of her children who had died in her lifetime were entitled to participate in the property (a). It is observable that the power in this case was only one of distribution; but in a later case (b), where the power was one of selection and distribution, the objects who had died in the lifetime of the donee of the power were held entitled to participate; but the decision in the latter case was also based upon other grounds. The cases in which an intention appears that there should be a personal enjoyment by the objects of the power stand on a different footing, and in these cases there is good ground for holding that the object must survive the donee of the power in order to participate (c); but apart from any such indication, it is conceived that the governing principle should be that all persons in whose favour the power could at any time have been exercised are objects, and that they all are equally entitled to participate.]

(a) See also observation by V. C. Wood in Re White's Trusts, Johns. 659, 660, a case different, however, from any of those discussed in the text, the donees of the power being trustees, who both died before the tenant for life.

[(b) See Wilson v. Duguid, 24 Ch. D. 244.]

Whole purview of instrument must be regarded.

γ. It is clear that where the donee tenant for life may exercise the power by deed or will, the members of the class in existence at the date of the death of the donee will alone take, if, upon the purview of the original instrument, they alone appear to be the objects of the power (d).

Construction of the word "relations."

Power of selection and power of distribution.

11. Where there is a power of appointment in favour of "relations," the donee of the discretion, if he have a power of selection, may appoint to relations in any degree (e), and it is only in those cases where he has a mere power of distribution that he must confine himself to the relations within the Statute of Distribution (22 & 23 Chas. 2. c. 10) (f). But the Court,

[(a) Re Jackson's Will, 13 Ch. D. 189.]

[(b) Wilson v. Duguid, 24 Ch. D. 244.]

[(c) Re White's Trusts, Johns. 656; Re Phene's Trust, 5 L. R. Eq. 346.]

(d) Winn v. Fenwick, 11 Beav. 438; and see Tiffin v. Longman, 15 Beav. 275.

(e) Supple v. Lowson, Amb. 729; Grant v. Lynam, 4 Russ. 292; Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469; S. C., stated from Reg. Lib., Brown v. Higgs, 5 Ves. 501; Mahon v. Savage, 1 Sch. & Lef. 111; Cruwys v. Colman, 9 Ves. 324, per Sir W. Grant; Spring v. Biles, cited Swift v. Gregson, 1 T. R. 435, note (f); Salusbury v. Denton, 3 K. & J. 536; Snow v. Teed, 9 L. R. Eq. 622. In Brunsden v. Woolredge, Amb. 507, Sir T. Sewell seems (contrary to his opinion in Supple v. Lowson, ubi sup.) to have confined the trustees to relations within the statute.

(f) Isaac v. Defriez, Amb. 595; but see the case stated from Reg. Lib., Attorney-General v. Price, 17 Ves. 373, note (a); Carr v. Bedford, 2 Ch. Rep. 146; Lawlor v. Henderson, 10 Ir. R. Eq. 150; Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689. The last case, and Forbes v. Ball, 3 Mer. 437, were both decided by Sir W. Grant, but appear to be contradictory; however, in the latter case the question raised was, not whether the donee had exceeded her power, but whether the discretion was a power or a trust; for if a power, and it had not been executed by the will, the fund would have sunk into the residue, and the plaintiff have been entitled as residuary legatee. Note, a power of selection will be implied in a case of "relations," where it would not have been implied in the case of "children"; except where the bequest is for the benefit of poor relations by way of founding a charity (a), or the testator has furnished some intelligible rule by which the relations out of the statute may be easily ascertained (b), must in all cases appoint to the relations within the statute; for as on the one hand the Court cannot act arbitrarily by selecting particular objects, so on the other it cannot execute the power in favour of relations in general, for this would lead ad infinitum (c).

Whether relations shall take per stirpes or per capita.

12. A further point open to discussion is, in what shares such relations shall take,—whether those who in case of intestacy would have claimed by representation shall, under the execution of the power by the Court, take per stirpes or per capita.

Now, the rule that those are deemed relations who would take a distributive share under the statute was adopted on the ground that, unless some line were drawn for restricting the meaning of the word, a bequest to relations would be void for uncertainty. As this was the sole foundation for appealing to the statute at all, it is evident the single inquiry for the Court is who would take a distributive share: in what proportions they would take is wholly beside the question, and in fact beside the Court's jurisdiction; for, when the class has been ascertained, the testator himself has determined the proportions by devising to the objects in words creating a joint tenacy (d). No distinction can be taken between real and personal estate; yet it could scarcely be held, that if lands were devised to the testator's "relations," the kindred within the statute would take in unequal proportions.

Principle to be extracted from the cases.

The result of the authorities would seem to accord with what is correct upon principle, viz. that in a gift to "relations" (whether the testator has added the words "equally to be divided" or not), the distribution among the relations within the statute must be made per capita, and not per stirpes (e). The question

Spring v. Biles, cited 1 T. R. 435, note (f); Mahon v. Savage, 1 Sch. & Lef. 111; Salusbury v. Denton, 3 K. & J. 536. In the last two cases the words were "amongst the relations," but see Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689, where the expression was similar.

(a) See White v. White, 7 Ves. 423; Attorney-General v. Price, 17 Ves. 371; Isaac v. De Friez, Ib. 373, note (a); and see Mahon v. Savage, 1 Sch. & Lef. 111.

(b) Bennett v. Honywood, Amb. 708.

(c) Thus in Bennett v. Honywood, Amb. 708, 456 persons applied as relations within two years.

(d) See Walker v. Maunde, 19 Ves. 427, 428.

(e) See Thomas v. Hole, Cas. t. Talb. 251; Stamp v. Cooke, 1 Cox, 236; Phillips v. Garth, 3 B. C. C. 64; Green v. Howard, 1 B. C. C. 33; Rayner v. Mowbray, 3 B. C. C. 234; Reg. Lib. B. 1791, fol. 183; Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689; Reg. Lib. B. 1809, fol. 1535; Hinckley v. Maclarens, 1 M. & K. 27; Withy v. Mangles, 4 Beav. 358; 10 Cl.

can no longer arise where the gift is [simpliciter, and without any reference to the intestacy of the propositus (a)] to "next of kin": for by the decision of Elmsley v. Young, upon appeal from Sir J. Leach to the Lords Commissioners (b), the words "next of kin" must be construed to mean "nearest of kin," to the exclusion of those who would take under the statute by representation.

Subject of the gift incapable of division.

13. We have stated that, as a general principle, the Court will execute the power among the objects equally; but it sometimes happens that the subject of the gift is incapable of division, or the settlor has expressly directed the whole to be bestowed on one object to be selected by the trustee. In such cases the Court still acts upon the maxim, that, if by any possibility the power can be executed the Court will do it.

Moseley v. Moseley.

In Moseley v. Moseley (c), a very early case, an estate was devised to trustees upon trust to settle on such (i.e. on such one) of the sons of N. as the trustees should think fit. The trustees having neglected to comply with the direction, the sons of N. filed a bill to have the benefit of the trust, and the Court decreed the trustees, within a fortnight next after the entry of the order, to nominate such one of the plaintiffs as they should think fit, upon whom to settle the lands of the testator; and if the trustees should fail to nominate within that time, or there should be any difference between them concerning such nomination, then the Court would nominate one of the plaintiffs, it being the testator's intent that his estate should not be divided, but settled upon one person.

Richardson v. Chapman.

In Richardson v. Chapman (d), Dr Potter, Archbishop of Canterbury, gave all his options to trustees upon trust, that in disposing thereof "regard should be had according to their discretion to his eldest son, his sons-in-law, his present and former chaplains, and others his domestics, particularly Dr T., his chaplain, and Dr H., his librarian; also to his worthy friends and acquaintance, particularly to Dr Richardson." The trustee tried first to give the option in question to himself. He then fixed upon a person, with whom he appeared to have made an underhand bargain. When this failed, he, in breach of his duty, presented a Mr Venner. On a bill filed to set aside the & Fin. 215; Fielden v. Ashworth, 20 L. R. Eq. 410. The above cases are discussed in Append. No. IX. to 3rd ed. of this work.

[(a) See Re Gray's Settlement, (1896) 2 Ch. 802.]

(b) 2 M. & K. 780; and see Withy v. Mangles, 4 Beav. 358; 10 Cl. & Fin. 215; [Re Gray's Settlement, sup.].

(c) Rep. t. Finch, 53; S. C., cited Clarke v. Turner, Freem. 199.

(d) 7 B. P. C. 318; S. C., cited Brown v. Higgs, 5 Ves. 504, 505.

presentation, Lord Northington considered the trust to be of a kind that the Court could not execute, and dismissed the bill. Dr Richardson appealed against this decision to the House of Lords, and the other person, who stood prior to him, not appearing, the House reversed the decree, and ordered the presentation to be made to the appellant. "This case," says Lord Alvanley, "shows that, however difficult it may be to select the persons intended, and though it must depend from the nature of the trust upon the opinion of the trustees as to the merit of the persons who are the objects, yet the Court will execute even a trust of that nature, if the trustee shall either neglect to execute, or be disabled from executing, or shows by his conduct any intention not to execute it as the testator intended he should. When one reads the nature of this trust, how difficult it was to make the selection, it is decisive to show the Court must do it, though the trust is in its nature so discretionary" (a).

(a) Brown v. Higgs, 5 Ves. 504. In this case (see 4 Ves. 718, 719; 5 Ves. 508), an estate was devised "to one of the sons of Samuel Brown as John Brown should direct by a conveyance in his lifetime, or by his last will and testament"; and John Brown not having executed the power, Lord Alvanley was inclined to think, though he would not decide the point, that the children of Samuel Brown could not establish a claim; but the ground of this opinion was not that a trust had been created which the Court could not execute, but that the intention of the testator as collected from the will was to communicate a mere power.

CHAPTER XXX

THE RIGHTS OF A CESTUI QUE TRUST IN PREVENTION OF BREACH OF TRUST

As the estate of the cestui que trust depends for its continuance upon the faith and integrity of the trustee, it is reasonable that the cestui que trust, whose interest is thus materially concerned, should be allowed by all practicable means to secure himself against the occurrence of any act of misconduct. We shall, therefore, next consider the rights of the cestui que trust that are calculated to arm him with this protection.

Cestui que trust entitled to appointment of proper trustees.

First. The cestui que trust is entitled to have the custody and administration of the estate confided to the care both of proper persons and of a proper number of such persons.

Trustee dying in testator's lifetime.

1. Thus, if the trustee originally appointed by a will happen to die in the testator's lifetime, the cestui que trust, where such a course would be for his interest, may have the property better secured by a conveyance to an express trustee for himself; and where a testator did not appoint a trustee at all, but only appointed executors, the Court asserted an inherent jurisdiction of its own to appoint trustees to take charge of the fund (a).

Death of trustees after having acted.

2. So, where the original number of trustees has become reduced by deaths, the cestui que trust may restore the property to its original security by calling for the appointment of new trustees in the place of the trustees deceased (b); and even a cestui que trust in remainder may take proceedings to have the proper number of trustees filled up (c), and under the new practice the Court has appointed new trustees upon an action by infant cestuis que trust, without any statement of claim, upon an admission

(a) Dodkin v. Brunt, 6 L. R. Eq. 580.

(b) Buchanan v. Hamilton, 5 Ves. 722; Hibbard v. Lamb, Amb. 309.

(c) Finlay v. Howard, 2 Dru. & War. 490.

in the statement of defence by the sole trustee that she was willing to retire (a).

Trustee refusing to act, becoming incapable, or misconducting himself, &c.

3. If a trustee refuse to act (b), or become so circumstanced that he cannot effectually execute the office, as where a trustee goes abroad to reside permanently (c), or the trustees of a chapel entertain opinions contrary to the founder's intention (d), or if a trustee of money become bankrupt (e), or if a trustee misconduct himself in any manner (f), as by dealing with the trust property for his own personal advancement (g), by suffering a co-trustee to commit a breach of trust (h), or by absconding on a charge of forgery (i); in these and the like cases the cestui que trust may have the old trustee removed, and a new trustee appointed in his room. And in such a suit it will not be scandalous or impertinent to challenge a trustee for misconduct, or to impute to him any corrupt or improper motive in the execution of the trust, or to allege that his behaviour is the vindictive consequence of some act on the part of the cestui que trust, or of some change in his situation; but it will be impertinent, and

(a) Mooney v. Summerlin, W. N. 1876, p. 90.

(b) Maggeridge v. Grey, Nels. 42; Travell v. Danvers, Rep. t. Finch, 380; Wood v. Stane, 8 Price, 613; Anon. 4 Ir. Eq. Rep. 700.

(c) O'Reilly v. Alderson, 8 Hare, 101; Re Ledwich, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 561; Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Archbold, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 187; [and see Re Earl of Stamford, (1896) 1 Ch. 288].

(d) Attorney-General v. Pearson, 7 Sim. 290, 309; Attorney-General v. Shore, Ib. 309, 317.

(e) Bainbrigge v. Blair, 1 Beav. 495; Re Roche, 1 Conn. & Laws. 306; Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Archbold, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 187; Harris v. Harris, (No. 1), 29 Beav. 107; Re Barker's Trusts, 1 Ch. D. 43, in which case Sir G. Jessel, M.R., observed: "It is the duty of the Court to remove a bankrupt who has trust money to receive or deal with, so that he can misappropriate it. There may be exceptions under special circumstances to that general rule. And it may also be, that where a trustee has no money to receive, he ought not to be removed merely because he has become bankrupt, but I consider the general rule to be as I have stated. The reason is obvious. A necessitous man is more likely to be tempted to misappropriate than one who is wealthy; and, besides, a man who has not shown prudence in managing his own affairs, is not likely to be successful in managing those of other people." An exception to the general rule was made in Re Bridgman, 1 Dr. & Sm. 164, where a trustee became bankrupt, but without any imputation on his moral character, and had been honourably unfortunate, and but for an accident would have been solvent, and had been treated by all parties since his bankruptcy as a proper person to manage the trust. If the trustee compound with his creditors, the same rule applies as in bankruptcy, for the cestuis que trust have equally a right to have the administration of the trust estate committed to responsible persons; [Re Adam's Trust, 12 Ch. D. 634; and see Re Hopkins, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 61; Re Foster's Trusts, 55 L. T. N.S. 479].

(f) Mayor of Coventry v. Attorney-General, 7 B. P. C. 235; Buckeridge v. Glasse, Cr. & Ph. 126, see 131.

(g) Ex parte Phelps, 9 Mod. 357; [and see Moore v. M'Glyn, (1894) 1 I. R. 74].

(h) Ex parte Reynolds, 5 Ves. 707.

(i) Millard v. Eyre, 2 Ves. jun. 94.

may be scandalous, to state circumstances of general malice or personal hostility (a). And if the old trustee be removed on the ground of misconduct, he must bear the expense of the appointment of a new trustee, as an act necessitated by himself (b).

[But where the instrument creating the trust contemplates the possibility of a single trustee being appointed to act alone, and the power of appointing new trustees is given to the trustees or trustee for the time being, it is not a breach of trust in the last surviving trustee to refuse to appoint another trustee to act with himself, and an action to compel him to do so, if not sustainable on other grounds, will be dismissed with costs (c).

[Trustee removed where it is to the advantage of the trust.]

4. The jurisdiction of a Court of Equity to remove a trustee is ancillary to its principal duty, to see that the trusts are properly executed. And therefore, though charges of misconduct are not made out, or are greatly exaggerated, the Court may, if satisfied that the continuance of the trustee would prevent the trusts being properly executed, remove the trustee, as trustees exist for the benefit of those to whom the creator of the trust has given the trust estate (d); and in an administration action the Court will exercise the jurisdiction at any time when it deems it expedient so to do, and notwithstanding that the removal of the trustee has not been expressly asked for by the pleadings (e).]

Trust property under administration by the Court.

5. If the trust property be under administration by the Court, and the surviving trustee dies, the appointment of other trustees is not matter of course, but rests in the discretion of the Court, having regard to the state of the trust at the time (f); and if liberty has been given by a former order to apply at chambers, and the parties present a petition instead of applying at chambers for the appointment of new trustees, the petitioners will be disallowed their costs (g).

Trustees required to be "inhabitants."

6. If the settlement require the trustees of a charity to be inhabitants of a particular place, it is irregular to appoint persons trustees who do not answer that description, provided at the time of the election there be any inhabitants proper to be (a) Earl of Portsmouth v. Fellows, 5 Mad. 450.

(b) Ex parte Greenhouse, 1 Mad. 92.

[(c) Peacock v. Colling, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 742; 33 W. R. 528; 53 L. T. N.S. 620.]

[(d) Letterstedt v. Broers, 9 App. Cas. 371, 386; and see Moore v. M'Glyn, (1894) 1 I. R. 74.]

[(e) Re Wrightson, (1908) 1 Ch. 789.]

(f) Ryan v. Stockdale, W. N. 1875, p. 106.

(g) Bund v. Green, W. N. 1875, p. 213. [By Rules of Court, 1883, Order LV., Rule 11, when an originating summons has been taken out under Rules 3 and 4, every subsequent summons relating to the same matter is to be marked with the name of the judge to whom the matter is assigned.]

trustees (a). But where it has been the custom to appoint trustees not being inhabitants, the Court will not remove the existing trustees, though it will take care that the founder's directions shall be better observed for the future (b); and generally, though trustees may have been appointed irregularly in the first instance, their removal cannot be demanded after acquiescence for a great number of years (c). And in the selection of trustees of charities the Court inquires whether the parties proposed are proper persons, not whether they are the most proper that could be found (d).

[7. Where the administration of a charity had been committed by the settlor to the lord provost and town council of Edinburgh and the ministers of the burgh, but for a long period the administration had been solely in the hands of the provost and council, it was held that, notwithstanding the length of time during which a contrary practice had prevailed, the ministers must in future be admitted as joint administrators of the charity (e).] [Proper mode of administration of charity restored.]

8. The Court will not dismiss a trustee for the mere caprice of the cestui que trust without any reasonable cause shown (f), or because the trustee has refused from honest motives to exercise a power at the request of a tenant for life (g), or because a dissension has arisen between the trustee and one of the cestuis que trust (h), or because a cestui que trust puts forward a claim, which may be unfounded, that property of the trustee ought to be brought into the settlement (i), or because the trustee has transgressed the strict line of his duty, provided there was no wilful default, but merely a misunderstanding (j). Where, however, a trustee pertinaciously insisted on being continued in the office, though his co-trustees were unwilling to act with him, Lord Nottingham said: "He liked not that a man should be ambitious of a trust when he could get nothing but trouble by [Trustee not to be dismissed from caprice.]

(a) Attorney-General v. Cowper, 1 B. C. C. 439. As to the force of the word "residence," see Blackwell v. England, 3 Jur. N.S. 1302; Attenborough v. Thompson, 2 H. & N. 559.

(b) Attorney-General v. Stamford, 1 Ph. 737; Attorney-General v. Clifton, 32 Beav. 596; Attorney-General v. Daugars, 33 Beav. 621.

(c) Attorney-General v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 139, see 150.

(d) Re Lancaster Charities, 7 Jur. N.S. 96.

[(e) The Lord Provost, &c., of Edinburgh v. The Lord Advocate, 4 App. Cas. 823.]

(f) O'Keeffe v. Calthorpe, 1 Atk. 18; and see Pepper v. Tuckey, 2 Jon. & Lat. 95.

(g) Lee v. Young, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 532.

(h) Forster v. Davies, 4 De G. F. & J. 133.

(i) S. C.

(j) See Attorney-General v. Coopers' Company, 19 Ves. 192; Attorney-General v. Caius College, 2 Keen, 150.

it," and without any reflection on the conduct of the trustee, declared he should meddle no further in the trust (a).

In appointing new trustees the Court would not give them a power of appointing other trustees.

9. As the substitution of a trustee by the Court proceeds upon a full consideration of the case, and is never made unless the Court is satisfied as to the fitness of the person proposed, it could not be expected that the Court should, when appointing new trustees and directing the trust property to be conveyed to them, authorise the insertion of a power in the conveyance, enabling the new trustees to nominate other trustees in their stead as often as occasion may require: this would plainly be an abandonment by the Court of its own jurisdiction—a delegation of it to the care and judgment of individuals. Accordingly, notwithstanding some previous fluctuation in the practice (b), it was settled that, except in charity cases (c), the Court would not authorise the insertion of such a power in the deed of conveyance (d). [But now, as we have seen (e), the statutory power of appointing new trustees is, by sect. 10 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (f), expressly extended to the case of trustees appointed by the Court.]

Rules for selecting new trustees.

10. In appointing new trustees the Court does not act arbitrarily, but upon certain general principles. First, the Court has regard to the wishes of the author of the trust, whether actually expressed in the instrument, or plainly deducible from it; and if he has declared a particular person not fit to be appointed a trustee, the Court will refrain from appointing him. Secondly, the Court will not appoint a new trustee with a view to the interests of some of the parties beneficially interested, in opposition to the wishes of others; for a trustee ought to hold an even hand as between all parties, and not favour a particular class. And, thirdly, the Court has regard to the nature of the trust, and the question by whose instrumentality it can best be carried into execution (g).

Statutory powers.

11. The exercise by the cestui que trust of his right to have the custody of the trust estate confided to a proper number of

(a) Uvedale v. Ettrick, 2 Ch. Ca. 130.

(b) Joyce v. Joyce, 2 Moll. 276; White v. White, 5 Beav. 221.

(c) Attorney-General v. Hurst, M.R., Dec. 2, 1791; Reg. Lib. A. 1791, f. 487; see the decree, stated Seton's Dec. 6th ed. pp. 1330, 1331; In the matter of 52 G. 3. c. 101, 12 Sim. 262: Re Lovett's Exhibition Sidn. Suss. Coll. Camb., cor. V. C. Knight Bruce, Dec. 20, 1849.

(d) Bayley v. Mansell, 4 Madd. 226; Brown v. Brown, 3 Y. & C. 395; Southwell v. Ward, Taml. 314; Bowles v. Weeks, 14 Sim. 591; Oglander v. Oglander, 2 De G. & Sm. 381; Holder v. Durbin, 11 Beav. 594, in which last case Lord Langdale, M.R., in deference to the views of the other judges, declined to follow his own previous decision in White v. White, ubi sup.

[(e) See ante, p. 806.]

[(f) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53.]

(g) Re Tempest, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 485; 12 Jur. N.S. 539.

duly qualified trustees has been greatly facilitated by various statutes enabling him to obtain, in certain cases, the removal of unfit trustees, and the appointment of others in their room, and also the appointment of new trustees where the office is merely vacant; and this by a cheaper and more summary proceeding than by action. [The more important of these enactments have been already considered, but there are some others which it is convenient here to refer to (a).]

12. By the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, sect. 71, it was enacted that in every borough in which the body corporate, or any one or more of the members of such body corporate in his or their corporate capacity then stood, solely or together with any person or persons elected solely by such body corporate, or by any members thereof, seised or possessed for any estate or interest whatsoever of any hereditaments or personal estate whatsoever, in whole or in part, in trust for any charitable trusts, all the estate and interest, and all the powers of such body corporate or of such members thereof, should, from and after the 1st day of August, 1836, utterly cease; with a proviso that if Parliament should not otherwise direct, on or before the said 1st day of August, 1836 (which was not done), the Lord Chancellor should make such orders as he should see fit for the administration of such trust estates. 5 & 6 W. 4. c. 76, s. 71.

Under the authority "to make orders," the Court of Chancery from time to time appointed trustees for the due management of the charity property in the place of the corporation. The jurisdiction of the Court, however, was held not to apply to a case where no estate was vested in the old corporation, but the charity property was vested in trustees, and the corporation was merely the visitor with powers of nomination (b). Where there was a charity corporation substantially, though not identically, the same in its component parts as the municipal corporation, the case was held to be within the spirit if not the letter of the section above referred to (c). Jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery under 5 & 6 W. 4. c. 76, s. 71.

The appointment of trustees by the Court under this Act, though it made them custodians of the property, could not of course transfer to them the legal estate, which, it was decided, notwithstanding the strong negative words used in the statute, remained in the corporation (d). Legal estate.

[(a) For the powers under the Trustee Act, 1893, see ante, pp. 838 et seq.; and for those under the Settled Land Act, ante, pp. 654 et seq.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Newbury Corporation, C. P. Coop. Rep. 1837-38, 72; Christ's Hospital v. Grainger, 16 Sim. 102.

(c) Attorney-General v. Mayor, &c., of Exeter, 2 De G. M. & G. 507.

(d) Doe v. Norton, 11 M. & W. 913.

16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 65.

13. But by the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853, sect. 65, the legal estate was vested, without any actual conveyance, in the trustees appointed by the Court, and upon the death, resignation, or removal of any of the trustees, and the appointment of any new trustee or trustees, the legal estate transferred itself to the trustees for the time being without any conveyance.

[45 & 46 Vict. c. 50, s. 133.]

[14. By the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (a), which repealed the previous Municipal Corporations Act, and 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, sect. 65, without prejudice to anything done under those Acts respectively, the provision for the transfer of the legal estate without conveyance on the appointment of new trustees is, by sect. 133, re-enacted. It is to be observed that the section does not continue the power to make orders for the administration of trust estates, but the appointment of trustees can still be made under Sir S. Romilly's Act (b), though it will seldom be necessary to resort to it for the purpose.]

Appointment of trustees of charities under the Charitable Trusts Acts.

15. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 137), sect. 28, new trustees of any charity the gross annual income whereof exceeds 30*l.* (c) may be appointed by a judge of the Chancery Division (d) in chambers, and the Court has power at the same time to make an order under the Trustee Act, without petition, vesting the estates in the new trustee (e). But the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, under the 17th section, must first be obtained. And by the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860, (23 & 24 Vict. c. 136), s. 2, the Charity Commissioners are empowered upon the application of the trustees or a majority of them, under their hands or common seal, to make the like orders for the appointment of new trustees of charities as could have been made by a judge at chambers; and this power extends even to contentious cases (f).

Peto's Act.

16. By the Trustee Appointment Act, 1850 (13 & 14 Vict. c. 28), "Wherever freehold, leasehold, copyhold, or customary property in England or Wales, has been or shall be acquired by any congregation, or society, or body of persons associated for religious purposes or for the promotion of education, as a chapel, meeting-house," &c., "and wherever the conveyance, assignment, or other

[(a) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 50.]

[(b) See post, Chap. XXXI., sec. 4.]

(c) By s. 32, where the income is below 30*l.* (since extended by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 136, s. 11, to an income not exceeding 50*l.*), the District Courts of Bankruptcy and County Courts have jurisdiction.

[(d) See the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 34.]

(e) Re Davenport's Charity, 4 De G. M. & G. 839. In Re Lincoln Primitive Methodist Chapel, 1 Jur. N.S. 1011, V.C. Stuart does not appear to have had his attention drawn to the previous decision of Lord Cranworth in Davenport's Charity, ubi sup.

(f) Re Burnham National Schools, 17 L. R. Eq. 241.

assurance of such property has been or may be taken" to trustees duly appointed, such conveyance, assignment, or other assurance shall not only vest the property in the parties named, but also in their successors from time to time, and where there is no power to appoint new trustees, the society may, for the purpose of vesting the estate, appoint new trustees; [but every] such appointment [whether under a power in the trust deed or by virtue of the Act] must be evidenced by deed under the hand and seal of the chairman and attested by two witnesses. The primary, if not the only object of this enactment obviously was to make the trust estate devolve upon the trustees of the society from time to time without conveyance, and it is doubtful whether new trustees thus appointed by the society [in the absence of any special direction in the trust deed] succeed generally to all the powers of the old trustees, or take the legal estate only (a).

By the Trustee Appointment Act, 1869, the provisions of 13 & 14 Vict. c. 28, were extended to burial-grounds, and [by the Trustee Appointment Act, 1890 (b), are made to "apply to and include any land acquired by trustees in connection with any society or body of persons comprising several congregations or other sections or divisions or component parts associated together for any religious purpose, when such land is held in trust for any of the following purposes: (1) a place for religious worship; (2) an endowment or provision for the maintenance of a place of religious worship, or the minister thereof, or provision for expenses connected therewith; (3) a burial-ground; (4) a place for education and training of students, whether for the ministry or for any other purpose; (5) a school house for a Sunday school, day school, or other school; (6) a residence for a minister or schoolmaster, or for the caretaker of a place of religious worship, or of a school house, or a meeting house, or offices, or other buildings for or in connection with religious or educational purposes." The power of appointing new trustees conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893 (c), is applicable to all land acquired and held on trust for any purpose to which the Acts of 1850 or 1869 apply, and any such statutory power may be exercised either by the persons and in the manner provided by that statutory power, or by the person or persons and by resolution at a meeting, or in any other mode in which, under the instrument creating the trust, or any other

[32 & 33 Vict. c. 26.]

[Trustee Appointment Act, 1890.]

(a) See as to the construction of the Act, Re Houghton's Chapel, 2 W. R. 631.

[(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 19, s. 2.]

[(c) Imported into that Act from the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881.]

instrument, the appointment of a new trustee in place of a deceased trustee can be effected (a). The vesting clause in the Act of 1850 is extended to the case of trustees appointed under any power conferred by the Act of 1890, or under any other statutory power (b), and where an appointment of a trustee can be made under a power in an instrument as well as under a statutory power, the latter power is not to be exercised until twelve months from the date of the vacancy to be filled up have expired (c); and provision is made whereby purchasers and mortgagees from trustees invalidly appointed are protected, if no proceedings are taken or effectively prosecuted to set aside the appointment within six months from its date (d). It is further provided that where trustees, or the major part of them, or other persons present at a meeting duly constituted, are empowered to appoint trustees by resolution, a memorandum of the appointment of any trustee which states that the meeting was duly constituted, and is otherwise in the form indicated by the Act of 1850, shall be sufficient and conclusive evidence that the appointment appearing by the memorandum was duly made (e).]

Trustee may be compelled to any act of duty.

Secondly. The cestui que trust is entitled to bring an action against his trustee, and compel him to the execution of any particular act of duty.

Maintenance of right at law.

1. Thus, if the legal estate in the hands of the trustee be disturbed by a stranger, the cestui que trust, though he may not institute legal proceedings in the name of a trustee without his authority (f), may oblige the trustee, on giving him a proper indemnity, to lend his name for asserting the legal right (g). If the trustee of a covenant, even a voluntary one, will not sue upon it, the cestui que trust may compel the trustee on a proper indemnity to lend his name to the cestui que trust, to enable him to sue (h). Otherwise, should the trust property be lost, and the trustee himself become insolvent, the cestui que trust's equitable interest would be absolutely destroyed. [In equity, the mere refusal by the trustee to sue will not entitle the cestui que trust to

[(a) See 53 & 54 Vict. c. 19, s. 3.]
[(b) See s. 4.]
[(c) See s. 5.]
[(d) See s. 6.]
[(e) See s. 7.]
(f) See Crossley v. Crowther, 9 Hare, 386; [and the name of the trustee as co-plaintiff cannot be added without his consent in writing pursuant to Rules of Court, 1883, Order XVI., Rule 11; Besley v. Besley, 37 Ch. D. 648].
(g) Foley v. Burnell, 1 B. C. C. 277, per Lord Thurlow; Cary, 14; [Ex parte Kearsley, 17 Q. B. D. 1;] and see Kirby v. Mash, 3 Y. & C. 295; Malone v. Geraghty, 2 Conn. & Laws. 251.
(h) See Fletcher v. Fletcher, 4 Hare, 78; Jerdein v. Bright, 2 J. & H. 325; [and see Re Plumtre's Marriage Settlement, (1910) 1 Ch. 609].

maintain a suit in his own name, as, for, example, for an account against a debtor to the trust estate (a); and so, mere refusal by a legal personal representative to sue for outstanding assets will not per se justify a residuary legatee or next of kin in suing the legal personal representative and the alleged debtor to the estate (b): to justify such a course special circumstances must be shown tending to disable the trustee from suing (as where his acts and conduct with reference to the estate are impeached), or rendering it inconvenient that he should do so (c).]

Tenant for life of renewable leaseholds neglecting to renew.

2. If a tenant for life of leaseholds be bound to renew, and by his threats or acts manifest an intention not to renew, the remainderman may institute proceedings and have a receiver appointed for the purpose of providing the renewal fine out of the rents and profits of the estate; and if the period of renewal has already expired, a receiver may be appointed on proof of the tenant for life's default (d).

Trustee giving security.

3. In one case, where a suspicion was entertained that the trustee would not fairly execute his trust, the Court required of him, if he continued in the office, to enter into securities for his good faith (e).

Cestui que trust may have a contingent interest secured.

4. And generally a cestui que trust, who can allege an existing interest, however minute or remote, may, upon reasonable cause shown, apply to the Court to have his interest properly secured (f).

[(a) Sharpe v. San Paulo Railway Company, 8 L. R. Ch. 597, 609, where it was said by James, L.J., that if the trustee would not take proper steps to enforce the claim, the remedy of the cestui que trust was to file his bill against the trustee for the execution of the trust, or for the realisation of the trust fund, and then to obtain the proper order for using the trustee's name, or for obtaining a receiver to use the trustee's name, who would, on behalf of the whole estate, institute the proper action or proper suit in equity.]

[(b) Yeatman v. Yeatman, 7 Ch. D. 210, where it was intimated that the test to be applied, in ascertaining the right of the cestui que trust to sue, was whether an inquiry by the Court as to the propriety of proceedings being instituted would be answered in the affirmative; and see Travis v. Milne, 9 Ha. 14; and, semble, "if the Court upon the materials before it came to the conclusion that it was a proper case for proceedings to be taken, although not necessarily and absolutely certain that they would be successful, then it would be a proper case to allow a party to sue in his own name"; Yeatman v. Yeatman, 7 Ch. D. 216, per Hall, V.C.; Meldrum v. Scorer, 56 L. T. N.S. 474. In the latter case, on objection taken by the defendant, and in order to guard against multiplicity of actions, all the cestuis que trust were made parties.]

[(c) Beningfield v. Baxter, 12 App. Cas. 167; Meldrum v. Scorer, 56 L. T. N.S. 471, 474.]

(d) Bennett v. Colley, 5 Sim. 192; S. C., 2 M. & K. 233.

(e) Kneeling v. Child, Rep. t. Finch, 360.

[(f) See Bartlett v. Bartlett, 4 Ha. 631; Governesses' Benevolent Institution v. Rushbridger, 18 Beav. 467; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1508; and see Re Dartnall, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 474.]

Possibility upon a possibility.

5. But a distinction must be taken between an existing interest, whether vested or contingent, and the mere possibility of a future event, which, if it occurs may give birth to an interest. Thus, where a one-fifteenth share of a residue was bequeathed to Isaac for life, if he married Esther, and after his death for Isaac's eldest or only child living at his decease, and who should attain twenty-one, with a gift over in case Isaac should not marry Esther, and Isaac married Isabella while Esther was still living, it was held by M.R. (a), and affirmed by Lord Westbury (b), that the eldest child of Isaac, an infant, as his interest was preceded by the condition that Isaac should survive his present wife, and then marry Esther, a possibility upon a possibility, could not sustain a suit for having his interest secured. Had Isaac survived his wife and then married Esther, the interest of the child would still have been contingent, and in that case M.R. appears to have thought that the child would have had no locus standi in Court, but L.C. was of a different opinion. And in another case, where a house was devised to trustees in trust for tenants for life, and after their respective deceases for their children then living, and the issue of such of them as should be dead, and failing such children and issue in trust for a class, and, there being issue of one of the tenants for life but not of the others, some of the class presented a petition for the appointment of new trustees, on the footing that they were "persons beneficially interested" under the 37th section of the Trustee Act, 1850, M.R. dismissed the petition with costs (c), but on appeal the order below was reversed, and the L.JJ. held that the petitioners were persons beneficially interested (d).

Trustee may be restrained from violating his duty.

Thirdly. As the cestui que trust may compel the trustee to the observance of his duty, so, on the other hand, if the cestui que trust have reason to suppose, and can satisfy the Court, that the trustee is about to proceed to an act not authorised by the true scope of the trust, he may obtain an injunction from the Court to restrain the trustee from such a wanton exercise of his legal power (e).

(a) Davis v. Angel, 31 Beav. 223; [and see Re Parsons, 45 Ch. D. 51, 60; Allcard v. Walker, (1896) 2 Ch. 369, 380].

(b) 10 W. R. 723.

(c) Re Sheppard's Trusts, 10 W. R. 704.

(d) 1 N. R. 76; 4 De G. F. & J. 423.

(e) Balls v. Strutt, 1 Hare, 146. So a mortgagee with a power of sale will proceed at his peril to sell the mortgaged estate after tender of principal and interest, though costs be not included, if the security be sufficient; and a purchaser with notice cannot shelter himself under a clause in the mortgage deed exempting the pur-

Though the damage would not be irreparable.

1. It is clear that the cestui que trust would be entitled to an injunction where the act in contemplation would, if done, be irremediable (a); but in Pechel v. Fowler (b), a case in the Exchequer while it was a Court of Equity, it is said to have been held that a cestui que trust could not restrain an improvident sale by the trustee, because the cestui que trust might proceed against the trustee for the consequential damage to the trust estate, and so the injury was not irreparable; but Sir J. Leach, under similar circumstances, granted an injunction (c); and other authorities are not wanting in support of so just and reasonable a right, which may now be considered as established (d).

Partial owner may obtain injunction.

2. And not only a person exclusively interested in a trust fund, and therefore the absolute owner, may obtain an injunction against the disposition of it, which is almost matter of course; but one who has only a common interest with others in the trust estate, is entitled on behalf of himself and those others to have the property secured (e).

Injunction against bankrupt or insolvent trustee.

3. An injunction against the disposition of the fund may be obtained against an insolvent trustee (f), and a fortiori against one who is actually a bankrupt (g), and the Court will grant an injunction against the administration of the assets by an executor who is proved to be of bad character, drunken habits, and great poverty (h), [or who has misappropriated assets and become bankrupt (i). But the Court will not thus interfere in favour of a creditor, unless it is shown that the assets are being wasted, and in a creditor's action for administration a receiver will not be appointed merely because the executor will probably exercise his legal right of retaining his own debt or of preferring a chaser from the necessity of seeing to the validity of the sale; Jenkins v. Jones, 2 Giff. 99; [and see Selwyn v. Garfit, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 273; Barker v. Illingworth, (1908) 2 Ch. 20].

(a) See Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 57; Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 279, 281; Attorney-General v. Foundling Hospital, 2 Ves. jun. 42.

(b) 2 Anst. 549.

(c) Anon. case, 6 Mad. 10.

(d) See Webb v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 7 Ves. 487, 488; Reeve v. Parkins, 2 J. & W. 390; Milligan v. Mitchell, 1 M. & K. 446; Attorney-General v. Mayor of Liverpool, 1 M. & Cr. 210; Vann v. Barnett, 2 B. C. C. 157; Dance v. Goldingham, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 902; Marshall v. Sladden, 4 De G. & Sm. 468, and ante, p. 506.

(e) Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 346; Dance v. Goldingham, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 902.

(f) Mansfield v. Shaw, 3 Mad. 100; Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 346; Taylor v. Allen, 2 Atk. 213.

(g) Gladdon v. Stoneman, 1 Mad. 143, note.

(h) Howard v. Papera, 1 Mad. 143; Hathornthwaite v. Russel, 2 Atk. 126; S. C., Barn. 334.

[(i) Bowen v. Phillips, (1897) 1 Ch. 174.]

particular creditor (a)], nor will the Court interfere merely because an executor is poor (b).

[Solicitor buying up mortgages by his client.]

[4. If a solicitor buy up mortgages created by his client in order to relieve the client from embarrassment, and afterwards refuses to give information as to the securities and threatens to sell the property, he will be restrained from selling upon the terms of the client paying into Court such a sum as the Court considers sufficient to cover the amount actually paid by the solicitor (c).]

[(a) Re Wells, 45 Ch. D. 569; Re Stevens, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 162, 173; Harris v. Harris, 57 L. J. Ch. 754; 35 W. R. 710; Philips v. Jones, (C. A. 1884, 28 S. J. 360), disapproving dictum of Jessel, M.R., in Re Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733.]

(b) Everett v. Pryterch, 12 Sim. 365.

[(c) Macleod v. Jones, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 289.]

CHAPTER XXXI

THE REMEDIES OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST IN THE EVENT OF A BREACH OF TRUST

UPON the subject of the cestui que trust's remedies for a breach of trust, we shall consider, First. The right of the cestui que trust to follow the specific estate into the hands of a stranger, to whom it has been tortiously conveyed; Secondly. The right of attaching the property into which the trust estate has been wrongfully converted; Thirdly. The remedy against the trustee personally, by way of compensation for the mischievous consequences of the act; and Fourthly. The mode and extent of redress in breaches of trust committed by trustees of charities.

SECTION I

OF FOLLOWING THE ESTATE INTO THE HANDS OF A STRANGER

The questions that suggest themselves upon this subject are, First. Into whose hands the estate may be followed; Secondly. Within what limits of time; Thirdly. What account the Court will direct of the mesne rents and profits.

First. Into whose hands the estate may be followed.

1. If the alienee be a volunteer, then (subject to any bar arising out of the Statute of Limitations) the estate may be followed into his hands, whether he had notice of the trust (a), or not (b); for though he had no actual notice, yet the Court will imply it

Where alienee is a volunteer estate may be followed.

(a) Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 678; and see Saunders v. Dehew, 2 Vern. 271; S. C., 2 Freem. 123; Langton v. Astrey, 2 Ch. Rep. 30; S. C., Nels. 126.

(b) Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 681, per Cur.; Bell v. Bell, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 58, per Cur.; Pye v. George, 2 Salk. 680, per Lord Harcourt; and see 1 Rep. 122 b; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 219; Spurgeon v. Collier, 1 Eden, 55; Cole v. Moore, Mo. 806.

against him where he paid no consideration. But if the alienee be a purchaser of the estate at its full value, then (subject as aforesaid) if he take with notice of the trust, whether the notice be actual or constructive (a), he is bound to the same extent and in the same manner as the person of whom he purchased (b), even though the conveyance was made to him by fine with non-claim (c); for, knowing another's right to the property, he throws away his money voluntarily, and of his own free will (d). And the rule applies not only to the case of a trust, properly so called, but to purchasers with notice of any equitable incumbrance, as of a covenant or agreement affecting the estate (e), or a lien for purchase-money (f). But, if a bonâ fide purchaser have not notice, either expressly or constructively, he then merits the full protection of the Court, and his title, even in equity, cannot be impeached (g).

Purchaser without notice cannot protect himself by getting in legal estate from an express trustee.

2. If the purchaser have no notice of the trust at the time of the purchase, but afterwards discovers the trust and obtains a conveyance from the trustee, he cannot protect himself by taking

(a) Boursot v. Savage, 2 L. R. Eq. 134. And see Hartford v. Power, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 204.

(b) Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 319, per Lord Manners; Pawlett v. Attorney-General, Hard. 469, per Lord Hale; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 195; per Sir T. Clarke; Bovy v. Smith, 1 Vern. 149; Phayre v. Peree, 3 Dow, 129; Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 262, per Lord Redesdale; Wigg v. Wigg, 1 Atk. 382; Mead v. Lord Orrery, 3 Atk. 238, per Lord Hardwicke; Mackreth v. Symmons, 15 Ves. 350, per Lord Eldon; Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 681, per Cur.; Willoughby v. Willoughby, 1 T. R. 771, per Lord Hardwicke; Verney v. Carding, cited Joy v. Campbell, 1 Sch. & Lef. 345; Flemming v. Page, Rep. t. Finch. 320; Powell v. Price, 2 P. W. 539, admitted; Backhouse v. Middleton, 1 Ch. Ca. 173; S. C., Id. 208; Walley v. Walley, 1 Vern. 484; Pearce v. Newlyn, 3 Mad. 186; Slattery v. Axton, W. N. 1866, p. 113; Macbryde v. Eykyn, W. N. 1867, p. 306; Heath v. Crealock, 18 L. R. Eq. 215; 10 L. R. Ch. App. 22.

(c) Kennedy v. Daly, 1 Sch. & Lef. 355; and see Bell v. Bell, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 44.

(d) Mead v. Lord Orrery, 3 Atk. 238, per Lord Hardwicke.

(e) Daniels v. Davison, 16 Ves. 249; Earl Brook v. Bulkeley, 2 Ves. 498; Taylor v. Stibbert, 2 Ves. jun. 437; Winged v. Lefebury, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 32; Ferrars v. Cherry, 2 Vern. 384; Jackson's case, Lane, 60; Crofton v. Ormsby, 2 Sch. & Lef. 583; Kennedy v. Daly, 1 Sch. & Lef. 355.

(f) Mackreth v. Symmons, 15 Ves. 329; Walker v. Preswick, 2 Ves. 622, per Lord Hardwicke; Cator v. Pembroke, 1 B. C. C. 302, per Lord Loughborough; Gibbons v. Badall, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 682, note (b); Elliott v. Edwards, 3 B. & P. 181; and see Grant v. Mills, 2 V. & B. 306; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 320; [Jared v. Clements, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 428].

(g) Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 195, per Sir. T. Clarke; Id. 246, per Lord Henley; Millard's case, 2 Freem. 43; Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 681, per Cur.; Willoughby v. Willoughby, 1 T. R. 771, per Lord Hardwicke; Dunbar v. Tredennick, 2 B. & B. 318, per Lord Manners; Trevor v. Trevor, 1 P. W. 633; Harding v. Hardrett, Rep. t. Finch, 9; Cole v. Moore, Mo. 806, per Cur.; Jones v. Powles, 3 M. & K. 581; Payne v. Compton, 2 Y. & C. 457; Thorndike v. Hunt, 3 De G. & J. 563; Heath v. Crealock, 18 L. R. Eq. 215; 10 L. R. Ch. App. 22; Waldy v. Gray, 20 L. R. Eq. 238; [Taylor v. Blakelock, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 560].

shelter under the legal estate; for this is not like getting in a first mortgage, which the first mortgagee has a right to transfer to whomsoever he will (a); but here notice of the trust converts the purchaser into a trustee, and he must not, to get a plank to save himself, be guilty of a breach of trust (b). [But he will be entitled to the benefit of the legal estate which he has acquired as against persons other than the cestuis que trust, or those deriving title from them, for the plaintiff who seeks to deprive another of the benefit of the legal estate must rely on an equity of his own, not on that of a stranger (c).]

Purchaser without notice from purchaser with notice.

3. A purchaser without notice from a purchaser with notice is not liable, for his own bona fides is a good defence in itself, and the mala fides of the vendor ought not to invalidate it (d); and a purchaser taking the legal estate without actual notice of the trust, but taking it from a person in whom it vested by an instrument which disclosed the trust, but of which instrument the purchaser was ignorant at the time of purchase, can still protect himself as a purchaser without notice (e).

Exception in case of a charity.

But the rule does not apply to the case of a charitable use, for it has been ruled that a purchaser without notice from a purchaser with notice shall be bound by the claim of charity (f). In other respects the principles of equity as to the doctrine of notice are applicable to charities in the same manner as between private persons (g).

Shares in a company.

Where a trustee of shares of a company within the Companies' Clauses Consolidation Act transferred them to a stranger without notice, but who had notice before the transfer was registered, the

(a) Bates v. Johnson, Johns. 304; Baillie v. M'Kewan, 35 Beav. 177; Joyce v. Rawlins, 11 L. R. Eq. 53; Mumford v. Stohwasser, 18 L. R. Eq. 556; [Garnham v. Skipper, 55 L. J. N.S. Ch. 263; 53 L. T. N.S. 940; 34 W. R. 135; Bailey v. Barnes, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 25, 37; Taylor v. Russell, (1892) A. C. 244, 255; London and County Banking Co. v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642].

(b) Saunders v. Dehew, 2 Vern. 271; S. C., 2 Freem. 123; Langton v. Astrey, 2 Ch. Rep. 30; S. C., Nels. 126; Carter v. Carter, 3 K. & J. 617; Sharples v. Adams, 32 Beav. 213; Collier v. M'Bean, 34 Beav. 426; Justice v. Wynne, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 489; 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 289; Prosser v. Rice, 28 Beav. 68; Heath v. Crealock, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 22; [Harpham v. Shacklock, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 207, 214; and see Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. 8, 20, 29; (1892) A. C. 244; Bailey v. Barnes, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 25, 36, 37].

[(c) Taylor v. Russell, (1891) 1 Ch. 8, 28; (1892) A. C. 244.]

(d) Mertins v. Jolliffe, Amb. 313, per Lord Hardwicke; Ferrars v. Cherry, 2 Vern. 384; see Pitts v. Edelph, Tothill, 164; Salsbury v. Bagott, 2 Sw. 608.

(e) Pilcher v. Rawlins, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 259, overruling Carter v. Carter, 3 K. & J. 617.

(f) East Greenstead's case, Duke, 65; Sutton Colefield case, Id. 68; and see Id. 94, 173; see Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 194.

(g) See Sugd. Vend. & Pur. 722, 14th ed.

purchaser was protected; for he had no notice when he paid his money, and it was like a conveyance where the legal estate was to become vested on the performance of some condition, such as making a demand or the like, and the registration involved no breach of trust by the trustee (a).

[Trustee can avail himself of legal estate.]

[A trustee who has the legal estate, and takes from his cestui que trust an assignment of the equitable interest by way of security for money advanced to the cestui que trust, can avail himself of the legal estate as a protection against a prior incumbrance of which he had no notice (b).]

Purchaser with notice from purchaser without notice.

4. A purchaser with notice from a purchaser without notice is exempt from the trust, not from the merits of the second purchaser, but of the first; for if an innocent purchaser were prevented from disposing of the beneficial interest, the necessary result would be a stagnation of property (c). But if the trustee sell the lands to a bonâ fide purchaser without notice, and afterwards himself becomes the owner of the lands, though for a good and valuable consideration, the trust as to him revives again, and he shall restore the land to the trust (d); and in this respect equity follows the law; for, if a trespasser of goods sell them in the market overt, the owner's title is barred; but if they come to the trespasser again, the owner may seize them (e). ["The only exception to the rule which protects a purchaser with notice taking from a purchaser without notice, is that which prevents a trustee buying back trust property which he has sold, or a fraudulent man who has acquired property by fraud saying he

(a) Dodds v. Hills, 2 H. & M. 424; [and see France v. Clark, 22 Ch. D. 830; 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 257; followed in Fox v. Martin, 64 L. J. Ch. 473; W. N. (1895) p. 36, and Roots v. Williamson, 38 Ch. D. 485; and see ante, p. 901. In order to confer a legal title to such shares a deed duly delivered by the transferor is necessary: Powell v. London and Provincial Bank, (1893) 1 Ch. 610; Ib. 2 Ch. (C.A.) 555; and see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 2096, 2109, 2114].

[(b) Newman v. Newman, 28 Ch. D. 674.]

(c) Harrison v. Forth, Pr. Ch. 51; Bradwell v. Catchpole, stated Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 78, note (a); Mertins v. Jolliffe, Amb. 313, per Lord Hardwicke; Brandlyn v. Ord, 1 Atk. 571, per eundem; Sweet v. Southcote, 2 B. C. C. 66; M'Queen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 478, per Lord Eldon; Lowther v. Carlton, 2 Atk. 242; S. C., 3 Barn. 358; S. C., Forr. 187; Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 136, per Cur.; Salsbury v. Bagott, 2 Sw. 608, per Cur.; [Barrow's case, 14 Ch. D. (C.A.) 432].

(d) Bovy v. Smith, 2 Ch. Ca. 124; S. C., 1 Vern. 60, 84, 144; Kennedy v. Daly, 1 Sch. & Lef. 379, per Lord Redesdale, [and see Ledbrook v. Passman, 59 L. T. N.S. 306; 57 L. J. Ch. 855, as to the incapacity of a trustee for payment of mortgages to tack third mortgage to first, having taken transfers of both].

(e) See Bovy v. Smith, 2 Ch. Ca. 126.

sold it to a bonâ fide purchaser without notice, and has got it back again" (a).]

How far purchaser bound by notice of a doubtful equity.

5. Upon the question, how far a purchaser will be bound by notice of a doubtful equity, Lord Northington said, in Cordwell v. Mackrill (b), "A man must take notice of a deed on which an equity, supported by precedents the justice of which every one acknowledges, arises, but not the mere construction of words, which are uncertain in themselves, and the meaning of which often depends on their locality." And Sir W. Grant observed "There may be such a doubtful equity that a purchaser is not to be taken to know what will be the decision, and that is all Lord Camden (c) means; but in this case the equity is clear" (d).

Notice of "heirs of the body."

6. The rule, that "heirs of the body" in articles shall be construed "first and other sons," does not appear to have been fully established till about the year 1720 (e): Lord Hardwicke therefore said, that notice of ancient articles, that is of articles before the doctrine was well settled, should not bind a bonâ fide purchaser (f). And afterwards, in a case of both articles and settlement before marriage, the settlement reciting the articles, Lord Hardwicke thought that, as the equity in this instance rested upon a single authority (g), and that one in which the question arose between the parties and their representatives and mere volunteers, the purchaser ought not to be bound by the claim of the issue (h). But notice of modern articles, that is, of articles entered into since the clear establishment of the rule, will affect a purchaser (i); but, even then, the articles themselves must be produced, that the Court may judge from the whole instrument; for the true construction depends upon the words, and other parts of the deed may be material to find out their meaning (j).

Lord St Leonards' observations on Cordwell v. Mackrill.

Lord St Leonards observed, that Cordwell v. Mackrill was of no great authority, though decided by a great Judge; and conceived the true rule to be that, where upon the whole articles it is plain

[(a) Per Jessel, M.R., Barrow's case, 14 Ch. D. (C.A.) 445; and see West London Commercial Bank v. Reliance Building Society, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 954, 963.]

(b) 2 Eden, 347; S. C., Amb. 516.

(c) Sir W. Grant appears to have supposed that the decision was by Lord Camden.

(d) Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 588.

(e) By Trevor v. Trevor, 1 P. W. 622.

(f) Senhouse v. Earle, Amb. 288; and accordingly relief not asked against purchasers in West v. Errissey, 2 P. W. 349.

(g) West v. Errissey, 2 P. W. 349.

(h) Warrick v. Warrick, 3 Atk. 291.

(i) Senhouse v. Earle, Amb. 288, per Lord Hardwicke; Davies v. Davies, 4 Beav. 54; and see Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 587.

(j) Cordwell v. Mackrill, Amb. 515; S. C., 2 Eden, 344.

what construction the Court would have put upon them, had it been called upon to execute them at the time they were made, they should be enforced, however difficult the construction might be, even as against a purchaser with notice, but not after a lapse of time where there was anything so equivocal or ambiguous in them as to render it doubtful how they ought to be effectuated (a).

Title long neglected.

7. In a case where a residuary legatee had enjoyed for nineteen years a copyhold estate, which had been mortgaged to the testator in fee, and then the heir of the testator recovered the land by ejectment and mortgaged it, and the residuary legatee, having neglected to assert his title to the possession for nine years, at the end of that period filed a bill in Chancery, and established his claim, it was determined that the mortgagee of the heir after the ejectment was not called upon to notice the right of the residuary legatee; for it was not that "clear, broad, plain equity" which should affect a purchaser (b).

Separate use.

8. A testator had given a leasehold estate to his daughter to her sole and separate use, but without the interposition of a trustee (c), and the husband, supposing himself absolutely entitled, entered into possession, and afterwards mortgaged the premises, and it was held that the mortgagee was bound to notice the equitable construction of the will, as a doctrine well understood (d); and the husband having obtained a reversionary lease and mortgaged it, the mortgagee was of course held cognisant of the rule, that leases obtained under cover of the tenant right would be subject to the equity of the original term (e).

[Conveyancing Act, 1882.]

[9. By the Conveyancing Act, 1882 (f), sect. 3, it is provided that "a purchaser (g) shall not be prejudicially affected by notice of any instrument, fact, or thing, unless (i.) it is within his own knowledge, or would have come to his knowledge if such inquiries and inspections had been made as ought reasonably to have been made by him; or (ii.) in the same transaction with respect to which a question of notice to the purchaser arises, it has come to the knowledge of his counsel, as such, or of his solicitor or other agent, as such, or would have come to the knowledge of his solicitor or other agent, as such, if such inquiries and inspections

(a) Thompson v. Simpson, 1 Dru. & War. 491.
(b) Hardy v. Reeves, 4 Ves. 466; S. C., 5 Ves. 426, 431.
(c) See ante, p. 969.
(d) Parker v. Brooke, 9 Ves. 583.
(e) And see Coppin v. Fernyhough, 2 B. C. C. 291.

[(f) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 39, s. 3.]
[(g) Which term by sect. 1, sub-s. 4 (ii.) of the same Act includes a lessee or mortgagee, or an intending purchaser, lessee, or mortgagee, or other person, who, for valuable consideration, takes or deals for property.]

had been made as ought reasonably to have been made by the solicitor or other agent." The section is not to exempt a purchaser from any liability under any covenant or provision contained in the instrument under which his title is derived, mediately or immediately, but it applies to purchases made either before or after the commencement of the Act.

The section, which was designed to restrict and not to extend the doctrine of notice (a), does not affect the ordinary rule that a purchaser cannot avoid constructive notice by omitting to investigate the title to the property (b), or set up the legal estate as against the title of a third person when he himself "did not take the usual ordinary precaution to make inquiry about it, but was content to accept the title, to take a conveyance, and to advance his money without inquiry of any sort or kind" (c), but it was intended to remedy the evil consequences of such a doctrine as was well illustrated by Hargreaves v. Rothwell (d), whereby where a solicitor had acted in a former transaction with reference to the estate, "notice was imputed to the client if there was such a distance only between the former transaction and the present transaction in which he was engaged as left the Court under the impression—it could not be more than an impression—that the solicitor had actually remembered the former transaction; and in that way knowledge was imputed to the solicitor, and through the solicitor notice was imputed to the client" (e).

The expression "ought reasonably" in the end of sub-section (ii.) means "ought as a matter of prudence, having regard to what is usually done by men of business under similar circumstances," and the "gross and culpable negligence" on the part of a purchaser in not obtaining information as to the title, referred to by Lord Cranworth in Ware v. Egmont (f) as fixing him with constructive notice, is to be understood in a similar sense, and not as importing any breach of legal duty, "for a purchaser of property

[(a) Bailey v. Barnes, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 25, 35; and see Bateman v. Hunt, (1904) 2 K. B. 530, 540, ante, p. 916.]

[(b) Patman v. Harland, 17 Ch. D. 353 (showing that even an express representation by the vendor, that a particular deed contains no restrictive covenants nor anything affecting the title, will not relieve the purchaser from the obligation of investigation), and cases there cited; and see Re Nisbet and Potts Contract, (1905) 1 Ch. 395, to the effect that any purchaser taking less than a forty years' title, is fixed with constructive notice of everything of which he would have received actual notice, if he had insisted on a full title.]

[(c) Gainsborough v. Watcombe Terra Cotta Co., 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 994, per North, J.; and see Ware v. Lord Egmont, 4 De G. M. & G. 460; Bailey v. Barnes, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 25.]

[(d) 1 Keen, 154, 160.]

[(e) Re Cousins, 31 Ch. D. 671, 676, per Chitty, J.]

[(f) 4 De G. M. & G. 460.]

is under no legal obligation to investigate his vendor's title. But in dealing with real property, as in other matters of business, regard is had to the usual course of business; and a purchaser who wilfully departs from it in order to avoid acquiring a knowledge of his vendor's title, is not allowed to derive any advantage from his wilful ignorance of defects which would have come to his knowledge if he had transacted his business in the ordinary way" (a).

Where one of two trustees, who was a solicitor, had secretly dealt with securities, which appeared to belong to the trust, in such a way that they had become appropriated to another trust, the other trustee was not affected with notice, for (1) no possible inquiries by him, or by any independent solicitor on his behalf, would have brought the appropriation to his knowledge, and (2) the appropriation did not come to the knowledge of his co-trustee either as his solicitor or in the same transaction in respect to which the question of notice arose (b).]

Choses in action.

10. As regards choses in action, and other personal estate not transferable at law, which may have been purchased from a trustee, the purchaser, whatever amount may have been paid by him, cannot stand on a better footing than the person of whom he purchases, but must (in conformity with the established rule governing assignments of choses in action) hold them subject to the same equities as the trustee did (c).

Equitable mortgage by trustee.

11. So a trustee who has the legal estate cannot, without a transfer of the legal estate, create an equity, in breach of his duty; as if a trustee holding a mortgage were wrongfully to deposit the deeds by way of security, the depositee could not hold the deeds as against the cestuis que trust, for the transaction being inequitable in itself could not give birth to an equity (d).

[Equity of cestui que trist prevails over subsequent equities however arising.]

[12. So, where trust money was improperly laid out in the purchase of an estate, which was conveyed to A. and mortgaged by him to several persons in succession without notice of the breach of trust, of whom the first only had the legal estate, it

[(a) Bailey v. Barnes, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 25, 35, per Lindley, L. J.; and see Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231, 258; Re Alms Corn Charity, (1901) 2 Ch. 750.]

[(b) Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231.]

(c) Ord v. White, 3 Beav. 357; Cockell v. Taylor, 15 Beav. 103; Clack v. Holland, 19 Beav. 262; Barnard v. Hunter, 2 Jur. N.S. 1213; Mangles v. Dixon, 1 Mac. & G. 437; 3 H. L. Ca. 702; Athenæum, &c., Society v. Pooley, 3 De G. & J. 294; [Perham v. Kempster, (1907) 1 Ch. 373]; and see ante, pp. 892 et seq.

(d) Newton v. Newton, 6 L. R. Eq. 135; 4 L. R. Ch. App. 143; see Joyce v. De Moleyns, 2 Jon. & Lat. 374; [Carritt v. Real and Personal Advance Co., 42 Ch. D. 263; see ante, p. 925].

was held that the claim of the cestuis que trust against the property was an equitable estate of the same quality as the estates of the equitable mortgagees, and had priority over them as being prior in time (a). And where a lease was surrendered by an executor, and a new lease including additional property was taken by him in his own name and at an increased rent, and was deposited by him as a security for an advance made to him, it was held that the cestuis que trust had priority over the equitable mortgagee (b). But where a receipt for purchase-money, not in fact paid, is given by a trustee who in other respects is acting in conformity with the trust, persons who, under sect. 55 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (c), are entitled to rely on the receipt, may, although their title is equitable only, be entitled to priority over the cestuis que trust (d). Where the sale by the trustee was, to the knowledge of the purchaser, fictitious, as between an innocent mortgagee by deposit of the purchase deed and the innocent cestuis que trust, the equity of the latter prevailed (e).]

Improper loans of trust money.

13. And if a trustee in breach of his duty lend trust money, and the borrower, with notice of the trust, applies it to his own use, the conscience of the latter is affected, and he cannot separate the loan from the trust, and insist that, when the loan would as a loan have been barred, the trust is barred (f).

General rule.

14. And it may be laid down generally that the rules of the Court are the rules of honesty and fair dealing, that no party to an illegal or fraudulent contract can derive any benefit from it, and that all persons who obtain possession of trust funds with a knowledge that their title is derived from a breach of trust will be compelled to restore such trust funds (g).

Secondly. Within what limits of time the suit must be instituted.

[(a) Cave v. Cave, 15 Ch. D. 639; and see Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew. 73. The decision in Cave v. Cave has been questioned by the Court of Appeal in Ireland, on the ground that the right of a cestui que trust to follow trust money into land is an inferior equity to that of an innocent purchaser for value of an equitable estate in the land; Re Ffrench's Estate, 21 L. R. Ir. 283; and see Re Sloane, (1895) 1 I. R. 146; Kelly v. Munster and Leinster Bank, 29 L. R. Ir. 19; Bourke v. Lee, (1904) 1 I. R. 280; see, however, Carritt v. Real and Personal Advance Co., 42 Ch. D. 263; Re Richards, 45 Ch. D. 589.]

[(b) Re Morgan, 18 Ch. D. (C.A.) 93.]

[(c) 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.]

[(d) Lloyd's Bank v. Bullock, (1896) 2 Ch. 192; and see King v. Smith, (1900) 2 Ch. 425.]

[(e) Capell v. Winter, (1907) 2 Ch. 376, see ante, p. 921.]

(f) Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 198, per L. J. Turner; and see Wilson v. Moore, 1 My. & K. 337; Child v. Thorley, 16 Ch. D. 151, 155.

(g) Gray v. Lewis, 8 L. R. Eq. 526, 543.

Time no bar in a direct trust, otherwise in a constructive trust.

1. It is a well-known rule, that, as between cestuis que trust and trustee in the case of a direct trust, no length of time is a bar; for, from the privity existing between them, the possession of the one is the possession of the other, and there is no adverse title (a). It has hence been argued, that as the person into whose hands the estate is followed is also by construction of law a trustee, the cestui que trust is entitled to the benefit of the rule, and is not precluded by mere lapse of time from establishing his claim. But the authorities show that this doctrine cannot be maintained (b).

"It is certainly true," said Sir W. Grant, "that no time bars a direct trust; but if it is meant to be asserted that a Court of Equity allows a man to make out a case of constructive trust at any distance of time after the facts and circumstances happened out of which it arises, I am not aware that there is any ground for a doctrine so fatal to the security of property as that would be: so far from it, that not only in circumstances where the length of time would render it extremely difficult to ascertain the true state of the fact, but, where the true state of the fact is easily ascertained, and where it is perfectly clear that relief would originally have been given upon the ground of constructive trust, it is refused to the party who, after long acquiescence, comes into a Court of Equity to seek that relief" (c). And Lord Redesdale observed: "The position that trust and fraud are not within the statute must be thus qualified: that if a trustee is in possession, and does not execute his trust, the possession of

(a) See Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 67; Bennett v. Colley, 2 M. & K. 232; Llevellyn v. Mackworth, Barn. 449; Wilson v. Moore, 1 M. & K. 146; Townshend v. Townshend, 1 B. C. C. 554; Hamond v. Hicks, 1 Vern. 432; Norton v. Turvill, 2 P. W. 144; Bell v. Bell, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 66; Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, Jac. 448; Heath v. Henly, 1 Ch. Ca. 26; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 2 Keen, 749; 4 M. & Cr. 41; 22 Beav. 84; Smith v. Acton, 26 Beav. 210; Lord Hollis's case, 2 Vent. 345; Earl of Pomfret v. Windsor, 2 Ves. 484; Hargreaves v. Michell, 6 Mad. 326; Nevarre v. Rutton, 1 Vin. Ab. 185; Shields v. Atkins, 3 Atk. 563; Phillipo v. Munnings, 2 M. & Cr. 309; Ward v. Arch, 12 Sim. 472; Young v. Waterpark, 13 Sim. 204; Gough v. Bult, 16 Sim. 323; Massy v. O'Dell, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 22; Crawford v. Crawford, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 436; [Foxton v. Manchester, &c., Banking Company, 44 L. T. N.S. 406]. See post, p. 1130.

(b) Townshend v. Townshend, 1 B. C. C. 550, see 554; Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145; Andrew v. Wrigley, 4 B. C. C. 125; Collard v. Hare, 2 R. & M. 675; and see Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 2 J. & W. 190; S. C., affirmed, 4 Bligh, 4; Bell v. Bell, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 66; Portlock v. Gardner, 1 Hare, 594; Ex parte Hasell, 3 Y. & C. 622; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 4 M. & Cr. 53; but see Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, 3 M. & K. 344 (the case of a charity); Rolfe v. Gregory, 11 Jur. N.S. 98; 4 De G. J. & S. 576; Sturgis v. Morse, 3 De G. & J. 1; [Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390].

(c) Beckford v. Wade, 17 Ves. 97; [and see Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 401].

the trustee is the possession of the cestui que trust; and if the only circumstance is, that he does not perform his trust, his possession operates nothing as a bar, because his possession is according to his title. But the question of fraud is of a very different description; that is a case where a person who is in possession by virtue of the fraud is not, in the ordinary sense of the word, a trustee, but is to be constituted a trustee by a decree of a Court of Equity, founded on the fraud; and his possession in the meantime is adverse to the title of the person who impeaches a transaction on the ground of fraud" (a).

General operation of lapse of time.

2. For more clearly understanding how lapse of time operates in reference to the remedy of the cestui que trust, in the event of a wrongful alienation of the trust estate by the trustee, it may be useful to consider the effect of lapse of time upon suits for equitable relief generally.

Three bars to equitable relief.

To claims in equity there appear to be three bars arising from lapse of time:—I. A statute of limitation; II. The presumption of something done which, if done, is subversive of the plaintiff's right; III. The ground of public policy or inconvenience of the relief.

Bar by analogy to a statute.

I. Where there is a statutable bar at law, the same period was always, either by analogy or in obedience to the statute, adopted as a bar in equity in reference to equitable claims (b).

Lord Camden's views.

(1) The language of Lord Camden upon this subject has been admired as peculiarly energetic. "As a Court of Equity," he said, "has no legislative authority, it cannot properly define the time of bar by a positive rule to an hour, a minute, or a year: it is governed by circumstances. But as often as Parliament has limited the time of actions and remedies to a certain period in legal proceedings, the Court of Chancery has adopted that rule, and applied it to similar cases in equity; for when the legislature has fixed a time at law, it would be preposterous for equity, which by its own proper authority always maintained a limitation, to countenance laches beyond the period that law is confined to by Parliament; and therefore in all cases, where the legal right has been barred by Parliament, the equitable right to the same thing has been concluded by the same bar" (a).

(a) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 633.

(b) See Ex parte Dewdney, 15 Ves. 496; Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 149; Beckford v. Wade, 17 Ves. 97; Townshend v. Townshend, 1 B. C. C. 554; Aggas v. Pickerell, 3 Atk. 225; Belch v. Harvey, Appendix to Sugd. Vend. and Purch. No. XIV. 13th ed.; White v. Ewer, 2 Vent. 340; Knowles v. Spence, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 315; Pearson v. Pulley, 1 Ch. Ca. 102; Johnson v. Smith, 2 Burr. 961; Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, Jac. 448; Salter v. Cavanagh, 1 Dru. & Walsh, 668; Kingston v. Lorton, 2 Hog. 166; Foley v. Hill, 1 Ph. 399; Hamilton v. Grant, 3 Dow, 44; Marquis of Clanricarde v. Henning, 30 Beav. 175; [Re Tidd, (1893) 3 Ch. 154].

Lord Redesdale's views.

Lord Redesdale, in a case before him, observed: "It is said that Courts of Equity are not within the statutes of limitations. This is true in one respect; they are not within the words of the statutes, because the words apply to particular legal remedies; but they are within the spirit and meaning of the statutes, and have been always so considered. I think it is a mistake in point of language to say that Courts of Equity act merely by analogy to the statutes; they act in obedience to them" (b). And again, "I think the statute must be taken virtually to include Courts of Equity; for when the legislature has by statute limited the proceedings at law in certain cases, and provided no express limitation for proceedings in equity, it must be taken to have contemplated that equity followed law; and therefore it must be taken to have virtually enacted in the same cases a limitation for Courts of Equity also" (c). And the same doctrines have been repeatedly recognised by the highest authorities, amongst whom may be mentioned Lord Manners (d), Sir T. Plumer (e), Lord Lyndhurst (f), and Lord Westbury (g).

Limitation of twenty years.

(2) Upon these principles, then, an equitable claim to lands could never have been enforced after a lapse of twenty years; for though to writs of right, and to formedons much longer periods were allowed at law, yet equity always looked upon these as peculiar and excepted cases, and guided itself rather by analogy to the statute of James, which fixed the limitation to the prosecution of rights of entry (h).

Suits for redemption.

(3) At law the remainderman's right always ran only from the determination of the particular estate, but in the case of a

(a) Smith v. Clay, cited in note to Deloraine v. Browne, 3 B. C. C. 639; [Bulli Coal Mining Co. v. Osborne, (1899) A.C. (P.C.) 351].

(b) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 630; [and see Charter v. Watson, (1899) 1 Ch. 175, where real estate and a policy being comprised in one mortgage, and the mortgagee having a possessory title of twelve years, it was held that, as the mortgagor was barred from redemption of the real estate, he was also barred from redeeming the policy].

(c) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 631; and see Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton, 2 J. & W. 192; Bond v. Hopkins, 1 Sch. & Lef. 429; [Re Baker, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 230; Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 59].

(d) Medlicott v. O'Donel, 1 B. & B. 166.

(e) Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton, 2 J. & W. 151.

(f) Foley v. Hill, 1 Ph. 405.

(g) See Knox v. Gye, 5 L. R. H. L. 674; [How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626, 640; Friend v. Young, (1897) 2 Ch. 421; Re Plumtre's Settlement, (1910) 1 Ch. 609].

(h) Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton, 2 J. & W. 192.

bill to redeem filed by the person entitled in remainder to the equity of redemption, twenty years' possession by the mortgagee without account or admission of title, though partly or wholly during the lifetime of the tenant for life, barred the remainderman; the ground for the distinction apparently being, that the remainderman might have filed a bill to redeem during a continuance of the life estate (a). But where the mortgagee is also tenant for life of the equity of redemption, [so that the same person is entitled to the rents and the interest,] the time does not run against the remainderman until the death of the tenant for life (b); [and the fact that the rents are payable to one set of trustees, and the interest to another, does not alter the case where the cestui que trust is the same (c),] and the same rule applies where the mortgagee is tenant in common with others of the equity of redemption (d). [But where the equitable tenant for life of a sum charged on land but not raised, is also devisee in fee of the land, here, as the tenant for life is only entitled to receive interest, and not liable to pay it, time will run against the trustees of the charge during his lifetime (e).]

Fine.

(4) Where a fine, with proclamations, was levied by a person claiming adversely, though a volunteer, without actual notice or other imputation of fraud, a constructive trust was held to be barred after a lapse of five years (f).

Statutory bar not avoided by ignorance, poverty, &c.

(5) In the case of a statutory bar the limited period affords a substantial insuperable obstacle to the plaintiff's claim, and no plea of poverty, ignorance, or mistake, can be of any avail. However clear and indisputable the title, could the merits be inquired into, the limited time has elapsed, and the door of justice is closed (g). If the Court could relieve after twenty years on the ground of distress, or any similar plea, so might it

(a) See Giffard v. Hort, 1 Sch. & Lef. 407 note; Blake v. Foster, 4 Bligh, N.S. 140; Corbett v. Barker, 1 Anstr. 138; 3 Anstr. 755; Harrison v. Hollins, 1 S. & S. 471; but see 2 Ph. 121. [Possession of the land by a prior mortgagee does not suspend the running of time against a subsequent mortgagee: Samuel Johnson & Sons, Ltd. v. Brock, (1907) 2 Ch. 533.]

(b) Raffety v. King, 1 Keen, 601, and cases there cited; Burrell v. Lord Egremont, 7 Beav. 205.

[(c) Topham v. Booth, 35 Ch. D. 607.]

(d) Wynne v. Styan, 2 Ph. 303.

[(e) Re England, (1895) 2 Ch. 100; Ib. (C.A.) 820; and see Re Allen, (1898) 2 Ch. 499.]

(f) Bell v. Bell, Ll. & G. t. Plunket, 44; and see 3 P. W. 310, note (G.).

(g) Marquis of Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton, 2 J. & W. 139, per Sir T. Plumer; Byrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 171, 178, per Sir A. Hart; Astley v. Earl of Essex, 18 L. R. Eq. 290. But as to mistake, see Brooksbank v. Smith, 2 Y. & C. 58; [and as to statute running in such case from time of payment, and not of discovery of mistake, see Baker v. Courage, (1910) 1 K. B. 56].

after thirty, forty, or fifty; there would be no limitation, and property would be thrown into confusion (a).

Effect of forbearance of the trustee to sue.

(6) Sir Joseph Jekyll is reported on one occasion to have laid down the rule that, "the forbearance of the trustees in not doing what it was their office to have done should in no sort prejudice the cestuis que trust" (b); and hence it has been inferred that a right gained by a stranger through the neglect of the trustee shall be no bar in equity to the claim of the cestui que trust; but this is not the case generally as regards the operation of the statutes of limitation. "The rule, that the Statute of Limitations does not bar a trust estate," said Lord Hardwicke, "holds only as between cestui que trust and trustee, not as between cestui que trust and trustee on the one side, and strangers on the other, for that would make the statute of no force at all, because there is hardly any estate of consequence without such trust, and so the Act would never take place. Therefore, where a cestui que trust and his trustee are both out of possession for the time limited, the party in possession has a good bar against them both" (c). "A cestui que trust," said Lord Redesdale, "is always barred by length of time operating against the trustee. If the trustee does not enter, and the cestui que trust does not compel him to enter, as to the person claiming paramount, the cestui que trust is barred" (d). And Lord Manners observed: "The opinion of Sir J. Jekyll, if intended to apply to third persons, which I do not conceive it was, has often been denied, and is contrary to many decisions. If trustees neglect their duty, and suffer an adverse possession of twenty years to be held, I apprehend the Statute of Limitations is a bar to the cestui que trust" (e).

Case where cestui que trust is under disability, or is entitled in remainder.

(7) It results from the foregoing statements of the doctrine of the Court, that, as a general rule, where both cestui que trust and trustee are out of possession for the time prescribed by the statutes of limitation, the former suffers for the neglect of the latter and is barred. But the question still remains, whether in cases where the cestui que trust would, if his title were legal, have more than the ordinary time to sue (as where he is under disability or entitled in remainder only), he will be allowed

(a) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 640.

(b) Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 215.

(c) Lewellin v. Mackworth, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 579; S. C., Barn. 445.

(d) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 629.

(e) Pentland v. Stokes, 2 B. & B. 75; and see Cooper v. Ware, 18 Ir. Jur. 24.

the same extended period for suing in equity, notwithstanding that the trustee may be barred.

Where subject matter of trust is a debt.

(8) Where the subject matter of the trust is a debt, arising under a covenant or contract, it seems difficult to avoid the conclusion that when the trustee is barred, the cestui que trust is barred also (a). But if the debtor borrowed the money as trust money, or knowing it to be such, he cannot set up the statute (b).

Where subject matter is land, and possession is adverse.

(9) The same result would seem to follow where the subject matter of the trust is land, and the possession has been held adversely to both trustee and cestui que trust, without any species of privity, as when the trustee is disseised. Here there is generally no remedy in equity. The proper course for the cestui que trust is to bring ejectment in the name of the trustee [or since the Judicature Acts, in a proper case, to sue in his own name, making the trustee a co-defendant]. The rare instance of a person entering without privity or authority upon lands belonging in equity to an infant, may perhaps constitute an exception, the rule being that he who so enters must, whether the infant is legally or equitably entitled, be regarded as a bailiff or receiver for the infant (c). But no such exception can be maintained where the infant has never been in possession by himself, his guardian, or agent, but the title was adverse to those through whom he claims (d). And even the existence of the exception itself cannot be viewed as free from doubt (e).

Where trust is of land, and party in possession claims by conveyance from trustee.

(10) Where the subject matter of the trust is land, and the person in possession claims by conveyance from the trustee, here, unless the facts warrant the defence of purchase for value without notice, the right of the cestui que trust to fix the person in possession with the liability to perform the trust falls under an ordinary head of equitable jurisdiction. The cestui que trust is clearly entitled to proceed in equity against the legal

(a) See Wych v. East India Company, 3 P. W. 309; Stone v. Stone, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 74; Hammond v. Messenger, 9 Sim. 327; Bolton v. Powell, 14 Beav. 275.

(b) Spickernell v. Hotham, Kay, 669; Bridgman v. Gill, 24 Beav. 302; Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 175; 6 Jur. N.S. 740; and see Stone v. Stone, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 74; [Coleman v. Bucks and Oxon Union Bank, (1897) 2 Ch. 243; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 397, 402; Re Plumtre's Settlement, (1910) 1 Ch. 609].

(c) See cases cited post, p. 1144, note (e).

(d) Crowther v. Crowther, 23 Beav. 305; [Murray v. Watkins, 62 L.T. 786; Garner v. Wingrove, (1905) 2 Ch. 233, post, p. 1123]. But see Quinton v. Frith, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 414.

(e) See Allen v. Sayer, 2 Vern. 368, corrected from R. L., Treat. on Trusts, 3rd ed. App. X., and the author's remarks at p. 720 of the same edition; Wych v. East India Company, 3 P. W. 309; The Earl v. Countess of Huntingdon, cited Ib. 310, note (G.); Thomas v. Thomas, 2 K. & J. 79.

owner, and the only question is within what time he must do so. In these cases, it is conceived, the cestui que trust (although the trustee may be barred from his action of ejectment) must, in the absence of any express statutory enactment applicable to the case (a), be entitled to sue in equity within the same extended period in reference to disability and accruer of right, as if his title were legal (b).

Fraud.

(11) No time will cover a fraud so long as it remains concealed; for, until discovery (or at all events until the fraud might with reasonable diligence have been discovered), the title to avoid the transaction does not properly arise (c). But, after discovery, the defendant may avail himself of the statute, for he has a right to say: "You shall not bring this matter under discussion at this distance of time; it is entirely your own neglect that you did not do so within the period limited by the statute" (d). [But the concealed fraud which is relied on as taking a case out of the statute must be that of the defendant who is setting up the statute, or of some one for whose fraud he is in law responsible, and not that of a stranger (e), nor, in general, a fraud committed subsequently to the time when the right of action first accrued (f); and the qualification as to

(a) See post, p. 1125.

(b) See Scott v. Scott, 18 Jur. 755; 4 H. L. Cas. 1065.

(c) Blair v. Bromley, 2 Ph. 354; Rolfe v. Gregory, 11 Jur. N.S. 97; S. C., 4 De G. J. & S. 576; Cotterell v. Purchase, Cas. t. Talbot, 63, per Lord Talbot; Medlicott v. O'Donel, 1 B. & B. 166, per Lord Manners; Arran v. Tyrawly, cited Ib. 170; Alden v. Gregory, 2 Eden, 280; Morse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 374, per Lord Erskine; Bicknell v. Gough, 3 Atk. 558; South Sea Company v. Wymondsell, 3 P. W. 143; Booth v. Warrington, 4 B. P. C. 163; Pickering v. Lord Stamford, 2 Ves. jun. 280, per Lord Alvanley; Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 634; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330; Blennerhassett v. Day, 2 B. & B. 118, per Lord Manners; Robinson v. Norris, 1 Giff. 421; Whatton v. Toone, 5 Mad. 54; [Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. (C.A.) 319; Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 59; Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. 599, 605, 609, 614; S. C., in H. L. (1895) A. C. 495, 502; Bulli Coal Mining Co. v. Osborne, (1899) A. C. (P. C.) 351 (where underground coal was fraudulently taken, without any laches by the party defrauded);] and see Whalley v. Whalley, 1 Mer. 436; Western v. Cartwright, Sel. Cas. Ch. 34; Re Agriculturists' Cattle Insurance Co., 3 L. R. Eq. 769; [Barber v. Houston, 14 L. R. Ir. 273; S. C., 18 L. R. Ir. 475]. But Sir A. Hart thought time would run against fraud from the date of it, though undiscovered, provided the person entitled had knowledge of the fraud a reasonable time before the expiration of the period; Byrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 157.

(d) Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Sch. & Lef. 634, per Lord Redesdale; Western v. Cartwright, Sel. Ch. Ca. 34; [Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. (C.A.) 319;] and see Mulcahy v. Kennedy, 1 Ridg. 337.

[(e) Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. 599; (1895) A. C. 495; Willis v. Earl Howe, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 545; Re McCallum, (1901) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 143, per Lord Alverstone, C.J., and Vaughan Williams, L.J.]

[(f) Willis v. Earl Howe, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 545; Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 15 App. Cas. 210; Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. 599, 605, per Lindley, L.J.]

reasonable diligence may be difficult of application, for as was intimated in a recent case (which, however, arose between partners, and not between trustee and cestui que trust), the fraudulent cannot be permitted to say to the defrauded: "I was fraudulent, but you ought to have found me out" (a).

How defendant may take advantage of the statute.

(12) The defendant may avail himself of the Statute of Limitations, by pleading it himself (b); but, if he neglect to do so,] he cannot shelter himself under the statute at the time of the hearing (c); though it seems the Court itself may still, in its own discretion, refuse to grant relief after the limited period (d).

In cases of fraud.

(13) Even where the plaintiff charges fraud, the defendant may plead [the statute] (e). If the plaintiff allege that he only discovered the fraud within the period limited by the statute before action brought, the defendant must either deny the fraud, or insist that the plaintiff had earlier knowledge of it (f).

Bar from presumption.

II. The Court, after great length of time, will presume some act to have been done, which, if done, is a bar to the demand (g).

At what time presumption is raised.

(1) The period at which the Court raises the presumption depends upon the circumstances of the case. As a general rule, the Court presumes after a lapse of twenty years (1), but where there is a statutable bar at law, and of a different period, the Court will not entertain a presumption within a less time than the period fixed by the statute (h).

Ground of the presumption.

(2) Presumptions are made, not necessarily because the Court really believes what is presumed, but in the absence of evidence,

[(a) Betjemann v. Betjemann, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 474, 483, per Rigby, L.J.]

[(b) Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order XIX., Rule 15. As to the right under the old practice to raise the question by demurrer, see the 7th edition of this work, p. 739, and cases there cited; and as to the present practice in lieu of demurrer, see Order XXV.]

(c) Prince v. Heylin, 1 Atk. 494; Harrison v. Borwell, 10 Sim. 382; Roch v. Callen, 6 Hare, 535; Sleight v. Lawson, 3 K. & J. 296.

(d) Prince v. Heylin, 1 Atk. 494.

(e) South Sea Company v. Wymondsell, 3 P. W. 143; [Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 59].

(f) See Mitford on Pleading, 4th ed. 269; 5th ed. 312. [Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 59.]

(g) Pattison v. Hawksworth, 10 Beav. 375; and see Attorney-General v. Moor, 20 Beav. 119; [but see Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215, 256].

(h) Eldridge v. Knott, Cowp. 214.

---

(1) In Harmood v. Oglander, 6 Ves. 199, 8 Ves. 106, the bill was filed after a lapse of thirty-two years, yet neither Lord Alvanley nor Lord Eldon considered the length of time to bar the plaintiff's demand; but in this case the parties were equitable tenants in common, and as between them the presumption of ouster did not arise.

for the purpose of quieting the possession (a). Lord Erskine observed: "It is said you cannot presume unless you believe. It is because there are no means of creating belief or disbelief that such general presumptions are raised" (b). Where positive evidence can be presented to the Court, the fact may be presumed after a period much shorter than the usual one. And, on the other hand, though the distance of time may be far greater than the ordinary limit of presumption, yet if there appear any positive evidence to negative the fact, the legal interference cannot be sustained, for the rule is stabit præsumptio donec probetur in contrarium. But the Court has judged it better, for the ends of justice, that presumption should be favoured in law, and should not be rebutted by slight evidence in contradiction (c).

Ignorance, mistake, and distress.

(3) The Court cannot presume a person to have abandoned his right so long as he remains in ignorance of it, or labours under a mistake (d); and the distress of a person, so far as it accounts for his laches, will pro tanto weaken the foundation of the presumption (e). So a release of right cannot with the same force be presumed against a class of persons, as against an individual; for it is not likely that a person having only an aliquot share in the property, should pursue his remedy with the same spirit as if he were the exclusive proprietor (f).

Bar from public or private inconvenience.

III. Though the plaintiff's demand cannot be met by an absolute bar, and no release or right can be presumed, yet, thirdly, relief will not be granted where, if administered, it would lead to great public or private inconvenience (g).

In action for account a settlement may be presumed.

(1) Thus in an action for an account against an executor or administrator, who is in equity a trustee, and was formerly not

(a) Eldridge v. Knott, Cowp. 215, per Lord Mansfield; and see Grenfell v. Girdlestone, 2 Y. & C. 682; Magdalen College v. Attorney-General, 3 Jur. N.S. 675.

(b) Hillary v. Waller, 12 Ves. 266.

(c) Jones v. Turberville, 2 Ves. jun. 13, per Lord Commissioner Eyre; and see Grenfell v. Girdlestone, 2 Y. & C. 662.

(d) See Marquis Cholmondeley v. Lord Clinton, 2 Mer. 362; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 427; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 330, see 342; Pickering v. Stamford, 2 Ves. jun. 280, and following pages; S. C., Ib. 585; Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 65, and following pages; Bennett v. Colley, 2 M. & K. 232; Stone v. Godfrey, 5 De G. M. & G. 76; [Allcard v. Walker, (1896) 2 Ch. 369, and see ante, p. 582].

(e) See Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 342; Hillary v. Waller, 12 Ves. 266; Gowland v. De Faria, 17 Ves. 25; Byrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 171, 178.

(f) See Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. 752; Anon. case, cited Lister v. Lister, 6 Ves. 632; Kidney v. Coussmaker, 12 Ves. 158; Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 109; Attorney-General v. Lord Dudley, G. Coop. 146; [Boswell v. Coaks, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 425, 457;] but see Elliot v. Merriman, 2 Atk. 42; Hercy v. Dinwoody, 2 Ves. jun. 87, and ante, p. 581.

(g) See Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, Jac. 448.

protected by any statute of limitations (a), though the presumption of a final settlement may be rebutted by positive evidence, the Court will not open the account at any distance of time, when it is probable that most of the parties are dead, and the vouchers and receipts are lost (b).

Instances of great delay.

(2) Where a suit was prosecuted after a delay of threescore and two years, Lord Keeper Wright said, that "the cause being now within one year of the grand climacteric, it was fit it should be at rest" (c). But bills have been dismissed at the end of twenty-seven years (d), and a much shorter period would be a sufficient bar, should the Court see a difficulty in granting the relief: every case must be determined with reference to its own particular circumstances (e).

Pickering v. Stamford.

(3) In Pickering v. Lord Stamford (f), a testator gave the residue of his personal estate to a charity, and thirty-five years after his decease the next of kin filed their bill for an account, and prayed that such part as consisted of money upon mortgage or other real securities might be declared a void bequest, and distributable, subject to debts, &c., among the testator's next of kin. Lord Alvanley said: "I know no rule that has established that mere length of time will bar. Therefore, that being the case, I am to say whether under the circumstances a bar can be presumed" (g). And for facilitating the question of presumption, his Lordship directed certain previous inquiries by the Master; and it appearing from the report that no release or assignment of their interest by the next of kin for the purposes of the charity could, under the circumstances, be presumed, his Lordship then had recourse to the ground of Inconvenience. The question, he observed, in all these cases is, whether there are motives of public policy or private inconvenience, to induce the Court to say, the suit ought not to be entertained. "If," said his Lordship, "from the plaintiff's lying by, it is impossible for the defendants to render the accounts he calls for, or it will subject them to great inconvenience, he must suffer; or the Court will oppose, what

(a) See now the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 27), s. 40; the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 38), s. 13; the Trustee Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 59), s. 8.

(b) Hunton v. Davies, 2 Ch. Rep. 44; Huet v. Fletcher, 1 Atk. 467; Pearson v. Belchier, 4 Ves. 627; Hercy v. Dinwoody, 2 Ves. jun. 87.

(c) St John v. Turner, 2 Vern. 418.

(d) Campbell v. Graham, 1 R. & M. 453.

(e) See Hercy v. Dinwoody, 2 Ves. jun. 93; Earl of Pomfret v. Lord Windsor, 2 Ves. 483.

(f) 2 Ves. jun. 272.

(g) 2 Ves. jun. 283; [and see Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 196, 212].

I think the best ground, Public convenience. The plaintiffs are so conscious of this, that they do not call on the trustees to account for what has been disbursed before any demand made. It appears that the trustees, who by their conduct have done themselves great credit, have kept such accounts that there is no difficulty in finding the personal estate at the death of the testator. Therefore desiring to be understood by no means to give any countenance to these stale demands, but upon the circumstances that there is nothing inducing great public or private inconvenience, that the accounts are found, and that the trustees are not called on to account for what has been disbursed, I am bound to decide in favour of the plaintiffs" (a).

Bar from length of time.

(4) The doctrine laid down by Lord Alvanley in the case referred to, that mere length of time will not bar, requires some qualification. Lapse of time or delay in suing, unaccounted for by disability or other circumstances, constitutes per se, in the eye of a Court of Equity, laches disentitling the plaintiff, in certain classes of cases at least, to relief from the Court. Thus where a plaintiff cestui que trust seeks to impeach a purchase by a trustee, a delay of less than twenty years may bar his title to relief (b). So where a plaintiff seeks to set aside a purchase from him by his solicitor (c), or of a reversionary interest (d), or to fix a defendant with a constructive trust (e), or to call a person to account for acts of waste (f), or comes to a Court of Equity alleging a case of fraud as a ground for avoiding the operation of the Statute of Limitations (g). So where an account was sought by a surviving partner against the estate of a deceased partner, the Court, even assuming such case to fall within the exception as to merchants' accounts in the Statute of Limitations, refused its aid after a delay of thirteen years (h). And where the assistance of the Court is sought in a suit for specific performance (i), or in one partaking of that character (j), the rule

(a) 2 Ves. jun. 582, and following pages.

(b) See the cases, p. 581, ante.

(c) See Gresley v. Mousley, 4 De G. & J. 78, and the cases there cited; and Lyddon v. Moss, Ib. 104; [Nutt v. Easton, (1899) 1 Ch. 873; (1900) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 29].

(d) Roberts v. Tunstall, 4 Hare, 257.

(e) Clegg v. Edmondson, 8 De G. M. & G. 787; 3 Jur. N.S. 299; Isald v. Fitzgerald, cited Amb. 735, 737; and see Pennell v. Home, 3 Drew. 337; Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 38; Jackson v. Welsh, Ll. & G. Rep. t. Plunk. 346; [Kennedy v. De Trafford, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 762, 777; S. C., (1897) A.C. 180].

(f) Harcourt v. White, 28 Beav. 303.

(g) Blair v. Ormond, 1 De G. & Sm. 428.

(h) Tatam v. Williams, 3 Hare, 347; and see Harcourt v. White, 28 Beav. 303.

(i) Southcomb v. Bishop of Exeter, 6 Hare, 213; Alloway v. Braine, 26 Beav. 575; Sharp v. Wright, 28 Beav. 150.

(j) Hope v. Corporation of Gloucester, 1 Jur. N.S. 320.

is extremely strict. It is difficult to refer the refusal of the relief by the Court, in the instances mentioned, to any one general principle. In the cases of purchases by trustees, or of claims founded upon constructive trust, the probability of alteration of circumstances in regard to the property, and the unfairness of the plaintiff in lying by, have weighed with the Court (a). Perhaps the nearest approach to general principle will be found under the head of "Public Convenience"; Expedit Reipublicae ut sit finis litium (b).

Bar from laches, where there is a Statute of Limitations.

(5) It has been pointed out that in certain special cases a delay of less than twenty years operates as a bar; and the Court in these instances departs still further from the analogy offered by the Statute of Limitations, by taking partly into account time which may have elapsed while the plaintiff's interest was reversionary (c). The question remains whether, in general, laches can be relied upon as a bar to a mere dry equitable demand falling within the purview of some or one of the statutes of limitation; and it seems the legislature itself having prescribed a term of limitation which it deems sufficiently short, the Court ought not further to abridge that term (d).

Acquiescence.

(6) Besides the bars which have been enumerated arising from the effect of time, a plaintiff may also be precluded from relief on the ground of acquiescence. This is of two kinds:— First, direct, where the act complained of was done with the full knowledge and express approbation of another, in which case a Court of Equity will not allow that other to seek relief against the very transaction to which he was himself a party (e). Secondly, indirect, where a person, having a right to set aside a transaction, stands by and sees another dealing with property in a manner inconsistent with that right, and makes no objection; when also a Court of Equity will not relieve (f). But in

[(a) See Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 196.]

(b) See Gresley v. Mousley, 4 De G. & J. 95; Carey v. Cuthbert, 7 Ir. R. Eq. 542; 9 Ir. R. Eq. 330; Payne v. Evens, 18 L. R. Eq. 356.

(c) Roberts v. Tunstall, 4 Hare, 266; Browne v. Cross, 14 Beav. 105; but as to the latter case see observations of Turner, L.J., in Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 73.

(d) See Rochdale Canal Company v. King, 2 Sim. N.S. 89; Penny v. Allen, 7 De G. M. & G. 426; Mehrtens v. Andrews, 3 Beav. 76; Duke of Leeds v. Earl of Amherst, 2 Ph. 117; Clarke v. Hart, 6 H. L. C. 633; Beaudry v. Mayor, &c., of Montreal, 11 Moore, P. C. C. 339; Story v. Gape, 2 Jur. N.S. 706; [Re Baker, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 230; Phillips v. Homfray, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 465].

(e) See Kent v. Jackson, 14 Beav. 384; Styles v. Guy, 1 Mac. & G. 427; 1 Hall & Tw. 523; Ex parte Morgan, 1 Hall & Tw. 328; Graham v. Birkenhead, &c., Railway Company, 2 Mac. & G. 146.

(f) Duke of Leeds v. Amherst, 2 Ph. 123; Phillipson v. Gatty, 7 Hare, 523; Stafford v. Stafford, 1 De G. & J. 202;

the latter case, the Court not only looks to the conduct of the person who stands by, but also considers how far the person in possession of the property has any just claims to the protection of the Court. Where, for instance, the possessor lays out his money, with a full knowledge that the property which he improves belongs to another, then it is said he makes the outlay to his own cost. "If," observed L.J. Turner, "a man places his property on the land of another with full knowledge of that person's title, how can the fact that the landowner assented to its being placed there give an equity to have it restored? If it did, the doctrine would come to this, that whenever a man lays out money on another person's land with the consent of the owner, he has an equity to have it repaid" (a).

[Where, however, the act complained of has been completed without any knowledge or assent on the part of the person seeking relief, there can be no acquiescence in the strict sense of the word, which has been defined as "quiescence under such circumstances as that assent may be reasonably inferred from it," and is no more than an instance of the law of estoppel by words or conduct. When once the Act is completed without any knowledge or assent upon the part of the person whose right is infringed, a right of action has vested in him, which, at all events as a general rule, cannot be divested without accord and satisfaction or release under seal. Mere submission to the injury, for any time short of the period limited by statute for the enforcement of the right of action, cannot take away such right, although, under the name of laches, it may afford a ground for refusing relief under some particular circumstances (b).]

Limitation Acts.

We may now introduce the Acts for the limitation of actions and suits.

[Limitation Act, 1623.]

[3. By 21 Jac. 1. c. 16, sect. 3, it is enacted that actions upon the case (other than for slander), actions of account, and for trespass, debt, detinue and replevin for goods or cattle, and of [Simpson v. Simpson, 3 L. R. Ir. 308; Blake v. Gale, 31 Ch. D. 196; Civil Service Musical Instrument Association v. Whiteman, 68 L. J. Ch. 484; 80 L. T. N.S. 685;] and see Jorden v. Money, 5 H. L. C. 185; [Mills v. Fox, 37 Ch. D. 153. It must, however, be borne in mind that where there is a legal right to set aside a transaction, as for instance a fraudulent conveyance under the Fraudulent Conveyances Act, 1571 (13 Eliz. c. 5), mere delay to enforce it, unless the delay is such as to cause a statutory bar, is no defence; Re Maddever, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 523].

(a) Rennie v. Young, 2 De G. & J. 136, see 142. See ante, pp. 925 et seq.

[(b) Per L. J. Thesiger in delivering the judgment of the Court of Appeal, De Bussche v. Alt, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 286, 314.]

trespass quare clausum fregit, must be brought within six years next after the cause of such actions.]

4. The Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 27), enacts as follows:— 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 27.

Sect. 24: "No person claiming any land or rent in equity shall bring any suit to recover the same, but within the period during which, by virtue of the provisions hereinbefore contained (a), he might have made an entry or distress, or brought an action to recover the same respectively if he had been entitled at law to such estate, interest or right in or to the same as he shall claim therein in equity" (b). Lands and rents.

Sect. 25: "When any land or rent shall be vested in a trustee upon any express trust, the right of the cestui que trust, or any person claiming through him, to bring a suit against the trustee, or any person claiming through him (c), to recover such land or rent, shall be deemed to have first accrued, according to the meaning of this Act at, and not before, the time at which such land or rent shall have been conveyed to a purchaser for valuable consideration, and shall then be deemed to have accrued only as against such purchaser, and any person claiming through him" (d). Express trusts.

Sect. 26: "In every case of a concealed fraud (e), the right of Fraud.

(a) See Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 57), s. 9, which from the commencement of the Act (1st January, 1879), varies the periods within which actions and suits may be brought.

(b) See Scott v. Scott, 18 Jur. 755; 4 H. L. Cas. 1065.

(c) As to the meaning of these words, see Burroughs v. M'Creight, 1 Jon. & Lat. 304; [East Stonehouse Urban Council v. Willoughby, (1902) 2 K. B. 318, 335].

(d) Sums of money and legacies charged on land and secured by an express trust, are as from 1st January, 1879, made only recoverable within the time allowed for recovery, had there been no express trust; Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, s. 10; [and as to actions or other proceedings against a trustee or any person claiming through him, commenced after the 1st of January, 1890, and in which the claim is not founded on fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which the trustee was party or privy, or is to recover trust property or the proceeds thereof still retained by the trustee, or previously received by the trustee, and converted to his use, the effect of this section is modified by s. 8 of the Trustee Act, 1888, see post, p. 1136. The section "is but a statutory declaration of a law which had always been recognised and administered in Courts of Equity"; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 403, per Kay, L.J.].

[(e) As to the meaning of the expression "concealed fraud," see Willis v. Earl Howe, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 545, 552. A false assertion of title by a person taking possession of land is not a concealed fraud within the meaning of the section, per Lindley, L.J. "The section seems to point to some contrivance by which the real owner has not merely been deprived, but defrauded, in the sense of being induced to believe that he was not owner, and that the person who entered was owner and entitled to enter," per Kay, L.J. The "concealed fraud" to which the statute refers must be the fraud of the person who sets up the statute, or of some one through whom he claims: Re any person to bring a suit in equity for the recovery of any land or rent of which he, or any person through whom he claims, may have been deprived by such fraud, shall be deemed to have first accrued at, and not before, the time at which such fraud shall, or with reasonable diligence might, have been first known or discovered" (a).

Acquiescence.

Sect. 27: "Nothing in the Act contained shall be deemed to interfere with any rule or jurisdiction of Courts of Equity in refusing relief, on the ground of acquiescence or otherwise, to any person whose right to bring a suit may not be barred by virtue of the Act."

[Final extinction of right.]

[Sect. 34: "At the determination of the period limited by this Act to any person for making an entry or distress, or bringing any writ of quare impedit or other action or suit, the right and title of such person to the land, rent, or advowson, for the recovery whereof such entry, distress, action, or suit respectively might have been made or brought within such period, shall be extinguished" (b).]

Arrears of rent or interest.

Sect. 42: "No arrears of rent or of interest in respect of any sum of money charged upon, or payable out of, any land or rent, shall be recovered by any action or suit, but within six years next after the same shall have become due, or after an acknowledgment of the same in writing shall have been given to the person entitled thereto or his agent, signed by the person by whom the same is payable or his agent."

M'Callum, (1901) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 143, per Lord Alverstone, C.J., and Vaughan Williams, L.J. Rigby, L.J., however, expressed the opinion that sect. 26 applies to every case of a "concealed fraud" which deprives the true owner of the possession of land, except as regards a bonâ fide purchaser for value, without notice of the fraud at the time of his purchase. As regards restrictive covenants, a title acquired by adverse possession of the land subject thereto, does not destroy the equitable rights against the land of persons entitled to the benefit of the covenants: Re Nisbet and Potts' Contract, (1905) 1 Ch. 391.]

(a) See Manby v. Bewicke, 3 K. & J. 342; Petre v. Petre, 1 Drew. 371; Vane v. Vane, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 383; [Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 213, 224; 15 App. Cas. 210. This enactment is a legislative recognition and expression of previously well settled principles in equity which were and are applicable to all kinds of property, and not to real property only; Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599, 605, per Lindley, L.J.; but it does not, as was said by Field, J., in Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296, 305; S. C., 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 59, express the whole doctrine of equity applicable to concealed fraud. The qualification as to reasonable diligence, though appropriate to cases of ejectment, may not be reasonable as to other cases; Betjemann v. Betjemann, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 474, 478, 479, per Lindley, L.J., and see ante, p. 1114].

[(b) As to the effect of this section see Re Jolly, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 616; Carson's Real Property Statutes, p. 179, citing Bolling v. Hobday, 31 W. R. 9; Re Hazeldine's Trusts, (1908) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 34.]

5. And the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 57), enacts, that from and after 1*st January* 1879 :— 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57.

Sect. 1. No action or suit shall be brought to recover any land or rent but within twelve years from the time when the right first accrued.

Sect. 2. The right, as to reversions, remainders, and future estates shall be deemed to first accrue when they fall into possession (a). But if the person entitled to the particular estate on which the future estate was expectant shall not have been in possession when his interest determined, the action or suit must be brought within twelve years from the time the first right accrued to the owner of the particular estate, or within six years from the time when the estate of the person becoming entitled in possession became vested in possession, whichever of those two periods shall be the longer.

Sect. 3. In cases of disability, six years from the cesser of the disability or from the death of the person under disability shall be allowed, notwithstanding the expiration of the twelve years (b).

Sect. 4. No extension of time shall be allowed for absence beyond seas of the person having the right to make the entry, or bring the action, or of any person through whom he claims.

Sect. 5. No action or suit to recover any land shall be brought but within thirty years from the time when the right first accrued, notwithstanding the existence of any disability or succession of disabilities (c).

[Sect. 8: "No action or suit or other proceeding shall be brought to recover any sum of money secured by any mortgage, judgment (d) or lien, or otherwise charged upon, or payable out of (e) any land or rent, at law or in equity, or any legacy, but within twelve years after a present right to receive the same (f) shall

[(a) Thus in the case of an equitable mortgage or charge of a contingent reversionary interest, time does not begin to run until the interest falls into possession : Hugill v. Wilkinson, 38 Ch. D. 480 ; see the grounds of this decision explained in Re Owen, (1894) 3 Ch. 220, 225 ; and see Re Hancock, 57 L. J. Ch. 793 ; 36 W. R. 710 ; 59 L. T. N.S. 197.]

[(b) Where time has begun to run against an owner who is under no disability, it is not interrupted by the infancy of his successor in interest, whether legally or equitably entitled : Garner v. Wingrove, (1905) 2 Ch. 233, ante, p. 1113.]

[(c) See Hounsell v. Dunning, (1902) 1 Ch. 512.]

[(d) This expression extends to all judgments on covenant, and is not confined to judgments which operate as a charge on land : Jay v. Johnstone, (1893) 1 Q. B. 25; Ib. (C.A.) 189; and see Hebblethwaite v. Peever, (1892) 1 Q. B. 124.]

[(e) Even though the subject matter of the mortgage is reversionary ; Kirkland v. Peatfield, (1903) 1 K. B. 756.]

[(f) As to the meaning of these words, see Re Owen, (1894) 3 Ch. 220, 225 ; Hornsey Local Board v. Monarch Investment Building Society, 24 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 1. The twelve years in the

have accrued to some person capable of giving a discharge for or release of the same, unless in the meantime" (a) there has been a payment or acknowledgment, in which case the time runs from the last payment or acknowledgment (b).]

Result of the Acts.

6. It results from these Acts that since 1st January, 1879, twelve years' possession is made a statutory bar to suits in equity in respect of equitable interests, as in the case of actions at law upon legal rights (c), but in case of disability a term of six years is allowed next after the cesser of the disability, subject to the proviso that no suit is to be brought after the lapse of thirty years from the accruer of the right, whatever disabilities may have existed.

In case of express trust time runs from conveyance for value only.

7. In cases falling within the 25th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (d), the effect of that section is that as between the trustee and any person claiming through him, and the cestui que trust and any person claiming through him, time does not run until there has been a conveyance to a purchaser for valuable consideration. The trust estate may, therefore, be followed by the cestui que trust, notwithstanding acquiescence by him (e), not only as against the trustee, but as against all volunteers claiming under him (f); but so soon as the estate is conveyed to a purchaser for valuable consideration (as if it be made the subject of a marriage settlement), the time will begin to run (g); and a case of a legacy runs from the death of the testator, not from the expiration of one year after the death: Waddell v. Harshaw, (1905) 1 I. R. 416.]

[(a) A payment made more than twelve years after the cause of action first accrued, but less than twelve years before action brought, is a payment "in the meantime" within the section: Re Viscount Clifden, (1900) 1 Ch. 774; but see Carson's R. P. Statutes, p. 200.]

[(b) As to payment by specific devisee for life of part of a testator's real estate keeping a creditor's right of action alive against the entirety, see Roddam v. Morley, 1 De G. & J. 1; Re Lacey, (1907) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 330; Re Chant, (1905) 2 Ch. 225; and as to the effect of payment of interest by a tenant for life of mortgaged property in keeping the mortgage debt alive against the personal estate of the deceased mortgagor, see Dibb v. Walker, (1893) 2 Ch. 429; Leahy v. De Moleyns, (1896) 1 I. R. 206. The payment must be one from which an acknowledgment of liability and promise to pay the balance can be inferred; Taylor v. Hollard, (1902) 1 K. B. 676.]

[(c) The existence of a trust term, the trusts of which never actively arise, and under which possession is never taken, cannot be set up by the person entitled subject to the term as an answer to a defence founded upon the statute; Twaddle v. Murphy, 8 L. R. Ir. 123.]

(d) See ante p. 1121, note (d).

(e) Browne v. Radford, W. N. 1874, p. 124.

(f) Sturgis v. Morse, 24 Beav. 541; 3 De G. & J. 1; Heenan v. Berry, 2 Jon. & Lat. 303; Salter v. Cavanagh, 1 Dru. & Walsh, 668; Blair v. Nugent, 3 Jon. & Lat. 658; 9 Ir. Eq. Rep. 400; Ravenscroft v. Frisby, 2 Coll. 16; Massy v. O'Dell, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 22; O'Reilly v. Walsh, 6 Ir. R. Eq. 555; and see Dixon v. Gayfere, 17 Beav. 421; Mutlow v. Bigg, 18 L. R. Eq. 246.

(g) Petre v. Petre, 1 Drew. 371.

lease for value is pro tanto a conveyance within the meaning of the Act (a). No possession, however, by a purchaser for valuable consideration short of the statutory period will be a bar (b).

And not even then as against persons under disability, &c.

8. The question whether a lapse of the statutory period from the time of a conveyance for value by a trustee will bar cestuis que trust who, by reason of disability, or their rights being reversionary, would otherwise be entitled to sue after such period, is not free from difficulty. The 25th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, enacts affirmatively that the right is to be deemed to have accrued at the time of conveyance, and this, in strict construction, would seem to work an independent bar. But this section is merely a proviso on the 24th section, which is in effect an enactment restraining the right to sue in equity within the limits allowed for suits at law; and the 25th section would appear to be not a further restraint of the right to sue, but an enlargement, by way of modification of the restriction previously introduced by the 24th section. The decisions and dicta accord with this view, and point to the conclusion that a cestui que trust, who is a remainderman, or under disability, is entitled to the full statutory period from the accruer of the right in possession, or from the cesser of the disability, as the case may be, notwithstanding the trustee may have conveyed away the estate for value, and the twenty or twelve years, as the case may be, may have elapsed from the date of conveyance, but in no case must the period allowed now exceed thirty years from the accruer of the right in possession (c).

Express trusts.

9. The 25th section applies only to express trusts; it is therefore necessary to ascertain with precision what is meant by this phrase. Trusts, as regards the provisions of the statute, may be considered as divided into express trusts and constructive trusts; the former arising upon the language of some written instrument (d), and the latter such as are elicited by the principles of a Court of Equity from the acts of parties.

Word "trust" not necessary to constitute an express trust.

10. It is not necessary to use the word trust in order to create

(a) Attorney-General v. Davey, 4 De G. & J. 136; Attorney-General v. Payne, 27 Beav. 168.

(b) Attorney-General v. Flint, 4 Hare, 147. But see Carey v. Cuthbert, 7 Ir. R. Eq. 542; 9 Ir. R. Eq. 330.

(c) Thompson v. Simpson, 1 Dru. & War. 489; Attorney-General v. Magdalen College, 18 Beav. 239, 250; 6 H. L. Cas. 189, see p. 215; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 58; Shaw v. Keighron, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 574; and see Butler v. Carter, 5 L. R. Eq. 276; Quinton v. Frith, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 396.

[(d) But whether an express trust within the statute is necessarily confined to one in writing, quære, Re Sands to Thompson, 22 Ch. D. 614, 617, per Fry, J., observing on Petre v. Petre, 1 Drew. 371.]

an express trust within the meaning of the statute (a), but any language that would in equity raise or imply a trust will be deemed an express trust. If, therefore, land be devised to a person upon trust to receive the rents and thereout to pay certain annuities, the surplus rents result to the heir-at-law upon the face of the instrument, and this being an express trust, the heir-at-law, in a case falling within the section, will not be barred by any length of possession by the trustee (b). [But an executor, in the absence of special circumstances, is not an express trustee for the next of kin (c).]

Constructive trusts not saved.

11. But trusts arising by the construction of a Court of Equity from the acts of parties, or to be made out by circumstances, or to be proved by evidence, will not be saved by the clause relating to express trusts, as if the devisee for life of a leasehold estate renew in his own name, the statute will begin to run from the time of the renewal (d). So, if the trust fund be lent to A., and thereupon B., as surety, with notice of the trust, gives a mortgage of his estate to secure the fund, here B. is not an express trustee; and if no interest be paid for the statutable period, the cestui que trust is barred (e). [So where the first mortgagee of a ship sold the ship under the power conferred by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 104), it was held that he was not an express trustee of the surplus proceeds of sale for the subsequent mortgagee (f). And where real estate was conveyed to trustees upon charitable trusts by a deed which was void for non-compliance with the Charitable Uses Act, 1735 (9 Geo. 2. c. 36), sect. 3, the trustees were held not to be express trustees for persons claiming under the grantor (g).] But if there

(a) Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 197.

(b) Salter v. Cavanagh, 1 Dru. & Walsh, 668; [Patrick v. Simpson, 24 Q. B. D. 128; Nugent v. Nugent, 15 L. R. Ir. 321;] and see Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 196; 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 580; Mutlow v. Bigg, 18 L. R. Eq. 246, [reversed on other grounds, 1 Ch. D. (C.A.) 385; Churcher v. Martin, 42 Ch. D. 312, 319]. In Lord St John v. Boughton, 9 Sim. 223, where there was an express trust to sell and pay debts, the late V. C. E. thought that as no part of the produce of the sale had been set apart for debts, the case was not within the exception of the 25th section, but fell under the 40th section (relating to charges, vide post, p. 1127), and that if there had been no subsequent acknowledgment of the debt, it could not have been recovered. This, it is conceived, cannot be maintained. However it was a dictum only, as the bonds were directed to be paid on the ground of acknowledgment; see Watson v. Saul, 1 Giff. 197.

[(c) Re Lacy, (1899) 2 Ch. 149; and see Re M'Causland's Trusts, (1908) 1 I. R. 327.]

(d) Petre v. Petre, 1 Drew. 371; Re Scott, 8 Ir. Ch. Rep. 316; In the matter of P. Dane, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 498.

(e) Re Scott, 8 Ir. Ch. Rep. 316.

[(f) Banner v. Berridge, 18 Ch. D. 254; and see Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 196, 209.]

[(g) Churcher v. Martin, 42 Ch. D. 312.]

be an express trustee, and another person with full knowledge of the trust and in collusion with the trustee, and therefore by active fraud, appropriates the property to his own use, he stands in the place of the trustee, and while the fraud remains concealed the statute does not run (a). If a person act as the trustee of a settlement containing express trusts, though he assume the character by mistake, he will be deemed, so far as he acts, an express trustee (b). [It has, however, been observed, in reference to these cases, that "the authorities do not seem to have drawn with any precision the line of distinction between express and constructive trusts" (c).]

Charges.

12. Mere charges might have been held to fall under the description of express trusts, but that they are dealt with under a separate section, viz. the 40th of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (for which, as from 1st January, 1879 (d), is now substituted the 8th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874), a circumstance which shows that they were meant to be distinguished from express trusts. If, therefore, a testator, having two properties, A. and B., charged all his real estate with his debts, and devised estate A. to trustees upon trust to pay his debts, the statute as to estate B. [was] made a bar under 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 27, after twenty years, and under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, [is a bar] after twelve years (e), but as to estate A.

(a) Rolfe v. Gregory, 4 De G. J. & S. 576.

(b) Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 58; and see Smith v. Smith, 10 Ir. R. Eq. 273; 1 L. R. Ir. 206.

[(c) Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 401, per Kay, L.J. In that case Bowen, L.J., at p. 396, after making an observation to the same effect as that of Kay, L.J., cited above, continued: "First, the doctrine that time is no bar in the case of express trusts has been extended to cases where a person who is not a direct trustee nevertheless assumes to act as a trustee under the trust; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 58 (see supra). This extension of the doctrine is based on the obvious view that a man who assumes without excuse to be a trustee ought not to be in a better position than if he were what he pretends. Secondly, the rule as to limitations of time which has been laid down in reference to express trusts, has also been thought appropriate to cases where a stranger participates in the fraud of a trustee; Barnes v. Addy, 9 L. R. Ch. 244 (see post, p. 1159). Thirdly, a similar extension of the doctrine has been acted on in a case where a person received trust property, and dealt with it in a manner inconsistent with trusts of which he was cognisant; Lee v. Sankey, 15 L. R. Eq. 204 (and see M'Ardle v. Gaughan, (1903) 1 I. R. 107). Fourthly, in some other cases, e.g. in Bridgman v. Gill, 24 Beav. 302, by Lord Romilly, and in Wilson v. Moore, 1 M. & K. 337, by Lord Brougham, language has been employed in regard to the question of limitations of time in certain instances of constructive trust, which can scarcely be reconciled with the language held in Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145; Beckford v. Wade, 17 Ves. 87; Townshend v. Townshend, 1 Bro. C. C. 550, and in other cases."] it [did] not, [before 1st January, 1879], begin to run until a conveyance to a purchaser for valuable consideration (a); [but by the 10th section of 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, the time for recovering any money payable out of land is made the same, whether it is secured by an express trust or not]. So, if an estate be devised to A., charged with 1000*l.* in favour of B., or "A. paying 1000*l.* to B.," [or "on the condition of A. well and truly paying 1000*l.* to B." (b),] although a suit may be sustained in equity to have the sum raised on the footing of the trust, yet it is not an express trust within the meaning of the statute, and [an action by B. in such a case would have been barred at the end of twenty years, and will now, under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, be barred at the end of twelve years, independently of sect. 10 of that Act (c)]. And if a testator charge his debts and direct his executors to raise them by mortgage or otherwise, the direction adds nothing to the charge (which per se authorised the raising of the debts by mortgage or otherwise), and no express trust, but only a charge, is created (d).

[(d) See ante, p. 1123.]

[(e) Re Stephens, 43 Ch. D. 39.]

Charge coupled with a duty.

13. But a charge in form may be an express trust in fact. Thus where an estate in Ireland was devised to trustees and their heirs, upon trust to convey to J. W. for life, charged with annuities to certain corporations for charitable purposes, although the corporations were interposed as trustees, yet, as the devisees were bound to execute a settlement, so as to secure the annuities and retain the legal estate in the meantime, they were, until the settlement had been executed, trustees for the charities (e). So, though a simple charge of the testator's debts fell within the 40th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, and the creditor was barred after twenty years (f), yet, if the will was so worded as to impose on the devisees subject to the charge the personal obligation of exerting themselves actively in paying the

(a) Jacquet v. Jacquet, 27 Beav. 332; Proud v. Proud, 32 Beav. 235.

[(b) Cunningham v. Foot, 3 App. Cas. 974.]

(c) Knox v. Kelly, 6 Ir. Eq. Rep. 279; Toft v. Stephenson, 7 Hare, 1; Hodge v. Churchward, 16 Sim. 71; Francis v. Grover, 5 Hare, 39; Hughes v. Kelly, 3 Dru. & War. 482; [Cunningham v. Foot, 3 App. Cas. 974;] and see Harrison v. Duignan, 2 Dru. & War. 295.

(d) Dickinson v. Teasdale, 31 Beav. 511; 1 De G. J. & Sm. 52. [In applying the statute it is to be borne in mind that in general where a fixed sum of money is charged on land, and to be paid at a fixed time, the money in equity is treated as bearing interest (unless the contrary appears) from the date fixed for payment: Re Drax, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 781.]

(e) Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 182; 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 580.

(f) Dundas v. Blake, 12 Ir. Eq. Rep. 138, and cases there cited. The 40th section, as from 1st January, 1879, has been repealed by the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, s. 9. See the 8th section of the latter Act.

debts, it became an express trust, and fell within the exception of the 25th section (a).

Charge and express trust in same matter.

14. A charge upon an estate may under the same instrument be a mere charge as between some parties, while it is an express trust within the 25th section as between other parties. If, for instance, an estate be devised to A. and his heirs, subject to a charge of 500*l.* to B. and C. upon certain trusts, this, as between A. and the two trustees, is a mere charge, and would be barred after twenty or twelve years, as the case may be, but, as between the two trustees and their cestuis que trust, the charge when raised will be an express trust, and the time of the bar as between them will be extended accordingly (b).

Case of charge secured by a term of years.

15. If a term of years be limited to the trustees for the purpose of securing the charge, the rights of the cestuis que trust will not be barred so long as the term vested in their trustees remains unbarred (c).

Mortgage by way of trust.

16. A mortgage by way of trust for sale is [for the purpose now under consideration] nothing more than a mortgage with a power of sale, and does not come under the description of an express trust within the meaning of the 25th section (d). [A mortgagee, after his mortgage debt has been fully paid, is not an express trustee of the mortgaged property in the interval before reconveyance (e).]

Charge must be presently raisable.

17. To make the Act operate as a bar to a charge there must be a hand to receive, and capable of signing a receipt; as if 400*l.* be charged by deed on an estate, and by the same deed it is assigned to trustees upon trust for A. and B. for their lives, and after the death of the survivor for their children, but no power of signing receipts is given to the trustees, and, on the contrary, the Court collects the intention that the trustees are not to raise the money till after the death of the surviving tenant for life, the statute does not begin to run until the latter period (f).

(a) Hunt v. Bateman, 10 Ir. Eq. Rep. 360, and cases there cited; Watson v. Saul, 1 Giff. 188; and see Burrowes v. Gore, 6 H. L. Cas. 907.

[(b) And see Re England, (1895) 2 Ch. 100; Ib. (C.A.) 820, and ante, p. 1111.]

(c) Young v. Lord Waterpark, 13 Sim. 202; on appeal, 15 L. J. N.S. Ch. 63; Cox v. Dolman, 2 De G. M. & G. 592; and see Ward v. Arch, 12 Sim. 472; [Williams v. Williams, (1900) 1 Ch. 152].

(d) Locking v. Parker, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 30; [Re Alison, 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 284; Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 196].

[(e) Sands to Thompson, 22 Ch. D. 614; and see ante, p. 212.]

(f) M'Carthy v. Daunt, 11 Ir. Eq. Rep. 29. Assuming that the trustees could not sign a receipt, the decision was right; but it was a bold step to say that the trustees had not such a power. And see Attorney-General v. Persse, 2 Dru. & War. 67; Carroll v. Hargrave, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 123; [Barcroft v. Murphy, (1896) 1 I. R. 590;] and see post, p. 1135.

Persons claiming through the trustee.

18. It will be observed that, by the 25th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, the cestui que trust, and any person claiming through him, may enforce the trust against the trustee and any person claiming through him (a), but both trustee and cestui que trust may be ousted by the intrusion of a third title, and if so, the statute will begin to run from the dispossession of the trustee and cestui que trust. Thus, in 1810, a legal estate was vested in trustees upon trust for five tenants in common, but from 1819 to the filing of the bill in 1842, four of the tenants in common received their rents to the exclusion of their co-tenant and of the trustees, who never executed their duty; and it was held that there had been an ouster of both trustees and cestui que trust, and that the right of such cestui que trust was barred by the statute (b).

Possession by one of the cestuis que trust.

19. A cestui que trust in actual possession is tenant at will to his trustee (c), and the 7th section of the Act 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 27, enacts that "when any person shall be in possession as tenant at will, the right of the person entitled subject thereto to make an entry shall be deemed to have first accrued at the determination of such tenancy, or at the expiration of one year next after the commencement of such tenancy, at which time such tenancy shall be deemed to have determined: provided that no cestui que trust shall be deemed to be a tenant at will within the meaning of the clause to his trustee." The exception was introduced in relief of the trustee, that he might not be obliged to take active steps lest the tenancy at will should be deemed to have expired, and so the statute should begin to run. In other words, the tenancy should not be determined at the end of one year (d). The statute, therefore, does not run against the trustee so long as the cestui que trust is in actual possession. [A mortgagor, where the mortgage debt has been fully paid, but no reconveyance has been made, is a tenant at will of the mortgagee, but is not a cestui que trust of the mortgagee within the meaning of the proviso, and time therefore runs against the mortgagee, and after more than thirteen years his legal estate will be extinguished (e). The proviso, however, extends to an implied, as well as to an express trust (f), and to a case where the cestui que

(a) See cases, ante, p. 1124, note (f).

(b) Burroughs v. M'Creight, 1 Jon. & Lat. 290; 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 49; [Bolling v. Hobday, 31 W. R. 9;] and see Commissioners of Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 198; Re Bermingham, 4 Ir. R. Eq. 187; Knight v. Bowyer, 2 De G. & J. 440.

(c) See ante, Chap. XXVII. s. 1.

(d) See the observations of Wilde, C. J., in Garrard v. Tuck, 13 Jur. 873.

[(e) Sands to Thompson, 22 Ch. D. 614; and see Warren v. Murray, (1894) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 648, 656, 657.]

[(f) Warren v. Murray, sup.; Drummond v. Sant, 6 L. R. Q. B. 763.]

trust has, by reason of his possession of the trust property, acquired possession of other property not comprised in the trust (a).]

And it has been laid down, that if the cestui que trust be let into possession as tenant at will to the trustee, the tenancy is not determined by the cestui que trust sub-letting to an under-tenant, unless the trustee had notice of such under-letting, for, though the general rule is that a tenancy at will is not assignable, yet the rule is subject to the qualification that a tenant at will cannot determine his tenancy by transferring his interest to a third party without notice to his landlord (b).

But if the cestui que trust be not the actual occupier, but only in receipt of the rents and profits, he is not tenant at will to the trustee, but the possession remains with the trustee, and the cestui que trust is the trustee's bailiff or agent for the management of the estate, and therefore if the cestui que trust allow any tenant of the trust estate to hold for twelve years, without paying rent or other acknowledgment of title, the statute runs against the trustee through the default of his bailiff or agent (c). The trustee, therefore, who puts a cestui que trust in receipt of the rents and profits has still a duty to perform, and may be held responsible for a loss accruing through neglect in not looking after his bailiff or agent.

Payment by mistake to person not being cestui que trust.

20. If actual possession be held by the trustee of an express trust who has the legal estate, but who mistakes his cestui que trust and pays the rents to a wrong person, the possession of the trustee is the possession of the rightful cestui que trust, and the wrongful recipient of the rents does not acquire a title by adverse possession under the statute (d); and this principle is of very extensive application, for, as we have seen, where a cestui que trust is put into receipt of the rents and profits, the possession is still that of the trustee, and the cestui que trust is regarded in the light of the bailiff or agent of the trustee. But it is always a question for the jury, or the Court sitting as a jury, to say whether the cestui que trust was in receipt of the rents as bailiff or agent of the trustee, or was in receipt of the rents as claiming the beneficial ownership independently of the

[(a) East Stonehouse Urban Council v. Willoughby, (1902) 2 K. B. 318.]

(b) Melling v. Leak, 1 Jur. N.S. 760, per Cresswell, J. The alienee cannot be deemed tenant at will of the trustees without some acknowledgment by them; Doe d. Stanway v. Rock, 4 Man. & G. 30.

(c) Melling v. Leak, 16 C. B. 652: 1 Jur. N.S. 759.

(d) Lister v. Pickford, 34 Beav. 576.

trustee. In the former case, the Statute of Limitations would not run, but in the latter case it would (a).

Disseisin by cestui que trust.

21. If a cestui que trust under a will hold adverse possession of an estate supposed to pass, but which did not in fact pass by the will to a trustee, and eventually the true owner is barred, the legal estate gained by the disseisin vests in the trustee of the will, under colour of which the possession was taken, and not in the cestui que trust (b). [And similarly if a grantor, who has no title, grants by deed to A. for life, with remainders over, and A. enters, and acquires a good title against the true owner, A. is estopped as against those in remainder from disputing the validity of the deed (c).]

Arrears of rent or interest under 42nd section.

22. The 42nd section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, limiting the recovery of arrears of rent or interest to the last six years only, has no application to cases of express trust within the 25th section, but the cestui que trust could, prior to the 1st of January, 1879 (d), have recovered from his trustees the whole arrearages from the commencement of the title (e).

Subsisting term.

And where there was a subsisting term not barred, upon which the trustee might obtain possession, the whole arrearages [could, prior to the 1st of January, 1879, have been] recovered (f).

Cox v. Dolman.

Thus, in Cox v. Dolman (g), a testator devised his lands to (a) As in Burroughs v. M'Creight, 1 Jon. & Lat. 290, where the statute was effectually pleaded "not by persons who had placed themselves in the shoes of the trustees, but by persons who, in spite of the trustees, had received the rents for upwards of twenty years for their own benefit," Ib. 305; and see Cholmondeley v. Clinton, ante p. 933; Parker v. Carter, ante, p. 946.

(b) Board v. Board, 9 L. R. Q. B. 48; Hawksbee v. Hawksbee, 11 Hare, 230; Anstee v. Nelms, 1 H. & N. 225; [Dalton v. Fitzgerald, (1897) 1 Ch. 440; 2 Ch. (C.A.) 86, 91, 95, distinguishing Paine v. Jones, 18 L. R. Eq. 320, and Re Stringer's Estate, 6 Ch. D. 1; and observing upon Kernaghan v. M'Nally, 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 89].

[(c) Dalton v. Fitzgerald, (1897) 1 Ch. 440; Ib., 2 Ch. (C.A.) 86.]

[(d) When the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, came into operation.]

(e) Playfair v. Cooper, 17 Beav. 187; Gough v. Bult, 16 Sim. 323; Watson v. Saul, 1 Giff. 200; Sturgis v. Morse, 3 De G. & J. 1; 24 Beav. 541; Gyles v. Gyles, 9 Ir. Ch. Rep. 135. And see Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 680. [The section has no application to the case of a mortgagor seeking to redeem, and he can only do so on paying all arrears of interest from the date of the mortgage; Re Lloyd, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 385, 402; Dingle v. Coppen, (1899) 1 Ch. 726; unless the title to the mortgage has been extinguished under sect. 34 of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (ante, p. 1122), or the mortgagees have otherwise precluded themselves from asserting any claim; Re Hazeldine's Trusts, (1908) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 34.]

(f) Cox v. Dolman, 2 De G. M. & G. 592; Snow v. Booth, 2 K. & J. 132; 8 De G. M. & G. 69; Lewis v. Duncombe (No. 2), 29 Beav. 175; Lawton v. Ford, 2 L. R. Eq. 97; Earl of Mansfield v. Ogle, 1 Jur. N.S. 414; Re Wyse, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 297; Re Bermingham, 4 Ir. Rep. Eq. 187; 9 Ir. R. Eq. 385; Re Murphy, 5 Ir. Rep. Eq. 147.

(g) 2 De G. M. & G. 592.

the use of trustees for ninety-nine years upon trust to pay certain annuities, and subject thereto to the use of S. Cox for life, with remainder over; and after the death of S. Cox, one of the annuitants filed a bill to have the arrears of the annuity raised out of the estate. The executors of S. Cox pleaded the statute as a bar to more than six years' arrears, but the Court held that it was the case of an express trust, that the tenant for life had taken possession subject to the trust, and that the term was a subsisting one, upon which the trustees might at any time have recovered, and the plaintiff was declared entitled to the whole arrears, which were to be paid out of the assets of the tenant for life up to the day of his death, and since his death by the remainderman. The direct remedy was, no doubt, to have the whole arrears raised by sale or mortgage of the term, but as the remainderman would be entitled to recover the arrears that accrued in the lifetime of the tenant for life from his estate, the Court, to avoid circuity, decreed payment at once out of the tenant for life's assets.

[23. An acknowledgment by one co-trustee of mortgaged property given to the mortgagee without the consent or knowledge of his co-trustee, will not (whatever may be the law as between co-executors) bind his co-trustee so as to prevent the operation of the statute (a). [Acknowledgment by one trustee.]

24. By the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, sect. 10, after the 31st of December, 1878, "no action, suit, or other proceeding shall be brought to recover any sum of money or legacy charged upon or payable out of any land or rent, at law or in equity, and secured by an express trust, or to recover any arrears of rent or of interest in respect of any sum of money or legacy so charged or payable, and so secured, or any damages in respect of such arrears, except within the time within which the same would be recoverable, if there were not any such trust" (b). Thus where an annuity, which was charged upon land, and secured by an express trust, remained unpaid for twenty-five years, and no claim of any sort was made in respect of the annuity during that period, it was held that no arrears of the annuity, accrued before a claim for the annuity was made, could be recovered from the property charged; for the remedy for the arrears was the same as if there had been no express trust, in which case, more than twelve years [Arrears of rent or interest under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, s. 10.]

[(a) Astbury v. Astbury, (1898) 2 Ch. 111; and see Read v. Price, (1909) 1 K. B. 577; 2 K. B. (C.A.) 724, and ante, p. 298, note (c).]

[(b) See post, p. 1136.]

having elapsed, they would have been irrecoverable; but it was conceded that as the section refers only to arrears, it could not affect the right to future payments of the annuity, which accordingly remained recoverable by virtue of the express trust (a).]

Charities.

25. It was at first doubted whether charities were not altogether unaffected by the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, inasmuch as, by a special exception in their favour, Courts of Equity did not oppose to charitable, as they did to ordinary equitable claims, a bar by analogy to the old Statute of Limitations, and the Act of 1833 contained no express mention of charities (b); but it was afterwards held that they were within the operation of the 24th section, though they might be protected by the 25th section relating to express trusts (c); and the law was ultimately so settled in the case of Attorney-General v. Magdalen College (d) on appeal to the House of Lords.

Legacy.

26. A legacy cannot be recovered under the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, after twelve years; [and neither the fact that the executor has assented to the legacy, nor that the legacy is coupled with an implied trust, will prevent the operation of the statute (e). But if an express trust of a legacy is declared, and] the executor by setting the legacy apart has assumed the character of a trustee, this statute does not run (f), [though he may be protected by the Trustee Act, 1888, sect. 8 (g)]. Where the legacy was coupled with a trust for the separate use of a feme covert, the executor, after assent to the trust, was held to be converted into a trustee (h); [but by merely signing a residuary account, and so assenting to the bequest of residue, an executor does not constitute himself a trustee of the fund (i); and there is no authority for the proposition that when once the debts and funeral and testamentary expenses are paid, the residue is held upon an express trust (j)]. Where a legacy was given to A. for life with remainder to his children, and the circumstances were such that during the life of A. there was no hand entitled to

[(a) Hughes v. Coles, 27 Ch. D. 231.]

(b) Incorporated Society v. Richards, 1 Dru. & War. 287, 288.

(c) Commissioners of Charitable Donations v. Wybrants, 2 Jon. & Lat. 182; 7 Ir. Eq. Rep. 580.

(d) 18 Beav. 223; 6 H. L. Cas. 189; Attorney-General v. Davey, 19 Beav. 521; 4 De G. & J. 136; Attorney-General v. Payne, 27 Beav. 168.

[(e) Re Davis, (1891) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 119; and see Re Barker, (1892) 2 Ch. 491; Re Lacy, (1899) 2 Ch. 149.]

(f) Phillippo v. Munnings, 2 M. & Cr. 309; O'Reilly v. Walsh, 6 Ir. R. Eq. 555; [and see Re Smith, 42 Ch. D. 302; Re Swain, (1891) 3 Ch. 233].

[(g) Re Swain, sup.; Re Timmis, (1902) 1 Ch. 176; and see post, p. 1141.]

(h) Hartford v. Power, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 204.

[(i) Re Rowe, 58 L. J. Ch. 703; 61 L. T. N.S. 581.]

[(j) Re Mackay, (1906) 1 Ch. 25.]

receive it, the time was held not to run against the children during the life of A. (a). [Where a testator gave a legacy, not payable out of his personal estate, but charged exclusively on a contingent reversion in land, it was held that, the remedy under the testamentary charge being sale and not foreclosure, the case did not fall within sect. 2 of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (b), but within sect. 8, and that time ran from the date when the legacy was first payable, and not when the reversion fell into possession (c).]

Residue or share of residue.

27. The 8th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, is, as from 1st January, 1879, substituted for the 40th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, and it is presumed that under the substituted, as under the original section, the limited period will, by a liberal construction of the word legacy, be held to be a bar to suits also in respect of a residue or share of residue (d).

Intestacy, 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 13.

28. The 40th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, did not extend to the case of intestacy, and by the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860, sect. 13, no suit or other proceeding can be brought to recover personal estate, or any share thereof, from the personal representative of any intestate but within twenty years next after a present right to receive the same (e) shall have accrued to some person capable of giving a discharge for or release of the same, unless there has been part payment or some acknowledgment in writing (f). The 8th section of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, appears not to extend to the case of an intestacy, and if so, a legatee will, under the latter section, be barred after twelve years, while his next of kin will not be barred until after twenty years (g).

Assets subsequently received.

29. The right of the legatee or next of kin may be barred as

(a) Carroll v. Hargrave, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 123; see ante, p. 1129, note (f).

[(b) See ante, p. 1123.]

[(c) Re Owen, (1894) 3 Ch. 220.]

(d) Prior v. Horniblow, 2 Y. & C. 201; Christian v. Devereux, 12 Sim. 264; [Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. (C.A.) 511, 517;] and see Payne v. Evens, 18 L. R. Eq. 356; Carey v. Cuthbert, 7 Ir. R. Eq. 542; [Re Swain, (1891) 3 Ch. 233, and post, p. 1141; Bailie v. Irwin, (1896) 2 I. R. 614; Re Fitzgerald, (1897) 1 I. R. 556].

[(e) A "present right to receive" within the section, means a right in the "person capable of giving a discharge," of recovering payment of the share into his own hands, and therefore the statute will not run as against an executor who could not sue his co-executors at law, notwithstanding that he might have secured the share by a suit against them in equity: Re Pardoe, (1906) 1 Ch. 265, but see S.C., (1906) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 340, where an appeal was allowed on the facts.]

[(f) In Re Lacy, (1899) 2 Ch. 149, ante, p. 1126, the statute was held to apply as between an executor and the next of kin claiming under a partial intestacy, the executor not having constituted himself an express trustee.]

[(g) See Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. (C.A.) 511, 517; Bailie v. Irwin, (1896) 2 I. R. 614.]

to assets received more than the prescribed period before the commencement of the suit, but not barred as to assets received since (a).

36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25.

30. By the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, sect. 25, subsect. 2, it is enacted that "no claim of a cestui que trust against his trustee (b) for any property held on an express trust, or in respect of any breach of such trust, shall be held to be barred by any statute of limitations." The Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, sect. 10 (c), enacts that from 1st January, 1879, no money or legacy charged on any land or rent shall, though secured by an express trust, be recoverable, except within the time within which it might have been recovered had there been no express trust.

37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, s. 10.

The first-mentioned enactment applies as between trustee and cestui que trust, while the 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, sect. 10 applies as between the land charged (though the charge be secured by way of trust) and the persons entitled to the charge (d).

[Trustee Act, 1888.]

[31. The Trustee Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 59), provides by sect. 8 as follows:—

"(1) In any action or other proceeding against a trustee or any person claiming through him, except where the claim is founded upon any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which the trustee was party or privy, or is to recover trust property, or the proceeds thereof still retained by the trustee, or previously received by the trustee, and converted to his use, the following provisions shall apply:—

"(A) All rights and privileges conferred by any statute of limitations shall be enjoyed in the like manner, and to the like extent as they would have been enjoyed in such action or other proceeding if the trustee or person claiming through him had not been a trustee or person claiming through him.

"(B) If the action or other proceeding is brought to recover money or other property, and is one to which no existing statute of limitations applies, the trustee or person claiming through him shall be entitled to the benefit of, and be at liberty to plead the lapse of time as a bar to such action or other proceeding in the like manner and to the like extent as if the claim had been

(a) See Adams v. Barry, 2 Coll. 290; [Re Johnson, 29 Ch. D. 964.]

[(b) In Seagram v. Tuck, 18 Ch. D. 296, Kay, J., was of opinion that a receiver appointed by the Court was a trustee of money received by him, so as not to be able to avail himself of the Statute of Limitations.]

[(c) See ante, p. 1133.]

[(d) See Fearnside v. Flint, 22 Ch. D. (C.A.) 579; Hughes v. Coles, 27 Ch. D. 231; ante, p. 1134. If the charge has not been raised, the trustee of the charge will now be entitled to the benefit of s. 8 of the Trustee Act, 1888, see infra.]

against him in an action of debt for money had and received, but so nevertheless that the statute shall run against a married woman entitled in possession for her separate use (a), whether with or without a restraint upon anticipation, but shall not begin to run against any beneficiary unless and until the interest of such beneficiary shall be an interest in possession.

"(2) No beneficiary as against whom there would be a good defence by virtue of this section, shall derive any greater or other benefit from a judgment or order obtained by another beneficiary than he could have obtained if he had brought such action or other proceeding, and this section had been pleaded.

"(3) This section shall apply only to actions or other proceedings commenced after the 1st day of January, 1890, and shall not deprive any executor or administrator of any right or defence to which he is entitled under any existing statute of limitations."

By sub-section 1, "trustee" is to be deemed to include an executor or administrator, and a trustee whose trust arises by construction or implication of law, as well as an express trustee, but not the official trustee of charitable funds; and the provisions of the Act relating to a trustee are to apply as well to several joint trustees as to a sole trustee (b).

[General effect of section 8.]

32. The general effect of the section appears to be that in future, whenever an action is brought by a cestui que trust against a trustee or any person claiming through him, whether in respect of land or money, and whether the defendant is sought to be charged under an express or a constructive trust, there the defendant will be entitled to the protection which the section gives, unless the plaintiff can prove either (1) fraud or fraudulent breach of trust, or (2) that at the time of action brought the trust property, which is the subject matter of the action, or the proceeds thereof, is or are still retained by the trustee, or (3) that, previously to the bringing of the action, such property or proceeds were received by the trustee, and converted to his use. If the plaintiff brings his case within one of these three exceptions,

[(a) See Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536.]

[(b) A director of a company who misapplies moneys of the company which have come to his hands, is a trustee within s. 8; Re Lands Allotment Company, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 616; and see Re Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 154. It has been held that the benefit of the Act does not extend to a trustee under a liquidation; Re Cornish, (1896) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 99; but the Statute of Limitations will run against such a trustee as it would against the bankrupt, see Re Mansel, W. N. (1892) p. 32.]

the old law will still apply; if not, the section will take effect (a).

[Exceptions from the section.]

33. The first of these three exceptions is confined to fraud to which the trustee was "party or privy," and accordingly a trustee will not be deprived of the benefit of the exception because the plaintiff has been defrauded by some other person in respect of the matter complained of (b).

The second exception relates to property, or the proceeds of property, "still retained," and it has been decided that these words must be referred to the point of time when the action in respect of the breach of trust is brought (c), and that the exception is confined to cases in which the trustee at the date of the writ has the trust property or the proceeds thereof either actually in his hands or under his control. If at that date, he, or any agent for him, as, for example, a banker or solicitor, has the property so that the trustee can get it, the exception applies, but if the property has been lost, whether by negligence or otherwise, or if money which ought to have been accumulated has been paid away, the exception does not apply (d). Accordingly, the established rule, that when a trustee is proved to have trust property in his possession, he must be considered as continuing in possession for the benefit of the cestui que trust until he discharges himself by showing that the property has been duly applied in accordance with the trust (e), will not assist the plaintiff if the defendant can show that the property at the time of action brought was no longer under his control (f).

Where a husband forcibly retained the money of his wife, who did not acquiesce in the retention, the case was held to fall within the second exception (g).

In the third exception the expression "converted to his use" deserves consideration. Where money was received by a firm

[(a) How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626; Re Gurney, (1893) 1 Ch. 590; Whitman v. Watkin, 78 L. T. N.S. 188.]

[(b) Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599; (1895) A. C. 495. In the case of Re Sale Hotel and Botanical Gardens Co., W. N. (1897) p. 174, the word "fraudulent" was held to extend the Act to the case of a promoter of a company receiving a secret profit; but see S. C., in C.A. 46 W.R. 617.]

[(c) Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599, 606, 613; (1895) A.C. 495, 503.]

[(d) Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599; S. C. in H. L. (1895) A. C. 495; How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626; Re Page, (1893) 1 Ch. 304, where the defendant trustee deposed that he had expended the fund in maintaining and educating the plaintiff, but admitted that he had never rendered any account.]

[(e) See Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. (C.A.) 319, 325, per Cotton, L.J.; Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 351, per Stirling, J.]

[(f) See How v. Earl Winterton (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626.]

[(g) Wassell v. Leggatt, (1896) 1 Ch 554.]

of solicitors for the purpose of investment, but was never invested, and the firm paid interest on the money as though it were invested, and credited themselves in their books with the interest so paid, Stirling, J., was of opinion (though he did not decide the point) that the money was converted to the use of the firm within the meaning of the section (a); but where trust money lent on mortgage was, with the concurrence of the mortgagor, applied in payment of a loan due by him to a bank in which one of the trustees was a partner, it was held that the money could not be treated as converted to the use of that trustee (b).

While the old law will still by virtue of the exception contained in the opening clause of the section, govern a large number of cases, the operation of the section will, it would seem, extend principally to cases in which the relief sought against the trustee is in the nature of damages for breach of duty by him in the conduct of the trust, as, for example, where the object of the action is to fix him with the loss arising from an improper investment (c), or from neglect to call in trust funds, or otherwise to render him chargeable in respect of property, which he has not, but which he ought to have, received.

[Nature of the protection afforded by the statute.]

34. The consideration of the nature of the protection which the enactment confers is attended with difficulty. "The section," it was said by Lindley, L.J., "is cumbrously worded, and it is difficult to grasp the idea which underlies it," but the short effect of it appears to be that, except in the three specified cases above referred to, "a trustee who has committed a breach of trust is entitled to the protection of the several statutes of limitation as if actions and suits for breach of trust were enumerated in them" (d).

[Clause A.]

The wording of clause (A) of sub-sect. 1 is especially perplexing, and it has been doubted whether that clause can have any operation at all. An action by a cestui que trust against his trustee is necessarily grounded on the fiduciary relation existing between them, and upon the hypothesis which, in applying the statutes of limitation, the Court is by this Act required to make, viz. that the defendant trustee is not a trustee,

[(a) Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; and see Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 87, 88.]

[(b) Re Gurney, (1893) 1 Ch. 590; and where trustees who were also beneficiaries received only their own shares, but erroneously paid away a settled share to the tenant for life of it, the Court declined to hold that they had "converted" any part of such share to their use: Re Timmis, (1902) 1 Ch. 176.]

[(c) Re Bowden, 45 Ch. D. 444.]

[(d) How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626, 641.]

such an action could never have been brought at all, and consequently no rights and privileges conferred by any statute of limitations could be enjoyed in it. Thus where an action was brought by new trustees to make former trustees liable for losses in respect of investments negligently made on insufficient security more than six years previously, Fry, L.J., held that the case did not fall within clause (A), and in reference to that clause he observed that it was obvious that "if a person had not been a trustee, he could not be sued for a breach of trust"; and, further, that there was "no right or privilege, so far as he was aware, conferred by any statute of limitations in respect of a breach of trust," and that he should have great difficulty in applying the clause to the case before him (a). In a more recent case (b), Lindley, L.J., observed that although he shared with Fry, L.J., the difficulty presented by the clause, he could not avoid the conclusion that to exclude the operation of it in all cases on the short ground stated by him would be really to deprive it of all meaning whatever. The Legislature appeared to have assumed that there might be cases in which, if there were no trust, some action or proceeding might be taken by the plaintiff against the defendant to which some statute of limitations would be a defence. His Lordship thought that the clause required an answer to the question what action or proceeding, if any, could the plaintiff in that case have brought against the defendant in respect of certain accounts complained of, if the defendant had not been a trustee, but in answering that question he found himself embarrassed by the consideration that an account in equity, excluding all trust, would have no equitable element in it. In the same case, Rigby, L.J., thought that the clause could be construed by supposing the right of action to exist, but excluding the idea of breach of trust, thus treating the trustee as though his "breach of trust were nothing more or less than a breach of duty by reason of some act or omission of his." But this construction is also attended with difficulty. In a recent case where one trustee was claiming to enforce a right of contribution against his co-trustee, it was held by Stirling, J., that as the statutes of limitation would have been defences to such a claim before the Act of 1888 came into operation, clause (A), and not clause (B), was applicable (c).

[(a) Re Bowden, 45 Ch. D. 444; and see Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 95.]

[(b) How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626, 638, 639.]

[(c) Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415.]

It will be observed that clause (B) excepts from its operation actions or proceedings to which no existing statute of limitations applies. The question whether the case was one in which an "existing statute of limitations" was applicable arose in the case of Re Swain. The action was brought by persons entitled to shares of residue under a will in respect of a diminution of their shares, alleged to have been caused by improper delay by the executors and trustees in realising the estate, and it was held that the action was not in substance an action for a legacy within sect. 8 of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (a), but an action in respect of a breach of trust, and that, therefore, no other statute of limitations being applicable to the case, clause (B) was applicable (b). Where trustees were liable to make good income tax which they had neglected to deduct on making payments to annuitants, the section applied so as to limit the liability to payments made within six years (c). But where the action was brought against an executor for a devastavit by him, in handing over assets to a beneficiary, without making provision for future liability under a guarantee given by the testator, more than six years having elapsed since the act complained of, the Court held that the claim was barred by the Statute of Limitations, and doubt was expressed whether sect. 8, sub-sect. 1 (B) of the Act of 1888 applied to such a case (d). [Clause B.]

The expression trustee "or person claiming through him" has been considered in Ireland, and it has been held that that expression points not to beneficiaries, but to persons deriving property from and subject to the liabilities of the trustee or executor, that is, generally speaking, his executors, administrators, or assigns (e).

35. The cases hitherto decided under the section have generally been treated as falling under clause (B), and accordingly, as that clause introduces the analogy of an action of debt for money had and received, the period has been six years (f); but in How v. Earl Winterton (g), where the action was for an account, it was [Period of time limited by the statute.]

[(a) See ante, p. 1123.]

[(b) Re Swain, (1891) 3 Ch. 233; followed in Re Timmis, (1902) 1 Ch. 176, where the action was by beneficiaries entitled in remainder to a share of residue which had been paid away to the tenant for life; and see Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415.]

[(c) Re Sharp, (1906) 1 Ch. 793.]

[(d) Lacons v. Wormall, (1907) 2 K. B. (C.A.) 350.]

[(e) Leahy v. De Moleyns, (1896) 1 I. R. 206, 213, 242.]

[(f) See Re Bowden, 45 Ch. D. 444; Re Swain, (1891) 3 Ch. 233; How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626; Re Fountaine, (1909) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 382.]

[(g) Ubi sup.]

observed by Lindley, L.J., that clause (A), if it applied to trustees' accounts at all, assumed that some statutes of limitation would be applicable, and therefore put trustees' accounts on the same footing as other accounts to which the statutes of limitation apply, so that according to the principle of decided cases (a), the period, being regulated by the Limitation Act, 1623 (21 Jac. 1. c. 16), as amended first by 9 Geo. 4. c. 14 (Lord Tenterden's Act), and afterwards by sect. 9 of the Mercantile Law Amendment Act, 1856 (19 and 20 Vict. c. 97), would still be six years. And this was acquiesced in by Rigby, L.J., who, however, pointed out that in some cases coming under clause (A) the appropriate statute might be a different one, and the length of period for the running of the statute might be different (b).

[Time when beginning to run.]

36. The section has in no way altered the principles which determine the time when a cause of action accrues. When the action is in respect of a breach of trust, time under the statute begins to run when the breach of trust, as by improper investment or otherwise, is committed (c), except only in the case of concealed fraud, when time runs from the discovery of the fraud under the doctrine of equity already adverted to (d).

Accordingly, where a concealed fraud has been committed by an agent of the trustee, and the trustee, though innocent of any moral complicity in the fraud, has by his conduct rendered himself responsible for the acts of the agent in reference to the transaction, although the trustee himself is within the first exception contained in the section, yet time will not begin to run in his favour until the discovery of the fraud (e).

In an action by a deferred annuitant for an account of income which ought to have been accumulated to meet the annuity, inasmuch as the annuitant is not bound to sue before his interest has accrued in possession, the statute will not begin to run until that time, and, if the action is to recover arrears of the annuity, it will not run until the time when a half-yearly payment becomes due (f).

Where the claim is by one co-trustee against another for contribution, as the parties are in the position of co-sureties,

[(a) See Knox v. Gye, L. R. 5 H. L. 656; Foley v. Hill, 1 Ph. 399; and see also Friend v. Young, (1897) 2 Ch. 421.]

[(b) For the special form of order in How v. Earl of Winterton, see Re Davies, (1898) 2 Ch. 142, 144.]

[(c) Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599, 605; Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; Re Swain, (1891) 3 Ch. 233.]

[(d) See ante, pp. 1114, 1121, 1127.]

[(e) See Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599; (1895) A.C. 495.]

[(f) How v. Earl Winterton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 626.]

time will not begin to run until the claim of the cestuis que trust is established by the judgment of the Court (a).

By the proviso at the end of clause (B) the statute is not to begin to run against any beneficiary unless and until the interest of such beneficiary shall be an interest in possession, and accordingly, it may occur that a tenant for life is barred by the lapse of six years from the time when a breach of trust was committed, but that those in remainder are still entitled to sue (b); and it has been held that payment of interest in respect of an improper investment by the trustees to the tenant for life cannot be treated as an admission by them of liability, so as to deprive them of the benefit of the statute (c). Where a married woman was entitled under a settlement to an interest during the joint lives of herself and her husband, and was also entitled under a resulting trust to a reversionary life interest after the decease of her husband, it was held that the last mentioned interest did not become an "interest in possession" until the death of the husband, and that therefore the statute did not run as against such interest until that time (d).

37. In a recent case, a sum of money was paid, in or before the year 1874, by a client to one of a firm of solicitors for investment; the money was received by the firm, and representations were from time to time made to the client on behalf of the firm to the effect that the investments had been made, and interest was regularly paid to her until 1886, when it was discovered that the money had in fact never been invested. In an action against the representative of one of the partners, who was innocent of the fraud, it was held by Stirling, J., that the decision in Blair v. Bromley (e), which rested on principles of the law of partnership and not those of trust, was applicable to the case, and was unaffected by the provisions of the Act of 1888, and that, in conformity with that decision, the innocent partner was deprived of the benefit of the statute by reason of the representations made, which were binding on him as a partner (f).] [Liability arising out of law of agency and concealed fraud.]

Thirdly. We have to inquire to what extent a Court of Equity, Account of mesne rents and profits.

[(a) Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415.]

[(b) See Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231; see form of judgment, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1145; Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536; Want v. Campain, 9 Times L. R. 254; see form of judgment, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1144; Collings v. Wade, (1896) 1 I. R. 340, 352.]

[(c) Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231.]

[(d) Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, per North, J.; S. C., (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199.]

[(e) 5 Ha. 542; 2 Ph. 354.]

[(f) Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; and see Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 94; Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599, 610; and see the Partnership Act, 1890, ss. 11, 15, &c.]

upon recovery of the estate, will direct an account against the defendant of the mesne rents and profits.

The right of the cestui que trust to an account of mesne rents and profits cannot very well be treated of without entering generally into the principles upon which relief in a Court of Equity, in respect of mesne rents and profits, is founded.

An account of rents and profits may be sought in equity, either (I.) Independently of relief respecting the corpus of the land, or (II.) As incident or collateral to it.

First. Where the account is sought independently of other relief.

Account may be had against an express trustee without reference to the Statutes of Limitation.

1. If the account be sought against an express trustee, then, as the Statutes of Limitation do not [unless the case falls within the provisions of sect. 8 of the Trustee Act, 1888, already referred to] run between trustee and cestui que trust, it will [independently of that enactment] be directed from the time when the rents were withdrawn (a).

Account in equity could not be had in respect of a legal title.

Except where accounts complicated, &c.

Or the plaintiff was an infant.

2. If the claim to the rents rest upon a legal title, the plaintiff has then a legal remedy, and under the old practice could not have come into a Court of Equity at all (b); except in cases where, from the complicated nature of the accounts, or other particular circumstances, a Court of Law would have afforded very inadequate relief (c). But an infant might have filed a bill for an account upon a legal title (d), as every person entering upon an infant's lands is regarded in the light of a bailiff or receiver for the infant (e); the rule, however, did not apply where the infant had never had possession, but it had been held by an adverse party (f). The jurisdiction against a person entering during the infant's minority remained, though the bill was not filed until after the infant attained twenty-one (g). But after six years the Statute of Limitations would be a bar (h). And

Or in the case of mines.

(a) See Attorney-General v. Brewers' Company, 1 Mer. 498: Mathew v. Brise, 14 Beav. 341.

(b) Jesus College v. Bloome, 3 Atk. 262; and see Dinwiddie v. Bailey, 6 Ves. 136; Taylor v. Crompton, Bunb. 95; Lansdowne v. Lansdowne, 1 Mad. 137.

(c) See O'Connor v. Spaight, 1 Sch. & Lef. 309; Corporation of Carlisle v. Wilson, 13 Ves. 276.

(d) Gardiner v. Fell, 1 J. & W. 22; Roberdeau v. Rous, 1 Atk. 543; Yallop v. Holworthy, 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 7; Newburgh v. Bickerstaffe, 1 Vern. 295; Curtis v. Curtis, 2 B. C. C. 631, per Cur.

(e) Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 130, per Lord Hardwicke; Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 89, per Lord Eldon; Morgan v. Morgan, 1 Atk. 489; Lord Falkland v. Bertie, 2 Vern. 342, per Cur.; Doe v. Keen, 7 T. R. 390, per Lord Kenyon; Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. 782; Pascoe v. Swan, 27 Beav. 508; [Wall v. Stanwick, 34 Ch. D. 763; Re Hobbs, 36 Ch. D. 553; and see ante, p. 1113.]

(f) Crowther v. Crowther, 23 Beav. 305; ante, p. 1113. But see the observations of V.C. in Quinton v. Frith, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 414.

(g) Blomfield v. Eyre, 8 Beav. 250; Hicks v. Sallitt, Wall v. Stanwick, ubi sup.

(h) Lockey v. Lockey, Pr. Ch. 518; and see Knox v. Gye, 5 L. R. H. L. 674.

generally, all persons might have an account upon a legal title in respect of mines, which are a species of trade (a), but not of timber, without praying an injunction (b). Timber.

3. Although where a remedy lay at law an account could not be had in equity against the pernor of the profits himself, yet after his decease, the party entitled to the profits might have considered himself a creditor, and have filed a bill in equity for an account of the assets (c). Whether after the death of the pernor an account might be had in equity against his executor.

4. Where, as in the preceding cases, a Court of Equity assumed a concurrent jurisdiction with Courts of law, the account was not extended beyond the legal limit of six years, provided the statute were pleaded: it was otherwise, if the defendant did not avail himself of the statute by demurrer, plea, or answer (d). The account in these cases confined to the legal limit.

[5. Now, by the Judicature Acts, the several Divisions of the High Court of Justice have co-ordinate jurisdiction, and matters of account are assigned to the Chancery Division of the Court (e), and it is conceived that the same limit of time will apply to the account as formerly prevailed in the Court of Chancery. Under the Rules a plaintiff or defendant must plead the Statute of Limitations, if he desires to rely upon it as a defence or in reply (f).] [Present practice.] [Statute of Limitations must be pleaded.]

6. It often happens that a legal remedy did exist, but has since, by the death of a party or the determination of the estate, become extinguished. In such a case, as the right was not, but only is without a remedy at law, there seems no ground in general for the interference of a Court of Equity (g). Where a legal remedy did exist, but has expired, equity will not assist.

7. But if the remedy was lost through mistake, the Court upon that principle may interpose: as where a lease was held for the lives of A. and his two daughters B. and C., and A. afterwards married again, and had another daughter, who was also named Unless there be mistake.

(a) Bishop of Winchester v. Knight, 1 P. W. 406; and see Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 89; Lansdowne v. Lansdowne, 1 Mad. 116; Parrott v. Palmer, 3 M. & K. 632; [Dan. Ch. Pr. 7th ed. p. 1419].

(b) Jesus College v. Bloome, 3 Atk. 262; Higginbotham v. Hawkins, 7 L. R. Ch. 676; and see Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 89; University of Oxford v. Richardson, Ib. 701; Grierson v. Eyre, 9 Ves. 346; but see Garth v. Cotton, 1 Dick. 211; Lee v. Alston, 1 B. C. C. 194.

(c) Monypenny v. Bristow, 2 R. & M. 117 (but the bill also prayed delivery of title-deeds); Gardiner v. Fell, 1 J. & W. 22 (but the plaintiff was also an infant); and see Thomas v. Oakley, 18 Ves. 186; Lansdowne v. Lansdowne, 1 Mad. 116.

(d) See Monypenny v. Bristow, 2 R. & M. 125.

[(e) 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 34.]

[(f) See Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order XIX., Rule 15.]

(g) Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 71, per Lord Fitzgibbon; Hutton v. Simpson, 2 Vern. 722; Norton v. Frecker, 1 Atk. 525, 526, per Lord Hardwicke; and see Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 88.

B., and the landlord, on the expiration of the lease by the death of the real cestui que vie, did not enter (B. the daughter by the second marriage being mistaken for B. the life named in the lease), Lord Macclesfield said: "Where one has title of entry, and neglects to enter or to bring his ejectment, but sleeps upon it for several years, as he has no remedy at law for the mesne profits, so neither has he in equity, for it was his own fault he did not enter, and he shall never come into a Court of Equity for relief against his own negligence, or to make the tenant in possession who held over his lease to be but his bailiff or steward, whether he will or not; but in the present case, by reason of the circumstance of both daughters being of the same name, and the mistake consequent thereon, the defendant must account for the mesne profits from the expiration of the lease" (a).

Or fraud.

8. So equity will relieve where the remedy was prevented by fraud: as where A. was entitled to a leasehold estate, but B., concealing the deeds, remained in possession until the term had expired, Lord King directed an account of the rents and profits from the time that A.'s title accrued, on the ground that A. had been kept in ignorance of his just rights through B.'s fraudulent concealment of the deed and counterpart (b).

Or some default in the defendant.

9. And generally the Court will in all cases lend its aid where the legal process has been lost, not by any delay on the part of the plaintiff, but through some default of the defendant (c).

Secondly. An account may be sought as incident or collateral to the relief. The doctrines upon this subject were very distinctly laid down by Lord Fitzgibbon, afterwards Lord Clare, in Barnewall v. Barnewall (d).

Plaintiff recovering the estate on an equitable title.

A.—1. "The general rule of equity," he said, "is, that if the suit for recovery of possession be properly cognisable in a Court of Equity, and the plaintiff obtains a decree, the Court will direct an account of rents and profits, as incident to such relief."

Where cestui que trust follows trust estate into hands of a volunteer claiming under a trustee.

2. In the case of a cestui que trust, who is following the trust estate into the hands of a person claiming through the trustee, under such circumstances that the defendant is himself to be regarded as a trustee, it is clear that the cestui que trust, by

(a) Duke of Bolton v. Deane, Pr. Ch. 516. (Note, in this case Lord Hardwicke thought a remedy still existed at law, Lormer v. Fortescue, Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 190; but Lord Macclesfield was evidently of a different opinion, and so was Lord Fitzgibbon; Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 68.)

(b) Bennett v. Whitehead, 2 P. W. 644; and see Duke of Bolton v. Deane, Pr. Ch. 516, and Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 66.

(c) Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 73.

(d) 3 Ridg. P. C. 66.

establishing his claim to the land, has thereby established a right to the mesne rents and profits from the very commencement of his title (a). And a fortiori the rule is so where the plaintiff has been under the disability of infancy during the possession of the defendant, because then the latter is regarded as a bailiff or trustee for the former (b), or where there has been fraud or suppression on the part of the defendant.

Where plaintiff comes as equitable owner against one in bonâ fide adverse possession.

3. Where the case is that of a plaintiff coming forward not strictly as cestui que trust, but still as equitable owner to recover the estate against one in bonâ fide adverse possession, many of the older decisions and dicta point to the conclusion that, in the absence of special circumstances, the account will be directed from the time of the accruer of the title (c), subject only to the qualification, that by analogy to the legal defence upon the Statute of Limitations, the account will not be carried back beyond six years before the institution of the suit (d). The more recent authorities seem, however, to establish that where there is no trust, no infancy, no fraud, and no suppression, where, in short, there is a mere bonâ fide adverse possession, the practice of the Court is not to carry back the account beyond the institution of the suit (e); unless at least there was a demand of possession by the plaintiff or acts equivalent thereto before proceedings were taken, in which case the account will be carried back to the time of the demand or constructive demand (f).

Where defendant ignorant of his true character of trustee.

4. In one case, in which the plaintiff was an infant, and the defendant in fact a trustee, but ignorant of his true character, the account was limited to the filing of the bill, except as to money which had been paid into Court (g), but the decision is of doubtful authority (h).

(a) Sturgis v. Morse, 3 De G. & J. 1; 24 Beav. 541; Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 673; Kidney v. Coussmaker, 12 Ves. 158.

(b) Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. 782; Schroder v. Schroder, Kay, 591; Pascoe v. Swan, 27 Beav. 508; and cases cited ante, p. 1144, note (e).

(c) Dormer v. Fortescue, Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 183; S. C., 3 Atk. 130, per Lord Hardwicke; Hobson v. Trevor, 2 P. W. 191; Coventry v. Hall, 2 Ch. Ca. 134.

(d) Reade v. Reade, 5 Ves. 749, 750; Harmood v. Oglander, 6 Ves. 215; Drummond v. Duke of St Albans, 5 Ves. 439; Stackhouse v. Barnston, 10 Ves. 470.

(e) Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 93, per Lord Eldon; Edwards v. Morgan, M'Clel. 541, see 554, 555; Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. 813; Thomas v. Thomas, 2 K. & J. 79; Morgan v. Morgan, 10 L. R. Eq. 99; [but see Hickman v. Upsall, 4 Ch. D. (C.A.) 144, where the Court of Appeal were of opinion that, in the absence of any special equitable considerations, the account should, by analogy to the legal rule, be carried back for such a period as the Statute of Limitations allowed].

(f) Penny v. Allen, 7 De G. M. & G. 409; and see Edwards v. Morgan, M'Clel. 554.

(g) Drummond v. Duke of St Albans, 5 Ves. 433, see 439.

(h) See Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. pp. 811, 815.

Where there has been laches in suing.

5. If the cestui que trust or equitable owner be guilty of laches, the account will not [generally] be carried further back than to the time of the institution of the suit, for it was the plaintiff's own fault that he did not institute his suit at an earlier period (a); and if it be a case of great laches, the Court will show its displeasure by not directing an account beyond the date of the decree (b).

[But the Court will in its discretion allow the account to be carried back, where the circumstances of the case justify it, and the House of Lords has recently, in a case of great laches, carried the account back for six years prior to the institution of the suit (c).]

3 & 4 W. 4. c. 27 not material.

6. It would seem that the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, has no bearing upon the question how far the account should be carried back, for the suit in these cases is not one for recovery of rent within the general purview of the Act (d); nor is it a suit within the meaning of the 42nd section for the recovery of arrears of rent, which must mean arrears of some definite reserved rent, and not mesne profits. If there be any Statute of Limitations applicable by analogy it must be the Limitation Act, 1623 (e).

How the order for an account is worded.

7. The order to account for mesne rents and profits will not, except in a case of gross fraud (f), contain the words, "which without neglect or default, the defendant might have received," and, on the other hand, a direction to make just allowances in taking the account was inserted (g).

Who is the person to account.

8. The assignee who has had the perception of the rents and profits will, in the first instance, account for them, not, however, with interest (h). But if the assignee be insolvent, the trustee who tortiously assigned will then be answerable for the mesne rents and profits personally (i). The Court has also allowed distinct bills to be filed, first to recover the estate, and afterwards the mesne profits (j).

(a) Dormer v. Fortescue, Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 183; S. C., 3 Atk. 130, per Lord Hardwicke; Cook v. Arnham, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 235; Pettiward v. Prescott, 7 Ves. 541; Bowes v. East London Waterworks Company, 3 Mad. 375; Pickett v. Loggon, 14 Ves. 215; Schroder v. Schroder, Kay, 591; [Smith v. Smith, 1 L. R. Ir. 206;] see Kidney v. Coussmaker, 12 Ves. 158.

(b) Acherley v. Roe, 5 Ves. 565.

[(c) Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215.]

(d) Grant v. Ellis, 9 M. & W. 113.

(e) 21 Jac. 1. c. 16; see observations of L. J. Turner, Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. 816.

(f) Stackpole v. Davoren, 1 B. P. C. 9.

(g) Howell v. Howell, 2 M. & Cr. 478. [But the direction is no longer necessary, see Order XXXIII., Rule 8, and Seton, 6th ed. p. 1362.]

(h) Macartney v. Blackwood, 1 Ridg. Lapp. & Sch. 602; [and see Silkstone and Haigh Moor Coal Co. v. Edey, (1900) 1 Ch. 167].

(i) Vandebene v. Levingston, 3 Sw. 625.

(j) Hall v. Coventry, 2 Ch. Ca. 134; Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 673.

B.—1. "If a man," continued Lord Fitzgibbon, "have a mere legal title to the possession, he has no right to come into equity for the recovery of it; and if he has originally recovered the possession at law, he has no manner of right to proceed by bill for an account of rents and profits: as his title to the possession was at law, he must proceed for the whole there" (a).

If a person have a legal title he cannot sue in equity either for the estate or the mesne rents and profits.

2. Upon this rule it must be remarked, that a dowress (b) and infant (c) were allowed to proceed in equity upon their legal title, and incidentally to the relief pray an account of the mesne rents and profits. But by the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833, sect. 41, the arrears of dower are recoverable for six years only next preceding the commencement of the suit (d). And the account of an infant will be barred, if he do not institute a suit within six years after he has attained his majority (e).

Secus, a dowress, or an infant.

C.—1. "If a party," Lord Fitzgibbon proceeded, "be obliged to come into a Court of Equity for aid to enable him to prosecute his title at law" (as where he could not recover in a legal action by reason of an outstanding term, or because the title-deeds to the estate were in the hands of the defendant), "after possession recovered at law, there may be cases in which he may come back for an account of rents and profits in the suit depending in equity" (f). Or the plaintiff, being obliged to resort to equity on one ground, might, to prevent circuity, have asked complete relief in the first instance in that Court; and if his title were established, an account of the rents and profits would have been consequential upon the relief (g).

If a person applied to equity to aid his action at law he might have come back for an account.

Or being obliged to come to equity on one ground, he might have obtained his whole relief there.

2. In these cases the account ought upon principle to be

But the account in equity would be restricted to the legal limit, or to the institution of the suit.

(a) Barnewall v. Barnewall, 3 Ridg. P. C. 66. See also Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 130; Tilly v. Bridges, Pr. Ch. 252; Owen v. Aprice, 1 Ch. Rep. 32; Anon. case, 1 Vern. 105, contradicted 3 Atk. 129.

(b) Mundy v. Mundy, 2 Ves. jun. 122; D'Arcy v. Blake, 2 Sch. & Lef. 387; Wild v. Wells, 1 Dick. 3; Meggot v. Meggot, 2 Id. 794; Goodenough v. Goodenough, 2 Id. 795; Curtis v. Curtis, 2 B. C. C. 620; Moor v. Black, Cas. t. Talbot, 126; and see Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 130; Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 89; Agar v. Fairfax, 17 Ves. 552.

(c) See Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 130, 134; S. C., Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 183, 191; Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 89; Newburgh v. Bickerstaffe, 1 Vern. 295.

[(d) But the right of a dowress to one-third of the rents and profits, and her right to assignment of dower are separate and independent; if she enjoys the former right, she will not be prejudiced thereby in respect to the latter, but after twelve years the Court might refuse relief on the ground of laches: Williams v. Thomas, (1909) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 713.]

(e) Lockey v. Lockey, Pr. Ch. 518; and see Knox v. Gye, 5 L. R. H. L. 674.

(f) See Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 124; S. C., Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 176; Reade v. Reade, 5 Ves. 744.

(g) Townsend v. Ash, 3 Atk. 336; Edwards v. Morgan, M'Clel. 541; Reynolds v. Jones, 2 Sim. & St. 206.

restricted to the same period as that for which the mesne profits were recoverable at law; for the plaintiff recovers from a legal title, and the circumstance of his being obliged to sue in equity ought not to vary his rights; and there is authority to support this view (a); but in a later case (b), Vice-Chancellor Wood stated the rule to be, that in an adverse suit in the nature of an ejectment suit the account is directed only from the filing of the bill; and there may be some difficulty in establishing a distinction between cases where the plaintiff sues upon a mere equitable title and cases where his title is rendered partially equitable, so to speak, by the existence of outstanding terms or estates.

Unless the defendant be guilty of fraud.

3. If the plaintiff has been kept out of the estate by the fraud, misrepresentation, or concealment of the defendant, the Court will suppose that, had the plaintiff known his just rights, he would have commenced his action at law on the first accruer of his title, and will then decree an account of the mesne rents and profits against the defendant from that period (c).

SECTION II

THE RIGHT OF ATTACHING THE PROPERTY INTO WHICH THE TRUST ESTATE HAS WRONGFULLY BEEN CONVERTED

General rule.

1. If the trust estate has been tortiously disposed of by the trustee, the cestui que trust may attach and follow the property that has been substituted in the place of the trust estate, so long as the metamorphosis can be traced.

Tortious conversion.

In Taylor v. Plumer (d) it was argued that although, where the conversion was in pursuance of the trust, the newly acquired property would be bound by the original equity (e); yet where the conversion was tortious, there, as the property purchased was not in a form consistent with the trust, and the cestui que trust would be under no obligation to accept it in lieu of the rightful property, the cestui que trust should come in as a general creditor, and not be permitted to assert a specific lien. But the

(a) Reynolds v. Jones, 2 Sim. & St. 206.

(b) Thomas v. Thomas, 3 K. & J. 85.

(c) Dormer v. Fortescue, Ridg. Rep. t. Hardwicke, 184, 185; S. C., 3 Atk. 130.

(d) 3 M. & S. 562.

(e) Burdett v. Willett, 2 Vern. 638; Ryall v. Rolle, 1 Atk. 172; Ex parte Chion, 3 P. W. 187, note (A); Waite v. Whorwood, 2 Atk. 159; Ex parte Sayers, 5 Ves. 169; Anon. case, Sel. Ch. Ca. 57.

distinction was disallowed (a); for "An abuse of trust," said Lord Ellenborough, "can confer no rights on the party abusing it, nor on those who claim in privity with him" (b).

"Money has no earmark."

2. It was said by Lord King that "money has no earmark, insomuch that if a receiver of rents should lay out all the money in the purchase of land, or if an executor should realise all his testator's estate, and afterwards die insolvent, yet a Court of Equity could not charge or follow the land" (c); and bank notes and negotiable bills have been represented as possessing the same quality. But the notion seems to have originated from some misconception, and cannot be supported. Lord Mansfield observed: "It has been quaintly said that the reason why money cannot be followed is because it has no earmark, but this is not true. The true reason is upon account of the currency of it—it cannot be recovered after it has passed in currency. Thus, in the case of money stolen, the true owner cannot recover it after it has been paid away fairly and honestly upon a valuable and bonâ fide consideration: but before the money has passed in currency an action may be brought for the money itself. Apply this to the case of a bank-note—an action may lie against the finder, it is true, but not after it has been paid away in currency" (d). And Lord Ellenborough observed: "The dictum that money has no earmark must be understood as predicated only of an undivided and undistinguishable mass of current money; but money kept in a bag, or otherwise kept apart from other money, guineas, or other coin marked (if the fact were so) for the purpose of being distinguished, are so far earmarked as to fall within the rule which applies to every other description of personal property, whilst it remains in the hands of the factor or his general legal representatives" (e). The only distinction, then, between money, notes, or bills, and other chattels, appears to be this—that the former, for the protection of commerce,

Bank notes and negotiable bills.

(a) The same point has been viewed as not maintainable in several previous cases, as in Whitecomb v. Jacob, 1 Salk. 160; Lane v. Dighton, Amb. 409; Ryall v. Ryall, Ib. 413; Balgney v. Hamilton, Ib. 414. N.B.—Wilson v. Foreman, 2 Dick. 593, is misreported; see Lench v. Lench, 10 Ves. 519. The subsequent cases are Lord Chedworth v. Edwards, 8 Ves. 46; Greatley v. Noble, 3 Mad. 79; Buckeridge v. Glasse, Cr. & Ph. 126; Murray v. Pinkett, 12 Cl. & Fin. 784; Sheridan v. Joyce, 1 Jon. & Lat. 401; Trench v. Harrison, 17 Sim. 111; Harford v. Lloyd, 20 Beav. 310; Frith v. Cartland, 2 H. & M. 417.

(b) Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 574.

(c) Deg v. Deg, 2 P. W. 414; and so his Lordship seems to have decided in Cox v. Bateman, 2 Ves. 19; and see Waite v. Whorwood, 2 Atk. 159; Whitecomb v. Jacob, 1 Salk. 160.

(d) Miller v. Race, 1 Burr. 457, 459.

(e) Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 575.

cannot be pursued into the hands of a bonâ fide holder, to whom they have passed in circulation (a), whilst other chattels can be recovered even from a purchaser for a valuable consideration, provided he did not buy them in market overt. Money (b), notes (c), and bills (d), may be followed by the rightful owner, where they have not been circulated or negotiated, or if the person to whom they passed had express notice of the trust (e). And the only difference to be taken between money on the one hand, and notes and bills on the other, is that money is not earmarked, and therefore cannot be traced except under particular circumstances, but notes and bills, from carrying a number or date, can in general be identified by the owner without difficulty (f).

Trust money mixed with the trustee's money.

3. We may here put the case of trust money mixed in the same heap with the trustee's money. It may be said, that the trust money has, like water, run into the general mass, and become amalgamated, and therefore the cestui que trust has no lien. But clearly this cannot be maintained, for suppose a trustee, partly with his own money and partly out of the trust fund, to have purchased an estate. It cannot be predicated of any particular part of the estate that it was purchased with the cestui que trust's money, and yet the cestui que trust has a lien upon the whole for the amount that was misemployed (g). And it follows in the other case, that though the identical pieces of coin cannot be ascertained, yet, as there is so much belonging to the trust in the general heap, the cestui que trust is entitled to take so much out (h).

Assets employed in trade.

4. Upon a similar principle, if a surviving partner, being the executor of a deceased partner, continue the testator's capital

[(a) Collins v. Stimson, 11 Q. B. D. 142.]

(b) See Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 575; Miller v. Race, 1 Burr. 457; Howard v. Jemmet, 3 Burr. 1369; King v. Eggington, 1 T. R. 370; Ryall v. Rolle, 1 Atk. 172; [and see Patten v. Bond, 60 L. T. N.S. 583, 585; 37 W. R. 373].

(c) Anon. case, 1 Salk. 126; S. C., 1 Raym. 738; Miller v. Race, 1 Burr. 457; Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 562.

(d) Bennet v. Mayhew, cited Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 232, and Cator v. Earl of Pembroke, 2 B. C. C. 287; Frith v. Cartland, 2 H. & M. 417; and see Ex parte Sayers, 5 Ves. 169; Lord Chedworth v. Edwards, 8 Ves. 46; Ryall v. Rolle 1 Atk. 172; Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C. B. 161.

(e) Verney v. Carding, cited Joy v. Campbell, 1 Sch. & Lef. 345.

(f) See Ford v. Hopkins, 1 Salk. 283.

(g) Lane v. Dighton, Amb. 409; Lewis v. Madocks, 17 Ves. 57, 58; Price v. Blakemore, 6 Beav. 507; Hopper v. Conyers, 2 L. R. Eq. 549; [and see Re Pumfrey, 22 Ch. D. 255; Re Sloane, (1895) 1 I. R. 146].

(h) See Pennell v. Deffell, 4 De G. M. & G. 382; Ex parte Sayers, 5 Ves. 169; Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 175; Frith v. Cartland, 2 H. & M. 417; [Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696].

without authority in his trade, though the capital may consist only of the stock and debts of the partnership, and these may undergo a continual course of change and fluctuation, yet the Court follows the trust capital throughout all its ramifications, and gives to the beneficiaries of the deceased partner's estate the fruits derived from that capital so continually altered and changed (a).

Money followed through a bank.

5. And so if a trustee pay trust money into a bank to the account of himself, not in any way ear-marked with the trust, and also keep private money of his own to the same account, the Court will disentangle the account, and separate the trust from the private money, and award the former specifically to the cestui que trust (b). [And the same rule will apply equally in the case of a person occupying a fiduciary position, although not an express trustee, as a factor, or agent (c); and has even been applied to the case of a person borrowing money for a specific purpose (e.g. for the purchase by him of property to be afterwards mortgaged to the lender), and not applying it for the purpose for which it was advanced (d). It was formerly held that] as against the cestui que trust the general rule must prevail that the sums drawn out must be attributed to the earliest deposits, according to the order in which they were paid in (e); [but where the question is only between the cestui que trust and the trustee, the rule has been modified, and so long as the trustee has money of his own standing to the account, drawings by him for his private purposes will be attributed to his private money, leaving the trust money intact (f). This follows from the general

(a) See ante, p. 308.

(b) Pennell v. Deffell, 4 De G. M. & G. 372. The observations of L. J. Knight Bruce, p. 381, are well worth a careful perusal. [Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696; Birt v. Burt, 11 Ch. D. 773, note; and see M'Mahon v. Featherstonhaugh, (1895) 1 I. R. 83, where the customer of a deceased stockbroker was held entitled to the benefit of the lien of his bankers on securities lodged by them in court.]

[(c) Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696, where the earlier cases are discussed; Birt v. Burt, 11 Ch. D. 773, note; Bank of Ireland v. Cogry Spinning Co., (1900) 1 I. R. 219; but there is no fiduciary relation between banker and customer; Foley v. Hill, 2 H. L. C. 28; Marten v. Roche, 53 L. T. N.S. 946; 34 W. R. 253; in the absence of special circumstances; Ex parte Plitt, 60 L. T. N.S. 397; 37 W. R. 463.]

[(d) Gibert v. Gonard, 52 L. T. N.S. 54; 33 W. R. 302; 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 439; and see Harris v. Truman, 7 Q. B. D. 340; 9 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 264.]

(e) Pennell v. Deffell, 4 De G. M. & G. 372; Frith v. Cartland, 2 H. & M. 417; [Brown v. Adams, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 764].

[(f) Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696; overruling Pennell v. Deffell, ubi sup., and the other earlier cases; and see Cory v. The Mecca, (1897) A. C. 286, 295; Re Hallett & Co., (1894) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 237; Re Oatway, (1903) 2 Ch. 356, treating Brown v. Adams, ubi sup., as being overruled by Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696.]

principle that where a man does an act which may be rightfully performed, he cannot say that that act was intentionally, and in fact, done wrongly; so far as possible the honest intention of drawing out his own money must be attributed to the trustee. Where, however, the trustee has exhausted his own money, and the account at the bank is composed of moneys belonging to different trusts, the general rule will prevail, and the sums drawn out will, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be attributed to the earliest deposits (a).] If trust money be paid into a bank to an account headed in such a way that the banker cannot fail to know, and must be taken to know that it was a trust account, though the bankers are not bound to inquire into the propriety of the trustee's cheques upon that account, yet if the trustee becomes bankrupt and has overdrawn his private account, the bank cannot apply the credit of the trust account by way of set-off against the debit of the private account (b). [But where bankers, without any intention of benefiting themselves, or any reason to suspect that their customer is insolvent or intends to commit a breach of trust, place money which they know to be trust money to his private account which is overdrawn, no trust account having been opened by him with them, they will not thereby become liable to make good to the cestuis que trust any loss subsequent on the customer's subsequent insolvency (c).

Where a banking company were employed as agents to collect money and to remit it to their employers, and they received the money in cash and placed it with the other cash of the bank, and informed their employers that the money had been remitted, but before it was actually remitted the bank failed, it was held that the money was part of the general assets of the bank, and that the employers of the bank had no priority over the other creditors (d); but this case has been disapproved of by the Court of Appeal, and cannot be regarded as law (e).

[(a) Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696; Hancock v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. (C.A.) 456; Re Ulster Building Society, 25 L. R. Ir. 24, 29; Re Murray, 57 L. T. N.S. 223; Re Stenning, (1895) 2 Ch. 433; and see Mutton v. Peat, (1899) 2 Ch. 556, 560, per Byrne, J.; S. C., (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 79.]

(b) Ex parte Kingston, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 632; [and see Union Bank of Australasia v. Murray Aynsley, (1898) A. C. 693].

[(c) Coleman v. Bucks and Oxon Bank, (1897) 2 Ch. 243; and see Shields v. Bank of Ireland, (1901) 1 I. R. 222.]

[(d) Ex parte Dale and Company, 11 Ch. D. 772; and see Whitecomb v. Jacob, 1 Salk. 160: Ryall v. Rolle, 1 Atk. 165, 172; Ex parte Dumas, 1 Atk. 232; Scott v. Surman, Willes, 400; Ex parte Plitt, 37 W. R. 463; 60 L. T. N.S. 397.]

[(e) Re Hallett's Estate, 13 Ch. D. (C.A.) 696.]

[Necessity for identification.]

In order, however, that the rule as to following trust money should apply, there must be something specific which is capable of being identified as that into which the money has been converted, and where a transaction has been carried out by a set-off in account so that no cheque, note, coin, or credit has ever passed or existed in specie, the doctrine is inapplicable (a).

[Trust money employed in business of partnership.]

6. By the Partnership Act, 1890 (b), sect. 13, if a partner, being a trustee, improperly employs trust property in the business or on account of the partnership, no other partner is liable for the trust property to the persons beneficially interested therein, but nothing in the section is to prevent trust money from being followed and recovered from the firm if still in its possession or under its control.

[Different trust funds intermixed.]

7. In a Scotch case, where the funds of two charities had been intermixed and dealt with as a common fund, and part of the trust funds, which, however, could be traced as having originally belonged to one of the charities, had been invested in land which subsequently increased very largely in value, it was held that the profit must be taken to have been made by the whole trust, and must be apportioned between the charities in the proportions in which they were originally entitled to the common fund (c).]

Following money into land with reference to the Statute of Frauds.

8. In tracing money into land, the principal difficulty in the old cases arose from the Statute of Frauds (d), the 7th section enacting that all declarations of trusts of land should be manifested and proved by some writing. It was formerly held that parol evidence, to prove a state of circumstances from which a Court of Equity would elicit a constructive trust, was inadmissible (e); but Lord Hardwicke, on the ground that constructive trusts were excepted out of the Statute of Frauds (f), ruled that parol evidence might be given (g); and Sir T. Clarke, in the leading case of Lane v. Dighton (h) (though had the point been res integra, he should have thought the evidence not admissible within the statute), followed the authority of Lord Hardwicke; and whatever doubts might formerly have been entertained upon the subject, the law is now settled (i).

[(a) Re Hallett & Co., (1894) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 237; and see Ex parte Hardcastle, 44 L. T. N.S. 523; 29 W. R. 615.]

[(b) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39.]

[(c) The Lord Provost, &c., of Edinburgh v. The Lord Advocate, 4 App. Cas. 823.]

(d) 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

(e) See ante, p. 188.

(f) By the 8th section; see p. 217, ante.

(g) Ryall v. Ryall, Amb. 413; and see Anon. case, Sel. Ch. Ca. 57.

(h) Amb. 409.

(i) Lench v. Lench, 10 Ves. 517; Hopper v. Conyers, 2 L. R. Eq. 549.

Trustee bound to invest a certain sum, and purchasing at that price.

9. The mere fact that a trustee has trust money in his hands when he makes a purchase, is not sufficient to attach the trust on lands bought by him (a). But if a trustee who is under an obligation to lay out money on land, purchase an estate at a price corresponding with the sum to be invested, the Court, independently of positive evidence, may presume the trust money to have been so applied (b). But no such presumption can be raised where it can be shown that the trustee, though under such an obligation, was mistaken in the nature of the trust, and acted under a different impression (c). And where a tenant for life, with power to sell and invest in the purchase of other land, purchased lands with borrowed money, and many years afterwards sold the settled estates, and applied the purchase-money partly in discharge of the debts thus contracted by him, it was held that the purchased lands could not be treated as liable to the trusts of the settled estates (d).

Covenant to settle his whole personal estate and a subsequent purchase is made.

10. In Lewis v. Madocks (e), no evidence to connect any particular fund with the estate was necessary, for a person having covenanted on his marriage to settle all the personalty he should acquire upon certain trusts, and having afterwards invested parts of his personalty on land, it was clear that the money expended upon the estate was bound by the trust, and could therefore be followed into the purchase.

Whether cestui que trust can take the land itself, or has only a lien.

11. Where a trust fund is traceable into land, and the fund constitutes a part only of the money laid out in the purchase, the Court has usually given a lien merely on the land for the trust money and interest (f); but where the entire land is clearly the fruit of the trust fund, the cestui que trust must upon principle have a right to take the land itself, whether the purchase was or was not of the description authorised by the trust (g).

[Trustee may follow trust money though he has concurred in breach.]

[12. A trustee, who has himself concurred in a breach of trust, whereby the trust estate has been improperly expended upon

(a) Sealy v. Stawell, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 326.

(b) See Anon. case, Sel. Ch. Ca. 57; Price v. Blackmore, 6 Beav. 507; Mathias v. Mathias, 3 Sm. & G. 552.

(c) Perry v. Phelips, 4 Ves. 108, see 116, 117.

(d) Denton v. Davies, 18 Ves. 499.

(e) 8 Ves. 150; S. C., 17 Ves. 48; [and see Re Bendy, (1895) 1 Ch. 109; Finlay v. Darling, (1897 1 Ch. 719; Lord Churston v. Buller, 77 L. T. N.S. 45].

(f) Lane v. Dighton, Amb. 409; Lewis v. Madocks, 8 Ves. 150; 17 Ves. 48, see 57; Price v. Blakemore, 6 Beav. 507; Scales v. Baker, 28 Beav. 91; Hopper v. Conyers, 2 L. R. Eq. 549.

(g) Trench v. Harrison, 17 Sim. 111. Lord Manners, in Savage v. Carroll, 1 B. & B. 265, see 284, seems to have thought otherwise; but this was before Taylor v. Plumer, p. 1150, ante.

buildings upon his co-trustee's property, may, notwithstanding such concurrence, take proceedings against his co-trustee to follow the trust property (a).]

13. Where trust money is followed into the hands of a person who, as having received it by collusion, or with express notice of the trust, becomes himself a trustee, he is precluded from pleading the Statute of Limitations (b). Statute of Limitations.

[14. It is not a fraudulent preference on the part of a trustee who has misappropriated trust money to make it good on the eve of bankruptcy (c). [Repayment of trust money not a fraudulent preference.]

15. Money obtained by fraud cannot be followed into the hands of persons who take it in satisfaction of a bonâ fide debt without notice (d). But where the payment is made without any legal consideration, as for the purpose of stifling a prosecution, the money may be followed by a person who is not in pari delicto by being a party to the illegal act (e). [Fraud or illegality.]

16. Where an agent corruptly receives commission, he is accountable as a constructive trustee (f), but until some judgment has been obtained against him by the principal, the money cannot be treated as the money of the principal so as to entitle him to follow it into investments made by the agent, and obtain an injunction against his dealing therewith (g).] [Corrupt receipt of commission.]

SECTION III

OF THE REMEDY FOR A BREACH OF TRUST AGAINST THE TRUSTEE PERSONALLY

1. We may remark in limine that, under the Larceny Act, 1861 (h), a breach of trust may be a criminal act, and that if a trustee Punishment of fraudulent trustees.

[(a) Carson v. Sloane, 13 L. R. Ir. 139; Price v. Blakemore, 6 Beav. 507.]

(b) Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 175; 6 Jur. N.S. 740; Rolfe v. Gregory, 11 Jur. N.S. 97; S. C., 4 De G. J. & S. 576; see post, p. 1161.

[(c) Ex parte Stubbins, 17 Ch. D. (C.A.) 58; Ex parte Taylor, 18 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 295; Ex parte Ball, W. N. 1886, p. 211; 1887, p. 21; 35 W. R. 264; New, Prance & Garrard's Trustee v. Hunting, (1897) 1 Q. B. 607; Ib. 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 19; (1899) A. C. (H.L.) 419 (sub. nom. Sharp v. Jackson); Taylor v. London and County Banking Co., (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 231; and see ante, p. 608.]

[(d) Northern Counties, &c., Insurance Company v. Whipp, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 482, 495.]

[(e) Ex parte Wolverhampton Banking Company, 14 Q. B. D. 32.]

[(f) Ante, p. 208.]

[(g) Lister & Co. v. Stubbs, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1; and see Re Thorpe, (1891) 2 Ch. 360; Grant v. Gold Exploration and Development Syndicate, (1900) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 233.]

(h) 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, ss. 80, 86, re-enacting substantially 20 & 21 Vict. c. 54, which had been repealed by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 94. [On a charge against a trustee under this enactment, of misappropriation of trust-money, a

of any property for the benefit of another person, or for any public or charitable purpose, with intent to defraud, appropriates the same to his own use or for any other purpose than the legitimate one, he is now to be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and be liable to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding seven years and not less than three years, or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without solitary confinement (a). But no prosecution is to be commenced without the sanction of the Attorney-General, or, in the vacancy of that office, of the Solicitor-General; nor, where civil proceedings have been taken, without the sanction of the Court of civil judicature before which the same are pending (b). And no remedy at law or in equity is to be affected, nor is the Act to prejudice any agreement entered into, or security given by any trustee, having for its object the restoration or repayment of any trust property misappropriated.

Effect of Act upon civil proceedings.

2. The last mentioned enactment of the statute leaves the remedy of the cestui que trust in reference to civil proceedings exactly as it stood before the Act. It relieves him from such obligation, if any, as the statute might have been held to impose, of prosecuting the fraudulent trustee before proceeding to recover his property (c); and, notwithstanding the general policy of the law (d), may perhaps be held to go as far as to authorise an agreement for the restoration of the trust property, even though the withdrawal of an indictment against the trustee be one of the terms of the arrangement.

Where a solicitor is party to a breach of trust.

3. A solicitor, who wilfully advises a breach of trust, is liable to be struck off the roll (e). And a fortiori a solicitor who, statement of affairs prepared by him in the course of his bankruptcy, under s. 16 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, is admissible in evidence; Rex v. Pike, (1902) 1 K. B. (C. C. R.) 552.]

[(a) Sect. 1 of the Penal Servitude Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 69), provides that where under any enactment in force when the section comes into operation (5th August, 1891) the Court has power to award a sentence of penal servitude, the sentence may, at the discretion of the Court, be for any period not less than three years, and not exceeding five years, or any greater period authorised by the enactment; and further, that, in lieu of a sentence of penal servitude, the Court may award imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.]

(b) See Wadham v. Rigg, 1 Dr. & Sm. 216.

(c) As to the necessity for prosecuting before taking civil proceedings in cases of felony, see Cox v. Paxton, 17 Ves. 329; White v. Spettigue, 13 M. & W. 603; Scattergood v. Sylvester, 15 Q. B. 506; [Midland Insurance Company v. Smith, 6 Q. B. D. 561; Roope v. D'Avigdor, 10 Q. B. D. 412].

(d) See Keir v. Leeman, 9 Q. B. 371; [Williams v. Bayley, 1 L. R. H. L. 200; Flower v. Sadler, 10 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 572; Windhill Local Board v. Vint, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 351; Jones v. Merionethshire Building Society, (1891) 2 Ch. 587; (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 173].

(e) Goodwin v. Gosnell, 2 Coll. 457, see p. 462.

being a trustee, himself commits a wilful breach of trust, is amenable to the same penalty (a). But a solicitor (in common with any other agent) is not liable as a constructive trustee for the consequences of acts done by him, pursuant to instructions from his clients, who are trustees, and exercising their legal powers, unless he either receive some part of the trust property, or assist with knowledge in some dishonest and fraudulent design on the part of his clients (b). Thus a testator devised and bequeathed his residuary estate to Crush, Lugar, and Addy, his three trustees and executors, upon trust for his four children, viz. Ann (who married Barnes), Susan (who married the trustee, Addy), and William and Mary. The shares of Ann and Susan were to be held upon trust for their separate use respectively, without power of anticipation, with remainder to their children; and the will contained a power of appointment of new trustees vested in the executors, but there was no authority to diminish their number. Crush renounced and disclaimed, and Clarke was appointed in his place; but Lugar and Clarke both died, and Addy became sole trustee of the trust fund. The shares of Susan and William had been satisfied, and Mary's share was not in question; but as to the share of Ann, the wife of Barnes, there being disputes between Addy the trustee, and Barnes, Addy instructed his solicitor, Duffield, to appoint Barnes sole trustee in place of Addy, so far as regarded the share of Ann Barnes. Duffield represented the danger of placing the fund under the power of a single trustee, and advised Addy not to do it; but, as he persisted, he advised him at all events to take a deed of indemnity. Duffield afterwards declined to proceed unless a separate solicitor acted for Mrs Barnes and her children, and Preston was thereupon appointed such solicitor, and he wrote to Ann Barnes a letter explanatory of the risk, but, nevertheless, Ann Barnes wished it to be done. The deed of appointment of Barnes as sole trustee, and the deed of indemnity which had been proposed by Duffield, were then approved by Preston, and executed; and Addy transferred the share of Ann Barnes (amounting, after certain deductions, to 2074*l.* consols) into the name of Barnes, who the next day sold it out, and applied the proceeds in his business, and became bankrupt. The fund having been lost, the children of Ann Barnes filed their bill against the administratrix of Addy (then deceased), and against Duffield and Preston, to compel them to restore the trust fund. Addy's estate was declared liable, but the bill was dismissed as against Duffield and Preston. The plaintiffs appealed from this dismissal, and rested their case on the solicitors being parties to a threefold breach of trust, viz. first, the appointment of a single trustee; secondly, the transfer of the fund into the name of a sole trustee; and, thirdly, the division of the fund, so that there should be a separate trustee of each part. There was no evidence that either Duffield or Preston suspected, or had reason to suspect, the good faith of Barnes, and Lord Selborne and Lord Justice James concurred in the principle above laid down, and dismissed the appeal with costs (a). [In a recent case it has been held that in order that a solicitor of a trustee may be debarred from accepting payments from the trustee out of the trust estate in respect of costs properly incurred, notice must be brought home to him that, at the time when he accepted the payments, the trustee had been guilty of such a breach of trust as would altogether preclude him from resorting to the estate for payment of costs (b); and solicitors who, without seeking to benefit themselves, have advised trustees to make an investment on a contributory mortgage in breach of trust, will not be postponed or prejudiced in respect of an advance of money on the same security bonâ fide made by themselves (c).]

(a) Re Chandler, 22 Beav. 253; Re Hall, 2 Jur. N.S. 633.

(b) Barnes v. Addy, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 251, per Lord Selborne; [and see Mara v. Browne, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199, reversing North, J., (1895) 2 Ch. 69; Stokes v. Prance, (1898) 1 Ch. 212, 224; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 404, 405].

Civil proceedings.

4. As regards civil proceedings for compensation against the trustee, the cestui que trust, in the event of a breach of trust, is entitled to institute proceedings against the trustee to compel a compensation from him personally for the loss which the trust estate has sustained; and if the plaintiff has a vested interest, and has reason to apprehend that the trustee is going abroad, he may obtain a writ of ne exeat regno (d). [But the breach of trust must be brought home to the trustee, and if there is a doubt whether the trustee has acted honestly and bonâ fide in

(a) Barnes v. Addy, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 244; [and see Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 395, 396, 404, 405].

[(b) Re Blundell, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 370.]

[(c) Stokes v. Prance, (1898) 1 Ch. 212.]

(d) Hawkins v. Hawkins, 1 Dr. & Sm. 75. As to the assignment of a right to sue for redress in respect of a breach of trust, see Hill v. Boyle, 4 L. R. Eq. 260. If a trustee has made default in payment of a trust fund which was in his hands, and was misapplied, he can be attached, though he may have spent the money before the date of the order for payment, and is unable to pay, and such trustee is within the third exception of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4; Middleton v. Chichester, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 152; and see post, p. 1191.

the discharge of his duty, although he may have made mistakes, the doubt should be determined in favour of the trustee (a).]

Statute of Limitations.

5. This right to sue was not (previously to the 1st of January, 1890 (b)) affected by the Statute of Limitations (c). And even a trustee, who was also a cestui que trust in remainder, and by whose neglect the tenant for life got possession of the fund, has been allowed, notwithstanding the statute, to recover it from the estate of the tenant for life who wrongfully possessed himself of it (d); and a solicitor, who as agent collects debts for his employer under a power of attorney to collect debts and hold the proceeds upon certain trusts, is regarded as a trustee, and cannot [otherwise than under the provisions of the Trustee Act, 1888, sect. 8], plead the statute (e). [So directors of a company who have improperly paid dividends out of capital, are not permitted to plead the

[(a) Per Jessel, M.R., Re Owens, 47 L. T. N.S. 61.]

[(b) See the Trustee Act, 1888, s. 8, ante, p. 1136.]

(c) Phillipo v. Munnings, 2 M. & C. 309; Browne v. Radford, W. N. 1874, p. 124; Milnes v. Cowley, 4 Price, 103; Cator v. Croydon Railway Company, 4 Y. & C. 405; Downes v. Bullock, 25 Beav. 61; Clark v. Hoskins, 36 L. J. N.S. Ch. 689; Butler v. Carter, 5 L. R. Eq. 276; Brittlebank v. Goodwin, 5 L. R. Eq. 545; Hartford v. Power, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 204; Woodhouse v. Woodhouse, 8 L. R. Eq. 514; Burdick v. Garrick, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 233; Stone v. Stone, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 74; Mutlow v. Bigg, 18 L. R. Eq. 246, reversed on other grounds, 1 Ch. D. (C.A.) 385; Watson v. Saul, 1 Giff. 188; Harris v. Harris (No. 2), 29 Beav. 110; Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 175; Rolfe v. Gregory, 11 Jur. N.S. 98; S. C., 4 De G. J. & S. 576; and see Bright v. Legerton, 2 De G. F. & J. 606; Tyson v. Jackson, 30 Beav. 384; Cresswell v. Dewell, 4 Giff. 460; Burrowes v. O'Brien, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 424; Burrows v. Gore, 6 H. L. C. 907; [Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. (C.A.) 319.] As to the cases of Dunne v. Doran, 13 Ir. Eq. R. 545, and Brereton v. Hutchinson, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 361, see Brittlebank v. Goodwin, 5 L. R. Eq. 551. But see Carroll v. Hargrave, 5 I. R. Eq. 123. As to suits between solicitor and client, see Re Hindmarsh, 1 Dr. & Sm. 129.

(d) Butler v. Carter, 5 L. R. Eq. 276.

(e) Burdick v. Garrick, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 233. Solicitors receiving money in the character of agents can in general plead the statute; Re Hindmarsh, 1 Dr. & Sm. 129; Watson v. Woodman, 20 L. R. Eq. 721; [Dooby v. Watson, 39 Ch. D. 178; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. 390, 405;] but not so, where they receive moneys bound expressly by a particular trust of which they are conusant: see Burdick v. Garrick, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 240; [Re Bell, 34 Ch. D. 462; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 396, 397, 405; and where moneys were remitted to an agent abroad, for investment in a specified manner, the agent was held to be an express trustee; North American Land and Timber Co. v. Watkins, (1904) 1 Ch. 242; 2 Ch. (C.A.) 233; but the fiduciary relation existing between partners, or a surviving partner and the executors of a deceased partner, will not necessarily prevent the statute from being set up as a defence; Friend v. Young, (1897) 2 Ch. 421; Knox v. Gye, L. R. 5 H. L. 656; North American Land and Timber Co. v. Watkins, (1904) 1 Ch. 249; 2 Ch. (C.A.) 233; and see Power v. Power, 13 L. R. Ir. 281, where it was said that "where there is not merely an agency between the parties, but also a superadded fiduciary relation, the remedy of the principal, who is then also the cestui que trust, is not one arising merely from contract, or duty springing from such contract, where a common law liability would alone exist, but is one to be dealt with on the equitable relation of trustee and cestui que trust"].

statute (a).] And in like manner the personal representative or heir or devisee of a deceased trustee who has committed a breach of trust, or a legatee or next of kin in possession of the assets, with notice of the breach of trust (b), [or the executors of a husband who has retained and made himself trustee of separate property of his wife (c),] must be answerable in the same way as the testator or intestate would have been (d). But though the statute could not be pleaded in bar, yet where the trust fund had no actual existence, but the suit was for damages, gross laches would per cursum cancellariæ disentitle a plaintiff to relief, the Statute of Limitations leaving it open to a Court of Equity to act upon its own rule as to laches and acquiescence (e). [Where a suit is founded on a fraudulent breach of duty committed by a person in the position of a trustee, as where a director receives a bribe to neglect his duty, time will commence to run so soon as the fraud has been discovered (f).]

36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25, sub-s. 2.

6. By the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, sect. 25, sub-sect. 2, it was expressly enacted that no claim by a cestui que trust against his trustee in respect of any breach of an express trust, should be barred by any statute of limitations. But the Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, sect. 10, enacts that from 1st January, 1879, no money or legacy charged on any land or rent shall, though secured by an express trust, be recoverable but within the time allowed for recovery had there been no express trust (g).

37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, s. 10.

[Trustee Act, 1888, s. 8.]

[The provisions of the Trustee Act, 1888, sect. 8, to which reference has already been made (h), will not affect cases of the kind now under consideration where the claim of the cestui que trust against the trustee is "founded upon fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which the trustee was party or privy, or is

[(a) Re Flitcroft's case, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 519 ; Re Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 154 ; and see Re Lands Allotment Company, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 616 ; Re Dixon, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 561 ; M'Ardle v. Gaughan, (1903) 1 I. R. 107 ; but directors are not trustees for individual shareholders, and may purchase shares from them without disclosing negotiations for sale of the company's undertaking : Percival v. Wright, (1902) 2 Ch. 421.]

(b) Woodhouse v. Woodhouse, 8 L. R. Eq. 514, 521. [But of course the estate of a deceased trustee is not liable for subsequent breaches of trust ; Re Palk, W. N. (1892) p. 112.]

[(c) Wassell v. Leggatt, (1896) 1 Ch. 554 ; Re National Bank of Wales, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 629 ; S. C., in H. L. nom. Dovey v. Cory, (1901) A.C. 477.]

(d) Story v. Gape, 2 Jur. N.S. 706 ; Obee v. Bishop, 1 De G. F. & J. 137 ; Brittlebank v. Goodwin, 5 L. R. Eq. 545 ; [Re Burge, 57 L. T. N.S. 364]. But see the Irish cases, Dunne v. Doran, 13 Ir. Eq. Rep. 545 ; Brereton v. Hutchinson, 3 Ir. Ch. Rep. 361 ; Carroll v. Hargrave, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 123.

(e) Philips v. Pennefather, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 486, per Sir Jos. Napier, C.S.

[(f) Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. (C.A.) 319 ; and see ante, p. 1114.]

(g) See ante, p. 1136.

[(h) See ante, pp. 1136 et seq.]

to recover trust property or the proceeds thereof still retained by the trustee, or previously received by the trustee and converted to his use," and if a claim of that description can be substantiated, the trustee will henceforth, as heretofore, be precluded from pleading the statute; but if not, then it would seem that in general, clause (B) of sub-sect. 1 of that section will be applicable, and that the lapse of six years will be a protection to the trustee, as it would have been in an ordinary action of debt.]

Trust money taken by a firm.

7. Where the trustee is one of a firm, and trust money finds its way into the coffers of the firm, with the sanction of the partners, [whether express, or implied from the course of business,] and is misapplied, not only the trustee, but the partners also, are liable (a). And if one of a firm of solicitors, in transacting business with trustees, practice a fraud upon the trustees, the co-partners are liable (b). [But one of a firm of solicitors has no implied authority to make his partners liable as constructive trustees (c), though, of course, if being a trustee he is party, in his capacity of solicitor, to an improper investment of the trust fund, his co-partners may be liable on the ground of negligence (d).

[Partnership Act, 1890.]

The Partnership Act, 1890 (e), by sect. 11, enacts that "where one partner, acting within the scope of his apparent authority, receives the money or property of a third person and misapplies it, and where a firm in the course of its business receives money or property of a third person, and the money or property so received is misapplied by one or more of the partners while it is in the custody of the firm, the firm is liable to make good the loss" (f); and by sect. 13, that "if a partner, being a trustee, improperly employs trust property in the business or on the account of the partnership, no other partner is liable for the trust property to the persons beneficially interested therein: Provided as follows:—(1) This section shall not affect any liability incurred by any partner by reason of his having notice of a breach of trust; and (2) Nothing

(a) Eager v. Barnes, 31 Beav. 579; Blair v. Bromley, 5 Ha. 542; 2 Ph. 534; [Thorne v. Heard, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 599, 605; Rhodes v. Moules, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 236; and see Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 352; Moore v. Knight, (1891) 1 Ch. 547; see ante, p. 1143; Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 94].

(b) Sawyer v. Goodwin, 36 L. J. N.S. Ch. 578; Long v. Hay, W. N. 1871, p. 134; [and as to the liability of the representative of a deceased partner, see Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 366].

[(c) Mara v. Browne, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199.]

[(d) Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 352.]

[(e) 53 & 54 Vict. c. 39.]

[(f) As to the effect of this enactment, see Rhodes v. Moules, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 236.]

in this section shall prevent trust money from being followed and recovered from the firm if still in its possession or under its control." By sect. 5 of the same Act "every partner is an agent of the firm and his other partners for the purpose of the business of the partnership; and the acts of every partner who does any act for carrying on in the usual way business of the kind carried on by the firm of which he is a member, bind the firm and his partners, unless the partner so acting has in fact no authority to act for the firm in the particular matter, and the person with whom he is dealing either knows that he has no authority, or does not know or believe him to be a partner."]

Corporation liable for breach of trust.

8. The remedy for a breach of trust lies against a corporation as well as against an individual; and a municipal corporation since the Municipal Corporations Act of 1835, has been held liable for a breach of trust committed before the Act (a).

Land tortiously sold.

9. If a trustee dispose of the trust estate to a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, the cestui que trust may compel the trustee to purchase other lands of equal value to be settled upon the like trusts (b), or the cestui que trust may at his option take the proceeds of the sale, with interest, or the present estimated value of the lands sold, after deducting any increase of price caused by subsequent improvements (c).

[Trustee allowing husband to misapply the fund.]

[10. If a trustee for the separate use of a married woman for life allow the husband to get possession of and misapply the trust fund without the wife's knowledge, he is liable for the income which would but for the breach of trust have accrued on the fund, notwithstanding that the married woman had acquiesced in the payment of the income prior to the breach of trust to her husband, for in such a case no assent on her part to the retainer by the husband of the subsequent income can be presumed (d).]

Neglect to accumulate.

11. Where a testator had directed an investment in Three per Cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities and an accumulation of the dividends, the trustee was decreed to purchase the sum of stock which the fund, if regularly invested, would have produced, and to make good the amount due in respect of subsequent accumulation (e).

Covenant to transfer stock.

12. If a settlement contain a covenant for the transfer of stock,

(a) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Leicester, 9 Beav. 546.

(b) See Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 681; Vernon v. Vaudrey, Barn. 303; Macnamara v. Carey, 1 Ir. R. Eq. 23; and see the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 78).

(c) See Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 2 M. & K. 35; but see Denton v. Davies, 18 Ves. 504.

[(d) Dixon v. Dixon, 9 Ch. D. 587.]

(e) Pride v. Fooks, 2 Beav. 430; see Byrchall v. Bradford, 6 Mad. 13; S. C., Id. 235; and see ante, p. 391.

[or the creation of a charge upon property,] and the trustee neglects to enforce the transfer (a), [or the due creation of the charge (b),] he is liable for all the consequences.

Neglect to sell.

13. So if there be a trust for sale, and the trustee neglects to sell for a great length of time, whereby the property is deteriorated, he is answerable for the loss (c).

Policy forfeited.

14. If a trustee suffer a policy of insurance to become forfeited through neglect to pay the premiums, he is bound to make good the loss to the cestui que trust (d); provided, that is, he had funds in hand for payment of the premiums, for if he had none, and could procure none, he would be exempt from liability (e). He may, however, either advance money himself, or borrow it from another on the security of the policy, and a lien on the policy will be allowed (f). If there be no means of keeping up the policy the Court will direct it to be sold or surrendered (g).

[Policy improperly given up to husband and surrendered by his mortgagee.]

[15. Where a trustee had neglected to give notice of a settlement affecting a policy to the insurance office, and had, in contemplation of a breach of trust, retired in favour of a single trustee, who allowed the husband to get possession of the policy, and the husband received a bonus and mortgaged the policy, and the mortgagee surrendered it, it was held

(a) Fenwick v. Greenwell, 10 Beav. 412.

[(b) Cleary v. Fitzgerald, 7 L. R. Ir. 229.]

(c) Devaynes v. Robinson, 24 Beav. 86; Sculthorpe v. Tipper, 13 L. R. Eq. 232.

(d) Marriott v. Kinnersley, Taml. 470.

(e) So decided, Hobday v. Peters (No. 3), 28 Beav. 603.

(f) Clack v. Holland, 19 Beav. 273, 276, per Cur.; Re Layton's Policy, W. N. 1873, p. 49; and see Johnson v. Swire, 3 Giff. 194; Todd v. Moorhouse, 19 L. R. Eq. 69. [It has been said that the only cases in which a lien upon the money secured by a policy can be created in favour of a mere stranger, or a part owner, by payment of premiums are the following: 1. By contract with the beneficial owner of the property. 2. By reason of the right of trustees to an indemnity out of their trust property for money expended by them in its preservation. 3. By subrogation to this right of trustees of some person who has at their request advanced money for the preservation of the property. 4. By reason of the right of a mortgagee to add to his charge any money paid by him to preserve the property; Re Leslie, 23 Ch. D. 552; and see Falcke v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co., 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 234; Patten v. Bond, 60 L. T. N.S. 583; Sewell v. Bishop, 62 L. J. Ch. 615, 985; Re Power's Policies, (1899) 1 I. R. (C.A.) 6. In Strutt v. Tippett, 62 L. T. N.S. 475, doubt was expressed by Lindley, L.J., whether this enumeration could be regarded as exhaustive. In the second class of cases the right to indemnity is strictly limited to the trust property. Thus a trustee, who was under a statutory duty to pay the premiums on a policy, out of a fund which was insufficient, but who was not trustee of the policy, was held not entitled to a lien for moneys spent by him in paying a premium on the policy; Re Earl of Winchelsea's Policy Trusts, 39 Ch. D. 168.]

(g) Hill v. Trenery, 23 Beav. 16; Beresford v. Beresford, Ib. 292; [and see Re Wells, (1903) 1 Ch. 848, 853].

that, although there were no funds available for keeping up the policy, the original trustee, inasmuch as there was a clear breach of trust in neglecting to give notice to the office and in parting with the possession of the policy, was liable for the amount of the bonus and of the moneys received on the surrender (a).]

Neglect to give notice of assignment.

16. If the trustees of a marriage settlement take by assignment choses in action of the husband, and neglect to give notice of the settlement to the persons in whom the choses in action are vested, and on the bankruptcy of the husband the choses in action, as left in his order and disposition with the consent of the true owner, become forfeited in favour of the creditors, it is apprehended that the trustees would be liable for their neglect of duty in not having given notice of the settlement, so as to take the property out of the order and disposition of the settlor (b).

Registration.

17. So if the trustee of a deed which requires registration to protect the property, neglect to register it, he is answerable for the consequences (c).

Power imperative.

18. A trust is sometimes in the form of a power imperative; that is, a power which it is the bounden duty of the trustee to execute, and if through his neglect to execute it a loss arises, he will be held responsible (d).

Receipt by person not a trustee, but acting as such.

19. If a person has assumed to act as trustee, and having received money in that character misapplies it, he is accountable for the proceeds to the cestui que trust, and cannot defend himself by showing that in fact he was not legally a trustee (e), or that when he committed the breach he did not know who his cestui que trust was (f); [and this principle was applied to a case where an agent for an owner in fee, after the death of such owner, continued to receive the rents and pay them into a separate account at his own bank, and stated that he was acting as agent and receiver for the person next entitled (g).] But the trustee

[(a) Kingdon v. Castleman, 46 L. J. N.S. Ch. 448.]

(b) As to what particulars are within the operation of the clause, see [the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 44; and ante, p. 271].

(c) Macnamara v. Carey, 1 Ir. Rep. Eq. 9.

(d) Luther v. Bianconi, 10 Ir. Ch. Rep. 194; and see ante, p. 1074.

(e) Rackham v. Siddal, 16 Sim. 297; affirmed on appeal to the extent of the interest of the plaintiff, the tenant for life, 1 Mac. & G. 607; Pearce v. Pearce, 22 Beav. 248; and see Derbishire v. Home, 3 De G. M. & G. 80; Hope v. Liddell, 21 Beav. 183; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 58; Hennessey v. Bray, 33 Beav. 96; Ex parte Norris, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 280; Yardley v. Holland, 20 L. R. Eq. 428; Smith v. Smith, 10 Ir. Rep. Eq. 273; [Lyell v. Kennedy, 14 App. Cas. 437; Soar v. Ashwell, (1893) 2 Q. B. (C.A.) 390, 396, 402, 405].

(f) Ex parte Norris, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 280.

[(g) Lyell v. Kennedy, 14 App. Cas. 437, 457, where Lord Selborne observed: "A man who receives the money of another on his behalf, and places it specifically to an account of a devised estate will not be accountable for property comprised in the devise, but the existence of which did not come to his knowledge, and which he was not bound to have discovered (a).

[20. Where a director of a company accepted fully paid up shares from the promoters, under circumstances which were held to amount to a misfeasance on his part, and the shares, which at one time had been worth 80*l.* a share, had become so much depreciated as to be worth only 1*l.* a share, it was held that the director was a trustee of the shares for the company, that restitution of the shares by the director was not sufficient, but that the company might elect to have the value of the shares, and that the value was to be taken at 80*l.* a share, which was to carry interest at 4*l.* per cent. from the date of the transfer to the director (b). "A gift by a promoter to a director, whilst there are any questions open between the company and the promoter, must be accounted for by the director to the company for whom he is an agent, and the company has the option of claiming what is given, or its value, i.e. the highest value whilst held by the director" (c).] [Director accepting shares from promoters.]

21. If an action be brought for an account, and the plaintiff seeks relief against wilful default, he must in his pleadings allege some specific act of wilful default (d), and pray consequential relief; and at the hearing must prove some act of wilful default, or at least establish a case for inquiry (e); and a fortiori where, at the original hearing, the common accounts only were directed, it is too late to ask relief on further consideration against any wilful act that may have transpired accidentally in the course of other inquiries (f); [and where a plaintiff in an administration action charges trustees with a breach of trust, Wilful default.

with a banker, earmarked and separate from his own moneys, though under his own control, is in my opinion a trustee of the fund standing to that account. For the constitution of such a trust no express words are necessary; anything which may satisfy a court of equity that the money was received in a fiduciary character is enough."]

(a) Youde v. Cloude, 18 L. R. Eq. 634.

[(b) Nant-y-Glo and Blaina Ironworks Company v. Grave, 12 Ch. D. 738.]

[(c) Eden v. Ridsdale's Railway Lamp and Lighting Co., 23 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 368, 572, per Lindley, L.J.; but in considering what is the highest value, the conditions of the market must be regarded, and the holder of a large number of shares will not necessarily be charged with prices which might have been obtainable on sales of smaller quantities: Shaw v. Holland, (1900) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 305.]

(d) Bond v. M'Watty, 14 Ir. Ch. Rep. 174; Wildes v. Dudlow, W. N. 1870, pp. 85, 231; [and see Mayer v. Murray, 8 Ch. D. 424; Smith v. Armitage, 24 Ch. D. 727].

(e) Sleight v. Lawson, 3 K. & J. 292; [but this general rule does not necessarily apply where the action is grounded on breach of trust: Re Wrightson, (1908) 1 Ch. 789].

(f) Coope v. Carter, 2 De G. M. & G. 292; Askew v. Woodhead, 28 L. T. N.S. 465; 21 W. R. 573.

but at the hearing is content to take a common administration judgment, he will not be allowed afterwards to charge further breaches of trust committed before writ or judgment, either as ground of relief, or for the purpose of removing the trustees from office (a)]; and a trustee cannot be declared liable for wilful default upon a common order made at chambers for the administration of the testator's estate (b), [or upon an originating summons, otherwise than by consent (c)]. But if the plaintiff pray an account with interest, and at the original hearing an account is directed, and in the course of the accounts improper balances appear to have been retained, interest on the balances may be asked for at the hearing on further directions (d). If relief against a breach of trust be prayed, and at the original hearing the usual accounts only are directed, but with an inquiry who are the parties interested, it is not too late to ask relief against the breach of trust on further consideration, as before that time the Court was not in a condition to deal with the question (e); [and under the modern practice, where the statement of claim alleges wilful default, the Court may at any stage of the proceedings direct accounts and inquiries upon that footing (f); and, in the absence of any such allegation, will charge trustees with interest, simple or compound, on balances retained in their hands, and with compound interest where an express trust for accumulation has not been complied with (g). But the jurisdiction is discretionary, and the Court in its discretion refused to direct a common account against a defaulting trustee, and simply gave judgment against him for particular amounts admitted to be due (h). Where there are allegations of wilful default or improper conduct on the part of the defendants, it is the duty of the plaintiff to be ready at the hearing to prove such allegations, and where the plaintiff was not in a position at the hearing to go into the charges (i), the Court would not, unless a strong

[(a) Re Wrightson, (1908) 1 Ch. 789.]

(b) Re Fryer, 3 K. & J. 317; Partington v. Reynolds, 4 Drew. 253; Re Delevante, 6 Jur. N.S. 118; but see Brooker v. Brooker, 3 Sm. & G. 475; [and on taking the common account of their receipts executors can properly be, and are often, charged with a devastavit arising on the accounts themselves; Re Stevens, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 162, 172, per Chitty, L.J.].

[(c) Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A. C. 190, 202, per Lord Macnaghten, and see ante, p. 420.]

(d) Shaw v. Turbett, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 476.

(e) Pattenden v. Hobson, 1 Eq. Rep. 28.

[(f) Job v. Job, 6 Ch. D. 562; Re Symons, 21 Ch. D. 757; Mayer v. Murray, 8 Ch. D. 424; and see Laming v. Gee, 10 Ch. D. 715.]

[(g) Re Barclay, (1899) 1 Ch. 674.]

[(h) Campbell v. Gillespie, (1900) 1 Ch. 225.]

[(i) Smith v. Armitage, 24 Ch. D. 727; and see Re Stevens, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 162, 172.]

case were made out for so doing, postpone the inquiry into the conduct of the trustees]. In a redemption suit it is not necessary that the plaintiff should charge wilful default (a); nor is the case altered if the deed, though in substance a security, be in the form of a deed of trust (b). And in a case under the old practice, it was held that where executors filed a bill for the administration of their testator's estate, it was competent to a defendant to allege by his answer a case of wilful default by the executors, and that on proof of it at the hearing, the Court would give the necessary directions without obliging the defendant to file a cross bill (c). It is not competent to a remainderman to institute proceedings for relief against wilful default in respect of the prior life estate, for he has no interest in the income, but only in the corpus (d).

Suit against trustee's personal representative.

22. An executor or administrator of a trustee will be answerable for a breach of trust, though he may have distributed the assets amongst the legatees or next of kin without previous notice of the breach of trust (unless it was done under the sanction of the Court (e), or under the provisions of the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), sect. 29 (f)); and the Statute of Limitations affords him no protection (g) [unless the nature of the breach of trust is such as to bring the case within the provisions of the Trustee Act, 1888, sect. 8 (h)]. The cestui que trust, if he has not been lying by while the rights of the defendants have been varied by lapse of time (i), may also in lieu, or in aid of proceedings against the trustee, recover the assets directly from the legatees or next of kin amongst whom they have been distributed (j).

[Jurisdiction of Court under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, to relieve trustee from consequences of breach of trust.]

[23. An important extension of the jurisdiction of the Court in cases of breach of trust has been introduced by sect. 3 of the Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 (k), whereby it is enacted that, "If it

[(a) Mayer v. Murray, 8 Ch. D. 424.]

(b) O'Connell v. O'Callaghan, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 31.

(c) Harvey v. Bradley, 4 L. R. Eq. 13.

(d) Whitney v. Smith, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 513.

(e) Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 3 M. & Cr. 122; March v. Russell, 3 M. & Cr. 31; Low v. Carter, 1 Beav. 423; Hill v. Gomme, Ib. 540; Underwood v. Hatton, 5 Beav. 39; Waller v. Barrett, 24 Beav. 413.

[(f) See ante, p. 436; and see Stuart v. Babington, 27 L. R. Ir. 551.]

(g) See p. 1157, ante.

[(h) See ante, p. 1136.]

(i) Ridgway v. Newstead, 3 De G. F. & J. 474; Blake v. Gale, 31 Ch. D. 196; 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 571; [Leahy v. De Moleyns, (1896) 1 I. R. 206; Re Belton's Estate, (1894) 1 I. R. 537].

(j) March v. Russell, 3 M. & Cr. 31; Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 3 M. & Cr. 126; Underwood v. Hatton, 5 Beav. 38.

[(k) 59 & 60 Vict. c. 35. This section came into operation at the passing of the Act (14th August, 1896).]

appears to the Court that a trustee, whether appointed under this Act or not, is or may be personally liable for any breach of trust, whether the transaction alleged to be a breach of trust occurred before or after the passing of this Act, but has acted honestly and reasonably, and ought fairly to be excused for the breach of trust, and for omitting to obtain the directions of the Court in the matter in which he committed such breach, then the Court may relieve the trustee either wholly or partly from personal liability for the same."

[Jurisdiction how exercised under the enactment.]

No general rules can be laid down as to the mode in which the Court will exercise its judicial discretion under the section, and each case must be governed by its own circumstances (a); but it is clear that, before exercising its discretion, the Court must be satisfied, by proper evidence, that the trustee has acted reasonably as well as honestly (b), and that the burden of showing that he acted honestly and "reasonably" lies on the trustee who seeks relief from the Court under the section (c). In dealing with the question of reasonableness, the Court will consider whether a prudent man would have disposed of the trust property in the manner complained of, if it had been his own (d); and, accordingly, the fact that the trustee relied on the advice of his solicitor, as to the value of property proposed as a security, is not per se a ground of excuse, for no prudent man, lending his own money, would rely on a solicitor's advice on a question of value (e); and a trustee cannot be considered to have acted "reasonably," if he has never really considered the question whether the security he took was one which in its nature it was prudent and right for him as a trustee to take, or has made the investment without obtaining the consent of the person whose consent was required by the settlement (f). And the Court will not favour the application of a trustee, who, in making an investment of trust funds upon mortgage, has omitted to obtain a valuation in accordance with the requirements, formerly of sect. 4 of the Trustee Act, 1888, or now of sect. 8 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (g); as such

[(a) Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536.]

[(b) Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536; Re Stuart, (1897) 2 Ch. 583.]

[(c) Re Stuart, (1897) 2 Ch. 583. Trustees are not bound specially to plead the Act, though it may be desirable for them to do so: Singlehurst v. Tapscott Steamship Co., W. N. (C.A.) (1899) 135.]

[(d) Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536; and see Re Grindey, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 593.]

[(e) Re Stuart, (1897) 2 Ch. 583; and see Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536.]

[(f) Chapman v. Browne, (1902) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 785.]

[(g) Re Stuart, (1897) 2 Ch. 583; see ante, pp. 374 et seq., as to the statutory requirements. In the case referred to, an application on further consideration of an administration action was entertained, although no application had omission goes far to show that the trustee, although he may have acted "honestly," has not acted "reasonably" (a).

Where one of the trustees is a solicitor, and the other is not, the non-professional trustee will not be excused if he concurs in an improper investment in reliance on the superior knowledge of his co-trustee, though he may, in such a case, be entitled to be indemnified by his co-trustee against the resulting loss (b); nor will a trustee be excused, if, relying on his co-trustee, who is one of a firm of solicitors, he permits trust moneys, pending the settlement of questions, to be received by the co-trustee, and paid by him into the banking account of his firm (c); and a trustee who relies entirely on his co-trustee, and accepts his statements without inquiry, cannot be regarded as acting "honestly" (d). Where trustees, erroneously assuming that they had a power of sale, sold settled leaseholds, and thereby diminished the income of the tenant for life, who was entitled to enjoyment in specie, but the sale would have been a proper one if the trustees had in fact possessed a power of sale, the Court, on evidence that they had acted honestly and reasonably, held them entitled to be relieved from liability (e); and where, on the construction of a will, executors and trustees reasonably thought that it was not their duty to call in an outstanding debt, they were relieved from liability under the section; and the smallness of the amount of the debt was treated as a circumstance in their favour, in considering whether they ought to have obtained the directions of the Court (f).

Where trustees, upon distribution of their trust fund, paid a share to their solicitor, who stated that he was assignee (as in fact he was), but did not produce the assignment to him (which would have shown the existence of a prior assignment), they were held not entitled to relief, as it was their duty to inquire into the alleged title, and having failed in this, they could not shield themselves behind the fraud of their solicitor (g).

Where the trustees of a fund, acting under the erroneous advice of their solicitors, who treated the matter as governed by an Act which was not in force at the time when the title to the fund been made to vary the finding in the certificate as to the impropriety of the investments by the trustee, and the resulting loss.]

[(a) Re Dive, (1909) 1 Ch. 328; and see Shaw v. Cates, (1909) 1 Ch. 389, as to the duties of trustees acting without such a valuation.]

[(b) Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536.]

[(c) Wynne v. Tempest, W. N. 1897, p. 43.]

[(d) Re Second East Dulwich &c. Building Soc., 68 L. J. Ch. 196; 47 W. R. 408.]

[(e) Perrins v. Bellamy, (1899) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 797.]

[(f) Re Grindey, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 593.]

[(g) Davis v. Hutchings, (1907) 1 Ch. 356.]

attached, made a distribution which was not in fact authorised by law, they were not excused, and it was held that a trustee does not entitle himself to relief by merely showing that he has acted reasonably and honestly, but must show that under all the circumstances he ought fairly to be excused for his breach of trust (a).

[Case of executor.] The section applies to a devastavit by an executor, but in such a case, the Court bears in mind that a prudent and reasonable executor ought to advertise for claims under the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (b), as soon as possible (c).

Where an executor, having good reason to suppose that the estate was solvent and of large amount, paid an immediate legacy to the testator's widow, and also sums on account of income to maintain the widow and family, and it subsequently transpired that, owing to large defalcations which had been committed by the testator, the estate was in fact insolvent, the executor, although he had unduly delayed the advertisements for creditors, was relieved by the Court in respect of payments made before, but not after the issue of the writ in an action to recover the amount of the defalcations (d). And where an executor, acting honestly and reasonably, has refrained from suing for a debt due to the estate, bonâ fide believing such debt to be irrecoverable, he ought to be excused from the consequences of such a mere technical breach of trust (e).

Where executors, during five years' administration of a considerable estate, paid various sums to their solicitors, in reliance on their statements that such sums were required for different purposes, to which they were in great measure applied, but on the bankruptcy of the solicitors there was a deficit, the executors, having acted honestly and reasonably, were held excused by the Court (f).]

Breach of trust an equitable debt only.

24. The debt constituted by a breach of trust is, even after it has been established by a decree, an equitable debt only, and until the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, would not have supported a petition in bankruptcy (g).

[(a) National Trustees Company of Australasia v. General Finance Company of Australasia, (1905) A.C. (P.C.) 373. This case was decided under a Victorian statute, substantially identical in terms with sect. 3 of the Act of 1896.]

[(b) 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, see ante, p. 436.]

[(c) Re Kay, (1897) 2 Ch. 518.]

[(d) Re Kay, (1897) 2 Ch. 518.]

[(e) Re Roberts, 76 L. T. N.S. 479; see Re Barker, 77 L. T. N.S. 712; 46 W. R. 296.]

[(f) Re Lord De Clifford's Estate, (1900) 2 Ch. 707.]

(g) Ex parte Blencowe, 1 L. R. Ch. App. 393. See the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 71), s. 6, and Ex parte Sturt & Co., 13 L. R. Eq. 309; [and see now the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 6; which, although not specially mentioning equitable debts, includes them].

Breach of trust constitutes simple contract debt, unless the trustee has covenanted.

The claim of the cestui que trust is in general a simple contract debt, and therefore, until the Administration of Estates Act, 1833, making a person's whole real and personal estate liable to his simple contract debts, it was recoverable, not from the real, but only from the personal estate. But if the trustee sign the trust deed, and engage under his hand and seal, by words that amount to a covenant at law, to execute the trust, then the breach of trust becomes a specialty debt (a).

Retainer by personal representative of insolvent trustee.

25. If a [sole] trustee die insolvent and indebted to the trust estate, the personal representative of the trustee has a right of retainer in respect of the debt to the trust as against other creditors, and on the cestuis que trust requiring him to exercise such right of retainer, he is bound to do so (b). [But as the right to retain only exists when the person to sue and the person to pay are the same, there will be no such right of retainer if the trustee who has died indebted to the estate has left a co-trustee surviving him (c). And for the like reason, where an executor is cestui que trust of a debt, he cannot retain, because his trustee is the proper person to sue for the debt (d).]

Immaterial whether trustee was gainer or loser by the breach of trust.

26. In awarding compensation to the cestui que trust against the trustee, the Court pays no regard to the circumstance whether the trustee derived any actual advantage or not, but proceeds upon the principle that the trustee, who deviates from the line of his duty, is under an obligation to make good the loss to the cestui que trust (e); and if a trustee be guilty of misconduct, and a loss follows, the Court does not acquit him because the loss was more immediately caused by some event wholly beyond the control of the trustee, such as fire, lightning, or other accident (f), [or because of conduct in the nature of contributory negligence on the part of the cestui que trust (g)]. "Although," said Lord Cottenham, "a personal representative acting strictly within the line of his duty, and exercising reasonable care and diligence,

(a) See ante, pp. 228 et seq.

(b) Sander v. Heathfield, 19 L. R. Eq. 21; [Crowder v. Stewart, 16 Ch. D. 368; Re Faithfull, 57 L. T. N.S. 14; Re Sutton, 57 L. T. N.S. 14. But see ante, p. 1071, as to the right of the creditors to have the estate administered in bankruptcy.]

[(c) Re Dunning, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 900; 33 W. R. 760.]

[(d) Re Hayward, (1901) 1 Ch. 221.]

(e) See Dornford v. Dornford, 12 Ves. 129; Raphael v. Boehm, 13 Ves. 411; S. C., Ib. 590, 591; Moons v. De Bernales, 1 Russ. 305; Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 272; Lord Montford v. Lord Cadogan, 17 Ves. 489; Scurfield v. Howes, 3 B. C. C. 90; but see Attorney-General v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 57-59.

(f) See Caffrey v. Darby, 6 Ves. 496; Cocker v. Quayle, 1 R. & M. 535; Fyler v. Fyler, 3 Beav. 568; Kellaway v. Johnson, 5 Beav. 324; Munch v. Cockerell, 5 M. & Cr. 212; Gibbins v. Taylor, 22 Beav. 344.

[(g) See Magnus v. Queensland National Bank, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 466.]

will not be responsible for the failure or depreciation of the fund in which any part of the estate may be invested, or for the insolvency or misconduct of any person who may have possessed it; yet if that line of duty be not strictly pursued, and any part of the property be invested by such personal representative in funds, or upon securities, not authorised, or be put within the control of persons who ought not to be entrusted with it, and a loss be thereby eventually sustained, such personal representative will be liable to make it good, however unexpected the result, however little likely to arise from the course adopted, and however free such conduct may have been from any improper motive" (a).

Case of trustee bringing a profit as well as a loss to the trust.

27. And a trustee who is liable for a loss occasioned by a breach of trust in respect of one portion of a trust fund, cannot set off against his liability a gain which has accrued to another portion of the trust fund through another distinct and wholly unconnected breach of trust (b); and even in the same matter, where executors were directed to convert the testator's property and invest it in Government or real securities, and they allowed the tenant for life for eleven years to receive 10 per cent. on an Indian loan, and then invested the capital in the purchase of Bank Annuities, and the stock purchased was considerably more than could have been purchased with the same capital at the end of one year from the testator's death, they were not only made liable for the excess of interest paid to the tenant for life, but were disallowed their claim to set off against their liability the accidental advantage accruing to the trust from their laches in making the investment, and the depreciation of the funds during the interim (c).

Trustee not chargeable with imaginary values.

28. A defaulting trustee will not be charged with imaginary values (d); and, being regarded as a mere stakeholder, he will not be liable for more than he has actually received (e), except in cases of very supine negligence, or wilful default (f).

[Liable for value of new allotted shares.]

[29. Where a trustee neglected to get in certain gas shares which formed part of the trust estate, and new shares were allotted in respect of the old gas shares, and were taken up by the person who had been allowed to hold the original shares, it was held that the trustee must make good the value of the new

(a) Clough v. Bond, 3 M. & Cr. 496; [and see Re Brogden, 38 Ch. D. (C.A.) 546, 567].

(b) Wiles v. Gresham, 2 Drew. 258, see p. 271.

(c) Dimes v. Scott, 4 Russ. 195; and see Fletcher v. Green, 33 Beav. 426; [Re Barker, 77 L. T. N.S. 712; 46 W. R. 296].

(d) Palmer v. Jones, 1 Vern. 144.

(e) Harnard v. Webster, Sel. Ch. Ca. 53.

(f) Pybus v. Smith, 1 Ves. jun. 193, per Lord Thurlow; Palmer v. Jones, 1 Vern. 144, per Lord Nottingham.

shares, less the amount of calls paid upon them, for they were an accretion to and, as such, part of the trust (a). And where a cestui que trust, by means of an appointment which was a fraud upon the power under which it purported to be made, received the surrender value of a policy belonging to the trust, his estate, after his death, was held liable not merely for the sum so received, but for the sum which would have been received under the policy if it had been kept on foot (b). [Improper surrender of policy.]

30. Where trust money is invested on an improper security, the liability of the trustee to make good the loss occasioned to the trust estate by the improper investment is not conditional upon an option being given to him of taking to the security (c); and new trustees, to whom such security has been transferred by the trustee who made the investment, can realise under the power vested in them by the transfer, and hold him liable for the deficiency, and may be justified in so realising without notice to him. "The mode of enforcing this liability depends on the circumstances of the particular case. In some cases justice will be best done by realising the security, and making him pay the deficiency; but in some cases it may be right to make him pay at once the whole sum improperly invested, and let him take the benefit of the security" (d). In applying these principles, however, the provisions of sect. 9 of the Trustee Act, 1893 (e), already referred to (f), must be borne in mind. [Improper security.]

If trust money be advanced on an insufficient security, the Court will not, in an action instituted by one trustee against his co-trustees in the absence of the cestuis que trust, order the securities to be realised merely to ascertain the deficiency, for the cestuis que trust may prefer either to retain the securities or proceed to a foreclosure, and they cannot in their absence be deprived of their rights (g).]

31. Where co-trustees are jointly implicated in a breach of trust, the cestui que trust, though he obtains a decree against the trustees jointly, may have process of execution against any one Co-trustees guilty of breach of trust are severally responsible for the whole loss.

[(a) Briggs v. Massey, 50 L. J. N.S. Ch. 747; varied on app. 51 L. J. N.S. Ch. 447.]

[(b) Re Deane, 42 Ch. D. (C.A.) 9.]

[(c) Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. (C.A.) 351; and see Re Massingberd's Settlement, 63 L. T. N.S. 296, C.A., and ante, p. 391. Where the cestui que trust is an infant, it matters not whether the improper investment was authorised or unauthorised; Head v. Gould, (1898) 2 Ch. 250, per Kekewich, J.]

[(d) Per Fry, L.J., 42 Ch. D. (C.A.) 371.]

[(e) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53.]

[(f) Ante, p. 378.]

[(g) Butler v. Butler, 5 Ch. D. 554; 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 116; and see Jackson v. Dickinson, (1903) 1 Ch. 947, 951.]

of them separately (a); for as regards the remedy of the cestui que trust there is no primary liability, but each trustee is responsible for the entirety of the loss incurred (b). However, where the trustees are in pari delicto, the decree is usually enforced against the trustees equally (c); and in one case, where a trustee had refused to accept the office unless another should be named with him, and the trust money be divided between them, so that each might be responsible for a moiety only, and this was accordingly done, but the trust deed was drawn in the usual form as if they were joint trustees of the whole sum, it was held, upon the insolvency of one of the trustees, that the co-trustee should not be answerable for more than the moiety paid to himself, the division of the trust money having been, Sir J. Leach observed, "a term in the creation of the trust" (d).

[Acceptance of compromise from one trustee.]

[Where a plaintiff has recovered judgment for a specified sum in an action against trustees for breach of trust, the acceptance by him of a payment by one trustee, by way of compromise, does not operate as a release pro tanto of the others; and consequently the plaintiff may, notwithstanding such compromise, prove in the bankruptcy of another trustee for the full amount (e).

[Joint judgment against partners no merger of separate liability.]

32. Where trust property is misappropriated by a firm so that the partners are jointly and severally liable to make good the loss, and the firm is adjudicated bankrupt on a judgment debt recovered against the firm by the owner of the trust property, the several liability of the partners is not, solely by reason of the creditor having recovered a joint judgment, merged in such judgment so as to preclude proof by him against the separate estates (f).]

Liability for the costs of suit.

33. Where the defendants are involved in a breach of trust, the Court decrees costs against them jointly, and does not distinguish between the relative culpabilities of the defendants (g). But where the plaintiff, in pursuance of the decree, recovered all

(a) Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 197; Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 74, 75; Attorney-General v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 28, per Lord Cottenham; Taylor v. Tabrum, 6 Sim. 281; Fletcher v. Green, 33 Beav. 426; and see Ex parte Angle, Barn. 425; Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 278, 279; Ex parte Norris, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 280; [Ex parte Craven, W. N. 1885, p. 21].

(b) See Wilson v. Moore, 1 M. & K. 146; Lyse v. Kingdon, 1 Coll. 188; Richardson v. Jenkins, 1 Drew. 477; Alleyne v. Darcy, 4 Ir. Ch. Rep. 206; Jenkins v. Robertson, 1 Eq. Rep. 123; [Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 358].

(c) Rehden v. Wesley, 29 Beav. 215, per M.R.

(d) Birls v. Betty, 6 Mad. 90.

[(e) Edwards v. Hood Barrs, (1905) 1 Ch. 20.]

[(f) Re Davison, 13 Q. B. D. 50; and see Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 353.]

(g) Lawrence v. Bowle, 2 Ph. 140; 1 C. P. Coop. t. Cott. 241.

the costs from a single co-defendant, the latter obtained an order in the same cause upon a motion (which, however, was not opposed) for contribution by the other defendants (a).

Liability and contribution as between the trustees themselves, or between them and other parties.

34. Though, as respects the remedy of the cestui que trust, each trustee is individually responsible for the whole amount of the loss, whether he was the principal in the breach of trust, or was merely a consenting party, yet, as between the trustees themselves, the loss may be thrown upon the party on whom, as recipient of the money or otherwise, the responsibility ought in equity to fall, or, if he be dead, upon his estate (b); and this claim of the innocent trustee (though formerly only a simple contract debt as between himself and his co-trustee, even where the breach of trust as between them and the cestuis que trust was a specialty debt) is now in such cases by the effect of the Mercantile Law Amendment Act, 1856 (c), a specialty debt also (d). If all the trustees be equally guilty, then (unless the transaction was vitiated by not only constructive, but such actual fraud that the Court will hold itself entirely aloof (e),) in accordance with the established doctrine of equity (f), an apportionment or contribution amongst the trustees may be compelled, which under the old practice was not allowed in the same suit, but on a bill filed for the purpose (g). [In working out the right to

(a) Pitt v. Bonner, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 670.

[(b) Thus where trustees bought shares in breach of trust, and the surviving trustee (who had done his best to get rid of the shares) was made to pay a call, he could recover contribution from the representative of the deceased trustee: Jackson v. Dickinson, (1903) 1 Ch. 947.]

(c) 19 & 20 Vict. c. 97.

(d) Lockhart v. Reilly, 1 De G. & J. 464; Priestman v. Tyndall, 24 Beav. 244.

(e) See Lingard v. Bromley, 1 V. & B. 114; Tarleton v. Hornby, 1 Y. & C. 336; Attorney-General v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 28.

[(f) Bacon v. Camphausen, 58 L. T. N.S. 851, citing Dering v. Earl of Winchelsea, 1 Cox, 318, and Stirling v. Forester, 3 Bligh, 575.]

(g) Fletcher v. Green, (No. 2), 33 Beav. 513; Attorney-General v. Daugars, 33 Beav. 624, per Cur.; Coppard v. Allen, 2 De G. J. & S. 177, per L. J. Turner; Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 198, per Lord Thurlow; Lingard v. Bromley, 1 V. & B. 114; Perry v. Knott, 4 Beav. 180, per Lord Langdale; and see Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 3 M. & Cr. 122; Pitt v. Bonner, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 670; Ex parte Burton, 3 M. D. & De G. 373; Baynard v. Woolley, 20 Beav. 583; Jesse v. Bennett, 6 De G. M. & G. 609; and see Wilson v. Goodman, 4 Hare, 54; Paull v. Mortimer, W. N. 1873, p. 199; Keogh v. Keogh, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 179; [Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 Ch. D. 101; Wynne v. Tempest, (1897) 1 Ch. 110]. But see now the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 3, and the 11th, 48th, and following rules, and rule 55 of Order XVI. of the rules of the Supreme Court, 1883; [and Butler v. Butler, 14 Ch. D. 329; and Sawyer v. Sawyer, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) at p. 601, where an inquiry was directed how and in what proportions as between the trustees the sum to be paid to the plaintiffs should be borne and paid. The plaintiff in an action against a surviving trustee for breach of trust cannot be required to make the representatives of the co-trustee defendants, as they can, when necessary, be added under rule 11; Re Harrison, (1891) 2 Ch. 349. An action contribution, the co-trustees are, it seems, regarded by the Court as being in the position of co-sureties for the amount of the loss to the trust estate, and, accordingly, time under any statute of limitations will not begin to run, as between the co-trustees, until the extent of their liability has been ascertained in course of law, as, for example, by judgment against them in an action by the cestuis que trust (a).

[One of the trustees indirectly gaining by breach not primarily liable.]

35. If a breach of trust be committed from which one of the trustees derives indirectly a personal benefit, the other trustees who were parties to the breach have no equity against the trustee deriving the benefit to make him primarily liable for the breach (b).

[Nor an acting trustee.]

If one of the trustees has the active management of the trust, and, acting honestly though erroneously, commits a breach of trust which leads to loss, he is not bound to indemnify his co-trustees who were passive in the matter, and who, by doing nothing, neglected their duty more than the active trustee (c); but where the acting trustee is the solicitor for the trust, or derives any personal benefit from the breach of trust, he may be compelled to indemnify his co-trustees (d) against the loss occasioned to the trust estate (e), and even where no actual loss has been incurred, against the costs of an action caused by his for breach of trust cannot in general be maintained against the executors of one of two trustees who was not the last survivor, but either the representatives of the last survivor must be added as defendants, or new trustees must be appointed and added: Re Jordan, (1904) 1 Ch. 260. As Order XI., rule 1 does not mention an action for contribution, neither a writ nor a third party notice by one trustee for contribution against his co-trustee can be served out of the jurisdiction: M'Cheane v. Gyles, (1902) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 287; and see S. C., (1902) 1 Ch. 911, showing that a co-trustee out of the jurisdiction could not be added as co-defendant against the wish of the plaintiff].

[(a) Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415, where Stirling, J., referred to and applied to the case of co-trustees the principles of Dering v. Earl of Winchelsea (1 Cox. 318; 2 Bos. & P. 270) and Wolmershausen v. Gullick, (1893) 2 Ch. 514.]

[(b) Butler v. Butler, 5 Ch. D. 554; 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 116; and see Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685, 703.]

[(c) Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 390, where Fry, L.J., observed that in his judgment the Courts ought to be very jealous of raising an implied liability of the kind under consideration, "because if such existed it would act as an opiate upon the consciences of the trustees; so that instead of the cestuis que trust having the benefit of several acting trustees, each trustee would be looking to the other for a right of indemnity, and so neglect the performance of his duties. Such a doctrine would be against the policy of the Court in relation to trusts"; and see Bacon v. Camphausen, 58 L. T. N.S. 851; Blyth v. Fladgate, (1891) 1 Ch. 337, 365; Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415, 425; Head v. Gould, (1898) 2 Ch. 250.]

[(d) Lockhart v. Reilly, 25 L. J. N.S. Ch. 697; Thompson v. Finch, 8 De G. M. & G. 560; Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 390; Re Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536; Head v. Gould, (1898) 2 Ch. 250.]

[(e) Re Linsley, (1904) 2 Ch. 785.]

negligent conduct (a). An executor who has been decreed to make good the loss incurred by his wilful default in not getting in part of the assets from the trustee of a settlement who has been allowed to retain and misappropriate them, is not thereby precluded from subsequently recovering from the trustee the amount misappropriated by him (b).]

The gainer by the breach of trust is ultimately liable.

36. As between the trustees and a third person who has reaped the benefit of the breach of trust, though the trustees must make the disbursement in the first instance to the injured party, the loss will eventually be cast on the person who was the gainer by the breach of trust (c). But the circumstance that the breach of trust was committed at the instance of a cestui que trust will not per se impose upon him the obligation of indemnifying the trustee generally. Thus in Raby v. Ridehalgh (d), where the cestuis que trust, the tenants for life, had instigated the breach of trust, L.J. Turner asked: "Has the Court in a suit of this nature ever gone the length of ordering the cestuis que trust personally to recoup the trustee?" and the Court directed the tenants for life to account to the trustee only for the money which had been received by them under the breach of trust, and this has since been followed by other decisions (e).

The interest of parties committing a breach of trust may be impounded to compensate the trust, or indemnify the trustee.

37. If a cestui que trust, whether tenant for life, or other person having a partial interest, be responsible for having joined in a breach of trust, all the benefit that would have accrued to him, either directly or derivatively (f), either from that trust fund, or any other estate comprised in the same settlement (g), may be

[(a) Re Linsley, (1904) 2 Ch. 785.]

[(b) Scotney v. Lomer, 29 Ch. D. 535, vide ante, p. 883.]

(c) Trafford v. Boehm, 3 Atk. 440; Greenwood v. Wakeford, 1 Beav. 580; Booth v. Booth, 1 Beav. 125; Lord Montfort v. Lord Cadogan, 17 Ves. 485; 19 Ves. 635; S. C., 2 Mer. 3; Birks v. Micklethwait, 33 Beav. 409; and see Howe v. Earl of Dartmouth, 7 Ves. 150, 151; Jacob v. Lucas, 1 Beav. 436; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 Beav. 432; Tickner v. Old, 18 L. R. Eq. 422; Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 165, 363; Hobday v. Peters (No. 2), 28 Beav. 354; Fetherstone v. West, 6 Ir. R. Eq. 86; [and see Moxham v. Grant, (1900) 1 Q. B. (C.A.) 88, where directors, who had bonâ fide made a payment ultra vires to the shareholders, and were ordered to replace the money, were held entitled to be indemnified by the shareholders; and see Towers v. African Tug Company, (1904) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 558].

(d) 7 De G. M. & G. 108.

(e) Brown v. Maunsell, 5 Ir. Ch. Rep. 351; Bentley v. Robinson, 9 Ir. Ch. Rep. 479: and see Walsham v. Stainton, 1 H. & M. 337; [Butler v. Butler, 5 Ch. D. 554; 7 Ch. D. (C.A.) 116; Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685, 699, 705, 708; as to the effect in this respect of s. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1893, see post, p. 1181].

(f) Jacubs v. Rylance, 17 L. R. Eq. 341; [Doering v. Doering, 42 Ch. D. 203].

(g) Woodyatt v. Gresley, 8 Sim. 183; Ex parte Mitford, 1 B. C. C. 398; see Priddy v. Rose, 3 Mer. 105; Burridge v. Row, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 183, 583; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 Beav. 432, per Lord Langdale; Fuller v. Knight, 6 Beav. 205; M'Gachen v. Dew, 15 Beav. 84; Vaughton v. Noble, 30 Beav. 34.

stopped by the cestuis que trust, or other persons having a similar equity, as against him, his assignees in bankruptcy (a), or judgment creditors (b), or general creditors (c); and (except so far as the defence of purchase for value without notice may be applicable) against all who claim under him (d), until the amount impounded, with the accumulations thereon (e), has compensated the trust estate for the loss for which that cestui que trust is responsible. [And even an estate legally vested in the wrongdoer by the settlement (being an instrument inter vivos) may, by virtue of an implied contract, be made available for repairing the breach of trust (f); but the doctrine cannot be extended to a legal devisee, as there no contract can be implied, and in the absence of contract a Court of Equity has no control over the estate (g).] And the rule was held to apply to a feme covert entitled to her separate use [with no restraint on anticipation, where she had full knowledge of all the circumstances, and acted independently in the transactions which constituted the breach of trust, but she was not held liable merely because she acquiesced in or approved of the breach of trust, without taking part in it (h); and, previously to the enactment to be presently referred to (i), she could not be made liable] where her power of anticipation was restrained (j).

[Cestui que trust in default under covenant.]

[On an analogous principle, where a cestui que trust is in default under a covenant by him in the trust instrument for payment of money, the trustees are entitled as against him to retain the trust property until the default is made good (k), and it would seem that this right exists in favour of trustees of a voluntary settlement which has been so completed as to be enforceable by the Court (l).

[Where co-trustee is also a cestui que trust.]

38. Where a trustee who is a party to a breach of trust, is also

(a) Ex parte Turpin, 1 D. & C. 120; Ex parte Smith, 1 Deac. 143; Ex parte King, 2 M. & A. 410; Prime v. Savell, W. N. 1867, p. 227; Jacubs v. Rylance, 17 L. R. Eq. 341; see Smith v. Smith, 1 Y. & C. 338; Burridge v. Row, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 183, 583; [Corr v. Corr, 3 L. R. Ir. 435; and see Re Carew, (1896) 1 Ch. 527, 535; S. C., 2 Ch. (C.A.) 311].

(b) Kilworth v. Mountcashell, 15 Ir. Ch. Rep. 565.

(c) Williams v. Allen (No. 2), 32 Beav. 650.

(d) Woodyatt v. Gresley, 8 Sim. 180; Priddy v. Rose, 3 Mer. 86; Cole v. Muddle, 10 Hare, 186; [Doering v. Doering, 42 Ch. D. 203;] and see Morris v. Livie, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 380; [Re Hervey, 61 L. T. N.S. 429].

(e) Ex parte King, 2 M. & A. 410.

[(f) Woodyatt v. Gresley, 8 Sim. 180.]

[(g) Egbert v. Butter, 21 Beav. 560; Fox v. Buckley, 3 Ch. D. (C.A.) 508; and see Re Brown, 32 Ch. D. 597; Ex parte Barff, De Gex, 613.]

[(h) Sawyer v. Sawyer, 28 Ch. D. (C.A.) 595; Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 92; and see ante, pp. 985, 986.]

[(i) See post, p. 1181.]

(j) See ante, pp. 985 et seq., 1017; [and Hale v. Sheldrake, 60 L. T. N.S. 291].

[(k) Re Weston, (1900) 2 Ch. 164.]

[(l) Ibid.]

a beneficiary, the whole of his beneficial interest (a), whether acquired before or after the breach of trust was committed, must, it would seem, as between himself and his co-trustee who is in pari delicto, be applied in making good the loss, and this would at all events appear to be so where such trustee and beneficiary has, as between himself and his co-trustee, derived an exclusive benefit from the breach of trust (b).

39. Now by the Trustee Act, 1893 (c), sect. 45, it is enacted as follows :— [Trustee Act, 1893, sect. 45.]

"(1) Where a trustee commits a breach of trust at the instigation or request or with the consent in writing of a beneficiary, the High Court may, if it thinks fit, and notwithstanding that the beneficiary may be a married woman entitled for her separate use and restrained from anticipation (d), make such order as to the Court seems just, for impounding all or any part of the interest of the beneficiary in the trust estate by way of indemnity to the trustee or person claiming through him." The section applies to breaches of trust committed as well before as after the passing of the Act, but not so as to prejudice any question in an action or other proceeding which was pending on 24th December, 1888, and is pending at the commencement of the Act.

[Complicity in breach of trust necessary to bring case within the section.]

In order to bring a case within the section, there must be complicity on the part of the cestui que trust in a breach of trust. "The section," as was said by Lindley, L.J., "ought not to be construed as if the word 'investment' had been inserted instead of 'breach of trust'" and, "in order to bring a case within this section, the cestui que trust must instigate, or request, or consent in writing to some act or omission, which is itself a breach of trust, and

[(a) See, however, Birks v. Micklethwait, 33 Beav. 409 ; Prime v. Savell, W. N. 1867, p. 227, where the lien of the co-trustee appears to have been limited to the amount of the contribution.]

[(b) Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685. The decision in this case seems to involve the principle that a trustee who is party to a breach of trust cannot, as between himself and his co-trustee, take anything out of the trust fund until he has repaired his breach of trust. This principle, however, is not in terms enunciated. In his judgment (at p. 707) Kay, L.J., after an examination of all the authorities, said : "On the whole, I think the weight of authority is in favour of holding that a trustee, who, being also a cestui que trust, has received, as between himself and his co-trustee, an exclusive benefit by the breach of trust, must indemnify his co-trustee to the extent of his interest in the trust fund, and not merely to the extent of the benefit which he has received. I think that the plaintiff must be treated as having received such an exclusive benefit."] not some act or omission, which only becomes a breach of trust by reason of want of care on the part of the trustees" (a); and in the same case it was said by Davey, L.J., that "it is not, of course, necessary that the beneficiary should know the investment" which is the subject of complaint "to be in law a breach of trust; but he must, I think, know the facts which constitute the breach of trust" (b). Thus where the tenant for life knew the property on mortgage of which the trustees were making an investment, but was not informed of the valuations which had been made, and was not, so far as appeared, acquainted with the rental value, it was held that the case did not fall within the section (c).

[(c) 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, replacing s. 6 of the Trustee Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 59).]

[(d) Where the feme is only entitled in reversion, with a general power of appointment by will, the enactment is not applicable : Willett v. Findlay, 29 L. R. Ir. 156, 497.]

[Complicity must be actual, not constructive only.]

It is further to be observed that the section does not make the cestui que trust responsible for a breach of trust simply because he had actual or constructive notice of it, and consequently a cestui que trust cannot be brought within the section by merely showing that he had constructive notice through his solicitor of facts constituting or evidencing the breach of trust (d).

[Consent in writing.]

It has been held that the words "in writing," in the commencement of the section, refer only to the word "consent," and not to the words "instigation" or "request," and consequently, in order that the provisions of the section may be available, it is not necessary to prove an instigation or request in writing (e).

[Right of trustee prevails over subsequent assignment by cestui que trust.]

The effect of the section is not to curtail the previously existing rights and remedies of trustees, or to alter the law, except by giving greater power to the Court. The discretion given to the Court is judicial, and if, prior to the passing of the Act, the Court would, in a proper case, enforce the equity of the trustee, and impound the interest of a beneficiary in the hands of an assignee, then the Court would be bound to do the same in a similar case after the Act (f). Accordingly, the right of the trustee to have the interest of the cestui que trust impounded will prevail as against an innocent assignee for value of the

[(a) Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231, 265.]

[(b) S. C., (1894) 1 Ch. 274. It might perhaps in some cases be difficult to define precisely the facts which constitute the breach of trust, but it is apprehended that a good test would be whether facts were known to the cestui que trust which would be sufficient to bring home to the mind of a man of ordinary intelligence the fact that the trustee was being invited to depart from the line of his duty.]

[(c) Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231; and see Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 93, per North, J.; S. C., (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 199; Bolton v. Curre, (1895) 1 Ch. 544.]

[(d) Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231, 266, 267.]

[(e) Griffith v. Hughes, (1892) 3 Ch. 105; Re Somerset, (1894) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 231, 266; Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 92.]

[(f) Bolton v. Curre, (1895) 1 Ch. 544, 549, per Romer, J.; Fletcher v. Collis, (1905) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 24.]

interest, claiming under an assignment made subsequently to the commission of the breach of trust (a), or as against a trustee in bankruptcy (b).

[Case of married woman restrained from anticipation.]

In applying the section to the case of a married woman who is restrained from anticipation, the Court, it is apprehended, will in the first place consider whether, having regard to all the facts of the case, the discretion ought to be exercised against the feme, and having arrived at a conclusion in the affirmative, will disregard the existence of the restraint altogether. Where the trustee, without dishonesty, has committed a breach of trust for the benefit of other persons, standing on a footing of equality with himself as regards knowledge of the facts which constitute the breach of trust, the Court leans towards exercising the power in favour of the trustee (c); but, on the other hand, it would seem that the Court will not forget (though the trustee may have forgotten) that the restraint on anticipation is designed for the special protection of the feme, and that the existence of it imposes a special obligation on the trustee towards her (d). In Griffith v. Hughes (e) the trustee, at the verbal request of a married woman, a tenant for life restrained from anticipation, who was being pressed by her creditors, advanced 80*l.* out of the trust funds to her on a promissory note signed by her, her husband, and his brother, and it was held that the trustee, having paid the 80*l.* into Court, would be entitled to resort by way of indemnity to the income payable to the feme. In two other cases Romer, J., declined to exercise the discretion adversely to the feme, grounding his decision in the one case mainly on the deliberate character of the breach of trust on the part of the trustee (f), and in the other on the want of complicity on the part of the feme (g), and a similar course on the last mentioned ground was adopted by North, J. (h).

[Extent of liability of cestui que trust under the section.]

It was said in a recent case (i) by Kay, L.J., that the section "does not define the extent of the liability of a concurring beneficiary," but "is rather addressed to describe the cases in which the Court may, if it shall think fit, impound all or any part of the interest of the beneficiary by way of indemnity to the trustee, and

[(a) Bolton v. Curre, (1895) 1 Ch. 544.]

[(b) Fletcher v. Collis, (1905) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 24.]

[(c) See Griffith v. Hughes, (1892) 3 Ch. 105.]

[(d) See Bolton v. Curre, sup.; Ricketts v. Ricketts, 64 L. T. N.S. 263.]

[(e) (1892) 3 Ch. 105.]

[(f) Ricketts v. Ricketts, 64 L. T. N.S. 263.]

[(g) Bolton v. Curre, (1895) 1 Ch. 544.]

[(h) Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 93.]

[(i) Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685, 707; and see Mara v. Browne, (1895) 2 Ch. 69, 92, 93.]

also to provide that consent of a beneficiary for this purpose must be given in writing." In the same case Lindley, L.J., intimated that a remainderman who induced the trustees to commit a breach of trust for the benefit of the tenant for life, perhaps his own father or mother, and personally derived no benefit from the breach of trust, could not resist the claim of the trustees to have the loss made good out of his interest. His lordship added that the section seemed to be based on that view of the law, and that if the section had been applicable, it would have been just to impound the whole of the beneficial interest of the plaintiff, a co-trustee as well as a beneficiary, who had concurred in a breach of trust (a).

[Procedure.] At the trial of an action against a tenant for life and executors of deceased trustees in respect of a breach of trust, leave was given to the executors, without going into evidence, to apply in chambers with reference to enforcing their right to indemnity against the tenant for life, under sect. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1893, on the ground, as alleged in their defence, that the breach of trust had been committed at her instigation (b).]

Bankruptcy of the trustee.

40. If the trustee become bankrupt, the loss may be proved against his estate (c), and without proceeding in equity to establish the breach of trust (d). If interest would have been decreed in equity against the trustee himself, it will constitute part of the debt in the proof against his estate in the hands of his trustee in bankruptcy (e), and if the breach of trust was a sale of stock, the cestui que trust may, at his option, prove for the proceeds of the sale, or for the value of the stock at the date of the bankruptcy (f), and if a debtor to the trust be bankrupt, and entitled himself to a reversionary interest in the debt, the trustee of the settlement may nevertheless prove for the whole debt, without any set-off for the reversionary interest, for if such a set-off were allowed it would diminish what the tenants for life would have to receive (g). [If the breach of trust

[(a) Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685, 700.]

[(b) Re Holt, (1897) 2 Ch. 525; Seton, 6th ed. pp. 1125, 1147, 1153; and see Molyneux v. Fletcher, (1898) 1 Q. B. 648, 656.]

(c) Keble v. Thompson, 3 B. C. C. 112; Moons v. De Bernales, 1 Russ. 301; Dornford v. Dornford, 12 Ves. 127; Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 197; Bick v. Motley, 2 M. & K. 312; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 Beav. 427; [Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 37].

(d) Ex parte Norris, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 280.

(e) Dornford v. Dornford, 12 Ves. 127; Bick v. Motley, 2 M. & K. 312; Moons v. De Bernales, 1 Russ. 301.

(f) Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 197; Ex parte Gurner, 1 M. D. & De G. 497; and see Ex parte Moody, 2 Rose, 413; Ex parte Stuteley, 1 M. D. & De G. 643.

(g) Ex parte Stone, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 914.

was an improper investment, and the cestui que trust has adopted the investment by entering into a compromise in respect to it, the proof must be for the damages which the trust estate has sustained by reason of the improper investment, namely, the difference between the total sum invested and the assessed value of the amount received under the compromise (a).] And if a trustee prove for the whole debt, he may still retain any beneficial interest of the bankrupt in the trust estate by way of lien or set-off in further discharge of the debt (b), [for the trustee cannot be allowed by proving in bankruptcy to prejudice the cestuis que trust (c).] But if an executor, who represents the absolute ownership of the personal estate, and has therefore an absolute power over the debts due to his testator, prove for the whole debt, it is deemed a waiver of any lien which the executor might otherwise have had upon the bankrupt's interest in such personal estate (d); and if the bankrupt, in whose hands the trust fund was, be one of the trustees, and indebted to the trust estate, and also have a present beneficial interest in the trust, proof cannot be made for the whole amount, but only for the balance, after setting off the bankrupt's beneficial interest against the debt due from him (e). [And where a defaulting trustee, who is also a beneficiary, has become bankrupt, and a composition has been paid in respect of the amount misappropriated by him, and the debt due from him has therefore gone, it is not competent for the existing trustees to retain his share to make good the loss to the estate (f).

[Where one trustee, debtor to the estate, a bankrupt, but balance due to both trustees on the accounts.]

41. If one of two trustees becomes bankrupt and is a debtor to the trust estate, and a balance is found due to the two trustees in taking their accounts, the balance will not be set off against the debt of the bankrupt trustee to the prejudice of the solvent trustee, but an account will be directed, so as to ascertain how much of the balance is due to the solvent trustee and how much to the bankrupt trustee, and the set-off will be confined to the latter amount (g).]

Trustee a partner and lending the trust money to the firm with notice.

42. If the trustee was one of a bankrupt firm, to which the trust money had been lent, proof may be made either against the joint estate of the firm, or the separate estate of the bankrupt

[(a) Re Lake, (1903) 1 K. B. 439.]

(b) Ex parte Dicken, Buck, 115.

[(c) Per Lord Chelmsford, L.C., Stammers v. Elliott, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 200.]

(d) Stammers v. Elliott, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 195.

(e) Ex parte Turner, 2 De G. M. & G. 927; Ex parte Bishop, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 718.

[(f) Re Sewell, (1909) 1 Ch. 806.]

[(g) M'Ewan v. Crombie, 25 Ch. D. 175; and see ante, p. 788.]

trustee, and of any other of the partners who may have constituted themselves trustees or taken an active part in the breach of trust (a); but not [in general] against both the joint and separate estates (b). [Where, however, the trust fund was handed by the trustee to his firm for investment, and they misappropriated the fund and became bankrupt, so that there were distinct liabilities, namely, the liability of the firm arising out of the contract entered into or implied when the money was handed to them for investment, and the separate liability of the trustee arising out of the contract entered into or implied when he accepted the trusts, it was held that under Sched. II., Rule 18 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, proof might be made against the joint estate of the firm as well as the separate estate of the defaulting trustee (c).] If the bankrupt has laid out the trust money on a mortgage, the cestui que trust is not put to his election whether he will prove for the debt and abandon the mortgage, or take the mortgage and abandon the debt, but may prove for the debt, and have the benefit of the mortgage also (d); and if the trust money had been invested, but improperly, the cestui que trust has a right to elect to prove for the money and interest, or for the value of the securities and profits (e).

Trustee not a partner and lending money to the firm or the partners.

43. If the trustee was not one of the firm, but he lent the trust fund to the bankrupt firm, proof can be made as for an ordinary debt against the joint estate. If the trustee lent the money, not to the firm, but to one of the members of the firm, and the partners had no notice of the source from which it came, proof can only be made against the separate estate of the partner who received, though the money may, in fact, have been applied to partnership purposes (f). But if the other partners had notice of the source of the money, proof can be made against the joint estate of the firm (g), but not, it seems, against the separate estate of each partner (h), unless the firm by their

(a) Ex parte Heaton, Buck, 386; Ex parte Watson, 2 V. & B. 414; Smith v. Jameson, 5 T. R. 601; Ex parte Bolland, 1 Mont. & Mac. 315; Ex parte Poulson, De Gex, 79; Ex parte Barnewall, 6 De G. M. & G. 801.

(b) Ex parte Barnewall, 6 De G. M. & G. 795.

[(c) Re Parkers, 19 Q. B. D. 84.]

(d) Ex parte Biddulph, 3 De G. & Sm. 587; Ex parte Geaves, 8 De G. M. & G. 291; 25 L. J. N.S. Bank. 53.

(e) Re Montefiore, 9 Jur. 562.

(f) Ex parte Apsey, 3 B. C. C. 265; Ex parte Wheatley, Cooke's Bankrupt Law, 534, 8th ed.

(g) Ex parte Peele, 6 Ves. 603; Ex parte Clowes, 2 B. C. C. 595; and see Ex parte Burton, 3 M. D. & De G. 364; Ex parte Bolland, 1 Mont. & Mac. 315.

(h) Ex parte Beilby, 1 Gl. & J. 167; and see Ex parte Burton, 3 M. D. & De G. 364; Ex parte Woodin, 3 M. D. & De G. 399; [and the provisions of the Partnership Act, 1890, referred to ante, p. 1155].

dealings with the cestuis que trust constituted themselves trustees directly for them (a). Nor can proof be made, on the mere ground of notice, for the profits made by the use of the money; for the partners in the firm are regarded not as actual but only as constructive trustees, that is, having notice of the trust, they are accountable for the money, but not being clothed with any special duty, they do not come within the rule that "a trustee shall not profit by his trust" (b).

Apportionment between tenant for life and remaindermen of amount recovered from bankrupt trustee.

44. It was held by Lord Romilly, M.R., that where a trustee had proved against a bankrupt's estate for 6,985*l.* 19s. 7d. principal money made away with by the bankrupt, and for 2,744*l.* 9s. 11d. interest (which should have been paid to the tenant for life), making together a sum total of 9,730*l.* 9s. 6d., all dividends received under the bankruptcy should first make up the lost capital, and that the tenant for life had no lien for his lost income, but was entitled only to the interest of the capital sums received by way of dividend under the bankruptcy (c). The natural course would have been to apportion the fund as between the tenant for life and remaindermen according to their respective losses, as otherwise it would work occasionally a great hardship. Suppose, for instance, the tenant for life, though entitled for the last ten years, had received nothing, and then died before the dividend was paid. The whole would go to the remainderman, and the executor of the tenant for life would receive nothing, though a large part of the dividend was recovered in respect of the life estate (d).

Since these remarks were written, the case has in effect been overruled. In Cox v. Cox (e), A. covenanted on his marriage that his executors, within three months after his death, should pay to the trustees a sum of 6,000*l.* with interest, from his death, at 4 per cent., to be held in trust for his widow for life, with remainder to the children. A. died in 1862, and his estate was administered by the Court. The assets were insufficient to satisfy the principal and interest, and the question was, how the amount recovered was to be dealt with as between the tenant for life and the remainderman, and V. C. Sir W. James said: "The true principle in all these cases is, that neither the tenant for life nor the remainderman is to gain an advantage over the other, neither is to suffer more damage in proportion to his

(a) Ex parte Woodin, 3 M. D. & De G. 399.

(b) Stroud v. Gwyer, 28 Beav. 130, see 141; and see Ex parte Burton, 3 M. D. & De G. 364.

(c) Re Grabowski's Settlement, 6 L. R. Eq. 12.

(d) See Innes v. Mitchell, 1 Ph. 710, and Turner v. Newport, 2 Ph. 14, which were not cited to M.R.

(e) 8 L. R. Eq. 343; and see Re Tinkler's Estate, 20 L. R. Eq. 456.

estate and interest than the other suffers from the default of the obligor. Assuming that 5,500*l.* is the sum that will be recovered, a calculation must be made back, What principal, if invested on the day of the obligor's death (the date from which the interest was to run) at 4 per cent. (a), would amount with interest to the sum so recovered? Interest at 4 per cent. on this principal, or in other words the difference between the principal and the amount, will then go to the tenant for life, and the rest must be treated as principal."

[Of proceeds of sale of mortgaged property.]

[In cases of this description two different modes of apportionment have been adopted by different judges. In the case of Re Moore, where money had been properly invested upon mortgage, but the interest fell into arrear, the mortgaged property was ultimately realised, and the proceeds being insufficient to pay the principal and interest, it was held that the proceeds were apportionable between capital and income in the ratios of the capital sum originally invested and the actual arrears of simple interest on the mortgage (b). The principle of this decision has been subsequently followed (c); and has recently been approved by the Court of Appeal (d). On the other hand, in the case of Re Foster (e), it was held that the proceeds of realisation of the mortgaged property ought to be added to the amount of the moneys received by the tenant for life, and that this aggregate fund ought to be divided between the tenant for life and remainderman in proportion to the amounts which they ought to have received if the security had been sufficient—the tenant for life giving credit for what he had actually received; and in a recent case where the loss arose in respect of an unauthorised investment made in breach of trust, it was held that the case must be treated on the footing that there ought now to be a specified sum of consuls in settlement, and accordingly that the tenant for life was entitled to such a proportion of the amount realised by the unauthorised investment added to the income he received therefrom during its continuance, as the dividends he would have received from the authorised investment during the same period bore to the capital value of the authorised investment added to those dividends, the tenant for life being liable to bring

[(a) As to the rate of interest, see ante, p. 397.]

[(b) Re Moore, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 432, per Pearson, J.]

[(c) See Re Barker, W.N. (1897) 154, per Stirling, J.; Lyon v. Mitchell, W.N. (1899) 27, per North, J.; Re Alston, (1901) 2 Ch. 584, per Kekewich, J.; Stewart v. Kingsale, (1902) 1 I. R. 496, per M. R. of Ireland.]

[(d) Re Atkinson, (1904) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 160.]

[(e) 45 Ch. D. 629, per Kay, J.]

into account all income he received from the unauthorised investment, although not liable to refund (a). In a subsequent case a question arose as to the date from which the account should be taken. The full income had been paid to the deceased tenant for life, although it was then known that the security was insufficient, and it was held that the account ought to be taken from the date when it was first ascertained that the security was insufficient, to the date of realisation, the result being that the estate of the deceased tenant for life would not get anything, inasmuch as the apportioned sum would be less than the amount she had received (b).

Where a will contained a provision that no property not actually producing income should entitle any party to the receipt of income, it was held that, as this clause was intended for the protection of the remaindermen, and not to take from the tenant for life that which according to the rules of the Court was income, a sum arising from the realisation of a security for a debt, in respect of which no interest had been paid, and which sum was less than the capital amount of the debt, ought to be apportioned between capital and income in the proportions of what was due in respect of capital and what was due in respect of income (c).]

How far trust debt barred by the bankrupt's certificate.

45. The original trust debt was formerly barred by the certificate of the bankrupt, though no proof was made, and the cestui que trust did not know of the misapplication of the trust fund (d). But it was the duty of the trustee to see that some person proved on behalf of the trust, and if he did not, he was liable in equity for this neglect of duty: and, though he had obtained his certificate, he was held responsible personally for the amount that might have been received by way of dividend (e). And a demand in respect of a breach of trust was held to be equally barred by the trustee's discharge under the Insolvent Acts, provided the liability was duly mentioned in the schedule (f).

Proof where one of several trustees is bankrupt.

46. If the bankrupt was one of two co-trustees, who were jointly implicated in a breach of trust, then proof may be made against the bankrupt's estate for the whole money lost, though he was not the party benefited by the breach of trust (g); and though the other trustee be living and solvent (h); or, at the same time that

[(a) Re Bird, (1901) 1 Ch. 916.]

[(b) Re Phillimore, (1903) 1 Ch. 942.]

[(c) Re Hubbuck, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 754; Re Lewis, (1907) 2 Ch. 296; for form of order see Seton, 6th ed. p. 1686.]

(d) Ex parte Holt, 1 Deac. 248.

(e) Orrett v. Corser, 21 Beav. 52; and see Woodhouse v. Woodhouse, 8 L. R. Eq. 521.

(f) Thompson v. Finch, 22 Beav. 316; on appeal, 8 De G. M. & G. 560.

(g) Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 197.

(h) Ex parte Beilby, 1 Gl. & J. 167.

proof is made against the estate of one who is a bankrupt, legal proceedings may be taken against the solvent trustee, for proof under a bankruptcy is not payment (a). And the proof against the bankrupt will not be precluded by a bond given not to sue the other trustee, reserving the right against all other parties (b), though [an absolute or unqualified] release to the other trustee, being an extinguishment of the debt, would prevent any subsequent proof (c).

Contribution.

47. Where the whole debt is proved against the estate of the bankrupt trustee, the trustee in bankruptcy may afterwards take proceedings, and compel contribution from the other trustee (d), even where the bankrupt trustee himself could not, from his fraudulent conduct, have obtained such relief (e).

Co-trustees bankrupts.

48. So if two co-trustees be bankrupts, proof may be made against the estate of each (f); but of course more than 20*s.* in the pound cannot be received in the whole.

Trust money authorised to be employed in trade.

49. Where a testator has authorised the employment of his estate in trade, if the firm in which it was employed become bankrupt, proof cannot be made against the estate of the bankrupts in respect of the money so employed; for it is not a debt of the firm, but merely capital brought into it: but, when the joint creditors have been satisfied, the trustee member of the firm may, as one of the partners, establish a balance, if there be one, against the separate estates of the co-partners (g).

32 & 33 Vict. c. 71.

50. Under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (h), a bankrupt after, and notwithstanding his order of discharge, remained liable to his cestui que trust for a breach of trust. [The enactment was held to apply to the breach of a constructive trust as well as to that of an express trust (i), and the liability of a defaulting trustee to contribute, where his co-trustee had made good a breach of trust, was a "liability incurred by means of a breach of trust" within the Act, from which the bankrupt trustee was not released by the discharge (j).

(a) Ex parte King, 1 Deac. 164, &c.

(b) Ex parte King, 1 Deac. 164, &c.

(c) See Blackwood v. Borrowes, 2 Conn. & Laws. 479; [Re E. W. A., (1901) 2 K. B. 642; distinguishing Ex parte Good, 5 Ch. D. 46].

(d) See Ex parte Shakeshaft, 3 B. C. C. 197; Lingard v. Bromley, 1 V. & B. 114; [Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 685; Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415].

(e) See Muckleston v. Brown, 6 Ves. 68; Joy v. Campbell, 1 Sch. & Lef. 335, 339; Ottley v. Browne, 1 B. & B. 360.

(f) Keble v. Thompson, 3 B. C. C. 112; Ex parte Poulson, De Gex, 79.

(g) Scott v. Izon, 34 Beav. 434; and see M'Niellie v. Acton, 2 Eq. Rep. 21.

(h) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 71, s. 49.

[(i) Emma Silver Mining Company v. Grant, 17 Ch. D. 122.]

[(j) Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 Ch. D. 100.]

But now under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (a), the liability of a bankrupt to his cestui que trust continues after his discharge only in cases where the breach of trust is fraudulent. Costs which a trustee is ordered to pay in an action relating to a fraudulent breach of trust by him, though consequential on his breach of trust, are not "a debt or liability incurred by means of any fraudulent breach of trust" within the meaning of sect. 30, sub-sect. 1 of the Act of 1883 (b). [46 & 47 Vict. c. 52.]

In Cobham v. Dalton (c), it was held under the Act of 1869 (d), that as a breach of trust gives rise to a debt which may be proved for in the bankruptcy of the trustee, a defaulting trustee was protected against all proceedings for the breach of trust until after his discharge, but it has recently been observed in the Court of Appeal that, in arriving at this conclusion, the Court overlooked the punitive character of sect. 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (e), and it was held, under the corresponding provision of the Act of 1883 (f), that the Court has jurisdiction to order a writ of attachment to issue against a defaulting trustee notwithstanding his bankruptcy (g).]

Imprisonment under Debtors Act, 1869.

51. The Debtors Act, 1869 (h), abolishes arrest and imprisonment for debt, but excepts, amongst other things, default by a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity (i), and ordered to pay by a Court of Equity (j) any sum in his possession or under his control. [A trustee who has once had trust funds in his possession is treated by a Court of Equity as still having

[(a) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 30.]

[(b) Re Greer, (1895) 2 Ch. 217. Mere negligence by a trustee by reason whereof his co-trustee is enabled to appropriate trust money is not a fraudulent breach of trust; Re Smith, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1, see infra.]

[(c) 10 L. R. Ch. App. 655; and see Emma Silver Mining Company v. Grant, 17 Ch. D. 122; Cooper v. Prichard, 11 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 351; Nowell v. Nowell, W. N. 1876, p. 248.]

[(d) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 71, s. 12.]

[(e) See infra.]

[(f) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, s. 9.]

[(g) Re Smith, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

(h) 32 & 33 Vict. c. 62, s. 4.

[(i) The term "person acting in a fiduciary capacity" means a person standing in a fiduciary relation towards any other person, whether such other person is, or is not, the plaintiff or one of the plaintiffs in the action in which the order for payment has been made; Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338. An auctioneer is within the term as to the proceeds of the sale of property received by him; Crowther v. Elgood, 34 Ch. D. (C.A.) 691; and so is the London agent of a country solicitor who has been ordered to pay money into court in an action against him for an account of his agency; Lichfield v. Jones, 36 Ch. D. 530 (and see Re Hickey, 35 W. R. 53); and a receiver, notwithstanding he has been discharged; Re Gent, 40 Ch. D. 196; but the term is not applicable to the case of a partner who receives assets of the firm on account of himself and his co-partners; Piddocke v. Burt, (1894) 1 Ch. 343.]

[(j) Under s. 76 of the Judicature Act, 1873, the words "the High Court of Justice" should be read in substitution for the words "a Court of Equity"; Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338.]

them in his possession until he has properly discharged himself, and it is not necessary, to bring a trustee within the exception, that he should have the trust funds in his actual possession, or under his control, at the time when the order is made. Thus if an order be made upon a trustee to repay a sum which he had previously misappropriated and spent, he may be attached for neglecting to obey the order (a), and it makes no difference that the trustee has ceased to be a trustee in the interval between the commission of the wrongful act and the making of the order for payment (b). An executor, who is a debtor to his testator's estate, is deemed in equity to have paid the debt to himself as executor, and to have the money in his possession in a fiduciary character as assets; and where an order for payment is made against him in an administration action, he is liable to attachment for disobedience; but the Court in its discretion will not make an order for attachment against him if his conduct is free from all moral blame (c). So where two trustees, A. and B., received a sum of money and placed it in a bank to their joint account, but made payable to the cheque of A. alone, who drew it out and misapplied it, and thereupon B. was ordered in a suit to make it good, it was held that B. on non-payment was liable to be attached and sent to prison (d). And a debtor who has admitted that a sum of money due from him is in his hands, and has submitted to an order directing that he holds such sum upon certain trusts, is liable to attachment (e); and in the case of an administratrix, the fact that she is a married woman will not protect her, the order against her being personal in respect of her office (f). But it must be shown that the money has been in the trustee's possession or under his control, and therefore] a trustee who had been ordered to pay a sum of money which he had neglected only in breach of his duty to recover, was held not to fall within the exception, and could not therefore be arrested and imprisoned (g); [and where an order directed payment of a sum composed of principal and interest, not distinguished, no attachment could be issued, because so much as represented interest could not be said to have been in the possession or under the control of the

[(a) Middleton v. Chichester, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 152; Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338; Re Knowles, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 685; 48 L. T. N.S. 760; Re Smith, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

[(b) Re Strong, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 342.]

[(c) Re Bourne, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 697.]

[(d) Evans v. Bear, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 76.]

[(e) Preston v. Etherington, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 104.]

[(f) Re Turnbull, (1900) 1 Ch. 180.]

(g) Ferguson v. Ferguson, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 661.

trustee (a); and for the like reason an attachment never goes in respect of costs given against a trustee (b); and there must be evidence showing that the money has been actually received, a mere constructive receipt not being sufficient (c); and so where the order was for payment of the existing market value of lands improperly sold, as the difference between such value and the amount produced by the sale never came to the trustee's hands (d).

[Trustee becoming bankrupt.]

Where a trustee disobeyed an order to pay money into Court and was afterwards bankrupt, it was held that sect. 9 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, providing that, after the making of a receiving order, no creditor shall have any remedy against the person or property of the debtor, applied so as to suspend the jurisdiction of the Court to order attachment to issue against him (e); but in a more recent case Chitty, J., declined to follow this decision, and held that, the proceeding being not merely civil, but of a punitive and disciplinary character, the Bankruptcy Act had not taken away the jurisdiction (f); and this view has since been upheld by the Court of Appeal in the case already referred to (g).

[Release of debtor.]

The jurisdiction being punitive, there cannot be a second punishment for the same offence, and therefore if the debtor is by mistake released before the expiration of the year, a second order for attachment for the same default cannot be made, though perhaps an order for re-arrest might be made under the original order for attachment (h).

[Form of judgment.]

A judgment that the plaintiff "do recover" from the defendant a sum of money, and not in the usual form for payment of the money to the plaintiff by the defendant, cannot be followed up by the usual four-day order fixing a time for payment (i).

[Service on debtor.]

A writ of attachment against a trustee, for disobedience to an order directing him to pay money into Court, will not be granted unless the order has been personally served upon him, or it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that he is evading service (j).

[(a) Re Hickey, 55 L. T. N.S. 588; 35 W. R. 53; and see Seton, 6th ed. pp. 200, 441.]

[(b) Re Greer, (1895) 2 Ch. 217, 222, per Chitty, J.]

[(c) Re Fewster, (1901) 1 Ch. 447, where a master's certificate founded on an affidavit by defendants setting forth an account of the personal estate come to their hands, &c., "or to the hands of any person or persons by their order, &c.," was held insufficient; and see Re Wilkins, W.N. (1901) 202.]

[(d) Re Walker, 38 W. R. 766; 60 L. J. N.S. Ch. 25; 63 L. T. N.S. 237; and see Cronin v. Twinberrow, W. N. 1887, p. 201.]

[(e) Re Simes, 38 W. R. 570; 62 L. T. N.S. 721.]

[(f) Re Edge, 63 L. T. N.S. 762, following Re Wray, 37 Ch. D. 138, 143.]

[(g) Re Smith, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1, see ante, p. 1192.]

[(h) Church's Trustee v. Hibbard, (1902) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 784.]

[(i) Re Oddy, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 93.]

[(j) Re Tuck, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 692.]

[Debtors Act, 1878.]

52. By the Debtors Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 54), the Court is empowered among other things "to inquire into the case of a defaulting trustee, and to grant or refuse, either absolutely or upon terms, any application for a writ of attachment, or other process, or order of arrest or imprisonment, and any application to stay the operation of any such writ, process, or order, or for discharge from arrest or imprisonment thereunder." Under this section the Court has refused to issue a writ of attachment against a defaulting trustee, where it appeared that he was unable to pay, and that no good purpose could be served by sending him to prison (a). But as the Debtors Act, 1869, while abolishing the penalty of imprisonment for debt in the case of an honest debtor, was intended for the punishment of a fraudulent or dishonest debtor, and as it was not intended by the Act of 1878 to get rid of the penal clauses of the previous Act, but only to give the judges a judicial discretion to deal with exceptional cases, the Court ought, in the case of a dishonest debtor, to send him to prison, unless it is satisfied that he has no means of satisfying the debt (b); and in a recent case in which the Court was not satisfied that the debtor was unable to pay, Kay, J., observed: "I think that this is a case in which the punishment ought to be inflicted for the purpose of teaching this man that a dishonest act of this kind will not be passed over with impunity, even though he is unable to pay, and for the purpose of teaching other trustees the same lesson" (c).

But where there had been no actual fraud or embezzlement, but only an erroneous application of the trust funds, the Court, upon the trustee undertaking to execute a charge upon all the property to which he was or might become entitled, declined to attach him for having failed to comply with an order for payment of the trust fund into Court (d); and where the defaulting trustee had not been guilty of any dishonesty, and the moneys appeared to have been applied on behalf of the cestui que trust, under a mistaken view, in payment of debts of a class which were not within the terms of the trust, the Court exercised its discretion in favour of the trustee (e); and so where the trustee had merely

[(a) Street v. Hope, 10 Ch. D. 286, n.; Barrett v. Hammond, 10 Ch. D. 285.]

[(b) Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338.]

[(c) Re Knowles, 52 L. J. N.S. Ch. 685; 48 L. T. N.S. 760.]

[(d) Holroyde v. Garnett, 20 Ch. D. 532.]

[(e) Earl of Aylesford v. Earl Poulett, (1892) 2 Ch. 60, 63, where it was considered open to question whether the defendant, as a peer, was privileged from arrest.]

been guilty of negligence in trusting too much to a dishonest co-trustee, but was not himself guilty of any dishonesty (a).]

In assigning to the cestui que trust the foregoing remedies against the trustee, it must be understood that the cestui que trust has not himself concurred in the breach of duty, or subsequently acquiesced in it, and, a fortiori, has not executed a formal release or confirmation.

I. Of concurrence.

Concurrence of the cestui que trust in the breach of trust.

1. If a cestui que trust concur in the breach of trust, he is for ever estopped from proceeding against the trustee for the consequences of the act (b), [whether he did or did not derive benefit by the breach (c)], and a fortiori, a cestui que trust, who is also a trustee, cannot hold his co-trustee responsible for any act in which they both joined (d).

Ignorance.

2. But persons cannot be held to have concurred in a breach of trust who had not the means of knowing that the acts to which they were parties involved a breach of trust (e).

Femes covert and infants cannot concur.

3. And persons cannot concur in a breach of trust, who, as femes covert (f) and infants (g), have no legal capacity to consent to the transaction.

Except guilty of actual fraud.

4. But neither coverture nor infancy will be a protection from a charge of fraud, and therefore if a feme covert (h) or

[(a) Re Smith, (1893) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1.]

(b) Brice v. Stokes, 11 Ves. 319, and Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 64, per Lord Eldon; Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272; Cocker v. Quayle, 1 R. & M. 535; Nail v. Punter, 5 Sim. 555; [Crichton v. Crichton, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 870]; Newman v. Jones, Rep. t. Finch, 58; and see Fellows v. Mitchell, 1 P. W. 81; Booth v. Booth, 1 Beav. 125; Langford v. Gascoyne, 11 Ves. 336; White v. White, 5 Ves. 555; Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 280, 284; Baker v. Carter, 1 Y. & C. 255; Byrchall v. Bradford, 6 Mad. 13; Morley v. Lord Hawke, cited in Small v. Attwood, 2 Y. & J. 520; Fyler v. Fyler, 3 Beav. 550; Griffiths v. Porter, 25 Beav. 236; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 74; Ex parte Barnewall, 6 De G. M. & G. 801; [Evans v. Benyon, 37 Ch. D. (C.A.) 329; Chillingworth v. Chambers, (1896) 1 Ch. 685; Crichton v. Crichton, ubi sup.].

[(c) Fletcher v. Collis, (1905) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 24.]

(d) Butler v. Carter, 5 L. R. Eq. 281, per Cur.

(e) Buckeridge v. Glasse, Cr. & Ph. 135, per Lord Cottenham; [and see Crichton v. Crichton, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 870].

(f) Ryder v. Bickerton, cited Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 80; Underwood v. Stevens, 1 Mer. 717; Smith v. French, 2 Atk. 243; Needler's case, Hob. 225; Lench v. Lench, 10 Ves. 517, per Sir W. Grant; Lord Montford v. Lord Cadogan, 19 Ves. 639, 640, per Lord Eldon; and see Parkes v. White, 11 Ves. 221; Bateman v. Davis, 3 Mad. 98; Creswell v. Dewell, 4 Giff. 460; and see ante, p. 1180.

(g) See ante, pp. 37, 38; and Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 276.

(h) Ryder v. Bickerton, cited Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 82, per Lord Hardwicke; and see Savage v. Foster, 9 Mod. 35; Lord Montford v. Lord Cadogan, 19 Ves. 640; Vandebende v. Levingston, 3 Sw. 625; Evans v. Bicknell, 6 Ves. 181; Jones v. Kearney, 1 Dru.

infant (a), draw in a trustee to commit a breach of trust, such feme covert or infant cannot afterwards call the trustee to account for having violated his duty.

Separate use.

5. A feme covert will be bound by her concurrence in a breach of trust as to any fund which is settled to her separate use where there is no restraint against anticipation (b), and such feme covert, if she execute a deed, will not be allowed to controvert the statements of facts contained in the deed (c). But she will not be estopped upon the ground of concurrence where the act was not voluntary, but her judgment was misled, or she was under undue influence (d). And [independently of the provisions of sect. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1893, already considered (e)], a feme covert has no power to concur in any act as to a fund settled to her separate use, where there is a restraint against anticipation (f).

Power of appointment.

And her concurrence will not operate beyond the interest settled to her separate use, though she have a power of appointment in addition; as if a feme be tenant for life to her separate use, with a power of appointing the corpus by will, though her concurrence would affect the life interest, it does not prevent the appointees under the will from holding the trustees responsible (g). [But if the trustees, by reason of any engagement entered into by the feme covert, have a right to be indemnified out of her estate, they may, in accordance with the decisions already referred to (h), be entitled to resort to the appointed fund as part of the feme's assets for their indemnity (i).]

II. Of acquiescence.

Acquiescence of cestui que trust.

1. Again, a cestui que trust, though he did not concur at the & War. 166; Davies v. Hodgson, 25 Beav. 187; Sharpe v. Foy, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 35; Re Lush's Trusts, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 591; Green v. Lyon, 21 W. R. 695, reversed on the facts, Ib. 830; Arnold v. Woodhams, 16 L. R. Eq. 33, per Cur.; [Cahill v. Cahill, 8 App. Cas. 437; see S. C., nom. Cahill v. Martin, 5 L. R. Ir. 227; 7 L. R. Ir. 361].

(a) See the cases ante, p. 40, note (e).

(b) See ante, pp. 985, 986, 1180.

(c) Keays v. Lane, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 8, per Cur.

(d) Whistler v. Newman, 4 Ves. 129; Hughes v. Wells, 9 Hare, 773; and see Walker v. Shore, 19 Ves. 393.

[(e) See ante, pp. 1182 et seq.]

(f) Cocker v. Quayle, 1 R. & M. 535; Walrond v. Walrond, Johns. 24; Leedham v. Chawner, 4 K. & J. 465; Clive v. Carew, 1 J. & H. 199; Pemberton v. M'Gill, 8 W. R. 290; Fletcher v. Green, 33 Beav. 426; Arnold v. Woodhams, 16 L. R. Eq. 29; [Stanley v. Stanley, 7 Ch. D. 589; Heath v. Wickham, 3 L. R. Ir. 376; 5 L. R. Ir. 285; Lady Bateman v. Faber, (1897) 2 Ch. 223; (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 144;] and see Wilton v. Hill, 25 L. J. N.S. Ch. 156; Derbishire v. Home, 3 De G. M. & G. 102, 113.

(g) Kellaway v. Johnson, 5 Beav. 319.

[(h) Ante, pp. 996 et seq., 1180.]

[(i) See Williams v. Lomas, 16 Beav. 1.]

time, may debar himself from relief by having acquiesced (a) in the breach of trust subsequently (b).

Whether mere knowledge and abstinence from suing a bar in cases of breach of trust.

2. How far the mere knowledge of a right to sue in respect of a breach of trust, and the abstaining from suing will, without any other act, constitute laches in the eye of a Court of Equity, and disentitle the plaintiff to relief, as in the particular instances of purchases by trustees, &c., above referred to (c), was formerly very uncertain; but it seems to be now settled that gross laches, as for twenty years, will disentitle a cestui que trust to relief (d). But of course mere knowledge without suing for a few years, as for three years (e), [four years (f),] ten years (g), [or twelve years (h),] will not destroy the right to impeach the transaction. And where there is an express trust for successive incumbrancers on a limited interest, as a life estate, the subsequent incumbrancers are not chargeable with laches so long as the whole beneficial interest is absorbed by the prior incumbrancers (i).

No bar where notice of breach of trust is constructive only.

3. A cestui que trust, who does not actually know, is not to be affected with knowledge of a breach of trust because he might by inquiry have ascertained the fact, for it is not his duty but that of the trustee to see that the trust fund is in a proper state (j).

Ward of Court.

4. A settlement by a ward of Court, under the direction of the Court, of funds stated to represent the infant's fortune, will not operate as a confirmation of past breaches of trust (k).

Fluctuating body, as parishioners or creditors.

5. It seems that a public and fluctuating body, as parishioners, may be bound by acquiescence (l). But it is almost unnecessary

[(a) As to the meaning of acquiescence, see ante, pp. 1119, 1120.]

(b) Harden v. Parsons, 1 Eden, 145; Thompson v. Finch, 22 Beav. 324, per M.R.; Griffiths v. Porter, 25 Beav. 241, per M.R.; Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 63, per Lord Eldon; Hope v. Liddell, 21 Beav. 183; Brice v. Stokes, 11 Ves. 326; Macdonnell v. Harding, 7 Sim. 190; Broadhurst v. Balguy, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 16; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 Beav. 432; Blackwood v. Borrowes, 2 Conn. & Laws. 459; Farrant v. Blanchford, 1 De G. J. & S. 107; Rutherfoord v. Maziere, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 204; Stevens v. Robertson, 37 L. J. N.S. Ch. 499; Sleeman v. Wilson, 13 L. R. Eq. 36; Philips v. Pennefather, 8 I. R. Eq. 474; [Re Hulkes, 33 Ch. D. 552].

(c) See ante, pp. 576 et seq.

(d) Bright v. Legerton (No. 1), 29 Beav. 60; 2 De G. F. & J. 606; Hodgson v. Bibby, 32 Beav. 221; and see Browne v. Cross, 14 Beav. 105; Payne v. Evens, 18 L. R. Eq. 356; Re M'Kenna, 13 Ir. Ch. Rep. 239; Marquis of Clanricarde v. Henning, 30 Beav. 175. But see Knight v. Bowyer, 2 De G. & J. 443; [Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215].

(e) Hanchett v. Briscoe, 22 Beav. 496.

[(f) Re Jackson, 44 L. T. N.S. 467.]

(g) Farrant v. Blanchford, 11 W. R. 178; [Re Cross, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 109].

[(h) Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 196.]

(i) Knight v. Bowyer, 2 De G. & J. 421, see 443.

(j) Thompson v. Finch, 22 Beav. 325-327; 8 De G. M. & G. 560; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 73.

(k) Zambaco v. Cassavetti, 11 L. R. Eq. 439.

(l) See Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 92; Re

to repeat, that acquiescence cannot be objected against a class of persons, as parishioners or creditors, with the same degree of force as against a single individual (a).

Satisfaction in part for a breach of trust.

6. A cestui que trust who, knowing that his trustee has committed a breach of trust, gets what he can from the wreck of the property, and with that view receives from the trustee part of the relief to which he is entitled, does not thereby waive his right to the full relief to which he is entitled (b).

[Creditor's right not affected by not pressing for payment.]

[7. A creditor who merely abstains from calling upon the executors to realise the testator's estate for the purpose of paying his debt is not thereby deprived of his right to sue the executors for devastavit. To deprive him of his right, he must, either by his conduct or by express authority, have misled the executors into parting with the assets available for payment of his claim (c).]

Acquiescence by reversioner.

8. As to acquiescence by a cestui que trust while his interest is reversionary, L.J. Turner observed: "Length of time, where it does not operate as a statutory or positive bar, operates simply as evidence of assent or acquiescence. The two propositions of a bar by length of time and by acquiescence are not distinct propositions. They constitute but one proposition, and that proposition is that the cestui que trust assented to the breach of trust. A cestui que trust whose interest is reversionary is not bound to assert his title until it comes into possession; but the mere circumstance that he is not bound to assert his title does not seem to me to bear upon the question of assent to a breach of trust. He is not, so far as I can see, less capable of giving such assent when his interest is in reversion than when it is in possession. Whether he has done so or not is a question to be determined on the facts of each particular case" (d). But he afterwards added that he was not prepared to say that, where the trust was definite and clear, a breach of trust could be held to have been sanctioned or concerned in by the mere knowledge and non-interference of the cestui que trust before his interest had come into possession (e). The above doctrines were approved by L. C. Campbell, with the further remark that it Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 280, 284; Edenborough v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 2 Russ. 105, 108; Attorney-General v. Scott, 1 Ves. 415; Attorney-General v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 150.

(a) See ante, pp. 584, 1116.

(b) Thompson v. Finch, 22 Beav. 316; 8 De G. M. & G. 560; [Re Cross, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 109, 122].

[(c) Re Birch, 27 Ch. D. 622.]

(d) Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 72.

(e) Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 74.

was easy to conceive cases in which, from great lapse of time, the facts from which the consent of the cestui que trust was to be inferred might and ought to be presumed (a).

[And where a trustee misappropriated a fund of consols, and applied it in discharge of a debt of his own which bore interest at 5 per cent., paid interest at that rate to the tenant for life (who made no claim against him), and subsequently restored the capital in full, it was held that he had discharged himself, and that the cestuis que trust in remainder were not entitled to attribute to capital the excess of interest over the amount which would have been produced if the fund had been invested in authorised securities (b).] [Restitution as affecting reversioners.]

III. Of Release and Confirmation.

1. Lastly, a cestui que trust may preclude himself from his remedy against the trustee by executing a formal release of the breach of trust, or giving validity to the transaction by an express confirmation (c). And if the cestui que trust release the principal in a breach of trust or fraud, he cannot afterwards proceed against the other parties who would have been secondarily liable (d). Release and confirmation by cestui que trust.

[But a release in respect of a transaction which a Court of Equity would hold to be not merely avoidable but void, will not bind the cestui que trust executing the release. Thus where on the footing of a supposed illegitimacy the title of the cestui que trust to a legacy was disputed and denied by the trustee, and the cestui que trust was thereby induced to accept from the trustee a smaller sum than that to which he was entitled, and by deed to release the trustee from the payment of the legacy, it was held that, the question of the legitimacy of the cestui que trust being entirely irrelevant, the transaction was absolutely unmeaning and void, and the release was set aside and relief granted after a long lapse of time (e).] [Release in respect of a void transaction invalid.]

2. Under the head of release, we may notice the subject of waiver. "As to waiver," said Sir W. Grant, "it is difficult to say precisely what is meant by that term. With reference to Waiver.

(a) Ib. 77; and see Taylor v. Cartwright, 14 L. R. Eq. 176.

[(b) Slade v. Chaine, (1908) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 522.]

(c) Blackwood v. Borrowes, 2 Conn. & Laws. 459; French v. Hobson, 9 Ves. 103; Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272; Aylwin v. Bray, cited in Small v. Attwood, 2 Y. & J. 517; Cresswell v. Dewell, 4 Giff. 465, per Cur.

(d) Thompson v. Harrison, 2 B. C. C. 164; see Blackwood v. Borrowes, 2 Conn. & Laws. 478.

[(e) Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215, 234, 247.]

the legal effect, a waiver is nothing unless it amounts to a release. It is by a release, or something equivalent only, that an equitable demand can be given away. A mere waiver signifies nothing more than an expression of intention not to insist upon the right, which in equity will not without consideration bar the right, any more than at law an accord without satisfaction would be a plea. If there be a consideration, however slight, I do not know that the Court would not consider it a sufficient foundation for a release, or what is equivalent to a release" (a).

It would seem, therefore, that waiver is some positive act which, if supported by valuable consideration, though slight, will be taken in equity to constitute a release; but, if it be merely an expression of intention not to insist on the right, and there is an absence of consideration, it is no waiver in the sense of a release (b).

Requisites for valid acquiescence, release, or confirmation.

Acquiescence, and release and confirmation, to have the effect we have mentioned, must be understood to be accompanied with the following conditions :—

a. As in the case of concurrence, the cestui que trust must be sui juris, and not a feme covert or infant; and, as regards infants, the Court continues its protection even after they have attained twenty-one, till such time as they have acquired all proper information (c); and infants on coming of age must, in the case of a formal release being executed by them, where it is required have proper legal advice (d). However, a feme covert is clearly sui juris as regards property settled to her separate use, [or belonging to her as her separate property under the Married Women's Property Acts,] where there is no restraint against anticipation (e); [and her covenant not to sue may, in some cases,

(a) Stackhouse v. Barnston, 10 Ves. 466.

(b) See Farrant v. Blanchford, 11 W. R. 178.

(c) See Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 69; Hicks v. Hicks, 3 Atk. 274; Osmond v. Fitzroy, 3 P. W. 131; Hylton v. Hylton, 2 Ves. 547; Kilbee v. Sneyd, 2 Moll. 233; March v. Russell, 3 M. & Cr. 42, 44; Bateman v. Davis, 3 Mad. 98; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 2 Keen, 722; 4 M. & Cr. 41; Kay v. Smith, 21 Beav. 522; Aveline v. Melhuish, 2 De G. J. & S. 288; Chambers v. Crabbe, 34 Beav. 457; Sercombe v. Sanders, 34 Beav. 382; Turner v. Collins, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 329; Kempson v. Ashbee, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 15.

(d) Lloyd v. Attwood, 3 De G. & J. 615.

(e) See ante, p. 974; and Jones v. Higgins, 2 L. R. Eq. 538; Taylor v. Cartwright, 14 L. R. Eq. 175. The dictum of Lord Hardwicke in Smith v. French, 2 Atk. 245, and the view of Sir J. Romilly, M.R., in Davies v. Hodgson, 25 Beav. 187, are opposed to the current of authority.

have the effect of a release (a).] But where a feme covert is entitled to separate estate with a clause against anticipation, it is difficult to see how she can be affected by acquiescence (b). In a case in 1853 (c), however, Lord Justice Turner intimated his leaning to be in favour of the affirmative; but the language of Lord Justice Knight Bruce, in the case alluded to, was more guarded. The restraint on anticipation can impose no fetter as respects income accrued due before the acts of acquiescence relied upon (d). If a suit be instituted for relief against a breach of trust, the Court has jurisdiction to sanction a compromise on behalf of a married woman even though her interest be reversionary (e).

β. The cestui que trust must be fully cognisant of all the facts and circumstances of the case (f); [and if the release is executed by the cestui que trust in ignorance of his rights, it may be set aside after the death of the trustee, and after a long interval, as, for instance, twenty years (g)].

γ. The cestui que trust must not only be acquainted with the facts, but also to a certain extent apprised of the law, or how those facts would be dealt with if brought before a Court of Equity (h).

δ. The release must not be wrung from the cestui que trust by distress or terror (i).

[(a) Sprange v. Lee, (1908) 1 Ch. 424.]

[(b) Though she may be by a consent in writing under s. 45 of the Trustee Act, 1893.; see ante, p. 1181.]

(c) Derbishire v. Home, 3 De G. M. & G. 80; and see Wilton v. Hill, 25 L. J. N.S. Ch. 156; Davies v. Hodgson, 25 Beav. 186, 187; Clive v. Carew, 1 J. & H. 205; [Heath v. Wickham, 3 L. R. Ir. 376, 390, where the dictum of L. J. Turner was doubted].

(d) Rowley v. Unwin, 2 K. & J. 138; [Hood Barrs v. Heriot, (1896) A. C. 174].

(e) Wall v. Rogers, 9 L. R. Eq. 58.

(f) Adams v. Clifton, 1 Russ. 297; Walker v. Symonds, 3 Sw. 1; Randall v. Errington, 10 Ves. 423; Buckeridge v. Glass, Cr. & Ph. 126; Bennett v. Colley, 2 M. & K. 232, per Lord Brougham; Vyvyan v. Vyvyan, 30 Beav. 65; Eaves v. Hickson, 30 Beav. 142; Farrant v. Blanchford, 11 W. R. 178; 1 De G. J. & S. 119; Life Association of Scotland v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 74; Strange v. Fooks, 4 Giff. 408; and see Earl of Chesterfield v. Janssen, 2 Ves. 146, 149, 152, 158; Roche v. O'Brien, 1 B. & B. 339, and the cases there cited; Bowes v. East London Water Works Company, 3 Mad. 375; M'Carthy v. Decaix, 2 R. & M. 615; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 2 Keen, 722; 4 M. & Cr. 41; Munch v. Cockerell, 9 Sim. 339; 5 M. & Cr. 179; Broadhurst v. Balguy, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 16; Downes v. Bullock, 25 Beav. 62; Lloyd v. Attwood, 3 De G. & J. 650.

[(g) Re Garnett, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 1.]

(h) Cockerell v. Cholmeley, 1 R. & M. 425, per Sir J. Leach; M'Carthy v. Decaix, 2 R. & M. 615; Marker v. Marker, 9 Hare, 16; Burrows v. Walls, 5 De G. M. & G. 254: Re Saxon Life Assurance Society, 2 J. & H. 412; Strange v. Fooks, 4 Giff. 408; Kempson v. Ashbee, 10 L. R. Ch. App. 15; but see Stafford v. Stafford, 1 De G. & J. 202, and the observations at p. 583, ante.

(i) Bowles v. Stewart, 1 Sch. & Lef. 209, see 226; and see Earl of Chesterfield v. Janssen, 2 Ves. 149, 158.

SECTION IV

OF THE MODE AND EXTENT OF REDRESS IN BREACHES OF TRUST COMMITTED BY TRUSTEES OF CHARITIES

I. Of the mode of redress against trustees of charities.

Ordinary mode of redress in case of breach of trust by charitable trustees.

1. The regular and ordinary course of proceeding is by way of information (1), or action in the nature of an information (a), in the name of the Attorney-General: the King is parens patriæ, and it is the duty of the Crown Officer, the Attorney-General, to see that justice is administered to every part of His Majesty's subjects. Relators, joined as co-plaintiffs under the recent practice, need not be personally interested (b). They are required merely because the Attorney-General, prosecuting a suit in the name of the Crown, would not be liable to costs, and unless some person were made responsible, proceedings might be instituted very oppressive to individuals (c).

Statute of Charitable Uses.

2. In the reign of Elizabeth an Act was passed, commonly called the Statute of Charitable Uses (d), by which the Court of Chancery was empowered to issue commissions to certain persons, including the bishop of the diocese, who were authorised, after summoning a jury of the county where the property was situate, to inquire into any abuse or misapplication of the trust estate. Many of these proceedings were so little consonant with justice, and on appeal to the Lord Chancellor, were found at once so puzzling, and so far from accomplishing the object in view, that at length the practice of issuing commissions fell into disuse, and

[(a) See Rules of Court, 1883, Order I., Rule 1.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Vivian, 1 Russ. 226.

(c) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 48, per Lord Redesdale.

(d) 43 Eliz. c. 4, [repealed by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 42)].

---

(1) Where the management of no charity revenue is concerned, as in a suit instituted by parishioners for the mere purpose of setting aside the nomination of a clerk to the bishop by the trustees of the advowson, the Attorney-General need not be a party; it is the simple case of cestuis que trust calling upon the trustees to exercise the legal right; and [under the old practice] the suit was not by information, but by bill; see Attorney-General v. Parker, 1 Ves. 43; S. C., 3 Atk. 576; Attorney-General v. Foster, 10 Ves. 335; Attorney-General v. Newcombe, 14 Ves. 1; Davis v. Jenkins, 3 V. & B. 151; Inhabitants of Clapham v. Hewer, 2 Vern. 387; Attorney-General v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 149; Prestney v. Corporation of Colchester, 21 Ch. D. 111.

people again resorted to the original process by way of information (a).

52 Geo. 3. c. 101. (Romilly's Act).

3. After commissions had ceased to be issued, the legislature endeavoured to provide a remedy, not as before, by creating a new jurisdiction, but by giving liberty to proceed under the old jurisdiction of Chancery in a summary mode. By the Charities Procedure Act, 1812 (52 Geo. 3. c. 101), commonly called Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, and intituled "An Act to provide a summary Remedy in Cases of Abuses of Trusts created for Charitable Purposes," it was enacted that "in every case of a breach of any trust or supposed breach of any trust created for charitable purposes, or whenever the direction or order of a Court of Equity should be deemed necessary for the administration of any trust for charitable purposes, it shall be lawful for any two or more persons to present a petition" to the Court, stating such complaint and praying such relief as the nature of the case might require, such petition to be heard in a summary way upon affidavits or such other evidence as should be produced; and it was provided that every such petition should be signed by the persons preferring the same in the presence of and be attested by the solicitor or attorney concerned for such petitioners, and should be allowed by the Attorney or Solicitor-General, and such allowance should be certified by him before any such petition should be presented.

Strictures on the Act.

4. These enactments, though penned by a very able hand, have been strongly reprobated as very loosely and obscurely worded—as tending rather to increase than diminish the expense of the application—in short, as having produced more mischief than benefit. "It was a wise saying," observed Lord Redesdale, "that the farthest way about was often the nearest way home, and he believed that these summary proceedings would be not always the nearest or at least not the best way home" (b).

Construction of the Act.

5. Upon the construction of this statute the following points have been resolved:—

Interest.

a. Although the Act authorises any two or more persons to present the petition, the words must be understood to mean any persons having an interest (c): and the Court is bound to see not only that the petitioners are possessed of a clear interest, but that they prove themselves to be possessed of the interest they allege in their petition (a).

(a) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 61, 62, per Lord Redesdale.

(b) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 49.

(c) Re Bedford Charity, 2 Sw. 518, per Lord Eldon.

Breach of trust.

β. It has been said that the body of the statute is to be governed by the preamble, and therefore that the Act will not authorise a petition for any other purpose than relief against a breach of trust (b). But this narrow construction gives no force to the words of the Act, "or whenever the direction or order of a Court of Equity shall be deemed necessary for the administration of any trust for charitable purposes"; and the doctrine has since been called into question, and may be considered as overruled (c).

Plain and simple cases only within the Act.

γ. The provision extends only to plain and simple cases for the opinion or direction of the Court (d), not where a question is to be discussed adversely who are to be entrusted with the administration of the charity estate (e), or who are entitled to the benefit of it (f), or whether the trustees or governors of the charity have or have not, by the constitution of it, a certain authority, as of removing a master (g), or where any stranger is interested (h) (for the right of a third person cannot be disposed of on petition (i)), or where the relief which is sought is directed against the assets of a deceased trustee (j), or where the object of the application is not to have the existing charity regulated, but to (a) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 91, per Lord Eldon.

(b) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 66, 67, 81, per Lord Redesdale; and see Re Clarke's Charity, 8 Sim. 42.

(c) Re Upton Warren, 1 M. & K. 410: Re Parke's Charity, 12 Sim. 332; Re Manchester New College, 16 Beav. 610; Re Hall's Charity, 14 Beav. 115; and see Re Slewringe's Charity, 3 Mer. 707; Ex parte Rees, 3 V. & B. 12; Re Clarke's Charity, 8 Sim. 34; Re Phillipott's Charity, 8 Sim. 381; and cases in note to Re Hall's Charity, 14 Beav. 120.

(d) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Mad. 92, reversed in D. P. 1 Bligh, N.S. 17, see 66, 81, 89; Re Phillipott's Charity, 8 Sim. 381; Ex parte Brown, G. Coop. 295; Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 456, 457, per Lord Eldon; and see Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 277.

(e) Re West Retford Church and Poor-lands, 10 Sim. 101; Re Phillipott's Charity, 8 Sim. 381.

(f) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 66; Re Manchester New College, 16 Beav. 610; Re Clarke's Charity, 8 Sim. 34.

(g) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Bristol, 14 Sim. 648; and see Re Manchester New College, 16 Beav. 610; Attorney-General v. East Retford Grammar School, 17 L. J. N.S. Ch. 450; but see Re Fremington School, 10 Jur. 512; 11 Jur. 421; Re Phillips's Charity, 9 Jur. 959.

(h) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 66, per Lord Redesdale; Ex parte Rees, 3 V. & B. 10; Re Manchester New College, 16 Beav. 610; but see Re Upton Warren, 1 M. & K. 410; [Re Hospital for Incurables, 13 L. R. Ir. 361, where the Court adjudicated on the conflicting claims of two charities arising under the same instrument].

(i) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 93, per Lord Eldon.

(j) Ex parte Skinner, Wils. 15, per Lord Eldon; Re Saint Wenn's Charity, 2 S. & S. 66.

have the funds diverted to some other charitable purpose (a). The Court has jurisdiction, however, under the Act, to settle a scheme of the charity (b), or to alter a scheme previously settled by decree (c), or to appoint new trustees (d), or where parishes have been divided to apportion the charities amongst the districts (e), or to direct a sale of the charity estate in a proper case (f), and generally the Court, as between the trustees and cestuis qui trust of the charity, exercises a discretion as to whether it can put in operation the powers given by the Act with benefit to the charity (g).

Allowance.

δ. The allowance "by the Attorney or Solicitor-General" must be construed with reference to the previous law upon the subject, and must therefore be taken to mean, not by the Attorney or Solicitor-General, indifferently, but by the Attorney-General, when there is such an officer, and in the vacancy of that office, by the Solicitor-General (h).

Want of signature.

ε. If the petition be not signed by the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General, or if, after signature, it be not duly served, an order made by the Court under the Act will be an absolute nullity (i), and the petition may be taken off the file for irregularity (j).

Caution in signature.

ζ. As the intention of the legislature was to guard the charity fund from abuse, and with that view to prevent proceedings from being instituted, as they frequently were before, for no other reason than because it was known that the costs would be paid out of the charity estate, the Attorney-General, or, in the vacancy of that office, the Solicitor-General, ought not to sanction the

(a) Re Reading Dispensary, 10 Sim. 118.

(b) Re Royston Free Grammar School, 2 Beav. 228; Re Berkhampstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 134; Re Shrewsbury Grammar School, 1 Mac. & G. 324; 1 Hall & Tw. 401.

(c) Attorney-General v. Bishop of Worcester, 9 Hare, 328.

(d) Bignold v. Springfield, 7 Cl. & Fin. 71.

(e) Re West Ham Charities, 2 De G. & Sm. 218.

(f) Re Parke's Charity 12 Sim. 329; Re Ashton Charity, 22 Beav. 288; Re Overseers of Ecclesall, 16 Beav. 297; Re Lyford's Charity, Ib. note; [Re Stockport Ragged Industrial and Reformatory Schools, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 687;] Re Alderman Newton's Charity, 12 Jur. 1011 (the case of an exchange); Re Sowerby's Charity, 26th Jan., 1849, before the V.C. of England (the case of a willing purchaser); Suir Island Female Charity School, 3 Jon. & Lat. 171. As to the jurisdiction of the Court generally to sell charity lands, see ante, p. 634.

(g) Re Manchester New College, 16 Beav. 610.

(h) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 51, 52, 82, per Lord Redesdale; Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 456, per Lord Eldon.

(i) Attorney-General v. Green, 1 J. & W. 305.

(j) Re Dovenby Hospital, 1 M. & Cr. 279. [As to the title of the petition, see Seton, 6th ed. p. 1301.]

petition with his signature but upon as much deliberation as if the relief were sought by way of information (a).

Attorney-General must be a party.

η. The Attorney-General by his allocatur, or allowance, of the petition, is not functus officio, and precluded from all future control, but must be made a party to any subsequent proceedings under the petition, as he would have been to all proceedings by way of information (b).

May correct his judgment.

θ. The Attorney-General, as representing the person of the King in his character of parens patriæ, is bound to see justice done, not only to the plaintiff in the petition, but also to the trustees and other defendants, and therefore is not estopped by his allocatur of the petition from afterwards correcting his judgment, but may support or oppose the views of the petitioners, as in his discretion he may think fit (c).

Motion.

ι. When the jurisdiction of the Court has been once attracted by the petition, a subsequent order may be made upon motion without the expense of a further petition (d).

Acts appointing Commissioners of inquiry.

6. Under powers given by 58 Geo. 3. c. 91, and 59 Geo. 3. c. 81, certain commissioners of inquiry into charities were appointed, and by 58 Geo. 3. c. 91, it was enacted, that when it appeared to such commissioners of inquiry that the directions or orders of a Court of Equity were requisite for remedying any neglect, breach of trust, fraud, abuse, or misconduct in the management of any trust created for charitable purposes, &c., it should be lawful for the said commissioners to certify the particulars of such case to the Attorney-General. The labours of these commissioners of inquiry proved very valuable, and many informations were filed in consequence of certificates made by them; but their powers after being frequently continued, expired in 1837.

16 & 17 Vict. c. 137.

7. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853, great additional facilities have been afforded for detecting and remedying breaches of trust in charity matters.

Powers of inquiry.

Commissioners are thereby appointed (e), to whom are confided powers of inquiry (f) similar to those given to the commissioners appointed by the Acts of George III., and also a similar power

(a) Ex parte Skinner, 2 Mer. 456, per Lord Eldon.

(b) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 51, 65, 82, 83, per Lord Redesdale; Attorney-General v. Stamford, 1 Ph. 737; and see Re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 271; Attorney-General v. Haberdashers' Company, 15 Beav. 397.

(c) Corporation of Ludlow v. Greenhouse, 1 Bligh, N.S. 43-52.

(d) Re Slewringe's Charity, 3 Mer. 707; Ex parte Friendly Society, 10 Ves. 287; Re Chipping Sodbury School, 5 Sim. 410.

(e) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 1.

(f) Ib. sects. 9 to 14.

of certifying cases to the Attorney-General as fit for his interference (a).

New jurisdiction at chambers.

In cases of charities the incomes of which exceed 30*l.* per annum, the same jurisdiction is given in charity cases (after the previous sanction of the Charity Commissioners) to the Chancery Judges at chambers as was before the Act exercisable by the Court of Chancery, or the Lord Chancellor entrusted with the custody of lunatics, in a suit regularly constituted, or upon petition; but the Judge may direct a suit or petition to be instituted or presented (b). And the provisions of the Act in respect of charities whose incomes exceed 30*l.* per annum, are applicable to charities within the city of London, the income whereof is less than 30*l.* per annum (c).

Jurisdiction of Courts of Bankruptcy and County Courts.

Where the incomes of charities do not exceed 30*l.*, since extended to 50*l.* (d), per annum, the District Courts of Bankruptcy and County Courts, with the previous sanction of the Charity Commissioners, are armed with the same jurisdiction as the Court of Chancery had (e); and with the permission of the Commissioners to be applied for within one month after the making of the order (f), an appeal is allowed to the Court of Chancery (g).

Necessity for previous consent of Charity Commissioners before taking proceedings.

The Act contains a special provision that no suit, petition, or other proceeding (h) not being an application "in any suit or matter

(a) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 20.

(b) Ib. s. 28. [On a summons under the section the Court has jurisdiction to decide whether or not the property is held on a charitable trust; Re Norwich Town Close Estate Charity, 40 Ch. D. (C.A.) 298.]

(c) Ib. s. 30.

(d) Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 136), s. 11.

(e) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 32.

(f) Ib. s. 39.

(g) Ib. s. 40.

[(h) The words "suit or other proceeding" do not include an action at law, or for the enforcement of any right not relating to the administration of the trusts of the charity. Thus, the sanction of the Charity Commissioners was held not to be requisite, where the Governors of an Endowed School commenced an action against the master to restrain him from presenting himself at the school, or continuing to occupy the schoolhouse, on the ground that he had never been properly appointed to the mastership, was unfit to fulfil its duties, and had been removed by a resolution of the Governors; Holme v. Guy, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 901; or where the master of a school brought an action to restrain the managers from dismissing him, and ejecting him from the school-house, and the question was raised whether the managers had been properly appointed; Rendall v. Blair, 45 Ch. D. (C.A.) 139 (per Bowen and Fry, L.JJ., Cotton, L.J., dissenting and agreeing with Kay, J., contra); or where a schoolmaster claimed an injunction to restrain two of the trustees or managers from removing him from his office until after the holding of a meeting of the three trustees, and until he should have had an opportunity of being heard at such meeting in reply to any charges made against him; Fisher v. Jackson, (1891) 2 Ch. 84; and so the sanction of the Charity Commissioners is not required where the application is not to administer the trusts of the charity, but to determine whether there has been a valid dedication of the property to charitable purposes: Re Shum's Trust, W.N. (1904) 146. But the words include a mandamus to compel the rendering of actually pending," shall be commenced or taken without an authority previously obtained from the Charity Commissioners (a). It was at first held that where money had been paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act (10 & 11 Vict. c. 96) (b), or under a Railway Act (c), no such suit or matter was pending as to obviate the necessity of previously obtaining the concurrence of the Charity Commissioners. But it was afterwards decided by the Court of Appeal, that in such cases the previous sanction of the Charity Commissioners is unnecessary, and that the object of the provision was merely to stop the enormous abuses existing in reference to proceedings in charity matters, and the words suit or matter actually pending were held to mean pending at the time of the application, and not at the passing of the Act (d). It has, however, been held since the decision of the Court of Appeal, that a petition for the appointment of new trustees under a scheme previously settled by the final order of the Court requires the sanction of the Commissioners (e).

The Act contains other provisions (f) of a preventative rather than a remedial kind.

Board authorised to give advice.

By the 16th section, for instance, the Board has power to proper accounts; Attorney-General v. Dean and Canons of Manchester, 18 Ch. D. 596; and an action by a school board to recover sums received by the official trustees of charitable trusts in respect of the income of an endowment transferred to them: Llanbadarnjawr School Board v. Official Trustees of Charitable Trusts, (1901) 1 K. B. (C.A.) 430. And as to what cases fall within the section, see Brittain v. Overton, 25 Ch. D. 41, n.; Benthall v. Earl of Kilmorey, 25 Ch. D. (C.A.) 39.]

(a) 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 17. [But this provision does not apply to the charities exempted from the Act by s. 62; v. ante p. 644, or to places of religious worship falling under s. 9 of the Places of Worship Regulation Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 81), now extended by s. 4 of the Charitable Trusts (Places of Worship) Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 35); Glen v. Gregg, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 513; and see Attorney-General v. Sidney Sussex College, 15 W. R. 162; 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 514, note. The authority of the Commissioners must be given formally in the manner directed by the Act, and a letter signed by the secretary of the board stating that "they were prepared to issue their certificate authorising the proceedings"; that "any difficulty in the application to the Court would probably be obviated by the production of the letter," and that "the certificate would be prepared and issued in due course," was held by Fry, J., in a pressing case of an application for an injunction to be insufficient; Thomas v. Harford, 48 L. T. N.S. 262.]

(b) Re Markwell's Legacy, 17 Beav. 618; Re Skeetes, 1 Jur. N.S. 1037. [The Act of 10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, has now been replaced by s. 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893; see ante, p. 424.]

(c) Re London, Brighton and South Coast Railway Company, 18 Beav. 608.

(d) Re Lister's Hospital, 6 De G. M. & G. 184; Re St Giles and St George, Bloomsbury, 25 Beav. 313; Braund v. Earl of Devon, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 800; [Re William of Kyngeston Charity, 30 W. R. 78].

(e) Re Jarvis's Charity, 1 Dr. & Sm. 97; and see Re Bingley School, 2 Drew. 283; Re Ford's Charity, 3 Drew. 324; both, however, decided previously to the appeal decisions on p. 1207, note (h).

(f) See ante, pp. 634, 639, et seq., for powers of sale, leasing, &c., given by the Acts.

entertain applications for their opinion or advice, and persons acting in accordance therewith are indemnified.

Provisions for vesting land, stock, &c.

By the 48th section, lands belonging to any charity might be vested in the secretary of the Board as a corporation sole by the name of the Treasurer of Public Charities; and by the 51st section, annuities, stocks, shares, or securities held for any charity may be vested in the Official Trustees of charitable funds; and by the 54th and following sections, the Board have power, when the ordinary jurisdiction is insufficient for the purpose, to approve provisionally of new schemes of charities, varying from the original endowment, but which are to be submitted annually to Parliament for its ratification.

Charitable Trusts Act, 1855.

8. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 124), sect. 15, the name of the Treasurer of Public Charities is abolished, and the secretary of the Board for the time being is styled the Official Trustee of charity lands, [who is empowered to take and hold all such interest in land as in pursuance of an order of the Board is conveyed to or vested in him by any deed or assurance or otherwise (a); and by the 18th section, and the Charitable Trusts Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 49), sect. 4, the Official Trustees of charitable funds are to have perpetual succession, and are to consist of such officers of the Board as the Board with the approval of the Treasury from time to time appoint].

Charitable Trusts Act, 1860.

9. By the Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 136), the Charity Commissioners are enabled by sect. 2 to make such orders as may be made "by any judge of the Court of Chancery sitting at Chambers (b) or by any County Court or District Court of Bankruptcy (c), for the appointment or removal of any schoolmaster or schoolmistress or other officer" of a charity, or "for or relating to the assurance, transfer, or payment of any real or personal estate" belonging to the charity, or for the establishment of any scheme. But, by sect. 4, no such order is to be made where the charity income exceeds 50*l.*, except on the application of the majority of the trustees; and no trustee is to be removed on the ground only of religious belief; and by sect. 5, the Commissioners are not to make orders in any case, which by reason of its contentious character, or otherwise, may be considered by them more fit to be heard by the judicial Courts (d).

[(a) 50 & 51 Vict. c. 49, s. 5.]

(b) See the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 137), s. 28.

(c) Ib. s. 32.

(d) As to the effect of the 5th section, see Re Hackney Charities, 34 L. J. N.S. Ch. 169; Re Burnham National Schools, 17 L. R. Eq. 241.

[Jurisdiction of Charity Commissioners.]

[10. It is important to observe that the general jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners is the same as, and no greater than that of the Court of Chancery. Where a scheme is proposed for the administration of a charitable bequest, the first duty of the Court is to construe the will, and to give effect to the charitable directions of the founder, assuming them not to be open to objection on the ground of public policy. The Court does not consider whether those directions are wise, or whether a more generally beneficial application of the testator's property might not be found. By these principles the Charity Commissioners must be guided, and it is not competent for them, where a fund is given for the establishment of a hospital in a particular locality, to direct the application of the fund to the purposes of a hospital in a different locality, merely because such an application would appear to be generally beneficial (a).]

II. Of the extent of redress against trustees of charities.

What account will be directed of mesne rents and profits.

Under this head we propose to inquire only within what period of time the account of mesne rents and profits directed against trustees of charities guilty of a breach of trust, will be restricted.

The account not affected by Statutes of Limitation.

1. It is clear that in informations against trustees of charities the old Statutes of Limitation opposed no bar to the account, because charities were held exempt from the purview of the statutes, and the claim was by cestui que trust against an express trustee (b); and although it was at one time considered that the statute might afford a good rule how far back to carry the account (c), this doctrine was afterwards overruled (d). And now, the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 27), though applicable to charities (e), does not limit the liability of express trustees to account (f); so that charity trustees must [except so far as they may be protected by the provisions of the Trustee Act, 1888, already referred to (g),] as express trustees, account upon the same footing as before the Act.

Bar to the account from inconvenience of relief.

2. But the Court may set a limit to the account on the ground of inconvenience. "It is the constant practice of Courts of

[(a) Re Weir Hospital, (1910) W. N. (C.A.) 152, reversing Eve, J. (1910) W. N. 82. As to the observance of founders' intentions, see ante, pp. 622 et seq.]

(b) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, Jac. 448, per Sir T. Plumer; Attorney-General v. Brewers' Company, 1 Mer. 498, per Sir W. Grant; see Incorporated Society v. Richards, 1 Conn. & Laws. 58; 1 Dru. & War. 258.

(c) Anon. case, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 12, pl. 20; Love v. Eade, Rep. t. Finch, 269.

(d) See cases ante, p. 1209, note (d).

(e) See p. 1134, ante.

(f) Hicks v. Sallitt, 3 De G. M. & G. 816.

[(g) 51 & 52 Vict. c. 59, s. 8; ante, p. 1136.]

Equity," said Sir Thomas Plumer, "to discourage stale demands; and this principle has often been acted upon in cases of charities. When there has been a long period, during which a party has, under an innocent mistake, misapplied a trust fund from the laches and neglect of others, that is, from no one of the public setting him right, and when the accounts have, in consequence, become entangled, the Court, under its general discretion, considering the enormous expense of the inquiries, and the great hardship of calling upon representatives to refund what families, acting on the notion of its being their property, have spent, has been in the habit, while giving relief, of fixing a period to the account" (a).

Period to which account is carried back varies according to circumstances.

3. The period to which the account has been carried back has varied according to the circumstances presented to the consideration of the Court. Where no inconvenience can be objected, the Court will as a general rule carry back the account to the time of commencement of the misapplication.

Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter.

4. Thus in Attorney-General v. The Mayor of Exeter (b), where the defendants admitted possession of the charity estate for the last 200 years, and stated that they had always been ready and willing to account for the rents, Sir W. Grant ordered the defendants to account for the whole period, and this decision was affirmed by Sir T. Plumer on a rehearing, and by Lord Eldon on appeal.

Attorney-General v. Corporation of Stafford.

5. In Attorney-General v. The Corporation of Stafford (c), the trustees in their answer, filed in 1811, had furnished accounts of the trust estate, from the year 1791, and Lord Gifford saw no inconvenience in decreeing the account as far back as the trustees themselves had stated it, but refused to extend it farther.

Attorney-General v. The Brewers' Company, &c.

6. In Attorney-General v. The Brewers' Company (d), Sir W. Grant directed the trustees to account from the date of a certain Act of Parliament, a period of about thirty years. In a more recent suit against a corporation, the account was carried back to the last appointment of new trustees of the corporation, a period short of ten years. And in another contemporaneous suit against the same corporation, but where the legal estate was not in trustees, but in the corporation itself, the Court by analogy, and for want of another fixed point, ordered the account to commence at the date of the last appointment of new trustees in the first suit (e).

(a) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, Jac. 448.
(b) Jac. 443; 2 Russ. 362.
(c) 1 Russ. 547.
(d) 1 Mer. 495.
(e) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Newbury, 3 M. & K. 647.

Various other periods adopted.

7. In other cases the account has been carried back to the period when the corporation was first informed of the misapplication (as by the publication of the Charity Commissioners' Report): in others it has been directed from the time of filing the information, and in others from the date of the decree (a).

Compromise with sanction of Attorney-General.

8. Occasionally, where the defendant has been in strictness accountable for a very long period, but the right, if enforced, would impose a great hardship, it has been referred to the Attorney-General, as representing the charity, to certify whether under the circumstances it might not be proper for the charity to accept a less sum (b).

Trustees acting from mistake.

9. Where the trustees have diverted the charity funds from their proper channel through mistake, it is now settled that the Court will not call back any disbursements made before the commencement of the proceedings (c), or before the trustees had notice that the propriety of such application would be called into question (d). The Court holds a strict hand over trustees where there is any wilful misemployment; but where the Court sees nothing but mistake, while it gives directions for the better management in future, it refuses to visit with punishment what has been transacted in time past. It was said that to carry back the account to the very commencement of the misapplication would be the ruin of half the corporations in the kingdom (e); besides, to act on such a principle would be a great discouragement to undertake the office of trustees of charities (f).

Distinction between corporations and individuals.

10. If an individual make an annual payment for a particular purpose out of the profits of his estate, it is a reasonable presumption, from the strong interest which he has to resist an unfounded demand, that he has inquired into the origin of the claim, and he is therefore fixed with implied notice of all the circumstances that attend it; but the same presumption cannot

(a) See Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, 6 Beav. 390.

(b) Attorney-General v. Mayor of Exeter, 2 Russ. 370; and see Attorney-General v. Corporation of Carlisle, 4 Sim. 279; Attorney-General v. Bretingham, 3 Beav. 91; Attorney-General v. Pretyman, 4 Beav. 462.

(c) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Exeter, 2 Russ. 45; affirmed, 3 Russ. 395; Attorney-General v. Dean of Christchurch, Jac. 474, 637; S.C., 2 Russ. 321; Attorney-General v. Rigby, 3 P. W. 145; Attorney-General v. Caius College, 2 Keen, 150; Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, 4 Beav. 67; Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, Ib. 73; [Andrew's v. M'Guffog, 11 App. Cas. 311;] and see Attorney-General v. Mayor of Newbury, 3 M. &. K. 650.

(d) Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 2 M. & K. 35, see 37; and see Attorney-General v. Corporation of Berwick-upon-Tweed, Taml. 239; Attorney-General v. Caius College, 2 Keen, 150.

(e) Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 2 M. &. K. 38, per Sir J. Leach.

(f) Attorney-General v. Corporation of Exeter, 2 Russ. 54, per Lord Eldon.

be applied to corporations, because, having no immediate personal interest in the application of the profits of the corporate property, they may, without the imputation of culpable negligence, adopt and follow the practice of their predecessors (a).

Breach of trust by a parish.

11. Where the charity fund has been administered by a parish and misapplied, there, as a parish is a fluctuating body, and the present ratepayers ought not to pay for past defaults, no retrospective account can be ordered (b).

Mode of attaching the corporation property.

12. In the East Retford case (c), before Sir J. Leach, the Court, on proof of a breach of trust by the corporation, directed an inquiry by the Master of what property the corporation was possessed not devoted to special purposes, with the view that compensation might be made to the charity by an immediate sale; but the case upon that point was subsequently appealed against and reversed, as contrary to principle (d), and the plaintiff must now confine himself to a sequestration against the corporation in the ordinary course.

(a) Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 2 M. & K. 38, per Sir J. Leach.

(b) Ex parte Fowlser, 1 J. & W. 70; and see cases cited Ib. 73, note (a).

(c) 2 M. & K. 35.

(d) Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 3 M. & Cr. 484; and see Attorney-General v. Newark-upon-Trent, 1 Hare, 395.

CHAPTER XXXII

MAXIMS OF EQUITY FOR SUSTAINING THE TRUE CHARACTER OF THE TRUST ESTATE AGAINST THE LACHES OR TORT OF THE TRUSTEE.

BESIDES the several rights and remedies which have just been the subject of discussion, the Court, with the view of keeping the trust estate in its regular channel, and sustaining its proper character, whether of realty or personalty, against the laches or other misbehaviour of the trustee, has found it necessary to establish two maxims which we now proceed to examine: viz., First, What ought to be done should be considered as done (a); and, Secondly, The act of the trustee shall not alter the nature of the cestui que trust's estate (b).

SECTION I

WHAT OUGHT TO BE DONE SHALL BE CONSIDERED AS DONE

General principle.

1. "The forbearance of the trustees," said Sir J. Jekyll, "in not doing what it was their office to have done, shall in no sort prejudice the cestuis que trust, since at that rate it would be in the power of trustees, either by doing or delaying to do their duty, to affect the right of other persons; which can never be maintained. Wherefore the rule in such cases is, that 'What ought to have been done shall be taken as done,' and a rule so powerful it is as to alter the very nature of things, to make money land, and, on the contrary, to turn land into money" (a). And Lord Macclesfield, in the case of a bequest to a trustee for purchasing lands, observed: "If the purchase had been made it must have gone to the heir, but if the trustee, by delaying the purchase, might alter the right, and give it to the executors, this would be to make it the will of the trustee, and not the will of the testator, which would be very unreasonable and inconvenient" (b).

(a) Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 183, per Lord Loughborough; Foone v. Blount, Cowp. 467, per Lord Mansfield; Holland v. Hughes, 16 Ves. 114, per Sir W. Grant; Gaskell v. Harman, 11 Ves. 507, per Lord Eldon; Stead v. Newdigate, 2 Mer. 530, per Sir W. Grant; Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 237, per Lord Thurlow; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 186, per Sir T. Clarke; Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 215, per Sir J. Jekyll; Fitzgerald v. Jervoise, 5 Mad. 29, per Sir J. Leach; Earl of Buckingham v. Drury, 2 Eden, 65, per Lord Hardwicke; Guidot v. Guidot, 3 Atk. 256, per Lord Hardwicke; Crabtree v. Bramble, Ib. 687, per eundem; Trafford v. Boehm, Ib. 446, per eundem; Astley v. Earl of Essex, 6 L. R. Ch. App. 898.

(b) Philips v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 127, per Lord Alvanley; Earlom v. Saunders, Amb. 242, per Lord Hardwicke; Selby v. Alston, 3 Ves. 341, per Sir R. P. Arden.

Money to be laid out on land to be regarded as land.

2. Upon these grounds it is in equity a universal rule, that money directed to be laid out in the purchase of land, or land directed to be sold and turned into money, shall be considered as that species of property into which it is directed to be converted; and this, in whatever manner the direction is given, whether by will, by way of contract, by marriage articles, by settlement, or otherwise, and whether the money has been actually deposited in the hands of trustees for the purpose, or is only covenanted to be paid, and whether the land has been actually conveyed, or is only agreed to be conveyed (c).

Subject to curtesy.

3. Thus, if money be stipulated to be laid out in land to be settled on a feme covert in fee or in tail, the husband of the feme is entitled to his curtesy, though no purchase be actually made in the lifetime of the wife; and he will be decreed the interest of the money until a purchase can be found; and when the investment has been made, he will have a life estate in the lands (d).

Whether subject to dower.

4. Whether under similar circumstances a widow could, before the Dower Act, 1833, have established her title to dower, was much questioned. It was admitted she was not dowable of a mere trust estate (e); but, where money was to be converted into land, and the interest was only prevented from being legal through the forbearance of the trustee, it was contended that the rights of parties ought not to be varied by the neglect of (a) Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 215.

(b) Scudamore v. Scudamore, Pr. Ch. 543.

(c) Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 B. C. C. 499; and see Wheldale v. Partridge, 5 Ves. 396.

(d) Sweetapple v. Bindon, 2 Vern. 536; Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 174; Dodson v. Hay, 3 B. C. C. 405.

(e) Altered by the Act (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 105).

the person who was merely the instrument for carrying out the settlor's wishes.

Lord Hardwicke's opinion.

The opinion of Lord Hardwicke was on more than one occasion expressed adversely to the wife's claim (a); but there are several authorities in favour of the right to dower (b).

Dower Act.

By the Dower Act (except where the marriage was celebrated on or before the 1st day of January, 1834), the Legislature has given dower out of every species of trust estate in possession, subject to be defeated, however, by any declaration of intention on the part of the husband (c).

[Letters of administration.]

[5. Money which has arisen from settled land sold under the Settled Estates Acts, and liable to be reinvested in land under those Acts, is not a proper subject for letters of administration, so as to give jurisdiction to the Court to grant such letters (d).]

Money to be laid out in land is not subject to escheat.

6. If money be articled, or directed, to be laid out in land to be settled on a person in fee, and the cestui que trust dies without heirs, there can, as a general rule, be no claim for an escheat by any one, since until the land is actually purchased it is uncertain who will fill the character of lord (e). Cases might no doubt occur free from this element of uncertainty, as where the trust is to lay out money in the purchase of lands in the parish of A., all the lands in which are held under the same lord; but even in such a case the lord would fail to establish his claim, for a lord by escheat comes under no head of equity—is entirely a stranger to the trust, claiming by title paramount of his own (f). The pretence for his claim would be, that the operation of the rule so absolutely converts the equitable into a legal estate, that all the incidents that would have belonged to the legal, must be considered in equity as attaching to the equitable estate; but the rule was meant not to benefit third persons, but to protect the interests of parties to the trust.

(a) See Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 176; Crabtree v. Bramble, 3 Atk. 687.

(b) Fletcher v. Robinson, cited Dudley v. Dudley, Pr. Ch. 250; S. C., stated from R. L. in Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 709; Otway v. Hudson, 2 Vern. 583; Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 700; Re Lord Lismore, 1 Hog. 177; and see the arguments of Sir J. Jekyll in Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. pp. 704, 706.

(c) See ante, p. 949.

[(d) Re Goods of Lloyd, 9 P. D. 65; but see now the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 2, sub-s. 4, and ante, p. 248. Under the Act, where the real estate of an intestate greatly exceeded the personalty in value, the Court granted administration to the guardian ad litem of the infant heir; In the Goods of Ardern, (1898) P. 174.]

(e) This point escaped notice in Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 170, and it seems to have been assumed that the Crown would be the lord.

(f) Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 185, per Lord Loughborough; Henchman v. Attorney-General, 3 M. & K. 494, per Lord Brougham.

How affected by the cestui que trust's will.

7. As money to be laid out in land is regarded as land, it could not, even before the Wills Act, have been devised by an infant, though of sufficient age to bequeath personal estate (a); and, for the same reason, it will pass by the cestui que trust's will under the general description of all the testator's lands (b), or of all his lands in the county of —— or elsewhere (c), though in the latter case it was very plausibly contended that the testator could not have referred to money, but must have alluded to something that possessed a local character. [Money arising from the sale of lands in a particular county, and liable to be laid out in the purchase of land generally will pass under a general residuary devise, and not under a specific devise of lands in the particular county (d); but where the money is subject to a general power of appointment by will, and there is no intermediate interest in any person who after the death of the donee of the power would have a right to call for its investment in land, and the donee has shown an intention in his lifetime to make the money personal estate so far as he can, it will pass under a general bequest by the donee of all his personal estate (e).]

Is subject to judgments.

8. So money to be converted into land was bound by a judgment (f), and was never accounted personal assets, and therefore was not, until the Act of William IV. (g), liable to the payment of simple contract debts (h).

Orphanage share.

9. So a gift by a parent (a freeman of the city of London) to a child, of money to be laid out in land, was considered a purchase by the father and a donation of the estate, and consequently under the law existing before the Act 19 & 20 Vict. c. 94, the child was not bound, before receiving his orphanage share, to bring the purchase into hotchpot (i).

(a) Carr v. Ellison, 2 B. C. C. 56; Earlom v. Saunders, Amb. 241. By the Wills Act, 7 W. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 26, an infant cannot make a will even of personal estate.

(b) Guidot v. Guidot, 3 Atk. 256, per Lord Hardwicke; Rashleigh v. Master, 1 Ves. jun. 201; S. C., 3 B. C. C. 99; Green v. Stephens, 17 Ves. 77; Biddulph v. Biddulph, 12 Ves. 161; [Chandler v. Pocock, 15 Ch. D. 491; Re Greaves' Settlement Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 313; Re Duke of Cleveland, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 244].

(c) Lingen v. Sowray, 1 P. W. 172; Guidot v. Guidot, 3 Atk. 254.

[(d) Re Duke of Cleveland, ubi sup.]

[(e) Chandler v. Pocock, 15 Ch. D. 491; 16 Ch. D. (C.A.) 648; and see Re Greaves' Settlement Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 313; Re Harman, (1894) 3 Ch. 607.]

(f) Frederick v. Aynscombe, 1 Atk. 392.

(g) Administration of Estates Act, 1833 (3 & 4 W. 4. c. 104).

(h) Whitwick v. Jermin, cited Baden v. Earl of Pembroke, 2 Vern. 58; Lawrence v. Beverly, cited Ib. 55; S. C., 2 Keb. 841; Fulham v. Jones, cited Pulteney v. Darlington, 7 B. P. C. 550; Foone v. Blount, Cowp. 467, per Lord Mansfield. Money to be laid out on a purchase of land is not land for the purposes of the Stamp Acts, but pays legacy duty; Re De Lancey, 4 L. R. Ex. 345; 5 L. R. Ex. 102.

(i) Hume v. Edwards, 3 Atk. 450; Annand v. Honeywood, 1 Vern. 345.

In what cases money to be laid out on land goes to the heir.

10. With respect to the heir of the person upon whom the lands, when purchased, are directed or agreed to be settled, it is necessary, for ascertaining his rights, to distinguish between the cases where the real representative claims as against a stranger, and where he claims as against the executor of his own ancestor.

Case of the heir claiming against a stranger.

It appears to be perfectly established that the heir is entitled to the money as land, if he seek to enforce his equity against a stranger. Thus, 1. If a sum of money be bequeathed to be laid out in a purchase of lands to be settled to the use of A. and his heirs, and A. dies intestate before a purchase has been obtained, the money is the property, not of the executor, but of the heir of A. (a). 2. If on the marriage of A. money be actually deposited in the hands of trustees, either by A. himself or by a stranger, to be laid out in a purchase of lands to be settled to the use of A. for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to the issue in tail, remainder to A. in fee, and A. dies intestate and without issue, his heir, and not his executor is entitled (b). 3. If on the marriage of A. there be a covenant on the part of B. to lay out money in a purchase of lands to the above uses, and A. dies intestate and without issue, his heir takes the benefit of the covenant (c).

Case of the heir claiming against the executor of his own ancestor.

11. But if the heir have to enforce his claim, not against a stranger, but against the personal representative of his own ancestor, as if A. on his marriage covenant to lay out money in a purchase of lands to be settled to the use of himself for life remainder to his wife for life, remainder to the issue in tail, remainder to his own right heirs, in this instance the question whether the heir can call upon the executor for the money must depend upon this further distinction:—

The heir has a right, if any person has an equitable interest.

a. If at the death of A. there be an equitable interest in the fund outstanding in another, as a life estate in the wife, [or a right in a jointress to have a rent-charge (d),] or an estate tail in

(a) Scudamore v. Scudamore, Pr. Ch. 543. Abbot v. Lee, 2 Vern. 284, at first sight appears contra, but it seems from the Registrar's book that the direction for conversion was not imperative, but to be at the discretion of the testator's executors. Had the money been absolutely converted into land, the ultimate remainder would, by failure of issue of the surviving daughter, have resulted as personal estate of the testator (see p. 174, ante); but being money absolutely bequeathed, subject to a discretion to lay out on land which was not exercised, it belonged to the administrator of the legatee, as was decreed. The case is stated from Reg. Lib. in Appendix No. II. to 3rd edition of this Treatise.

(b) Disher v. Disher, 1 P. W. 204; Chaplin v. Horner, Ib. 483; Edwards v. Countess of Warwick, 2 P. W. 171; and see Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. t. Talb. 90.

(c) Knights v. Atkyns, 2 Vern. 20.

[(d) Walrond v. Rosslyn, 11 Ch. D.

the issue, then the real quality of the money is sustained and continued by that right, and the heir of A. is entitled to call upon A.'s executor to pay the money (a); and if there be such an outstanding claim at the death of the ancestor, the circumstance that the heir institutes his suit during the subsistence of that claim, or after its determination, seems to be immaterial (b).

In Walker v. Denne (c), Lord Loughborough expressed some doubt upon this doctrine. "Between the heir and personal representative," he said, "their rights are pure legal rights: chance decides what shall be real, what personal; neither has a scintilla of equity to make the property that which it is not in fact." To this reasoning of Lord Loughborough it may be replied that, when it is said there is no equity between the real and personal representatives, the meaning is no more than this—that what is real estate at the death of the ancestor will go to the heir, and what is personal estate at the death of the testator will go to the executor; but, for the purpose of determining what is real and what is personal estate, the Court is guided, not by the legal nature of the property at the death of the owner, but, as appears in numerous instances, by the stamp and character impressed upon it in consideration of a Court of Equity. Thus if a mortgagee in fee died, the mortgage being regarded as a mere security for part of the mortgagee's personal estate, the executor might call upon the heir for a conveyance of the land (d). So, if the mortgagor died, the heir of the mortgagor might, until the Real Estate Charges Act, 1877 (e), have called on the executor to discharge the incumbrance out of the personal assets. So, if a person contracted for the sale of an estate (f), and died before the completion of the sale, the legal fee descended upon the heir (g), but the purchase-

Walker v. Denne.

[Contract for sale effects conversion.]

640. Semble, it would be otherwise if the only right were that of portionists to have their portions raised; S. C.]

(a) Kettleby v. Atwood, 1 Vern. 298; re-heard, Ib. 471; Lancy v. Fairechild, 2 Vern. 101; Chaplin v. Horner, 1 P. W. 483; Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 211; affirmed Cas. t. Talbot, 89; Oldham v. Hughes, 2 Atk. 452.

(b) See Chaplin v. Horner, 1 P. W. 483; Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. t. Talb. 80.

(c) 2 Ves. jun. 175, 176, 183; and see Oxenden v. Lord Compton, Ib. 70; Lord Compton v. Oxenden, Ib. 265.

[(d) Now by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 30, and the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 1, sub-s. 1 (see ante, pp. 247, 248), where the death has occurred since the 31st December, 1881, the land devolves upon the executor.]

[(e) 40 & 41 Vict. c. 34.]

[(f) But this is to be understood only of a binding contract; and where the title is bad, and is not accepted by the purchaser, and the contract is rescinded, there is no conversion; Re Thomas, 34 Ch. D. 166; and see Plews v. Samuel, (1904) 1 Ch. 464, 468; Lysaght v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 499, 506, 507, 515, and ante, p. 260.]

[(g) Now, by the Land Transfer Act, 1897, s. 1, sub-s. 1 (see ante, p. 248), where the death has occurred since the 31st December, 1897, the legal fee money passes to the executor; and, on the other hand, if a person contract for the purchase of an estate, and die, the executor must, [until the Act of 1877, have paid] the money, but the heir was entitled to the purchase (a). Thus, in the words of Lord Talbot, "Where the dispute is between the two representatives of the deceased, the one of his real, the other of his personal estate, the heir's being but a volunteer in regard to his ancestor will not exclude him from the aid of the Court, for though the question is between two volunteers, the Court will determine which way the right is, and will decree accordingly" (b). "I am disposed," said Lord Eldon, "to say, notwithstanding the opinion of Lord Rosslyn in Walker v. Denne, and some other modern authorities, that if the instrument be taken to impress a fund with real qualities immediately upon the execution, in the question between the heir and executor, the money being once clearly and plainly impressed with real uses as land, and one of those uses being for the benefit of the heir, it will remain for his benefit, and it is not correct to say the Court does not interpose between volunteers, if they give to the executor that money which the instrument has given to the heir" (c). And Sir W. Grant to the same effect observed: "There is no weight in the circumstance that the property is found in the shape of money or land, for the character is to be found in the deed. The opinion of Lord Rosslyn that property was to be taken as it happened to be at the death of the party from whom the representatives claimed, was much doubted by Lord Eldon, who held, in which I perfectly concur, that it must be considered as being in the state in which it ought to be. Lord Rosslyn's rule was new, and not according to prior cases" (d).

Heir has no right where the money is "at home."

β. But if A. die, leaving neither wife nor issue, so that, to use the technical expression, the money is "at home," that is A. at the time of his death is the absolute and exclusive owner, and there is no outstanding right in another person, in this case the real quality of the money has become merged and extinguished, will vest in the executor, and by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 4, where the death has occurred since the 31st December, 1881, if the contract is enforceable against the heir or devisee of the vendor, his personal representatives can convey the land for the purpose of giving effect to the contract.]

[(a) But since the Act of 1877, the estate in the hands of the heir (or, if leasehold, of the legatee or next of kin) will be subject to the repayment to the executor of the purchase-money paid by him; Re Cockcroft, 24 Ch. D. 94; Re Kershaw, 37 Ch. D. 674; Re Fraser, (1904) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 727.]

(b) Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. t. Talb. 90.

(c) Wheldale v. Partridge, 8 Ves. 235.

(d) Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 138; Kirkman v. Miles, 13 Ves. 339.

and on the death of A. the heir has no equity to call upon the executor. To keep on foot the notional conversion of money into land, it is evident there must be a right in some one to insist upon the actual conversion; but if A. be in possession of 20,000*l.* upon trust to lay out in a purchase of lands to be settled to the use of himself and his heirs, the right and the thing both centering in the same person, there is nobody to sue, and it follows that the action is extinguished (a).

Chichester v. Bickerstaff.

The decision in the much litigated case of Chichester v. Bickerstaff (b), amounted probably to no more than this (c).

Actual receipt of the money makes it "at home."

12. Of course the money will be "at home" where the person absolutely entitled to the fund receives it from the trustee the depositary of it, and that, whether the payment was made with the sanction of the Court, or by the voluntary act of the trustee himself (d).

Voluntary covenant to lay out money on land.

13. Lord Macclesfield advanced the position, that if a person voluntarily and without consideration covenanted to lay out money in a purchase of land to be settled on himself and his heirs, the Court would compel the execution of such a contract, though merely voluntary; for in all cases where it was a measuring cast between an executor and an heir, the latter should in equity have the preference (e). But the proposition that the heir is more favoured than the executor, though often repeated (f), and arising perhaps from the leaning of the Court towards the heir in respect of lands of which the ancestor was seised, does not appear to be founded on any intelligible principle, and the opinion expressed by Lord Macclesfield may be questioned.

Conversion must be absolute or imperative, not optional.

14. In the preceding observations it is assumed that the direction or agreement for conversion is by the terms of the instrument made absolute and imperative; for where a mere option is given, the original character of the property continues until the discretion has been exercised, and the conversion actually effected; as, if the direction or agreement be to lay

(a) See Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 237.

(b) 2 Vern. 295; S. C., cited Pulteney v. Darlington, 7 B. P. C. 554.

[(c) The author's reasons for taking this view will be found stated at length in the eighth edition of this work, at pp. 944-946. To the principle under consideration must be referred the case of Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 223; affirmed in D. P.; see Wheldale v. Partridge, 8 Ves. 235; and see 3rd ed. of this work, p. 803.]

(d) See Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 236; Bowes v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 5 B. P. C. 144; Chaplin v. Horner, 1 P. W. 483, as to the 1350*l.*

(e) Edwards v. Countess of Warwick, 2 P. W. 176; and see Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. t. Talb. 90, 91.

(f) See Crabtree v. Bramble, 3 Atk. 689; Scudamore v. Scudamore, Pr. Ch. 544; Haytor v. Rod, 1 P. W. 364; Wilson v. Beddard, 12 Sim. 32.

out money in "lands or securities" (a), in "freehold or leaseholds" (b), or if by any other mode of expression an intention be manifested of not converting the property at all events (c). [But a direction to trustees to sell "so soon as they shall see necessary for the benefit of" the cestuis que trust (d), or "whenever it shall appear to their satisfaction that such sale will be for the benefit of" the cestuis que trust (e), amounts to an imperative direction to convert.]

[But the conversion may be imperative, although the trustees have an option as to the time of sale.]

Of conversion, apparently optional, but where the uses declared are exclusively applicable to real estate.

15. Where the uses declared are exclusively applicable to real estate, the direction or agreement will be construed to be imperative, though the direction or agreement be to lay out the money in "freeholds, leaseholds, or copyholds" (f), or the instrument contains an authority to invest the money upon securities until a purchase can be found (g), or the fund being already out upon security, a power is inserted to call it in, and lay it out upon other securities (h), or even though the direction or agreement be to lay out the money on lands or securities, the intention in the last case apparently being, that the money shall be invested upon security until a suitable purchase can be found, and that the interest and dividends in the meantime shall be paid to the person who would be entitled to the rents (i).

Conversion at "the request" or "with the consent" of a party.

16. And, where the uses are thus exclusively applicable to real estate, the direction or agreement will be regarded as imperative though the settlement require the purchase to be made at the request of a person (j), for the insertion of such a clause has been taken to mean, not that a conversion may not be effected before but that it shall certainly be effected after

(a) Curling v. May, cited Guidot v. Guidot, 3 Atk. 255; Amler v. Amler, 3 Ves. 583; [Evans v. Ball, 30 W. R. 899; 47 L. T. N.S. 165;] and see Van v. Barnett, 19 Ves. 102.

(b) Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 170; Davies v. Goodhew, 6 Sim. 585.

(c) Wheldale v. Partridge, 5 Ves. 388; S. C., 8 Ves. 227; and see Abbot v. Lee, 2 Vern. 284; Davies v. Goodhew, 6 Sim. 585; Polley v. Seymour, 2 Y. & C. 708; Clissold v. Cook, 27 L. T. N.S. 143; 20 W. R. 796; [Re Hotchkys, 32 Ch. D. (C.A.) 408].

[(d) Doughty v. Bull, 2 P. Wms. 320.]

[(e) Re Raw, 26 Ch. D. 601; Robinson v. Robinson, 19 Beav. 494.]

(f) Hereford v. Ravenhill, 5 Beav. 51; Re Whitty's Trust, 9 Ir. R. Eq. 41; [Re Bird, (1892) 1 Ch. 279].

(g) Edwards v. Countess of Warwick, 2 P. W. 171; Earlom v. Saunders, Amb. 241; and see Davies v. Goodhew, 6 Sim. 585.

(h) Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 129; and see Triquet v. Thornton, 13 Ves. 345.

(i) Earlom v. Saunders, Amb. 241; Cowley v. Hartstonge, 1 Dow, 361; Johnson v. Arnold, 1 Ves. 169; Cookson v. Reay, 5 Beav. 22; 12 Cl. & Fin. 121; but see Atwell v. Atwell, 13 L. R. Eq. 23; [and see Evans v. Ball, 30 W. R. 899; 47 L. T. N.S. 165].

(j) Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 129; Johnson v. Arnold, 1 Ves. 169; [Attorney-General v. Dodd, (1894) 2 Q. B. 150].

request (a). And the construction is the same, though the purchase be directed to be made with a person's consent and approbation (b); for upon a convenient purchase being proposed, the Court, said Sir J. Jekyll, will take upon itself to judge thereof, and, without some reasonable objection made, will order the money to be laid out in it, so that such a proviso seems to be immaterial, and as if omitted (c). But of course the instrument may be so strongly expressed as to show the intention of the parties that the request or consent of a particular person should be a substantial ingredient, and that no conversion should take place unless it is given (d).

[In all these cases the real question is whether it appears from the whole tenor of the instrument that the intention was that the personalty should be converted into realty, and where such an intention appears a trust for conversion may be implied (e). But a mere gift of personalty with limitations appropriate to real estate, a great part of which limitations must necessarily fail as soon as the personalty vests in any one who, if it had been real estate, would have taken an estate tail, does not raise an implied trust for conversion into realty (f).]

Land to be converted into money is regarded as money.

17. As money to be converted into land is considered as land, so land to be converted into money is, upon the same principle, invested with all the properties of money (g). Thus, if an estate be directed or agreed to be sold, and the proceeds be made payable to A., the property, though unconverted at A.'s decease will pass by a general bequest of all his personal estate (h); and upon A.'s death, will vest in his personal representatives (i), and will be liable to probate (j) [or estate], and legacy

(a) Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 137; but see Stead v. Newdigate, 2 Mer. 530.

(b) Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 129; [Batteste v. Maunsell, 10 I. R. Eq. 97, 314]. In Symons v. Rutter, 2 Vern. 227, Sir G. Hutchins was right, according to Sir J. Jekyll, Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 220, and Lord Thurlow, Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 238; but see Stead v. Newdigate, 2 Mer. 530.

(c) Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 220, per Sir J. Jekyll; and see Costello v. O'Rorke, 3 Ir. R. Eq. 172.

(d) Davies v. Goodhew, 6 Sim. 585; and see Re Taylor's Trust, 9 Hare, 596; Sykes v. Sheard, 33 Beav. 114.

[(e) Evans v. Ball, 30 W. R. 899; 47 L. T. N.S. 165.]

[(f) Evans v. Ball, ubi sup.]

(g) But a settlement of land so circumstanced is not a settlement of a "definite" sum of money within the meaning of the Stamp Act; Re Stucley's Settlement, 5 L. R. Ex. 85. [See the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), sched.]

(h) Stead v. Newdigate, 2 Mer. 521.

(i) Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Mer. 296; Biggs v. Andrews, 5 Sim. 424; Bayden v. Watson, 7 Jur. 245; Burton v. Hodsoll, 2 Sim. 24; Grieveson v. Kirsopp, 2 Keen, 653; Griffith v. Ricketts, 7 Hare, 299; Hardey v. Hawkshaw, 12 Beav. 552; Simpson v. Blackburn, W. N. 1875, p. 157.

(j) Attorney-General v. Brunning, 4 H. & N. 94; reversed on appeal, 8 H. L. Cas. 243; Attorney-General v.

duty (a). And the result will be the same though the conversion is by the terms of the instrument of trust not to take place until after A.'s death (b). [And a will made by a married woman in exercise of a power over the proceeds of sale of real estate given on trust for conversion, and appointing the property, was admitted to probate, though the property was unconverted at her death (c).]

As to rents before conversion.

18. But it has been held as a rule of convenience that if a testator direct his real estate to be sold, and the proceeds laid out and invested in trust for A. for life with remainders over, the tenant for life is entitled to the rents only of the estate from the testator's decease (d); and so, if the sale be directed on the death of a particular person, the tenant for life is entitled only to the rents from the death of that person (e). But a tenant for life without impeachment of waste of the estate to be purchased, though entitled to the rents and profits of the estate to be sold, may not, as part of such profits, cut timber on the estate to be sold, for this would give him double waste (f).

Next of kin have no right where land is at home.

19. The doctrine already explained with reference to the exclusion of the claim of the heir where the money is at home must, it is conceived, equally apply as against next of kin and residuary legatees in cases where the land may be said to be at home. Thus, if A., being entitled to land, covenant on the occasion of his marriage to convey it to trustees, who are to sell and stand possessed of the proceeds upon trusts for the benefit of A. and his wife and the children of the marriage, with an ultimate trust for A. absolutely, here if, in A.'s lifetime and before any conveyance, the wife dies without children, both the land and the benefit of the ultimate trust are united in A., and the land is Lomas, 9 L. R. Ex. 29; [Attorney-General v. Hubbuck, 10 Q. B. D. 488; 13 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 275; In the Goods of Gunn, 9 P. D. 242; Attorney-General v. Marquess of Ailesbury, 14 Q. B. D. 895; 16 Q. B. D. (C.A.) 408; 12 App. Cas. 672;] and see Matson v. Swift, 8 Beav. 368; Custance v. Bradshaw, 4 Hare, 324.

(a) Forbes v. Steven, 10 L. R. Eq. 178; [Stokes v. Ducroz, 38 W. R. 535].

(b) Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. 257.

[(c) In the Goods of Gunn, 9 P. D. 242; but now under the Land Transfer Act, 1897, 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65, s. 1, sub-s. 3, a will of real estate may be admitted to probate.]

(d) Casamajor v. Strode, cited Walker v. Shore, 19 Ves. 390; Hutchin v. Mannington, 1 Ves. jun. 367, per Cur.; [Re Searle, (1900) 2 Ch. 829, per Kekewich, J., adopting the above statement of the law, and pointing out that if the real estate produces nothing, the tenant for life can get nothing, whereas in the case of personalty he would get something upon the principle laid down in Re Earl of Chesterfield's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 643; and see Re Earl of Darnley, (1907) 1 Ch. 159; Re Oliver, (1908) 2 Ch. 74].

(e) Fitzgerald v. Jervoise, 5 Mad. 25, the marginal note of which does not exactly accord with the report itself.

(f) Plymouth v. Archer, 1 B. C. C. 159; and see Burges v. Lamb, 16 Ves. 180.

at home, and upon A.'s death, no claim can, it is conceived, be sustained by those entitled to his personal estate. [So where real estate was settled to the use of the settlor for life, and after his death to a trustee upon trust to sell and hold the proceeds for certain purposes, which failed in the lifetime of the settlor, it was held that the trust for conversion having failed, the property passed as realty under the will of the settlor (a).] But of course the case would be different if land had been actually conveyed to the trustees upon trust for sale, since this would be analogous to a deposit in the hands of trustees, as above supposed, of money to be laid out in land (b); and consequently there would be a complete conversion, of which those entitled to the personal estate of A. would reap the benefit.

Alien may take proceeds of sale.

20. If the proceeds of sale of real estate be given to an alien, the doctrine of conversion applies in his favour. He was always capable of taking for his own benefit, and the Crown was excluded (c).

Proceeds forfeitable for felony if land in fact sold, but not otherwise.

21. [Prior to the abolition of forfeitures for felony it was held that] if a share of proceeds was given to a felon, and the time of sale had arrived, and the sale had been actually made before the felon had worked out his punishment, the Crown was entitled (d). But if the felon had worked out his punishment before the time of sale had arrived, there, as the Crown had no equity to compel the conversion, the discharged felon and not the Crown was entitled (e). Money paid into Court as representing land taken under the provisions of an Act of Parliament, and liable to be laid out again in the purchase of land, retained, as against the Crown, its character of real estate, and was therefore not forfeitable on conviction for felony (f).

Proceeds could not be bequeathed to a charity.

22. It was at one time held that if real estate was stamped with a trust for conversion, and a portion of the proceeds of sale was given to A., and A. died having by his will given his personal estate to charity, his interest in the proceeds of sale was to be regarded as pure personal estate, and the bequest was

[(a) Re Lord Grimthorpe, (1908) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 675.]

(b) See ante, p. 1218.

(c) Du Hourmelin v. Sheldon, 1 Beav. 79; 4 M. & Cr. 525; Sharp v. St Sauveur, 17 W. R. 1002; 20 L. T. N.S. 799, but overruled on another ground, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 343. See now as to aliens, the Naturalisation Act, 1870 (33 Vict. c. 14), and ante, p. 26.

(d) Re Thompson's Trusts, 22 Beav. 506.

(e) Ibid. See now as to felons, the Forfeiture Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 23); and ante, p. 27.

(f) Re Harrop's Estate, 3 Drew. 726.

good (a); but this doctrine has since been overruled (b). And where a testator gave to A. a legacy of 3000*l.*, payable out of the testator's personal estate and the proceeds from the sale of his real estate, and A. bequeathed the 3000*l.* to a charity, it was ruled that the whole bequest was void, and that the charity was not entitled to claim so much of the 3000*l.* as, on an apportionment of the original testator's real and personal estate, would be found payable out of the pure personalty (c); [but in a subsequent case, where a testator gave a share of his residuary personal estate to charity, and the residuary estate consisted of pure personalty, and of a legacy from another testator payable out of the proceeds of his real and personal estate, an apportionment was directed, and the bequest was held to fail only so far as it arose from the portion of the legacy attributable to the realty, or to the personalty savouring of realty, of the testator who bequeathed the legacy (d). Now, as we have already seen (e), the law in this respect has been altered by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891 (f), under which land or personal estate arising from or connected with land, may be given to or for the benefit of any charitable use, by the will of a testator dying after the passing of the Act, viz. the 5th of August, 1891.]

[Secus, now under Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891.]

Locke King's Act.

23. A share of the proceeds to arise from a sale under a trust for conversion is not an interest in land within the Real Estate Charges Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 113), and, therefore, though such share be subject to a mortgage of it made by the testator, a legatee of the share can call for a discharge of the mortgage out of the general personal estate (g); [and a similar conclusion was come to where debentures specifically bequeathed were subject to incumbrance (h); and where the testator directed that his son should have the option of purchasing part of the real estate, the Act did not apply, as the son was not an "heir or devisee" (i). A direction to pay debts, "except the mortgage debts, if any, on B.," out of residue, implies that other mortgage debts are to be paid out of residue, and is a sufficient contrary intention to take the case out

(a) Marsh v. Attorney-General, 2 J. & H. 61; Attorney-General v. Harley, 5 Mad. 321; Shadbolt v. Thornton, 17 Sim. 49.

(b) Brook v. Badley, 4 L. R. Eq. 106; S. C., 3 L. R. Ch. App. 672; Lucas v. Jones, 4 L. R. Eq. 73; [Ashworth v. Munn, 15 Ch. D. (C.A.) 363].

(c) Brook v. Badley, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 672; [approved Re Watts, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 947, affirming S. C., 27 Ch. D. 318; and see Ashworth v. Munn, 15 Ch. D. (C.A.) 363; Re Hume, (1895) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 422, 428].

[(d) Re Hill's Trusts, 16 Ch. D. 173.]

[(e) See ante, p. 106.]

[(f) 54 & 55 Vict. c. 73.]

(g) Lewis v. Lewis, 13 L. R. Eq. 218; [Carson's R. P. Stats., 430].

[(h) Re Chantrell, (1907) W.N. 213.]

[(i) Re Wilson, (1908) 1 Ch. 839, following Given v. Massey, 31 L. R. Ir. 126.]

of the Real Estate Charges Acts (a); but not so a direction that a mortgage debt on estate A. shall be paid out of the proceeds of sale of estate B., as that is only an exoneration of A. to the extent of such proceeds, and not a general indication of intention (b)].

The conversion must be imperative.

24. If real and personal estate be given to trustees upon trust for a class, with a discretionary and not an imperative power to convert the whole into personal estate, and if the trustees make a total or partial conversion, the objects of the trust will take the property as real or personal estate, according to the actual condition in which it is found (c). [But if the power be discretionary, and an order is made in an administration action directing a sale absolutely, the property is converted as from the date of the order (d).

A mere declaration in a will that the residuary real estate shall for the purpose of transmission be impressed with the quality of personal estate from the time of the testator's death, does not amount to a conversion of the real estate into personalty, but the property will, notwithstanding the direction, devolve as realty (e). Nothing short of an absolute and effective trust for sale can in equity create a conversion of realty into personalty (f).]

Case of a sale by mortgagee.

25. If a mortgage deed contain a power of sale with a direction that the surplus proceeds shall be paid to the mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, and the property is sold by the mortgagee, the surplus will be personal or real estate of the mortgagor, according as the sale takes place before or after his death (g). But where an option to purchase has been given to a lessee, and the option is exercised after the lessor's death, such exercise has been held to effect a retrospective conversion (h). The difference is, that in the case of a Case of option of purchasing.

[(a) Re Valpy, (1906) 1 Ch. 531.]

[(b) Re Birch, (1909) 1 Ch. 787.]

(c) Walter v. Maunde, 19 Ves. 424; Atwell v. Atwell, 13 L. R. Eq. 23; Shipperdson v. Tower, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 441; Re Beaumont's Trusts, 32 Beav. 191; Polley v. Seymour, 2 Y. & C. 708; Edwards v. Tuck, 23 Beav. 268; Re Whitty's Trust, 9 Ir. R. Eq. 41; and see Yates v. Yates, 28 Beav. 637; Cowley v. Hartstonge, 1 Dow, 378; Bourne v. Bourne, 2 Hare, 35; Lucas v. Brandreth (No. 1), 28 Beav. 273; Beecroft v. Wilkin, W. N. 1867, p. 117; Re Ibbitson's Estate, 7 L. R. Eq. 226; Miller v. Miller, 13 L. R. Eq. 263. Otherwise, where the power is imperative, Grieveson v. Kirsopp, 2 Keen, 653.

[(d) Hyett v. Mekin, 25 Ch. D. 735; and see ante, pp. 172, 173.]

[(e) Hyett v. Mekin, 25 Ch. D. 735; and see Attorney-General v. Dodd, (1894) 2 Q. B. 150.]

[(f) Goodier v. Edmunds, (1893) 3 Ch. 455, per Stirling, J.; and so where a trust for sale of land for purposes of division is void for remoteness, the beneficiaries may take the land as real estate: Re Appleby, (1903) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 565; and see ante, p. 109.]

(g) Wright v. Rose, 2 Sim. & St. 323; and see Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. 260; Bourne v. Bourne, 2 Hare, 35; Re Cooper's Trusts, 4 De G. M. & G. 768.

(h) Lawes v. Bennett, 1 Cox, 167; Collingwood v. Row, 4 Jur. N.S. 785;

mortgage the mortgagor or his heir can redeem at any time, and therefore the real character of the property continues until the time of actual sale, when the proceeds become the personal estate of the person then entitled to the equity of redemption; but in the option given to a lessee, the lessor has parted with all control over the property and placed it in the power of another to change the nature of it, and if the power be exercised the conversion operates retrospectively, and it becomes personal estate as between all who claim under the lessor. [The rule applies although the option is not exercisable until after the death of the person giving it (a); but where the lessee dies without having exercised the option, the beneficial interest in the lease with the benefit of the option goes as part of his personal estate, and no subsequent exercise of the option will work a retrospective conversion as between the persons entitled to his realty and personalty respectively (b).

The doctrine of Lawes v. Bennett (c), though well established, is not favoured by the Court, and where a testator, on the same day on which he granted a lease conferring an option on the lessee to purchase the fee, made a codicil to his will confirming it in general terms, it was held that he had shown a sufficient intention to pass his interest in the land to the specific devisees thereof named in the will (d).]

Where the mortgagee is a trustee for sale.

26. If, instead of executing a mortgage, the debtor convey the estate to the creditor upon trust to sell and pay himself and hand over the balance to the debtor, his executors and administrators, and a declaration is inserted in the deed that it is not to be considered as in the nature of a mortgage, but as a conveyance to become absolute, in equity as well as at law, immediately after default in payment, here, though the sale is not Weeding v. Weeding, 1 J. & H. 424; Whitmore v. Douglas, cited Ripley v. Waterworth, 7 Ves. 436; Townley v. Bedwell, 14 Ves. 590; [Re Adams and the Kensington Vestry, 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 394; Re Isaacs, (1894) 3 Ch. 506;] but see Drant v. Vause, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 580; Emuss v. Smith, 2 De G. & Sm. 722; [Baldwyn v. Smith, (1900) 1 Ch. 588, (where a direction by a Master in Lunacy that a voidable contract for purchase entered into by a lunatic should be completed, was held to be an election adopting the contract and effecting a conversion). This retrospective conversion is, however, implied only as between the real and personal representatives of the person giving the option, and does not apply as between the vendor and the purchaser, e.g. so as to enable a tenant, after the premises have been burnt down, to exercise an option to purchase, and claim the insurance money as part of his purchase; Edwards v. West, 7 Ch. D. 858; and see Re Isaacs, (1894) 3 Ch. 506, 511].

[(a) Re Isaacs, (1894) 3 Ch. 506.]

[(b) Re Adams and the Kensington Vestry, 24 Ch. D. 199; 27 Ch. D. (C.A.) 394.]

[(c) See ante, p. 1227, note (h).]

[(d) Re Pyle, (1895) 1 Ch. 724.]

made in the debtor's lifetime, yet the property is converted into personalty, and belongs, subject to the charge, to the debtor's personal representative (a).

[Where in a mortgage with power of sale, the trust of surplus proceeds of sale was for the mortgagor "his heirs or assigns," and the mortgagor became lunatic after the execution of the mortgage but before a sale, and so continued until his death intestate, the surplus proceeds, notwithstanding the terms of the trust, were regarded as personalty (b).

If a number of persons be associated together for the purposes of an undertaking, and they agree among themselves that land shall be bought and vested in trustees upon trusts which shall give the members no equitable interest in the lands, but only an interest in profits to be made by the use of them, the members will have no equitable interest in the land so purchased, but only an interest of the nature of personalty in the profits of the undertaking, and will not thereby acquire the right to the county franchise (c).]

Neither heir nor next of kin can claim under the will of an ancestor by virtue of the doctrine of conversion.

27. In the above discussion of the doctrine of conversion, it may be taken to be generally immaterial whether the instrument which directs the money to be laid out in land or the land to be converted into money is a deed, or writing, or will. But it may be useful to point out, in reference to claims by an heir at law or by next of kin, that where the instrument effecting the conversion is a will, neither the testator's heir at law as such, nor his next of kin as claiming under the intestacy, can establish any right by virtue of the doctine of conversion (d). The conversion directed is a conversion for the purposes of the will only, and so far as the trusts declared by the will respecting the property directed to be converted may fail, the property devolves, according to its original character of realty or personalty, in conformity with the principles established by the decisions respecting resulting trusts (e).

But heir or next of kin may claim as persona designata.

28. But of course either the heir at law or next of kin may claim as persona designata. Thus, where a testator bequeathed a sum of money to be laid out on lands to be settled to certain

(a) Re Underwood, 3 K. & J. 745.

[(b) Re Grange, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 20.]

[(c) Per Lord Coleridge, C.J., Grove and Cave, JJ., Watson v. Black, 16 Q. B. D. 270.]

(d) This point seems to have escaped Lord Loughborough's notice in Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 170, though the cases upon resulting trusts were cited; see Ib. p. 173.

(e) See ante, pp. 164 et seq.

uses, with the ultimate remainder to his own right heirs, and the prior limitations failed, the heir, on a bill filed against the executor of his ancestor, was held entitled to the money (a); but here the title of the heir was not as heir, but as purchaser under the will.

Election.

In connection with the subject of conversion, it is to be observed that where land is to be converted into money, or money is to be converted into land, the notional conversion will subsist only until some cestui que trust, who is competent to elect, intimates his intention to take the property in its original character (b). The Court will not compel a conversion against the will of the absolute owner; for should the conversion be made, he would immediately reconvert it, and equity will do nothing in vain (c).

Upon this subject we shall consider :—I. What persons are capable of electing; and, II. How the act of the election may be manifested.

Who may elect.

I. Who may elect.

Infants, lunatics.

1. In respect of personal incapacity, an infant (d) or lunatic (e) has no power to make election.

Power of feme covert over money-land.

2. A feme covert, although [as regards property not settled to her separate use, or belonging to her as separate property by statute,] she has no power to elect by act in pais (f) like a person who is sui juris, yet may, by exercise of the powers of disposition given her by law over money to be laid out in land, or land directed to be turned into money, alter the nature of the property, and so effect an election.

(a) Robinson v. Knight, 2 Eden, 155.

(b) Harcourt v. Seymour, 2 Sim. N.S. 45; Cookson v. Reay, 5 Beav. 22; 12 Cl. & Fin. 121; Dixon v. Gayfere, 17 Beav. 433.

(c) Seely v. Jago, 1 P. W. 389.

(d) Carr v. Ellison, 2 B. C. C. 56; Earlom v. Saunders, Amb. 241; Thornton v. Hawley, 10 Ves. 129, 139; Van v. Barnett, 19 Ves. 102; Seeley v. Jago, 1 P. W. 389; Re Harrop's Estate, 3 Drew. 734; and see Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Mer. 301.

(e) Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Mer. 296.

(f) The election here treated of must not be confounded with that which a feme covert is bound to make under the general doctrine of election; as to which, see Barrow v. Barrow, 4 K. & J. 415, 419; Griggs v. Gibson, 1 L. R. Eq. 685; Cooper v. Cooper, 7 L. R. H. L. 53; [Smith v. Lucas, 18 Ch. D. 531; Wilder v. Pigott, 22 Ch. D. 263; Re Wheatley, 27 Ch. D. 606; Re Vardon's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 124; Harle v. Jarman, (1895) 2 Ch. 419; Re Hodson, (1894) 2 Ch. 421; Greenhill v. North British and Mercantile Ins. Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 474; Hamilton v. Hamilton, (1892) 1 Ch. 396; Haynes v. Foster, (1901) 1 Ch. 361. As to the power of the Court to elect, on behalf of a lunatic, to comply with a condition in a will under which he may acquire a greater estate by surrendering a lesser one, see Re Earl of Sefton, (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 378].

How feme covert might elect to take money-land under the old law.

3. "Although," says Lord Hardwicke, "a feme covert cannot alter the nature of money to be laid out in land by contract or deed, yet if the money be invested in land (and sometimes sham purchases have been made for the purpose (a)), she may then levy a fine on the land, and give it to her husband, or anybody else. There is a way, also, of doing this without laying the money out in land, and that is, by coming into a Court of Equity and consenting to take the money as personal estate; for upon her being present in Court, and being examined (as a feme covert upon fine is), her consent binds the money articled to be laid out in land as much as a fine at law would the land, and she may dispose of it to the husband or anybody else. And the reason of it is that at law, money so articled to be laid out in land is considered barely as money until an actual investment, and the equity of this Court alone views it in the light of real estate; and, therefore, this Court can act upon its own creature, and do what a fine at common law can upon land" (b). And, at a later date, Lord Hardwicke's views were ratified by express decision; for where money was devised to be laid out in land for a feme covert in tail, with reversion to her in fee, and a bill was filed by her, it was declared that she was entitled to the money, and a commission was ordered to be issued to examine her, separate and apart from her husband, touching the disposition thereof (c). [So in a more recent case, money in Court which had arisen from a sale under the Partition Acts, and to shares whereof married women were entitled, was, upon their being separately examined and consenting, distributed as personal estate (d); and where the share of the married woman is less than 200*l*. the Court will dispense with her separate examination (e). But an election by a feme covert to confirm a marriage settlement cannot be inferred from the mere fact of her concurring in an appointment of new trustees thereof under the usual power (f).]

How she might elect to take land directed to be sold.

4. Previously to the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833, if a feme covert was entitled to the proceeds of land directed to be sold, she

(a) See Henley v. Webb, 5 Mad. 407.

(b) Oldham v. Hughes, 2 Atk. 453.

(c) Binford v. Bawden, 1 Ves. jun. 512; [and from a subsequent report of this case, 2 Ves. 38, it appears that the feme covert on being examined elected to have the money paid to her husband; and see Standering v. Hall, 11 Ch. D. 652].

[(d) Standering v. Hall, 11 Ch. D. 652; see ante, p. 964.]

[(e) Wallace v. Greenwood, 16 Ch. D. 362; but see Re Shaw, 49 L. J. N.S. Ch. 213. In some recent cases, on the husband consenting to payment to the wife on her separate receipt, the amount has been increased to £500: Seton, 6th ed. p. 933.]

[(f) Haywood v. Tidy, 63 L. T. N.S. 679.]

and her husband might have made a title to the proceeds of sale by fine (a); and by the same method, as it would seem, might have made themselves absolute owners, and have called for a conveyance, and by this means have elected to take the land.

Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833.

5. By 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 74, ss. 40, 71, 77 (b), a married woman is enabled, with the concurrence of her husband, and with the formalities required by the Act, to dispose of any estate at law or in equity, or any interest, charge, lien, or incumbrance in or upon lands, or money to be laid out in a purchase of lands, or to relinquish or release any power over the same, as if she were a feme sole; so that in the case of money liable to be laid out in land, a feme covert can, through the medium of the power of disposition conferred by the Act, virtually elect to take the money.

Special power of married woman under Fines and Recoveries Act, over money which is an interest in land.

6. And the Act enables a married woman not only to dispose of property which, though personal estate in fact, is real estate in equity, but also of property which is in equity personal estate, provided only it be an interest in land; and this, although according to the ordinary doctrines of the Court (c), the married woman would, by reason of her interest being reversionary, have no such power of disposition. Thus, where real estate is devised upon trust for sale in terms amounting to a conversion out and out, and a married woman takes a share of the proceeds, she can, under the statute, dispose of her share, even though reversionary, as being an interest in land (d). And it is conceived that the same principle must apply to the case of a reversionary money legacy raisable out of land, notwithstanding the doubts entertained by Lord Justice (then Vice-Chancellor) Knight Bruce, in the case of Hobby v. Collins (e). But the Fines and Recoveries Act ceases to apply when the money has been actually raised (f).

[Power of married woman to elect as to separate property.]

[As a married woman has an absolute power of disposition over property settled to her separate use, or belonging to her as her separate property under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (g), she can elect to take it either as land or money as if she were sui juris (h).]

(a) May v. Roper, 4 Sm. 360; Forbes v. Adams, 9 Sim. 462.

(b) Extended to contingent interests by the Real Property Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 106), s. 6.

(c) See ante, p. 958.

(d) Briggs v. Chamberlain, 11 Hare, 69; Tuer v. Turner, 20 Beav. 560; Bowyer v. Woodman, 3 L. R. Eq. 313; [Re Jakeman's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 344; and see Franks v. Bollans, 3 L. R. Ch. App. 717; Miller v. Collins, (1896) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 573.]

(e) 4 De G. & Sm. 289; and see observations of Lord St. Leonards in his essay on the Real Property Statutes, 240, [and of Lindley, L.J., in Miller v. Collins, sup.].

(f) Re Alge, 2 Ir. R. Eq. 485.

[(g) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.]

[(h) Re Davidson, 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 341.]

A person may elect, subject to a charge.

7. If A. convey an estate to a trustee in trust to sell and pay to the trustee a certain amount, and to pay the balance to A., his executors, administrators, and assigns as personalty, it is competent to A., as the person entitled subject to the charge, to elect to take it as realty; and if he do so, and the trustee sells after A.'s decease, the heir of A. will take the surplus (a).

[Election subject to rights of third persons to insist on a sale.]

[Where it is sought to establish an election to take in specie, and free from a trust to convert, by a person who is only entitled so to elect subject to the rights of third persons to insist upon a sale, it must be shown that such persons have assented (b).]

Remainderman.

8. How far a remainderman may elect, has not been definitely settled. It seems clear, so far, that the remainderman may elect for the purposes of disposition; that is, being absolutely entitled to the interest in remainder, he may deal with it by act inter vivos, or by will, by any denomination that he pleases; and if, therefore, in the case of money impressed with the character of land, he chooses to call it personal estate, it will pass by his will under the description of personal estate (c). But should the remainderman declare an intention of taking the money as personalty, and then die, in the lifetime of the tenant for life, intestate, will the money devolve, as between the real and personal representative, as realty or personalty? If the tenant for life call for a conversion, and the money is actually laid out on a purchase of land, it is of course too late then for the remainderman to elect to take it as money; for, as the property is now in the shape of land, the policy of the law will not allow him to impress upon it the character of personalty. Supposing the remainderman to elect to take the property as money, before the actual conversion, and then to die intestate, and after his death the tenant for life calls for a conversion, and the money is laid out in a purchase of land accordingly, it is conceived, that, as the election was made subject to another's right to call for a conversion, which right was exercised, the act of election is defeated, and the property will devolve as land (d). Should the remainderman elect to take the money as such, and then die intestate, and the tenant for life never calls for a conversion, it may be argued that, as the remainderman is absolutely entitled, subject to another's right to

(a) Re Gardiner's Trust, 1 Eq. Rep. 57; Mutlow v. Bigg, 1 Ch. D. (C.A.) 385; [Meek v. Devenish, 6 Ch. D. 566].

[(b) Re Douglas and Powell's Contract, (1902) 2 Ch. 296.]

(c) Lingen v. Sowray, 1 P. Wms. 172; Harcourt v. Seymour, 2 Sim. N.S. 12; Re Skeggs, 2 De G. J. & S. 533.

(d) Holloway v. Radcliffe, 23 Beav. 163. This was the case of an undivided share, but the principle was the same. But see Re Gardiner's Trust 1 Eq. Rep. 57.

require conversion which was never exercised, the money, being still found in that shape, should be discharged from the impress of realty, and be deemed to have that character in which the remainderman was desirous of taking it (a). Such a doctrine, however, is open to the objection that during the life of the tenant for life the nature of the remainderman's interest, whether real or personal, would be uncertain, and dependent on the option of the tenant for life; and the principle acted upon in a recent case appears to be, that there can be no election by a person whose interest is a limited one or contingent at the time (b).

[A person contingently entitled may make a contingent election.]

[9. But in a more recent case, where real estate was devised to trustees upon trust for sale, and the proceeds were, subject to a charge, given in a contingent event to the testator's son absolutely, it was held that the son, pending the contingency, was competent to make an election, which would be operative in the event of the contingency happening before or upon his death, to take the estate as realty (c).]

Election where an estate is to be sold or money is to be laid out on land, and several parties are interested.

10. Where an estate is directed to be sold, the proceeds to be divided amongst several persons, no one singly can elect that his own undivided share shall not be disposed of, but shall remain realty (d), for the other undivided shares will not sell so beneficially in proportion as if the estate were entire (e); but if money be directed to be laid out in lands to be settled on A., B., and C., as tenants in common, any one of them may elect to take his own third as money, for two-thirds may be invested just as advantageously as the whole sum (f).

Tenant in tail may elect.

11. Sound principle would require that a tenant in tail of lands to be purchased should not be allowed to elect, because the interests of the issue and the remainderman, who both take by title paramount, would otherwise be prejudiced. But the old rule appears to have been, that a tenant in tail might in every case have elected, and on filing a bill would have been entitled to the money (g); and the principle upon which the practice was

(a) See Re Skeggs, 2 De G. J. & Sm. 533; Stead v. Newdigate, 2 Mer. 531; Gillies v. Longlands, 4 De G. & Sm. 379; Re Pedder's Settlement, 5 De G. M. & G. 890; Re Stewart, 1 Sm. & G. 32.

(b) Sisson v. Giles, 3 De G. J. & S. 614; [and see Walrond v. Rosslyn, 11 Ch. D. 640; Re Douglas and Powell's Contract, (1902) 2 Ch. 296].

[(c) Meek v. Devenish, 6 Ch. D. 566.]

(d) Holloway v. Radcliffe, 23 Beav. 163; Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 B. C. C. 500, per Sir T. Sewell; Deeth v. Hale, 2 Moll. 317; and see Smith v. Claxton, 4 Mad. 494.

(e) Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 59; Holloway v. Radcliffe, 23 Beav. 163; and see Trower v. Knightley, 6 Mad. 134.

(f) Seeley v. Jago, 1 P. W. 389; Walker v. Denne, 2 Ves. jun. 182, per Lord Loughborough.

(g) Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 176, per Lord Hardwicke.

grounded was said to be, that equity will do nothing in vain, and it were useless to direct an actual purchase and settlement when the tenant in tail the next moment might dispose of the fee simple. Lord Cowper, however, in the case of Colwal v. Shadwell (a), took the distinction, that where the remainder in fee was not vested in the tenant in tail himself, but was limited over to a stranger, there, as the absolute fee could only be acquired by a recovery, which was a thing of time, and could not be suffered in vacation, the remainderman should not lose his chance; and as in that case the tenant in tail did actually die before the recovery was suffered, it showed the remainderman's interest in so glaring a light, that it established the precedent ever afterwards (b). But even then the money would have been decreed to the tenant in tail, provided the remainderman had waived his right and consented to the payment (c).

Lord Chancellor King's doubt.

12. In Eyre's case (d), Lord Chancellor King was for extending the same protection to the issue. "I cannot see," he said, "why I should not have the like regard to the issue in tail as for the remainderman. It is possible the tenant in tail, before he can light on a purchase and settle it, may die, leaving issue, and this is a chance of which I would not deprive such issue." And in Speaker Onslow's case (e), he declared his adherence to the same opinion. But the rule which had been established before his time (f) of paying the fund to the tenant in tail where the uses might be barred by fine, but not where they could only be barred by recovery, appears, notwithstanding his Lordship's authority, to have been revived by his successors (g).

Tenant in tail may elect without suit.

13. And the election of the tenant in tail need not necessarily have been made in a suit, but might have been expressed by act in pais, as if tenant in tail with remainder to himself had received the money of the trustee, or if tenant in tail with remainder to a stranger had received it of the trustee with the consent of the remainderman (h).

(a) Cited Chaplin v. Horner, 1 P. W. 485.

(b) See Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 176; Talbot v. Whitfield, Bunb. 204.

(c) See Trafford v. Boehm, 3 Atk. 440, and the cases cited under note (a) p. 1238, post.

(d) 3 P. W. 13.

(e) 3 P. W. 14, note (G).

(f) See Benson v. Benson, 1 P. W. 130, note (1).

(g) Trafford v. Boehm, 3 Atk. 447, per Lord Hardwicke; Cunningham v. Moody, 1 Ves. 176, per eundem; Binford v. Bawden, 1 Ves. jun. 512; Holdernesse v. Carmarthen, 1 B. C. C. 382, per Lord Thurlow; and see the preamble of 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 56.

(h) Trafford v. Boehm, 3 Atk. 448; and see Earl of Bath v. Earl of Bradford, 2 Ves. 590; but see Pearson v. Lane, 17 Ves. 106.

Observation of Lord Thurlow.

Lord Thurlow, indeed, once said: "If the fund be outstanding in trustees, and it is necessary to come hither in order to obtain it, the money, when obtained, will be personal property; and so it would also, if the trustees pay it without suit. That is, supposing the estate, when purchased, would be a fee simple, for it would be otherwise in case of its being an estate tail" (a). But the concluding remark must have been intended (as Mr Serjeant Hill, in a note on the passage, has justly observed (b)) to apply not to every tenant in tail, as, not to tenant in tail with remainder to himself in fee, but only to tenant in tail, with remainder to a stranger; for, in a subsequent case, where the tenant in tail had executed an assignment of two sums of money directed to be laid out in lands, his lordship said: "As to the 500*l.*, the assignor was tenant in tail, remainder to a stranger, remainder to himself in fee; as to the 1,000*l.*, he was tenant in tail, with remainder in fee to himself. I am clear, that in regard to the 1,000*l.* he had the absolute dominion over it, having the immediate remainder in fee; but as to the 500*l.*, I am equally clear the other way, because of the intermediate remainder" (c).

39 & 40 G. 3. c. 56.

14. By 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 56 (d), the inability of the tenant in tail with remainders over of money to be laid out in the purchase of land to obtain possession of the money, except through the medium of a fictitious purchase (e), was removed; and the Court was empowered, on the petition of the first tenant in tail of such money-land, and of the parties (if any) having antecedent estates therein (with a provision for the separate examination of married women), to order the money to be paid to the petitioners or as they should appoint (f); so that a kind of statutory power of election was thus conferred on tenants in tail.

Fines and Recoveries Act

15. By the Fines and Recoveries Act, 1833 (g), a tenant in tail may, with the consent of the protector of the settlement, if any, dispose absolutely of the lands entailed at any time, whether in term or vacation, and by the 71st section of the statute it is enacted, that money subject to be invested in the purchase of lands to be settled so (h) that any person, if the lands were

(a) Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 236.

(b) Ib. note (a), Lord Henley's edition.

(c) Holdernesse v. Carmarthen, 1 B. C. C. 382.

(d) Repealed and extended by 7 G. 4. c. 45, which in its turn was repealed by 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 74, s. 70.

(e) See Henley v. Webb, 5 Mad. 407.

(f) See 5 Ves. 12, note (8), as to the qualification introduced by the Court in making orders for payment under this Act.

(g) 3 & 4 W. 4. c. 74, s. 71.

[(h) These words comprise money which is subject to be invested in land either presently or in futuro, purchased, would have an estate tail therein, shall be treated as the lands to be purchased, and the previous clauses of the Act shall apply to such money, as if it were directed to be laid out in the purchase of freehold lands, and such lands were actually purchased and settled.

Whether tenant in tail of money liable to be laid out in land may still elect to take the money.

16. With respect to this enactment, a doubt suggests itself whether, even at the present day, a tenant in tail, with remainder to himself in fee, may not elect to take in its original character money which is liable to be laid out in the purchase of lands, and declare such election either by the institution of a suit or by act in pais. It is true that under the 71st section of the Act the tenant in tail may at any time defeat his issue and the remaindermen by a deed executed with the proper formalities; but what is there to prevent him from exercising a power founded upon principles independent of the statute, and so acquiring the fee simple by the mere act of election? It may be said that the old rule, which made election a bar to the issue, might have been grounded on this—that, because no fine or recovery could have been levied or suffered of money (a), the Court, on that account, held election to have the effect of a bar, lest the tenant in tail should lose the power, which the law intended him, of defeating the settlement, but that, since by the Fines and Recoveries Act a tenant in tail of money may bar his issue and the remainderman by the same formalities as if the lands were actually purchased and settled, the same indulgence ought not now to be shown. But to this it may be answered, that the tenant in tail was allowed to elect, not because the tenant in tail of money had a right to exercise the same powers of ownership as a tenant in tail of lands, but for the purpose of avoiding circuity. Had the former been the principle, the tenant in tail might equally have barred the remainderman as the issue; but for the destruction of remainders an actual settlement was necessary, and a sham purchase was often resorted to for the purpose (b).

Practice of the Court as to moneys paid in by railway companies.

17. The practice of the Court in dealing with sums paid in by railway companies as compensation for portions of entailed land taken by them, went beyond any rule previously established, and consequently the fact that the direction for investment of the money is deferred until the death of a tenant for life, does not prevent the execution of an effectual disentailing assurance; Re Harvey, (1901) 2 Ch. 290.]

(a) See Benson v. Benson, 1 P. W. 130; Edwards v. Countess of Warwick, 2 P. W. 174; Maynwaring v. Maynwaring, 3 Atk. 413.

(b) See —— v. Marsh, cited Chaplin v. Horner, 1 P. W. 485, note (†); Maynwaring v. Maynwaring, 3 Atk. 413; Henley v. Webb, 5 Mad. 407.

for the Court was in the habit of ordering the money to be paid to the tenant in tail without the execution of a disentailing deed, and without inquiring who was entitled in remainder (a). But subsequently Lord Selborne, sitting for M.R., refused to order payment out of Court except on production of a disentailing deed in the ordinary way (b).

II. How election may be manifested.

How election may be made.

1. The act of election may either be presumed by the Court or be expressly declared.

Presumption.

2. The presumption may arise from slight circumstances of conduct (c). Thus it will be sufficient, where land is to be converted into money, if the cestui que trust enter into possession and take the title-deeds into his own custody, for the trustees cannot recover the deeds from the cestui que trust, and they cannot sell without them (d); or if the cestui que trust merely keep the estate for a length of time unsold (e); but in one case a period of two years was considered not to be sufficient indication of such an intention (f), [and the mere fact of keeping the property unsold for a long time will not be sufficient if there was a good reason for not attempting to sell, as, for instance, the existence of an over-riding right of pre-emption in a lessee (g)]. So, where money is to be turned into land, it will be sufficient if Possession of the land.

[Where good reason for not selling.]

(a) Sowry v. Sowry, 6 Jur. N.S. 337; Re South Eastern Railway Company, 30 Beav. 215; Re Tyler's Estate, 8 W. R. 540; Nottley v. Palmer, 1 L. R. Eq. 241; Re Row, 17 L. R. Eq. 300; Re Holden, 1 H. & M. 445 (where the amount of the fund in question was 1394*l.* Consols); Re Watson, 10 Jur. N.S. 1011 (in which case the Lords Justices said they could not understand how the Court could have first come to the conclusion, in the face of the statute, that the money could be paid out without the execution and enrolment of a disentailing deed, but the practice was useful and convenient, and saved expense). Ex parte Maunsell, 2 Ir. Rep. Eq. 32; Re Wood's Settled Estates, 20 L. R. Eq. 372. [In Stead v. Harper, W.N. (1896) p. 46, a small sum was paid out without a disentailing deed.]

(b) Re Butler's Will, 16 L. R. Eq. 479; and see Re Broadwood's Settled Estates, 1 Ch. D. 438; Re Limerick and Ennis Railway Company, Ex parte Smyth, 10 Ir. R. Eq. 66; [Re Reynolds, 3 Ch. D. (C.A.) 61].

(c) See Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 238; Van v. Barnett, 19 Ves. 109; Bradish v. Gee, Amb. 229; Dixon v. Gayfere, 17 Beav. 433; [Re Gordon, 6 Ch. D. 531; Re Douglas and Powell's Contract, (1902) 2 Ch. 296].

(d) Davies v. Ashford, 15 Sim. 42; and see Padbury v. Clark, 2 Mac. & G. 298.

(e) See Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Mer. 301; Dixon v. Gayfere, 17 Beav. 433; Griesbach v. Fremantle, 17 Beav. 314; Mutlow v. Bigg, 1 Ch. D. (C.A.) 385; [Re Gordon, 6 Ch. D. 531; Re Davidson, 11 Ch. D. (C.A.) 341; Potter v. Dudeney, 56 L. T. N.S. 395].

(f) Kirkman v. Miles, 13 Ves. 338; Cookson v. Cookson, 12 Cl. & Fin. 121; and see Brown v. Brown, 33 Beav. 399; Parker v. Williams, 15 W. R. 1006; but see Crabtree v. Bramble, 3 Atk. 688; Inwood v. Twyne, 2 Eden, 148.

[(g) Re Lewis, 20 Ch. D. 654.]

the cestui que trust receive the money from the trustee (a); but not if he merely receive the annual income, though for a considerable length of time (b). Receipt of the money.

3. It was determined by Lord Harcourt that a cestui que trust had divested money of its real quality by causing the securities to be changed, and the trust to be declared to himself and his executors; for this, he observed, was tantamount to saying the money should not go to the heir (c); and vice versâ, where land was to be converted into money, it was held by Lord Hardwicke, that a lease by the cestui que trust, reserving a rent to her heirs and assigns, was evidence of an intention to continue the property as real estate (d). Change of securities and trust declared for the "executors." Grant of a lease and reservation of rent to the "heirs."

4. To constitute an act of election it is not necessary that the person entitled, as, for instance, to money to be laid out in land, should know that but for the act of election it would pass as land, but it is sufficient if the Court can collect the intention that, with or without such knowledge, he meant the money to be dealt with and treated as money (e). What knowledge required for election.

5. A person may express his election even by parol. This, at least, was the opinion of Lord Macclesfield (f), and apparently was actually decided in the case of Chaloner v. Butcher (g), in which the husband having declared that the money should not be laid out in land, the Court held that, if the question concerned the right of a third person, the declarations of the husband ought not to be admitted, but, as it was between his personal and real representative, they should be read. And both Lord Thurlow (h) and Lord Eldon (i) seem to have lent their sanction to the same doctrine, so that an obiter dictum of Lord Hardwicke to the contrary (j), though supported by so illustrious a name, must be considered as overruled. Election expressed. Parol declaration when admissible.

6. Where money bore the notional impress of realty, the cestui que trust might, until the Wills Act, 1837, have bequeathed it as so much money to be laid out in land, and the money would have How money to be turned into land affected by cestui que trust's will.

(a) Pulteney v. Lord Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 238, per Lord Thurlow; Trafford v. Boehm, 3 Atk. 440; and see Rook v. Worth, 1 Ves. 461.

(b) Gillies v. Longlands, 4 De G. & Sm. 372; and see Re Pedder's Settlement, 5 De G. M. & G. 890.

(c) Lingen v. Sowray, 1 P. W. 172; and see Cookson v. Cookson, 12 Cl. & Fin. 121; Harcourt v. Seymour, 2 Sim. N.S. 12.

(d) Crabtree v. Bramble, 3 Atk. 680, see 688, 689; and see Griesbach v. Fremantle, 17 Beav. 314; [and, as to the case of a mortgagee, Re Grange, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 20, ante, p. 1229].

(e) Harcourt v. Seymour, 2 Sim. N.S. 12, see p. 46.

(f) Edwards v. Countess of Warwick, 2 P. W. 174.

(g) Cited Crabtree v. Bramble, 3 Atk. 685.

(h) Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 237.

(i) Wheldale v. Partridge, 8 Ves. 236.

(j) Bradish v. Gee, Amb 229.

passed, though the will was not attested acccording to the Statute of Frauds (a); for the will operated first by way of election, and then by way of bequest; but now by the Wills Act (b), the same formalities are required for the testamentary disposition of personal as of real estate.

SECTION II

THE ACT OF THE TRUSTEE SHALL NOT ALTER THE NATURE OF THE CESTUI QUE TRUST'S ESTATE

Power of the trustee at law and in equity.

1. At law the trustee is the absolute owner of the land or fund, and therefore may exercise any control or dominion over it—may convert realty into personalty, or personalty into realty: but equity, which regards the trustee as a mere instrument for the execution of the trust, will not permit the interest of the cestui que trust to be affected by any act of misconduct, but, as often as any wrongful conversion is made, will transfer to the new interest the quality and character of the old — will treat real estate as personal, and personal as real, as the circumstances of the case may require. [Thus where pure personal estate is given upon trust for one for life, with remainder to charities, and the trustees are empowered to invest on real securities, and do so during the life of the tenant for life, their act will not affect in any way the validity of the gift in favour of the charities (c).]

Where the cestui que trust is sui juris.

2. But although every such change in the nature of the property as is not made either in pursuance of the trust or by the authority of the beneficial owner, must in general be considered a misfeasance, the dealings of the Court (under the respective jurisdictions of lunacy and chancery), and of committees, guardians, and trustees, with the property of lunatics and infants, require particular notice.

Power of the trustee where the cestui que trust is a lunatic.

3. It has been laid down as a general rule in lunacy, that the Court will not alter the condition of the lunatic's property to the prejudice of his successors; but the maxim must be received with the qualification, except it be for the benefit of the lunatic

(a) See the cases cited, Lechmere v. Earl of Carlisle, 3 P. W. 221, note (C); and see Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 B. C. C. 235, 236; Sharp v. St Sauveur, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 343.

(b) 7 W. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 26.

[(c) Re Hamilton, (1896) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 617.]

himself (a). The Chancellor takes the advice and assistance of the presumptive next of kin and presumptive heir at law in the care and management of the property (b); but through all the cases runs this prevailing principle—that the object of attention is exclusively and entirely the interest of the lunatic, without any regard to those who may have eventual rights of succession (c). If the Court considered how the representatives would be affected, there would always be among them an emulation of each other, and their speculations, if the administrator were to engage in them, would mislead his attention as to the interest of the only person he was bound to protect; there would be a continued running account between the personal and real estates; the Chancellor would be perpetually looking to the right or left, and the interest of the lunatic would be committed in favour of those who have no immediate interest, and whose contingent interests are left to the ordinary course of events (d).

The interest of the lunatic the exclusive object.

4. Upon this principle, where a lunatic was seised ex parte paternâ of estate A., and ex parte maternâ of estate B., and the latter was subject to a mortgage, the money arising from a fall of timber upon A. was directed to be applied in discharge of the mortgage upon B.; and upon a question between the respective heirs, it was held that the representative who succeeded to A. was not entitled to any recompense from the representative who inherited B. (e).

Timber cut on estate ex parte paternâ applied to relief of estate ex parte maternâ.

5. So, if the lunatic be considerably indebted, and it appears that his maintenance would be better provided for, and his advantage promoted, by the sale of a real estate inconvenient and ill-conditioned, instead of exhausting the personalty, the Court, on a proper representation of the case, would have no difficulty in making an order to that effect (f).

Sale of lunatic's real estate.

[6. And where a lunatic became absolutely entitled to funds which were vested in trustees upon trust to lay them out in the purchase of land, but which were actually invested on mortgage,

[Getting in money directed to be laid out in land.]

(a) Ex parte Grimstone, cited Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 4 B. C. C. 235, note, per Lord Apsley.

(b) Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 123, per Lord Eldon.

(c) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 72; and S. C., 4 B. C. C. 233, per Lord Thurlow; and see Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 462; Ex parte Grimstone, Amb. 708; S. C., cited 2 Ves. jun. 75, note (x), and 4 B. C. C. 235, note; Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 123; Dormer's case, 2 P. W. 265; Ex parte Chumley, 1 Ves. jun. 297; Ex parte Baker, 6 Ves. 8.

(d) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 72, 73; S. C., 4 B. C. C. 233, 234, per Lord Loughborough.

(e) Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 123, per Lord Eldon; but see Re Leeming, 3 De G. F. & J. 43; post, p. 1244.

(f) Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 124, per Lord Eldon.

and the mortgage money was got in pursuant to an order in the lunacy expressing that it was for the benefit of the lunatic to call it in, and was thereafter dealt with in the lunacy with other moneys admittedly personalty, it was held that the fund had been reconverted into personalty (a).]

Fall of timber.

7. So, timber which ought to be cut on a lunatic's estate may be felled by the direction of the Court, and the proceeds may either be applied to the redemption of the land-tax, or payment of debts (b), or to any other purpose which the true interest of the lunatic may require; or if not wanted for any particular purpose, will go to the next of kin as personalty, and not to the heir as part of the realty (c).

Action of trespass.

8. So, if it be necessary for the interest of the real estate to bring an action of trespass, resort may be had with that object to the lunatic's personal fund (d).

Improvements.

9. By the same rule the money of the lunatic may be laid out in improvements (e); and the Chancellor, acting tanquam bonus pater-familias, may take every opportunity of ameliorating the estate by fair and ordinary means, such as draining, inclosure, &c. (f), or erecting a steam engine for the purpose of working a coal mine (g), but must not engage in risks and dangerous adventures (h). And of course the personalty may be drawn upon for necessary expenses, as repairs (i), fines for renewal of leases, or admission to copyholds (j). But where the committees of a lunatic, who were entitled to the estate themselves after his death, laid Necessary expenses of real estate.

[(a) M'Donogh v. Nolan, 9 L. R. Ir. 262.]

(b) Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 119; Bevan's case, cited Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 455, 457; Re Mary Smith (a lunatic), 10 L. R. Ch. App. 84, per L. J. James.

(c) Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 453; S. C., 3 B. C. C. 510; Oxenden v. Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 69; S. C., 4 B. C. C. 231; Shelley's case, cited 1 Ves. jun. 457; Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 124, per Lord Eldon. The dictum in Marquis of Anandale v. Marchioness of Anandale, 2 Ves. 384, must be considered as overruled.

(d) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 72, per Lord Loughborough.

(e) Sergeson v. Sealey, 2 Atk. 414, per Lord Hardwicke; Dormer's case, 2 P. W. 262; [Re Gist, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 881].

(f) See Justice De Grey's argument in Ex parte Grimstone, cited Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 75, note.

(g) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 73.

(h) Ib. per Lord Loughborough.

(i) Sergeson v. Sealey, 2 Atk. 414, per Lord Hardwicke; Ex parte Grimstone, Amb. 708: S. C., cited Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 4 B. C. C. 237, note, per Lord Apsley; 2 Ves. jun. 72, per Lord Loughborough; Newport's case, cited Ib.; [Re Gist, 5 Ch. D. (C.A.) 881;] Re Badcock, 4 M. & Cr. 440. But it was said in the last case, that "if the money were laid out in a purchase of land, or, what was the same thing, in building a farmhouse, it would be right that the sum so laid out should retain its character of personalty."

(j) Justice De Grey's argument in Ex parte Grimstone, ubi sup.; but see Degg's case, cited Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 4 B. C. C. 235, note.

out a sum in purchasing timber for repairs, when they ought to have cut timber on the estate, Lord Hardwicke said that, having done so merely to serve their own interest, they should make good the disbursement to the lunatic's next of kin (a).

[Where the estate duty on the realty of a lunatic was paid out of the personalty, so that any charge on the realty in favour of the personalty was extinguished before the death of the lunatic, it was held that the next of kin had no right to have a charge on the realty for the amount of the duty, there being no interest in the lunatic requiring the charge to be kept alive, and no person who could require it to be raised (b).] [Estate duty.]

10. In the preceding cases the conversion has been for the clear benefit of the lunatic, but in general the Court will not lightly change the condition of the property, but will only act on pressing and urgent occasions (c): it will interfere with great caution, and do nothing that is unnecessary or uncalled for (d). The Court will not buy and sell for the lunatic (e); and therefore, if the committee of a lunatic wantonly, and of his own head, lay out money upon land, or turn land into money, the Court will not suffer such fraudulent management to affect the rights of the representatives (f), but will transfer to the heir what ought to have remained real estate, and to the next of kin what ought to have remained personal estate (g). [So, where a lunatic was tenant in tail in possession of large estates, upon which it was desirable to expend a considerable sum for repairs and improvements, and he was also entitled to a fund in Court sufficient for the required outlay, it was held that the expenses of the repairs and improvements on the settled estates ought to be raised by mortgage or charge of those estates, and that the fund in Court ought not to be applied for the purpose (h);] and where a mortgage upon the lands of the lunatic is discharged out of his personal estate, though it was formerly held that the next of kin after the lunatic's decease had no lien

Conversion not allowed, except where it is clearly for the lunatic's benefit.

Personal estate applied to relief of real estate.

(a) Ex parte Ludlow, 3 Atk. 407.

[(b) Re Hole, (1905) 2 Ch. 384; (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 673.]

(c) Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 463, and 3 B. C. C. 515, per Lord Thurlow; and see Re Mary Smith (a lunatic), 10 L. R. Ch. App. 79.

(d) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 76, and 4 B. C. C. 238, per Lord Loughborough.

(e) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 73, per Lord Loughborough; Ex parte Grimstone, cited in Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 4 B. C. C. 235, note, per Lord Apsley; Sergeson v. Sealey, 2 Atk. 414, per Lord Hardwicke.

(f) See Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 462.

(g) Anon. case, 2 Freem. 114; Awdley v. Awdley, 2 Vern. 192; Marquis of Anandale v. Marchioness of Anandale, 2 Ves. 384, per Lord Hardwicke; and see Re Badcock, 4 M. & Cr. 440.

[(h) Re Gist, 5 Ch.D. (C.A.) 881.]

upon the real estate for the amount expended (a), it has since been ruled that the personal estate after the lunatic's death shall be recouped the amount expended in exonerating the real estate (b). [And where a mortgage of a lunatic's real or leasehold property is paid off out of his personal estate, the mortgage ought not to be re-conveyed to the lunatic, but kept on foot by transferring it to the committee, to be disposed of as the Court may direct, so as to leave open the question how the mortgage debt should ultimately be borne (c).] However, if timber be cut down, not by a committee in breach of his duty, but by a stranger tortiously, then, as there is no abuse of confidence, the heir has no equity, and the property of the timber, like a windfall, will belong to the executor (d).

[Transfer of mortgage should be taken.]

[Right of customary heir preserved in equity on enfranchisement.]

[11. Where a copyhold estate, as to which the rules of descent were different from those of freeholds, was enfranchised, the Court inserted in the order sanctioning the enfranchisement, a declaration carrying over the equitable interest in the enfranchised property, in the event of the lunatic dying intestate, to the persons who would have taken it if it had not been enfranchised (e).

[Money of lunatic invested in land.]

12. So where, under an order made in lunacy, part of the personal estate of a lunatic was laid out in the purchase of real estate as a convenient mode of investment, and a declaration was inserted in the conveyance, in conformity with the terms of the order, that the premises granted were "to all intents and purposes to be considered as part of the personal estate of the lunatic," it was held that the value of the lands was part of the personal estate of the lunatic at his death, and consequently liable to probate duty (f); and where a contract for purchase of real estate was entered into by a person who was subsequently found to be of unsound mind, and the purchase was completed by direction of the Master in Lunacy, and then the lunatic died intestate, it was held that, as there had been an election by the authorities in lunacy to adopt the voidable contract, a conversion had been effected, and the purchased land devolved as realty (g).

(a) Ex parte Grimstone, Amb. 706; S. C., cited Oxenden v. Compton, 4 B. C. C. 235, and Weld v. Tew, Beat. 272.

(b) Weld v. Tew, Beat. 266; Re Leeming, 3 De G. F. & J. 43.

[(c) Re Melly, 49 L. T. N.S. 429.]

(d) Anon. case, cited Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 462, and 3 B. C. C. 515, per Lord Thurlow.

[(e) Re H. D. Ryder, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 514.]

[(f) Attorney-General v. Marquis of Ailesbury, 12 App. Cas. 672, reversing the decision of C. A., 16 Q. B. D. 408, and restoring decision of Q. B. D., 14 Q. B. D. 895.]

[(g) Baldwyn v. Smith, (1900) 1 Ch. 588.]

13. Where property is vested in trustees in trust to apply the income for the maintenance of a lunatic during his life, and any surplus income not required is to be accumulated as capital, and the lunatic is absolutely entitled to other property, the Court will apply the life interest, in the first place, towards his maintenance, unless the trustees of the settled property have an absolute discretion whether they will apply the whole or any part of the income for the lunatic's benefit, in which case the exercise of such discretion will not be interfered with (a).] [Out of what fund lunatic to be maintained.]

Next as to infants.

1. Lord Thurlow, on one occasion, but without having examined the authorities, said he could not distinguish between lunatics and infants (b); but, when the matter came on again, and he had maturely considered the subject, he never once hinted at the existence of such a doctrine (c); and, indeed, until the Wills Act, 1837, there was a very broad distinction between the two cases; for, if a lunatic recovered, which in contemplation of law is always possible, he had precisely the same power of disposition, though by different modes, over one species of property as over the other (d); but an infant, while he could have bequeathed personal estate under the age of twenty-one, could not have devised a freehold until he had attained that age (e). The Court, therefore, would not allow an infant's estate to be converted from one species of property into another, not from any tenderness to the rights of the representatives, but from a regard to the circumstances and capacity of the infant himself. Should his money have been turned into land, he would have lost a power of disposition which the law permitted him to exercise: should land have been turned into money, he would indirectly have gained a power which the policy of the law had forbidden him (f). Infants distinguished from lunatics.

2. Upon the same principle, had timber been cut on an infant's estate, the proceeds, and, it seems, the accumulation of the proceeds (g), would have continued part of the realty, and have Timber cut on an infant's estate.

[(a) Re Weaver, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 615.]

(b) Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 461; S. C., 3 B. C. C. 515.

(c) Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 2 Ves. jun. 69; S. C., 4 B. C. C. 231.

(d) See Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 123.

(e) See Earl of Winchelsea v. Norcliffe, 1 Vern. 437, in which case the distinction appears first to have been noticed.

(f) Ware v. Polhill, 11 Ves. 278, and Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 122, per Lord Eldon; Ashburton v. Ashburton, 6 Ves. 6; Sergeson v. Sealey, 2 Atk. 413; Rook v. Worth, 1 Ves. 461, per Lord Hardwicke; Witter v. Witter, 3 P. W. 99; but see Earl of Winchelsea v. Norcliffe, 1 Vern. 435; Inwood v. Twyne, 2 Eden, 152; Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 461; [and see Warnicker v. Bretnall, 23 Ch. D. 188].

(g) See Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 454.

descended to the heir (a). But a distinction was taken in Mason v. Mason (b) (and Sir Thomas Clarke said he allowed it (c),) between the case of an infant tenant in fee and an infant tenant in tail: that in the former case the proceeds of the timber should be taken as realty, inasmuch as the infant was thus at all events absolutely entitled; but in the latter case, as the proceeds might, if impressed with the character of realty, become vested in the remainderman, the Court would treat the fund as personalty, and give it to the infant's executors.

Exoneration of infant's real estate out of his personal estate.

3. Again, if an infant's money had been applied to pay off a charge, or redeem a mortgage affecting his real estate, it was the better opinion (though some old authorities were against it), that the sum so invested would still be looked upon as part of the personalty (d).

Necessary expenses.

4. But necessary expenses, though affecting the infant's lands, were allowed to be thrown upon the personal fund, as disbursements for repairs (e), for keeping up a house, &c. (f).

Vernon v. Vernon.

5. So, in Vernon v. Vernon (g), where an estate was devised to an infant in consideration of his paying the sum which the original purchase had cost, it was held that the amount, being a necessary outlay, had properly fallen upon the personalty, and the next of kin were not entitled to compensation.

Exceptions from the general rule.

6. There were some cases to which the reason for preserving the original character of the property did not apply. Thus, if an infant was seised of a lease for lives ex parte maternâ, and the guardian procured a new lease to be granted to the infant and his heirs, whereby the old lease was merged, the substituted lease would not descend in the maternal line, but, as a new acquisition, would go to the heirs on the part of the father (h); for it being

(a) Tullet v. Tullet, 1 Dick. 322; S. C., Amb. 370; Mason v. Mason, cited Ib. 371; Ex parte Phillips, 19 Ves. 124, per Lord Eldon; and see Rook v. Worth, 1 Ves. 461; but see Ex parte Bromfield, 3 B. C. C. 516.

(b) Ubi sup.

(c) Tullet v. Tullet, Amb. 371; and see Dyer v. Dyer, 34 Beav. 504.

(d) Ex parte Bromfield, 3 B. C. C. 516, per Lord Thurlow; Tullet v. Tullet, 1 Dick. 323, per Sir T. Clarke; Seys v. Price, 9 Mod. 220, per Lord Hardwicke; Dowling v. Belton, 1 Flan. & Kelly, 462; but see 2 Freem. 114, c. 126; Ex parte Grimstone, Amb. 708; Palmes v. Danby, Pr. Ch. 137; Zoach v. Lloyd, cited Awdley v. Awdley, 2 Vern. 192; as to Dennis v. Badd, cited Ib. 193, see Earl of Winchelsea v. Norcliffe, 1 Vern. 436; [and see Warnicker v. Bretnall, 23 Ch. D. 188].

(e) Ex parte Grimstone, cited Oxenden v. Lord Compton, 4 B. C. C. 235, note, per Lord Apsley.

(f) Ex parte Grimstone, Amb. 708, per eundem.

(g) Cited in Ex parte Bromfield, 1 Ves. jun. 456.

(h) Mason v. Day, Pr. Ch. 319; Pierson v. Shore, 1 Atk. 480; [and see Re Wells, (1903) 1 Ch. 848, 853. As to the general jurisdiction of the Court to sanction investments by trustees, see ante, p. 392].

perfectly immaterial to the infant himself whether the seisin was in the paternal or maternal line, the representative ex parte maternâ had no equity against the representative ex parte paternâ. [The Court has jurisdiction to change the nature of an infant's estate by sanctioning a scheme which is manifestly for the infant's benefit, as, for example, by making his interest absolute instead of contingent (a).

[Repairs.]

7. Where repairs are absolutely necessary for the protection of an infant's property, the Court has jurisdiction to direct the raising of the necessary funds by mortgage or sale of part of the infant's property (b). But the jurisdiction should be jealously exercised, and only in cases which amount to actual salvage (c).]

Effect of Wills Act.

8. By the Wills Act (d), an infant has no greater testamentary power over personal than over real estate; and it remains to be seen how far the removal of the ground, so frequently relied upon, against permitting the conversion of the personal estate of an infant into realty, can be treated as having diminished the rights of the next of kin, or as authorising the application of the decisions in lunacy to the administration of the property of infants.

Dyer v. Dyer.

9. The leaning of the Courts would appear to be to simplify the law by assimilating the case of infants to that of lunatics. Thus in a modern case (e) an estate was devised to an infant, his heirs and assigns, with a limitation over on his dying under twenty-one, and timber was cut on the estate during the infancy with the sanction of the Court. The infant died without attaining his age, and the question was whether the proceeds belonged to the infant's personal representative, or should go with the estate to the person entitled under the limitation over, and Sir J. Romilly, M.R., held it to be personalty, and evidently made no distinction between infancy and lunacy.

[(a) Re Wells, (1903) 1 Ch. 848, explaining Peto v. Gardner, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 312.]

[(b) Re Jackson, 21 Ch. D. 786; Glover v. Barlow, 21 Ch. D. 788, note; and see Conway v. Fenton, 40 Ch. D. 512, 517.]

[(c) Per Kay, J., Re Jackson, ubi sup.; and see cases cited ante, p. 592.]

(d) 7 W. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 26.

(e) Dyer v. Dyer, 34 Beav. 504. But if an estate be settled upon A. for life only, with remainders over, and the Court cuts the timber for the benefit of all parties interested, the proceeds will go along with the estate; Field v. Brown, 27 Beav. 90; unless the order be made upon the application of a remainderman entitled in fee simple, subject to the prior estate; Phillips v. Daycock, W. N. 1867, p. 54.

PART IV

PRACTICE

CHAPTER XXXIII

In this chapter we propose to consider such parts only of the practice of the Court as most materially affect trustees and their cestuis que trust, and are capable of being compressed within reasonable limits, viz.—First, Distringas; Secondly, Production of documents; Thirdly, Compulsory payment into Court; Fourthly, Receivership; and Fifthly, Costs of suit (a).

SECTION I

OF DISTRINGAS

Danger to which stock, &c., exposed in consequence of legal title only being recognised.

1. In the case of stock transferable in the books of the Bank of England, and also in the case of the stocks and shares of many other public companies, no obligation exists on the part of the bank or public company to look beyond the title of the legal holder. The modern form of legislative enactment on the subject is usually to the effect that the company "shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive" (b). Where, therefore, property of this description is held upon trust, the interests of the cestui que trust are peculiarly liable to be endangered by the dishonesty of the trustee; and, indeed, but for the means of protection now about to be explained, would be almost entirely at his mercy.

[(a) In the sixth and earlier editions of this work, the subject of parties to suits relating to trusts, and of the order and manner in which trustees and cestuis que trust ought to sue or be sued were considered at some length, but in referring to those editions the recent changes in the practice of the Court must be borne in mind.]

(b) Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 Vict. c. 16), s. 20; and see Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89), s. 30, and ante, p. 905.

Origin of the writ of distringas.

2. The distringas was originally a process of the equity side (afterwards abolished) of the Court of Exchequer for compelling the appearance of a corporation to a bill filed, but formerly it was a common practice, more particularly in any emergency, to issue a subpœna before the bill was actually on the file. When, therefore, a party sought to restrain a transfer of stock, before he filed the bill against the holder of the stock and the bank (which was then a necessary party), to prevent any mischief in the interim, he served process immediately on the secretary of the bank to appear to the bill. But as the form of distringas gave no information as to the stock to be restrained, the distringas was accompanied with a notice in writing, which specified the stock, and required the bank not to permit the transfer. The effect of this was, that if the holder of the stock applied to the bank to make a transfer, the bank immediately forwarded a notice to the party issuing the distringas, that unless he actually filed a bill, and obtained and served an injunction before a certain day, they should permit a transfer to be made.

Practice continued notwithstanding 4 Anne, c. 16, and 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 36.

3. The Law Amendment Act, 1705 (4 Anne, c. 16), sect. 22, declared that no subpœna or other process for appearance should issue until after the bill was filed: and the Transfer of Stock Act, 1800 (39 & 40 G. 3. c. 36), enabled suitors to obtain an injunction against the bank, without making the bank a party. However, in practice the distringas still continued to be served on the bank, and the same attention was paid to it in not allowing a transfer.

Process transferred to Chancery on the abolition of the equity Exchequer.

4. The convenience of the distringas was so sensibly felt, from the frequent necessity of laying an embargo upon stock at a moment's notice, that when the Court of Chancery Act, 1841 (5 Vict. c. 5), abolished the equity side of the Exchequer, it was thought expedient to transfer the process to the Court of Chancery, and enlarge the remedy.

Additional remedy given by 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 4.

5. Accordingly, by sect. 4 of the Act referred to, it was by way of additional remedy enacted that "it should be lawful for the Court of Chancery, upon the application of any party interested, by motion (a) or petition, in a summary way, without bill

[(a) The application ought to be intituled in the matter of the trusts of the will or other instrument affecting the fund: Re Pike, W. N. (1902) 42.]

filed, to restrain the Bank of England or other company, whether incorporated or not, from permitting the transfer of any stock in the public funds, or any stock or shares in any public company, or from paying any dividend or dividends due or to become due thereon; and every order of the Court upon such motion or petition should specify the amount of the stock, or the particular shares to be affected thereby, and the name or names of the person or persons, body politic or corporate, in which the same should be standing."

Practice under the 4th section.

6. An application to the Court under this section must be founded upon an affidavit verifying the special grounds upon which it proceeds (a). And when the order has been made, as it was not the intention of the Legislature to do more than protect the stock until the party could assert his right in the ordinary way, if the opposite party move to dissolve the injunction, and the Court sees that there has been great neglect on the part of the person who obtained the order, and that any extension of time would be oppressive to the party restrained, it will not as of course give further time for instituting proceedings (b). Under the former practice, when a bill had been filed and an answer put in, and the defendant moved to discharge the restraining order, the plaintiff was allowed to file affidavits in opposition to the answer, and was not confined to the merits disclosed in the answer (c).

Transfer of the old writ of distringas.

7. By sect. 5 (d) of the Act it was enacted that in the place and stead of the writ of distringas, as the same had been theretofore issued, a writ of distringas in the form set out in the schedule to the Act should be issuable from the Court of Chancery, and be sealed at the subpœna office, and the force and effect of such writ, and the practice under or relating to the same, should be such as was then in force, provided, nevertheless, that such writ, and the practice under or relating to the same, should be subject to such orders and regulations as might be made with reference to the proceedings and practice of the Court of Chancery (e).

(a) Ex parte Field, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 1; Re Marquis of Hertford, 1 Hare, 586; Re Locke and others, 18 W. R. 275; Re East of England Bank, 6 N. R. 81.

(b) Re Marquis of Hertford, 1 Hare, 584; see same case, 1 Ph. 203.

(c) Ib. 1 Ph. 203; and see Chancery Procedure Act, 1852 (15 & 16 Vict. c. 86), s. 59.

[(d) Repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 19).]

(e) In the schedule to the Act, the form of the writ was as follows: "Victoria, &c., to the Sheriffs of London, greeting. We command you that you omit not, by reason of any liberty, but that you enter the same, and distrain the Governor and

8. The Act, as we have seen, empowered the Court to regulate the practice of the distringas, and orders [were accordingly issued with that object (a): but the writ of distringas has now been superseded (b), and a notice substituted in its place, which is made to apply not only to the Bank of England, but to all companies, whether incorporated or not, and the practice in relation to such notices is now regulated by Order XLVI., Rules 2—11, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883.

Orders of Court regulating practice.

[Notice substituted for the writ.]

9. The present course is as follows:—The party seeking the benefit of the Act prepares a notice, and makes an affidavit in the form prescribed by the general order. The notice and affidavit are then filed in the Central Office, and an office copy of the affidavit and a duplicate of the notice, authenticated by the seal of the Central Office, are obtained and served on the bank or company; and such service has the same force and effect against the bank or company as a writ of distringas duly issued under the 5th section of the Act previously had.

[Present practice as to obtaining and serving the notice in lieu of distringas.]

The notice may be withdrawn by the person by whom or on whose behalf it was given, on a written request signed by him, or its operation may be made to cease by an order made upon notice, on the application of any other person claiming to be interested.

If, while the notice continues in force, the bank or company receive from the person in whose name the stock is standing, or from some person acting on his behalf or representing him, a request to permit the stock to be transferred, or to pay the dividends thereon, the bank or company is not, by force or in consequence of the service of the notice, authorised without the order of the Court or a judge to refuse to permit the transfer to be made, or to withhold the payment of the dividends, for more than eight days after the date of the request.] The result is, that when the holder of the stock requests a transfer of the stock, or payment of the dividends, the bank [or company]

Company of the Bank of England, by all their lands and chattels in your bailiwick, so that they, or any of them, do not intermeddle therewith until We otherwise command you; and that you answer us the issue of the said lands, so that they do appear before us in our High Court of Chancery on the day of , to answer a certain bill of complaint lately exhibited against them and other defendants before us in our said Court of Chancery by complainant; and, further, to do and receive what our said Court shall then and there order in the premises, and that you then leave there this writ. Witness," &c.

(a) XXVII. Cons. Order, 1860. See Orders, 17th November 1841, 3 Beav. xxxiii.; and 10th December 1841, 3 Beav. xxxviii.

[(b) See Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order XLVI., superseding the similar Rules of April, 1880.]

immediately forwards a notice to the party who served the notice, that unless he bring an action, and obtain and serve an injunction within eight days from the date of such request, the transfer or payment will be made. The party must, of course, be then upon the alert to take proceedings and obtain and serve the injunction before the eight days have expired (a).

Distinction between remedies under the 4th & 5th sections of the Act.

10. [Until the issuing of the order of April, 1880, it was considered that while the fourth section of the Act applied] not merely to stock in the funds, but to stock and shares of public companies, whether incorporated or not, the 5th section was by the joint effect of the schedule to the Act of Parliament and of the Orders of Court before referred to (b), confined to stock transferable at the Bank of England, [but this distinction between cases under the 4th and 5th sections has been superseded, and by Order XLVI., Rule 3, the notice is applicable to any public company, whether incorporated or not, and may affect shares, securities, and dividends thereon, as well as stock. The distinction, however, still remains that notice in lieu of distringas] may be, and is in fact, frequently obtained, not from any fear of immediate danger, but as a general safeguard merely (c); whereas a special case must be made in order to obtain a restraining order under the 4th section (d).

Remedies when concurrent.

11. The [notice in lieu of] distringas under the 5th section, and the restraining order under the 4th section, may both occasionally be resorted to should circumstances require it; for the adoption of either remedy is not an election of the one to the exclusion of the other (e). "The 4th clause," said Sir J. Wigram, "was intended for interim purposes,—to protect stock until the party claiming it should have an opportunity of asserting his rights by bill in the ordinary way,—an opportunity often wanting from the facility with which that species of property is transferred from hand to hand, and which the common distringas, preserved by the 5th section, does not in all cases afford (f). A distringas remains (g) only at the

[(a) The proper course is to obtain an interim order, ex parte, over the next motion day, which must be served on the legal owners of the stock; Re Blaksley's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 549.]

[(b) See note (a), p. 1251.]

(c) See Etty v. Bridges, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 486; [Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 Ch. D. 256, 260, where it was held that a legatee by putting a distringas on shares forming part of the testator's estate does not accept them so that he cannot afterwards disclaim].

(d) Note (a), p. 1250, ante.

(e) Re Marquis of Hertford, 1 Hare, 584; 1 Ph. 129.

(f) And see Société Générale de Paris v. Tramways Union Company, 14 Q. B. D. 453, 454; S. C., in D. P. 11 App. Cas. 20, nom. Société Générale de Paris v. Walker.

(g) Sic. Qu. "restrains."

discretion of the bank. The restraining order, which the 4th section enables the Court to grant, is imperative; it continues so long as the Court sees fit to direct, and can only be discharged in the meantime upon the application of the parties interested." "Cases might arise," he added, "in which, from the discovery of new matter, after a distringas had issued, or from the bank peremptorily but erroneously refusing to notice a distringas, or perhaps from other causes, the party who obtained that writ might, notwithstanding, upon a full disclosure of the facts in a case of merits and urgency, entitle himself to a restraining order under the 4th section" (a).

SECTION II

OF PRODUCTION

General rule. 1. All documents held by the trustee in that character must be produced by him to the cestuis que trust, who in equity are the true owners (b). And if the trustee has submitted cases to Cases for opinion. counsel and taken opinions, not for the purpose of defence in any litigation between himself and his cestuis que trust, but for his guidance as trustee, he is bound to produce them to the cestuis que trust, who pay the expense so incurred by the trustee (c). [So, in a suit by cestuis que trust against their trustees to compel them to make good a breach of trust, the trustees are bound to produce letters and copies of letters between them and their solicitors in relation to the matters in question in the action ante litem motam (d); and a trustee cannot claim privilege for communications passing between him and his co-trustee employed as his solicitor (e).] But as all the Parties. cestuis que trust have an interest in the documents, they must all be represented, directly or indirectly, in the suit before the documents can be finally dealt with (f). If the trust documents include mortgages upon which the trust fund has been invested, the production cannot be objected to on the ground that the mortgagors, or persons entitled to the equity of redemption, are not parties (g).

(a) Re Marquis of Hertford, 1 Hare, 590; [Re Cowin, 33 Ch. D. 179].
(b) Simpson v. Bathurst, 5 L. R. Ch. App. 202, per Lord Hatherley.
(c) Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421; Devaynes v. Robinson, 20 Beav. 42; Talbot v. Marshfield, 2 Dr. & Sm. 285, 549; [Re Postlethwaite, 35 Ch. D. 722].
[(d) Re Mason, 22 Ch. D. 609.]
[(e) Re Postlethwaite, 35 Ch. D. 722, per North, J.]
(f) Bugden v. Tylee, 21 Beav. 545.
(g) Gough v. Offley, 5 De G. & Sm. 653.

Trust must be established.

2. The privilege of requiring production can be asserted by a cestui que trust only when the relation of trustee and cestui que trust has been established; for, so long as the claim is disputed, the would-be cestui que trust is regarded as a stranger (a).

Accounts.

3. An executor and trustee is bound to keep clear and distinct accounts, and if he enter the accounts of the trust in his private books, he is bound to produce them (b); and if an executor or trustee, being a partner, be allowed to enter the trust accounts in the partnership books, the Court will not allow the partners to withhold the inspection (c); but if an agent be employed to manage an estate, and he keeps the accounts in the same books in which the accounts relating to the estates of other persons are kept, the production, in the absence of those other persons, has been refused (d).

Privileged communications.

4. Where litigation is pending or is contemplated between the trustee and his cestui que trust, and the trustee submits a case to counsel for his opinion, for the protection of the trustee himself adversely to the cestui que trust, the case and opinion are communications within the general rule, and privileged from production (e).

Persons bound by notice of the trust.

5. The right of the cestui que trust is enforced not only as against the trustee personally, but as against all claiming under him, and though for value, if with notice of the trust (f).

SECTION III

OF COMPULSORY PAYMENT INTO COURT

General rule.

1. The general rule as laid down by Lord Eldon, and which has ever since been acquiesced in, is, that to call for payment of money into Court, "the plaintiff must either be solely entitled to the fund or have acquired in the whole of the fund such an interest, together with others, as entitles him on his own behalf,

(a) Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421.

(b) Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 43, per Lord Eldon; [and see Thompson v. Dunn, 5 L. R. Ch. 573; St George v. St George, 19 L. R. Ir. 225; Re Sutcliffe, 44 L. T. N.S. 547].

(c) Freeman v. Fairlie, ubi sup.

(d) Airey v. Hall, 12 Jur. 1043. [As to accounts under the Public Trustee Act, 1906, see ante, Chap. XXIII. p. 705.]

(e) Talbot v. Marshfield, 2 Dr. & Sm. 285, 549; Brown v. Oakshott, 12 Beav. 252; Devaynes v. Robinson, 20 Beav. 42; Bacon v. Bacon, W. N. 1876, p. 96; [see Re Mason, 22 Ch. D. 609; Mayor and Corporation of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678].

(f) Smith v. Barnes, 1 L. R. Eq. 65.

and the behalf of those others, to have the fund secured in Court" (a). It is not indispensable that the plaintiff should be the person exclusively interested; for if he have a partial or contingent interest (b), it is enough, provided all the other persons interested in the fund are before the Court (c); and occasionally the Court will make orders for payment into Court, although some of the persons interested in the money are not before it (d), or the defendant does not admit that all are before it (e). Where the other persons interested are not necessary parties to the suit, payment into Court, if consistent with the relief sought in the suit, may be obtained without service on them of the notice of motion (f); but where cestuis que trust had been served with the copy of a bill which prayed the appointment of new trustees, and a transfer of the fund not into Court but to the new trustees, the Court held that the parties served with a copy of the bill must be served with notice of the motion to transfer the fund into Court (g). [Where there are several plaintiffs all must join in the application (h).]

Plaintiff may move upon a possible title.

2. If the defendant admits himself to be a trustee for some one, but it remains to be ascertained whether he is a trustee for the plaintiff or for other parties, the plaintiff may move upon his possible title, where all persons are before the Court among whom there will be found some one who is entitled (i). "In a contest as to the title to any particular property," said Lord Cottenham, "the Court will, in some cases, take possession of the subject-matter of the contest for security until it adjudicates upon the right. Such cases generally arise when the property is in the hands of stakeholders, factors, or trustees who do not themselves claim any title to it. In ordering money into Court under such circumstances, the Court does not disturb the possession of any party claiming title, or direct a payment before the liability to pay is established" (j).

(a) Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 29; and see Dubless v. Flint, 4 M. & Cr. 502; M'Hardy v. Hitchcock, 11 Beav. 77.

(b) Ross v. Ross, 12 Beav. 89.

(c) Whitmarsh v. Robertson, 4 Beav. 26; Bartlett v. Bartlett, 4 Hare, 631.

(d) Wilton v. Hill, 2 De G. M. & G. 807; Hamond v. Walker, 3 Jur. N.S. 686.

(e) Symonds v. Jenkins, 34 L. T. N.S. 277; 24 W. R. 512.

(f) Marryatt v. Marryatt, 23 L. J. N.S. Ch. 876.

(g) Lewellin v. Cobbold, 1 Sm. & G. 572.

[(h) Re Wright, (1895) 2 Ch. 747, where, however, leave to amend was granted, and the motion then proceeded with.]

(i) See Dolder v. Bank of England, 10 Ves. 355; Whitmore v. Turquand, 1 J. & H. 296; but see Dubless v. Flint, 4 M. & Cr. 502; M'Hardy v. Hitchcock, 11 Beav. 73.

(j) Richardson v. Bank of England, 4 M. & Cr. 171.

Payment of a share.

3. Occasionally, where the fund is clear, and is divisible between the plaintiff and defendant in certain proportions, the Court has ordered the defendant to pay into Court the share only of the plaintiff (a).

Motion formerly must have been founded on admission in defendant's answer.

4. [It was formerly the rule of the Court that where the motion was made before decree, the merits upon which it was] founded must be admitted by the defendant's answer, and that no evidence as to merits could be adduced aliunde (b). Thus if money was standing in the joint names of several persons, as of three trustees, it would not be ordered into Court on the admission of the specific sum by one, though the others admitted that a sum was standing in their joint names, and the plaintiff offered to read affidavits sworn by them from which the amount of the sum would appear (c). [But in a case in the year 1878 (d), the Court of Appeal intimated an opinion that any admission, whether direct or implied, would be sufficient to enable the Court to act; and in a subsequent case, where a motion was made in an administration action, after the defendant's appearance, but before any pleadings had been delivered, for payment into Court of sums of money alleged to be in the defendant's hands, and the motion was supported by the affidavit of the plaintiff, but the defendant, though served with notice of the motion, did not appear, it was held by Sir G. Jessel, M.R., that the defendant must be taken to have admitted that he had received the money, as he had not denied it, and he was ordered to pay the amount into Court (e). Admissions by a trustee in correspondence that he has received the money, and a recital to that effect in the settlement which was executed by him, are sufficient to found the order (f); and it is not necessary that the admission

[But now any admission, direct or implied, is sufficient.]

(a) Rogers v. Rogers, 1 Anst. 174; Hamond v. Walker, 3 Jur. N.S. 686; see Score v. Ford, 7 Beav. 336.

(b) Beaumont v. Meredith, 3 V. & B. 181, per Lord Eldon; Richardson v. Bank of England, 4 M. & Cr. 171, 175, per Lord Cottenham; Dubless v. Flint, 4 M. & Cr. 502; Black v. Creighton, 2 Moll. 554, per Sir A. Hart; and see Green v. Pledger, 3 Hare, 171; Hagell v. Currie, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 452. [However in Jervis v. White, 6 Ves. 738, Lord Eldon took the affidavit of the plaintiff charging the defendant with having a sum of money in his hands, and an affidavit of the defendant before answer, together as an admission, and ordered the money into Court.] The 59th section of the Chancery Procedure Act, 1852 (15 & 16 Vict. c. 86), directing the defendant's answer to be viewed merely as an affidavit in motions for injunction or receiver, &c., did not touch motions for payment into Court.

(c) Boschetti v. Power, 8 Beav. 98.

[(d) London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 84.]

[(e) Freeman v. Cox, 8 Ch. D. 148; Porrett v. White, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 52. In a case in Ireland, V. C. Chatterton declined to follow Freeman v. Cox; see Nesbitt v. Baldwin, 7 L. R. Ir. 134.]

[(f) Hampden v. Wallis, 27 Ch. D. 251; Porrett v. White, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 52; and see Wanklyn v. Wilson, 35 Ch. D. 180.]

should be contained in a written document; a mere verbal admission, coupled with omission to reply to an affidavit, was held to be sufficient to justify the order being made (a).

[Where account rendered and balance clearly due.]

In a partnership action where an account of partnership dealings had been furnished by the defendant before action brought, the late Master of the Rolls, Sir G. Jessel, looked at the account, rejected certain items, turned the balance against the defendant, and ordered him to pay into Court (b); and in general, where an account has been rendered and the Court has before it the parties to the account and evidence as to the items in dispute, the Court will look into the facts of the case, and if, "in the fair exercise of its judicial discretion" (c), it can arrive at a clear conclusion that a sum will be due to the plaintiff on the taking of the account, and what that sum will be, it will order payment by the defendant of that amount into Court (d).

[But there must be unequivocal admission that money received by and due from trustee.]

The Court of Appeal has, however, recently intimated that the practice ought not to be carried further, and that the order for payment into Court ought not to be made unless there is at least an unequivocal admission by the defendant, by pleading, or affidavit, or omission to traverse allegations in the affidavits against him, that the money has come to his hands, and that it is owing from him (e).

Where a defendant, who was solicitor to the first mortgagees of property and also to the mortgagor, admitted by his defence that he had received purchase-moneys on a sale by the first mortgagees, but claimed to deduct sums which he had actually but wrongly paid at the request of the executors of the mortgagor, the Court, in view of the decisions in Nutter v. Holland (f) and Neville v. Matthewman (g), declined to order him to pay the last-mentioned sums into Court on an interlocutory application (h).

[Where admission erroneous.]

Where, upon the application of the defendant, who had been ordered to pay money into Court upon an admission in his defence and answer to interrogatories, the Court was satisfied that the admission was erroneous, the defendant was allowed to withdraw

[(a) Re Beeny, (1894) 1 Ch. 499, where it was observed by North, J., that Hollis v. Burton, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 226, was not intended to overrule previous cases.]

[(b) Dunn v. Campbell, 27 Ch. D. 254, note.]

[(c) London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 90, per Jessel, M.R.]

[(d) Wanklyn v. Wilson, 35 Ch. D. 180, 186; and see Neville v. Matthewman, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 345.]

[(e) Neville v. Matthewman, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 345; and see Hollis v. Burton, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 226; Re Wright, (1895) 2 Ch. 747.]

[(f) (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 408; see post, p. 1259.]

[(g) Vide sup.]

[(h) Crompton and Evans Union Bank v. Burton, (1895) 2 Ch. 711.]

the admission, and amend his defence on terms of his paying the money into Court (a).]

Old rule that answer should contain an admission of plaintiff's title.

5. It would seem that [the old rule was that] not only must the plaintiff have been able to read from the answer an admission of the defendant's receipt of the money, but also an admission of his own title, or probable title, e.g. as next of kin, heir-at-law, &c., and that if the defendant ignored the plaintiff's title, the money would not have been ordered into Court (b). But in a suit to establish a constructive trust, the rights of the plaintiff might have appeared so clear upon the answer that the Court, notwithstanding a formal denial by the defendant that he was a trustee, would have felt itself justified in ordering payment (c). [It is conceived that under the present practice any admission by the defendant of the plaintiff's title, whether expressed or implied from his conduct, would be sufficient to enable the Court to order money into Court (d).

[Present practice.]

[Payment in after decree.]

6. Where the motion is made after decree, the Court will order money into Court in any case where it is ascertained to its satisfaction that the amount must in any event be ultimately payable by the defendant, and if the certificate of the Master has not been made finding the amount due, the Court will in a proper case satisfy itself by an examination of the evidence as to the amount, and order payment of the amount so ascertained (e).]

Payment into Court must be upon the footing of an equity alleged by the plaintiff.

7. The plaintiff cannot ask for payment of money into Court upon the footing of an equity not alleged by him in his pleadings, but only stated by the answer [or statement of defence]. Thus, where the plaintiff filed a bill claiming one-fifth of the residuary estate of a testator and asking relief as in the case of an open account, and the defendant by his answer stated a deed amounting to a settlement of account under which he admitted a sum to be due from him, it was held that the plaintiff could not, without amending his bill, obtain payment into Court of the sum so admitted to be due (f).

Not necessary that fund should be actually in defendant's hands.

8. It is not necessary that the defendant should acknowledge the fund to be actually in his hands; for if he admit that he once received it, and state that he afterwards applied it in a way not authorised by the trust, the Court will fasten upon the

[(a) Hollis v. Burton, (1892) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 226.]

(b) Dubless v. Flint, 4 M. & Cr. 502; M'Hardy v. Hitchcock, 11 Beav. 73; Bank of Turkey v. Ottoman Company, 2 L. R. Eq. 366.

(c) Hagell v. Currie, 2 L. R. Ch. App. 452, per L. J. Cairns.

[(d) See Freeman v. Cox, 8 Ch. D. 148; but see Nesbitt v. Baldwin, 7 L. R. Ir. 134.]

[(e) London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. (C.A.) 84.]

(f) Proudfoot v. Hume, 4 Beav. 476.

receipt, and not allow him to discharge himself by pleading a breach of duty; as, if a trustee admit that he once had a fund in his hands, but that he afterwards allowed it to be received by a co-trustee who misapplied it (a), or that he afterwards sold it out and did not re-invest it (b), or paid it away improperly (c), or lent it on personal (d) or other security (e) not within the terms of the trust; [and where the trustee had sold and transferred shares, it was not sufficient for him to show that he had no power over the shares, without showing that he had no control over the purchase money (f)]. And no attention will be paid to the objection that the suit is for the very purpose of securing the fund, and therefore that the money ought not to be ordered into Court until decree (g).

[The contrary is the case where the procedure is by originating summons under Order LV., Rule 3 (d), as that rule is confined to payment into Court of money "in the hands of" executors, administrators, or trustees (h).]

[Secus, where procedure by originating summons.]

9. But if an executor (and the rule must apply equally to a trustee) admits in his answer [or statement of defence] that he has received a specific sum, but adds that he has made payments, the amounts whereof he does not specify, in respect of the testator's estate, the Court will allow him to verify by affidavit the amount of the payments properly made, and will order him to pay in the actual balance (i).

Payments not specified in answer may be verified by affidavit.

10. Payment of money into Court is, in general, confined to the cases of a defendant's admission of actual possession of the fund, or of a receipt not followed by any subsequent legal discharge, and is not ordered upon a mere admission of facts from which a liability may be inferred (j). Thus, if a defendant admit that he has had a fund in his hands from a certain time, and it clearly appears that he is liable and will be decreed at the Payment of money into Court not ordered on a mere admission of circumstances showing a liability.

(a) Ingle v. Partridge, 32 Beav. 661; Symonds v. Jenkins, 34 L. T. N.S. 277; 24 W. R. 512.

(b) Wiglesworth v. Wiglesworth, 16 Beav. 272; Phillipo v. Munnings, 2 M. & Cr. 309; and see Meyer v. Montriou, 4 Beav. 346; Futter v. Jackson, 6 Beav. 424.

(c) See Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 350; Meyer v. Montriou, 4 Beav. 343; Nokes v. Seppings, 2 Ph. 19.

(d) Vigrass v. Binfield, 3 Mad. 62; Collis v. Collis, 2 Sim. 365; Roy v. Gibbon, 4 Hare, 65.

(e) Wyatt v. Sharratt, 3 Beav. 498; Costeker v. Horrox, 3 Y. & C. 530; Hinde v. Blake, 4 Beav. 597; Bourne v. Mole, 8 Beav. 177.

[(f) Re Benson, (1899) 1 Ch. 39.]

(g) See Rothwell v. Rothwell, 2 S. & S. 217; Wyatt v. Sharratt, 3 Beav. 498; Collis v. Collis, 2 Sim. 365.

[(h) Nutter v. Holland, (1894) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 408, overruling Re Chapman, 54 L. T. N.S. 13.]

(i) Anon., 4 Sim. 359; and see Proudfoot v. Hume, 4 Beav. 476; Roy v. Gibbon, 4 Hare, 65.

(j) See Richardson v. Bank of England, 4 M. & Cr. 174; Peacham v. Daw, 6 Mad. 98.

hearing to pay interest, yet the Court will not order him to pay interest on motion (a), unless he also admit that he has actually made interest, which amounts to a receipt (b).

Rothwell v. Rothwell.

11. The case of Rothwell v. Rothwell (c) is no exception to this rule, for there the defendant had covenanted with the trustees of his marriage settlement to pay 850*l.* within twelve months from the marriage, and the covenant not having been performed, the children filed a bill against the covenantor and the trustees to have the money raised; and the defendant admitting "that the 850*l.* had not been got in, but that it was still in his hands," the Court ordered the payment into Court, not on the admission of the debt, but "that it was still in his hands."

Special case of a trustee who is a debtor to the trust estate.

12. However, in some cases the Court orders payment into Court upon motion, of what is apparently a mere debt; as, where an executor or trustee admits himself to owe a debt to the estate he represents, for here the person to pay and the person to receive being the same, the Court assumes that what ought to have been done has been done, and orders the payment, not as of a debt by a debtor, but as of moneys realised in the hands of the executor or trustee (d). Thus, where A., B., and C. were appointed executors of a will, of whom A. and C. alone proved, and A. and B. were appointed trustees, and a bill was filed by A. for the administration of the trusts of the will, and B. by his answer admitted that he and his partner G. B. were indebted to the testatrix at the time of her decease, and that part of the assets had been lent to the partnership by C., and that the sum of 113*l.* 7s. 10½d. was due from the partnership to the estate on the balance of accounts, and alleged that the debt owing from the partnership, and the moneys received from C. the executor, had been treated as part of the assets, and applied partly in payment of the testatrix's debts, and as to the residue upon the trusts of the will, the Court held, notwithstanding B.'s disclaimer of having acted, that he must be deemed to have acted as executor and trustee, and as such to have received the moneys in question, and ordered him to pay the balance into Court (e).

Where trustees mean to apply the fund.

13. Trustees will not be ordered to pay into Court where they have a discretionary power over the fund, and it appears that they are intending bonâ fide to exercise it; for this would only

(a) Wood v. Downes, 1 V. & B. 50.
(b) Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 43; see Wood v. Downes, 1 V. & B. 50.
(c) 2 S. & S. 217; see Richardson v. Bank of England, 4 M. & Cr. 174.
(d) Richardson v. Bank of England, 4 M. & Cr. 174, per Lord Cottenham.
(e) White v. Barton, 18 Beav. 192; [and see Re Bourne, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 697, ante, p. 1192.]

lead to expense by occasioning the necessity of another application to have the fund paid out again (a).

Whether the order is matter of course.

14. Lord Langdale once said, that according to the old practice, it was mere matter of course to order trust funds into Court, but that the question now was whether there existed any sufficient ground for the order, such as danger to the fund, &c. (b). V. C. Stuart subsequently declared his adherence to the old practice (c); [but in a later case, V. C. Hall was of opinion that the rule was not absolute, but a reasonable ground for the payment must be made out (d)].

Payment into Court at the hearing.

15. The Court will occasionally make an order for payment into Court at the hearing of the cause, ex debito justitiæ, though it might have hesitated to do so upon an interlocutory application by motion; as, where a plaintiff having only a remote contingent interest in a fund claims at the hearing to have the fund brought into Court (e). And an order for payment into Court will be made at the hearing, if proper, without notice of motion for that purpose (f).

Time allowed for payment into Court.

16. The time to be given for payment of money into Court will depend on the circumstances of the case. If it be money in the defendant's hands, it will be ordered in forthwith, and an immediate transfer may be directed of stock standing in the defendant's name. Where the defendant had improperly lent a sum on personal security, but no insolvency was suggested nor any danger as to the money, the Court ordered it to be paid in, on or before the first day of the following term (g). In another case, where the defendant had lent 820*l.* upon a mortgage not authorised by the trust, the Court allowed six weeks, with liberty to apply for further time if the circumstances should then warrant the indulgence (h).

[Payment into Court by solicitor not a party.]

[17. Where trust money had been improperly lent without security to the trustee's solicitor, who took it with notice that it was trust money, the Court, in the exercise of its summary jurisdiction over its officers, on motion in an administration action to which the solicitor was not a party, made an order that he should pay the money into Court (i).]

(a) Talbot v. Marshfield, 2 Dr. & Sm. 285.

(b) Ross v. Ross, 12 Beav. 89.

(c) Robertson v. Scott, 14 L. T. N.S. 187.

[(d) Re Braithwaite, 21 Ch. D. 121.]

(e) Governesses' Institution v. Rusbridger, 18 Beav. 467.

(f) Isaacs v. Weatherstone, 10 Hare, App. xxx.

(g) Vigrass v. Binfield, 3 Mad. 62; and see Hinde v. Blake, 4 Beav. 597; Roy v. Gibbon, 4 Hare, 65.

(h) Wyatt v. Sharratt, 3 Beav. 498; Score v. Ford, 7 Beav. 333.

[(i) Re Carroll, (1902) 2 Ch. 175. In such a case the notice of motion should be entitled in the action and Distringas.

18. Where a [notice in lieu of] distringas or injunction has been previously obtained against the transfer of the stock, the Court orders the transfer into Court to be made, "notwithstanding" the notice or injunction.

SECTION IV

OF RECEIVERSHIP

Receiver will be appointed at the instance of all the cestuis que trust.

1. As the cestuis que trust or parties beneficially interested in an estate are in equity the owners of it, should they concur in an application for a receiver, and the trustee consent, the Court will at any time make the order (a). But the usual recognisances will not be dispensed with (b).

Also where trustee is guilty of misconduct, or is insolvent, bankrupt, &c.

2. And as each cestui que trust is entitled to have the fund properly protected, a receiver will be granted at his instance if it can be shown that the trustee has been guilty of misconduct, waste, or improper disposition of the trust estate (c), or that he has an undue leaning or bias towards one of two conflicting parties (d), or that the fund is in danger from his being in insolvent circumstances (e), or being a bankrupt (f), or that one trustee has misconducted himself, the other consenting to the order (g), or that he is incapacitated from acting (h), or that the executor is a person of bad character, drunken habits, and great poverty (i). [But before judgment in a creditor's action a receiver will not be appointed unless a case is shown of the assets being wasted (j), nor merely because the executor will in the matter of the particular solicitor.]

(a) Brodie v. Barry, 3 Mer. 695; Beaumont v. Beaumont, cited Ib. 696; see Browell v. Reed, 1 Hare, 435.

(b) Manners v. Furze, 11 Beav. 30; Tylee v. Tylee, 17 Beav. 583.

(c) Anon., 12 Ves. 5, per Sir W. Grant; and see Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 266; Howard v. Papera, 1 Mad. 142; Richards v. Perkins, 3 Y. & C. 299; Evans v. Coventry, 5 De G. M. & G. 911.

(d) Earl Talbot v. Scott, 4 K. & J. 139.

(e) Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 346; Mansfield v. Shaw, 3 Mad. 100; and see Anon., 12 Ves. 4; Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 266; Havers v. Havers, Barn. 23.

(f) Gladdon v. Stoneman, 1 Mad. 143, note; Langley v. Hawk, 5 Mad. 46; [Re Hopkins, 19 Ch. D. (C.A.) 61. In Bowen v. Phillips, (1897) 1 Ch. 174, the other executor being able and willing to act, no receiver was asked for, but only an injunction, see ante, p. 1097].

(g) Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 266.

(h) Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421.

(i) Everett v. Pryterch, 12 Sim. 367, 368.

[(j) Harris v. Harris, 56 L. J. N.S. Ch. 754; 56 L. T. N.S. 507, following Philips v. Jones, 28 S. J. 360, and dissenting from the dictum of Jessel, M.R., in Re Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733; Re Wells, 45 Ch. D. 569.]

probably exercise his right of retainer to the prejudice of the other creditors (a).]

Where executrix a feme covert, and husband abroad.

3. And a receiver was appointed [in a case under the old law] where the executrix was a feme covert, and the husband, besides being in indifferent circumstances, was out of the jurisdiction, for in such a case, said the Court, if the executrix waste the assets or refuse payment, the party aggrieved has no remedy, as the husband must be joined in the action (b). [But now that under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (c), the husband is not a necessary party to an action against the executors, and is not subject to liabilities by reason of any devastavit committed by his wife unless he has acted or intermeddled in the administration, it is conceived that his poverty or absence would be no ground for the appointment of a receiver.]

Receiver where trust estate unprotected.

4. And a receiver has been ordered where four trustees had been named in a will and one died, and another was abroad, and the third had scarcely interfered in the trust, and the fourth submitted to a receiver by his answer (d). In another case three trustees had disagreed, and a receiver was appointed (e): the order was taken by arrangement between the parties, but the Court had previously expressed its opinion that unless the trustees chose to agree, a receiver must be appointed (f). Where two out of three trustees chose to act separately, and took securities in their own names omitting that of the dissentient trustee, a cestui que trust was held entitled to a receiver (g). And the Court will grant a receiver at the instance of the cestui que trust, when the single trustee is, or all the trustees are out of the jurisdiction (h).

Receiver not granted on slight grounds.

5. But the Court is not in the habit of granting a receiver, and so taking the administration out of the hands of the trustees, the natural curators of the estate, upon very slight grounds (i). Thus it is no sufficient cause for a receiver that one of several trustees has disclaimed (j), or is inactive, or gone abroad (k). Nor is it a sufficient cause that trustees are in mean (not

[(a) Re Wells, 45 Ch. D. 569; Re Stevens, (1898) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 162, 173.]

(b) Taylor v. Allen, 2 Atk. 213.

[(c) 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, ss. 18, 24.]

(d) Tidd v. Lister, 5 Mad. 429.

(e) Day v. Croft, 2nd May, 1839, M.R.

(f) See now Hart v. Denham, W. N. 1871, p. 2.

(g) Swale v. Swale, 22 Beav. 584.

(h) Noad v. Backhouse, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 529; Smith v. Smith, 10 Hare, App. lxxi.

(i) See Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 268; Barkley v. Lord Reay, 2 Hare, 306.

(j) Browell v. Reed, 1 Hare, 434; but see Tait v. Jenkins, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 492.

(k) Browell v. Reed, 1 Hare, 435, per Sir J. Wigram.

insolvent) circumstances (a), or being trustees for sale have let the purchaser into possession before they received the purchase-money, for the Court will not necessarily infer this to be misconduct (b).

Receiver not discharged at the mere instance of the party procuring his appointment.

6. When a receiver is appointed under the authority of the Court, he is appointed for the benefit of all parties interested, and therefore will not be discharged merely on the application of the party at whose instance the order was made (c).

An exception under special circumstances.

7. However, when a receiver had been appointed on the application of the plaintiff, the tenant for life, on the ground of the misconduct of one of the trustees, and the incapacity of the other, and afterwards three new trustees were appointed by the Court, who, on a motion by the plaintiff to discharge the receiver, undertook to receive the rents and pass their accounts half-yearly before the Master in the same way as a receiver, the Court said it was not proposed to deprive any party of the protection of a receiver, but merely to substitute the trustees in his place; that the tenant for life ought not necessarily to be charged with the costs of a receiver; that it was not intended to put the tenant for life in possession; that if any objections were shown to the trustees the application would be refused, but in the absence of such objections it was a reasonable request: and the order for discharging the receiver was made (d).

Expense of receiver falls on life estate.

8. Where the Court appoints a receiver, the poundage and the expenses of passing his accounts fall upon the income of the tenant for life (e).

[Receiver's priority for his costs and remuneration.]

[9. Where property was realised in an action by debenture-holders against their trustees to execute the trusts of the deed for securing the debentures, and a receiver and manager had also been appointed in the action, the receiver and manager was allowed the balance due to him, including his remuneration and his costs of the action, in priority to the costs, charges, and expenses of the trustees, and the costs of the plaintiffs, other than costs of the realisation of the property (f).]

(a) Anon. case, 12 Ves. 4; Howard v. Papera, 1 Mad. 142; and see Hathornthwaite v. Russel, 2 Atk. 126. In Havers v. Havers, Barn. 23, the Court considered misapplication probable.

(b) Browell v. Reed, 1 Hare, 434.

(c) Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 423, per Lord Langdale.

(d) Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421, 423, 424; and see Poole v. Franks, 1 Moll. 80.

(e) Shore v. Shore, 4 Drew. 510.

[(f) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Company, 28 Ch. D. 317; and see Strapp v. Bull, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1; Lathom v. Greenwich Ferry Company, 72 L. T. N.S. 790; Re London United Breweries Company, (1907) 2 Ch. 511; and see Ramsay v. Simpson, (1899) 1 I. R. 69, where costs of a manager in an administration action

SECTION V

OF COSTS OF SUIT

I. As between strangers on the one hand, and trustees and cestuis que trust on the other. Costs as between trustees and strangers.

1. In these cases, the trustee is on no better footing than any ordinary plaintiff or defendant, for the circumstances of the trust cannot be allowed to affect the interest of a third person (a). Thus, if a trustee fail in his application to the Court, he must pay the costs of it (b).

2. So, in a suit by a stranger for specific performance of a contract, the vendor being a trustee for sale must, if he cannot make a title, pay the costs of the suit agreeably to the general rule (c). Costs where trustees cannot make a title.

3. So, where trustees or executors are brought before the Court as necessary parties by a stranger, if the trustees or executors contest the claims of the plaintiff, and the plaintiff recover in the suit, they are not entitled to the costs (d). Trustee made a defendant as a necessary party.

4. If a plaintiff fail in his suit, but stands in so hard a case that he ought not to pay any costs, the Court will not oblige him to pay the costs of a defendant because the latter happens to sustain the character of a trustee (e). Plaintiff failing in his suit not necessarily bound to pay costs of a trustee.

5. In a foreclosure action against the mortgagor and his trustee to bar dower, the trustee is not entitled to his costs as against the mortgagee (f). Trustee to bar dower.

6. Where an action by a stranger is dismissed with costs, a trustee, who is a defendant, will in general be allowed his costs only as between party and party (g). [But under the general discretionary power which the Court possesses in all matters of equitable jurisdiction, costs as between solicitor and client may be given under special circumstances (h).] Trustee has costs as between party and party only.

had priority over all other costs, except the executor's, and the costs of the realization of the assets.]

(a) Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden, 251, per Lord Northington.

(b) Ex parte Angerstein, 9 L. R. Ch. App. 479; [Pitts v. La Fontaine, 6 App. Cas. 482].

(c) Edwards v. Harvey, G. Coop. 40; and see Hill v. Magan, 2 Moll. 460; Elsey v. Lutyens, 8 Hare, 164.

(d) Rashley v. Masters, 1 Ves. jun. 201, see 205.

(e) Brodie v. St Paul, 1 Ves. jun. 326, see 334.

(f) Horrocks v. Ledsam, 2 Coll. 208.

(g) Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Sw. 201; Saunders v. Saunders, 3 Jur. N.S. 727.

[(h) Andrews v. Barnes, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 133, in which case Kay, J., allowed costs as between solicitor and client to the trustees of a small charity fund, made defendants in an action unjustifiably brought to recover the fund from them; and see Seton, 6th ed. p. 1169.]

Trustee respondent to petition of cestui que trust.

7. Where money has been paid into Court by a railway company, and the cestuis que trust are petitioners and the trustee a respondent, the company must pay the costs of both, as the trustee is justified in appearing separately to inform the Court that the order is right (a).

Costs in creditor's suit.

8. If a creditor filed a bill against an executor for payment of a debt, the rule which [until the recent alteration in the practice of the Court] prevailed at law was not also the rule of equity, viz. that if the creditor recovered he should be entitled to his costs de bonis testatoris, and if there were none, then de bonis propriis of the executor; for the consideration of costs in equity rested entirely in the discretion of the Court (b). As the law formerly stood, if the assets were not sufficient to cover both the plaintiff's debt and costs, the executor was not decreed in equity to pay costs personally (c), unless he had misconducted himself, as by having satisfied simple contract debts in preference to debts upon specialty (d); but he was not entitled to retain his own costs out of the assets in preference to the claims of the plaintiff (e). And if a bill had been filed by a specialty creditor, and the specialty debt had exhausted the personal assets, the executor could not have claimed to be reimbursed out of the real estate to the prejudice of the testator's heir (f): for the executor, it was said, should have considered the risk before he applied for the probate (g). But now the practice is that the executor shall have his own costs in the first place, even as against the plaintiff, for the Court will not take the fund out of his hands until his costs are paid (h).

Executor (though not so formerly) now held entitled to his costs in preference to the plaintiff.

(a) Ex parte Metropolitan Railway Company, 16 W. R. 996; and see Re English's Settlement, 39 Ch. D. 556. [See, however, Order LXV., Rule 27 (19), as to tender of 30s. costs to a respondent in such a case.]

(b) Twisleton v. Thelwel, Hard. 165; Uvedale v. Uvedale, 3 Atk. 119; but see Davy v. Seys, Mos. 204. [Now by Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order LXV., Rule 1, and the Judicature Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 44), s. 5, the costs of and incident to all proceedings in the Supreme Court, including the administration of estates and trusts, are in the discretion of the Court.]

(c) Twisleton v. Thelwel, Hard. 165; Morony v. Vincent, 2 Moll. 461.

(d) Jefferies v. Harrison, 1 Atk. 468; and see Bennett v. Attkins, 1 Y. & C. 247; Wilkins v. Hunt, 2 Atk. 151.

(e) Humphrey v. Morse, 2 Atk. 408; Sandys v. Watson, 2 Atk. 80; and see Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 280.

(f) Uvedale v. Uvedale, 3 Atk. 119; and see Nash v. Dillon, 1 Moll. 237.

(g) See Uvedale v. Uvedale, 3 Atk. 119; Humphrey v. Morse, 2 Atk. 408.

(h) Bennet v. Going, 1 Moll. 529; Tipping v. Power, 1 Hare, 405; [Leonard v. Kellett, 27 L. R. Ir. 418;] Ottley v. Gilby, 8 Beav. 603; Tanner v. Dancey, 9 Beav. 339; [but not his costs of a probate action; Re Pearse, 56 L. T. N.S. 228; 35 W. R. 358].

II. Of costs as between trustees and cestuis que trust.

Trustee entitled to costs as a general rule.

I. The general rule is that a trustee shall have his costs of suit awarded to him at the hearing either out of the trust estate, or to be paid by the cestui que trust (a). And if there be a fund under the control of the Court he will have his costs as between solicitor and client (b). And if there be no fund, still if the cestuis que trust choose to bring the trustees before the Court for obtaining its directions as to the rights of the parties or the mode of administration, and the trustees are free from blame, the trustees are entitled to their costs as between solicitor and client as against the cestuis que trust personally (c). But if plaintiffs take proceedings for the purpose of creating a fund, of which the defendants would be trustees for the plaintiffs, if the plaintiffs succeeded, but the plaintiffs fail, the defendants are entitled as against the plaintiffs to costs only as between party and party (d).

[Costs statute barred.]

[And as the right of indemnity of trustees extends to fair claims of every kind, they are entitled to pay and retain costs properly incurred, although the right to recover payment may be barred by the Statute of Limitations; and therefore on moderation or taxation the taxing officer should not exclude statute-barred costs (e).]

(a) 1 Eq. Ca. Ab. 125, note (a); Hall v. Hallett, 1 Cox, 141, per Lord Thurlow; Attorney-General v. City of London, 3 B. C. C. 171; Norris v. Norris, 1 Cox, 183; Sammes v. Rickman, 2 Ves. jun. 38, per Lord Chief Baron Eyre; Rashley v. Masters, 1 Ves. jun. 201; Rocke v. Hart, 11 Ves. 58; Maplett v. Pocock, Rep. t. Finch, 136; Landen v. Green, Barn. 389; Taylor v. Glanville, 3 Mad. 176, &c.; [Re Knight's Will, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 82, 90; Re Love, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 348; Easton v. Landor, 62 L. J. Ch. (C.A.) 164; W. N. (1892) p. 176; Re Turner, (1907) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 126, ante, p. 795. By Order LXV., Rule 1, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, the costs of all proceedings, including the administration of estates and trusts, are in the discretion of the Court, but this is not to deprive an executor, administrator, trustee, or mortgagee, who has not unreasonably instituted or carried on or resisted any proceedings, of any right to costs out of a particular estate or fund, to which he would be entitled according to the rules previously acted upon in the Chancery Division; see Re Hodgson, W. N. 1884, p. 117, where the action had been instituted before the order came into operation; Re M'Clellan, 29 Ch. D. 495; Re Beddoe, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 547. The right of trustees to their costs on an application by originating summons under Order LV., (see ante, pp. 420 et seq., 771) is the same as in an action for administering the trust; Re Medland, 41 Ch. D. (C.A.) 476, 492. Though the Court has no power to order payment of costs out of a fund to which infants are contingently entitled, in the absence of next of kin entitled in reversion, yet if trustees are present to represent the next of kin, there is ample jurisdiction to give costs out of the estate: Re Slaughter, (1907) W. N. 197].

(b) Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Sw. 201, per Sir T. Plumer; Moore v. Frowd, 3 M. & Cr. 49, per Lord Cottenham.

(c) Attorney-General v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 155; and see Edenborough v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 2 Russ. 112; [and Andrews v. Barnes, 39 Ch. D. (C.A.) 133].

(d) Saunders v. Saunders, 3 Jur. N.S. 727; Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Sw. 201.

[(e) Budgett v. Budgett, (1895) 1 Ch. 202.]

Charges and expenses.

2. If it appear upon the pleadings, or the Court be otherwise satisfied, that the trustee has sustained charges and expenses beyond the costs of suit, the Court will order him his costs, charges, and expenses, properly incurred. But an order made in a suit in this form will not comprise costs, charges, and expenses, incurred in defending other suits, unless they be specially mentioned (a).

[Priority.]

[3. If the trust estate be insufficient for the payment of all the costs of the action, the trustee is entitled to have his costs, charges, and expenses, paid in priority to the costs of the cestuis que trust (b). But the necessary costs of realising the trust estate will have priority over the trustees' costs, charges, and expenses, as will also the costs and remuneration of a receiver and manager appointed in the suit (c).]

Professional charges.

4. If the trustee be a solicitor, he cannot make the usual professional charges (d), but the Court will not declare that the trustee shall have his costs out of pocket only, but will give him his costs as between solicitor and client in the usual way, and leave it to the taxing officer to deal with the effect of the order (e).

Practice in creditors' and legatees' suits where fund is deficient.

5. A singular application of the rules respecting costs as between trustees and third persons, and as between trustees and their cestuis que trust inter se, arises in the case of a deficient fund. If a creditor bring an action for administration, and there is a surplus, he can only have costs as between party and party, for that is all that he is entitled to as against the residuary legatees with whom he has no privity; but if the estate be deficient, and is divisible amongst the creditors pro ratâ, the creditor is regarded in the light of a trustee for himself and the other creditors, and then, as between him and his co-creditors, he is allowed his costs as between solicitor and client. Thus the less the estate the larger the plaintiff's costs. The same principle applies [mutatis mutandis, to a debenture-holder's action where the company's assets are insufficient for payment of the debentures in

(a) Payne v. Little, 27 Beav. 83. [An appeal from an order as to "costs, charges, and expenses," will not lie as to costs only; for the mere fact that the order refers to charges and expenses, about which no complaint is made, does not give the trustee a general right to appeal as to costs; Bew v. Bew, (1899) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 467.]

[(b) Dodds v. Tuke, 25 Ch. D. 617; and see Batten Proffitt & Scott v. Dartmouth Harbour Commissioners, 45 Ch. D. 612, 621.]

[(c) Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Company, 28 Ch. D. 317; and see Strapp v. Bull, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 1; Lathom v. Greenwich Ferry Company, 72 L. T. N.S. 790; Re Glasdir Copper Mines Limited, (1906) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 365.]

(d) See ante, p. 312.

(e) York v. Brown, 1 Coll. 260.

full (a); to an action by a creditor of a deceased partner where the estate is sufficient for payment of separate, but not of partnership, debts (b); to the case of a creditor who obtains the conduct of an action originally brought by a legatee or next of kin (c); and to an action] by a legatee where the fund, after payment of debts, is not sufficient for discharge of the legacies in full (d); but otherwise if the fund be insufficient for payment of debts (e). Where the personalty had been exhausted and a creditor's suit was instituted against the devisees of the real estate, which was also likely to prove deficient, the order was that the proceeds should be applied first in payment of the costs of plaintiffs and defendants as between party and party pari passu, and then in discharge of the debts, and if the fund were insufficient for the latter purpose, then, as between the plaintiffs and the other creditors, the plaintiffs should be paid their extra costs as between solicitor and client (f).

Trustee not appearing.

6. Where the trustee did not appear at the hearing, and a decree nisi was made against him, and the trustee set down the cause again, and prayed to have his costs of the suit upon his paying the costs of the day, Lord Kenyon said: "The payment of the costs of the day makes the trustee rectum in curiâ; and as he would most unquestionably have been entitled to his costs if he had appeared at the original hearing, so he now stands in the same situation, and is therefore entitled to his costs" (g).

Decree passed.

7. But if the decree has been passed, a trustee who has omitted to ask for his costs at the hearing, cannot have the cause reheard upon the subject of costs only, and cannot obtain an order for payment of his costs upon presenting a petition (h).

[Where no order made as to costs.]

[8. Where in an administration action by a beneficiary against a trustee, the judge by his order "does not think fit to make any order as to the costs of the action," the prima facie right of

[(a) Re New Zealand Midland Railway Company, (1901) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 357.]

[(b) Re M'Rae, 32 Ch. D. 613.]

[(c) Re Richardson, 14 Ch. D. 611.]

(d) Thomas v. Jones, 1 Dr. & Sm. 134, and cases there cited; and see Tardrew v. Howell, 2 Giff. 530.

(e) Weston v. Clowes, 15 Sim. 610; Newman v. Hatch, Seton, 6th ed. p. 1513; Wettenhall v. Davis, 9 Jur. N.S. 1216; S. C., nom. Wetenhall v. Dennis, 33 Beav. 285; [and as to the application of a like principle to the case of an action to enforce a charge and declare priorities, so as to entitle the plaintiff to costs out of a fund, so far as the other incumbrancers have had the benefit of the action in securing the fund to them, and ascertaining and determining their rights, see Batten Proffitt and Scott v. Dartmouth Harbour Commissioners, 45 Ch. D. 612; Ford v. Earl of Chesterfield, 21 Beav. 426; Wright v. Kirby, 23 Beav. 463; Leonard v. Kellett, 27 L. R. Ir. 418].

(f) Henderson v. Dodds, 2 L. R. Eq. 532.

(g) Norris v. Norris, 1 Cox, 183.

(h) Colman v. Sarell, 2 Cox, 206.

the trustee to retain his costs out of the estate is judicially negatived (a).]

Disclaimer.

9. If a person named as trustee be made defendant to a suit, and by his defence disclaim the trust, the suit will be dismissed as against him with costs (b); but not with costs as between solicitor and client, for, having refused to accept the office, he stands in the position of an ordinary defendant (c); and if his defence be unnecessarily long, he will only be allowed the reasonable costs of a disclaimer (d).

Costs of trustee of a void deed.

10. If a person be a trustee of a deed void as against creditors, or on other grounds, the plaintiff by praying a conveyance by the trustee may elect to treat him in that character, so as to give him a claim to costs (e). Otherwise the so-called trustee is a trustee of a nullity, and he and his cestui que trust cannot have costs as against the true owner (f); more particularly if the deed to which the trustee is a party contain a false recital for the purpose only of misleading (g); and if the trustee's claim to the expenses of the so-called trust be the occasion of the suit, he will be ordered to pay costs (h). [So, where the trustee had prepared the settlement and had persuaded the settlor to execute it, he was ordered to pay the costs of the action to set it aside (i).] If a suit be instituted against trustees of an instrument, which is a nullity, for enforcing the void trusts, and the suit is dismissed, the quasi trustees will have their costs, but only as between party and party (j). [Where a settlement is set aside in an action brought against the trustees by the trustee in bankruptcy of the settlor, trustees who have acted properly, and not put the plaintiff to unnecessary expense, will be allowed to retain their costs of the action, as between solicitor and client, out of the trust fund (k).]

Suit originated by the trustee's misconduct.

11. If any particular instance of misconduct, or a general

[(a) Re Hodgkinson, (1895) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 190.]

(b) Hickson v. Fitzgerald, 1 Moll. 14.

(c) Norway v. Norway, 2 M. & K. 278, overruling Sherratt v. Bentley, 1 R. & M. 655.

(d) Martin v. Persse, 1 Moll. 146.

(e) Snow v. Hole, V.C. of England, 8th March, 1845; and see Goldsmith v. Russell, 5 De G. M. & G. 547, 556; Daking v. Whimper, 26 Beav. 571; Ponsford v. Widnell, W. N. 1869, p. 81; Travis v. Illingworth, W. N. 1868, p. 206; Ex parte Tomlinson, 3 De G. F. & J. 745; and see ante, p. 787.

(f) Elsey v. Cox, 26 Beav. 95; Crossley v. Elworthy, 12 L. R. Eq. 158.

(g) Turquand v. Knight, 14 Sim. 643.

(h) Smith v. Dresser, 1 L. R. Eq. 651; S. C., 35 Beav. 378.

[(i) Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 278.]

(j) Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Sw. 201.

[(k) Merry v. Pownall, (1898) 1 Ch. 306.]

dereliction of duty in the trustee (a), or even his mere caprice and obstinacy (b), be the immediate cause why the suit was instituted, the trustee, on the charge being substantiated against him, must pay the costs of the proceedings which his own improper behaviour occasioned (c); and of course if the trustee be decreed to pay the costs personally, he cannot afterwards deduct them from the trust fund in his hands (d). [So, if an executor or trustee improperly institute an action to administer the estate or execute the trust, the Court will not allow its process to be used as an instrument of oppression, but will make the plaintiff personally bear all the costs of the action (e); and under the new rules, if an administration action be rendered necessary solely by the neglect of the trustee to furnish accounts, the judgment should be so framed as to enable the Court to throw the whole costs of the action on the trustee (f). But the right of a trustee to his costs rests substantially upon contract, and can only be lost or curtailed by such inequitable conduct as amounts to a violation or culpable neglect of his duty under the contract (g), and his costs accordingly are not "by law left to the discretion of the Court"; and a trustee if deprived of his

(a) Springett v. Dashwood, 2 Giff. 521; Byrne v. Norcott, 13 Beav. 346; Attorney-General v. Hobert, Rep. t. Finch, 259; Earl Powlet v. Herbert, 1 Ves. jun. 297; Caffrey v. Darby, 6 Ves. 488; Littlehales v. Gascoyne, 3 B. C. C. 73; Ashburnham v. Thompson, 13 Ves. 402; Adams v. Clifton, 1 Russ. 297; Mosley v. Ward, 11 Ves. 581; Piety v. Stace, 4 Ves. 620; Seers v. Hind, 1 Ves. jun. 294; Fell v. Lutwidge, Barn. 319, see 322; Brown v. How, Barn. 354, see 358; Sheppard v. Smith, 2 B. P. C. 372; Haberdashers' Company v. Attorney-General, 2 B. P. C. 370; Franklin v. Frith, 3 B. C. C. 433; Whistler v. Newman, 4 Ves. 129; Stacpoole v. Stacpoole, 4 Dow, 209; Crackelt v. Bethune, 1 J. & W. 586; Baker v. Carter, 1 Y. & C. 252, per Lord Abinger, C. B.; Hide v. Haywood, 2 Atk. 120; Wilson v. Wilson, 2 Keen, 249; Attorney-General v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1; Lyse v. Kingdon, 1 Coll. 184; [Thomson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215; Heugh v. Scard, 33 L. T. N.S. 659; 24 W. R. 51; Re Weall, 42 Ch. D. 674; Easton v. Landor, 62 L.J. Ch. (C.A.) 164; W. N. (1892) p. 176; Re Skinner, (1904) 1 Ch. 289].

(b) Taylor v. Glanville, 3 Mad. 178, per Sir J. Leach; Smith v. Bolden, 33 Beav. 262; May v. Armstrong, W. N. 1866, p. 233; Jones v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 199; Earl of Scarborough v. Parker, 1 Ves. jun. 267; Kirby v. Mash, 3 Y. & C. 295; Thorby v. Yeats, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 438; Hampshire v. Bradley, 2 Coll. 34; Penfold v. Bouch, 4 Hare, 271; and see Burrows v. Greenwood, 4 Y. & C. 251; Hayhow v. George, and Southwell v. Martin, 21 L. T. N.S. 135; [Coppinger v. Shakleton, 15 L. R. Ir. 461].

[(c) Such an order may be made in proceedings commenced by originating summons: Re Skinner, (1904) 1 Ch. 289.]

(d) Attorney-General v. Daugars, 33 Beav. 621.

[(e) Re Cabburn, 46 L. T. N.S. 848.]

[(f) Re Hayter, 32 W. R. 26.]

[(g) Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 303; Re Evans, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 58, 65; and see Re Jones, (1897) 2 Ch. 190, where an administrator was held entitled to his costs of an administration action, caused by a mistaken claim by him to be allowed expenses which were subsequently disallowed.]

costs, may, without the leave of the Court or judge making the order, appeal on the question of his costs only (a). Where, however, the settlement is itself set aside, the trustee has no claim to his costs as matter of right, as in that case there is no contract in existence, and accordingly he cannot appeal as to such costs (b).]

Where misconduct proved only in part.

12. But where a bill was filed charging the trustee with a breach of trust both as to realty and personalty, and the charge failed as to the former but succeeded as to the latter, the Court said, it was scarcely possible to suppose that the trustee should be permitted to have his costs, but it would be injustice to make him pay the whole costs, as one part of the bill had failed, and he was therefore ordered to pay the costs of that part of the bill which had succeeded (c).

[Trustee severing from co-trustee.]

[13. A trustee ought not to be deprived of his costs of an administration action out of the trust estate merely because he has severed from his co-trustee, but he is entitled to have an opportunity of explaining his conduct, so that the Court may decide judicially whether the severance was improper (d).

[Costs of innocent trustee.]

14. Where two trustees are jointly and severally liable for a breach of trust committed by one of them, the other trustee being innocent, the Court may order the guilty trustee to repay to the innocent trustee the costs of the action to repair the breach of trust (e). Where a trustee acting honestly has invested the trust funds on improper securities, but has made good the loss to the trust estate before judgment in an action to execute the trusts, he will be allowed his costs (f).

[Breach of trust repaired before judgment.]

[Trustee unsuccessfully attacked.]

A trustee whose conduct was unsuccessfully attacked in an administration action was held entitled to the costs of appearing by two counsel (g).]

Setting aside a purchase by trustees, in absence of fraud.

15. Trustees for sale had purchased in the name of a trustee at an undervalue, but without any imputation of fraud, and by

[(a) Cotterell v. Stratton, 8 L. R. Ch. App. 295; Farrow v. Austin, 18 Ch. D. 58; Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. (C.A.) 303; Re Sarah Knight's Will, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 82; Re Love, 29 Ch. D. (C.A.) 348; Re Beddoe, (1893) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 547; Re Isaac, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 251; but see Taylor v. Dowden, 4 L. R. Ch. App. 697; Re Hoskin's Trusts, 6 Ch. D. (C.A.) 281.]

[(b) Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. (C.A.) 278.]

(c) Pocock v. Reddington, 5 Ves. 800; [Re Sarah Knight's Will, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 82].

[(d) Re Isaac, (1897) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 251, where the order of the Court below was varied so as to allow to the severing trustee costs of work actually done by him.]

[(e) Price v. Price, 42 L. T. N.S. 626; Wilson v. Thomson, 20 L. R. Eq. 459.]

[(f) Peacock v. Colling, 54 L. J. N.S. Ch. 743; 53 L. T. N.S. 620; 33 W. R. 528.]

[(g) Re Maddock, (1899) 2 Ch. 588.]

auction. As to so much of the suit as related to calling upon the trustees to submit to a resale, and the directions consequential thereon, the Court gave relief against the trustees with costs; but as to accounts that must have been taken had the sale been unimpeachable, the trustees were allowed their costs (a).

Mistake or slight neglect of the trustee.

16. If the suit was occasioned by an innocent mistake of the trustee (such as an investment in good faith, and without loss to the trust fund, on a security not strictly correct (b)), the Court will content itself with not giving him costs (c), or will punish him with payment of part of the costs only (d), or will even allow him his costs (e); [but an official liquidator who is a paid agent is not entitled to the same latitude in the matter of costs as a gratuitous trustee (f)].

Administration suit mainly caused by a breach of trust.

17. Though, as a general rule, where a trustee commits a breach of trust he must pay the costs of a suit to repair it, yet he [may] be entitled to his subsequent costs relating to the ordinary taking of the accounts (g); [but under the new practice there is no general rule to that effect, and in a case of gross neglect, he may be ordered to pay the costs of taking and vouching the accounts (h)].

Misconduct of the trustee discovered in the progress of the suit.

18. If the suit did not originate from any necessity of inquiring into the conduct of the trustee, but, in the course of the proceedings instituted upon other grounds, it appears that the trustee has in some particular instance been guilty of a breach of trust, the Court will not award against the trustee the costs of the whole suit, but only of so much of it as connects itself with his misconduct, and as to the rest of the suit will allow him his costs (i).

Clearance of default.

19. The Court never gives costs to a defaulting trustee while he continues in default, but the Court says, " when you have (a) Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 601.

(b) Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 6 Ir. Ch. Rep. 145.

(c) O'Callaghan v. Cooper, 5 Ves. 117; Mousley v. Carr, 4 Beav. 49; Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, Ib. 71; Devey v. Thornton, 9 Hare, 222; [Ryan v. Nesbitt, W. N. 1879, p. 100].

(d) East v. Ryall, 2 P. W. 284.

(e) Taylor v. Tabrum, 6 Sim. 281; Flanagan v. Nolan, 1 Moll. 84; Travers v. Townsend, Ib. 496; Attorney-General v. Caius College, 2 Keen, 150; Bennett v. Attkins, 1 Y. & C. 247; Fitzgerald v. O'Flaherty, 1 Moll. 347; Attorney-General v. Drummond, 2 Conn. & Laws. 98; Royds v. Royds, 14 Beav. 54.

[(f) Re Silver Valley Mines, 21 Ch. D. (C.A.) 381.]

(g) Hewett v. Foster, 7 Beav. 348; and see Bate v. Hooper, 5 De G. M. & G. 345; Re King, 11 Jur. N.S. 899.

[(h) Re Skinner, (1904) 1 Ch. 289, referring to Easton v. Landor, 62 L. J. Ch. (C.A.) 164.]

(i) Tebbs v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 290, see 308; Newton v. Bennett, 1 B. C. C. 359; Pride v. Fooks, 2 Beav. 430; Heighington v. Grant, 1 Ph. 600.

paid in the balance found due from you, then you shall have your costs" (a). But a bankrupt [formerly ceased] from the date of bankruptcy to be a debtor to the trust estate, and was therefore entitled to his costs from the date of the bankruptcy (b).

[Where defaulting trustee a bankrupt.]

[20. The liability of a trustee for his breaches of duty was, however, by the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, sect. 49, continued notwithstanding his discharge, and there was some conflict of opinion as to the right of a bankrupt trustee under that Act to his costs as from the date of bankruptcy, but the better opinion seems to be that he was not entitled to such costs until he had made good his default (c). By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (d), the liability of a trustee for a breach of trust, (except in cases of fraudulent breaches) is released by the order of discharge, and it follows that under that Act, except in cases of fraud, a bankrupt trustee will, as from the date of his discharge, be entitled to his costs. If the liability of the trustee does not arise from a breach of trust, but is a mere ordinary liability which ceases as from the date of the bankruptcy, the trustee is entitled to his costs as from that date (e).

[Apportioning costs in action against executor of defaulting executor.]

21. If an action be brought against the executor of a defaulting executor to administer the original testator's estate, the defendant's costs ought strictly to be borne, as to those incurred solely in reference to the original testator's estate out of that estate, as to those incurred in seeking relief against the defaulting executor out of his estate, and as to the remaining costs out of the two estates equally; but to avoid the complication and expense of thus apportioning the costs, the Court has allowed the defendant the costs of taking the account of the original testator's estate, and half the rest of his costs out of the original testator's estate (f).]

Costs of discussing a doubtful point of law.

22. An executor, instead of accumulating a fund as directed by the will, had improperly kept the balance in his hands; but as the amount of costs had in a great measure been occasioned by

(a) Birks v. Micklethwait, 33 Beav. 409; Watson v. Row, 18 L. R. Eq. 680; [Lewis v. Trask, 21 Ch. D. 862; Re Basham, 23 Ch. D. 195; M'Ewan v. Crombie, 25 Ch. D. 175].

(b) Bowyer v. Griffin, 9 L. R. Eq. 340.

[(c) Lewis v. Trask, 21 Ch. D. 862; Re Basham, 23 Ch. D. 195; M'Ewan v. Crombie, 25 Ch. D. 175; Re Vowles, W. N. 1886, p. 73; Secus, Clare v. Clare, 21 Ch. D. 865.]

[(d) 46 & 47 Vict. c. 52, ss. 30, 37.]

[(e) Re Vowles, 32 Ch. D. 243; Smith v. Dale, 18 Ch. D. 516; Re Basham, 23 Ch. D. 195; and ante, p. 1184.]

[(f) Re Griffiths, 26 Ch. D. (C.A.) 465; and see Palmer v. Jones, 43 L. J. N.S. Ch. 349; Re Kitto, 28 W. R. 411.]

the inquiry what rule the Court ought to adopt with respect to the computation of interest, it was thought hard under the circumstances, to fix the executor with payment of costs even relatively to the breach of trust; and therefore the Court gave no costs (a).

Costs to be paid in part and received in part by the trustee.

23. In one case, as to part of the suit the trustee ought from his misconduct to have paid the costs, and, as to another, to have been allowed his costs; and the Court, by a kind of compromise, left each party to pay his own costs (b).

Trivial misconduct.

24. When the breach of trust is trivial, the Court may overlook it altogether, and give the trustee his own costs (c).

[Action by representative of trustee to recover the trust estate.]

[25. If the representative of a trustee who has invested the trust estate on an unauthorised security, bring an action to recover the trust estate, he will not be allowed the costs of that action as against the cestuis que trust, but must look for such costs to the estate of the trustee (d).]

Trustees protecting from parental influence.

26. The Court watches with jealousy transactions between parent and child occurring shortly after the child has attained twenty-one, more especially when the transactions had their inception during minority, and trustees acting bonâ fide in refusing to convey under such suspicious circumstances will be entitled to their costs (e).

Trustee instituting a suit for his private ends.

27. If a trustee have a private interest of his own, separate and independent from the trust, and oblige the cestui que trust to come into a Court of Equity merely to have some point relating to the trustee's private interest determined at the expense of the trust, that is such a vexatious proceeding in the trustee, that, for example's sake, he will be decreed to pay the whole costs of the suit (f).

Trustee falsely denying the plaintiff's claims.

28. If in a suit for an account the defendant states his belief that the plaintiff is considerably indebted to him, and after a long investigation it proves that the defendant is considerably indebted to the plaintiff, the trustee, thus daring the plaintiff to his account, will be decreed to pay the costs (g). And if the balance be in favour of the trustee, but far below what he had

(a) Raphael v. Boehm, 13 Ves. 592.
(b) Newton v. Bennet, 1 B. C. C. 362.
(c) Fitzgerald v. Pringle, 2 Moll. 534; Bailey v. Gould, 4 Y. & C. 221, see 225; Knott v. Cottee, 16 Beav. 77; Cotton v. Clark, 16 Beav. 134: Chugg v. Chugg, W. N. 1874, p. 185.
[(d) Gurney v. Gurney, 48 L. T. N.S. 529.]
(e) King v. King, 1 De G. & J. 663, see 671.
(f) Henley v. Philips, 2 Atk. 48.
(g) Parrot v. Treby, Pr. Ch. 254; Eglin v. Sanderson, 3 Giff. 434.

stated, he will not be entitled to have his costs (a), or at least not the costs of the account itself (b).

Trustee mis-stating his accounts.

29. A trustee will be deprived of costs (c), or will even have to pay costs if he refuse to account (d), or if he wilfully mis-state the accounts (e), or if, by any chicanery in his answer, he keep the cestui que trust from a true knowledge of the accounts (f), or even if he has kept the accounts in a very confused manner (g). And an executor will be liable to pay costs if he deny assets, and the contrary be established against him (h). But an executor is entitled to have the accounts taken under the direction of the Court, and, therefore, even where he had obstructed the taking of the accounts, he was not decreed to pay the costs, though he was not allowed to have his costs (i). But in another case, where he had unnecessarily and unjustifiably protracted the suit, and multiplied the costs by his litigiousness, he was ordered to pay the costs of a simple administration suit up to the hearing (j).

Corporation pleading ignorance falsely.

30. Where a corporation filling the character of trustees for a grammar school, by their answer pleaded ignorance of the claims of the charity, and the information was afterwards elicited from the documents scheduled to their answer, as the Court inferred from such conduct a disposition to obstruct and defeat the ends of justice, the corporation was decreed to pay the costs of the suit (k).

Corporation suppressing documents.

31. And a corporation similarly circumstanced was punished in the same manner where, the Court having directed the production of certain documents, it was afterwards discovered that a very material one had been suppressed (l).

Trustee setting up title of his own.

32. The costs of the suit will be cast upon the trustee, if, in his answer, he set up a title of his own, and make an ill

(a) Attorney-General v. Brewers' Company, 1 P. W. 376.

(b) Fozier v. Andrews, 2 Jon. & Lat. 199.

(c) Gresham v. Price, 35 Beav. 47.

(d) Boynton v. Richardson, 31 Beav. 340; Kemp v. Burn, 4 Giff. 348; Wroe v. Seed, 4 Giff. 425; Underwood v. Trower, W. N. 1867, p. 83; [Re Radclyffe, 50 L. J. N.S. Ch. 317].

(e) Sheppard v. Smith, 2 B. P. C. 372; and see Flanagan v. Nolan, 1 Moll. 86.

(f) Avery v. Osborne, Barn. 349; Reech v. Kennegal, 1 Ves. 123.

(g) Norbury v. Calbeck, 2 Moll. 461.

(h) Sandys v. Watson, 2 Atk. 80.

(i) Re King, 11 Jur. N.S. 899. [But under the Rules of the Supreme Court now in force, an executor instituting proceedings to have the accounts taken must, to entitle him to costs, be able to satisfy the Court that under all the circumstances of the case the institution of the action was reasonable. See Order LXV., Rule 1.]

(j) Talbot v. Marshfield, 4 L. R. Eq. 661; 3 L. R. Ch. App. 622.

(k) Attorney-General v. Burgesses of East Retford, 2 M. & K. 35.

(l) Borough of Hertford v. Poor of same Borough, 2 B. P. C. 377.

defence (a); and he will not be allowed to have his costs if he set up any trust different from what it actually is (b); and where a trustee filed an improper answer he was not allowed the costs of the answer (c).

Executors denying relationship of next of kin.

33. An executor sued by the next of kin had put the plaintiffs to the proof of their relationship, and, the fact not admitting a doubt, the executor was fixed with the costs of the inquiry (d).

Costs where interest given against executors.

34. It was laid down as a rule by Lord Thurlow, that "where the Court is obliged to give interest against executors as a remedy for a breach of trust, costs against them will follow of course" (e); but Sir W. Grant said, "that was a proposition to which he was not quite prepared to accede, as there might be many cases in which executors must pay interest, which would not be cases for costs" (f); and the existence of any such rule has been denied (g). The meaning of Lord Thurlow probably was, that where the suit was occasioned by the misconduct of the trustee, and the charge against him was shown to be well founded by the Court's fixing him with interest, the costs of the suit in that case would be consequential upon the relief (h).

[Costs of appeal.]

35. [Trustees, served with notice of an appeal upon the construction of a will, are entitled to their costs of appearance by counsel, but in taxing such costs the taxing officer should have regard to the position of the trustees, and especially whether it was such that, at the hearing of the appeal, their assistance would probably be required by the Court (i). Trustees served with notice of appeal and holding a merely neutral position, without any intention of taking part in the argument, ought not to appear by separate counsel on the appeal (j).]

(a) Lloyd v. Spillet, 3 P. W. 344; Bayly v. Powell, Pr. Ch. 92; Willis v. Hiscox, 4 M. & Cr. 197; Attorney-General v. Drapers' Company, 4 Beav. 67; Attorney-General v. Christ's Hospital, Ib. 73; Irwin v. Rogers, 12 Ir. Eq. Rep. 159.

(b) Ball v. Montgomery, 2 Ves. jun. 191, see 199.

(c) Eddowes v. Eddowes, 30 Beav. 603.

(d) Lowson v. Copeland, 2 B. C. C. 156.

(e) Seers v. Hind, 1 Ves. jun. 294, and see Franklin v. Frith, 3 B. C. C. 433; Mosley v. Ward, 11 Ves. 581.

(f) Ashburnham v. Thompson, 13 Ves. 404.

(g) Tebbs v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 308; Woodhead v. Marriott, C. P. Cooper's Rep. 1837-38, 62; Holgate v. Haworth, 17 Beav. 259; [Re John Jones, 49 L. T. N.S. 91].

(h) See Mosley v. Ward, 11 Ves. 582.

[(i) Carroll v. Graham, (1905) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 478, per Romer & Cozens Hardy, L.JJ.]

[(j) S. C., per Vaughan Williams, L. J.]

APPENDIX

No. I.

THE TRUSTEE ACT, 1893

56 & 57 Vict. c. 53

"An Act to consolidate Enactments relating to Trustees." (22*nd September*, 1893.)

Be it enacted, &c.

PART I.—Investments

1. A trustee may, unless expressly forbidden by the instrument (if any) creating the trust (a), invest any trust funds in his hands, whether at the time in a state of investment or not (b), in manner following (c), that is to say : Authorised investments.

(a.) In any of the parliamentary stocks or public funds or Government securities of the United Kingdom :

(b.) On real or heritable securities in Great Britain or Ireland (d) :

(c.) In the stock of the Bank of England or the Bank of Ireland :

(d.) In India Three and a half per cent. stock and India Three per cent. stock, or in any other capital stock which may at any time hereafter be issued by the Secretary of State in Council of India under the authority of Act of Parliament, and charged on the revenues of India :

(e.) In any securities the interest of which is for the time being guaranteed by Parliament :

(f.) In consolidated stock created by the Metropolitan Board of Works, or by the London County Council, or in debenture stock created by the Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District :

(g.) In the debenture or rent-charge, or guaranteed or preference

(a) See ante, p. 367.
(b) See p. 367.
(c) See p. 367.
(d) As to the precautions to be observed in lending on mortgage, see pp. 372 et seq.

stock of any railway company in Great Britain or Ireland incorporated by special Act of Parliament, and having during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment paid a dividend at the rate of not less than three per centum per annum on its ordinary stock:

(h.) In the stock of any railway or canal company in Great Britain or Ireland whose undertaking is leased in perpetuity or for a term of not less than two hundred years at a fixed rental to any such railway company as is mentioned in sub-section (g.), either alone or jointly with any other railway company:

(i.) In the debenture stock of any railway company in India, the interest on which is paid or guaranteed by the Secretary of State in Council of India:

(j.) In the "B" annuities of the Eastern Bengal, the East Indian, and the Scinde Punjaub and Delhi Railways, and any like annuities which may at any time hereafter be created on the purchase of any other railway by the Secretary of State in Council of India, and charged on the revenues of India, and which may be authorised by Act of Parliament to be accepted by trustees in lieu of any stock held by them in the purchased railway; also in deferred annuities comprised in the register of holders of annuities Class D. and annuities comprised in the register of annuitants Class C. of the East Indian Railway Company:

(k.) In the stock of any railway company in India upon which a fixed or minimum dividend in sterling is paid or guaranteed by the Secretary of State in Council of India, or upon the capital of which the interest is so guaranteed:

(l.) In the debenture or guaranteed or preference stock of any company in Great Britain or Ireland, established for the supply of water for profit, and incorporated by special Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter, and having during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment paid a dividend of not less than five pounds per centum on its ordinary stock:

(m.) In nominal or inscribed stock issued, or to be issued, by the corporation of any municipal borough having, according to the returns of the last census prior to the date of investment, a population exceeding fifty thousand, or by any county council, under the authority of any Act of Parliament or Provisional Order:

(n.) In nominal or inscribed stock issued or to be issued by any commissioners incorporated by Act of Parliament for the purpose of supplying water, and having a compulsory power of levying rates over an area having, according to the returns of the last census prior to the date of investment, a population exceeding fifty thousand, provided that during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment the rates levied by such commissioners shall not have exceeded eighty per centum of the amount authorised by law to be levied :

(o.) In any of the stocks, funds, or securities for the time being authorised for the investment of cash under the control or subject to the order of the High Court (a),

and may also from time to time vary any such investment (b).

Purchase at a premium of redeemable stocks.

2. (1) A trustee may under the powers of this Act invest in any of the securities mentioned or referred to in section 1 of this Act, notwithstanding that the same may be redeemable, and that the price exceeds the redemption value (c).

(2) Provided that a trustee may not under the powers of this Act purchase at a price exceeding its redemption value any stock mentioned or referred to in sub-sections (g.), (i.), (k.), (l.), and (m.) of sect. 1, which is liable to be redeemed within fifteen years of the date of purchase at par or at some other fixed rate, or purchase any such stock as is mentioned or referred to in the sub-sections aforesaid, which is liable to be redeemed at par or at some other fixed rate, at a price exceeding fifteen per centum above par or such other fixed rate.

(3) A trustee may retain until redemption any redeemable stock, fund, or security which may have been purchased in accordance with the powers of this Act.

Discretion of trustees.

3. Every power conferred by the preceding sections shall be exercised according to the discretion of the trustee, but subject to any consent required by the instrument, if any, creating the trust with respect to the investment of the trust funds.

Application of preceding sections.

4. The preceding sections shall apply as well to trusts created before as to trusts created after the passing of this Act, and the powers thereby conferred shall be in addition to the powers conferred by the instrument, if any, creating the trust.

Enlargement of express powers of investment.

5. (1) A trustee having power to invest in real securities, unless expressly forbidden by the instrument creating the trust, may invest and shall be deemed to have always had power to invest—

(a.) on mortgage of property held for an unexpired term of not less than two hundred years, and not subject to a reservation of rent greater than a shilling a year, or to any right of redemption or to any condition for re-entry, except for non-payment of rent (a); and

(a) See pp. 365, 366.
(b) See pp. 367 et seq.
(c) See p. 368.

27 & 28 Vict. c. 114.

(b.) on any charge, or upon mortgage of any charge made under the Improvement of Land Act, 1864 (b).

(2) A trustee having power to invest in the mortgages or bonds of any railway company or of any other description of company may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in the debenture stock of a railway company or such other company as aforesaid (c).

(3) A trustee having power to invest money in the debentures or debenture stock of any railway or other company may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in any nominal debentures or nominal debenture stock issued under the Local Loans Act, 1875 (d).

38 & 39 Vict. c. 83.

(4) A trustee having power to invest money in securities in the Isle of Man, or in securities of the government of a colony, may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in any securities of the Government of the Isle of Man, under the Isle of Man Loans Act, 1880 (e).

43 & 44 Vict. c. 8.

(5) A trustee having a general power to invest trust moneys in or upon the security of shares, stock, mortgages, bonds, or debentures of companies incorporated by or acting under the authority of an Act of Parliament, may invest in, or upon the security of, mortgage debentures duly issued under and in accordance with the provisions of the Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865 (f).

28 & 29 Vict. c. 78.

Power to invest, notwithstanding drainage charges.

6. A trustee having power to invest in the purchase of land or on mortgage of land, may invest in the purchase, or on mortgage of any land, notwithstanding the same is charged with a rent under the powers of the Public Money Drainage Acts, 1846 to 1856, or the Landed Property Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1847, or by an absolute order made under the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, unless the terms of the trust expressly provide that the land to be purchased or taken in mortgage shall not be subject to any such prior charge (g).

10 & 11 Vict. c. 32.

Trustees not to convert inscribed stock into certificates to bearer.

7. (1) A trustee, unless authorised by the terms of his trust, shall not apply for or hold any certificate to bearer issued under the authority of any of the following Acts, that is to say:

26 & 27 Vict. c. 73.

(a.) The India Stock Certificate Act, 1863;

33 & 34 Vict. c. 71.

(b.) The National Debt Act, 1870;

38 & 39 Vict. c. 83.

(c.) The Local Loans Act, 1875;

40 & 41 Vict. c. 59.

(d.) The Colonial Stock Act, 1877.

(a) See p. 369.
(b) See p. 369.
(c) See p. 369.
(d) See p. 369.
(e) See pp. 369, 370.
(f) See p. 370
(g) See p. 370.

(2) Nothing in this section shall impose on the Bank of England or of Ireland, or on any person authorised to issue any such certificates, any obligation to inquire whether a person applying for such a certificate is or is not a trustee, or subject them to any liability in the event of their granting any such certificate to a trustee, nor invalidate any such certificate if granted (a).

Loans and investments by trustees not chargeable as breaches of trust.

8. (1) A trustee lending money on the security of any property (b) on which he can lawfully lend shall not be chargeable with breach of trust by reason only of the proportion borne by the amount of the loan to the value of the property at the time when the loan was made, provided that it appears to the Court that in making the loan the trustee was acting upon a report as to the value of the property made by a person whom he reasonably believed to be an able practical surveyor or valuer instructed and employed independently of any owner of the property, whether such surveyor or valuer carried on business in the locality where the property is situate or elsewhere, and that the amount of the loan does not exceed two equal third parts of the value of the property as stated in the report, and that the loan was made under the advice of the surveyor or valuer expressed in the report (c).

(2) A trustee lending money on the security of any leasehold property shall not be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in making such loan he dispensed either wholly or partly with the production or investigation of the lessor's title (d).

(3) A trustee shall not be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in effecting the purchase of or in lending money upon the security of any property he has accepted a shorter title than the title which a purchaser is, in the absence of a special contract, entitled to require, if in the opinion of the Court the title accepted be such as a person acting with prudence and caution would have accepted (e).

(4) This section applies to transfers of existing securities as well as to new securities, and to investments made as well before as after the commencement of this Act, except where an action or other proceeding was pending with reference thereto on the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Liability or loss by reason of improper investments.

9. (1) Where a trustee improperly advances trust money on a mortgage security which would at the time of the investment be a proper investment in all respects for a smaller sum than is actually advanced thereon, the security shall be deemed an authorised investment for the smaller sum, and the trustee shall only be liable to make good the sum advanced in excess thereof with interest.

(a) See p. 371.
(b) In the Act of 1888 the words "of any tenure, whether agricultural or house or other property," were added.
(c) See pp. 374 et seq.
(d) See p. 372.
(e) See p. 586.

(2) This section applies to investments made as well before as after the commencement of this Act except where an action or other proceeding was pending with reference thereto on the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight (a).

PART II.—Various Powers and Duties of Trustees

Appointment of New Trustees.

Power of appointing new trustees.

10. (1) Where a trustee, either original or substituted, and whether appointed by a court or otherwise, is dead, or remains out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, or desires to be discharged from all or any of the trusts or powers reposed in or conferred on him, or refuses or is unfit to act therein, or is incapable of acting therein, then the person or persons nominated for the purpose of appointing new trustees by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, or if there is no such person, or no such person able and willing to act, then the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee for the time being, or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee, may, by writing, appoint another person or other persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of the trustee dead, remaining out of the United Kingdom, desiring to be discharged, refusing, or being unfit or being incapable, as aforesaid (b).

(2) On the appointment of a new trustee for the whole or any part of trust property—

(a.) the number of trustees may be increased (c); and

(b.) a separate set of trustees may be appointed for any part of the trust property held on trusts distinct from those relating to any other part or parts of the trust property, notwithstanding that no new trustees or trustee are or is to be appointed for other parts of the trust property, and any existing trustee may be appointed or remain one of such separate set of trustees; or, if only one trustee was originally appointed, then one separate trustee may be so appointed for the first-mentioned part (d); and

(c) it shall not be obligatory to appoint more than one new trustee where only one trustee was originally appointed, or to fill up the original number of trustees where more than two trustees were originally appointed; but, except where only one trustee was originally appointed, a trustee shall not be discharged under this section from his trust

(a) See p. 378.
(b) See p. 806.
(c) See p. 820.
(d) See p. 828.

unless there will be at least two trustees to perform the trust (a); and (d.) any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property, or any part thereof, jointly in the persons who are the trustees, shall be executed or done.

(3) Every new trustee so appointed, as well before as after all the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, shall have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act, as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust.

(4) The provisions of this section relative to a trustee who is dead include the case of a person nominated trustee in a will but dying before the testator, and those relative to a continuing trustee include a refusing or retiring trustee, if willing to act in the execution of the provisions of this section (b).

(5) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained (c).

(6) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act.

Retirement of trustee.

11. (1) Where there are more than two trustees, if one of them by deed declares that he is desirous of being discharged from the trust, and if his co-trustees and such other person, if any, as is empowered to appoint trustees, by deed consent to the discharge of the trustee, and to the vesting in the co-trustees alone of the trust property, then the trustee desirous of being discharged shall be deemed to have retired from the trust, and shall, by the deed, be discharged therefrom under this Act, without any new trustee being appointed in his place.

(2) Any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property in the continuing trustees alone shall be executed or done.

(3) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.

(4) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act (d).

Vesting of trust property in new or continuing trustees.

12. (1) Where a deed by which a new trustee is appointed to perform any trust contains a declaration by the appointor to the effect that any estate or interest in any land subject to the trust, or in any chattel so subject, or the right to recover and receive any debt or other thing in action so subject shall vest in the persons who by

(a) See p. 823.
(b) See p. 825.
(c) See p. 807.
(d) See p. 814.

virtue of the deed become and are the trustees for performing the trust (a), that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in those persons, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, that estate, interest, or right (b).

(2) Where a deed by which a retiring trustee is discharged under this Act contains such a declaration as is in this section mentioned by the retiring and continuing trustees, and by the other person, if any, empowered to appoint trustees, that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in the continuing trustees alone, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, the estate, interest, or right to which the declaration relates.

(3) This section does not extend to any legal estate or interest in copyhold or customary land, or to land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust, or to any such share, stock, annuity, or property as is only transferable in books kept by a company or other body, or in manner directed by or under Act of Parliament (c).

(4) For purposes of registration of the deed in any registry, the person or persons making the declaration shall be deemed the conveying party or parties, and the conveyance shall be deemed to be made by him or them under a power conferred by this Act.

(5) This section applies only to deeds executed after the thirty-first of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

Purchase and Sale.

Power of trustee for sale to sell by auction, &c.

13. (1) Where a trust for sale or a power of sale of property is vested in a trustee, he may sell or concur with (d) any other person in selling all or any part of the property, either subject to prior charges or not, and either together or in lots (e), by public auction or by private contract, subject to any such conditions respecting title or evidence of title or other matter as the trustee thinks fit, with power to vary any contract for sale, and to buy in at any auction, or to rescind any contract for sale and to re-sell, without being answerable for any loss (f).

(2) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument creating the trust or power, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to the provisions therein contained.

(3) This section applies only to a trust or power created by an instrument coming into operation after the thirty-first of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

Power to sell subject to depreciatory conditions.

14. (1) No sale made by a trustee shall be impeached by any

(a) See p. 812.
(b) See pp. 811, 812.
(c) See p. 812.
(d) See p. 743.
(e) See p. 517.
(f) See pp. 509, 515.

beneficiary upon the ground that any of the conditions subject to which the sale was made may have been unnecessarily depreciatory, unless it also appears that the consideration for the sale was thereby rendered inadequate.

(2) No sale made by a trustee shall, after the execution of the conveyance, be impeached as against the purchaser upon the ground that any of the conditions subject to which the sale was made may have been unnecessarily depreciatory, unless it appears that the purchaser was acting in collusion with the trustee at the time when the contract for sale was made.

(3) No purchaser, upon any sale made by a trustee, shall be at liberty to make any objection against the title upon the ground aforesaid.

(4) This section applies only to sales made after the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight (a).

Power to sell under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 78.

15. A trustee who is either a vendor or a purchaser may sell or buy without excluding the application of section two of the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874 (b).

Married woman as bare trustee may convey.

16. When any freehold or copyhold hereditament is vested in a married woman as a bare trustee (c) she may convey or surrender it as if she were a feme sole (d).

Various Powers and Liabilities.

Power to authorise receipt of money by banker or solicitor.

17. (1) A trustee may appoint a solicitor to be his agent to receive and give a discharge for any money or valuable consideration or property receivable by the trustee under the trust, by permitting the solicitor to have the custody of, and to produce, a deed containing any such receipt as is referred to in sect. 56 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881; and a trustee shall not be chargeable with breach of trust by reason only of his having made or concurred in making any such appointment; and the producing of any such deed by the solicitor shall have the same validity and effect under the said section as if the person appointing the solicitor had not been a trustee (e).

44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.

(2) A trustee may appoint a banker or solicitor to be his agent to receive and give a discharge for any money payable to the trustee under or by virtue of a policy of assurance, by permitting the banker or solicitor to have the custody of and to produce the policy of assurance with a receipt signed by the trustee, and a trustee shall not be chargeable with a breach of trust by reason only of his having made or concurred in making any such appointment (f).

(a) See p. 516.
(b) See pp. 519, 586, 587.
(c) See p. 246, note.
(d) See pp. 36, 246, note.
(e) See pp. 325, 529, 557.
(f) See p. 531.

(3) Nothing in this section shall exempt a trustee from any liability which he would have incurred if this Act had not been passed, in case he permits any such money, valuable consideration, or property to remain in the hands or under the control of the banker or solicitor for a period longer than is reasonably necessary to enable the banker or solicitor (as the case may be) to pay or transfer the same to the trustee (a).

(4) This section applies only where the money or valuable consideration or property is received after the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

(5) Nothing in this section shall authorise a trustee to do anything which he is in express terms forbidden to do, or to omit anything which he is in express terms directed to do, by the instrument creating the trust.

Power to insure building.

18. (1) A trustee may insure against loss or damage by fire any building or other insurable property to any amount (including the amount of any insurance already on foot) not exceeding three equal fourth parts of the full value of such building or property, and pay the premiums for such insurance out of the income thereof or out of the income of any other property subject to the same trusts, without obtaining the consent of any person who may be entitled wholly or partly to such income (b).

(2) This section does not apply to any building or property which a trustee is bound forthwith to convey absolutely to any beneficiary upon being requested to do so (c).

(3) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act, but nothing in this section shall authorise any trustee to do anything which he is in express terms forbidden to do, or to omit to do anything which he is in express terms directed to do, by the instrument creating the trust.

Power of trustees of renewable leaseholds to renew and raise money for the purpose.

19. (1) A trustee of any leaseholds for lives or years which are renewable from time to time, either under any covenant or contract, or by custom or usual practice, may, if he thinks fit, and shall, if thereto required by any person having any beneficial interest, present or future, or contingent, in the leaseholds, use his best endeavours to obtain from time to time a renewed lease of the same hereditaments on the accustomed and reasonable terms, and for that purpose may from time to time make or concur in making a surrender of the lease for the time being subsisting, and do all such other acts as are requisite : Provided that, where by the terms of the settlement or will the person in possession for his life or other limited interest is entitled to enjoy the same without any obligation to renew or to contribute to the expense of

(a) See pp. 331, 530, 531.
(b) See pp. 329, 719.
(c) See pp. 330, 719.

renewal, this section shall not apply unless the consent in writing of that person is obtained to the renewal on the part of the trustee.

(2) If money is required to pay for the renewal, the trustee effecting the renewal may pay the same out of any money then in his hands in trust for the persons beneficially interested in the lands to be comprised in the renewed lease, and if he has not in his hands sufficient money for the purpose, he may raise the money required by mortgage of the hereditaments to be comprised in the renewed lease, or of any other hereditaments for the time being subject to the uses or trusts to which those hereditaments are subject, and no person advancing money upon a mortgage purporting to be under this power shall be bound to see that the money is wanted, or that no more is raised than is wanted for the purpose.

(3) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act, but nothing in this section shall authorise any trustee to do anything which he is in express terms forbidden to do, or to omit to do anything which he is in express terms directed to do, by the instrument creating the trust (a).

Power of trustee to give receipts.

20. (1) The receipt in writing of any trustee for any money, securities, or other personal property or effects payable, transferable, or deliverable to him under any trust or power shall be a sufficient discharge for the same, and shall effectually exonerate the person paying, transferring, or delivering the same from seeing to the application or being answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof.

(2) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act (b).

Power for executors and trustees to compound, &c.

21. (1) An executor or administrator may pay or allow any debt or claim on any evidence that he thinks sufficient.

(2) An executor or administrator, or two or more trustees, acting together, or a sole acting trustee where by the instrument, if any, creating the trust a sole trustee is authorised to execute the trusts and powers thereof, may, if and as he or they may think fit, accept any composition or any security, real or personal, for any debt or for any property, real or personal, claimed, and may allow any time for payment for any debt, and may compromise, compound, abandon, submit to arbitration, or otherwise settle any debt, account, claim, or thing whatever relating to the testator's or intestate's estate or to the trust, and for any of those purposes may enter into, give, execute and do such agreements, instruments of composition or arrangement, releases, and other things as to him or them seem expedient, without being responsible for any loss occasioned by any act or thing so done by him or them in good faith.

(3) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument, and to the provisions therein contained.

(a) See pp. 440, 441, 447. (b) See pp. 327, 535.

(4) This section applies to executorships, administratorships and trusts constituted or created either before or after the commencement of this Act (a).

Powers of two or more trustees.

22. (1) Where a power or trust is given to or vested in two or more trustees jointly, then, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the power or trust, the same may be exercised or performed by the survivor or survivors of them for the time being.

(2) This section applies only to trusts constituted after or created by instruments coming into operation after the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one (b).

Exoneration of trustees in respect of certain powers of attorney.

23. A trustee acting or paying money in good faith under or in pursuance of any power of attorney shall not be liable for any such act or payment by reason of the fact that at the time of the payment or act the person who gave the power of attorney was dead or had done some act to avoid the power, if this fact was not known to the trustee at the time of his so acting or paying.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person entitled to the money against the person to whom the payment is made, and that the person so entitled shall have the same remedy against the person to whom the payment is made as he would have had against the trustee (c).

Implied indemnity of trustees.

24. A trustee shall, without prejudice to the provisions of the instrument, if any, creating the trust, be chargeable only for money and securities actually received by him notwithstanding his signing any receipt for the sake of conformity, and shall be answerable and accountable only for his own acts, receipts, neglects, or defaults, and not for those of any other trustee, nor for any banker, broker, or other person with whom any trust moneys, or securities may be deposited, nor for the insufficiency or deficiency of any securities, nor for any other loss, unless the same happens through his own wilful default; and may reimburse himself, or pay or discharge out of the trust premises, all expenses incurred in or about the execution of his trusts or powers (d).

PART III.—Powers of the Court

Appointment of New Trustees and Vesting Orders.

Power of the Court to appoint new trustees (e).

25. (1) The High Court may, whenever it is expedient (f) to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, and it is found inexpedient, difficult, or

(a) See pp. 738 et seq.
(b) See pp. 739, 765.
(c) See p. 411.
(d) See p. 305.
(e) See pp. 838 et seq.
(f) See p. 838.

impracticable so to do without the assistance of the Court (a), make an order for the appointment of a new trustee or new trustees (b) either in substitution for or in addition to any existing trustee or trustees, or although there is no existing trustee. In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the forgoing provision, the Court may make an order for the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for a trustee who is convicted of felony, or is a bankrupt (c).

(2) An order under this section, and any consequential vesting order or conveyance, shall not operate further or otherwise as a discharge to any former or continuing trustee than an appointment of new trustees under any power for that purpose contained in any instrument would have operated (d).

(3) Nothing in this section shall give power to appoint an executor or administrator (e).

Vesting orders as to land (f).

26. In any of the following cases, namely :—

(i.) Where the High Court appoints or has appointed a new trustee ; and

(ii.) Where a trustee entitled to or possessed of any land, or entitled to a contingent right therein, either solely or jointly with any other person,—

(a) is an infant (g), or
(b) is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, or (c) cannot be found ; and

(iii.) Where it is uncertain who was the survivor of two or more trustees jointly entitled to or possessed of any land ; and

(iv.) Where, as to the last trustee known to have been entitled to or possessed of any land, it is uncertain whether he is living or dead ; and

(v.) Where there is no heir or personal representative to a trustee who was entitled to or possessed of land and has died intestate as to that land, or where it is uncertain who is the heir or personal representative or devisee of a trustee who was entitled to or possessed of land and is dead ; and

(vi.) Where a trustee jointly or solely entitled to or possessed of any land, or entitled to a contingent right therein, has been required, by or on behalf of a person entitled to require a conveyance of the land or a release of the right, to convey the land or to release the right, and has wilfully

(a) See pp. 838, 839.
(b) See pp. 841 et seq.
(c) See p. 838.
(d) See p. 838.
(e) See p. 838.
(f) See pp. 844 et seq.
(g) See p. 844.

refused or neglected to convey the land or release the right for twenty-eight days after the date of the requirement;

the High Court may make an order (in this Act called a vesting order) vesting the land in any such person in any such manner and for any such estate as the Court may direct, or releasing or disposing of the contingent right to such person as the Court may direct.

Provided that—

(a.) Where the order is consequential on the appointment of a new trustee, the land shall be vested for such estate as the Court may direct in the persons who on the appointment are the trustees; and

(b.) Where the order relates to a trustee entitled jointly with another person, and such trustee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, or cannot be found, the land or right shall be vested in such other person, either alone or with some other person (a).

Orders as to contingent rights of unborn persons.

27. Where any land is subject to a contingent right in an unborn person or class of unborn persons who, on coming into existence would, in respect thereof, become entitled to or possessed of the land on any trust, the High Court may make an order releasing the land from the contingent right, or may make an order vesting in any person the estate to or of which the unborn person or class of unborn persons would, on coming into existence, be entitled or possessed in the land (b).

Vesting order in place of conveyance by infant mortgagee.

28. Where any person entitled to or possessed of land, or entitled to a contingent right in land, by way of security for money, is an infant, the High Court may make an order vesting or releasing or disposing of the land or right in like manner as in the case of an infant trustee.

Vesting order in place of conveyance by heir, or devisee of heir, &c., or personal representative of mortgagee.

29. Where a mortgagee of land has died without having entered into the possession or into the receipt of the rents and profits thereof, and the money due in respect of the mortgage has been paid to a person entitled to receive the same, or that last-mentioned person consents to any order for the reconveyance of the land, then the High Court may make an order vesting the land in such person or persons in such manner and for such estate as the Court may direct in any of the following cases, namely,—

(a.) Where an heir or personal representative or devisee of the mortgagee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found; and

(b.) Where an heir or personal representative or devisee of the mortgagee on demand made by or on behalf of a person entitled to require a conveyance of the land has stated in writing that he will not convey the same or does not convey the same for the space of twenty-eight days next after a proper deed for conveying the land has been tendered to him by or on behalf of the person so entitled; and

(a) See pp. 844 et seq. (b) See p. 846.

(c.) Where it is uncertain which of several devisees of the mortgagee was the survivor; and

(d.) Where it is uncertain as to the survivor of several devisees of the mortgagee or as to the heir or personal representative of the mortgagee whether he is living or dead; and

(e.) Where there is no heir or personal representative to a mortgagee who has died intestate as to the land, or where the mortgagee has died and it is uncertain who is his heir or personal representative or devisee (a).

Vesting order consequential on judgmen for sale or mortgage of land.

30. Where any Court gives a judgment or makes an order directing the sale or mortgage of any land, every person who is entitled to or possessed of the land, or entitled to a contingent right therein as heir, or under the will of a deceased person for payment of whose debts the judgment was given or order made (b), and is a party to the action or proceeding in which the judgment or order is given or made or is otherwise bound by the judgment or order (c), shall be deemed to be so entitled or possessed, as the case may be, as a trustee within the meaning of this Act; and the High Court may, if it thinks expedient, make an order vesting the land or any part thereof for such estate as that Court thinks fit in the purchaser or mortgagee or in any other person (d).

Vesting order consequential on judgment for specific performance, &c.

31. Where a judgment is given for the specific performance of a contract concerning any land, or for the partition, or sale in lieu of partition, or exchange, of any land, or generally where any judgment is given for the conveyance of any land either in cases arising out of the doctrine of election or otherwise, the High Court may declare that any of the parties to the action are trustees of the land or any part thereof within the meaning of this Act, or may declare that the interests of unborn persons who might claim under any party to the action, or under the will or voluntary settlement of any person deceased who was during his lifetime a party to the contract or transactions concerning which the judgment is given, are the interests of persons who, on coming into

(a) A case of uncertainty within the section arises if the will of the mortgagee appointing executors is contested in the Probate Division: Re Cook's Mortgage, (1895) 1 Ch. 700.

(b) The words in italics were repealed by the Amendment Act of 1894, see post, p. 1303.

(c) The equities of parties beneficially interested are bound by the order for sale: Re Williams' Estate, 5 De G. & Sm. 515; Cottrell v. Cottrell, 2 L. R. Eq. 330; Basnett v. Moxon, 20 L. R. Eq. 182; Seton, 6th ed. p. 1255.

(d) See p. 847.

existence, would be trustees within the meaning of this Act, and thereupon the High Court may make a vesting order relating to the rights of those persons, born and unborn, as if they had been trustees (a).

Effect of vesting order.

32. A vesting order under any of the foregoing provisions shall in the case of a vesting order consequential on the appointment of a new trustee, have the same effect as if the persons who before the appointment were the trustees (if any) had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate as the High Court directs, or if there is no such person, or no such person of full capacity, then as if such person had existed and been of full capacity and had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate as the Court directs, and shall in every other case have the same effect as if the trustee or other person or description or class of persons to whose rights or supposed rights the said provisions respectively relate had been an ascertained and existing person of full capacity, and had executed a conveyance or release to the effect intended by the order (b).

Power to appoint person to convey.

33. In all cases where a vesting order can be made under any of the foregoing provisions, the High Court may, if it is more convenient, appoint a person to convey the land or release the contingent right, and a conveyance or release by that person in conformity with the order shall have the same effect as an order under the appropriate provision (c).

Effect of vesting order as to copyhold.

34. (1) Where an order vesting copyhold land in any person is made under this Act with the consent of the lord or lady of the manor, the land shall vest accordingly without surrender or admittance.

(2) Where an order is made under this Act appointing any person to convey any copyhold land, that person shall execute and do all assurances and things for completing the assurance of the land; and the lord and lady of the manor and every other person shall, subject to the customs of the manor and the usual payments, be bound to make admittance to the land and to do all other acts for completing the assurance thereof, as if the persons in whose place an appointment is made were free from disability and had executed and done those assurances and things (d).

Vesting orders as to stock and choses in action (e).

35. (1) In any of the following cases, namely:—

(i.) Where the High Court appoints or has appointed a new trustee; and

(ii.) Where a trustee entitled alone or jointly with another person to stock or to a chose in action—

(a.) is an infant (f), or

(b.) is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, or

(c.) cannot be found, or

(a) See pp. 847, 848.
(b) See pp. 849, 850.
(c) See p. 850.
(d) See pp. 851, 852.
(e) See p. 852 et seq.
(f) See p. 854.

(d.) neglects or refuses to transfer stock or receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action, according to the direction of the person absolutely entitled (a) thereto, for twenty-eight days next after a request in writing has been made to him by the person so entitled (b), or the High Court may make an order vesting the right to transfer or call for a transfer of stock, or to receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action, in any such person as the Court may appoint:

(e.) neglects or refuses to transfer stock or receive the dividends or income thereof, or to sue for or recover a chose in action for twenty-eight days next after an order of the High Court for that purpose has been served on him; or

(iii.) Where it is uncertain whether a trustee entitled alone or jointly with another person to stock or to a chose in action is alive or dead,

Provided that—

(a.) Where the order is consequential on the appointment by the Court of a new trustee, the right shall be vested in the persons who, on the appointment, are the trustees; and

(b.) Where the person whose right is dealt with by the order was entitled jointly with another person, the right shall be vested in that last-mentioned person either alone or jointly with any other person whom the Court may appoint.

(2) In all cases where a vesting order can be made under this section, the Court may, if it is more convenient, appoint some proper person to make or join in making the transfer (c).

(3) The person in whom the right to transfer or call for the transfer of any stock is vested by an order of the Court under this Act, may transfer the stock to himself or any other person, according to the order, and the Banks of England and Ireland and all other companies shall obey every order under this section according to its tenor (d).

(4) After notice in writing of an order under this section it shall not be lawful for the Bank of England or of Ireland or any other company to transfer any stock to which the order relates or to pay any dividends thereon except in accordance with the order (e).

(5) The High Court may make declarations and give directions concerning the manner in which the right to any stock or chose in action vested under the provisions of this Act is to be exercised (f).

(a) See pp. 853, 854.
(b) See p. 854.
(c) See p. 855.
(d) See pp. 855, 856.
(e) See pp. 855, 856.
(f) See p. 856.

(6) The provisions of this Act as to vesting orders shall apply to shares in ships registered under the Acts relating to merchant shipping as if they were stock.

Persons entitled to apply for orders.

36. (1) An order under this Act for the appointment of a new trustee or concerning any land, stock, or chose in action subject to a trust, may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the land, stock, or chose in action, whether under disability or not, or on the application of any person duly appointed trustee thereof.

(2) An order under this Act concerning any land, stock, or chose in action subject to a mortgage may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the equity of redemption, whether under disability or not, or of any person interested in the money secured by the mortgage (a).

Powers of new trustee appointed by Court.

37. Every trustee appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction shall, as well before as after the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust (b).

Power to charge costs on trust estate.

38. The High Court may order the costs and expenses of and incident to any application for an order appointing a new trustee, or for a vesting order, or of and incident to any such order, or any conveyance or transfer in pursuance thereof, to be paid or raised out of the land or personal estate in respect whereof the same is made, or out of the income thereof, or to be borne and paid in such manner and by such persons as to the Court may seem just (c).

Trustees of charities.

39. The powers conferred by this Act as to vesting orders may be exercised for vesting any land, stock, or chose in action in any trustee of a charity or society over which the High Court would have jurisdiction upon action duly instituted, whether the appointment of the trustee was made by instrument under a power or by the High Court under its general or statutory jurisdiction (d).

Orders made upon certain allegations to be conclusive evidence. 53 & 54 Vict. c. 5.

40. Where a vesting order is made as to any land under this Act or under the Lunacy Act, 1890, or under any Act relating to lunacy in Ireland, founded on an allegation of the personal incapacity of a trustee or mortgagee, or on an allegation that a trustee or the heir or personal representative or devisee of a mortgagee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found, or that it is uncertain which of several trustees or which of several devisees of a mortgagee was the survivor, or whether the last trustee or the heir or personal representative or last surviving devisee of a mortgagee is living or dead, or on an allegation that any trustee or mortgagee has died intestate without an heir or has died and it is not known who is his heir or personal representative or

(a) See p. 857.
(b) See p. 858.
(c) See p. 858.
(d) See p. 859.

devisee, the fact that the order has been so made shall be conclusive evidence of the matter so alleged in any Court upon any question as to the validity of the order; but this section shall not prevent the High Court from directing a reconveyance or the payment of costs occasioned by any such order if improperly obtained (a).

Application of vesting order to land out of England.

41. The powers of the High Court in England (b) to make vesting orders under this Act shall extend to all land and personal estate in Her Majesty's dominions, except Scotland (c).

Payment into Court by Trustees (d).

Payment into Court by trustees (d).

42. (1) Trustees, or the majority of trustees, having in their hands or under their control money or securities belonging to a trust, may pay the same into the High Court; and the same shall, subject to rules of Court, be dealt with according to the orders of the High Court.

(2) The receipt or certificate of the proper officer shall be a sufficient discharge to trustees for the money or securities so paid into Court.

(3) Where any moneys or securities are vested in any persons as trustees, and the majority are desirous of paying the same into Court, but the concurrence of the other or others cannot be obtained, the High Court may order the payment into Court to be made by the majority without the concurrence of the other or others; and where any such moneys or securities are deposited with any banker, broker, or other depositary, the Court may order payment or delivery of the moneys or securities to the majority of the trustees for the purpose of payment into Court, and every transfer payment and delivery made in pursuance of any such order shall be valid and take effect as if the same had been made on the authority or by the act of all the persons entitled to the moneys and securities so transferred, paid, or delivered (d).

Miscellaneous.

Power to give judgment in absence of a trustee.

43. Where in any action the High Court is satisfied that diligent search has been made for any person who, in the character of trustee, is made a defendant in any action, to serve him with a process of the Court, and that he cannot be found, the Court may hear and determine the action, and give judgment therein against that person in his character of a trustee, as if he had been duly served, or had entered an appearance in the action, and had also appeared by his counsel and

(a) See p. 859.

(b) By s. 2 of the Amendment Act of 1894 (see post, p. 1303) these powers are also given to and may be exercised by the High Court in Ireland.

(c) See p. 860.

(d) See pp. 424 et seq., and for Rules of Court and cases thereunder, see Appendix No. 2.

solicitor at the hearing, but without prejudice to any interest he may have in the matters in question in the action in any other character.

Power to sanction sale of land or minerals separately.

44. (1) Where a trustee [or other person (a)] is for the time being authorised to dispose of land by way of sale, exchange, partition, or enfranchisement, the High Court may sanction his so disposing of the land with an exception or reservation of any minerals, and with or without rights and powers of or incidental to the working, getting, or carrying away of the minerals, or so disposing of the minerals, with or without the said rights and powers, separately from the residue of the land.

(2) Any such trustee [or other person (b)], with the said sanction previously obtained, may, unless forbidden by the instrument creating the trust or direction, from time to time, without any further application to the Court, so dispose of any such land or minerals.

(3) Nothing in this section shall derogate from any power which a trustee may have under the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, or otherwise (c).

Power to make beneficiary indemnify for breach of trust.

45. (1) Where a trustee commits a breach of trust at the instigation or request or with the consent in writing of a beneficiary, the High Court may, if it thinks fit, and notwithstanding that the beneficiary may be a married woman entitled for her separate use and restrained from anticipation, make such order as to the Court seems just, for impounding all or any part of the interest of the beneficiary in the trust estate by way of indemnity to the trustee or person claiming through him.

(2) This section shall apply to breaches of trust committed as well before as after the passing of this Act, but shall not apply so as to prejudice any question in an action or other proceeding which was pending on the twenty-fourth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, and is pending at the commencement of the Act (d).

Jurisdiction of palatine and county courts.

46. The provisions of this Act with respect to the High Court shall, in their application to cases within the jurisdiction of a palatine court or county court, include that court, and the procedure under this Act in palatine courts and county courts shall be in accordance with the Acts and rules regulating the procedure of those courts.

PART IV.—MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTAL.

Application to trustees under Settled Land Acts of provisions as to appointment of trustees.

47. (1) All the powers and provisions contained in this Act with reference to the appointment of new trustees, and the discharge and

(a) The words in italics were inserted by s. 3 of the Amendment Act of 1894, see post, p. 1303.

(b) The words in italics were inserted by s. 3 of the Amendment Act of 1894, see post, p. 1303.

(c) See pp. 512, 513.

(d) See pp. 1181, et seq.

retirement of trustees, are to apply to and include trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, whether appointed by the Court or by the settlement, or under provisions contained in the settlement.

(2) This section applies and is to have effect with respect to an appointment or a discharge and retirement of trustees taking place before as well as after the commencement of this Act.

(3) This section is not to render invalid or prejudice any appointment or any discharge and retirement of trustees effected before the passing of this Act, otherwise than under the provisions of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (a). 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41.

Trust estate not affected by trustee becoming a convict.

48. Property vested in any person on any trust or by way of mortgage shall not, in case of that person becoming a convict within the meaning of the Forfeiture Act, 1870, vest in any such administrator as may be appointed under that Act, but shall remain in the trustee or mortgagee, or survive to his co-trustee or descend to his representative as if he had not become a convict; provided that this enactment shall not affect the title to the property so far as relates to any beneficial interest therein of any such trustee or mortgagee. 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23.

Indemnity.

49. This Act, and every order purporting to be made under this Act, shall be a complete indemnity to the Banks of England and Ireland, and to all persons for any acts done pursuant thereto; and it shall not be necessary for the Bank or for any person to inquire concerning the propriety of the order, or whether the Court by which it was made had jurisdiction to make the same (b).

Definitions.

50. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

The expression "bankrupt" includes, in Ireland, insolvent:

The expression "contingent right," as applied to land, includes a contingent or executory interest, a possibility coupled with an interest, whether the object of the gift or limitation of the interest or possibility is or is not ascertained, also a right of entry, whether immediate or future, and whether vested or contingent:

The expressions "convey" and "conveyance" applied to any person include the execution by that person of every necessary or suitable assurance for conveying, assigning, appointing, surrendering, or otherwise transferring or disposing of land whereof he is seised or possessed, or wherein he is entitled to a contingent right, either for his whole estate or for any less estate, together with the performance of all formalities required by law to the validity of the conveyance, including the acts to be performed by married women and tenants in tail in accordance with the provisions of the Acts for abolition of fines and recoveries in England and Ireland respectively, and also including surrenders and other acts which a tenant of customary or copyhold lands can himself perform preparatory to or in aid of a complete assurance of the customary or copyhold land (a) :

(a) See pp. 655, 809. (b) See pp. 855, 856.

The expression "devisee" includes the heir of a devisee and the devisee of an heir, and any person who may claim right by devolution of title of a similar description :

The expression "instrument" includes Act of Parliament :

The expression "land" includes manors and lordships, and reputed manors and lordships, and incorporeal as well as corporeal hereditaments, and any interest therein, and also an undivided share of land (b) :

The expressions "mortgage" and "mortgagee" include and relate to every estate and interest regarded in equity as merely a security for money, and every person deriving title under the original mortgagee :

The expressions "pay" and "payment" as applied in relation to stocks and securities, and in connection with the expression "into court" include the deposit or transfer of the same in or into court :

The expression "possessed" applies to receipt of income of, and to any vested estate less than a life estate, legal or equitable, in possession or in expectancy, in, any land :

The expression "property" includes real and personal property, and any estate and interest in any property, real or personal, and any debt, and any thing in action, and any other right or interest, whether in possession or not ;

The expression "rights" includes estates and interests :

The expression "securities" includes stocks, funds, and shares, and so far as relates to payment into Court, has the same meaning as in the Court of Chancery (Funds) Act, 1872 :

35 & 36 Vict. c. 44.

The expression "stock" includes fully paid up shares (c) ; and, so far as relates to vesting orders made by the Court under this Act, includes any fund, annuity, or security transferable in books kept by any company or society, or by instrument of transfer either alone or accompanied by other formalities, and any share or interest therein (d) :

The expression "transfer" in relation to stock, includes the performance and execution of every deed, power of attorney, act, and thing on the part of the transferor to effect and complete the title in the transferee :

The expression "trust" does not include the duties incident to (a) See p. 849, note.

(b) See p. 844, note.
(c) See pp. 362, 363, note.
(d) See p. 853.

an estate conveyed by way of mortgage (a); but with this exception the expressions "trust" and "trustee" include implied and constructive trusts (b), and cases where the trustee has a beneficial interest in the trust property, and the duties incident to the office of personal representative of a deceased person (c).

Repeal. 51. The Acts mentioned in the schedule to this Act are hereby repealed, except as to Scotland, to the extent mentioned in the third column of that Schedule.

Extent of Act. 52. This Act does not extend to Scotland.

Short title. 53. This Act may be cited as the Trustee Act, 1893.

Commencement. 54. This Act shall come into operation on the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

(a) See pp. 835, 836.
(b) See pp. 835-837.
(c) See pp. 366, 835 et seq.

SCHEDULE.

Section 51.

Session and Chapter.	Title or Short Title.	Extent of Repeal.
36 Geo. 3. c. 52 . .	The Legacy Duty Act, 1796.	Section thirty-two.
9 & 10 Vict. c. 101	The Public Money Drainage Act, 1846.	Section thirty-seven.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 32 .	The Landed Property Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1847.	Section fifty-three.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 96	An Act for better securing trust funds, and for the relief of trustees.	The whole Act.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 68 .	An Act for extending to Ireland an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, entitled "An Act for better securing trust funds, and for the relief of trustees.	The whole Act.
12 & 13 Vict. c. 74 .	An Act for the further relief of trustees.	The whole Act.
13 & 14 Vict. c. 60 .	The Trustee Act, 1850.	Sections seven to nineteen, twenty-two to twenty-five, twenty-nine, thirty-two to thirty-six, forty-six, forty-seven, forty-nine, fifty-four and fifty-five; also the residue of the Act except so far as relates to the Court exercising jurisdiction in lunacy in Ireland.
15 & 16 Vict. c. 55 .	The Trustee Act, 1852.	Sections one to five, eight and nine; also the residue of the Act except so far as relates to the Court exercising jurisdiction in lunacy in Ireland.

SCHEDULE—Continued.

Session and Chapter.	Title or Short Title.	Extent of Repeal.
17 & 18 Vict. c. 82	The Court of Chancery of Lancaster Act, 1854.	Section eleven.
18 & 19 Vict. c. 91	The Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1855.	Section ten, except so far as relates to the Court exercising jurisdiction in lunacy in Ireland.
20 & 21 Vict. c. 60	The Irish Bankrupt and Insolvent Act, 1857.	Section three hundred and twenty-two.
22 & 23 Vict. c. 35	The Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859.	Sections twenty-six, thirty, and thirty-one.
23 & 24 Vict. c. 38	The Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860.	Section nine.
25 & 26 Vict. c. 108	An Act to confirm certain sales, exchanges, partitions, and enfranchisements by trustees and others.	The whole Act.
26 & 27 Vict. c. 73	An Act to give further facilities to the holders of Indian Stock.	Section four.
27 & 28 Vict. c. 114	The Improvement of Land Act, 1864.	Section sixty so far as it relates to trustees; and section sixty-one.
28 & 29 Vict. c. 78	The Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865.	Section forty.
31 & 32 Vict. c. 40	The Partition Act, 1868.	Section seven.
33 & 34 Vict. c. 71	The National Debt Act, 1870.	Section twenty-nine.
34 & 35 Vict. c. 27	The Debenture Stock Act, 1871.	The whole Act.
37 & 38 Vict. c. 78	The Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874.	Sections three and six.
38 & 39 Vict. c. 83	The Local Loans Act, 1875.	Sections twenty-one and twenty-seven.
40 & 41 Vict. c. 59	The Colonial Stock Act, 1877.	Section twelve.
43 & 44 Vict. c. 8	The Isle of Man Loans Act, 1880.	Section seven, so far as it relates to trustees.
44 & 45 Vict. c. 41	The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881.	Sections thirty-one to thirty-eight.
45 & 46 Vict. c. 39	The Conveyancing Act, 1882.	Section five.
46 & 47 Vict. c. 52	The Bankruptcy Act, 1883.	Section one hundred and forty-seven.
51 & 52 Vict. c. 59	The Trustee Act, 1888.	The whole Act, except sections one and eight.
52 & 53 Vict. c. 32	The Trust Investment Act, 1889.	The whole Act, except sections one and seven.
52 & 53 Vict. c. 47	The Palatine Court of Durham Act, 1889.	Section eight.
53 & 54 Vict. c. 5	The Lunacy Act, 1890.	Section one hundred and forty.
53 & 54 Vict. c. 69	The Settled Land Act, 1890.	Section seventeen.
55 & 56 Vict. c. 13	The Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1892.	Section six.

THE TRUSTEE ACT, 1893, AMENDMENT ACT, 1894.

(57 VICT. CH. 10.)

"An Act to amend the Trustee Act, 1893." (18*th June*, 1894.)

1. In sect. 30 of the Trustee Act, 1893, the words "as heir or under the will of a deceased person, for payment of whose debts the judgment was given or order made" shall be repealed (a). Amendment of 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 30.

2. The powers conferred on the High Court in England by sect. 41 of the Trustee Act, 1893, to make vesting orders as to all land and personal estate in Her Majesty's dominions except Scotland, are hereby also given to and may be exercised by the High Court in Ireland (b). Extension to Ireland of 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 41.

3. In sect. 44 of the Trustee Act, 1893, after the word "trustee" in the first two places where it occurs shall be inserted the words "or other person" (c). Amendment of 56 & 57 Vict. c. 53, s. 44.

4. A trustee shall not be liable for breach of trust by reason only of his continuing to hold an investment which has ceased to be an investment authorised by the instrument of trust or by the general law (d). Liability of trustee in case of change of character of investment.

5. This Act may be cited as the Trustee Act, 1893, Amendment Act, 1894. Short title.

(a) See p. 847.
(b) See p. 860.
(c) See p. 512.
(d) See p. 323.

No. II.

RULES OF COURT RELATING TO PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE TRUSTEE ACT, 1893.

A.—As to proceedings under Part III., Secs. 25-41.

Chancery Division.

Order LIV. B. (a), Rule 1: "All proceedings in the High Court, commenced under the Trustee Act, 1893 (in this Order called "the Act"), shall be assigned to the Chancery Division of the Court."

Petitions.

Rule 2: "All applications under the Act may be made by petition (b), except as otherwise provided under Order LV."

Application by summons under Trustee Act, 1893.

Order LV., Rule 13 A: "Any of the following applications under the Trustee Act, 1893, may be made by summons:—

Appointment of new trustee, and vesting order.

(a.) An application for the appointment of a new trustee with or without a vesting or other consequential order.

Vesting order.

(b.) An application for a vesting order, or other order consequential on the appointment of a new trustee, whether the appointment is made by the Court or a Judge, or out of Court.

Vesting order on sale, &c.

(c.) An application for a vesting or other consequential order in any case where a judgment or order has been given or made for the sale, conveyance, or transfer of any land or stock, or the suing for or recovering any chose in action.

Payment out of Court.

(d.) An application relating to a fund paid into Court in any case coming within the provisions of rule 2 of this Order.'

In a complicated case a petition may be presented, and the costs

(a) These rules may be cited as the "Rules of the Supreme Court (Trustee Act), 1893," and each rule may be cited separately according to the heading thereof with reference to the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883. They came into operation on 1st January, 1894.

(b) Under the former Acts the Court required that the particular sections under which the order was to be made should be indicated: Re Moss's Trusts, 37 Ch. D. 513; Re Hall's Settlement, 58 L. T. N.S. 76. This is now provided for by Rule 4 A, see post, p. 1307.

allowed notwithstanding the rule, but in the absence of special circumstances the application must be by summons (a).

Service. In applications for the appointment of new trustees, all the cestuis que trust ought, as a general rule, to be served (b); but in special cases the Court relaxes the rule (c).

Where it is proposed to appoint new trustees in substitution for existing trustees the petition should be served on the old trustees (d); but service is dispensed with where a trustee is permanently resident abroad (e), or has absconded and cannot be found (f).

In general, any person who may have a claim for costs as trustee ought to be served, as ex. gr. the adult heir of a last surviving trustee (g) who died previously to 1st January, 1882 (h), but service was dispensed with where the adult heir had been abroad for twenty-four years, so that the chance of his having any claim for costs was infinitesimal (i); and service on the guardian of an infant heir was held to be unnecessary (j).

Where an estate is subject to an annuity, a vesting order may be made without service on the annuitant (k). Where a mortgagee died intestate, and was illegitimate, the Court made a vesting order on service of the petition on the Crown (l).

Evidence. The devolution of the beneficial title may be traced by affidavit, without strict evidence by certificates and affidavits of identity (m).

Affidavit of fitness. In addition to evidence of the necessary facts to bring the case within the Act, the Court, before appointing new trustees, requires evidence by affidavit of the fitness of the proposed trustees (n). In

(a) Re Morris's Settlement, 60 L. T. N.S. 96; 37 W. R. 317; W. N. (1889) p. 31, and see Re Broadwood, 55 L. J. Ch. 646; 55 L. T. N.S. 312; W. N. (1886) p. 103.

(b) Re Richard's Trust, 5 De G. & Sm. 636; Re Sloper, 18 Beav. 596; Re Fellow's Settlement, 2 Jur. N.S. 62; Re Maynard's Settlement, 16 Jur. 1084; and see Re Lonsdale's Trust, 14 Jur. 1101; Re Thomas's Trust, 15 Jur. 187; Re Prescott's Trust, 19 L. T. 371.

(c) Re Smyth's Settlement, 2 De G. & Sm. 781; Re Blanchard, 3 De G F. & J. 137; Re Blanchard's Estate, 2 N.R. 386; Re Lightbody's Trusts, 52 L. T. N.S. 40; Re Wilson, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 522; and see Practice Note, W. N. (1901) 85.

(d) Re Sloper, 18 Beav. 596; and the old trustees will have their costs; Futvoye v. Kennard, 3 L. T. N.S. 687.

(e) Re Bignold's Settlement Trusts, 7 L. R. Ch. App. 223; Re Martin Pye's Trusts, 42 L. T. N.S. 247; Re Stanley's Trusts, W. N. (1893) p. 30.

(f) Re Nicholson's Trusts, W. N. 1884, p. 76; Hyde v. Benbow, W. N. 1884, p. 117. Where an order is asked against recusant trustees, the trustees need not be served; Re Baxter's Will, 2 Sm. & G. App. v.; and see the following cases, decided under 1 Will. 4. c. 60, s. 8; Re Third Burnt Tree Building Society, 18 Sim. 296; Re Bradburne, 12 L. J. N.S. Ch. 353.

(g) Re Oxenham's Trusts, W.N. 1875, p. 6.

(h) See 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 30, ante, p. 247.

(i) Re Stanley, 62 L. J. Ch. 469; W. N. (1893) p. 30.

(j) Re Little, 7 L. R. Eq. 323.

(k) Re Winteringham's Trust, 3 W. R. 578.

(l) Re Minchin's Estate, 2 W. R. 179.

(m) Re Hoskins, 4 De G. & J. 436. In practice the evidence is by affidavit, but there is nothing to preclude the admission of oral evidence.

(n) Re Battersby's Trust, 16 Jur. 900.

ordinary cases an affidavit of fitness by one responsible person is sufficient, but if the trust fund be of large amount the evidence of a second person may be required (a). Where the proposed new trustee has been described simply as "gentleman," the Court has disallowed the costs of the affidavit, as being useless by reason of the vagueness of the description (b); and the deponent by whom the affidavit is made should be described fully, and not merely as "gentleman" (c). Where the trust fund is the subject of a suit, the affidavit of the solicitor in the cause is not the proper evidence of the fitness of the new trustee, as it is the trustee's duty to watch the solicitor (d).

Verification of new trustees' consent to act.

By Order XXXVIII., Rule 19A: "The consent of a new trustee to act shall be sufficiently evidenced by a written consent signed by him and verified by the signature of his solicitor" (e). The rule further directs that the Form in the appendix "shall be used with such variations as circumstances may require."

The Form (No. 29 in Appendix L.) is as follows:—

"I, A. B. , of , hereby consent to act as trustee of the [describe the instrument] (Signed) A. B."

"I, C. D. , of , solicitor, hereby certify that the above-written signature is the signature of A. B., the person mentioned in the above-written consent. (Signed) C. D."

[solicitor for the said A. B.]

By Rule 92 of the Rules in Lunacy, 1892, and Form 12 in the Schedule thereto, a similar practice is established in lunacy.

B.—As to proceedings under Sect. 42.

Lodgment under s. 42. On affidavit.

Order LIVB, Rule 4. (1) Where a trustee desires to make a lodgment in Court under sect. 42 of the Act, he shall make and file an (f) affidavit intituled in the matter of the trust (described so as to be distinguishable) and of the Act, and setting forth:—

(a) Re Hartley's Will, W. N. (1879) p. 197. The costs of a second affidavit, if unnecessary, may be disallowed; Re Arden, W. N. (1887) p. 166. For form of affidavit of fitness, see Daniell's Chancery Forms, 5th ed. p. 628, Form No. 1268, and see Re Castle Sterry's Trusts, W. N. (1888) p. 179.

(b) Re Horwood, 55 L. T. N.S. 373; Re Orde, 24 Ch. D. (C.A.) 271. But a statement that the proposed trustees were "persons in good credit in the neighbourhood in which they respectively carried on business" was held to be sufficient; Re Smith's Policy Trusts, W. N. (1894) p. 68.

(c) Re Horwood, ubi sup.

(d) Grundy v. Buckeridge, 22 L. J. Ch. 1007; 11 Jur. 731.

(e) This rule does not apply to proceedings in lunacy; Re Wilson, a lunatic, 31 Ch. D. (C.A.) 522; but applies to proceedings in Chancery, although entitled in lunacy also; Re Hume (No. 2), 35 Ch. D. (C.A.) 457.

(f) "Lodgment in Court" means payment or transfer into Court, or deposit in Court; see Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1894, Rule 3. As to securities which may be brought into Court, and the mode of transferring and depositing various securities, see Ib. Rule 29, and Seton, 6th ed. pp. 200, et seq.

(a.) A short description of the trust and of the instrument creating it.

(b.) The names of the persons interested in and entitled to the money or securities, and their places of residence to the best of his knowledge and belief (a).

(c.) His submission to answer all such inquiries relating to the application of the money or securities paid into Court, as the Court or Judge may make or direct.

(d). The place where he is to be served with any petition, summons, or order or notice of any proceeding relating to the money or securities.

Without affidavit.

Provided that if the fund consists of money or securities being, or being part of, or representing a legacy or residue to which an infant or person beyond seas is absolutely entitled, and on which the trustee has paid the legacy duty, or on which no duty is chargeable, the trustee may make the lodgment (without an affidavit) on production of the Inland Revenue certificate in manner prescribed by the Supreme Court Funds Rules for the time being in force.

(2) Where the lodgment in Court is made on affidavit—

(a.) the person who has made the lodgment shall forthwith give notice thereof, by prepaid letter through the post, to the several persons whose names and places of residence are stated in his affidavit as interested in or entitled to the money or securities lodged in Court;

(b.) no petition or summons relating to the money or securities shall be answered or issued unless the petitioner or applicant has named therein a place where he may be served with any petition or summons, or notice of any proceeding or order relating to the money or securities or the dividends thereof;

(c) service of any application in respect of the money or securities shall be made on such persons as the Court or Judge may direct.

Application under the Act, how intituled.

Rule 4 A. Applications to deal with funds lodged in Court under the Act shall be intituled in the same manner as the affidavit or request on which the funds were lodged. All other applications under the Act, not made in any pending cause or matter, shall be intituled in (a) This is a restoration of the practice existing before the Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1886. The decision in Re Graham's Trusts, (1891) 1 Ch. 151, is therefore in effect overruled. In the case of Re Jephson, 1 L. T. N.S. 5, it was held that a person interested in the fund and not named in the affidavit was not competent to present a petition, but this decision was not followed in subsequent practice; see Re Puttrell's Trusts, 7 Ch. D. 647; Pelling v. Goddard, 9 Ch. D. 185.

the matter of the trust (described so as to be distinguishable) and of the Act. Every petition or summons for a vesting order, or the appointment of a person to convey, shall state the section or sections of the Act under which it is proposed that the order shall be made (a).

Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1894.

Manner of lodgment of funds in Chancery Division, and particulars to be stated in request.

Rule 30. In the Chancery Division a direction for a lodgment directed by an order, or in a Lodgment Schedule signed by a Chief Clerk (in the case of purchase-moneys or receivers' balances), shall be issued by the Paymaster upon receipt of a copy of the Lodgment Schedule; and a direction for a lodgment under the Trustee Act, 1893, shall be issued by him upon receipt of an office copy of the Schedule mentioned in Rule 41, or upon receipt of the request and certificate of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue mentioned in that Rule.

Lodgments under the Trustee Act, 1893.

Without affidavit.

Rule 41. Where a legal personal representative desires to lodge funds in Court under the Trustee Act, 1893, without an affidavit, he shall leave with the Paymaster a request, signed by him or his solicitor, with a certificate of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue; such request and certificate to be in the Form No. 16 in the Appendix to these Rules, with such variations as may be necessary, or, as regards such certificate, in such other form as shall from time to time be adopted by the said Commissioners with the consent of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury. The money or securities so lodged shall be placed to the credit mentioned in such request.

On affidavit.

When a trustee or other person desires to lodge funds in Court in the Chancery Division under the Trustee Act, 1893, upon an affidavit, he shall annex to such affidavit a Schedule in the same printed form as the Lodgment Schedule to an order, setting forth :—

(a.) His own name and address :

(b.) The amount and description of the funds proposed to be lodged in Court :

(c.) The ledger credit in the matter of the particular trust to which the funds are to be placed :

(d.) A statement whether legacy or estate or succession duty (if chargeable) or any part thereof has or has not been paid :

(e.) A statement whether the money or the dividends on the securities so to be lodged in Court, and all accumulations of dividends thereon, are desired to be invested in any and what description of Government securities, or whether it is deemed unnecessary so to invest the same.

(a) As to payment out where the payment in was made under misapprehension, see Re Hood's Trusts, (1896) 1 Ch. 270 ; ante, p. 431.

An office copy of such Schedule is to be left with the Paymaster.

Investment of money lodged under the Trustee Act, 1893.

Rule 73. A sum of money lodged in Court as provided in Rule 41, if or so soon as such money and the interest, if any, to be credited in respect thereof shall amount to or exceed 40*l.*, and the dividends accruing on any securities so lodged, if and when they shall amount to or exceed 20*l.*, shall be invested without any order or request in New Consols, and the dividends accruing on such New Consols and all accumulations thereof shall, if or so soon as they amount to 20*l.*, be invested in New Consols.

When it is stated in the schedule to the affidavit made pursuant to Rule 41 that it is desired that any money to be lodged in Court, and the accumulations thereof or any dividends to accrue on any securities to be so lodged, should be invested in any description of Government securities, such money, if or so soon as such money and the interest, if any, to be credited in respect thereof shall amount to or exceed 40*l.*, and the dividends accruing on such securities, if or so soon as they shall amount to or exceed 20*l.*, shall be invested accordingly, without any order or further request for that purpose.

Dividends accruing on funds or on investments or accumulations of funds lodged in Court under the 32nd section of the Act 36 Geo. 3. c. 52, or under the Act 10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, prior to the commencement of the Chancery Funds Rules, 1872, shall, when or so soon as they amount to or exceed 20*l.*, be invested without any request.

Lodgments under 36 Geo. 3. c. 52, s. 32, and 10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, prior to 1st Jan. 1894, to be dealt with as if lodged under Trustee Act, 1893.

Rule 74. Money or securities lodged in Court under the 32nd section of the Act 36 Geo. 3. c. 52, or under the 10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, prior to the 1st January, 1894, and securities purchased with such money, or the income thereof, shall, subject to any order affecting the same made prior to the 1st January, 1894, be dealt with in the same manner as if such money or securities had been lodged in Court under the 42nd section of the Trustee Act, 1893.

SCHEDULE

Form No. 16

[Request for Lodgment without an affidavit under the Trustee Act, 1893, and Certificate of Commissioners of Inland Revenue to be furnished therewith, referred to in Rule 41.]

Trustee Act, 1893.—Legacy (or Share of Residue) of E. F. under the Will (or Intestacy) of C. D.

A. B., the executor of the will (or administrator of the estate) of C. D., deceased, whose will was proved (or of whose effects letters of administration were granted) on the day of , proposes to lodge in Court to the credit of "Legacy to (or share of residue of) E. F., an infant (or beyond seas), under the will (or intestacy) of C. D.," the sum of l. (a) (or the following securities representing) the full amount (or part) of such legacy (or share of residue) to which the said E. F. is absolutely entitled [describe securities, if any, which must be such as the Paymaster can properly accept].

Trustee's affidavit.

The trustee's affidavit must not go into the whole history of the trust, so as to show upon the accounts how the particular sum arose, and, if it does, the trustee may be deprived of his costs (b).

Where there are several trustees, all should properly join in the affidavit, as all may have some information to contribute, but under particular circumstances the Court has ordered the Paymaster-General to receive the money on the affidavit of one of several co-trustees (c).

Notice of lodgment.

Under special circumstances the notice of lodgment has been dispensed with; as, for example, where a person interested had gone abroad many years previously, and had not since been heard of (d), and where a cestui que trust was believed to be in New York but his address was unknown, the Court allowed publication in two New York newspapers to be treated as sufficient notice (e). In another case, where the person named in the affidavit could not be found, the Court intimated what would probably be held sufficient notice of the payment in, but declined to give any directions (f). Where the parties were extremely numerous, the Court gave leave to substitute notice on some of them (g).

Application for payment out (h).

Under Order LV., Rule 13A (d.), already stated (i), any application relating to a fund paid into Court may be made by summons in all cases where the money or securities in Court do not exceed 1,000*l.*, or 1,000*l.* nominal value.

This rule must be read in connection with and as extended by Order LV., Rule 2, clause (1), under which a summons is the proper mode of procedure in the case of "applications for payment or transfer to any person of any cash or securities standing to the credit of any cause or matter where there has been a judgment or order declaring the rights, or where the title depends only upon proof of the identity or the birth, marriage, or death of any person."

If the fund in Court exceeds 1,000*l.*, the application must be by petition, notwithstanding that it asks for payment out of a portion only amounting to less than 1,000*l.* (j).

(a) N.B.—No deduction for costs and expenses must be made from the amount to be paid in.

(b) Re Waring, 16 Jur. 652.

(c)—— v. ——, 1 Jur. N.S. 974.

(d) Re Hansford, 7 W. R. 199, 254; Re Whitaker's Trusts, 47 L. T. N.S. 507; 31 W. R. 114.

(e) Re Goodman's Will, W. N. 1870, p. 152.

(f) Re Hardley's Trusts, 10 Ch. D. (C.A.) 664.

(g) Re Colson's Trust, 2 W. R. 111.

(h) See ante, p. 428.

(i) See ante, p. 1304.

(j) Re Evan Evans, 54 L. T. N.S 527; W. N. (1886), p. 84.

A petition should set out the material statements of the affidavit under which the money is paid in, as the affidavit is regarded as a statement of the trust to which the attention of the Court is to be called (a). But the petition must not set out the affidavit in extenso, or at a needless length (b). Form and contents of petition.

Order LIV. B., Rule 4 (2) (c), has been supplemented by a direction of the Judges of the Chancery Division in the following terms :— Service of application.

TRUSTEE ACT, 1893

TRUSTEE RELIEF ACTS

Direction of the Judges of the Chancery Division.

We, the undersigned Judges of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, direct that all applications dealing with funds lodged in Court on affidavit under the Trustee Act, 1893, or under the repealed Trustee Relief Acts, be in ordinary cases served upon the trustees and the persons named in the trustees' affidavit as interested in or entitled to the money or securities. When a special direction is required, it should be so stated on the petition or summons, and the petition should, when presented, be referred to Chambers for such direction to be given before it is answered for hearing in Court.

JOSEPH W. CHITTY, J.
FORD NORTH, J.
JAMES STIRLING, J.
ARTHUR KEKEWICH, J.
ROBERT ROMER, J.

A trustee who did not concur with his co-trustees in paying the money into Court, must still be served with any petition under the Act (c).

Where an infant is to be served, a guardian ad litem should be appointed (d).

Where a petition stands over for amendment, by adding a next friend on behalf of the petitioner, it is not necessary to have the petition re-answered (e). Hearing.

A claimant may proceed in forma pauperis under the Act (f).

(a) Re Levett's Trusts, 5 De G. & Sm. 619 ; Re Flack's Will, 10 Hare, App. xxx.

(b) Re Curtois, 17 Jur. 852 ; 10 Hare, App. lxiv.

(c) Re Bryant's Settlement, W. N. 1868, p. 123.

(d) Re Ward's Will, 2 Giff. 122 ; Re Gillman's Trusts, 1 Ir. R. Eq. 342.

(e) Re Medow's Trusts, 10 Jur. N.S. 536, and see Robinson v. Harrison, 1 Drewr. 307.

(f) Re Money, 13 Beav. 109.

No. III.

THE LUNACY ACTS, 1890 AND 1891.

Such only of the provisions of these Acts are here stated as relate to the appointment of new trustees and to vesting orders.

THE LUNACY ACT, 1890.

53 VICT. C. 5.

1. This Act may be cited as the Lunacy Act, 1890.

2. Save as in this Act otherwise expressly provided, this Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

3. This Act shall come into operation, save as in this Act otherwise expressly provided, on the first day of May, 1890.

The Judge in Lunacy.

108. (1) The jurisdiction of the Judge in Lunacy under this Act shall be exercised by the Lord Chancellor for the time being entrusted by the sign manual of Her Majesty with the care and commitment of the custody of the persons and estates of lunatics, acting alone or jointly with any one or more of such Judges of the Supreme Court as may for the time being be entrusted as aforesaid, or by any one or more of such Judges as aforesaid (a).

PART IV.—JUDICIAL POWERS OVER PERSON AND ESTATE OF LUNATICS.

Management and administration.

116. The powers and provisions of this part of this Act relating to management and administration apply :—(1) (A) To lunatics so found by inquisition; (B) To lunatics not so found by inquisition, for the protection and administration of whose property any order has been made before the commencement of this Act; (C) To every person lawfully detained as a lunatic, though not so found by inquisition; (D) To every person not so detained and not found a lunatic by inquisition, with regard to whom it is proved to the satisfaction of the Judge in Lunacy that such person is, through mental infirmity arising from disease or age, incapable of managing his affairs; (E) To every person with regard to whom it is proved to the satisfaction of the Judge in Lunacy by the certificate of a master, or by the report of the Commissioners, or by affidavit or otherwise, that such person is of unsound mind and incapable of managing his affairs, and that his property does not exceed 2,000*l.* in value, or that the income thereof does not exceed 100*l.* per annum; (F) To every person with regard to whom the Judge is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that such person is or has been a criminal lunatic and continues to be insane and in confinement. (2) In the case of any of the above-mentioned persons not being lunatics so found by inquisition, such of the powers of this Act as are made exercisable by the committee of the estate under order of the Judge, shall be exercised by such person in such manner and with or without security as the Judge may direct, and any such order may confer upon the person therein named authority to do any specified act, or exercise any specified power, or may confer a general authority to exercise on behalf of the lunatic, until further order, all or any of such powers without further application to the Judge. (3) Every person appointed to do any such act, or exercise any such power, shall be subject to the jurisdiction and authority of the Judge as if such person were the committee of the estate of a lunatic so found by inquisition. (4) The powers of this Act relating to management and administration shall be exercisable in the discretion of the Judge for the maintenance or benefit of the lunatic or of him and his family, or where it appears to be expedient in due course of management of the property of the lunatic. (5) Nothing in this Act shall subject a lunatic's property to claims of his creditors further than the same is now subject thereto by due course of law (a).

(a) See p. 861.

Committee may exercise power vested in lunatic in character of trustee or guardian.

128. Where a power is vested in a lunatic in the character of trustee or guardian, or the consent of a lunatic to the exercise of a power is necessary in the like character, or as a check upon the undue exercise of the power, and it appears to the Judge to be expedient that the power should be exercised or the consent given, the committee of the estate, in the name and on behalf of the lunatic, under an order of the Judge, made upon the application of any person interested, may exercise the power or give the consent in such manner as the order directs (b).

(a) See pp. 860, 861.

(b) See p. 861. This section is in substitution for s. 137 of the Lunacy Regulation Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 70).

Appointment of new trustees under power to have effect of appointments by High Court, and like orders may be made as under Trustee Act, 1850.

129. Where under this Act the committee of the estate, under order of the Judge, exercises, in the name and on behalf of the lunatic, a power of appointing new trustees vested in the lunatic, the person or persons who shall, after and in consequence of the exercise of the power, be the trustee or trustees, shall have all the same rights and powers as he or they would have had if the order had been made by the High Court; and the Judge may, in any such case, where it seems to him to be for the lunatic's benefit and also expedient, make any order respecting the property subject to the trust which might have been made in the same case under the Trustee Act, 1850, or any Act amending the same, on the appointment thereunder of a new trustee or new trustees (a).

Vesting Orders (b).

Power to transfer stock of lunatic.

133. Where any stock is standing in the name of or is vested in a lunatic beneficially entitled thereto, or is standing in the name of or vested in a committee of the estate of a lunatic so found by inquisition, in trust for the lunatic, or as part of his property, and the committee dies intestate, or himself becomes lunatic, or is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, or it is uncertain whether the committee is living or dead, or he neglects or refuses to transfer the stock, and to receive and pay over the dividends thereof as the Judge in Lunacy directs, then the Judge may order some fit person to transfer the stock to or into the name of a new committee or into court or otherwise, and also to receive and pay over the dividends thereof in such manner as the Judge directs (c).

Stock in name of lunatic out of the jurisdiction.

134. Where any stock is standing in the name of or vested in a person residing out of the jurisdiction of the High Court, the Judge in Lunacy, upon proof to his satisfaction that the person has been declared lunatic, and that his personal estate has been vested in a person appointed for the management thereof, according to the law of the place where he is residing, may order some fit person to make such transfer of the stock or any part thereof to or into the name of the person so appointed or otherwise, and also to receive and pay over the dividends thereof, as the Judge thinks fit.

Power to vest lands and release contingent right of lunatic trustee or mortgagee.

135. (1) When a lunatic is solely or jointly seised or possessed of any land upon trust or by way of mortgage the Judge in Lunacy may

(a) See pp. 838, 839. This section is in substitution for s. 138 of the Lunacy Regulation Act, 1853.

(b) As to the parties to make application under these sections, the title of summons, and service, see the Rules in Lunacy, 1892, Rules 55-57; Renton on Lunacy, Appendix, pp. 988, et seq.

(c) The order should be entitled in the matter of the Lunacy Acts, 1890 and 1891, as well as in the matter of the particular lunacy; but this does not apply to a case under s. 116, subs. 1 (d), where the title contains a by order vest such land in such person or persons for such estate, and in such manner, as he directs (a).

(2) When a lunatic is solely or jointly entitled to a contingent right in any land upon trust or by way of mortgage, the Judge may by order release such hereditaments from the contingent right, and dispose of the same to such person or persons as the Judge directs.

(3) An order under sub-sects. (1) and (2) shall have the same effect as if the trustee or mortgagee had been sane, and had executed a deed conveying the lands for the estate named in the order, or releasing or disposing of the contingent right (b).

(4) In all cases where an order can be made under this section the Judge may, if it is more convenient, appoint a person to convey the land or release the contingent right, and a conveyance or release by such person in conformity with the order shall have the same effect as an order under sub-sects. (1) and (2).

(5) Where an order under this section vesting any copyhold land in any person or persons is made with the consent of the lord or lady of the manor, such land shall vest accordingly without surrender or admittance.

(6) Where an order is made appointing any person or persons to convey any copyhold land, such person or persons shall execute and do all assurances and things for completing the assurance of the lands; and the lord and lady of the manor shall, subject to the customs of the manor and the usual payments, be bound to make admittance to the land, and to do all other acts for completing the assurance thereof, as if the persons in whose place an appointment is made were free from disability and had executed and done such assurances and things (c).

Power to vest right to transfer stock and sue for chose in action.

136. (1) Where a lunatic is solely entitled to any stock or chose in action upon trust or by way of mortgage, the Judge in Lunacy may by order vest in any person or persons the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock, or to receive the dividends thereof, or to sue for the chose in action.

(2) In the case of any person or persons jointly entitled with a lunatic to any stock or chose in action upon trust or by way of mortgage, the Judge may make an order vesting the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock, or to receive the dividends thereof, or to sue for the chose in action either in such person or persons alone or jointly with any other person or persons.

(3) When any stock is standing in the name of a deceased person, whose personal representative is a lunatic, or when a chose in action reference to the statutes "53 Vict. c. 5 and 54 & 55 Vict. c. 65"; Re Purvis, (1904) 1 Ch. (C.A.) 373.

(a) See pp. 862, 863.
(b) See pp. 862, 863.
(c) See p. 863.

is vested in a lunatic, as the personal representative of a deceased person, the Judge may make an order vesting the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock, or to receive the dividends thereof, or to sue for the chose in action in any person or persons he may appoint.

(4) In all cases where an order can be made under this section, the Judge may, if it is more convenient, appoint some proper person to make or join in making the transfer (a).

(5) The person or persons in whom the right to transfer or call for a transfer of any stock is vested, may execute and do all powers of attorney, assurances, and things to complete the transfer to himself or themselves, or any other person or persons according to the order, and the Bank and all other companies and their officers and all other persons shall be bound to obey every order under this section according to its tenor.

(6) After notice in writing of an order under this section, it shall not be lawful for the Bank or any other company to transfer any stock to which the order relates, or to pay any dividends thereon except in accordance with the order.

Person to be appointed to transfer.

137. Where a person is appointed to make or join in making a transfer of stock, such person shall be some proper officer of the Bank, or the company or society whose stock is to be transferred (b).

Charity trustees.

138. The powers conferred by this Act as to vesting orders may b exercised for vesting any land, stock, or chose in action in the trustee or trustees of any charity or society over which the High Court would have jurisdiction upon suit duly instituted, whether the appointment of such trustee or trustees was made by instrument under a power, or by the High Court under its general or statutory jurisdiction.

Declarations and directions.

139. The Judge in Lunacy may make declarations and give directions concerning the manner in which the right to any stock or chose in action vested under the provisions of this Act is to be exercised.

Order to be conclusive evidence of allegation on which it is founded.

140. The fact that an order for conveying any land or releasing any contingent right has been founded upon an allegation of the personal incapacity of a trustee or mortgagee shall be conclusive evidence of the fact alleged in any Court upon any question as to the validity of the order, but this section shall not prevent a Judge of the High Court from directing a re-conveyance of any lands or contingent right dealt with by the order, or from directing any party

(a) See p. 865.

(b) This section has no application where an order vesting stock standing in the name of a lunatic trustee is made according to the form in Re Gregson, (1893) 3 Ch. (C.A.) 233, see ante, p. 856, and not under sub-s. 4 of s. 136; and, therefore, in such a case the Bank of England have no right to require that their officer should be appointed to make the transfer; Re C. M. G., (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 324.

to any proceeding concerning such land or right to pay any costs occasioned by the order when the same appears to have been improperly obtained.

Power to appoint new trustees.

141. In every case in which the Judge in Lunacy has jurisdiction to order a conveyance or transfer of land or stock or to make a vesting order, he may also make an order appointing a new trustee or new trustees (a).

Costs.

142. The Judge in Lunacy may order the costs of and incident to obtaining an order under the provisions of this Act as to vesting orders and carrying the same into effect, to be paid out of the land or personal estate or the income thereof in respect of which the order is made, or in such manner as the Judge may think fit (b).

Saving of power of High Court.

143. The provisions of this Act as to vesting orders shall not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court as to any lunatic trustee or mortgagee who is an infant.

Power to make rules.

338. By this section, sub-sect. 2, the Lord Chancellor is empowered to make rules in lunacy "for carrying this or any other Act relating to lunacy, into effect, and also for regulating costs in relation thereto."

Definitions.

341. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context—

"Contingent right" as applied in lands, includes a contingent and executory interest, a possibility coupled with an interest, whether the object of the gift or limitation of such interest or possibility be or be not ascertained, also a right of entry, whether immediate or future, and whether vested or contingent.

"Convey" and "conveyance" include the performance of all formalities required to the validity of conveyances by married women and tenants in tail under the "Act for the abolition of fines and recoveries, and for the substitution of more simple modes of assurance," and also surrenders and other acts which a tenant of copyhold lands can perform preparatory to or in aid of a complete assurance of such copyhold lands.

"Land" includes an undivided share of land; "Lease" includes an underlease; "Lunatic" means an idiot or person of unsound mind.

"Property" includes real and personal property, whether in possession, reversion, remainder, contingency, or expectancy, and any estate or interest and any undivided share therein.

(a) See p. 862.

(b) As to the jurisdiction under the section to order the Bank of England to pay costs, see Re C. M. G., (1898) 2 Ch. (C.A.) 324, referring to Re Shortridge, (1895) 1 Ch. 278.

"Stock" includes any fund, annuity, or security transferable in books kept by any company or society, or by instrument of transfer alone, or by instrument of transfer, accompanied by other formalities, and any share or interest therein, and also shares in ships registered under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

"Transfer" includes assignment, payment, and other disposition, and the execution and performance of every assurance and act to complete a transfer.

"Trust" and "trustee" include implied and constructive trusts, and cases where the trustee has some beneficial interest, and also the duties incident to the office of personal representative of a deceased person, but not the duties incident to an estate conveyed by way of mortgage.

THE LUNACY ACT, 1891.

54 & 55 VICT. c. 65.

Procedure as to Chancery Lunatics.

27. (1) Subject to rules in lunacy the jurisdiction of the Judge in Lunacy, as regards administration and management, may be exercised by the masters, and every order of a master in that behalf shall take effect, unless annulled or varied by the Judge in Lunacy (a).

(2) The power to make rules under sect. 338, sub-sect. 2, of the principal Act, shall extend to all applications under the principal Act and this Act, and also to applications in the Chancery Division of the High Court, in cases where such applications are also made under the principal Act.

Definition of "seised" and "possessed."

28. In the principal Act, the word "seised" shall include any vested estate for life or of a greater description, and shall extend to estates at law and in equity in possession or in futurity in any lands; and the word "possessed" shall include any vested estate less than a life estate at law or in equity, in possession or in expectancy in any lands.

(a) See p. 865.

INDEX

ABATEMENT.
adverse possession equivalent to, in equity, 935, 936.

ABATOR.
not bound by a use, 3.

ABROAD.
assignment executed, when an act of bankruptcy, 603, 604.
cestui que trust resident, payment to, 411, 428 note.
fraudulent conveyance of lands, relieved against, 50.
injunction against taking possession of lands, 50.
lands abroad, equities and contracts as to, enforced, 49, 50; whether so as to trusts, qu., 51, 52.
Frauds, Statute of, may be defence in action as to, 57.
lien against, enforced, 49; title to, will not be determined, 51. management of property, commission when allowed in respect of, 780 et seq.
payment into Court where person abroad absolutely entitled to fund, 1310.
person domiciled, not suitable to be trustee, 41, 822, 823, 841.
personal estate abroad, trust of, enforced in equity, 49.
real estate abroad, equities attaching to, how far enforced, 49.
receiver when appointed where trustees out of jurisdiction, 1263.
rents and profits of land, account of, directed, 49.
Scotch estate, equitable mortgage of, enforced, 49.
separate trustees for property abroad, appointment of, 227.
service on persons abroad, jurisdiction not enlarged by, 50.
Trustee Act, under, 844 note.
trustee resident abroad, 41, 819, 820, 1087.
incapacitated, is not, from acting, 819.
new trustee appointed instead of, 804, 806, 840, 841, 844.
payment to co-trustees ordered by Court, 413 note.
vesting order as to estate of, 844.
when appointment of, is proper, 822, 823.
trusts of land abroad, how far effectual, 49 et seq.

ABSCONDING TRUSTEE.
appointment of new trustee in place of, 839.
removed, may be, 1087.
service of petition on, for appointment of new trustees, dispensed with, 1305.

ABSENCE. trustee, of, when a ground for appointing new trustee, 839 et seq.

ABSOLUTELY ENTITLED.
vesting property in person who is, 850 note.
who is, within Trustee Act, 854, 855.

ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST, 224 et seq.
acting in execution of trust, by, 224, 225, 229, 275, 276.
what acts constitute acceptance, 224, 225.
attorney, by signing power of, 226, 230.
constructive acceptance, what amounts to, 225.
declaration, by, 224, 228.
deed, by, not requisite, 228; but may make breach of trust a specialty debt, 228, 229.
duties consequent on, 230.
trustee must not rely on co-trustee, 230.
may assume no breach of trust if he has no notice of any, 231.
must inform himself of state of trust, 230, 231.
should have inventory of chattels made, 231.
execution of trust deed, by, 224.
executor, by, how made, 225.
by proving will, 225.
by voluntary interference with assets, 226.
as by assigning lease, bringing action, selling assets, 226.
unless conduct can be clearly explained, 226, 227.
executor of executor, by, 225, 226.
executor who is also trustee cannot prove will, and renounce trusts or estate, 225, 227.
legatee being executor may claim legacy though he renounce, 220, 221.
express declaration, by, 224.
mistake, person assuming character of trustee by, accountable, 230, 231.
parol, by, sufficient, 228.
parol evidence admissible to prove, 228.
presumption of, by lapse of time, 224; but not from taking custody of trust deed, 227.
probate, effect of trustee taking out, 225.
public trustee, by, 701.
recitals in trust deed, trustee should see to correctness of, 224, 225.
renunciation after acceptance not permitted, 281. several trust estates, by devisee of, 225.
time, by lapse of, without disclaimer, 220, 224.
trust deed, by executing, 224; but secus merely taking custody of, 227.
writing, by, not necessary before commencing action, 228.

ACCIDENT.
possession of title-deeds by, will not per se confer priority, 922.
trustee not excused by, if it occur during misfeasance, 1173.

ACCOMMODATION.
trustee should not invest by way of, 348.

ACCORD.
no bar without satisfaction, 1200.

ACCOUNT.
agent of trustee, against, 214, 566, 797, 798.
audit of trust accounts by public trustee, 705.
cestui que trust, against, gaining by breach of trust, 1179.
Chancery Division, matters of account assigned to, 1145.
charity, against trustees of, when directed, 1117, 1210 et seq.

ACCOUNT—continued.
complication in, a ground for relief in equity, 1144.
copy of, whether c. q. t. entitled to, 887.
costs of taking, 1271, 1272, 1273, 1276. See COSTS. decree for, merely, not within 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 18, 1037 note.
delay when a bar to action for, 1117 et seq.
executor, against, 560.
executor, by, with residuary legatee, 416.
expenses, of, duty of trustee to keep, 792.
fluctuating body, against, not directed retrospectively, 1213.
foreign property, in respect of, 50.
fraudulent concealment of lease till term expired, where, 1146.
ignorant, where trustee was, of his true character, 274, 1147.
improper, rendered by co-trustee, liability of trustee for, 887.
inconvenience, claim for account when refused on ground of, 1116 et seq., 1210.
judicial trustee, to be kept by, 686.
just allowances, direction for, when given, 308, 309, 1148.
laches, where plaintiff guilty of, 1148.
where surviving partner guilty of, 1118.
lapse of time, after, indulgence shown to trustee, 887 note.
legal title, account in equity in respect of, 1144 et seq.
Limitations, Statute of, when and how applicable to action for, 1118, 1119, 1120, 1144 et seq.
maintenance, from implied trustee for, not required retrospectively, 158.
married woman, settlement by, with trustee, 1017.
mesne rents and profits, of, 1144 et seq. See RENTS AND PROFITS.
ignorance or mistake of trustee, 274, 402, 1147.
lands abroad, of, 50.
misstating, trustee is fixed with costs, 1276.
mortgagee in possession, against, 212, 213.
parish, no retrospective account against, 1213.
payment into court of balance appearing by, 1257, 1260.
preliminary accounts and inquiries, Court may make order for, 422, 423. profits of trade, of, against person in fiduciary relation, 307, 308. See PROFITS OF TRADE.
public trustee, accounts by, to be kept and audited, 707.
refusal of trustee to render, 887.
rents, of, against trustee in possession, 867. See RENTS AND PROFITS. against person in bonâ fide adverse possession, 1147.
retiring trustee, against, of money paid to induce him to retire, 307, 308.
separate, fund to be paid into court to, 426, 427.
settled, opening, against solicitor trustee, 783.
tenant for life, against, who has received excessive income, 388, 389.
trust, of, trustee should pay moneys to, 287.
trustee, against, who has employed trust money in trade, 307, 308.
who has purchased trust estate, 578; who has renewed lease, 206.
who has delayed sale of trust property, 501.
trustee de son tort, against, 231.
trustee, duty of, to keep proper, 887, 1254; and produce same, 531, 887, 1254.
costs of neglect or refusal to render, 1276.
vouchers, trustee entitled to custody of, 531.
waste, in respect of, 209.
wilful default, on footing of, when directed, 1148, 1167, 1168.

ACCOUNTANT.
trustee may employ, 786.

ACCUMULATION.
application of income before conversion where accumulation directed, 336.
infant, of dividends on stock of, by Bank of England, 857.
infant, of income during minority of, 717, 724, 728, 729, 733.
maintenance out of, form of order directing, 734.
mortgages, for payment of, tenant for life when entitled to possession, 870, 871.
renewal of leases, for, right to, 445, 446.
simple and compound, 96.
trust for, when lawful, 95 et seq. See ACCUMULATIONS ACT.
perpetuity, leading to, bad if possibly exceeding lawful limit, 95.
where rents applicable de anno in annum, 95, 96.
valid if beneficiaries can put an end to accumulation, 96.
purchase of land only, for, 101, 102.
repairing and reinstating buildings, for, 101.
until A. attains 24, and then to transfer to him, A. on majority may demand payment, 885.
trustee neglecting to comply with direction for, charged with compound interest, 400.
where directed, and investment, tenant for life has income after one year, 336.

ACCUMULATIONS ACT, 1800 (39 & 40 Geo. 3. c. 98), 96 et seq.
charge void under, sinks into land, 99.
exceptions from Act, and their construction, 99, 100.
excess, to whom belonging, 98.
implied direction for accumulation, semble, Act applies to, as well as to express direction, 97, 98.
improvement of estate, trust for, 101.
Ireland, Act not applicable to, 102.
payment of debts, provision for, recoupment of debts already paid is not a, 99.
periods of accumulation permitted by, 96.
accumulation can be for one only of the periods, 97.
period commencing after testator's death, must end at 21 years from such death, 97.
premiums on policy, direction to pay, out of income, 101.
repairing and reinstating buildings, trust for, 101.
residue, when void accumulations fall into, 98.
Scotland, Act extended to, 102.
simple accumulation, Act applies to, as well as compound, 96.
subsequent limitations not in general accelerated, 98.
suspension of actual enjoyment of income, Act applies although right to enjoyment is not suspended, 97.
trust exceeding limits of Act, but not of common law, good pro tanto, 97.
void accumulations, who entitled to, 98, 99.
residue, of, result to heir at law or next of kin, 99.
residuary devisee or legatee, in general go to, 98; and where residue is settled form capital, 99.

ACCUMULATIONS ACT, 1892 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 58), 101.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.
debt, of, by one trustee or executor, 290, 297 note, 1133.
execution of deed, of, 21, 35. See FINES AND RECOVERIES ACT. production of documents of title, of right to, 523, 524.
trust, proof of, by subsequent acknowledgment of trustee, 58, 59.

ACQUIESCENCE. See LACHES. breach of trust, in, effect of, 1196 et seq.

ACQUIESCENCE—continued.
infant not bound by, 581.
married woman not bound by, 581, 1180, 1200.
secus where entitled for separate use without restraint, 581, 1180, 1200.
class of persons, by, as creditors or parishioners, 581.
constructive trust, remedy of c. q. t. under, when barred by acquiescence, 207, 1108.
purchase in name of stranger, in case of, 190.
creditors, by, in trust deed for them, 581, 582.
definition of, 1119, 1120.
delay, by reason of, when implied, 220, 581, 582. See LACHES.
direct or indirect, 1119.
disclaimer precluded by, 220.
fluctuating body, by, 581, 1197.
infant not bound by, 581, 1197, 1200.
investment, in, by cestui que trust, 350.
Limitations, Statute of, does not interfere with the effect of, in equity, 1109 et seq.
married woman, by, effect of, 581, 1180, 1200.
in husband's receipt of separate estate, 1001 et seq.
meaning of, explained, 1119, 1120, 1198, 1199.
remainderman, by, 453.
removal of trustees irregularly appointed, right to, when barred by, 1089.
requisites of, 1119, 1197, 1198, 1200, 1201.
reversionary, where c. q. t.'s. interest is, 1199.
standing by, while expense is incurred, effect of, 925, 926, 1119.
trustee, by, delaying to disclaim trust, 220.

ACT OF PARLIAMENT.
applications by trustees for, 629, 718.
charity, for total alteration of scheme of, 629.
costs of obtaining, 629.
money paid into Court under, treated as land, 1225.
investment of, in what securities allowed, 358.
moneys for public services, in hands of Secretaries of State, not trust funds, 798.
opposition to Bill, costs of, when allowed, 718.
money paid to tenant for life for refraining from, 212.
saving clause preserving jurisdiction under repealed Act, effect of, 864 note.
settlement, may constitute a, 649.
trust in evasion of, not implied, 186.

ACTING.
acceptance of trust by, 225. See ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST.
disclaimer of trust by acts, 221. See DISCLAIMER.
executor, meaning of expression, 804 note.
trustee, meaning of expression, 290, 816, 825, 914.
breach of trust, committing, when bound to indemnify co-trustee, 1178.
every trustee who has accepted office treated as, 914.

ACTION.
acceptance of trust by bringing, 226.
appeal by trustee is at his own risk, 419.
breach of trust, for, parties to, 1177 note.
breach of trust, to prevent, duty of co-trustees to bring, 304.
cestui que trust may require trustee to lend his name for, 1094, 1095.
choses in. See CHOSE IN ACTION.
costs of, trustee when liable for, 419.
when entitled to be reimbursed, 783, 784.

ACTION—continued.
Court may direct institution of, 747.
debt, for calling in, duty of executor or trustee to bring, 323, 324, 1094, 1095.
decree or judgment in, takes administration from trustee, 747, 770, 783.
does not prevent exercise of powers under Settled Land Acts, 669.
equity to settlement, to enforce, 953, 954, 962, 963.
lapse of time, when barred by, 1109 et seq. See LIMITATION.
married woman, against, 987 et seq., 1026.
by, 974 et seq.
protection of trustees, for, 419 et seq.
removal of trustee, for, pleadings in, 1087, 1088.
summons, originating, now substituted for, in certain cases, 419 et seq.
tenant for life, powers of, under Settled Land Acts, not affected by, 669.
trustee bringing, by advice of counsel, how far protected, 231 note.
duty of trustee to see that proper parties are before the Court, 422.
instituting action for private ends, pays costs, 1275.
powers of, when suspended by institution of action, 747, 783.
right party to bring, is, respecting trust estate, 260.
security for costs, 261.
trustee in bankruptcy, against, to recover trust property, 268, 269.
validity of act without, which Court would have directed, 710.

ADDITION TO TRUST PROPERTY. trust created by, 79, 165.

ADDITIONAL TRUSTEE. costs of appointment of, 842 note.

ADEMPTION, 474 et seq.
codicil republishing will, effect of, 480.
direction to pay debts does not negative presumption of, 482.
doctrine of, explained, 474.
legacy, of, by subsequent advance by parent, 474 et seq.
money, legacy of, not adeemed by subsequent settlement of land, 478.
parents and persons in loco parentis, doctrine of, applies only to, 475, 476.
partial, by advance of less amount than legacy, 479, 480.
presumption, is matter of, only, 477.
residuary gift, of, by subsequent advance, 480.
satisfaction, distinguished from, 474, 482, 483.
stranger, when benefited by doctrine of, 480, 482, 483.

ADMINISTRATION.
action for, effect of, on trust for sale, 532 ; on powers, 532, 747, 748, 770, 771, 783.
frame of, 422.
assets, legal and equitable, of, 1063 et seq. See ASSETS. bankruptcy, in, 1071, 1072 .
bond, 565.
cæterorum, to husband, 995.
charity, of, under Charity Procedure Act, 1812 . . . 1203 et seq. See CHARITY ; CHARITY COMMISSIONERS. costs of action for, by c. q. t., 422, 423.
executor ordered to pay, 1276.
lien of trustee prevails over, 791, 792.
testamentary expenses, are, 801, 802.
trustee ordered to pay, 1276.
difficulty in obtaining, a ground for appointing new trustees, 839.
guardian of infants, to, limited to purpose of appointing trustees, 817.

ADMINISTRATION—continued.
judgment debts, priority of, 1069 note.
letters of, how obtained after successive intestacies, 565, 566.
may be granted to public trustee, 702.
what legacies will be paid without taking out, 412.
limited to trust property, when to be taken ou 250, 817.
mortgagee, proof by, in administration action, 612.
order for, Court does not make, if questions can be determined without it, 421.
executor entitled to, where estate consists of onerous leaseholds, 527.
originating summons for determination of questions in, 420 et seq., 772.
retainer, where executor claims, as to simple contract debt, 1070.
sale, order for, converts property as from its date, 173, 1226.
separate property of married woman, of, 994.
small estates, of, public trustee may act in, 701.
vesting order in case of refusal to take out, 855 note.
wilful default, account on footing of, when directed, 1148, 1167 1168.

ADMINISTRATOR. See EXECUTOR. appointment of, Court cannot make, under Trustee Act, 1893 . . . 838, 843.
bankruptcy of, does not divest estate, 268.
breach of trust by intestate, answerable for, 1169.
convict's property, of, appointed by Crown, 28.
cum testamento annexo, may be a "trustee" within s. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881 . . . 724 note.
dealings with, after interval from intestate's death, how far safe, 565, 566.
de bonis non, assets vest in, where executor dies intestate, 251.
judicial trustee, may be appointed, 700.
office of, may be exercised by one co-administrator, 304.
protection of, against creditors, 436, 437.
purchase of trust property by, not permitted, 575.
real estate, cannot sell, though charged with debts, 550.
receipt of, after lapse of time, 565, 566.
where there is charge of debts, 550.
renunciation of executor and trustee, administrator appointed upon, not properly a trustee, 228.
survivorship of office of joint administrators, 293.
time and trouble, not allowed to charge for, 780.
trustee, of, bound by trust, 275, 1169.
whether he can make a title, 568 : may relinquish trust, 835.

ADMISSION.
assets, of, is not an admission of right of set-off, 898.
copyholds, to, fine to be paid by trustee on, 262, et seq.
tenant for life and remainderman, how to be borne as between, 453.
with consent of lord, effect of, 851.
married woman, by, 975, 1017.
payment into Court, what admission sufficient to found motion for, 1256 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
set-off, objection to, may be waived by admission, 898.
trust, of, by defendant, 58, 67.
by joint tenant, 67.

ADOPTION.
trust deed, of, by creditor, 602 et seq.

ADULT. See ADVANCEMENT ; INFANT.

ADVANCEMENT.
infant's legacy, out of capital of, 733.
allowed where cross limitations among children, 735, 736.
not allowed if a limitation over, 735; but may be, in account between trustee and infant, 735.
meaning of term, 734 note.
portion, ademption of, by subsequent advance, 474 et seq. See ADEMPTION. advancement to child regarded as, 479, 480. See PORTION.
satisfaction of, by subsequent advance, 474 et seq. See SATISFACTION.
power of, advice of Court as to exercise of, how to be obtained, 772.
discretion of trustee under, not interfered with, 735.
when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145.
with consent of tenant for life, how to be exercised, when tenant for life becomes bankrupt, 736.
presumption of, on purchase in name of child, wife, or near relative, 164, 192.
adult, where child is, 194.
contract of purchase by son only, 196.
copyholds for lives, on purchase of, 193.
daughter, in favour of, 198.
evidence to rebut or support presumption, 196.
grandchild, in favour of, 198.
illegitimate child, in favour of, 198.
infant, when child is, 192.
joint names, on purchase in, 192, 193.
names of father and child, 192, 193.
names of purchaser, wife, and strangers, 199.
names of stranger and child, 193.
mother, in case of purchase by, on slight evidence of intention, 199.
nephew, in favour of, 198.
parol declaration by parent, admissibility of, as evidence, 197.
personalty, doctrine applies to, 200.
policy of assurance on life of parent in name of child, 196.
possession, continuance by parent in, 195.
previous provision for child, effect of, as rebutting presumption, 193, 194.
purchase-money, if not paid, is a debt from estate of purchaser, 200.
receipts, effect of son signing, in parent's name, 195.
relationship of father and child a mere circumstance of evidence, 191.
relatives in whose favour presumption arises, 199.
reputed wife (e.g. deceased wife's sister), does not arise in favour of, 199.
reversionary estate, in case of purchase of, 192.
solicitor, relation of, by child to parent rebuts presumption, 200.
stranger, does not arise in favour of, even where purchaser in loco parentis, 199.
wife, in favour of, 198.
tenant for life, of, under special power, 736.

ADVANCEMENT, of religion, gift for, 122.

ADVANTAGE.
charity lease should not contain covenant for lessor's private advantage, 637.
trustee may not derive, from trust, 201, 209, 306 et seq.
application of rule to persons in fiduciary position, 310 et seq.
may not lease to one of trustees, 571.
whether trustee may have, on failure of c. q. t., 315.
wrongdoer not allowed to take, by his own wrong, 209 et seq.

ADVERSE POSSESSION. See POSSESSION. curtesy does not attach where there is, 946.
equitable estate, available against, 935.

ADVERSE TITLE.
trustee cannot set up, against his c. q. t., 318.

ADVERTISEMENTS.
executors, by, for creditors under 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, 436, 437, 1172.
trustees, by, selling by auction, 514, 515.

ADVICE.
counsel, of, trustee acting under, when protected, 231 note, 406. See COUNSEL.
Court, of, how obtained by trustee, 419 et seq.
words of, whether trust is raised by, 148 et seq. See IMPLIED TRUST.

ADVOWSON.
election of clerk to fill, 92, 93; mode of electing, 94, 95, 289.
heir at law, right of presentation when devolving on, 306.
held in trust for parishioners, whether a charity, 91, 92, 626.
presentation to, trustee not entitled to right of, 306.
purchase of, on footing of immediate possession, simoniacal, 119.
suit to set aside nomination by trustees, 1202 note (1).
survivorship of right to present, as between co-trustees, 294.
trust of, for parishioners, how carried into effect, 91, 289.
when discretionary, 17.
trust to present to, within six months after vacancy, 751.
trustee presents but must observe direction of c. q. t., 261.
trustees should not purchase, 590.

AFFIDAVIT.
distringas, in support of application for, under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 5, 1251.
evidence usually given by, under Trustee Act, 1275 note.
fitness of new trustees, as to, 1305, 1306.
lodgment of funds in Court under Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, on, 424, 428, 1306 et seq.
payment into Court upon, when compulsory, 1256 et seq.
restraining order, in support of application for, under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 5, 1252, 1253.
trust evidenced by, within Statute of Frauds, 58. trustees, by, on payment into Court under s. 42 of Trustee Act, 1893 . . . 424 note, 428, 1306 et seq.

AFTER ACQUIRED. See COVENANT, FUTURE PROPERTY.

AGENCY. agreement, trustee procuring renewal of, for own firm, 212.
deed of, 607.

AGENT.
accountable to trustees only, not to c. q. t., 214, 566, 797, 1159.
unless deriving personal benefit, 214, 567, 1159; or accepting delegation of trust, or fraud, 214, 798.
accounts, duty of, to keep, 887.
breach of trust by, 1161.
cestui que trust when regarded as agent of trustee, 1131.
commission, corruptly receiving, when to be deemed trustee, 1157.
criminal act of, trustee whether liable for, 328.

AGENT—continued.
disclaiming trustee may act as agent to trust, 221, 222.
discretion to be exercised by trustee in appointment of, 285 note.
executor when justified in employing, 786.
following money into hands of, 269, 1153.
husband and wife, of, receipt by, of chose in action, 951 note.
lien, agent has not any, upon trust estate for charges, 796.
though trust be to pay expenses in first instance, 796.
secus where positive direction to employ particular agent, 796, 797.
Limitations, Statutes of, when entitled to plead, 1161.
management, for, purchase by, 571.
money in hands of, trustee must not leave, 282, 286.
negligence of, trustee not liable for, 793.
notice to, must be to actual, not to possible agent, 915.
person assuming to act as, liable, 232.
policy money, to receive, banker or solicitor may be appointed, 531.
production of accounts kept by, 1254.
profiting by agency, is constructively a trustee, 208, 214, 310, 571.
public trustee, may be employed by, 706.
purchase by, in own name provable by parol, 188.
when improper, 571, 575.
purchase-money, payment of, to agent of trustee, 530, 531.
receipt by, 530, 531, 556, 557.
receiving rents, when accountable as trustee, 1166.
security from, trustee or executor not required to take, 287.
solicitor employed as, to receive money, 325.
town agent, country solicitor defending suit by, allowed agent's bill although trustee, 314.
trustee after disclaimer may be agent to trust estate, 221, 222.
may employ, on proper occasions, 284, 785, 786.
e.g. broker, 286; collector of rents, bailiff, attorney, 786.
where special direction by testator, 283, 284, 797.
one trustee may act as, in some cases for another, 284.
paying to agent, cautions to be observed by, 410.
sale, for, cannot buy as agent for another, 571.
employment of agent by, 514; to receive purchase-money, 529, 530, 557.
trustee, of, cannot buy for himself, 576.
West Indies, for management of estate in, 781.

AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS (ENGLAND) ACT.
charity trustees exercising powers of, require consent of Commissioners, 642.
improvements under, application of trust moneys in, 682.
by tenant not to be taken into account in estimating best rent, 744, 745.
right of tenant to compensation for, 746.
married woman, powers of, in respect to land under, 1027.

ALIEN.
cestui que trust, may be, 46.
chattels personal, alien enemy not competent to hold, 26; but see 33 Vict. c. 14, 26; alien friend may, and may create trust, ib.
devise to, and to British subject, upon trust, 40.
domiciled abroad, not a fit trustee, 40.
executory trust for, Court would not give effect to, in favour of Crown, 45.
husband not entitled to curtesy, 945.
lands, may acquire by purchase, but formerly not by descent or operation of law, 26.
may now acquire and hold real and personal property, 26.
purchasing, could hold until office found, 26.

ALIEN—continued.
Naturalisation Act, 1870, provisions of, as to, 26.
office or franchise, not qualified for, by Act of 1870, 26.
proceeds of sale of real estate, could take, 46, 1225.
protector of settlement, cannot be appointed, 456.
trust, how far he can create, of real estate, 26.
of real estate for, 45, 1061 note.
could be enforced as against all but Crown, 26.
formerly Crown could claim benefit without previous inquisition, 103.
trustee of freeholds or chattels real, formerly could not be, 40.
of chattels personal, may be, 41.
when appointed by Court, 841 note.
trustee of real estate for, Crown could sue, in equity, 46.
will, power of, to dispose of property by, 26 note.

ALIENATION.
bankruptcy when an "alienation," 114, 115.
charity estates, of, when permitted, 633, 634. See CHARITY. corporation, by, 20, 30.
enlargement of estate is not an, 1012.
gift until, or gift over upon, 113 et seq.
accruing income, of, 118.
assignment occasioning forfeiture, 114, 115.
insolvency, when an "alienation," 114, 115.
limitation over in event of, effect of, 113 et seq.
marriage of feme, how far an alienation of her chose in action, 115.
meaning of term, 114.
partial restraint upon, whether valid, 115 note.
powers, whether trustee can exercise, after alienation of estate, 760, 761.
whether tenant for life can, 829.
restraint against, trust imposing, inoperative, 111 et seq., 885.
secus, restraint against anticipation as to separate property of married woman, 890.
tenant for life, by, under Settled Land Acts, 663 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS.

ALIMONY.
inalienable character of, 964.

ALLOTMENT.
new shares, of, 745.

ALLOTMENTS EXTENSION ACT, 1882, 635 note.

ALLOWANCE.
contract for, trustee may make, specially, 784.
expenses, of, to trustee, 787 et seq. See EXPENSES.
improvements, for, to trustee, 576, 578, 713, 714.
to trustee who has purchased trust estate, 576, 578.
interest, of, to trustees, 714, 790, 791. See INTEREST.
just allowances, direction for, when inserted in decree for account, 308, 309.
maintenance of infant, for, 724 et seq.
salvage, of expenditure in nature of, 592, 1247.
skill and exertions in business, for, 782.
time and trouble, for, to trustees, CHAP. XXIV. s. 1, 780-787.

AMERICA. See JURISDICTION; WEST INDIES.

ANNUITANT.
contribution by, to fine on renewal of lease, 205, 206.
execution against, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, 1038.
limitations, statutes of, action by, when barred under, 1134, 1142.
tenant for life, having powers of, under Settled Land Acts, 661.
vesting order when made without service on, 1305.

ANNUITIES.
Government or Bank annuities, investment of trust money in, 345 et seq.
terminable, conversion of, 334.

ANNUITY.
apportionment of payments under covenant by testator, 342.
appropriation of fund to provide for, 723.
arrears of, apportioned between tenant for life and remainderman, 342.
covenant to secure, construction of, 161.
express trust, secured by, arrears of, what recoverable, 1134, 1142.
forfeiture of, on alienation, &c., 117.
maintenance of A., for, 159.
possession of land subject to, given to c. q. t., 868.
purchase of, in name of stranger, gives rise to resulting trust, 184. purchase of, may be waived by c. q. t., 711, 885.
tenant for life paying, rights of, 337 note.
trust money ought not to be lent upon, 351.
trustee, to, for time and trouble, 783, 792.
trustees in lieu of purchasing, may pay sum down, 711, 885.

ANSWER.
Chancery, in, may constitute declaration of trust, under Statute of Frauds, 58, 59.
but plaintiff must read from it the terms of the trust, 59.
payment into Court when directed on admission in, 1256 et seq.
suppression or chicanery in, visited with costs, 1276.
vendor, by, to requisitions of purchaser, 541, 542.

ANTICIPATION.
powers of trustee not to be exercised in, 769.

ANTICIPATION, RESTRAINT AGAINST, 1007 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.

APPEAL.
costs, for, by trustee, 435, 1268 note, 1271.
costs of trustees served with notice of, 1277.
Court of, constitution of, 15.
trustee, by, at his own risk, 419.

APPLICATION OF PURCHASE-MONEY.
trustee, by, purchaser when bound to see to, 536 et seq. See RECEIPT.

APPOINTMENT. See POWER. execution of power preventing resulting trust to settlor, 174, 175.
fraudulent, 769. See POWER. judicial trustee, of, by Court, 698 et seq.
married woman, by, under power, making property liable for debts, 996 et seq.
new trustees, of, 835 et seq., 1086 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
under Trustee Act, 825 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
perpetuity, when void for, 109.
power of, authorised by "usual powers" in executory trust, 145.

APPORTIONMENT.
annuity payable under covenant with testator, 342.
assets, of, as between specialty and simple contract creditors, 1070.
bonus dividend, issue of new shares to amount of, 878 note.
capital and income, as between, 340, 341, 876 et seq., 1187, 1188.
charities, between, of funds intermixed, 1155.
charities, of, between divided parishes, 1205.
costs, of, in action against executor of defaulting executor, 1274.
on appointment of trustees of two funds, 858, 859.
dividend in bankruptcy, of, between tenant for life and remainderman, 1187, 1188.
dividends, in respect of, on change of investment, in favour of tenant for life, 371, 372.
fines for renewal of leases, of, 205, 206, 442 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
purchase-money, of, as between tenant for life and remainderman, 508, 509, 689, 743.
by trustees of limited interest, 508, 509, 743.
reversionary interest, of proceeds of, as between tenant for life and remainderman, 340, 341, 342, 689.
speculative considerations not acted on, by Court, 444, 448.

APPROPRIATION.
Land Transfer Act, 1897, under provisions of, 722, 741, 742. legacy, of, by executor, 228, 722, 723, 724, 894, 1133, 1134.
payments, of, as between c. q. t. and trustee, 1153.
residue, of, by trustees or executors, 741.
specific, what amounts to, so as to create trust, 88, 89. See SPECIFIC APPROPRIATION.

ARBITRARY POWER, 750, 751, 765, 766. See POWER.

ARBITRATION, power of trustee to submit claims to, 739.

ARMY AGENT, notice to, of charge on proceeds of officer's commission, 912.

ARREARS. pin money, of, 1001.
rent, of, what recoverable under Statutes of Limitation, 1122 et seq., 1148.
separate estate, of, 973, 999 et seq., 1017. See MARRIED WOMAN.

ARTICLES, MARRIAGE.
executory trusts in, construction of, 128 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
money to be laid out in land when bound by, 1215.
notice of, binding upon purchaser, 1103.
renewable leaseholds, of, direction to renew implied in, 440.

ASSENT.
executor, of, to legacy, 228, 561.

ASSETS. Chap. xxvii. s. 12, 1063-1072. And see EXECUTOR. administration of, 1063 et seq.; in bankruptcy, 1071, 1072.
admission of, is not admission of right of set-of, 898.
conversion of, within what time to be made, 320.
copyholds were formerly not, 1034 note, 1063.
secus now under 3 & 4 Will 4. c. 104, 1066.
creditor, right of, to recover, from legatees, 414, 415.
debts, duty of executor to provide for payment of, 394, 598, 1063.
decrees, priority of, in administration of, 1069 note.

ASSETS—continued.
denial of, improperly, by executor, 1275.
descent, by, 1063.
devastavit, 281, 395, 414, 415, 563, 987. See EXECUTOR. equitable, what are, 1064.
land charged with debts or devised upon trust for payment of debts, 1064.
separate property of married woman, 994.
true test for determining what are, 1066.
whether trust of chattels is, 1066.
of fee, 1068 et seq.
equity, in, distinguished from equitable assets, 1064.
equity of redemption is, 1064.
escheat, real estate devolving on lord by, is assets, 278.
executor, in hands of, a species of trust property at common law, 250, 251.
executor, not liable for debt of, except in special case, 250, 251.
executor of executor, vest in, but not in administrator, 251.
executrix, married woman, may appoint executor, 250.
husband of, might dispose of assets during coverture, 250.
failure of c. q t., on, vest in Crown, 317.
Frauds, Statute of, s. 10, under, 1035, 1065.
Indian, conversion of, 389.
interference with, by executor, is acceptance of office, 226.
judgments, priority of, in administration, 1069.
legal, what are, 1063.
whether trust in fee devised is, 1067.
married woman, property appointed by, when available as, 994 et seq.
money to be laid out in land not considered personal assets, 1217.
mortgage of, by executor, 560 et seq.
outstanding, executor should not allow to remain, 307, 308, 322 et seq., 394.
sale of, by executor, 560 et seq.
trade, following assets employed in, 1152.
liability of trustee or executor employing assets in, 307, 396, 397, 398, 562, 721 et seq., 793, 794.
interest, when charged, 396 et seq. See INTEREST.
trust held to be, in hands of heir, 9.
chattels, of, always accounted assets in equity, 1064.
under statute 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 104, 1068 et seq.
wasting of, refunding not generally ordered in case of, 416.

ASSIGN, ASSIGNEE.
bankrupt, of, 600 et seq. See BANKRUPTCY.
cestui que trust, of, may call for transfer of legal estate, 889.
takes subject to equities, 892, 1182.
precautions to be taken by, 902 et seq.
claim by, of share of trust fund, 409.
constructive trustee, held to be, 837.
devisee of trustee, whether an "assign," 258, 259. equity, of, bound by equities, 892, 1182.
husband, of, when bound by wife's equity to settlement, 955, 957, 960.
part, of, whether trustee compellable to convey legal estate to, 880.
personal representative to be deemed an "assign," within the meaning of all trusts and powers, 259.
power discretionary, when assign can execute, 753, 754.
power of sale in mortgage, when assign can execute, 510.
receipt by assignee when a discharge, 404. set-off against assignor when binding on assignee, 895 et seq.

ASSIGN, ASSIGNEE—continued.
tenant for life, of, not affected by exercise of powers under Settled Land Acts, 664.
trust confided to trustee "and his assigns," effect of, 258, 259, 753.
trust, when assigns can execute, or sign receipts, 258, 259.
trustee, of, originally not bound by use, 2.
but afterwards held bound, 14, 275 ; whether in the per or post, 14, 275.
except purchaser for value without notice, 14.
rents and profits, account of, directed against, 1148.
trustee making payment not entitled to delivery of assignment, 409.
voluntary assignment, notice of trust presumed against person claiming under, 14.

ASSIGNMENT. See CONVEYANCE.
absolute, what is, within Judicature Act, 919.
act of bankruptcy, when constituting, 600 et seq.
breach of trust, of right to sue for, 889.
cestui que trust, interest of, formerly not assignable, 2; secus in later times, 8, 889.
chattels real, of, 890.
chose in action, of, 76, 77, 527, 892, 906, 918, 919, 1106. See CHOSE IN ACTION. debt, of, effect of, 894 et seq.
equitable interest, of, how made, 890 et seq. And see EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.
anciently not permitted, 8.
notice, of, when, to whom, and how to be given, 902 et seq. See NOTICE.
distinction in this respect between real and personal estate, 907, 908.
when effectual, 75 et seq. ; does not operate merely by way of contract, 77.
writing when necessary for, 890.
forfeiture when created by, under clause divesting property on alienation, 115, 116.
fraudulent, when, under 13 Eliz. c. 5, 599, 608.
fund in Court, of, what inquiries and notice proper, 918.
stop-order on, 918.
impeachable, trustee may assume validity of, 404.
leaseholds, of, by trustee or executor, right to indemnity on, 206, 265, 526.
legal interest, of, right of trustee to make, 275.
married woman, by, of separate property, 992.
merger of charge, to prevent, 937, 940. See MERGER.
new trustees, to, of chattels real, 810, 811.
notice of, when necessary, 76, 77, 276 note, 902. See NOTICE.
equitable interest perfectly transferred without, 902.
equivalent, as against trustee, to taking possession, 403.
not necessary as between assignor and assignee, 276 note, 902 power, of, 753, 754, 759 et seq.
proviso against, effect of, 113 et seq.
receipt clause, with, 404.
Settled Land Act, of powers under, inoperative, 664.
share of trust fund, right of trustee on distribution, 409.
tenant in tail, by, 890.
trustee or executor, by, beneficially interested and indebted to estate, 893, 894.

AT HOME.
land to be converted into money, when so considered, 1224.
money to be laid out on land, when, 1220, 1221.
power of sale, when determined, 756, 757.
trust for sale, when determined, 502.

ATTACHMENT.
debt, of, does not affect debts vested in garnishee upon trust, 251, 275.
but money may be ordered into Court pending inquiry as to trust, 275.
debt capable of being attached, 1054.
when complete, as against trustee in bankruptcy, 1054.
defaulting trustee, when liable to, under Debtors Act, 1160 note, 1191 et seq.
married woman, against, as to separate property, 975.
writ of, against trustee for disobeying order to pay into Court, not granted unless order personally served, 1193.

ATTAINDER. effect of, 27 ; relates back to time of offence, 27.
trustee, of, 279.

ATTENDANT TERM.
attended inheritance gained by disseisin, 280 note.
trust of, followed devolution of freeholds, 102.

ATTESTED COPY.
trustee not entitled to, of settlement, 831, 832.
when to be given to purchaser by trustee, 523, 524.

ATTESTING WITNESS, legacy to, as mere trustee, not invalid, 306 note.

ATTORNEY. See SOLICITOR. appointment of, by trustee distinguished from delegation of trust, 289.
executor, of, allowance of expense of employment of, 786.
fraud by, 213, 214.
infant cannot be, in action, 38 ; but may, to deliver seisin, 38.
married woman, whether infant or not, may appoint, 40, 979.
power of,
acceptance of trust by signing, 226, 230.
assignment of chose in action, on, 527.
Conveyancing Act, 1882, provisions of, as to, 412.
dividend, to receive, 879.
exoneration, statutory, of trustees in respect of, 412.
forged, trustee paying under, when liable, 410.
infant can deliver seisin under, 38.
purchase-money, to receive, 527.
receipt clause in, effect of, 537.
trustee or executor signing, liability of, 226, 230.
trustee paying under, when exempt from liability, 410.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL.
compromise with consent of, allowed in case of charities, 1211.
costs, not responsible for, 1202.
fraudulent trustee, must sanction prosecution of, 1158.
information in name of, 1202.
when proper form of action, 30, 1202.
parens patriæ, his duty as representing, 1202.
petition under Romilly's Act, his allowance of, 1203.

AUCTION.
sale of trust property by, 500, 513 et seq. See SALE.
trustee cannot purchase trust property at, 569, 574.

AUCTIONEER.
agent of trustees selling, is, 531.
trustee who is, cannot make profit from trust, 312.

AUDIT, of accounts by public trustee, 705.

AUGMENTATION.
loans, of, under charitable gift, powers of trustees as to, 633.
number of trustees, of, 820 et seq.
salaries, of, powers of charitable trustees as to, 632.

AUSTRALIA, law of, as to wife's choses in action, 407.

"AUTHORISING AND EMPOWERING," may raise a trust, 149.

AUTHORITY.
bare, to several, determines by death of any, 293.
but secus if coupled with interest, 293.
to receive moneys, how given by c. q. t., 410.
trustee should see to genuineness of, when paying to agent, 410.

AVERMENT.
trust, of, permitted at common law, 53.
not upon a bequest, 63.
not in contradiction of intention expressed or implied upon written instrument, 53.
not where deed is necessary to pass legal estate, 54.
use, of, 54.

BAILIFF.
infant cannot be, 38.
mortgagee or trustee may employ, 786.

BALANCE.
costs of executor improperly retaining, 1274.
excessive, trustees must not keep, at bankers, 332.
interest on, allowed on further consideration, 1168.
payment of, into court, ordered, 1256, 1260.

BALLOT.
election by, unknown to common law of England, 94.
election of clerk under trust of advowson for parishioners, 94.

BANK.
balance, trustees keeping excessive, at bankers, held liable, 332.
deposits of plate, bonds to bearer, etc., in bank, by trustees, 329.
failure of, trustees when liable for, 331, 392.
lien of, on shares in names of trustees, 925.
notes treated as cash, 1151, 1152.
ear-marked, 269, 1151 et seq.
purchase-money paid to trustees' account at, 326, 1153, 1154.
securities deposited with, how affected by bankruptcy of bankers, 273.
shares in, belonging to testator, duty of executors to convert, 321.
new, trustees cannot accept, unless expressly authorised, 745.
trust moneys may be deposited in, temporarily to trust account, 329.
but not otherwise, 330; nor out of trustee's control, 330.
paid into, to trustee's private account, presumed to be traded with, 396.
and interest thereon charged, 396, 397.
how followed, 1151, 1152.
transmission of, through bank, justifiable, 287.
but lodgment should be to trust account, 287.

BANK ANNUITIES.
execution, may now be taken in, 992.
investment in, when proper, 345, 362.
considered equivalent to payment of portion, 494.
transfer of, into names of trustees, 44.

BANK OF ENGLAND.
accounts, different, new stock may be registered, in, 361, 362.
dividends, past, will not apportion, 856.
indemnity to, on complying with orders, under Trustee Act, 1299.
infant, stock of, powers of Bank as to, under statute, 857.
Lunacy Act, 1890, bound by orders under, 862, 1316.
notice to, in lieu of distringas, 1251 et seq.
stock, number of names in which stock will be placed by, 44.
stock of, investment by trustees in, 345 et seq., 362, 365.
trustee of stock, cannot be, 31, 32.
Trustee Acts, bound by orders under, 855.
trusts, cannot be compelled to notice, 32.
vesting order, form of, satisfactory to, 855, 856.
will need not now be entered or registered at, 32.

BANK STOCK.
government security, is not, 344.
investment in, by trustees, when proper, 344 et seq., 362, 364.
liability of trustees investing in, by mistake, 344, 345.

BANKER. appointment of, by trustee, to receive policy moneys, 531.
executor, of, duty of, 566, 567.
following trust money into hands of, 1153, 1154.
neglect of, liability of trustee for, 392.
not accountable for sale of stock by executor's order, even when misapplication probable, 566 et seq.
payment of money to co-executor who was banker of testator, 283.
policy moneys, trustee may authorise banker to receive, 530, 531, 1307.
property which trustee ought to deposit with, 328.
set-off, right of, as between banker and customer, 895, 896.
trust, with notice of, liability of, 566 et seq.
trustee, is not, of money in dispute, 424, 425.
trustee who is, cannot profit by the trust, 312.

BANKRUPT. See BANKRUPTCY.
creation of trust by, 25.
trustee, capable to act as, 40, 818.

BANKRUPTCY. act of, assignment for benefit of creditors, by making, 601 et seq.
administration of assets in, under recent Act, 1071, 1072.
transfer of action for, 1071.
alienation, clause divesting property on, does not extend to involuntary bankruptcy, 114, 115.
annulled, does not cause forfeiture under clause of forfeiture on bankruptcy, 115.
assignment of whole property to secure past debt, an act of bankruptcy, 600, 601.
void at law may be good in equity as to parties to it, 603.
where invalid under late Bankruptcy Act, 603, 604.
certificate of discharge formerly barred trust debts, 1189.
but bankrupt trustee bound to see that proof was made, 1189.
debt by fraudulent breach of trust not barred by, 1190.
chattels in possession of trustee how affected by, 271, 272.
clause divesting property on, effect of, 113 et seq.
contribution by co-trustee of bankrupt, trustee in bankruptcy may recover, 1190.
co-trustee, of, proof in, how to be made, 1190.
covenant to settle future property, avoidance of, 82, 83.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
defaulting trustee, of, composition in respect of amount appropriated, no retainer of trustee's beneficial interest, 1185.
discharge of bankrupt, trust debt how far barred by, 1189 et seq.
district Courts, jurisdiction of, in charities whose income is under 50*l.*, 1092 note, 1207.
elegit, writ of, goods not to be taken in execution under, 1029.
equitable debt will now support petition in, 1173.
equity to settlement of married woman, as against trustee in bankruptcy, 955, 956.
execution creditor, how affected by debtor's, 1054.
firm, of, in which trustee is partner, effect of, 1186 et seq.
forfeiture on, under clause divesting property in event of, 113 et seq.
under order and disposition clauses of Bankruptcy Act, 272 et seq.
fraudulent conveyance under 13 Eliz. c. 5, 85, 600, 603.
is act of bankruptcy, 601.
fraudulent preference, 602, 603.
fraudulent trustee, of, 1274.
heirlooms not forfeited on bankruptcy of tenant for life, 879.
judgment creditor how affected by debtor's, 1054.
legacy duty payable in respect of debts proved, of which payment is directed by will, 611.
legatee, of, set-off by executor in case of, 899.
limitation over, on, or until, 113 et seq.
settlor cannot so limit his own property, 118.
except to extent of portion received with wife, 118.
or where there is a limitation over in favour of wife or children, 118.
maintenance, trust for, trustee in bankruptcy how far entitled under, 112 et seq.
married woman cannot be made bankrupt unless trading separately from husband, 1024.
lending money to husband, postponed to other creditors, 1024.
new trustee, appointment of, on bankruptcy of trustee, 818.
non-trader formerly not amenable to bankrupt laws, 599.
order and disposition of bankrupt, property in, 271 et seq.
cestui que trust tenant for life and bankrupt, 878.
notice of assignment, effect and importance of, 902, 904, 905.
"true owner," whether trustee or c. q. t. is, 274.
trust chattels in hands of bankrupt executor, factor, or trustee are not within clauses as to, 271, 272.
secus, where executor has assumed to be absolute owner, 274.
where goods are in possession of bankrupt according to the title, 272.
petition in, mere trustee for absolute owner cannot sustain, 261.
proof in bankruptcy.
breach of trust, for, against estate of bankrupt trustee with interest, 1184.
investment by trustee in improper securities, in respect of, 1186.
lien on bankrupt's beneficial interest when waived, 1185.
mortgagee, by, 612.
partners of trustee, trust debt when provable against, 1185, 1190.
release given to one co-trustee, effect of, 1190.
set-off where bankrupt trustee interested in trust fund, 1184, 1185.
stock improperly sold by trustee, in respect of, 1184.
tenant for life and remainderman, apportionment as between, 1187, 1188.
trustee, by, should be, except where trust simple, 261.
generally should be by all trustees, 290.
bankrupt trustee how far liable in equity if he does not prove, notwithstanding certificate, 1189.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
trustee, in bankruptcy of, 267, 1184 et seq.
purchaser from bankrupt completing contract after bankruptcy, 900.
set-off in bankruptcy of trustee, 1184, 1185.
set-off, right of, how affected by, 899.
settlement of future property, contract for, avoided, 85.
surplus assets, bankrupt may declare trust of, 25.
tenant for life, of, effect of, as to powers exercisable with his consent, 736, 774.
tenant for life, of, heirlooms not forfeited on, 878.
trade, trustee carrying on, is amenable to bankrupt laws, 266.
trader, distinction between, and non-trader under old bankruptcy laws, 599.
abolished under recent Act, 603.
trader, goods in order and disposition of, pass to trustee in bankruptcy, 271, 272.
trust determinable on, 114 et seq., 660, 1045.
trustee, bankruptcy of.
bankrupt not absolutely disqualified from being trustee, 41, 818, 1087 note; "unfit" but not "incapable," 818.
appointment of new trustee in place of, 838, 839, 840.
costs, bankrupt trustee when entitled to, 788, 1275.
foreclosure action, bankrupt trustee does not represent c. q. t. in, 261 note.
injunction against bankrupt trustee, 1097.
proof in, by c. q. t., 261, 1184 et seq. See supra, proof.
receiver, is ground for appointment of, 1262.
set-off against costs payable to defaulting trustee, 788.
trust property not affected by, 261 et seq.
followed, may be, though tortiously converted, if capable of being identified, 268; or if money payable at future day, 269.
trustee in bankruptcy.
action against, in whose name to be brought, 270.
in case of factor, 270.
auction, cannot buy in at, without authority of creditors, 517.
bankrupt trustee, of, may compel contribution by co-trustee, 1190.
following trust moneys into hands of, 269, 270.
husband, of, is affected by wife's equity to settlement, 955, 956.
interest, charged with, for balances improperly retained, 395.
just allowances to, 788 note.
legal estate, taking, bound by trust, 276.
whether passing to, when bankrupt has beneficial interest, 270, 271.
or where trust is doubtful, 271.
notice of assignment by, necessity for, 917.
priority as against, by giving notice, 902, 904, 905.
production of title-deeds by, 523, 524.
property of bankrupt vests in, 25, 26.
purchase of bankrupt's estate by, 517.
special power of appointment, release by, 762 note.
trust property, right to follow, into hands of trustee, 269, 270, 271, 272.
undue preference of creditor, 603.
voluntary settlement, when avoided by bankruptcy of settlor, 85, 86.
BANKRUPTCY ACT, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), 603, 604. See TABLE OF STATUTES.
BARE POWER, 750.
BARE TRUSTEE.
bare trust distinguished from trust coupled with an interest, 763, 764.
escheat, when entitled to benefit by, 315.

BARE TRUSTEE—continued.
married woman being, may convey as feme sole, 36.
meaning of term, 246, 247 note.
protector of settlement, when he may be, and duties of, 456.
whether "true owner" within order and disposition clauses, 274.

BEARER.
certificate to, not to be taken by trustees, 370, 371.
securities payable to, custody of, 328.

BENEFICE. See ADVOWSON; PRESENTATION.

BEQUEST. See LEGACY; LEGATEE.
assent to, by executor, 228.
personal estate, of, 60 et seq.
passes proceeds of land subject to trust for conversion, 1223.
residuary, 178, 179. See RESIDUE.

"BESEECHING," held to raise a trust, 149.

BID, leave to, at sale, not generally given to trustee, 574.

BILL IN PARLIAMENT.
application for, by trustees, 629, 718.
money paid to trustee for not opposing, how treated, 212.
opposition to, by trustees, costs of, 718, 789.

BILL OF EXCHANGE.
distinguished from money and bank notes, 1151, 1152.
followed in equity, when, 1152.
married woman, by, binds separate estate, 978.
trust money may be transmitted by, 283, 287.

BILL OF SALE, agreement reserving lien on business and effects requires registration as, 410.

BLENDED FUND, effect of gift of, 179.

BODIES CORPORATE (Joint Tenancy) Act, 1899 . . . 32.

BONA VACANTIA, 63, 167, 181, 317, 318.

BOND. See COVENANT.
administration bond, 565.
assignee of, bound by equities affecting assignor, 895, 896.
cohabitation, to induce, invalid, 121 note.
indemnity, of, whether trustee should take, 409.
on appointment of new trustee against breach of trust, 418.
married woman, by, binds separate estate, 978.
penalty in, creditor cannot claim beyond, 619.
satisfaction of, as between parent and child, 478, 481. See SATISFACTION.
stranger, in name of, presumption of resulting trust on taking, 184.
trustee, by, for due execution of trust, 282.
voluntary, creates a debt, 86 note; how payable out of assets, 87 note.

BONUS.
Bill in Parliament, for not opposing, constructive trust of, 212.
dividend, tenant for life when entitled to, 877, 878.
mortgagee, to, stipulation for, 785.
trustees holding, under resulting trust, 900.

BORROWING, directors of company, by, in excess of powers, 745.

BOX, securities kept in, by trustees, 328, 329.

BREACH OF TRUST. Chaps. xxx., xxxi., 1086-1213. accident, not excused by, in case of misfeasance, 1173.
account, administration judgment, after, 1167.
account in respect of, when granted on footing of wilful default, 1148, 1167, 1168.
accounts, ordinary, not directed in case raising question of, 420, 421, 422.
accumulate, neglect of trustee to, 401, 1164.
acquiescence in, by c. q. t., 581, 582, 1196 et seq. See ACQUIESCENCE.
agent, by, 1153. See AGENT. agent, by employment of, 282 et seq. See AGENT.
agent participating in, liable as constructive trustee, 561, 798.
apprehension of, does not justify refusal to pay to trustee, 566, 567.
assignee of cestui que trust who has concurred in, liability of, 1182.
assignment, mere right to sue for breach of trust whether capable of, 889, 1160 note.
assuming to act as trustee, effect of, 1166, 1167.
bankruptcy, proof in, against bankrupt trustee, 1184 et seq.
in case of co-trustee, 1190. See BANKRUPTCY, proof in. cestui que trust concurring in, liability of, 1179 et seq., 1195.
charitable trusts, remedy for breaches of, 1202 et seq. See CHARITY.
compensation for, on what principal awarded, 1173.
concurrence in, by c. q. t., effect of, 1179 et seq., 1195.
confirmation of, by c. q. t., when effectual, 582, 583.
continuation of investment, by, 322, 323.
contribution between co-trustees in respect of, 1176, 1177, 1190.
conversion of securities, by neglect to make, 319 et seq. See CONVERSION.
tortious, of trust property, 1150.
copyholds, co-trustee of, releasing, to avoid payment of fine, 264.
corporation, proceedings against, in respect of, 621, 622, 1164.
costs of action for, how to be borne, 1176, 1177, 1270 et seq.
co-trustee allowing, may be removed, 1087.
duty of, in case of, 304.
following trust property into hands of, 1156.
permitting money to lie in hands of, 297, 303, 325, 1170, 1171.
proceedings against, 1156.
responsibility of, inter se, and to c. q. t., 1175 et seq.
covenant, neglect by trustee to enforce, 1164.
criminal proceedings for, 1157, 1158.
debt, constitutes simple contract, 228, 229, 1173.
secus where trustee has signed the deed and it amounts to a covenant, 229, 1173.
will now support petition in bankruptcy, 1173.
Debtor's Act, defaulting trustee within exception in s. 4, 1160 note.
deceased trustee, representative of, liable, 1161, 1162, 1169.
unless he has distributed assets under sanction of Court, 1169.
delegation of duty, by, to strangers, 282 et seq.
depreciation of property, trustee when liable for, 1174.
devastavit by executor is a, 395.
devise of trust estates, by, 255.
directors of company, by, 1161, 1167.
equitable debt, constitutes, 1172.
excused, when, under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 . . . 1169 et seq.
executor when liable for, 1161, 1162, 1169. See EXECUTOR. express trust, action for breach of, when barred by Statutes of Limitation, 1162.
factor, by, 1153.
firm, trust money received by, 1163, 1176.

BREACH OF TRUST—continued.
following trust property in case of, Chap. xxxi. s. 1, 1099-1157.
assets employed in trade, 1152.
bank notes, bills, &c., 1151, 1152.
banker, into hands of, 1153, 1154.
charity, funds of, mixed with funds of other charities, 1155.
chattels, 1151.
co-trustee, into hands of, 1156.
disseisor, into hands of, 280, 933 et seq.
doubtful equity, purchaser how far bound by notice of, 1103 et seq.
income tax not deducted, liability of trustee in respect of, 1141.
legatee, into hands of, 1169.
money, 1107, 1151 et seq.
fraud, obtained by, 1157.
invested by trustee in land, 1156.
lent for specific purpose, 1153.
mixed with trustee's money, c. q. t. has lien on the whole, 1152, 1153.
paid into bank to simple account with trustee, 1153, 1154.
mortgagee, into hands of, 1106, 1107.
next of kin, into hands of, 1169.
partners of trustee, into hands of, 1186, 1187.
property substituted for trust estate, into, 1151 et seq.
purchaser, into hands of, 1100 et seq.
chose in action, of, 1106.
notice, effect of, 1100 et seq.
time within which property may be followed, 1107 et seq.
volunteer, into hands of, 1099, 1100.
fraudulent, not released by discharge in bankruptcy, 1190.
fraudulent preference, trustee making good trust fund does not commit, 1157.
fraudulent, statutes of limitation do not run in case of, 1136.
fraudulent trustee, criminal proceedings against, 1157, 1158.
ignorance of trustee when an excuse for, 1166, 1167.
cestui que trust, of, when an excuse for laches, 583. See IGNORANCE.
imaginary value, trustee not charged with, 1175.
impounded, interest of c. q. t. participant in, may be, 1179 et seq.
improper investment, by, 372 et seq., 1175, 1176. See INVESTMENT. realisation of insufficient security not directed in absence of c. q. t., 1176.
indemnity against, covenant for, effect of, 409.
indemnity clause, trustees when exempted from responsibility by virtue of, 305.
infant not liable for, unless he has contrived a fraud, 40.
cannot acquiesce or concur in, 1195 et seq.
injunction to restrain, right of c. q. t. to, 1096 et seq.
innocent trustee, right of, against co-trustees, 1177, 1178, 1272.
insurance, neglect by trustee to keep up, 1165, 1166.
notice to office, neglect to give, 1165.
policy, improperly parting with custody of, 1165.
interest when and at what rate charged against trustee guilty of, 394 et seq. See INTEREST.
investment, improper, by making, 372 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, relief of trustee under, from personal liability, 1169 et seq.
knowledge of, and abstinence from suing whether a bar to relief, 1196 et seq.
laches, relief when barred by, 580, 581, 1162, 1169.
land, by tortious sale of, 1164.

BREACH OF TRUST—continued.
lease, improper, of charity lands, 637 et seq.
liability for, trustee not charged with imaginary values or more than he received, 1174; except where great negligence, &c., ib.
husband, of, for wife's breaches of trust, 34.
loser by breach, trustee nevertheless liable, 1173. relief from, right of trustee to, under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, . . . 1169 et seq.
representative of deceased trustee, when liable, 1161, 1162, 1169.
set-off of gain in one fund against loss in another, not allowed, 1173.
trustee primarily liable, but has his remedy against c. q. t. gaining by breach of trust, 1179.
one gaining indirectly not primarily liable to co-trustees who were parties to the breach, 1178.
lien of c. q. t. on property substituted for trust property, 1150 et seq. See supra, following trust property.
of trustee on beneficial interest of c. q. t., 1179 et seq.
on legacy of co-trustee for amount of contribution, 1181.
on policy for premiums advanced, 1165.
limitation of action for, 1136 et seq., 1157.
loan, improper, borrower how affected by notice, 1107.
loss, involuntary, trustee when liable for, 1172 et seq.
married woman, by, husband liable for, 33; except in cases within Married Women's Property Act, 1882, ib.
liability of her separate property in respect of, 985 et seq., 1017.
married woman, by trustee for separate use of, 1164.
mesne rents and profits, account of, 1143 et seq. See RENTS AND PROFITS.
misdemeanour, when fraudulent, is, 1157, 1158.
mistake, when excused by, 402, 1160.
mixing trust property with private moneys, by, 332, 1152 et seq.
moral rights, to give effect to, not excused, 318.
ne exeat regno when granted against defaulting trustee, 1160.
negligence, by, 501, 502, 1164 et seq.
new shares, by neglecting to get in, 1174.
new trustee may assume no breach, in absence of notice, 231.
notice of apprehended, effect of, on purchaser, 541, 542.
banker of trustee when bound by, 566, 567 note.
notice of, effect of, 1100 et seq., 1107, 1160, 1162.
notice of assignment or transfer, neglect by trustee to give, 1166.
number of trustees, right of c. q. t. as to keeping up, &c., 1086 et seq.
outstanding, by allowing assets to remain, 319 et seq. See CONVERSION. parties to action for, 1178 note.
partners of trustee when liable for, 1163, 1186.
past, duty of trustee to take active measures to repair, 230, 231.
payment into court compulsory, when, 1256 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
payment into court does not discharge trustee from, 427.
payment to trustee when held to be, 326, 327.
personal representative of trustee, liability of, 1161, 1162, 1169.
personal security, by allowing assets to remain on, 323, 324.
policy, by trustee suffering, to become forfeited, 1165.
neglecting to give notice of assignment of, 1165.
power imperative, by neglecting to execute, 1166.
prevention of, rights of cestui que trust for, 1086 et seq.
priority not obtained through medium of, 922.
production of documents in action for, 1253.
proof for, in bankruptcy of trustee, 1184 et seq. See BANKRUPTCY.

BREACH OF TRUST—continued.
prospective purchase, by, 586.
purchase of trust estate by trustee, 568 et seq. See PURCHASE.
purchaser when affected with notice of, 542, 543.
quasi-trustee, by, 1166, 1167.
person reaping benefit of breach of trust is, 403.
receipt of trustee known to contemplate, 327, 542, 564.
of executor known to contemplate, 542, 564.
of trustee who has committed, 555.
receiver, when a ground for appointment of, 1262 et seq.
registration, by neglecting to effect, 1166.
release of claim in respect of, when effectual, 1199 et seq.
relief from liability for, 1169 et seq.
remainderman, action by, in respect of, 1169.
remedy of c. q. t. for, generally, 1160 et seq.
removal of trustee on ground of, 1087, 1088.
renewal of lease at fixed price, covenant for, 503.
rents, receipt of, by one co-trustee, 291, 292.
rents and profits, account of, 1143 et seq. See RENTS AND PROFITS.
restitution as affecting reversioners, 1199.
retainer by personal representative of insolvent trustee, 1173.
retire, trustee should not, in favour of one who contemplates, 830.
reversioner, acquiescence by, 1198.
sale, improper, 500, 501.
in breach of trust, cannot be enforced, 500.
neglect by trustee to make, 1165.
of property purchased in breach of trust, 555, 556 note.
tortious, by trustee of land, 1164; of stock, 1184. And see BANKRUPTCY, proof.
set-off of beneficial interest against debt, when allowed in bankruptcy, 1184.
of gain in one fund against loss in another not allowed, 1173, 1174.
simple contract debt, constitutes, 229, 1173.
unless trustee accepted under hand and seal, 229, 1173.
but deed must contain words of covenant and be executed by trustee, 229, 1173.
solicitor, by enabling, to misapply purchase-money, 557, 558.
negotiating loan when affected with notice of, 392, 393.
trustee, of, when debarred from accepting payment of costs, 1160.
when liable for trustee's breach of trust, 1158, 1159, 1163.
when liable for, as constructive trustee, 1161 note.
wilfully advising or concurring in, is liable to be struck off Roll, 1158.
specialty debt, when breach of trust gives rise to a, 228, 229, 1173.
right of innocent trustee to indemnity is, 1177.
specific performance not granted of contract which amounts to, 500.
stock, neglect by trustee to procure transfer of, 1164.
to register, 1166.
tenant for life, by showing undue favour to, 324, 349, 389, 758, 1090.
tenant for life participating in, liability of, 1179 et seq.
third person gaining by, is liable, 1179.
threatened, duty of co-trustee to prevent, 304.
tortious conversion of trust property, by, 1150.
trade, by employment of assets or trust funds in, 307, 308, 1190. See TRADE.
trader employing trust money in trade, liability of, 309.
trivial, may be overlooked by Court, 1275.
vendor of property when liable to purchaser as for, 162.
waiver of right to sue in respect of, 1198.

BREACH OF TRUST—continued.
wasting property, by neglecting to convert, 333.
wilful default, account when granted on footing of, 1148, 1167 et seq.
valuation, by want of care in making, on lending trust money on mortgage, 374 et seq.

BROKER.
co-trustee who is, employment of, by trustee, 288.
forged letter of attorney, receiving payment by means of, 410.
"outside," employment of, by trustee, 286.
trustee may employ, in ordinary course of business, 286.
trustee who is, cannot profit by the trust, 312.

BUILDING.
conveyances for erection of, for religious or educational purposes exempt from Mortmain Act, 105.
equity of stranger supposing land to be his own, 926, 927.
knowing it to be another's, 926.
erection of, on lands, when equivalent to purchase by trustees, 592, 713, 714.
trustees when empowered to expend money on, 713. See IMPROVEMENTS.
insurance of, by trustee or executor, 329.
tenant building on landlord's land, 926, 927; encouraged by landlord, 927.
trustee, by, empowered to expend money on repairs, &c., 713. See IMPROVEMENTS.

BUILDING LEASE.
charity estates, of, duration of, 641.
consent of Charity Commissioners to, 642. power to grant, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 144, 145.

BURIAL GROUND.
appointment of new trustees of, 1093.
gift for repair of, 122.

BUSINESS. See TRADE.
public trustee may not carry on, 703.
trustee carrying on, liability of, 266, 267, 307, 308, 719, 720, 793, 794.

BUY IN, trustees in bankruptcy and trustees for sale, whether they may, 517.

BUY UP.
trustee cannot buy up incumbrance for himself, 307 et seq.
application of rule to other persons in fiduciary position, 308 et seq.

BYE-LAWS, power of making, will not authorise deviation from original intention of charity, 629.

CAPITAL.
money under Settled Land Acts, 679 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS.
what is to be regarded as, and what income, 341, 342, 343, 876 et seq. See APPORTIONMENT.

CAPRICE.
cestui que trust, of, trustee not dismissed on, 1089.
costs of proceedings caused by caprice of trustee, 434, 1270, 1271.
Court does not act on, 1077.
tenant for life, of, selling under Settled Land Act, 506, 507, 667.
trustee, of, retiring from office, 434, 833.

CARE, degree of, required of trustees, 327 et seq., 372 et seq., 1170.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES. Charitable Trusts Acts applicable to, 644.

CESTUI QUE TRUST.
abroad, resident, payment by trustee to, 411.
purchaser whether bound to see that money is paid to, 537, 558.
absolute owner, c. q. t. is, in equity, 708.
account, right of c. q. t. to, 867. See ACCOUNT.
acquiescence by, when a bar to relief, 350, 580, 581, 1186 et seq.
action by, as to trust estate, 1084, 1085; at law c. q. t. regarded as a stranger, 260.
adult, duty of trustee to consult, 710.
advance of money by, at request of trustees, 796.
adverse title, trustee cannot set up, against c. q. t., 318.
agent of trustee when accountable to c. q. t., 214, 566, 567, 797, 798.
alien could only be, of real estate till office found, 46; secus since 33 Vict. c. 14, 46.
alienation by, cannot be restrained, unless married woman, 890.
assignee of, may call for conveyance or transfer from trustee, 880.
but is bound by all equities affecting property transferred, 889 et seq.
assignment by, 889 et seq.
anciently not permitted, 2, 4; secus in later times, 8.
how c. q. t. may make, of equitable interest, 889.
c. q. t. may assign even a possibility, and without intervention of trustee, 889.
notice of, to trustee, effect of, 276 note.
authority from, to receive trust money, 410.
bankruptcy, when entitled to prove in, 261.
whether he is true owner within order and disposition clauses, 274.
bargain with, trustee cannot make, for own benefit, 308.
beneficial interest of, may be impounded to answer breach of trust, 1179 et seq.
bequest by, 879 et seq.
breach of duty by trustee, protected against, 1086 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST.
concurring in, liability of, 1179 et seq., 1195.
mere right to sue for, not assignable, 889.
caprice of, trustee not dismissed on, 1089.
charging order on stocks and shares, 1040 et seq. See JUDGMENT.
chattels, c. q. t. entitled to possession of, during his interest, 878, 879.
bankrupt tenant for life, where c. q. t. is, 878.
chose in action, of, assignment by, 892 et seq.
concurrence of, in breach of trust, 581, 1179 et seq., 1195.
in direction as to disposition of trust property, 596.
confirmation by, of purchase by trustee or other breach of trust, 582, 1198 et seq.
consent of, 755. See CONSENT. to discharge of trustee from office, 803.
contingent interest, costs of action by plaintiff having, 423; right of c. q. t. to have, secured, 1095, 1096.
contract for sale by, 501.
conveyance, when c. q. t. should join in, 527, 528, 596.
when and how c. q. t. may require trustee to make, 596, 879 et seq. See CONVEYANCE.
copies of documents, right of c. q. t. to, 531, 874, 875, 881.
coroner, c. q. t. formerly entitled to vote for, 262.
corporation cannot be, of lands, without license of Crown, 45.
costs of conveyance to, must be paid by, 879 et seq.
taxation of costs at instance of c. q. t., 788, 790, 798.
trustee, right of, to costs as against c. q. t., 1267 et seq.

CESTUI QUE TRUST—continued.
co-trustee who is, cannot hold co-trustee liable for joint breach of trust, 1195.
Court of Equity will not assist to constitute a, 74.
creditor when a c. q. t., 611.
Crown may be, 44.
death of, on, trustee must pay trust fund to his representatives, 404.
debt of, when chattel may be taken in execution for, 250.
debtor to estate, who is, effect of assignment by, 893, 894.
devise by, requisites to, 930 et seq.
directions of, trustee when bound to observe, 261.
disability of, operation of Statute of Limitations how affected by, 1112 et seq disposition of estate, power of, to make, 880 et seq.
disseisin by, effect of, 1132.
distress of, confirmation obtained by, ineffectual, 582.
dividends, c. q. t. put in possession of, by power of attorney, 879.
divorce of, effect of, on choses in action, 405, 406.
documents, entitled to production and inspection of, 874, 875, 1253, 1254.
domiciled abroad, care to be taken in making payment to, 411.
ejectment, c. q. t. could not recover real estate in, 871, 872, 1113.
unless surrender could be presumed, 872.
must have brought his action in name of trustee, 872, 1113.
could not defend action by trustee, 872; but must have resorted to equity, 872.
election by, under trust for conversion of property, 886, 887, 1238 et seq. See ELECTION.
equitable execution against, 1052.
equity of, prevails over subsequent equities, however arising, 1106.
estate of, extent of, Chap. xxvi., 867-887.
nature of, not altered by act of trustee, 1214 et seq.
properties of, Chap. xxvii., 889-1072.
execution for debt of, 250.
executor of, when entitled to call for conveyance, 883.
existence of, how far essential to validity of trust, 121.
expenses of trustee, when personally liable for, 798, 799.
failure of heirs or next of kin of, effect of, 317 et seq.
failure of trustee, remedy of c. q. t. against, 1073 et seq.
following trust property, rights of c. q. t. as to, 1099 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST.
franchise, parliamentary, right to, 262.
fraud of, breach of trust induced by, 1195.
gift, cannot make, to trustee, 308.
heir of, when entitled to money to be laid out in land, 1218 et seq. See CONVERSION.
heirlooms, whether he may let, for hire, 879.
husband of, appointed trustee, 42, 842.
ignorance of, laches when excused by, 583, 1111, 1116.
impounded, interest of, may be, to answer breach of trust, 1179 et seq.
improvidence of, not a ground for withholding payment to him, 403.
indemnity when to be given by, 794, 799, 800, 868, 1094, 1179, 1180. infancy of, duties and powers of trustees how affected by, 412, 413. See INFANT. information, right of c. q. t. to call for, as to state of trust, 531, 887, 888, 906, 907.
injunction, right to, to restrain trustee from breach of duty, 1096; though damage not irreparable, 1097.
inquiries of, trustee when bound to answer, 531, 888, 889, 907.
inspection of documents, entitled to, 531, 874, 875, 887.

CESTUI QUE TRUST—continued
judgment against, Chap. xxviii., s. 7, 1028-1057. See JUDGMENT.
judgment creditor of, right of, to take chattel in execution, 250.
juror, qualification of c. q. t. to be, 875.
jus habendi and jus disponendi of, 867, 879.
laches of, when a bar to relief, 582 et seq.
trustee, of, does not prejudice c. q. t, 611.
land held adversely, ejectment for, in name of trustee, 872, 1113.
by party claiming by conveyance from trustee, action as to, 1113.
land wrongfully sold by trustee, rights of c. q. t. in respect of, 1139, 1150, 1165.
lease by, 872.
legal estate, when entitled to call for conveyance of, 16, 879 et seq.
legal proceedings, may require trustee to institute, on giving indemnity, 1094.
lien of, for advances by him to trustees, 796.
in respect of breach of trust, 1151 et seq.
Limitations, Statute of, when barred by, 737, 1109 et seq.
in action against stranger, 1111, 1130 et seq.
in action against trustee, 1124.
possession by c. q. t., effect of, 1130, 1131.
married woman, estate of, 950 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
mistake by, when an excuse for delay, 1111, 1116. See MISTAKE.
new trustee, application by, for appointment of, 857.
service on cestuis que trust, 1305.
notice to, by trustee, of intention to do particular act, 710.
overpayment to, 413 et seq.
parliamentary election, right of c. q. t. to vote at, 262.
pernancy of profits of trust estate, c. q. t. entitled to, 867 et seq.
possession by, effect of, as regards Statutes of Limitation, 1130. possession, right of c. q. t. to, 871; in equity only, 871; at law was merely tenant at will, 871, 872.
chattels, as to, 878, 879.
indemnity when to be given by c. q. t., 882.
married woman entitled for separate use, 869.
mistake of trustee as to, c. q. t. not prejudiced by, 1131.
real estate, as to, 867.
Settled Land Act, effect of provisions of, 870.
tenant for life, equitable, 868, 869.
where c. q. t. entitled subject to a charge, 868, 869.
privileges of, 875.
to serve as juror, 875.
to vote for coroner, 252.
to vote at parliamentary elections, 262.
proof by, in bankruptcy, 261, 271.
protector of settlement, may be, 875.
purchase from, by trustee when upheld, 571, 572.
purchaser is, sub modo before completion, 162.
real estate, of, action by, 871, 872. receipt of rents by, effect of, as regards Statutes of Limitation, 1130, 1131.
receiver, equitable execution by appointment of, against c. q. t., 1052.
receiver, right of c. q. t. to appointment of, 1262 et seq.
refund, when bound to, 408. 413, 414, 415. release by, of claim for breach of trust when effectual, 1199 et seq.
release by, when trustee may require, 417, 418.
remainderman, remedy of, in equity, 1086, 1095, 1096. See REMAINDERMAN. remedy of, for breach of trust, 1099 et seq., 1160 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST.
subpœna in chancery, to enforce trust, 14.

CESTUI QUE TRUST—continued.
removal of trustee on application of, 1087 et seq.
renewal of lease by trustee, remedy of c. q. t. in respect of, 206. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
rents and profits, receiving, is bailiff, of trustee, 1131. rights of, cannot be varied by act or neglect of trustee, 611, 946, 1073, 1111, 1185, 1214 et seq.
sale by, to trustee, when upheld, 571 et seq.
security from trustee, right of c. q. t. to, 1097.
settled account with trustees, opening, 783.
share, aliquot, of c. q. t., when ordered to be paid into Court, 428.
simple trust, estate of c. q. t. under, 867 et seq.
solely entitled, may determine trust, 885.
solicitor of, cannot bind him by contract with trustee, 573.
special trust, estate of c. q. t. in, 884 et seq.
continues until election of c. q. t. known, 887.
each c. q. t. entitled to enforce, to extent of his interest, 884.
where one c. q. t., or all unanimous, special trust becomes simple, 884.
sub modo, purchaser before completion is, 162.
sui juris, trustee bound to observe wishes of, 710.
taxation at instance of, of costs of solicitor to trust, 788, 790, 798.
tenant at will, c. q. t. at law merely, 871, 1131.
when c. q. t. is, to trustee, 1131.
tenant for life, rights of. See TENANT FOR LIFE; SETTLED LAND ACTS.
tenant in common, right of, to injunction against co-tenant, 873.
title, is bound to show, to trustee, 402.
title-deeds, rights of c. q. t. as to custody of, 873, 874.
as to inspection of, 874, 875.
"true owner," whether he is, within Bankruptcy Act, 274.
trust, right of c. q. t. to enforce, 72; and see BREACH OF TRUST.
trust property, right to follow, in case of breach of trust, 1099 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST.
trustee, right of c. q. t. to have proper, 1086; and proper number kept up, 43, 1086.
whether c. q. t. may be, 41, 42.
whether husband of c. q. t. may be, 42.
unwillingness of Court to appoint c. q. t. or relative, 41, 42, 826, 841.
voluntary settlement, under, action by, 1094.
lands or chattels real, of, rights of c. q. t., 81.
volunteer, when Court will assist, 74.
voting at elections, rights of c. q. t. as to, 262, 875.
vouchers, entitled to inspection of, on payment, 531.
who may be, Chap iii. s. 3, 44–47.
widow of, formerly not entitled to dower, 945; secus now, 949.
will of, disposing of equitable interest, 931 et seq., 1217.

CESTUI QUE USE. See CESTUI QUE TRUST. principle on which estate of, anciently depended, 3.

CHAMBERS.
appointment of new trustees in, 1088.
jurisdiction of chancery judges at, in case of charities with income over 30*l.*, 1207.
or of City of London charities, 1207. questions affecting trusts now determined in, on originating summons, 419 et seq., 772 et seq.
Trustee Acts, proceedings under, at chambers, 1184, 1304 et seq.

CHANCELLOR.
application to, as visitor of charity, how made, 622.
visitatorial power of Crown when committed to, 622.

CHANCERY, COURT OF.
corporate bodies, jurisdiction of, over, 620 et seq.
jurisdiction of, transferred to Chancery Division of High Court of Justice, 15.
king's conscience, had no jurisdiction over, 29, 30.
power imperative, in favour of what objects executed by Court, 1074 et seq.
trusts, jurisdiction of, over, 15.
on failure of trustee, 1073 et seq.

CHANCERY DIVISION OF HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.
administration of trusts assigned to, 15.
charities, causes and matters relating to, assigned to, 620 note.
portions, causes and matters for raising, assigned to, 497.
proceedings under Trustee Act, 1893, assigned to, 1304.

CHAPEL.
endowment of, how transmissible at law, 91.
minister removable at will of congregation, 628.
election of, how effected, where no direction in endowment deeds, 628.
possession by, continued until hearing of cause, 628.
tenant at will of trustee, is, 628.
repair of, trust for, held to authorise rebuilding, 632.
trust for, before Statute of Mortmain, how carried into effect in equity, 91. trusts of, trustees cannot change or depart from, 623, 627.
trustees of, entertaining opinions contrary to founder's intention removed, 1087.
how appointed where no direction in endowment deed, 627, 1093 et seq.

CHARGE.
assignment of, to attend inheritance, 944, 945.
charity legacy, of, effect of, 178.
contingent legacy, of, effect of, 176.
debts, of, in will, effect of, 160, 543 et seq., 1064. See RECEIPT.
distinguished from trust, 166, 167.
legal fee simple when passing by virtue of, 235, 243.
power of sale and giving receipts, where it implies, 543 et seq.
Settled Land Act, effect of, on powers of sale and mortgage, 553, 554.
sale to give effect to, 543 et seq.
trust estate, excluded by, from passing under devise, 253 ; secus, mortgage estate, 254.
trust implied in devisee, 160.
Uses, operation of Statute of, not excluded by, 235.
declaration of trust, partial, distinguished from, 166.
devise by trustee in general terms, effect of, on charge, 253.
devisee or heir subject to, is impliedly a trustee, 160.
discharge of land from, when money raised by trustee, 532.
duplication of charges, referential trust not to be construed so as to create, 148.
duty, coupled with, is equivalent to express trust, 1128.
election by person entitled subject to, to take property unconverted, 1233.
equitable, in favour of judgment creditor, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110 . . . 1037.
equity of redemption, purchase of, by owner of charge, 939.
exception from devise distinguished from devise subject to, 177, 178.
distinction how far applicable to charity legacy, 177, 178.
executor, power of, to sell real estate to raise, 548 et seq.
exoneration of property from, as between several purchasers, 927 et seq.

CHARGE—continued.
express trust, distinguished from, 1127 et seq.
secured by, barred under Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, 1136.
failure of, devisee entitled to benefit of, 99, 176.
charge of sum to be appointed, and no appointment, 176.
charge failing after being raised, results as personalty, 177.
general and roving, postponed to specific, 930.
inheritance, whether it can be made to attend, 944, 945.
intention of settlor, question of trust or charge depends on, 167.
judgment, by, upon whole lands of debtor, 1037.
keeping on foot, mode of, 937 ; effect of, 940 ; special cases of, 941, 942.
legacies, of, on land or other property, right of devisee or legatee on failure of charge, 177.
Limitations, Statutes of, mere charge not an express trust within, 1127.
secus as to charge coupled with a duty, 1128.
not barred by, whilst secured by term unbarred, 1128.
merger of, 936 et seq. See MERGER.
mortgage to raise, when proper, 503.
multiplication of, referential trust not construed so as to create, 148.
notice of, when sufficient, 915, 916. See NOTICE.
owner subject to, not a trustee, 424.
partial trust, distinguished from, 166, 167.
payment off of, by owner or part owner, 937 et seq. See MERGER. portion, of, on settled estate, 492. See PORTION.
power to, not a "usual" power, 145.
priority of, by giving notice, 902 et seq.
purchaser how affected by, 937 et seq.
paying off before completion, charge does not merge, 938.
right of, to insist on keeping charge on foot, 937.
"securities" for money, legal fee in mortgage, when passing under, 254.
Settled Land Acts, power of tenant for life under, to convey free from charges, 663.
specific preferred to general, 928 et seq.
"subject thereto," effect of, 177.
implied, 177.
time and trouble, for, trustee cannot, 780.
trust, partial, declaration of, distinguished from charge, 166, 167.
trustee for sale may apply purchase-money in paying off, 743.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, owner subject to charge not trustee within, 424.
vesting order subject to, 849 note.

CHARGES AND EXPENSES, trustee when entitled to, 787 et seq., 882, 1268 et seq. See COSTS.

CHARGING ORDER, on stocks, shares, &c., 1040 et seq.
alienation, when an act of, 115.
application for, 1040.
contract, is not, so as to ground service out of jurisdiction, 1045.
Court, what, empowered to make, 1040.
debentures, not made on, 1040 note.
director of company, on qualifying shares of, 1041.
discharge of, 1044.
effect of, 902, 1040 et seq.
enforcement of, by proceedings for foreclosure or sale, 1044.
forfeiture of life interest, when effecting, 1044.
incumbrances, prior, not prejudiced by, 1043.
information as to existence of, 888.

CHARGING ORDER—continued.
interest charged, amount of, not defined by, 1041.
interest in stocks subject to trust for conversion, on, 1041.
judgment payable in futuro, may be made in respect of, 1042.
jurisdiction to make, in whom vested, 1041.
lunatic, on stock of, 1044.
notice of, operates as stop order, 1043 note.
proceedings for benefit of, when to be taken, 1043.
specific charges, ranks subsequent to, 902, 1043.
stop order, not necessary as preliminary to, 1043 note.

CHARITABLE TRUSTS OR USES. See CHARITY.

CHARITABLE TRUSTS ACTS, 643 et seq., 1092. See CHARITY; CHARITY COMMISSIONERS.

CHARITY. account of rents and profits of, when directed, 1210 et seq.
administration of, proper mode of, restored, 1089.
advowson held in trust for parishioners whether a charity, 92, 626.
advowson, trust to present to, 625.
alienation of charity property by trustees, 633, 634.
alteration of scheme or purpose not permitted, 622 et seq.
apportionment in favour of, as between pure and impure personalty, 1226.
assurance in favour of, how to be affected, 104 et seq.
Attorney-General, consent of, to compromise, 1211. to proceedings under Romilly's Act, 1203 et seq.
augmentation of salaries, by trustees, 632.
Bankruptcy, District Court of, jurisdiction of, 1092 note, 1207.
breach of trust for, Chap. xxxi. s. 4, 1202-1213.
accounts of mesne rents, what, directed, 1210 et seq.
Charitable Trusts Act, 1853, jurisdiction under, 1206.
Charity Commissioners, consent of, to proceedings when required, 1207, 1208.
commissions under Statute of Charitable Uses, 1202, 1206. compromise with sanction of Attorney-General allowed in case of hardship, 1212.
corporation, property of, how attached, 1212, 1213.
District Court of Bankruptcy and County Court, jurisdiction of, 1207.
information, remedy for, ordinarily by, 1202.
Limitations, Statutes of, do not bar right to account, 1210.
mistake, trustees acting from, not made to account, 1212.
parish, no retrospective account against, 1213.
petition under Romilly's Act, 1203; construction of Act, 1203, cases within, 1203 et seq.
presumption of acquiescence, with regard to corporations and individuals, 1212.
removal of master, possession how recoverable on, 631.
retainer of charity funds, by, 633.
building leases, power to grant, 641.
burial ground, gift for repair of, 122.
byelaws, original intention cannot be defeated by, 629.
Chancery Division, execution of charitable trusts assigned to, 620 note.
chapel, administration of trust for, 623 et seq.
charge of legacy in favour of charity, effect of, 178.
Charitable Trusts Acts, 642 et seq., 1206 et seq.
charities exempted from, 644.

CHARITY—continued.
leases under, 642. See infra, leases.
remedy under, for breach of trust, 1206 et seq.
"charitable institutions," gift for, 123 note, 153.
Charitable Uses, Statute of, commission under, 1202, 1203.
charter, jurisdiction of Court over charities established by, 620 et seq.
church, services of, trusts relating to, 625.
church, erection of monument in, a valid charitable purpose, 122.
church trustees, appointment of, 637.
churchyard, gift for repair, 122.
City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, provisions of, 631.
commission of inquiry into, now obsolete, 1203.
Commissioners under 58 Geo. 3. c. 91, and 59 Geo. 3. c. 81, 1206.
Commissioners under Charitable Trusts Acts. See CHARITY COMMISSIONERS. construction of trust for, 623 et seq. See infra, trust.
conveyance to, formalities to be observed under Mortmain Act and recent Acts, 100 et seq., 635, 636.
upon secret trust for grantor until death, 105.
corporation holding in trust for, account against, 1210, 1211.
trustee appointed in place of, 1091.
County Court, jurisdiction of, 1092 note, 1207.
cy pres doctrine in favour of, 1076.
application of, as against resulting trust, 181.
deed enrolled founding a, is not a "scheme legally established," 642 note.
definition of, 18.
devise in favour of, legal estate passing by, 69.
under Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891 . . . 106, 107.
discretionary power in favour of, controlled by Court, 766, 770, Court will freely exercise, 1076.
discretionary trust for, 17, 121.
duties of trustees for, 622 et seq. See infra, trustee.
ecclesiastical, appointment of trustees of, by parish councils, 626.
ecclesiastical purposes, trust for, 628.
educational institutions, charitable gift for, 123 note, 153, 626 note.
ejectment of person ceasing to hold office under, 631.
election of minister, 628.
eleemosynary and civil corporations, visitors of, 622.
eleemosynary and religious, distinction between, 43, 626.
"endowment," meaning of, in Charitable Trusts Acts, 644.
Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, provisions of, 630.
exchange of property of, with consent of Commissioners, 635.
exemption of certain charities from Charitable Trusts Act, 644.
founder, wishes of, to be observed, 621, 622, 641.
funds of, mixed with funds of another charity, recovery of, 1155.
free school, 630.
general intention in favour of, carried into effect, 181.
gift to, by deed or will, when effectual, 68, 106, 107, 1225.
Governors of, cannot lease to one of themselves, 637. See infra, trustees.
information for removal of, 621.
grammar schools, 630.
improvements by lessees, allowance for, 641.
incorporated, government of corporation belongs to visitor, 620, 621.
trustees for charities may now become, 643.
information, action in nature of, when proper remedy, 30, 92, 1202.
inrolment of conveyance to, 104, 105.
inrolment of conveyance to new trustee when required, 831.

CHARITY—continued.
investment of moneys of, 635, 636.
with consent of Commissioners, 634. jurisdiction of Court over, 620 et seq.
laches when a bar to action for account in case of, 1210 et seq.
land may now be devised to, 106.
but must be sold within a year, 106, 108.
unless retention authorised, 107.
lands, proceeds of sale of, could not be bequeathed to, 1225, 1226.
secus now under Mortmain, &c., Act, 1891, 106, 107, 108, 1226.
lapse of gift in favour of, 181 note.
leases of charity lands.
Charitable Trusts Acts, how to be made under, 642.
consideration for, fines, rents, &c., 637.
adequate, should be, when granted, 638.
direction by founder that rent should not be raised, 638.
covenants for trustee's private advantage, should not contain, 637.
directions of settlor as to, must be strictly followed, 641.
discretionary powers to grant, may be controlled, 770.
relatives of trustees, to, unadvisable, 637.
term of, 640.
Charitable Trusts Acts, under, 642.
unreasonable extent of term, 639.
under-value, where lease granted at, 638.
legal estate cannot be limited to objects of, 47.
legal estate, power of majority of trustees to pass, 291, 635, 642, 643.
Limitations, Statutes of, application of, to charities, 1117, 1133, 1210.
Local Government Act, 1894, appointment of trustees of ecclesiastical charities under, 625, 626.
majority of trustees of, may bind the rest, 291, 635, 642, 747.
meeting-house, minister of, is tenant at will to trustees, 628.
mesne rents and profits, account of, when and from what time directed, 1210 et seq.
mistake, objects of charity elected under, 629.
mixed, 182.
mortgage, charity funds may be lent on, 636.
Mortmain Act, 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, trust for charity must comply with requirements of, 104 et seq. See MORTMAIN.
new trustees of, appointment of, 628, 1088 et seq., 1209.
Charitable Trusts Acts, under, 1092.
Charity Commissioners, sanction of, required to, 1092.
conveyance of land in mortmain need not be inrolled on, 831, 832.
corporation, in place of, 1091.
direction to appoint when reduced to a given number, 751, 828, 829.
Peto's Act, under, 1092 et seq.
Romilly's Act, under, 1205.
where deed of endowment does not provide for appointment, 1092 et seq.
where trustees irregularly appointed, 1089.
notice, doctrine of, how far applicable to, 1101, 1212.
officer of, proceedings for removal of, how to be taken, 631, 1204, 1208.
official trustees of charitable funds, 436.
payment or transfer of money, stock, &c., to, by order of Commissioners, 436.
powers and duties not affected by Public Trustee Act, 708.
parish property, 624 note (1).
parishes, apportionment of charities on division of, 1205.

CHARITY—continued.
parishioners, trust for, effect of 91, 92, 623, 624.
perpetuity, rule against, does not affect trust for, 18.
poor, trust for, 88; how to be administered, 624.
power to select objects of, may be severed from estate, 762.
discretion of donee of power as to, when controlled by Court, 766, 769.
exercise of, by will, 769.
preacher, to find, 623.
property of, jurisdiction of equity over, 620 et seq.
public trustee may not accept trust for religious or charitable purposes, 708.
public trusts are charitable, 18.
purchaser without notice when bound by claim of, 1101.
purposes of, must be strictly observed, 627; but details of management may be varied, 633, 641.
rates, in aid of, 623.
real estate, conveyance of, upon trust for, formalities necessary, 104, 105.
religious bodies, trusts for, 43, 625. See infra, trust.
religious or charitable purposes, trust for, not to be accepted by public trustee, 708.
remainder, may take under devise by way of, 108.
rents and profits of, account of, when and from what time directed, 1211 et seq.
rents of lands of, raising, 638.
surplus rents, when applicable to charitable purposes, 181, 182.
resulting trusts, doctrine of, how far applicable to legacies to, 181, 182.
increased rents applicable as original gifts, 182.
exceptions to rule, 183.
object of gift failing, resulting trust does not arise, but Court directs application, 181, 182.
Roman Catholic charities are subject to Charitable Trusts Acts, 644.
Romilly's Act, petition under, 1203 et seq.
royal charter founding a, not a scheme, 642 note.
salaries, augmentation and reduction of, 632.
sale of lands of, jurisdiction of Court to order, 1205.
by or with consent of Commissioners, 634. scheme for, alteration of, not permitted, 625 et seq.
distribution under power of selection, as to, 768.
legally established, 642.
Romilly's Act, Court has jurisdiction under, to settle, 1205.
secret trust for, 65.
devise of legal estate not invalid by reason of Mortmain Act, 69.
secret trust for grantor of land to, until death, void, 105.
surplus funds not to be expended unnecessarily, 633.
surplus rents of charity lands, when applicable to charitable purposes, 182.
tomb, trust for maintenance of, when charitable, 122.
trust for, construction of, more liberal than in ordinary trusts, 751.
"chapel," 623.
declaration of, where numerous contributors, 626.
departure from original trust, when permitted, 626.
ecclesiastical purposes, 626.
"evangelical" services, for, 625.
failure of, not permitted, 181.
"free grammar school," "free-school," 630.
lapse of time, when barred by, 1117.
loans, amount of increased, according to value of money, 633.
"master, finding a," 631.
"necessary occasions" of church, 632.

CHARITY—trust for—continued.
"parishioners," for, 633.
perpetuity, rule against, does not affect, 18.
"poor, relief of," 623, 624, 632.
"poor relatives," 1077.
preaching in black gown, condition as to, 625.
"promotion of godly learning," 625.
public trust in general synonymous with, 18.
purchaser without notice from purchaser with, bound by, 1101.
rates, in aid of, 623, 624.
religion, established form of, where trust executed in favour of, 625, 626.
when in favour of dissenters, 625.
religious worship, primâ facie determined by trust deed, 627.
if not defined, then by usage, 627.
repairing and rebuilding, for, 632.
salaries, augmentation or reduction of, 632.
secret trust for, 65.
such charity as trustees may appoint, trust for, valid, 122.
town, for benefit of inhabitants of, 626.
unattested paper, by, referring to will, ineffectual, 54.
uncertainty, failing for, 152, 153, 169.
validity of, not affected by act of trustee, 1240.
voluntary contributions, charity supported by, 621.
"worship of God," 625.
trustees for, appointment and removal of, 42, 1088 et seq. See sup., new trustees.
control of Court over, 751, 766, 770.
duties of, Chap. xxi., 620-645.
entertaining opinions contrary to founder, removed, 1087.
fitness of, Court how satisfied as to, 1089.
incorporation of trustees, 643.
inhabitants of particular place, required to be, 1088, 1089.
investment by, 635, 636.
jurisdiction of Court in respect of, 859.
majority of, when capable of binding all, 290, 291, 635, 642, 747.
mistake, acting by, how far liable to account, 1184.
new trustees, appointment of, 627, 843 note, 859, 1088 et seq., 1209. See sup., new trustees.
payment of dividends to two or more, 291.
payment into Court by, 425 note.
quorum, Court sometimes appoints, 291.
religious views of, when to be considered, 42, 1209.
removal of, 1087, 1209.
sale of lands by, under Lands Clauses Act, 635.
trade, using trust money in, liability of, 399.
transfer by, to official trustees, 436.
Trustee Acts, may pay money into Court under, 425 note.
usage of congregation inquired into, 627.
use in favour of, is within Statute of Frauds, 57.
purchaser without notice from purchaser with, bound by, 1101.
Statute of Charitable Uses, commission under, 1202, 1203.
when it may be averred by parol, 54.
vesting order, jurisdiction of Court to make, as to charity lands, &c., 843 note, 859. See TRUSTEE ACT.
visitor, jurisdiction and office of, 620 et seq.
voluntary subscription supported by, trusts of, 621, 644.

CHARITY—continued.
will in favour of, effect of, 107 et seq.
will of founder, directions of, must be strictly followed, 622, 623, 641.

CHARITY COMMISSIONERS.
advice, may give, and persons acting under, are indemnified, 1209.
Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, must consent to exercise of powers of, 642.
Attorney-General, may certify cases for interference of, 1206.
authority of, when requisite to suit or proceeding, 1207.
contentious cases, should not make orders in, 1209.
Endowed Schools Commissioners' powers transferred to, 630.
exchange of lands, may authorise, 634.
exemption of certain charities from control of, 644.
founders' intentions, duty to give effect to, 1210.
incorporation of trustees under certificate of, 643.
investment of moneys arising from sale or exchange by, 635.
jurisdiction, 1210.
leases, may authorise, 642.
new trustees, appointment of, their powers as to, 1092, 1209.
official trustees of charity funds, 436, 1209.
of charity lands, 1209.
orders, powers to make, under Charitable Trusts Act, 1860 . . . 1209.
proceedings, their consent when necessary before taking, 1207 et seq.
sale of lands, may authorise, 634.
scheme, may make orders for establishment of, 629.
transfer of trust funds, may authorise, 436.
Trustee Relief Act, consent of Commissioners, whether necessary to proceedings under, 425 note, 1207.

CHARTER, charity established by, jurisdiction of Court over, 620 et seq.

CHATTEL INTEREST, trustees when held to take, 238, 245.

CHATTELS.
agreement to settle, on same trusts as real estate, 131.
assets in equity, equitable chattels accounted, 1064.
bankrupt trustee, in possession of, when subject to order and disposition clauses, 271 et seq.
bequests of, upon trusts corresponding with real estate, 110, 139, 140 et seq.
cestui que trust of, dying intestate and without next of kin, 317.
conversion of, trustee can maintain action for, 878.
custody of, duty of trustee as to, 328 et seq.
deposit of, with bankers of trustees, 328.
disclaimer of, may be by parol, 223.
disposition of, by c. q. t., 879, 880.
entailed, cannot be, 91, 92, 110.
execution against, for debt of trustee, 250, 276 note; of c. q. t., 250.
executor, powers of, to deal with chattels of testator,, 560 et seq.
executor of trustee, devolution of trust chattel on, 250.
executory trust of, how construed, in marriage articles, 131. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
in will, 139.
following, into hands of purchaser, 1151.
forfeiture of, on conviction for felony, 1059.
heirs, chattels limited to A. and his heirs are personal estate, 102.
inventory of, duty of trustee to make, 231.
judgment when a lien on, 1028, 1029.
life estate in, limitation of, at law and in equity, 91.

CHATTELS—continued.
limitation at law by deed, how far chattels capable of, 91, by will, ib.
in equity, by way of trust, chattels may be freely subjected to, 91.
married woman, of, rights of husband in respect to, 951 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
personal, not within Statute of Frauds, s. 7, 55.
possession of, c. q. t. when entitled to, 878, 879.
real, are within Statute of Frauds, s. 7, 55; secus s. 10, 1035.
assignment of, deed when necessary for, 890.
entailed, cannot be, 102; except term in trust to attend inheritance, 102.
life estate in, may be limited by way of trust, 91.
resulting trust of, 163.
vesting of, in new trustee, 810, 811.
resulting trust, whether delivery of chattels gives rise to, 166.
on purchase in name of stranger, 183 et seq.
sale of, by executor, 558 et seq., 747.
sale of, in market overt, 1102, 1151.
sale of, under Settled Land Acts, 690 et seq.
settled as heirlooms, insurance of, 330.
settlement of, agreement or direction for, how construed, 131, 139 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
settlement of, cannot be made to follow realty exactly, 110, 131.
strict settlement how effected, 110.
specifically bequeathed, executor may sell, 561, 562.
tenant for life of, when entitled to possession, 878, 879.
bankruptcy of, are not forfeited on, 878.
inventory to be signed by, 231.
trust of, 3.
corresponding with trust of realty, how carried into effect, 131 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
limitations by way of, chattels may be subjected to, 91.
not affected by Statute of Uses, 5.
perpetuity, application of rule against, 110.
when perfectly created, 73.
trustee of, duties of, generally, Chap. xiv., 319-437.

CHEQUE.
payment by, when trustee exonerated by, 283, 285.
trustee justified in accepting, in payment of deposit on sale, 517.

CHILD. See INFANT. advance to, regarded as portion, 479.
illegitimate, status of, 103, 198. See ILLEGITIMATE CHILD.
implied trust in favour of, execution of, 150 note.
maintenance of infant, 717, 718 et seq. See MAINTENANCE.
mother liable for, 1027.
portion to, 459 et seq. See PORTION.
purchase in name of, primâ facie an advancement, 164, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
trust for children of A. as B. shall appoint, effect of, 1077.

CHILDBEARING, admissibility of evidence as to person being past, 408 note, 1106.

CHOSE IN ACTION.
assignment of, 76, 527, 892, 906.
assignee takes subject to equities, 892 et seq., 1106.
priority of, by giving notice, 76, 902 et seq.

CHOSE IN ACTION—assignment of—continued
statute, by virtue of, 76, 892 note, 918, 919; but assignment must be by writing and notice must be given, 76, 77, 918, 919.
trustee, by, power of attorney how to be qualified, 527.
breach of trust, right to sue for, how far assignable, 889.
debentures in company, 272.
equitable interest in chattels real is not, 959.
husband's power over wife's, 22, 950 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN. judgment recovered by wife in her chose in action, 961.
lunatic, of, vesting order as to, 863, 1315.
married woman, of, 21, 22, 950 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
notice of assignment of, priority given by, 902 et seq.
distinction between chose in action and real estate in this respect, 907, 908.
limit of time within which to be given, 916 note, 919 note.
neglect by trustee to give, 1165, 1166.
order and disposition clause, not to be deemed goods within, 272.
policy of life assurance is, within Bankruptcy Act, 272.
purchaser of, from trustee, holds subject to same equity as trustee, 1100.
reduction of, into possession, by husband, 951 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
by trustee, 319, 320.
reversionary, trustee may concur with persons having prior interest in calling for transfer of, 320.
shares in company are, within Bankruptcy Act, 272.
trust formerly considered in nature of, 7.
secus in later times, 8.
trustee of, should reduce into possession, if possible, 319, 320.
vesting orders as to, powers of Court to make, 851 et seq.
effect of, 855.

CHURCH. See CHAPEL. monument or window in, trust for repairing, valid as charitable gift, 122.
trust for, by will, how carried out in equity, 91.
trustees, appointment and incorporation of, 637.
investment by, in Government or real securities, 359.

CHURCH BUILDING ACTS, exemptions in, from provisions of Mortmain Acts, 106.

CHURCHWARDENS AND OVERSEERS, parish property vests in, under 59 Geo. 3 c. 12, 624 note.

CHURCHYARD, trust for repair of, good, 122.

CIRCUITY.
Court of equity avoids, 360, 793, 882, 1133, 1149, 1237, 1274.
trustees may avoid, 710, 711.

CITY OF LONDON PAROCHIAL CHARITIES ACT, 1883, 631.

CLAIM. See ACTION. adverse to c. q. t., trustee cannot make, 318.
by third persons, right of trustee to investigate, 402 et seq., 409.

CLASS.
acquiescence or laches by, 581, 582.
general intention in favour of, aided by Court, 1079.
power, in favour of what class Court will exercise, 1079 et seq.
presumption of release weaker in case of, 1116, 1198.
time allowed to, for prosecution of rights, 581, 582.

CLERK IN HOLY ORDERS, election of, under trust for parishioners, 92, 93.

CO-ADMINISTRATOR on same footing as co-executor as to liability, 304.

CODICIL. See WILL.

CO-EXECUTOR. See EXECUTOR.
acknowledgment of debt by one, 298 note, 1133.
receipts, liable for joining in, pro formâ, 298, 299.
unless joining be nugatory or ex necessitate, 300, 302.

CO-HABITATION BOND, 121 note.

COLLATERAL.
equitable powers may be, 749.
trust, trustees not entitled to inquire as to, 881, 882.

COLLECTOR, trustee entitled to employ, of debts, 785; of rents, 786, 787, 792.

COLLUSION. See FRAUD.

COLONIAL STOCK.
certificates under Act of 1877, 370.
investment in, 355, 356, 364, 370.

COLONY.
colonists carry out their country's law with them, 57.
but subsequent enactments do not follow them across the seas, 57.
lands in, not within Statute of Frauds, 57.
lands in, within Trustee Act, 860 note.

COMMISSION.
agent corruptly receiving, liability of, 1157.
agent, trustee who is, cannot charge, 312.
army agent, notice to, of charge on proceeds of officer's commission, 912.
broker, employment of trustee as, 283.
charity, to inquire into, under Statute of Charitable Uses, 1202, 1203.
executors in the East Indies, whether they may charge, 781, 782.
mortgagees, trustees, &c., cannot charge, 780, 781.
secus as to trustees for absentees of estates in West Indies, 781.
or if allowed to trustee by settlor, 783.
or stipulated for with c. q. t., 784.
or with Court before acceptance of trust, 785.
payment of, by trustees, on sale by auction, 685, 686.
rents, for receiving, where c. q. t. and co-trustees out of jurisdiction, 785 note.

COMMITTEE OF LUNATIC. charge for time and trouble, may not make, 780.
conversion of lunatic's property by, 1243.
new trustees, power of appointing, committee empowered to exercise, 861.
office of, does not survive, 293.
payment to, by trustee, 413.
repairs, cannot make, after decree in administration action, 747.

COMMON LAW.
Courts have no jurisdiction over trusts, 14, 15.
creation of trust at, Chap. v. s. 1, 53 et seq.

COMMON, TENANCY IN. See JOINT TENANCY; TENANT IN COMMON.

COMMUNICATION, trust deed, of, to creditors, 605, 606.

COMPANY.
borrowing powers of, directors of, must not exceed, 745.
conversion of shares in, when trustees should make, 320, 321, 335.
directors of, breach of trust or misfeasance by, 745, 1161, 1167. See DIRECTOR.
lease to, under power of leasing, by trustees, 745.
lien of, on shares of members, 916, 925.
memorandum of association, alteration so as to comprise execution of trusts, 32.
notice to, by equitable owners of shares, 905, 906.
when sufficient, 914.
promoter of, fiduciary relation of, 310, 1138 note.
provision in case of bankruptcy of shareholder, 119 note.
public trustee, entry of name in books not to constitute notice of trust, 707.
restraining orders under 5 Vict. c. 5. s. 4, applicable to shares in, 1252.
securities issued by, transferee when affected by irregularity in issue of, 901.
shares in. See SHARES.
trading, powers of managers of, 745.
trustee of shares in, liability of, 267.
trusts, execution of, alteration of memorandum so as to comprise, 32.
trusts of shares not usually noticed, 1248.
Trustee Acts, bound by orders under, 855.

COMPENSATION.
breach of trust, from person who benefits by, 639, 1172, 1179.
undervalue of charity lease, in respect of, 639.

COMPLICATION. account, in, ground for relief in equity on legal title, 1144.
trust, of, takes case out of Statute of Frauds, s. 10, 1035, 1036, 1065.

COMPLICITY in breach of trust, liability of cestui que trust for, 1179 et seq.

COMPOSITION. See DEBT, trust for payment of; CREDITORS' DEED.
creditors, with, trustee making, whether disqualified for office, 1087 note.
debt, of, powers of trustee to effect, 739, 740.
terms of, in creditors' deed must be strictly observed, 603.

COMPOUND INTEREST. See INTEREST.
tenant for life advancing fine for renewal of lease, allowed to, 449.
trustees when charged with, 397 et seq.

COMPOUND SETTLEMENT under Settled Land Acts, 648.

COMPROMISE.
Attorney-General, with, in accounts of charitable trusts, 1212. claims against estate, of, power of trustees to effect, 739 et seq.
married woman, on behalf of, jurisdiction of Court to sanction, 1201.
one of several trustees, with, 1176.

COMPULSORY.
Payment into Court, when directed, see Chap. xxxiii. s. 3, 1254 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.

COMPULSORY CHURCH RATE ABOLITION ACT, 1868. church trustees appointed under, 637.
may invest in government or real securities, 359.

CONCEALMENT. See FRAUD. breach of trust, of, makes co-trustee liable, 304.
fraud, of, prevents bar to equitable relief, 1114, 1121.
right to estate, of, account carried back to accruer of title, 1150.

CONCURRENCE.
cestui que trust, by, in breach of trust, 1179 et seq., 1195.
trustee, by, in sale with other vendors, 508, 509, 743.

CONDITION.
common law, is part and parcel of the, 34.
legacy charged on devise by way of, if condition fail sinks for devisee's benefit, 178.
notice of terms of, trustee not bound to give, 888.
married woman may fulfil, 34.
trust distinguished from, 34.
trust when created by conditional words, 160.
unlawful, trust prohibiting entry into naval or military services, 104.

CONDITIONS OF SALE on sale by rustees, what conditions proper, 515 et seq.

CONFIDENCE.
personal, at first held indispensable in cases of trust, 2.
but secus in later times, 7.
trust in what sense said to be a confidence, 11 12, 17.
words expressing, may raise a trust, 148, 149.

CONFIRMATION. breach of trust, of, by c. q. t., 581 et seq., 1199 et seq.
infant, by, 581, 1200.
married woman, by, 581, 1200, 1201, 1231; where restrained from anticipation, 581, 1201.
settlement, of, by infant married woman, 25.

CONFLICT.
duty and interest, of, in trustee, 780.
of laws, English law when applicable, 909.
rules of law and equity, between, 711, 945.

CONFORMITY, trustee joining in receipt for, not answerable, 296, 326, note.

CONSCIENCE, equity acts on the, 64.

CONSENT.
breach of trust, to, by c. q. t., effect of, 1181, 1182.
direction to convert with consent of A., held imperative, 1222, 1223.
discharge of trustee, with consent of c. q. t., 803.
discretion, trustees must exercise, notwithstanding requisite consent given, 349.
improper refusal of, disregarded by Court, 767.
infant, of, ineffectual, 954.
investment, to, 349, 350, 359, 368.
lord of manor, of, to vesting order, 851.
lunatic, by, to exercise of power, given by committee, 1333.
married woman, of, to breach of trust, 1183; to investment, when and how to be given, 350.
to transfer to husband may be revoked, 954.
new trustee, of, to act, 1306.
power to be exercised with, of cs. q. t. where one dies, 755.
previous to act, must be, not subsequent, 350.
purchase to be made with, direction for, effects conversion, 1222, 1223.
tenant for life, of, to investment, 349, 350, 359, 368.
to exercise of powers of trustees, when required under Settled Land Acts, 553, 554, 774 et seq.
to exercise of power of advancement, how affected by bankruptcy, 735.
trustees, of several, to investment, 349.

CONSIDERATION.
confirmation, how far necessary to support, 582.
existing debt, when a sufficient, 604.
instrument under seal, if voluntary, not enforced in favour of volunteer, 86, 87.
meritorious, agreement or imperfect trust founded on, how far enforced, 87, 88.
assignment by felon not supported by, 27.
parent cannot urge, against child, 87 note.
nominal, will not prevent resulting trust, 164.
release or waiver, for, what sufficient, 1200.
subsequent, voluntary bond or covenant may derive support from, 87 note.
trust perfectly created, is not necessary for, 71.
valuable, where it exists, trust not averrable, 53, 54; trust enforced, 71.
deed founded on, may be void as against creditors, 82, 83.
expense incurred in respect of property amounts to, 79.
formalities of minor importance, where trust is founded on, 71.

CONSOLIDATION OF MORTGAGES, 384, 742, 894. See MORTGAGE.

CONSOLS.
investment in, 345, 362, 365. See INVESTMENT.
redemption of, 360, 361.

CONSTRUCTION.
devise, of, to uses, 244.
legal estate, as to, taken by trustees, 236 et seq. See LEGAL ESTATE.
powers, of, 751 et seq. See POWER.
trusts, of, governed by same rule as legal estates, 125.
charities, for, 622 et seq. See CHARITY.
executory, in marriage articles, 128 et seq.; in wills, 135 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.

CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE, 403, 1100, 1104, 1105. See NOTICE.
agent, clerk, or solicitor, through, 915.

CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST, Chap. x., 201-218.
acceptance of trust, constructive, 225.
acquiescence, remedy of c. q. t. when barred by, 207.
agency agreement, trustee procuring renewal of, to his own firm, 212.
agent acquiring advantage for himself constructively a trustee, 208, 214, 312, 798, 1157.
but agent of trustee is not constructive trustee for c. q. t., 214, 215, 797.
allowance for management in cases of, 782.
assuming to act as trustee, by reason of, 1166, 1167.
attorney violating his duty, held bound by a constructive trust, 213.
Bill in Parliament, money paid to tenant for life for not opposing, 212.
business, person carrying on, compensation to, for skill and trouble, 782.
decree for sale, person to convey under, is trustee, 847.
distinction of, from express trusts not clearly defined, 1127.
doctrine of, explained, 201.
equitable waste, in cases of, 209.
executor when a constructive trustee, 837.
factor, acquiring advantage for himself, is constructive trustee, 208.
fine, when barred by, 1100, 1111.
fraud by heir, devisee, or legatee, when raised by, 64.
fraud by agent or attorney, effect of, 214.
Frauds, Statute of, how far applicable to, 216, 217, 1155.
distinction between trusts arising on a will and on a conveyance, 217, 218.
husband construed to be trustee for wife, 969, 1074.

CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST—continued.
husband of tenant for life, purchasing from mortgagees of settled property, trustee for beneficiaries, 202 note.
implied trust and trust by operation of law, distinguished from, 124 note.
laches when a bar to enforcement of, 207, 1107, 1118.
lease obtained under cover of tenant right, 1104; and see infra, renewal.
Limitations, Statute of, runs in favour of constructive trustee, 1126, 1137.
meaning of term, considered, 124 note.
mesne rents and profits, and sub-fines, trustee renewing lease accounts for, 206.
mortgagee in possession, how affecting, 212, 213.
with notice of, is bound thereby, 1100, 1107.
notice of trust, constructive trust by reason of, 216. See NOTICE.
partner acquiring advantage for himself, constructively a trustee, 208.
payment into Court by constructive trustee, when ordered, 1258.
production of documents by constructive trustee, 1254.
profit, person in fiduciary character making, by his fiduciary position is constructively a trustee, 201, 208.
but partners of trustee not liable as constructive trustees for profits made by trust money, 1186.
promoter of company may be bound by, 208, 310.
purchaser with notice of, bound, 1100.
renewal of lease, 201 et seq. See RENEWAL LEASEHOLDS.
executor of trustee, by, 201.
expenses of, 205; how to be borne, 442 et seq.
how far annuitants should contribute to fine, 205, 206.
trustees' lien for, 205.
mortgagee, by, 202.
tenant for life, by, or other person having partial interest, 202.
trustee cannot sell right of, 204.
yearly tenant, by, 203.
resulting trust, Chap. ix. 163-200. See RESULTING TRUST.
reversion, purchase of, by trustee, 207, 208.
salmon fishings, grant of, by Crown to trustees, 212.
solicitor, acting on instructions, not affected with, 1159.
violating his duty, secus, 213, 215.
time, may be barred by lapse of, 1108.
title-deeds, holder of, how far constructive trustee for remainderman, 215.
Trustee Act, within, what is, 835, 836, 837.
vendor of shares after contract, affected with, 836.
volunteers and purchasers with notice from trustee, remedy against, 207.
waste committed, in respect of, when arising, 209 et seq. See WASTE.

CONTINGENT INTEREST. costs of action by party claiming, 423.
election by person entitled to, 1234.
equitable, c. q. t. may assign, 8, 889.
owner of, entitled to have it secured, 1095; secus where possibility only, 1096.
lunatic, of, order releasing, 862 et seq., 1314, 1315.
married woman, of, is alienable by her, 1003.
payment into Court on application of person entitled to, 1255.
trustee or mortgagee, of, power of Court to deal with, under Trustee Act, 844 et seq.

CONTINGENT LEGACY.
maintenance of infant out of income of, 726 et seq.
portion not satisfied by, 482.
tenant for life of residue entitled to interim income of, 337.

CONTINGENT REMAINDER.
abolished and re-enacted, 457.
destruction of, how formerly possible, 137, 454 et seq. ; how now, 137, 456 et seq.
Fines and Recoveries Act, effect of, as to, 455, 456.
freeholds, of, where legal, formerly required support of particular estate, 90.
but not now, if capable of taking effect as executory limitation, 458.
but equitable estates never required such support, 91.
legal limitations not construed as equitable in order to protect, 458.
perpetuity, when void on ground of, 109 note, 458.
protector, survivorship of office of, 457.
trustees for preserving, duties of, Chap. xvi. 454-458.
limitation to, how usually framed and object of, 454, 455.
"and their heirs," whether it can be cut down, 241, 242.
whether necessary since 8 & 9 Vict. c. 186. . . 137.
special trust to preserve, not a use within Statute of Uses, 234.
trustee for preserving, may purchase trust property, 570.
receiver, may be, 311, 312.
waste, duty of, to prevent, 137.

CONTINUANCE OF TRUST.
"continuing" trustee, 818, 824.
power during, 756.

CONTRACT.
assignment of equitable interest does not operate by way of, 77.
cestui que trust, by, not to determine trust, 886.
charging lands possessed at particular time raises implied trust, 160.
conditional on approval of Court, how, and when to be entered into, 499, 588 et seq.
conversion of property by contract for sale or purchase, 1032, 1219, 1220. See CONVERSION.
disclaimer of, 224.
foreign property, as to, when enforceable, 49.
informal trust for value enforced as, 71.
married woman, by, as to separate property, 974 et seq.
under Married Women's Property Act, 1882, 975, 976.
private, trustees may sell by, 513, 514.
purchase, for, on death of purchaser, executor paid price but heir entitled to purchase, 1220; secus, now, 1220.
remuneration, for, by trustee, 784, 785.
sale, for, by cestui que trust, 501.
implied trust arising under, 160, 161.
judgment against vendor after, 1031 et seq.
on death of vendor, devolution of land and right to purchase money, 836, 1219.
settlement, for, of particular property or property acquired during coverture raises implied trust, 160.
trustee by, without power of sale, at request of beneficiaries, 508.
trustee for purchase may enter into, 585, 586, 587.
trustee for sale, by, sanction of Court when requisite to, 499, 500. See SALE.
voluntary, under seal, effect of, 86.

CONTRIBUTION.
charities founded by voluntary, trusts of, how expounded, 626.
co-trustees, amongst, on breach of trust, 1177 et seq.
claim for, may now create specialty debt, 1177.
none in case of fraud, 283.

CONTRIBUTION—continued.
secus in favour of trustee in bankruptcy of bankrupt trustee, 1190.
time under Statute of Limitations when beginning to run, 1142. mortgaged estates, several, by, to discharge of incumbrances, 928 et seq.
renewable leaseholds, to fines on renewal of, 438, 446 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
unequal, by joint purchasers, raises implication of tenancy in common, 185.

CONTRIBUTORY MORTGAGE, trustees should not lend on, 385.

CONTROL.
powers, how far Court will control, 765 et seq.
trustee must not put trust property out of his own, 330, 331, 385, 392.
retiring, should not part with, until successor appointed, 813, 814.

CONVENIENT SPEED, what it means, 321.

CONVERSION.
bank shares, duty of trustee to convert, 321.
contract for sale or purchase, by, 1031, 1032, 1219, 1220.
Court, sale by order of, when conversion is effected by, 172, 173, 174, 1227.
discretionary power of sale, where trustees have, 174.
infant's property, as to, 173.
Lands Clauses Act, under, 174.
lunatic's property, as to, 173.
Partition Act, 1868, under 173.
descent, course of, affected by, 1062, 1063. discretion of trustees as to, Court does not interfere with, 322, 332, 1218 note.
how to be exercised, 504, 505.
doctrine of, when directed by will, 171, 1215, 1216, 1228.
election to take property in unconverted state, 886, 1229 et seq. See ELECTION.
land directed to be converted into money, 886, 1229.
money into land, 886, 1229.
how presumed or expressed, 1238, 1239.
what persons are capable of electing, 1229 et seq.
enjoyment in specie, 333.
express trust for, must be strictly pursued, 332.
foreign bonds or stocks, duty of trustees to convert, 320, 321.
Government annuities, of, investment of money arising from, 361.
hazardous though not wasting securities, of, 343.
imperative direction necessary in order to effect notional conversion, 1218 note, 1221, 1222, 1227.
improper, of investments, liability of trustee for, 390, et seq. See INVESTMENT.
income accruing before conversion, application of, as between tenant for life and remainderman, 336.
accumulation and investment, where there is direction for, tenant for life takes income from end of first year, 336.
where investment directed, 337.
discretion, where trustees have, as to time of conversion, 340.
proportion allowed to tenant for life, how determined, 338, 339.
reasonable fruit of property, tenant for life entitled to, 338.
refunding, by tenant for life, 389.
reversionary, where property to be converted is, 341, 342, 343.
India, assets in, duty of trustee to convert, 389.
infant's property, of, when authorised, 1245 et seq. See INFANT. investment, of, when trustee bound to make, 332 et seq.

CONVERSION—continued.
land directed to be converted into money, 1195; treated as money, ib.
alien may take proceeds of, 1225.
charity could not take, 1226; secus now under Mortmain, &c., Act, 1891. . . 1227.
debenture, specific bequest subject to incumbrance, Locke King's Act, 1226.
duty, subject to, as personal estate, 1224.
election to take, as land, 885 et seq. See ELECTION.
failure of trust for conversion, 1225.
felony, proceeds forfeitable for, if land in fact sold, 1225.
secus after expiration of punishment, 1225.
gavelkind lands, course of descent of, after conversion, 1062.
general bequest of personal estate, passes by, 1223.
heir, right of, to undisposed of proceeds of sale, 171.
imperative, direction must be, in order to effect conversion, 1218 note, 1221, 1222.
interim rents, right to, where no power to postpone, 339.
judgment against c. q. t. whether binding on, 1031 et seq.
Locke King's Act, 1226.
mortgagee selling under power of sale, who entitled to surplus proceeds, 1227.
where mortgagee is trustee for sale, 1228, 1229.
next of kin not entitled where land "at home," 1224.
land not considered at home if actually conveyed to trustees, 1225.
option to purchase, effect of, 1227, 1228.
personal representative, land devolves on, though conversion postponed by the will, 1224.
rents before conversion, how applicable, 1224.
share of proceeds subject to mortgage, Locke King's Act, 1226.
leaseholds, trustee when bound to convert, 333.
tenant for life of residue, to what income entitled where leaseholds unconverted, 340.
long annuities, duty of trustee as to conversion of, 333.
lunatic's property, of, when authorised, 1240 et seq. See LUNATIC.
money directed to be laid out on land, 1187, treated as land, ib.
curtesy, is subject to, 1215.
devise of "lands," passes by, 1217.
dower, quære whether formerly subject to, 1215, 1217; is now, 1217.
election to take, as money, 886, 887, 1229 et seq. See ELECTION.
escheat, not subject to, 1216.
forfeiture, not subject to, on conviction for felony, 1059.
so where paid into Court under Act of Parliament, 1225.
heir of c. q. t. when entitled to, 1218 et seq.
heir of settlor or covenantor, when entitled as against his personal representative, 1218 et seq.
heir entitled if any person has an equitable interest, 1218, 1219.
secus, if money is "at home," 1220, 1221.
hotchpot, not brought into, by child receiving orphanage share, 1217.
imperative, direction must be, in order to effect conversion, 1218 note, 1221, 1222.
notwithstanding power to invest on other security, 1222.
"request," direction to convert at, held imperative, 1222, 1223.
where uses declared exclusively applicable to real estate, 1222.
judgment, is subject to, 1217.
legacy duty, subject to, 1217.

CONVERSION—money directed to be laid out on land—continued.
next of kin of settlor, right of, to undisposed of interest in the money, 174.
whether resulting interest results as realty or personalty, 174.
question determined by actual character of property, 174.
personal assets, not accounted, and (formerly) not liable to simple contract debts, 1217.
personal estate, when passing under general bequest of, 1217.
will of c. q. t., how affected by, 1217.
mortgage security, whether trustee or executor bound to convert, 325, 326 note.
option to purchase, exercise of, effecting retrospective conversion, 1227, 1228.
optional direction for, effect of, 1218 note. order for sale in administration action operates as, 172, 173, 1226.
personal property given in succession, duty of trustee to convert, 332 et seq.
where property wasting, 333.
where property not wasting, but investment not authorised by Court, 335.
where property cannot be profitably converted, tenant for life takes interest on value, 339.
where specifically given, or intention shown that property should be enjoyed in specie, secus, 333.
personal security, of investment on, 323.
postponement of, by trustees, under discretionary power, 323, 339, 741.
reconversion, implied trust for, 173, 513.
by election of c. q. t; 1229 et seq. See ELECTION.
renewable leaseholds, of, by trustees, 442, 443.
rents before conversion, tenant for life entitled to, 1224.
residuary property, of, when proper, 332 et seq.
retrospective, by exercise of option, 1227, 1228.
reversionary interest, of, in favour of tenant for life, 340, 341, 342.
securities, duty of trustees to convert, 320 et seq.
shares in canal, insurance and railway companies, of, 320, 321, 322, 323.
in unlimited companies, of, 321.
specie, direction for enjoyment in, effect and sufficiency of, 333.
specifically bequeathed property, of, 333.
tenant for life and remainderman, as between, 334 et seq. See sup. income.
time for conversion of securities by executors or trustees, 320.
tortious, of trust estate by trustee, 270, 1150 et seq., 1240.
does not affect rights of c. q. t., 1150, 1230; infant, 1245; lunatic, 1241.
right of c. q. t. to follow trust estate, 270. See BREACH OF TRUST.
trustee, by act of, not permitted to vary rights of c. q. t., 1240 et seq.
unauthorised investment, of, 334, 335, 353.
wasting property, trustee bound to convert, where given to persons in succession, 333, 353.
secus where intention that property should be enjoyed in specie, 333. will, conversion confined to purposes of, 171.
wrongful, effect of, disregarded by Court, 1240.

CONVEYANCE.
assignee of c. q. t. right of, to call for, 879, 880, 889.
cestui que trust, right of, to call for, 596, 879 et seq., 1073. See infra, trustee.
charity, to, formalities attending, 104 et seq., 636.
costs of proceedings to compel, trustee when ordered to pay, 880, 881.
costs of, under Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 686.

CONVEYANCE—continued.
Court, by order of, under Trustee Act, 850.
Court of Common Pleas, under order of, 34 note.
definition of, within Trustee Act, 849 note.
disclaimer should not be by way of, 220.
equitable estate, of, construction of, 125; usual form of, 890; precautions in, 906 et seq.
execution of, power of Court to direct, 856 note.
executor when entitled to call for, from heir, 1219.
fraudulent intention of grantor, effect of, 164, 165.
"grant," effect of, in operative part, 522, 882.
judgment for, vesting order consequential on, 847.
married woman, by, 34, 35, 36, 954, 975. See FINES AND RECOVERIES ACT. mistake by grantor, effect of, 165.
new trustees, to, 810 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES. parties to, when cs. q. t. should be made, 528, 1293 note.
when administration action is pending, 532.
Settled Land Act, under, by beneficial owner, 881.
refusal to convey, power of Court to make vesting order in case of, 845, 848 note.
resulting trust on conveyance without consideration, 163.
revocation of will by, 932.
Settled Land Acts, under provisions of, 663, 664, 688, 689, 693.
trust to convey is special trust, 234.
trustee, by, of legal estate, 251.
all trustees must concur in, 291.
appointees, to, under power, 883, 884.
appointment of new trustees, on occasion of, 810 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
assignee of c. q. t., on direction of, 880.
cestui que trust, on direction of, 879 et seq.
compellable, though c. q. t. has already recovered on bond, 282.
costs of, 880 et seq.
description, by what, trustee bound to convey, 880.
form of, 880 et seq.
liability of trustee refusing to convey, 880 et seq.
lien of trustee for expenses, priority of, 795.
married woman, by, 35, 36, 987 note.
parcels, whether trustee compellable to convey in, 880.
tenant in tail, trustee not bound to convey fee simple to, 880.
trustee of equitable interest, to, 882, 883.
undivided share, to owner of, 880 note.
trustee, by, under trust for sale, 518 et seq. See SALE.
trustee, to, on sale, how to be framed, 593 et seq.
vesting order operates as, 849.
may be made notwithstanding conveyance is obtainable, 843 note, 847 note.

CONVEYANCING ACT, 1881. See TABLE OF STATUTES. acknowledgment under, of right to production of deeds 524, 525.
consolidation of mortgages precluded by, 384.
contract for sale of land, stipulations implied in, 586, 587.
covenants by trustees when implied, 523.
disclaimer of power under, 759.
"grant," use of word, in conveyance not necessary, 882.
infant, maintenance of, powers of Act as to, 716 et seq.
management of land of, during minority, powers as to, 716 et seq.

CONVEYANCING ACT, 1881—continued.
long term of years, conversion of, into fee simple, 746.
power of attorney, duration and revocability of, 411, 412.
powers conferred by, to be deemed proper powers, 147.
release of power by donee, under s. 52, 762.
power coupled with a duty, 762.
restraint against anticipation, discharge of, by Court, 1013, 1014.
title, proof of, to be made on sale of land, 519.
trust estates, devolution of, under s. 30, 247, 248.
undertaking under, for safe custody of deeds, 525.
vendor, personal representative of, empowered to convey, 260, 836.

CONVEYANCING ACT, 1882.
constructive notice, provisions as to, 1104, 1105.

CONVICT.
administrator of property of, appointed by Crown, 28.
public trustee may be appointed, 701.
definition of, 28.
interim curator in absence of administrator, 28.
revesting of property of, 28.
trustee, removal of, and appointment of trustee in place of, 840.

CONVICTION.
felon, of, effect of, on property, 27, 1058 et seq. ; under 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, . . . 27, 28, 1059. See FORFEITURE.
trustee, of, 279.
appointment of new trustee on, 840.

COPIES.
accounts, of, whether c. q. t. entitled to, 887.
deeds, of, what copies new trustees are entitled to, 832.
documents, of, whether c. q. t. entitled to, 874.
vouchers, of, whether c. q. t. entitled to, 531.

COPYHOLD
admission to, fine on, 262, 263. See infra, fines.
in excess of surrender how far void, 263 note. appointment of person to convey, under Trustee Act, 851.
assets, formerly not, 1034 note, 1063.
secus now under 3 & 4 Will. 4 c. 104, 1066.
conditional fee in, where no custom to entail, 48.
covenant to surrender, covenantor a trustee under Trustee Act, 837.
custom to entail, 48.
customary freeholds are in fact privileged copyholds, 278, 932.
declaration of trust of, by feme covert, 21.
descent of, same in trust as legal estate, 47, 1061.
devise of legal interest in, formerly by will unattested and unsigned, 931.
of equitable interest, 932.
disclaimer of, to avoid payment of fine, effect of, 264, 265.
Dower Act does not affect, 945, 949.
enfranchisement of, powers of trustees to effect, 291, 745.
purchaser not entitled to proof of title to make, 519.
entail of legal and equitable estate in, where possible, 48.
where no custom to entail, how to be settled 48, 49.
equitable, how barred, 891.
equitable interest in, follows devolution of legal estate, 48, 1061 ; how devisable, 932, 1062.

COPYHOLD—continued.
escheat of, properly speaking, cannot take place, 276, 277.
execution against, by elegit, 1038.
fines on admission of trustee to, how and when payable, 262 et seq.
charged on trust estate, how raised, 453.
charities, on leases by, 637.
equitable interest, none on devolution of, 263.
income of lord, treated as, 876.
new trustee appointed by Court, on admission of, 851 note.
payment of, not a condition precedent to admission, 262, 263.
rate of, where co-trustees, 264.
tenant for life and remainderman, how to be borne as between, 453.
trustee for sale, on death of, pending contract, how payable, 162.
trustee paying, entitled to reimbursement, 265.
trustee of a term of years, on admission of, 264.
Frauds, Statute of, declaration of trust of copyholds is within, 55.
but not surrender to uses, 55 note.
nor devise of legal estate, 931; quære, as to equitable interest, 931, 932.
free-bench, estate of trustees subject to, at law, 246.
equitable interest not subject to, 945.
heir, customary, of trustee, lord when bound to admit, 263.
heriot payable on decease of trustee, 263.
investment on mortgage of, by trustees, 382.
joint tenants, fines on admission of, 263.
legal estate in, when passing under devise to trustees, 247.
where freeholds and copyholds coupled together, 241.
lives, for, how devolving under 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 6, 186.
how far purchase of, in name of stranger, raises resulting trust, 187.
how far in name of child, 193.
trustees should not purchase, 590.
lord bound by entry of trust on court roll, 277.
consent of, to vesting order, 851.
lunatic, of, effect of enfranchisement of, 1244.
vesting order as to, 863, 1315.
mortgagee of, devolution of estate of, 13.
new trustee, fine payable on admission of, 263, 851 note.
vesting of copyholds in, 814.
remainderman, admission of, rights of lord as to, 263 note.
resulting trust on purchase of, 186.
settlement of, to correspond with limitations of freeholds in strict settlement, 48.
how to be effected where no custom to entail, 48.
sole trustee of, devolution of legal estate on death of, 248.
surrender formerly required to pass legal estate by will, 931.
on what principle supplied in equity, 931, 932.
termors for years, rights of lord as to admission of, 264.
trust, entry of, on court roll, effect of, 277, 278.
trust, may be the subject of, 48.
trust of, cannot be declared by parol, 55.
trust and mortgage estates in, devolution of, 248.
trustee of, within Trustee Act, 836.
uses of, are not within Statute of Frauds, 55 note.
vesting order as to, power of Court to make, 836, 850, 851.
Wills Act, subject to, 931, 932.

CORONER, cestui que trust or trustee formerly entitled to vote for, 262.

CORPORATION.
alienation of property by, 20, 31.
attaching property of, mode of, 1213.
breach of trust by, 621, 622, 1164. See CHARITY.
bye-laws, may make, but not so as to defeat object of foundation, 629.
capacity of, to stand seised to use, or to be trustee, 2, 7, 12.
cestui que trust, may not be, of lands without license of Crown, 45, 103.
charitable trust, administration of, 30.
charity, incorporation of trustees for, 643, 644.
trustees for, appointed in place of corporation, 1091, 1092.
constructive notice, distinction between corporations and individuals as affected by, 1212.
costs, corporation, being trustees, when ordered to pay, 1276.
creation of trust by, 20.
Crown, license of, necessary for conveyance to corporation upon trust, 31; or upon trust for corporation, 45.
dissolution of, devolution of property on, 167 note.
eleemosynary, where Crown visitor of, visitatorial power committed to Lord Chancellor, 622.
equity, amenable to Court of, 30.
investment of moneys of, in real securities, 357.
loan to, trustee negotiating for, should not hand money to broker, 286.
municipal, are trustees of property under Municipal Corporations Act, 20, 31.
and cannot alienate without consent of Lords of Treasury, 20, 31.
mayor of, cannot profit by office, 310.
notice not readily imputed to, 1212.
stocks of, investment in, by trustees, 363, 364.
"true owner," cannot consent as, under Bankruptcy Act, 274.
trust for, when valid, 103.
trustee, may be, 12, 30, 31, 32.
use, could not stand seised to, 2, 30; secus as to trusts, 30.
visited by Crown, through High Court of Justice, 621, 622.

CORPUS.
costs under s. 42 of Trustee Act whether payable out of, 436.
what is to be regarded as, and what income, 340, 341, 876, 877, 1187, 1188.
And see APPORTIONMENT.

COSTS. Chap. xxxiii. s. 5, 1265-1277.
accounts, of taking, trustee entitled to, 1273.
secus, in case of misstatement, refusal to account, or other impropriety, 876, 877, 1271 et seq.
Act of Parliament, of application for, 629.
action, of, when allowed to trustee out of estate. 230 note, 710, 791.
unnecessary, trustee liable for costs of, 419.
administration action, of, are testamentary expenses, 800.
allowances to trustees, Chap. xxiv., 780-802.
expenses, for, 787 et seq. See EXPENSES. time and trouble, for, 780 et seq
appeal for, by trustee, 435, 1268 note, 1271.
appeal, of, trustee answerable for, 419.
appeal, of, trustees served with notice of, 1277.
appointment of new trustee, of improper, 771, 831.
under Trustee Act, 858.
apportionment of, in action against executor of defaulting executor, 1274.
bankrupt trustee, of, 788, 1274.
Bill in Parliament, of opposing, 718, 789.

COSTS—continued.
breach of trust, of action for, 1175, 1176, 1270 et seq.
charges and expenses, trustee when allowed, 787 et seq., 881, 1267, 1268. See EXPENSES.
claim to trust fund, of improper, 409.
conveyance, of, from trustee to c. q. t., 880 et seq.
refusal by trustee to make, at direction of c. q. t., 880 et seq.
conveyancing matters, in, under Solicitor's Remuneration Act, 789.
copies of deeds, &c., of, supplied to trustees, 831, 832.
corporation, against, pleading ignorance falsely, 1276.
or suppressing documents, 1276.
corpus or income, whether payable out of, 436.
co-trustees, contribution between, 1177.
co-trustees, of, severing in legal proceedings, 292, 1272.
Court, of application for sanction of, when allowed to trustee, 419, 421.
creditors, of, in administration action, 1268.
as between plaintiff and residuary legatee, 1268.
as between plaintiff and co-creditors, 1268.
day, of, paid by trustee not appearing at hearing, 1269.
decree, after passing of, trustee cannot get costs, 1269.
deduction of, from trust fund, 1271.
deed, of, direction to pay, implied, 796.
defaulting trustee, of, 788, 1273, 1274.
defendant, of trustee made, as necessary party, 791, 1265.
defending action, of, when allowed to trustee, 791.
denying falsely claim of plaintiff, trustee pays costs, 1275.
discharge in bankruptcy, trustee entitled to costs from date of, 1274.
disclaiming trustee, of, 221, 1270.
disclaimer by pleading, 221, 1270.
discretion of Court, are in, 1266 note, 1267 note.
but this does not deprive trustee, &c., of right to costs, 1267 note.
documents, trustee suppressing, pays costs, 1276.
doubtful construction, in case of, 1274.
point of law, 1274.
dower trustee, of, as against mortgagee, 1265.
enfranchisement of copyholds, of, may be charged on estate, 745.
estate, out of, may be given under Trustee Act, 858.
excessive, how moderated, 788.
executor or administrator, of, 797.
account, of taking, when disallowed, &c., 1276.
creditors' action, in, have priority over costs of plaintiff, 1266.
rule at law formerly different, 1266.
defaulting executor, of, 1274.
denying assets falsely, deprived of costs, 1275.
or relationship of next kin, 1277.
improperly retaining balances, 1274.
interest, where ordered to pay, as for breach of trust, 1277.
paying fund into Court under Trustee Act, 427, 1310.
real estate, right to recover costs out of, where personal exhausted, 1266.
set-off of debt of, against costs, 788.
trustee, of, suing to recover trust estate, 1275.
expenses, allowance to trustee for, 787 et seq., 1267, 1268. See EXPENSES.
extra, trustee who has been paid between party and party, where allowed, 789, 790.
fees to counsel, allowance for, 789.
fraud, trustee of deed tainted by, whether allowed his costs, 1270.

COSTS—continued.
fund in Court, out of, 1267.
ignorance, trustee falsely pleading, pays costs, 1276.
improper appointment of trustees, of, 771, 830.
infant, of trustee acting for protection of, against parent, 1275.
infants contingently entitled, out of fund of, 1267.
information, of, relator responsible for, 1202.
innocent trustee, of, guilty trustee ordered to repay, 1272.
interest on, not allowed, 790, 791.
inventory, trustee neglecting to make, deprived of costs, 231.
leasing charity lands with covenants for private advantage, trustee deprived of costs, 637.
legatee's suit, in, 1268.
lien of solicitor for, 796. See SOLICITOR.
lien of trustee for expenses, 795, 796. See LIEN.
prevails over costs of administration action, 795.
lunatic mortgagee or trustee, of vesting order as to estate of, 864, 865.
married woman when liable for, 977, 1018.
misconduct, trustee guilty of, 1270 et seq.
loses right to reimbursement, 790.
pays costs or portions thereof, 393, 394, 1088, 1270, 1271 et seq.
where misconduct discovered in progress of proceeding, 1273.
where proved only in part, 1272; or trivial, 1275.
purchase of trust property by trustee at auction, without fraud, 1272.
misstatement of accounts by trustee, 1276.
mistake, trustee committing, when ordered to pay, 1277.
neglect of trustee, of proceedings caused by, 421, 790, 1270, 1271.
new trustees, of appointing, unnecessarily or improperly, 771.
under Trustee Act, 858.
official liquidator not entitled to same latitude as trustee, 1273.
originating summons, where question capable of decision on, 421, 1271.
Parliament, of proceedings in, when allowed to trustees, 629, 718, 789.
part of action, of, trustee when allowed, 1273, 1274.
party and party, as between, 1265.
trustee receives, as against stranger, 790.
and so in action for enforcing invalid trusts, 1270.
but is entitled to be reimbursed full costs, 790. payment out of Court, of application for, under Trustee Act, 433 et seq.
payment out of Court, of petition for, where trustee respondent, 1266.
petition, trustee cannot obtain order for costs by, after decree passed, 1269.
of unnecessary appearance on, 434.
plaintiff failing not necessarily bound to pay trustee's costs, 1265.
plaintiff, of, having no interest or interest which ceases, 423.
portions, of raising, thrown on estate charged, 488.
priorities, of action to declare, 1269 note.
professional charges, trustee not permitted to make, 312, 313, 314, 782, 783, 1268.
protection of estate, for, allowed, 789.
purchase, improper, by trustee, of action to set aside, 579, 1272.
purchase, of, by trustees for purchase, 593.
real estate of, administration of, 801.
receiver, expense of, falls on tenant for life, 1264.
priority of costs and remuneration of, 1264.
recovered, how, by trustee as against c. q. t. or trust estate, 1267. See EXPENSES.
refusal to transfer trust estate, occasioned by, 880 et seq.
re-hearing, none for costs only, 1269.
reimbursement in respect of, right of trustee to, 787 et seq.

COSTS—continued.
residuary estate, out of, 435.
retaining balances improperly, trustee fixed with costs, 1274.
retention by trustee of sum to answer, 417.
retiring from caprice, trustee pays costs, 834; secus where retiring on sufficient ground, ib.
sale by trustees to raise costs and expenses, 534.
separate estate, out of, 799, 977, 978.
set-off against, for debt of executor, 788.
set-off for, by executor against legatee, 895.
solicitor's lien, how affected by, 894 note.
setting aside deed, of, 1270.
setting up title of his own, or trust different from existing one, trustee pays costs, 1276, 1277.
Settled Land Act, under, trustee may reimburse himself, 790.
payable out of purchase-money, 682, 684, 685.
severing in defence, costs of trustees, 292, 1272.
solicitor and client, as between, 1267 et seq.
allowed in matters between c. q. t. and trustee, 789, 1267.
creditors' and legatees' suits, in, where estate deficient, 1268.
disclaiming trustee, not allowed to, 1270.
jurisdiction to award, 1265, 1267.
trustee and stranger, as between, may be allowed, 1265.
solicitor, costs of, when trustee, 312 et seq., 1268. See SOLICITOR.
cestui que trust obtaining taxation against, 790, 797, 798.
professional charges not allowed to, when trustee, 312, 313, 314, 1268.
Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, under, 789.
specific performance, in action for, trustee when entitled to charge, on estate, 511.
taxation or moderation of bill of, at instance of c. q. t., 788, 790, 797, 798.
tenant for life, incurred by, when allowed to trustees, 789.
tender of, to party whose appearance is unnecessary, 434 note.
testamentary expenses, what are, 800, 801.
trust to pay, how construed, 801.
trustee, of, as between himself and stranger, trustee on no better footing than ordinary litigant, 1265.
as between himself and c. q. t., 1267 et seq.
costs, charges and expenses, when allowed, 534, 787 et seq., 1268.
fund in Court, out of, 1267.
not appearing at hearing, may pay costs of day, and have cause reheard, 1269.
secus after decree passed, 1269.
payment into Court, of, under Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, 433 et seq.
payment out of Court, on, of fund under Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, 433 et seq.
priority of, 1266, 1267, 1268. trustee when ordered to pay, 1265 et seq.
Trustee Act, under, 855, 858.
unfounded claim, of, 409.
unnecessary appearance, of, 434.
unsuccessful application, of, trustee pays, 1266, 1274, 1275.
void deed, trustee of, where entitled to costs, 795, 1270.

COTTAGE PROPERTY, investment in, 376.

CO-TRUSTEE, CO-TRUSTEES.
acceptance of compromise from one trustee does not pro tanto release the others, 1176.
acknowledgment of debt by one, 290, 1133.

CO-TRUSTEE, CO-TRUSTEES—continued.
act of one when binding on all, 290.
bankruptcy, all must prove in, 290.
bankruptcy of, liability of co-trustee for costs, 788.
proof for trust debt how to be made, 1189.
breach of trust, each is responsible to c. q. t. for whole liability and costs, 1175 et seq.
each liable for concealing or permitting, 303, 304.
permitting, is liable to be removed, 1087.
threatened by co-trustee, duty of trustee to prevent, 304.
cestui que trust one of, cannot hold others responsible for joint breach of trust, 1194, 1195.
charity trustees, majority of, may act, 290, 291, 635, 642, 643, 747.
communications between, not privileged, 1253.
composition or release of debt, all must act as to, 740.
compromise, acceptance of payment by way of, from one trustee does not pro tanto release the others, 1176.
contribution between, 1177 et seq.
conveyance, all must concur in, 290 et seq.
copyholds, enfranchisement of, by one or more, 291.
custody of chattels by, 328.
of deeds may be committed to one, 875.
delegation of office to co-trustee, 282 et seq. See DELEGATION.
in case of discretionary trust, 288.
where authorised by testator, 305.
disagreeing, when Court will exercise power, 1075.
receiver appointed, 1263.
dividends, receipt of, by one, 291.
following trust money into hands of, 1156.
fraud of, co-trustee not liable for, 283.
impounding beneficial interest of, in respect of breach of trust, rights as to, 1181.
indemnity clause, its effect as to co-trustees, 305.
investment, in making, should not rely on statement of co-trustee, 297.
investment on loan to, improper, 380.
joint, their office is, 289.
must jointly give receipts for principal money, 290.
must all prove in bankruptcy, 290.
in public trusts majority binds, 290, 291, 635, 642, 747.
legal proceedings, should not sever in, 292.
lend should not, to one of themselves, 380.
liability, one when liable for acts or defaults of another, 294 et seq., 757, 887, 1272.
not for joining pro forma in receipts, 296; provided he did not actually receive money, 297.
unless money permitted to lie in hands of co-trustee, 297.
lien of, for contribution on interest of co-trustee, 1177 et seq.
majority, how far acts of, binding, 290, 291, 635, 642, 747.
Mercantile Law Amendment Act, how affected by, 1177.
notice to one, effect of, 909, 910.
office of, is joint, 289.
payment to, 1177; how to be made, 325, 326, 555, 556.
professional, unprofessional must not rely on, 230.
purchase, cannot, from co-trustee, 569, 590.
quorum, Court sometimes allows a part to form, 291.
receipts for money by, 290, 554. See RECEIPT.
co-trustee joining in, when liable, 296, 299, 330, 530.
release of one, effect of, 1190.

CO-TRUSTEE, CO-TRUSTEES—continued.
rents, receipt of, by one co-trustee, sufficient, 291.
but co-trustee having notice of misapplication is liable, 291.
retention of money by, unnecessarily, not to be permitted, 325.
sale, each liable for conduct of, 501.
sale to, by co-trustee improper, 590.
severing in action or defence, costs of, 292, 1272.
solicitor, co-trustee should not rely on, 788, 789, 1170.
nor in general employ him as solicitor to trust, 788, 789.
solicitor and counsel, should employ the same, 292.
special power, all must join in exercise of, 291.
statement of, co-trustee should not rely on mere, 297.
surveyor under Lands Clauses Act, co-trustee should not be appointed, 289.
survivorship of office of, 293, 294.
notwithstanding power to appoint new trustees, 294.
trust money, may not lend, to co-trustee, 380.
may not confide, to co-trustee even though a professional person, 230.
whether one co-trustee should permit another to receive, 230, 282.

COUNSEL.
advice of, trustee acting under, how far protected, 231 note, 406, 791.
appearance by, for trustee and tenant for life, 420 note.
cestui que trust entitled to copies of opinions of, 874, 875.
co-trustees should employ same, 292.
fees to, when allowed to trustee, 221, 789.
opinion of, as to disclaimer, trustee entitled to take, 221.
as to title, trustee for sale or purchase should take, 511, 586.
trustee when bound to produce, 874, 875, 1253.
purchase of trust property by, improper, 571.
trustee when allowed fees paid to, 221, 789.

COUNTY COURT.
administration of trusts in, where value not more than 500*l.*, 437.
judicial trustee, jurisdiction to appoint, 700.
jurisdiction of, in charities whose income under 50*l.*, 1092 note, 1207.
appeal from, to Court of Chancery, 1207.
payment into, of trust funds not exceeding 500*l.*, 437.
proceedings in, under Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 437.
receiver by way of equitable execution, appointment of, 105.

COUNTY STOCK, investment in, 364.

COURT.
Act of Parliament, sanction of Court to application for, 629.
advice of, how obtained by trustee, 419 et seq., 771.
appeal, of, constitution of, 15.
jurisdiction of judges of, in lunacy, 860.
approval of, duties of person seeking to obtain, 574.
assignment of fund in, 917, 918. breach of trust, jurisdiction of Court to relieve from consequences of, 1169 et seq.
conversion by order of, 172, 173, 174, 1233.
discharge of trustee by authority of, 832 et seq.
discretion of trustee, when Court will interfere with, 765 et seq.
fund in, stop-order on, priority by obtaining, 917, 918.
investment on mortgage formerly not ordered by, 346, 347.
leave of, to appoint new trustees, 771.
leave of, to institute or defend action, 747.

COURT—continued.
mortgage, may direct money to be raised by, 503.
opinion of, duty of trustee to obtain, before taking proceedings, 791.
power, when and how Court will exercise, 1074 et seq.
powers of trustees, control of Court over exercise of, 765 et seq.
purchase by trustees of fund in, 593.
sale by, conduct of, to whom given, 532.
conversion when effected by, 172, 173, 174, 1226.
purchaser under, may apply for appointment of new trustee, 857.
surplus proceeds of, devolution of, 173.
sale to trustees for sale authorised by, 574.
sanction of, to exercise of powers by trustees, 418, 419, 499, 532, 587, 771.
trustee when entitled to decline to act without, 419.
Settled Land Acts, powers of Court under, 673, 682, 686 et seq., 772 et seq.
Supreme Court of Judicature, constitution of, 15.
trust money may be paid into, 424 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
trustee appointed by, powers of, 760.
paying under order of, not entitled to release, 418, 419.
validity of acts of, which Court would sanction, 710.

COVENANT.
annuity, to secure, how far a charge on covenantor's property, 161.
cestui que trust, action by, to enforce, 1094.
charge on lands, to give, trust when created by, 161.
construction of, distinction between "property" and "power" to be observed in, 994 note.
conversion by, 1215, 1218.
Conveyancing Act, 1881, provisions of, as to covenant binding heirs, 230.
copyholds, to surrender, makes covenantor trustee within Trustee Act, 837.
executor, by, to whom lease granted for benefit of estate, 522 note.
future property, to settle—avoidance of, under Bankruptcy Act, 1882, . . . 86.
execution creditor of settlor, right of, as against c. q. t., 250.
feme covert, having decree for judicial separation, by, 404.
gift from husband to wife, 994.
implied trust arising by virtue of, 161.
infant feme covert, by, 24, 25.
land purchased by covenantor, right to follow money into, 1156.
savings of married woman, whether bound by, 993.
trustee bound to enforce, 320.
trustee entitled to assume due performance of, 231.
"grant, bargain and sale" under Yorkshire Registry Acts, 882.
"grant" under Lands Clauses Act, implies covenants for title, 882.
heir or devisee when bound by, 219.
incumbrances, that property is free from, effect of, 928, 929.
indemnity, for, against covenants in lease, when to be given, 525, 526.
infant, by, effect of, 24, 25.
land, to convey, on trust to sell, next of kin when entitled to benefit of, 1224.
lease, in, for trustees' private advantage, improper, 637.
performance of, evidenced by receipt for rent, 520.
renewal, for, trustee does not enter into, 522 note.
trustee legally liable on, 265.
money, to lay out in purchase of land, heir when entitled to benefit of, 1218 et seq.
neglect by trustee to enforce, liability for, 320, 1164.
power, to exercise, in particular way in futuro, 769 note.

COVENANT—continued.
production of title-deeds, for, right of purchaser to, 519 et seq.
quiet enjoyment, for, effect of, as exoneration of charge, 928.
renewal of lease, for, within specified time, 452.
restrictive, adverse possession, 1122.
satisfaction of covenant by subsequent gift or legacy, 474. See SATISFACTION.
seised, to stand, to use of stranger in blood, not enforced in equity, 86.
stock, to transfer, liability of trustee for not enforcing, 1164.
trustees for sale, by, for title, 522, 523.
to produce deeds, 519, 523, 524.
voluntary, carries consideration at law, 86.
cestui que trust, action by, to enforce, 1094.
consideration ex post facto, may acquire support from, 87 note.
payable out of assets before legacies, 87 note.
specific execution of, not enforced in equity, 86, 87.
to lay out money in land, whether enforceable by heir, 1221.
words, what, suffice to give rise to, 229, 230.

COVERTURE. See MARRIED WOMAN.

CUSTODIAN TRUSTEE, public trustee may be appointed, 701.

CRASSA NEGLIGENTIA. See NEGLIGENCE.

CREATION OF TRUST. act of party, by, 19.
charity, in favour of, 57, 620.
chattels, of, 55.
copyholds, of, 55.
deed when requisite for, 54.
formalities requisite for, under Statute of Frauds, 55 et seq.
imperfect, where some further act is intended, 71.
intention by settlor to create trust essential, 88.
lands, of, 57 et seq. See FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
law, by operation of, 19.
legal interest must be actually vested in trustee where capable of transfer, 73, 74.
where property is incapable of transfer, quære, 74 et seq.
mortgage money, of, 56.
parol, by, when effectual, 53, 55, 56, 68.
parties to, Chap. iii., 19-47.
settlor, who may be, 19 et seq. See SETTLOR.
trustee, who may be, 28 et seq.
precatory words, by, 148, et seq.
property, what may be subject of, Chap. iv., 48-52.
testamentary instrument when requisite for, 60-62.
transmutation of possession not necessary where trust perfectly created, 71.
Wills, Statutes of, how affected by, Chap. v. s. 3, 60-70.
writing when requisite for, 60 et seq.

CREDITOR. See DEBT.
acquiescence, when bound by, 603, 613, 1198.
adoption of trust deed by, 602, 613.
advertisement for, by executors, 436, 437.
assets, right of creditor to recover, from legatees, 414.
business carried on by trustee, rights of creditor of, 794.
confirmation, when bound by, 583.
costs of administration action by, 1268, 1269.
enforcement of trust by, 605.

CREDITOR—continued.
execution by, 1028 et seq.; equitable, 989, 992, 1051 et seq. See JUDGMENT.
execution creditor may purchase goods sold under execution, 575.
taking trust estate under execution, bound by trust, 250, 276.
executor protected by advertisement against creditors of testator, 436.
rights of creditor as against, 560, 561.
fraud upon, trust for, unlawful, 18, 81 et seq.
by agreement for preference, 599.
laches, when barred by, 1198.
maintenance of debtor, how far entitled to benefit of trust for, 112 et seq., 885.
married woman, of, restraint on anticipation when ineffectual as against, 1013, 1019.
rights of, against separate property, 992. See MARRIED WOMAN.
pari passu, all creditors now rank, 230, 617, 1070.
priority of, over legatee under trust for payment of debts and legacies, 615, 616.
over person claiming under voluntary bond or covenant, 87 note.
receiver when appointed at instance of, 1097.
restriction on alienation, rights of creditors not defeated by, 111 et seq.
separate property of married woman, his remedies against, 992. See MARRIED WOMAN. settlements, voluntary or otherwise, when invalid as against, 81 et seq., 599, 609.
specialty, priority of, 616, 1069, 1070.
subsequent, voluntary settlement when defeasible by, 84, 599, 609.
trust for payment of creditors, 598 et seq. See DEBT.
when irrevocable, 604 et seq.

CREDITORS' DEED, 598-619. See DEBT, trust for payment of debts.
adoption of, by creditor, 602, 613.
communication to creditor, effect of, 605, 606.
disputed debt, creditor permitted to sign for, 613.
fraudulent, when, under 13 Eliz. c. 5, . . . 81 et seq., 599, 609.
general words in, effect of, 600 note.
inspector under, profiting by fiduciary character is constructively a trustee, 208, 310.
mortgagee, proof by, 612.
surplus, resulting trust of, whether arising under, 167.
time for creditors to come in, 613.
trustee of, making payment by mistake, not accountable, 408.
purchase of trust property by, when permitted, 573.
time when he should begin to act, 604.
whether revocable or irrevocable, 605 et seq.

CRIMINAL ACT, trustee whether liable for acts of agent or stranger, 328.

CRIMINAL LUNATIC, vesting order of property of, 864.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS in respect of breach of trust, 1157, 1158.

CROWN.
alien, when entitled to benefit of trust for, 103.
bona vacantia, Crown can sue for, without inquisition, 103.
executor when entitled as against Crown, 63, 317.
where c. q. t. dies intestate and without next of kin Crown takes residuary personalty, 164, 181, 317, 318.
cestui que trust, may be, 44.
conversion, excluded by doctrine of, 1225.
Court of Equity has no jurisdiction over conscience of, 29.
debt, extent for, 1057, 1058.

CROWN—continued.
debt, registration of judgment for, 1045 et seq., 1055, 1056.
search for, on purchase of land, 587, 1045, 1046, 1056.
escheat, claiming by, whether bound by Trustee Act, 10, 846.
Exchequer, Court of, jurisdiction of, as affecting Crown, 30.
executor, right of, to residue as against, 63.
extent from, what property bound by, 1057, 1058. See EXTENT.
felon, rights of Crown on conviction of, 28.
forfeiture, taking by, whether bound by trust, 276.
Frauds, Statute of, whether bound by, 57.
gift by subject to, formalities requisite to, 45.
inquisition when necessary to perfect title of, 45.
Intestates' Estates Act, 1884, sale under, of real estate to which Crown entitled, 45.
license of, required to conveyance to corporation upon trust, 31.
or conveyance upon trust for corporation, 45.
parens patriæ, is, 1202.
prize of war vests in, 20.
warrant for distribution of, does not constitute Crown trustee, 20.
recognisances to, registration of, 1046 note.
resulting trust in favour of, 20, 167, 181.
service of petition on, under Trustee Act, 1305.
Settled Land Acts, bound by exercise of powers of, 658. statute, when bound by, 57.
trust how created by, 19, 20.
enforcement of, against, 29.
trustee, anciently could not sustain character of, 2.
secus in modern times, 7, 29.
use, can declare, by letters patent, 54.
visitor of charity, when Crown is, and how powers exercised, 622.
will of sovereign, trust may be created by, 20.

CURTESY.
adverse possession of stranger excludes right of, 946.
death of wife, does not arise until, 962.
dower distinguished from, 945, 948.
equitable estate, of, 933.
money to be laid out in land, in, 946.
not where husband an alien, 945.
notwithstanding trust for separate use, 947.
where feme covert had equitable seisin, 945, 946.
exclusion of, in carrying out executory trust, 135.
money to be laid out in land is subject to, 1215.
seisin, what required to give, 945 et seq.
separate estate of wife, of, 947.
tenant by, anciently not liable to execution of use, 2.
but held bound by trust, 8, 9, 275.
powers of, under Settled Land Acts, 658.
trust estate, of, permitted, 246.
use, not admitted of, 2.

CUSTODY.
property, of, by judicial trustee, 700; by public trustee, 707.
title-deeds, of, who entitled to, 873 et seq.
trust chattels, of, 327 et seq.
trust deed, of, not constructive acceptance of trust, 227.
vouchers, of, 531.

CUSTOM.
descent, as to, governs descent of equitable interest, 1062.
gavelkind, of, 24. See GAVELKIND LANDS. surrender to use of will, restraining, 931.

CUSTOMARY FREEHOLDS. copyholds, are now regarded as, 277, 278, 931.
devise of, how effected, 931, 932.
equitable interest in, how devised, 932.
Statute of Frauds, are within, 932.

CYPRES.
advowson, trust of, in favour of parishioners, 88, 89.
charity, doctrine in favour of, 1076, 1077.
application of, as against resulting trust, 181.
marriage articles, execution of settlement under, 129.

DAMAGES.
mere right to, cannot be set off against debt, 899.
trustee, recovered against, when chargeable on trust estate, 793.

DAUGHTER.
advancement, doctrine of presumption of, applies to daughters, 198.
"heirs female," "heirs of body" or "issue" in executory trusts include daughters, 130, 131, 137.
limitation to, how executed, 131, 137.
younger child, treated as, entitled to portion, 463.

DEATH.
cestui que trust, of, presumption of, by disappearance for seven years, 408.
trustee, of, trust not defeated by, 1073.
without issue, presumption of, 408.

DEBENTURES AND DEBENTURE STOCK.
charging order not made on, 1040 note.
choses in action, are, within Bankruptcy Act, 273.
distinction between, considered as investment, 351, 352. railway company, of, trustees when authorised to invest in, 351, 352, 364, 365, 366, 369, 380.

DEBT.
accumulation of income for payment of, when lawful, 99 et seq.
acknowledgment of, by one trustee, 290, assets for payment of, what are, 1063 et seq. See ASSETS. assignable now under 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, . . 76; but assignment must be in writing, and notice given, ib.
assignee of, bound by equities affecting assignor, 894.
notice to debtor to be given by, 894, 895.
bond creditors cannot receive more than amount of penalty, 619.
breach of trust gives rise to, 229, 1173.
buying up debt on trust estate, trustee disqualified from, 307.
charge of debts, effect of, as to conferring fee in devises, 235, 243.
implied declaration of trust by, 160.
makes land equitable assets, 1064.
power to sell and give receipts when and in whom implied by reason of, 543 et seq.
when barred under Statutes of Limitation, 1127 et seq.
composition of, by trustee, or executor, 738, 739.
devise to debtor does not create lien on estate, 1180.

DEBT—continued.
executor, duty of, to discharge debts out of assets, 394, 598, 1063.
executor, from, to estate, duty of co-executor to get in, 303.
exoneration of personal estate, 801.
husband when liable for debts of wife, 1022, 1023, 1027.
imprisonment for, defaulting trustee when liable to, 1191 et seq.
interest on, when allowed under creditor's deed, 617 et seq. See INTEREST.
judgment, execution of, against equitable estate, 1028 et seq. See JUDGMENT.
Limitation, Statutes of, when barred under, 1118 et seq.; debts barred by, not revived by trust for payment, 610; executor may pay, before decree, 737; or retain his own debt, 737. See LIMITATIONS, STATUTES OF.
lunatic, of, how defrayed, 1241.
order of payment of, in administration of assets, 1063 et seq. See ASSETS.
under trust for creditors, 615 et seq.
outstanding, duty of trustees and executors to get in, 323 et seq.
payment into Court when ordered on admission of, 1259, 1260.
real estate liable to payment of, 539.
release of, by trustee or executor, 738, 739.
residue, as between tenant for life and remainderman of, how to be provided for, 336 et seq.
retainer of, by executor or administrator, 737, 1070 et seq.
sale for payment of debts, powers of Trustee Act in case of, 847.
satisfaction of, by subsequent advance or legacy, 478 et seq.
secret agreement by debtor with creditor, 614.
set-off of, 895 et seq. See SET-OFF. simple contract, by, 228, 616, 1173. See SIMPLE CONTRACT.
interest on, when allowed under creditors' deed, 617.
specialty, by, 228, 229, 616. See SPECIALTY DEBT. carries interest to time of payment though released by creditors' deed, 618, 619.
tenant for life of residue not entitled to enjoyment in specie of, 335.
trust for payment of debts, Chap. XX., 598-619.
accumulation, by way of, excepted from Thellusson Act, 99.
act of bankruptcy, when committed by creation of, 600 et seq.
adoption of, by creditor, 602, 613.
assignment executed abroad, 603.
charge, distinguished from, 166, 167.
communication to creditor, effect of, 605, 606.
creditor not bound by, in creditors' deed, unless terms strictly fulfilled, 603.
when entitled to benefit of creditors' deed, 613.
debts payable under, 609 et seq.
order of payment of, 615 et seq.
discretion of trustees to admit claims, 614.
equitable assets, land devised upon, is, 1064.
executor, where trustee is also, 616.
fraud, avoided by, 599.
question of, is one of fact, 600 note.
fraudulent conveyance by trader, 599, 603, 604.
fraudulent, when trust is, within 13 Eliz. c. 5, . . . 599, 609.
interest, allowance of, 617 et seq.
irrevocable, when, 604 et seq.
legacy duty when payable by creditors under, 611.
Limitation, Statutes of, application of, 610, 611, 1125 note, 1128.
mortgagee or other secured creditor, rights of, 612.
personalty, out of, when nugatory, 598, 611.
post obit trust, not revocable, 608.

DEBT—trust for payment of debts—continued.
repudiation of, by creditor, 613, 614.
resulting trust of surplus, 603.
resumption by trustees of property under creditors' deed, 614.
revocable, unless communicated to creditors, 604 et seq.
nature of revocable trust, 607, 608.
time, trust for creditors who come in within certain, 613.
trader and non-trader, distinction between, under old bankruptcy laws, 599.
abolished under recent Act, 603, 604.
trustee, duties of, under, Chap. xx. s. 3, 598.
cannot contest debt under creditors' deed for which he has permitted creditor to sign, 613.
purchase of trust property by, when upheld, 573.
trustee, time when he should begin to act, 604.
unclaimed dividends, trustees not entitled to, 617.
validity of, 598 et seq.
voluntary, how far revocable, 605, 606.
will, by, how to be exercised, 543, 544.
for payment of debts out of personalty nugatory, 598.
secus out of realty, 598.
purchaser under, when bound to see to application of purchase-money, 539 et seq.
trustee, of, has no priority over others, 616.
voluntary bond or covenant, created by, 87 note.

DEBTORS' ACTS (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62; 41 & 42 Vict. c. 54).
defaulting trustee when liable to imprisonment under, 1160 note, 1191 et seq.

DEBTS RECOVERY ACT, 1830.
Equitable tenant for life is "devisee" within, 930 note.

DECLARATION, statutory, vesting estate in new trustee, 811, 812.

DECLARATION OF TRUST.
acceptance of trust by, 224, 228.
averment of trust at common law, 53; must not contradict or be repugnant to instrument, 53.
charge, distinguished from, 166, 167.
charity, in favour of, 57, 626.
chattels, of, 55.
common law, at, 53, 54.
"conveyance or assignment," is not, within Bankruptcy Act, 86 note.
conveyance to trustees, in case of, how to be made, 593, 594.
copyholds, of, 54; by feme covert a "disposition" in equity, 21.
deed when requisite for, 53.
directly or by implication, 124 et seq.
executory words, by use of, 127 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
Frauds, Statute of, in conformity with, 54 et seq.
interests within the Act, 55-57.
what formalities required, 57-59.
husband, gift by, to wife whether effectual as, 72, 73.
lands, of, 57 et seq. See FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
lunatic or idiot, by, jurisdiction in equity to set aside, 24.
mortgage money, of, 56.
parol, when sufficient, 53, 55.
devisee made trustee on face of will, and parol declaration of trust for stranger, 68, 69.
subsequent parol declaration does not affect, 56.

DECLARATION OF TRUST—continued.
perfect, when, 71, 72.
reference, by, how to be framed, 594.
technical terms not requisite for, 124, 125.
testamentary instrument when requisite for, 58, 59.
transmutation of possession not necessary where trust perfectly created, 71.
unattested will inoperative as, 60.
Wills, Statutes of, effect of, Chap. v. s. 3, 60-70.
writing when requisite for, 57 et seq.

DECREE. See JUDGMENT. account, for, does not operate as judgment, 1037 note.
conveyance, for, under Trustee Act, effect of, 847.
costs, trustee should ask for, before decree passed, 1240.
exchange, for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Act, 847, 848.
execution of trust, for, effect of, as to powers of trustees, 747, 748, 770, 771.
judgment, has same effect as, 1037.
lien, creates, upon real estate, 1069 note ; but see 1047, 1048.
partition, for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Act, 847, 848.
payment into Court before, when ordered, 1256, 1257 ; after, when, 1258.
sale, for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Act, 847.
Court may make vesting order after, 847.
equitable interests bound by, 1293 note.
specific performance, for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Act, 847.
trustees, powers of, suspended by, 747, 770.
but decree does not release trustee from his duties, 748.
secus, if action brought but no decree, 748, 771.
vesting order consequential on, 847, 848.

DE DONIS, STATUTE OF.
estate pur autre vie not within, 891.
estate tail created by, 890.

DEED.
acceptance of trust, whether it should be by, 228, 229.
construction of, earlier words in, held to prevail, secus in will, 236.
creditors, when invalid as against, 81 et seq.
delivery of, 39.
disclaimer of trust or estate, when requisite for, 220.
of married woman's interest in land must be by deed acknowledged, 223.
enrolled, not a "scheme legally established" within 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, 642 note.
equitable interests usually assigned by, 890.
infant, by, 24, 39.
lunatic, by, when void, 24.
parties to, where good as between, though void as against others, 601.
title, of, 873 et seq. See TITLE DEED.
use, to prove, when required, 54.
validity of, Court decided as to, under Trustee Relief Act, 430.
will contrasted with, 61.

DEEDS OF ARRANGEMENT ACT, 1887, . . . 614, 615.

DEFAULTING TRUSTEE. See BREACH OF TRUST.
assignment of beneficial interest by, 893, 894.
costs of, 788.
other trustees justified in severing from, 292 note.
when liable to attachment, 1191 et seq.

DEFENCE, equitable, recognised in all Courts, 872.

DEFENDANT. See COSTS. trustee who is, entitled to be reimbursed his costs, 791 et seq.
where legal process lost through default of, equity aids, 1146.

DEFINITION.
settlement, of, under Settled Land Act, 646. tenant for life, of, under Settled Land Act, 656 et seq.
trust, of, 11.
use, of, 2.

DELAY. See LACHES.

DELEGATION.
appointment of attorney or proxy, distinguished from, 289.
conveyance of trust estate does not transfer powers, 288, 289.
co-trustee, liability for fraud of, 286.
discretionary trust, of, actually void, 288.
though to co-trustee or co-executor, 288.
executors distinguished at law and in equity as to, 288.
office of trustee, of, not permitted, 282.
unless by settlor's direction, 284.
or where moral necessity for it, e.g. transmission of money, 284.
receipts, of power of signing, 554. trustee for sale may not delegate trust, but may employ agent, 501, 514.

DELIVERY.
chattels passing by, custody of, by trustee, 328.
deed, of, 38.
land, of, in execution, 1048 et seq.
money, of, voluntary, whether any resulting trust upon, 166.
possession, of, to remainderman, 882.

DEMURRER.
Limitation, Statutes of, right to raise, by way of demurrer, 1115.
pleading in lieu of, under new practice, 1115.

DENIAL, false, executor or trustee making, fixed with costs, 1275.

DEPOSIT.
sale by auction, on, duties of trustees as to, 517, 531, 588.
title-deeds, of, effect of, 273, 276 note, 921. See MORTGAGE, equitable.
trust money, of, with bankers of trustees, 326, 329, 330.
trustees for purchasing may pay, 588.

DEPRECIATORY CONDITIONS, sale by trustee under, 516, 517.

DERIVATIVE EQUITIES, trustees not liable for, without notice, 403.

DERIVATIVE SETTLEMENT, effect of, under Settled Land Acts, 650 et seq.

DERIVATIVE TRUSTEES, 418.

DESCENT. See HEIR.
assets by, 1063.
broken, by devise upon trust to convey to heir, 1062.
equitable estate descends as legal estate, 1061.
though there be lex loci, 1062.
so in copyholds, gavelkind lands, &c., 48, 1062, 1063.
possessio fratris, 933, 1062.
executory trust of gavelkind lands, under, 1063.
half blood may now inherit, 1062.
proceeds of sale of gavelkind lands descend to common law heirs, 1062.

"DESIRE," may raise a trust, 148.

DETERMINATION OF TRUST, cestuis que trust, by, solely interested, 884 et seq.

DEVASTAVIT, 281, 415, 563, 987, 1172. See EXECUTOR.

DEVISE. See WILL.
alien and British subject, to, upon trust, 40, 41.
consideration, a devise implies, 148.
debts, for payment of, 598 et seq.
equitable estate, of, without words of limitation, 125.
equitable interest passes by, 930, 931, 1074.
in copyholds, 931.
estate contracted to be sold, legal estate in, when passing under, 259, 260.
general devise, effect of, 252; as to trust estates, 252, 253.
implied by word "trustee," 239, 240.
land, of, includes money to be laid out on land, 1217.
legal estate, when passing under devise to trustees, 247, 248, 250, 255. See LEGAL ESTATE.
mortmain, devise upon secret trust in, whether void at law, 65 et seq.
resulting trust for heir, when arising, 163, 170, 171. See RESULTING TRUST.
"securities for money," mortgage in fee passes under, 254, 255.
several, to, good as to one, void as to another, 66.
surviving trustee, executors of, whether entitled to execute trust, 257, 259.
trust, of, 930, 1074; in freeholds, 930, 931; in copyholds, 930, 931; in customary freeholds, 931, 932.
trust estate when passing under, 252 et seq.
not when charge of debts or direction to sell, 253.
or complicated limitation, 254.
or gift to woman for separate use, 254.
trustee, to, when to be construed to pass fee simple, 252.
trustee, whether entitled to devise trust estate, 255 et seq.
where gift is to him and his "assigns," 257 et seq.
unlawful trust, upon, when void, 66.
uses, to, when legal estate passes to trustee under, 244.

DEVISEE.
"assign" of trustee, whether devisee is, 258 et seq.
creditors, how far devisee a trustee for, 310, 311.
debtor, of, 1063; liable to specialty creditor, 229, 230; now to simple contract debts, 230.
declaration of trust, parol, or unattested, not binding on, 62.
except in case of fraud, 64.
fraud by, constructive trusteeship created by, 64.
incumbrance, effect of purchase of, by devisee, 310, 311.
infant, when a constructive trustee under Trustee Act, 836.
receipt of, purchaser when discharged by, 543 et seq.
retainer of debt by, 1068, 1069 note.
secret trust, devisee must discover, 66 et seq. And see UNLAWFUL TRUST.
trust, upon, where no trust declared, holds for heir or residuary devisee, 68.
trustee, of, is bound by trust, 275.
where sale to trustee set aside, is entitled to money, 579.
whether competent to execute trust, 256 et seq., 288 et seq.
unlawful trust, secret engagement by devisee to execute, 66, 67.
vesting order as to estate of, 836, 845.

DEVOLUTION. See DESCENT. equitable estate, of, 1062 et seq. See EQUITABLE ESTATE.
legal estate, of, in trustee, 246 et seq. See LEGAL ESTATE.

DIRECT TRUST. Chap. viii. s. 1, 124-148. See EXPRESS TRUST.

DIRECTOR.
accepting fully paid-up shares from promoter, liability of, 1167.
borrowing money in excess of powers, position of, 745.
breach of trust committed by company, director not personally liable for, 214.
building society, of, not trustee within Trustee Act, 1893 . . . 366.
misapplying moneys of company, liable as trustee, 1137 note.
notice to, of assignment of shares, 914.
paying dividends out of capital cannot plead Statute of Limitations, 1161.
profit, cannot make, by his office, 310.
speculative investments, may not be liable for, 394.
trustee, in what sense director is, 310 note.

DIRECTORY.
clause in will for settlement of chattels, 139 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
powers, 751.

DISABILITY.
persons under, when barred by Statutes of Limitation, 1112, 1113.
trustee, of, statutory jurisdiction of Court in case of, 835 et seq.
to purchase trust estate, 568 et seq. See PURCHASE.

DISAGREEMENT.
co-trustees, between, Court exercises power in case of, 1075.
a ground for appointment of a receiver, 1263.

DISCHARGE.
bankrupt, of, trust debt how far barred by, 1189 et seq.
executor, of, from office, 835.
receiver, of, 1264.
trustee, of, from office, Chap. xxvi., 803 et seq.
by application to Court, 832 et seq.
by appointment of new trustees by Court, 837.
by consent of c. q. t. 803.
by payment of trust fund into Court under statutory power, 424, 427.
by virtue of special or statutory power, 804 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
judgment or decree for execution of trust does not operate as, 748.

DISCLAIMER, 219-224.
acts, may be shown by, 221.
agent to trust, trustee disclaiming may act as, 221.
charge, of, once accepted, does not prevent forfeiture, 117.
chattels, of, 223.
conveyance, should not be by way of, 220.
copyholds, of, as affecting lord of manor, 264, 265.
costs of disclaiming trustee, 221, 1270.
counsel, trustee may take opinion of, as to disclaimer, 221.
deed, by, when requisite, 220, 221.
delay, should be made without, 220.
but need not be within any particular time, 220.
disclaiming trustee may act as agent to trust, 221, 222.
may purchase trust property, 569.
effect of, 223, 224.
equity, in, by answer or at bar, 221.
by evidence of conduct, 221.
failure of trustees by reason of, relief of c. q. t. in case of, 1073 et seq.
form of, 220, 221.
heir of trustee, by, when effectual, 219, 220.

DISCLAIMER—continued.
heir taking by disclaimer of trustee, is trustee within Trustee Act, 837.
legal estate, what disclaimer will divest, 221.
disclaimer of, distinguished from disclaimer of office, 221, 222.
married woman, by, 223.
new trustee, appointment of, in place of disclaiming trustee, 814, 815.
parol, effect of disclaimer by, as to chattel interest, 222, 223.
freeholds, as to, when effectual, 222.
partial, is ineffectual, 220, 225.
personal contracts, effect of disclaimer by trustee as to, 224.
pleading, by, 221.
power, of, 758, 759, 760.
exercise of, how affected by disclaimer of trustee, 223, 554, 760, 1075.
presumption of, from lapse of time, 225.
protector of settlement, by, under Fines and Recoveries Act, 224.
purchase of trust property by disclaiming trustee permitted, 569.
receipt need not be signed by trustee who has disclaimed, 554.
receiver not appointed in consequence of disclaimer of one of several trustees, 1263.
record, by matter of, formerly deemed necessary, 222.
refusal to act, whether equivalent to, 816.
release with intention of disclaiming whether equivalent to, 220, 760.
renunciation of probate, disclaimer does not operate as, 249.
to what extent evidence of, 225.
retrospective operation of, 224.
several trusts, whether trustee under, can disclaim one and accept another, 227.
time within which disclaimer should be made, 220.
trust not defeated by disclaimer of trustee, 1073.
Uses, under Statute of, 222, 223.
voluntary trust, disclaimer of trustee does not avoid, 74.

DISCOVERY.
cestui que trust, information as to state of trust, to be given to, 887, 907.
production of documents to, 1253, 1254. See PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS.
fraud, of, time runs from, 1114, 1121, 1126, 1142, 1150.
secret trust, of, when enforced, 67, 68.

DISCRETION.
advancement of infant, as to, not interfered with by Court, 735.
bankruptcy of c. q. t., when affected by, 111.
conversion of property, as to, Court will not interfere with trustee's, 322, 332, 333.
costs are in discretion of Court, 1266.
Court, of, as to payment out of fund under Trustee Act, 432, 433.
creditors' deed, of trustees of, 614.
decree or judgment, effect of, on discretionary powers, 667.
employment of agent, to be exercised in, 285 note.
equity to settlement, discretion of Court in giving effect to, 956.
executor, of, as to getting in assets, 320, 321. failure of trustee to exercise, how remedied by Court, 1075 et seq.
infant cannot exercise, 37.
investment, as to, duty of trustee to exercise, 348, 349, 351, 354, 355, 356, 368.
payment into Court by trustee having, when ordered, 1260, 1261.
power, discretionary, exercise of, by trustees, 503, 504, 709, 714, 736. See POWER.
by Court in lieu of trustees, 1078 et seq.
reasons for exercise of, trustee not bound to assign, 504, 769.

DISCRETION—continued.
but if he assign erroneous reasons Court will interfere, 769.
reluctance of Court to interfere with discretion of trustees, 322, 614, 765 et seq., 1245, 1263.
varying securities, as to, how to be exercised by trustees, 332, 333.

DISCRETIONARY TRUST. delegation of, by trustee, void, 288; even to co-trustee, 288.
examples of, 17.
execution of, by trustee, Court will not interfere as to mode of, 769.
legal estate passing to trustee under, 244.
maintenance, for, when affected by bankruptcy of c. q. t., 111 et seq.
maintenance, for, not interfered with by Court, 767.
void for remoteness, 110 note.
whether determined on bankruptcy of c. q. t., 111 et seq., 885.
married woman may exercise, 33 et seq.
meaning of term explained, 16.
purchaser from trustee cannot question exercise of, 504.
renewal of lease, for, how construed, 440.
Trustee Act, exercisable after payment into Court under, 428 note.
trustees appointed by the Court, whether exercisable by, 554, 555.
trustees exercising, may inquire as to wishes of those interested, 288.
valid, though not enforceable by any c. q. t., 121.
words importing mere discretion, not held to create trust, 153.

DISENTAIL. See FINES AND RECOVERIES ACT; PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT; TENANT IN TAIL.
married woman, of lands of, 962, 1005.
payment out of Court, disentailing deed when necessary before, 1237.
vesting order, by, as to land of infant, 850.

DISPOSING POWER, what is not included in term, as to judgments, 1037 note.

DISSEISIN.
cestui que trust, by, vests legal estate in trustee, 1132.
equitable, 934 et seq.
may be of a trust, 934, 935.
outstanding term attending inheritance gained by, 280 note.

DISSEISOR.
equitable owner could not sue, in own name, 13.
not bound by trust, 13, 280.
not bound by a use, 3.

DISSENTERS. See CHAPEL.
Court will execute trust for, if not contrary to law, 625.
how trusts of fund contributed by, are expounded, 626.

DISTRESS, cestui que trust, of, effect of, as regards delay or acquiescence, 582, 583, 1111, 1116, 1201.

DISTRIBUTION. direction for, whether creating trust or power, 1079 et seq.
trust fund, of. See Chap. xiv. s. 6, 402 et seq.
claim by assignee, 409.
part of trust estate, of, effect of, 416.
power of selection, under, 1079.
time of, when regulating vesting of portions, 460, 461, 467.

DISTRINGAS. Chap. xxxiii. s. 1, 1248-1253.
notice in lieu of, practice as to obtaining and serving, 1251, 1252.
applicable to all companies, 1252.
effect of, where no trustee, 905, 919.
information as to existence of, 888.
origin and history of writ of, 1248 et seq.
payment into Court, "notwithstanding," 1262.
restraining order under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 4, . . . 1249, 1250; practice as to, 1250.
applies to stock, shares in the Bank or any other company, 1252.
special grounds necessary for obtaining, 1252, 1253.
writ of, under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 5, . . . 1249; practice as to, 1250 et seq.
applicable only to stock transferable at the Bank, 1252.
notice in lieu of, 1252 et seq.
effect of, and how and when discharged, 1252, 1253.

DIVIDENDS.
accumulation of, 336. See ACCUMULATION; THELLUSSON ACT.
Bank of England, by, on stock of infant, 856.
apportionment in respect of, on change of investments, 371, 372.
bankruptcy, in, apportionment of, between capital and income, 1188, 1189. See BANKRUPTCY.
bonus or new shares by way of, tenant for life when entitled to, 877, 878.
cestui que trust tenant for life of, how put in possession of, 879.
charging order on partial interest of c. q. t., does not prevent payment of, to trustees, 1043.
co-trustees, payable to one of several, 291.
creditors' deed, under, 613 et seq.
direction to pay to legatee does not authorise non-conversion of wasting security, 333.
order severing, from capital, objected to by Bank of England, 855, 856.
payment of, to "trustees or any two of them" when ordered, 291.
receipt of, by one co-trustee, 291.
vesting right to receive, powers of Court as to, 855, 856.

DIVORCE.
jurisdiction of Court to vary power to appoint new trustees, 832.
property of married woman how affected by, 404, 405, 952, 957.

DOCUMENTS. See DEED; TITLE DEED.
copies of, right of c. q. t. and trustee to, 532, 832, 873, 887. See COPIES. production of, by public trustee, 707; by trustee, right of c. q. t. to, 1253, 1254. See PRODUCTION.
solicitors' lien on, 905. See SOLICITOR. trustee suppressing, ordered to pay costs, 1276.

DOMICILE.
personal estate regulated by law of, 407.
person domiciled abroad generally not a fit trustee, 41.

DOUBLE PORTIONS, 477. See PORTIONS.

DOUBLE POSSIBILITIES, rule against, 109.

DOUBTFUL EQUITY.
purchaser when bound by notice of, 1103 et seq.
trustees, duty of, where equity doubtful, 419.

DOWER. account of, dowress may have, in equity on legal title, 1149.
curtesy distinguished from, 926, 945, 948.

DOWER—continued.
declaration to bar, 949.
devise by husband, whether defeated by, 949.
Dower Act, 945, 949; does not apply to copyholds, 945, 949; but does to gavelkind lands, 949.
equitable estates, out of, formerly not allowed, 945, 946; secus now, 949, 1188.
equitable fee subject to executory devise, dower attaches to, 949, 950.
legal estate, dower attaches to, in feoffee to uses, 3.
in trustee, 246.
Limitations, Statute of, action for arrears when barred by, 1149.
money to be laid out on land, whether formerly subject to, 1215, 1216; is now under Dower Act, 1216.
mortgagee buying up, may be redeemed, 308.
protector of settlement, dowress cannot be, 456.
tenant in, bound by trust, 8, 10.
but anciently not bound by use, 2.
trust, dowress bound in equity by, 8, 10, 276.
trust estate, out of, anciently allowed to widow of trustee, 276.
but not to widow of c. q. t., 9.
trustee to uses to bar, gets no costs in foreclosure action, 1265.

DRAINAGE. See IMPROVEMENTS.

DRAINAGE ACTS, charge under, effect of, on exercise of power of sale, 506.

DRUNKENNESS.
executor of, 1097.
combined with poverty, a ground for injunction, 1097; and appointment of receiver, 1262.

DUPLICATION of charges, 148.

DURATION.
private trusts, of, limited by rule against perpetuities, 95, 96.
secus public trusts, 18.
trust for sale, of, 501, 502.

DURESS, effect of, as to acquiescence, confirmation, or release, 582, 583, 1201.

EARMARK, meaning of term, as applied to money, 268, 269, 1151, 1152; to negotiable securities, 269, 1151, 1152; to other property, 272.

EASEMENT, reservation of, on exchange or partition, 147 note.

EAST INDIA COMPANY, securities of, 357 note.

EAST INDIA STOCK.
investment in, by trustee, when proper, 356, 358, 363.
meaning of term, 356.
railway stock guaranteed by Indian Government, 363, 365.

EAST INDIES.
conversion of assets in, 390.
executors in, whether entitled to charge commission, 781, 782.

ECCLESIASTICAL CHARITIES, 626.

ECCLESIASTICAL CORPORATION.
lease from, vested in trustee, statutory powers as to, 441.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS, have no jurisdiction over trusts, 15.

EDUCATION.
trust for, not confined to minorities of c. q. t., 159.
trust for poor construed to include education, 632.

EDUCATION, BOARD OF.
powers of endowed schools commissioners transferred to, 630, 631.
schemes, power to alter, 631.

EJECTMENT. See ACTION.
cestui que trust, by, in name of trustee, 1113.
cestui que trust could not bring, unless surrender presumed, 871, 872.
equitable defence in action of, not formerly available, 872; secus now, ib.
schoolmaster, of, from school house, 631.
trustee may maintain action for, 871, 872.
formerly might even against c. q. t. 872.

ELDEST SON.
portion, when disentitled to, 462.
younger child, when regarded as, entitled to portion, 460 et seq., 465.

ELECTION.
cestui que trust, by, as to having re-sale or re-conveyance of trust property purchased by trustee, 577, 578.
countermanding execution of special trust, 886, 887.
charitable objects, of, not set aside on ground of mistake, 629.
clerk or incumbent, of, under trust of advowson for parishioners, 91 et seq., 288.
decree for conveyance under doctrine of, effect of, under Trustee Act, 847.
doctrine of, applies to cases of satisfaction but not of ademption, 483.
heir bound to elect is trustee within Trustee Act, 837.
married woman, by, who is restrained from anticipation, 1016, 1017, 1231.
minister of chapel, of, 627, 628.
portionist when put to, 483.
property, as to taking, in converted or unconverted state, 502, 556, 865 et seq., 1230 et seq.
acts amounting to, 1238, 1239.
contingent interest, by person entitled to, 1234.
express declaration, by, 1239, 1240.
infant not competent to make, 1230.
knowledge of c. q. t., what necessary to, 1239.
lunatic not competent to make, 1230.
election by, with sanction of Court in Lunacy, 1231 note.
married woman, by, 954, 1231 et seq.
separate property, in respect of, 1233.
parol, by, may be, as between real and personal representatives, 1240.
presumption of, 1238, 1239.
(1) where land directed to be converted into money, 1238, 1239.
(2) where money directed to be converted into land, 1239, 1240.
remainderman, by, when effectual, 1233.
subject to rights of prior owner or third person, 1233.
where remainderman contingently entitled, 1234.
tenant in common, by, 1234, 1235.
land directed to be sold, cannot singly elect to take, as money, 1234.
secus, money to be laid out in land, 1235.
portionists where put to election, 483.
tenant in tail, by, 1234 et seq.
act in pais, by, 1235.
action or suit, by, 1234, 1235.
disentailing deed, by, under Fines and Recoveries Act, 1236.

ELECTION—property, as to taking, in converted or unconverted state—continued.
payment out to tenant in tail under Lands Clauses Act, disentailing deed required on, 1237.
petition, by, under 39 & 40 Geo. 3. c. 56, 1236.
until made, special trust proceeds, 502, 556, 886.
will of c. q. t., by, 1240.
property, as to taking, under or against instrument, 483, 1016, 1017, 1231 note.

ELEGIT. equitable interest bound by, 1030; formerly held otherwise, 9, 1030, 1031.
what portion of trust estate might formerly be taken in execution, 1033, 1034.
equity of redemption, entirety of, might be taken in execution under, 1034.
estate by, in trust for married woman, 961.
goods not to be delivered under, since Bankruptcy Act, 1883, . . . 1028.
moiety of lands only might formerly be taken in execution under, 1028, 1033.
but now entirety under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 11, . . . 1037.
origin of, 1028.
receiver, not a necessary preliminary to appointment of, by way of equitable execution, 1051.
remedy by, as to trust estate under Statute of Frauds, 1035.
under 1 & 2 Vict. c 10, . . . 1037 et seq.
tenant by, not bound by a use, 2; but is by a trust, 10, 276.
trust in nature of mortgage, against owner subject to, 1035.

EMPLOY money, direction to, may authorise investment in trade, 350.

ENDOWED SCHOOLS ACT, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 56), 630.

ENFRANCHISEMENT.
copyholds, of, power of trustee to effect, 291, 745.
purchaser not entitled to proof of title to make, 519.
lunatic's copyholds, of, 1244.
renewable leaseholds, of, by trustee, 441.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, 147, 663, 679 note.

ENLARGEMENT.
alienation, is not an, 1012.
long term, of, into fee, 7.

ENROLLED DEED. See INROLMENT.
not a "scheme" within 9 Geo. 2 c. 36, 642 note.

ENTAIL.
chattels cannot be the subject of, 102.
copyholds, custom to entail, 48.
disentailing deed, inrolment of, 891.
equitable interest, power to entail, depends on custom as to legal estate, 48.
equitable, created without technical words, 124; how barred, 890, 891.
history of, 890.
lands abroad, of, 51.
married woman, of, how barred, 962, 1005.
"proper entail on heir male," direction in will for, how construed, 135.
protector of settlement, functions of, 138, 455 et seq. See PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT.
quasi, of estate pur autre vie, properties of, 891, 892.
strict entail, directions for, 136.

ENTIRETIES, husband and wife take by, 953, 967.

EN VENTRE, illegitimate child, 103 note.

"EQUALITY IS EQUITY," 616, 1077.

EQUITABLE ASSETS, 1063 et seq. See ASSETS.

EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.
letter of advice that special credit opened as against goods, 89.
order and disposition clause, takes property out of, 903 note.
when complete, 911, 912.

EQUITABLE DEFENCE, 872.

EQUITABLE ELEGIT, 1030 et seq.

EQUITABLE ENTAIL, creation of, 124, 890.

EQUITABLE ESTATE OR INTEREST. See CESTUI QUE TRUST. account of rents and profits, right of equitable owner to, 1143 et seq.
adverse possession available against, 935.
assets, whether it was, prior to Statute of Frauds, 1063, 1064.
subsequently to statute, whether legal or equitable assets, 1065 et seq.
assignment of, 77.
assignable quality of equitable interest, 889 et seq.
assignee of, bound by equities, 892 et seq.
how effected, 890.
notice of, 902 et seq.
not necessary as against settlor or between assignor and assignee, 79, 902.
or subsequent volunteers or persons claiming general equity, 902, 913, 914.
but material as against trustee in bankruptcy, 902; or purchaser for value, 79, 903.
precautions to be observed in case of, 907 et seq.
priority of time, 920 et seq.
copyholds, in, follows rules as to legal estate, 48.
how devisable, 930, 931.
not subject to free bench, 945.
transmission of interest in, 262.
Courts, all, now recognise, 15.
curtesy of, 11, 945 et seq. See CURTESY.
descent of, 1061 et seq. See DESCENT.
devise, passes by, 930; under old law devisable by parol, 930.
distinctions between, and legal, 47.
dower of, 11, 945 et seq. See DOWER.
entail of, may be effected, 47, 124, 890.
how barred, 890, 891.
equitable tenant for life is devisee within Debts Recovery Act, 1830, 930 note.
escheat of, 1059 et seq.
execution against, 1029 et seq. See JUDGMENT. extent from Crown, is affected by, 1057, 1058.
fee simple in, may be created without word "heirs," 124, 125.
foreign property, in, 49, 50.
forfeiture of, 1058 et seq.
intermediate, disregarded, unless trust special, 883.
judgment against, how carried into effect, 1028 et seq. See JUDGMENT.
laches, doctrine of, applicable as between rival claimants to, 935.
land, in, writing necessary for conveyance of, 890; semble, deed not necessary, ib.
legal estate contrasted with, 46, 90, 91.

EQUITABLE ESTATE OR INTEREST—continued.
limitation of, technical terms how far necessary, 124, 125.
Limitation, Statutes of, application of, 1108 et seq., 1120, 1121.
married woman, of, rights of husband in respect to, 950 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
merger of, in legal estate, 12.
mortgage of, 385. See MORTGAGE. obtained by fraud, 893.
negligence, postponement on ground of, 921 et seq.
notice how far necessary for transfer of, 902 et seq. See sup., assignment.
noticed by all Courts, 15.
possibility, though only amounting to, is assignable, 889.
powers over, 748.
distinguished from legal, 748.
simply collateral or annexed to estate, 748, 749.
priority of owners of, 902 et seq.
purchaser when bound by, 1100 et seq. See PURCHASER.
restraint of alienation of, void except where c. q. t. feme covert, 890.
resulting to grantor, settlor, or testator, 163 et seq. See RESULTING TRUST.
sale by order of Court, bound by, 846, 847, 1293.
Shelley's case, rule in, application of, to equitable limitations, 125, 126, 136.
technical rules affecting legal estate, not applicable to, 90, 124.
effect of technical terms if employed, 125.
transfer of, notice should be given of, 902 et seq.
trust of, when perfectly created, 77.
trustee of, when entitled to conveyance of legal estate, 882, 883.
vendor of, information to be given by, 911.
waste, arising from commission of, 209 et seq.
will, is devisable by, 930, 931.

EQUITABLE EXECUTION by appointment of receiver, 1052 et seq.

EQUITABLE MORTGAGE. See MORTGAGE.
transferee of, with notice, 893.
trustee, by, in breach of trust, 1106.
trustee should not lend on, 385.
vesting order in action for enforcement of, 849 note.

EQUITABLE SEISIN, 933.

EQUITABLE WASTE, 209 et seq. See WASTE.

EQUITY.
assignee of equitable interest takes subject to every, 892 et seq.
better equity, meaning of, 920 et seq., 1107 note.
Courts of, alone have jurisdiction over trusts, 14, 15.
can act in personam, 50, 51.
corporations amenable to, 30.
trustee cannot come into, for own benefit, 317.
disclaimer in, 222.
does nothing in vain, 1235. See CIRCUITY.
doubtful, duty of trustee in case of, 419.
purchaser whether bound by, 1103 et seq.
"equality is equity," 616, 1077.
intermediate, when disregarded, 882, 883.
personal, 49 note.
priority in, 918 et seq., 1106, 1107.

EQUITY—continued.
rules of, to prevail where there is conflict between law and equity, 15.
secret, owner of, may by conduct be precluded from setting up, 925 et seq.
settlement, to, 951 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.

EQUITY OF REDEMPTION. See MORTGAGE.
adverse possession available against, 935.
assets is, 1064 et seq.
barred by lapse of time, when, 1110, 1111.
chattels, of, may be taken under equitable fi. fa., 1030.
collateral advantage, stipulation for, by mortgagee not allowed, 785.
copyholds, of, where formerly liable as assets, 1034 note (l).
Crown debt, may be sold for payment of, 1058.
curtesy, subject to, 945.
distinguished from a trust, 278.
dower, formerly not subject to, 945.
escheat, did not, 1061.
lord taking by, bound by equity, 277, 278.
forfeitable for treason, 1058.
Frauds, Statute of, s. 10, cannot be delivered in execution under, 1035.
judgment creditor entitled to sale of entirety of, 1034.
Limitation, Statutes of, when beginning to run against remainderman, 1110.
mortgage of, trustee should not advance money on, 383, 384.
purchase of, by mortgagee, 939. See MORTGAGEE. purchase of, by trustee, improper, 590, 591.
release of, by trustee, when proper, 742.
sale of, trustee for, may sell subject to mortgage, 505.

ESCHEAT, Chap. xxvi. s. 10, 1059-1061.
copyholds not properly subject to, 276, 277; nor customary freeholds, 277, 278.
lord bound by trust entered on roll, 277.
equitable estate, of, 10, 316, 1059, 1860, 1061.
equity of redemption, lord taking by escheat bound by, 278.
formerly did not escheat, 1061; secus now under Intestates' Estates Act, 1884, . . . 1061.
felony, on, 27.
now abolished, 27, 279.
legal estate in trustee formerly subject to, secus now, 246, 277, 279.
lord claiming by, whether bound by trust, 9, 14, 276 et seq.
not bound by use, 3, 277.
money to be laid out on land not subject to, 1216.
real estate escheating is assets in hands of lord, 278, 279.
trust in fee of lands formerly not subject to, 10; but trustee retained the estate, 316, 1059, 1060.
secus now under Intestates' Estates Act, 1884, . . . 315, 316, 1061. vesting order, jurisdiction to make, as to estate escheated to Crown, 846.

ESCROW.
conveyance on sale when operating as, 79.
voluntary settlement retained by settlor does not take effect as, 79.

ESTATE DUTY, incidence of, 801 note.

ESTATE FOR LIFE. See TENANT FOR LIFE.

ESTATE OF TRUSTEE, Chap. xii. 233-280. See LEGAL ESTATE.

ESTATE PUR AUTRE VIE. See PUR AUTRE VIE.

ESTATE TAIL. See ENTAIL; TENANT IN TAIL.

ESTOPPEL.
acquiescence, or concurrence in breach of trust, by, 1194 et seq. See ACQUIESCENCE.
Court of Equity rejects, 297.
recital, by, as affecting trustee, 224, 225.
secret equity, of person having, who stands by, 925 et seq.

EVIDENCE. See AFFIDAVIT; FRAUDS, STATUTE OF; PAROL; VESTING ORDER.

EXCEPTION.
devise, from, distinguished from charge, 177.
residue, out of, next of kin benefited by, 180, 181.

EXCHANGE.
charity lands, of, with consent of Charity Commissioners, 634.
land, of, vesting order consequential on judgment for, 847.
power of sale and exchange a "usual" power, 145 et seq.
whether it authorises partition, 505.
or signing receipts, 543.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, 663, 668.

EXCHEQUER BILLS.
Government securities, were, 353.
investment in, by trustees, 353, 365.

EXCHEQUER, COURT OF.
transfer of equitable jurisdiction of, to Court of Chancery, 30 note.
whether it could relieve c. q. t. as against royal trustee, 29.

EXCUSE, breach of trust, for, under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 . . . 1169 et seq.

EXECUTED TRUST.
construction of, 127.
meaning of term, 127.

EXECUTION.
bankruptcy of debtor, creditor how affected by, 1054.
cestui que trust, for debt of, 250.
chattels, against, by fi. fa, 1028, 1029. See JUDGMENT.
from what time chattel interests in land bound, 1029.
trust chattels, 250.
completion of, 1054.
co-trustees, against, jointly implicated in breach of trust, 1177.
creditor taking trust chattel in, bound by trust, 250, 276.
purchase, may, from sheriff, 576.
whether he can levy debt upon property subject to voluntary trust for debts, 609.
equitable, 1052 et seq.; against separate property of married woman, 987 et seq.
estate or interest in land capable of being taken in, 1038, 1039.
executor, for debt of, against assets, 250.
trust deed, of, by trustee, 224.
trustee, for debt of, 250. See JUDGMENT.
writs of, at common law, 1028.

EXECUTION OF POWER BY COURT, 1073 et seq.

EXECUTOR.
acceptance of office of, 225, 226.
executor having once acted cannot renounce, 225.

EXECUTOR—continued.
executor may renounce probate and claim legacy, 220, 221.
having acted, deemed to have accepted trusteeship of real estate, 227.
having proved, cannot refuse to act in trusts, 21.
executor of executor administering to one testator must to another, 227.
account, liable to render, 560.
accounts, costs of taking, when allowed to, 1276.
is bound to keep, 886, 887.
accumulate, neglecting to, charged with compound interest, 400.
acting as, acceptance of office by, 225, 226, 281.
"acting executor," appointment of new trustees by, 806.
administration action, effect of, on powers and duties of executor, 532, 747, 748.
advertisement by, for creditors under 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, . . . 436, 437.
agent, employment of, by executor, when justifiable, 284, 785, 786.
executor acting as, not liable as executor, 284.
executor not required to take security from, 287.
allowance to, for time and trouble, 781 et seq.
appointment of, not sufficient to show intention to exercise testamentary power, 174, 175.
appropriation of legacy by, effect of, 228, 722, 723, 894, 1134, 1135.
of securities to residuary legatee, 741.
assets, 1038 et seq. See ASSETS.
conversion of, by executor within what time to be made, 320.
debt of executor, cannot be taken in execution for, 251.
duty of executor as to calling in, 320, 321.
employment of, in trade, 562.
executor's executor, vest in, 225, 249.
felony, not forfeitable for, 251.
legal and equitable, what are, 1063 et seq.
mortgage, executor may allow assets to remain on, 324.
but not on personal security, 323.
where legal proceedings would be useless he is not liable, 324.
mortgage of, by executor, 560, 561.
personal, in hands of executor are trust property at common law, 250.
sale of, by executor, 560, 561.
voluntary interference with, is acceptance of office, 226.
assignee of, gains priority by notice, 903.
attorney, effect of signing power of, to get in testator's estate, 226, 227.
bank, whether money may be placed in, payable to one executor, 330, 331.
banker of, bound to act according to his directions, 566, 567.
bankrupt, goods in possession of, when devolving on trustee in bankruptcy, 267, 274.
beneficial interest, where entitled to, 63.
beneficially interested, assignee of, bound by equities, 894.
breach of trust, may be relieved from consequences of, under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896 . . . 1169 et seq.
breach of trust by testator, when liable for, 1169.
business, carrying on testator's, rights and liabilities of executor, 266, 719, 720, 721, 793, 794.
cestui que trust, of, when entitled to call for conveyance, 883.
charge of debts on real estate, effect of, on powers of executor, 548 et seq.
charge, may not make, for time or trouble, 781.
whether entitled to commission for administration in East Indies, 781, 782.
chattels, power of executor to deal with, 560 et seq.
co-executor.
acknowledgment of debt by one, effect of, 298 note.

EXECUTOR—co-executor—continued.
assets, putting, into hands of co-executor, is liable, 301.
banker, payment of money to co-executor who is, 283.
bankruptcy of, liability of co-executor for costs, 788.
claim of, executor may compromise, 740 note.
comparison of, with co-administrator and co-trustee, 304.
debt owing from co-executor, his duty as to calling in, 303.
delegation of duty by, to co-executor, 282, 283; to stranger, 282.
devastavit of co-executor, liability for, 281.
discretionary trust cannot be delegated to, 288.
indorsing bill of exchange payable to himself and another, 302.
leaving money in hands of, co-executor liable for, 301, 323, 330, 331.
liability of, for acts of co-executor, 281.
necessary or nugatory acts, joining in, not usually liable, 299.
power of, to act without co-executor, 298; as to real estate, 298 note.
receipts, joining in, pro formâ, not liable, 298, 299.
representation of co-executor, ought not to depend on, 302.
especially where testator long dead, 302.
survivorship of office of, 293.
commission, when allowed to charge, 781, 782.
compounding debts and claims, power of executor as to, 739, 740.
constructive trustee, when deemed to be, 837.
contract of sale or purchase by testator, effect of, 260, 1219, 1220.
conversion of assets, time within which he ought to effect, 320.
costs allowed to, in creditors' action, 1266. See COSTS.
covenants, what may be required from executors of one who has agreed to grant lease, 522.
by executors of lessee on assignment, 522 note, 525.
creditors of testator, how protected against, 436, 437.
may be answerable to, though not to legatees, 301.
rights of, as against executor, 560, 561.
Crown, right of executor to residue as against, 63.
debt of, assets when capable of being taken in execution for, 251.
retainer of, 737, 1070 et seq.
sale or pledge by executor to secure, 562, 563.
debtor to estate, assignment of beneficial interest by, 893, 894.
ordered to pay money into Court, 1260, 1261.
debts.
after payment of, must account for surplus, or is chargeable with interest, 394.
barred by Statute, executor may pay, 737; but not after decree, 737.
composition of, power of executor to effect, 739, 740.
contracted by executor in that character cannot be proved for as debts of the testator, 267.
duty of executor to call in outstanding, 303, 323 et seq., 1171.
duty of executor to discharge, 394, 598, 1063.
presumption that debts have been paid, when made, 540, 565.
trust for payment of, how to be executed, 616.
decree, power of dealing with assets after, 532, 747, 771.
delegation of office by, 282 et seq. And see sup., co-executor.
derivative executor, duties, powers and liabilities of, 255, 226.
de son tort, renewing lease in own name is constructively a trustee, 201.
cannot purchase trust property, 575.
devastavit by, 281, 563, 1172; claim for, when barred, 415.
executrix married woman, by, 986.
discharged, cannot be, from office, even by Court, 835.

EXECUTOR—continued.
discharged, may be, from trusteeship, 835.
donee of power, of, when entitled to transfer of trust funds, 883.
drunken or dissolute, restrained from administering, 1097.
East Indies, in, when allowed to charge commission, 781, 782.
equitable assets in hands of, what are, 1066.
equitable mortgage by, 560.
establishment of testator, breaking up, 320, 719.
executor of executor, acceptance of trust by, 225, 226.
when competent to exercise power, 755.
express trustee, is not, for next of kin, 63.
foreign law, not presumed to know, 407.
fraudulent sale or pledge by, 562 et seq.
heir not favoured more than, 1221.
heir of vendor, when trustee for executor, 836.
housekeeping expenses of testator, executor when justified in continuing, 320.
implied devise to, 239.
indemnity, what he may require, as to leaseholds, 206, 266, 527.
right to, in respect of business of testator, 720, 721, 793, 794.
India, conversion of assets in, 389.
executor in, when allowed to charge commission, 871, 872.
infant might formerly have been, 38.
injunction against, when granted, 1096, 1097.
insurance moneys, receipt of, through banker or solicitor, 273.
insurance of buildings by, 329.
interest, when chargeable with, 393, et seq.
not charged during first year from testator's death, 401, 402.
intestate, executor dying, assets vest in administrator de bonis non of testator 251.
judgment against, paid out of assets in order of date, 1069 note.
judgment or decree for administration, powers of, how affected by, 747, 748.
judicial trustee, may be appointed, 700.
land to be converted into money when devolving on, 1223.
lease, has not in general power to grant, 502.
lease, renewing, cannot hold for own benefit, 201 et seq.
lease to testator, liability of executor under, 525.
leaseholds, may hold title-deeds of, till all debts paid, 874.
legacy, appropriation of, by executor, 228, 722, 723.
executor renouncing may claim, unless attached to office, 220, 221.
time for payment of, 719.
to executor for trouble, 784.
legal assets in hands of, what are, 1066.
legatees may be answerable to creditors, though not to executor, 414.
office of executor cannot be interfered with by, 560, 561.
Limitations, Statute of, not bound to set up defence of, 737.
live stock of testator, executor should sell forthwith, 320.
lunatic, vesting order as to property of, power of Court to make, 863.
married woman, executrix, powers, &c., of, 36, 250, 251, 986, 987.
married woman, husband of, is trustee within Trustee Acts, 837.
of, under will in execution of power, 995.
merger of charge, how effected by, 940.
mesne rents, account of, against executor, 1145.
mistake, when liable for, 394, 395, 402.
money to be laid out in land, when entitled to, 1219, 1220.
mortgage of assets by, 560 et seq.
may allow assets to remain on, 324, 325.

EXECUTOR—continued.
where mortgagee has notice of impropriety, 563, 564.
mortgagee, of, legal estate vests in, 255.
might call on heir to convey, 1219.
mortgagor, of, formerly bound to discharge debt out of personalty, 1219.
next of kin, is trustee for, of undisposed of residue, 63.
where no next of kin executor takes beneficially as against Crown, 63.
unless clearly mere trustee, 63.
option of purchase, cannot grant lease with, 502, 503.
outstanding assets, duty of, to get in, 303, 323 et seq., 1094, 1095.
should not allow debts which carry interest to remain, 394.
overpayment by, effect of, 413, 415, 416.
partner of testator, accountability of, in respect of assets left in business, 308.
personal security, should not allow assets to remain on, 323.
pledge of assets by, 560 et seq. ; to secure private debt, 562 et seq.
poverty of, does not prevent his administering, 1097.
power when exercisable by executor of donee, 754, 759.
to "executors" or to "A. and his executors," by whom exercisable, 754, 755.
preferring creditors, rights of executor as to, 1070.
private debt, sale or pledge by executor to secure, 562, 563.
probate, can sell and give receipts before, 567.
effect of taking out, 225 et seq.
executor when constituted trustee by proving will, 227, 228.
prerogative, whether term in trustee requires a, 249, 250.
renunciation of, 225, 228.
profits, executor making, by assets, must account, 396.
promise of subscription by testator, executor not to carry out, 738.
proof by, in bankruptcy of trustee, 1184.
purchase of assets by, improper, 575; secus where he never proves will, ib.
purchaser from, not bound to see to application of money, 561.
secus, in case of fraud, 562 et seq.
real estate vesting in, under Land Transfer Act, 1897, . . . 560 note.
real estate, when empowered to sell, 548 et seq.
receipts, liability of executor joining in, 298.
power of executor to give, 560 et seq.
receiver appointed where husband of executrix out of jurisdiction, 1263.
or where executor a person of bad character, &c., 1262.
refund, legatee when bound to, moneys wrongly paid to him, 414 et seq.
refusal by, to transfer stock, 852 et seq.
release to, on final settlement of accounts, 417, 418.
renewal of lease by, in own name, 201 et seq.
rents and profits, account of, against executor of pernor, 1145.
renunciation of probate by, effect of, 225, 228, 249.
equivalent to disclaimer of power, when, 759.
executor having accepted office cannot renounce, 225, 226, 281.
retractation of, 249.
repairs, cannot mortgage assets for purpose of, 562.
"residuary," meaning of term, 179.
residuary legatee, powers of executor who is, 563.
rights of, as against executor, 561.
settlement by executor with one of several, 416, 739, 740.
when bound to refund overpayments, 414 et seq.
residue, appropriation of securities forming part of, 741.
residue, parol evidence when admissible against title of executor to, 63.
residue, right of executor to, prior to 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4. c. 40, . . . 63.

EXECUTOR—continued.
resulting trust in favour of, 163, 174.
residue, when bequeathed to infant, executor is trustee within s. 43 of Conveyancing Act, 1881, 724.
retainer by, of his own debt, though statute barred, 737.
right of, exercise for benefit of cs. q. t., 1070.
right of, not assisted by Court, 737.
right of, not interfered with or enlarged by 32 & 33 Vict. c. 46, . . . 1070.
where estate administered in bankruptcy, 1071.
revocation of appointment of, effect of, 239, 240.
salary to, may be given by testator, 783.
sale of assets by, 560 et seq.
nominal price or fraudulent undervalue, at, 562.
private debt or advantage, to secure, 562, 563.
Settled Land Acts, when trustee for purposes of, 653.
set-off against, by mortgagee of testator, 899.
set-off by, against creditor of testator, 899.
against legatee, 894, 899.
set-off of debt of, against costs, 788.
shares, discretion as to retention or sale of, 320, 321, 769 note.
sole, power when exercisable by, 755.
solicitor who is, cannot charge for professional work, 312 et seq.
specific legatee, powers of executor, who is, 563.
specifically bequeathed property, sale of, by executor when valid, 561.
where purchaser has notice of impropriety, 563.
stock how transferred by, 32.
stock standing in name of, vesting order as to, 855.
subscription promised by testator, whether executor should pay, 738.
surplus after payment of debts, is accountable for, or chargeable with interest, 394.
not excused because he did not use the money, 394.
survivorship of office of, 293.
tenant at will, of, procuring lease to himself, 203.
time allowed to, for conversion of assets, 320.
breaking up testator's establishment, for, 320, 719.
lapse of, powers of executor how affected by, 540, 565.
legacies, for payment of, 719.
title-deeds of leaseholds, right of executor to, 874.
trade of testator, carrying on, 719, 720, 793, 794.
trading with assets, liability of, 308 et seq., 395 et seq., 562, 719, 720.
trust estates vested in testator now devolve on, 247, 248, 259.
trustee, is primâ facie, for next of kin, 317 ; but not for Crown where no next of kin, 317.
may be, within s. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, 724.
to perform duties of executor, appointment of, 843.
Trustee Act, executor when trustee within, 844.
when executor converts himself into trustee, 228, 724, 844, 1134.
trustee, of, bound by trust, 275.
declining to appoint new trustees, not liable for costs, 809.
powers vested in heirs or assigns of trustee exercisable by, 258.
right of, to decline to act in trust, 835.
trust estate now devolves on, although otherwise devised or bequeathed, 247, 248.
when competent to execute trust, 257.
whether he can sign receipts, 568.
trustee, who is, powers and duties of, 560 et seq., 616.

EXECUTOR—continued.
Trustee Act, payment of money into Court under, 424 et seq.
Trustee Act, under, Court cannot appoint, 838, 844.
vendor, of, empowered to convey, 247, 248, 836.
windfall, entitled to, 1244.
year allowed to, for conversion of assets, &c., 320, 338 et seq., 401.
but legacy may be paid before expiration of, 719.

EXECUTORY DEVISE.
contingent remainder converted into, by 7 & 8 Vict. c. 76, . . . 457 ; but that Act repealed, ib.
takes effect as, where practicable, under 40 & 41 Vict. c. 33, . . . 458 fee upon a fee limited by, 90.

EXECUTORY TRUST, 127 et seq.
alien, for, Crown cannot take advantage of, 45.
anticipation, in restraint of, 143, 1009.
Borough English Lands, as to, 1063. construction of, in marriage articles, 128 et seq.
chattels, agreement to settle, on same terms as real estate, 131.
"heirs of body," construed limitation to eldest son as heir, and if no son to daughters as co-heiresses, 130, 131.
hotchpot clause supplied, 134.
joint tenancy, words conferring, when construed as tenancy in common, 133.
real estate, "heirs of body" or "issue" applied to, construed first and other sons in tail as purchasers, 129.
exception where husband's property limited to heirs of body of wife, 130.
or where articles negative construction, 130.
"heirs female," construed "daughters," 130, 131.
words supplied in articles, 133.
construction of, in post-nuptial settlements, 144.
construction of, in wills, 134 et seq.
chattels, as to, 139 et seq.
limitation over on tenant in tail dying under twenty-one, when to be inserted, 140.
peerage, directions that heirlooms should go with, 141, 142.
semble, that chattels bequeathed as heirlooms vest absolutely in first tenant in tail though he die an infant, 139.
real estate, as to, 134 et seq.
"heir of the body," when construed to give estate tail to ancestor, 134.
"proper entail on heir male," 135.
"heirs of the body," construed "first and other sons in tail," where intention to that effect shown, 135.
contingent remainders, effect of limitation to preserve, 137.
direction for "strict entail," 136 ; or strict settlement, 136.
direction that entail should not be barred, 135.
direction to settle "as counsel shall advise," 136.
life estate for separate use, 136.
where testator directs settlement, but formally declares limitations, 138.
"without impeachment of waste," where life estate is to be, 136, 596.
words indicating that ancestor was not meant to have a power of disposition, 135 et seq.

EXECUTORY TRUST—continued.
contingent remainders, limitations to trustees to preserve, whether inserted, 137.
curtesy admitted of, where money to be laid out in land, 946.
daughters included in "heirs of body," or "issue," 130, 131.
executed and executory trusts distinguished, 127.
gavelkind lands, as to, 138, 1062.
"heirs of the body," how construed, 129, 130, 131, 1103.
distinguished from issue, 136.
intention of settlor, carried out in conformity with, 128.
marriage articles, in, distinguished from the like in will, 127, 128, 129, 131. See sup., construction.
married woman, direction for strict settlement on, 143, 1009.
meaning of term, explained, 127.
multiplication of charges, referential trust ought not to be construed so as to effect, 148.
peerage, trust to correspond with limitations of, 141, 142.
powers, what may be inserted in settlement under executory trust, 144 et seq.
"proper," 146.
"usual," 145, 146.
protector, special, whether Court will appoint, under Fines and Recoveries Act, 137, 138.
second wife or husband, limitation of life interest to, 140, 141.
strict settlement, meaning of term, 596.
waste, tenant for life not usually made dispunishable for, 137, 589, 596.
will, in, distinguished from the like in marriage articles, 128, 129. See sup., construction.

EXECUTRIX.
appointment of executor by, may be without husband's consent, 250.
husband of, powers of, to deal with assets, 250, 251.
trustee, held to be, within Trustee Acts, 837.

EXONERATION.
judgment or charge, of property from, as between purchasers, 927, 928.
personal estate, of, from costs, 801.
share of proceeds of land, of, from mortgage by testator, 1226.

EXPECTANCY. mere, belonging to married woman, 966.
voluntary assignment of, whether it creates a trust, 78.

EXPEDIENT, when Court deems it, to appoint new trustees, 838.

EXPENSES. Chap. xxv. s. 2, 787-801. And see COSTS. account of, trustee should keep, 792.
where none kept, what allowance made, 792, 793.
allowance for, to trustees, 787; even where express allowance for trouble, 792.
or where trustee wrongfully appointed, 787.
bankruptcy of one trustee, allowance in case of, 787.
business, of carrying on, 782, 793, 794.
cestui que trust when personally liable to trustee for, 798, 799.
counsel, fees to, when allowed to trustees, 221, 789.
deed, of, direction to pay, is implied, 796.
exoneration of personalty from, 801.
extra costs, trustee when allowed, 790, 791.
fines for renewal of leases, lien of trustee for, 205, 445.
funds out of which expenses payable, 800, 801.
real and personal estate, as between, 801.

EXPENSES—continued.
income, are first charge on, as well as corpus, 795.
lien for, trustee when entitled to, 205, 795.
not where guilty of breach of duty, 796, 800.
nor against moneys for public services in hands of Secretaries of State, 798.
trustee's agents, e.g. solicitors or surveyors, not entitled to, 796, unless expressly so directed, 797.
remedy for enforcement of, 796, 799.
where trust extends to several estates, 798.
lying by, while expense incurred, effect of, 925 et seq.
moderated, charges may be, and how, 788, 790.
necessary, what are, 1268.
opposition to Bill in Parliament, costs of, when allowed to trustees, 718, 789.
reimbursement of, how made, 743, 744, 787 et seq.
out of what fund, 800, 801.
release to trustees, of, 418.
renewal of lease, of, lien for, 205, 445. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
sale, attending, to be borne by purchaser, 520.
Settled Land Act, under, allowed to trustee, 790.
solicitor's costs, trustee allowed, 788.
"testamentary," include costs of administration action, 800, 801.
travelling expenses, allowance for, 788.
trust to pay costs, &c., construction of, 801.
void deed, under, 795.

EXPRESS TRUST, Chap. viii. s. 1, 124-148.
account of rents and profits from what time granted, 1144 et seq., 1210.
charge in form may in fact be, 1128.
executed and executory, distinguished, 127.
executor not express trustee for next of kin, 63.
legacy after executor's assent held on express trust, 1134.
Limitation, Statutes of, express trusts in general excluded from operation of, 1121 et seq., 1161, 1162.
Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, when subject to, 1125 et seq.
mere charge is not, secus charge coupled with duty, 1127, 1128.
Trustee Act, 1888, provisions of statutes extended by, 1136 et seq.
mortgage by way of trust for sale not an express trust, 1129.
resulting trust when an express trust within Statutes of Limitation, 1125.
technical terms not necessary for limitation of equitable estate, 124, 125.
but if employed are taken in legal and technical sense, 125

EXTENT (FROM CROWN), Chap. xxviii. s. 8, 1057, 1058.
equitable interest affected by, 1057, 1058.
equity of redemption may be sold under, 1058.
lands could not be sold under, at common law, 1057; but may by statute, 1058.

EXTINGUISHMENT. power of, 756, 757, 760, 761. See POWER.
trust for sale, of, 502.

EXTRAORDINARY OUTLAY, trustee whether entitled to charge for, 793.

EXTRAORDINARY TITHE REDEMPTION ACT, 1886, sale under powers of, 507.

FACTOR. See AGENT.
Bankruptcy Act, operation of, as to goods in his possession, 269, 273.
followed, money may be, into hands of, 1153.
profiting by his fiduciary position is a constructive trustee, 208.

FACTOR—continued.
selling for money payable at future day, 269.
special property only vests in, 270.
trustee who is, cannot profit by trust, 312.

FAILURE.
bank, of, trustee when liable for, 331.
cestui que trust, of, of personalty by death intestate without next of kin, 317.
by death, intestate, without heirs, 315.
settlor, right of, to trust property, 316.
trustee, right of, to trust property, 315.
heirs, of, devolution of property in case of, 315. See ESCHEAT.
next of kin, of, of c. q. t. dying intestate, 317.
trustee, of, c. q. t. protected against, 1073 et seq.
death, by, 1073.
direction to sell, and no person to sell named, 1074.
for separate use and no trustee appointed, 969, 1074.
disclaimer, by, 1073. See DISCLAIMER.
imperative power, of, 1074 et seq. See POWER.

FALSE.
answer, by corporation (pleading ignorance) visited with costs, 1276.
denial by trustee of claim of c. q. t. visited with costs, 1275.

FAMILY. meaning of word, 151; in a will means children primâ facie, 151 note.
trust for, of freeholds, how construed, 151.

FARM LEASE. See LEASE.

FATHER. See ADVANCEMENT; PARENT.

FEE SIMPLE.
charge of debts, legal fee simple when passing by virtue of, 243.
conditional, 48; distinguished from quasi entail, 892.
limitation in tail, where no custom to entail, construed as, 48.
devise to trustee, when to be construed to pass fee simple, 243, 244.
equitable, word "heirs" not necessary to create, 125.
fee upon a fee, rule preventing, not applicable to trusts, 90.
grant or devise to two and the survivor and the heirs of the survivor, effect of, 238, 239.
legal, vested in trustee by trust to sell, &c., without "heirs," 238.
trust to lease confers fee simple, 242, 243.
what estate taken under grant to trustees and survivor and heirs of survivor, 238, 239.
where legal estate in first instance given to trustees and discretionary powers superadded, 244.

FELON, how far he may deal with chattels, 27.

FELONY.
attainder upon, abolished, 27.
equitable chattels, forfeiture of, 1059.
forfeiture upon, 1058, 1059. See FORFEITURE. abolished, 27, 1059.
outlawry upon, effect of, 26, 27.
prosecution for, necessity for, before taking civil proceedings, 1158.
trustee, of, power of Court to appoint new trustee in case of, 839, 840.

FEME COVERT. See MARRIED WOMAN.

FEME SOLE, trustee, whether she may be appointed, 37.

FENCING, expense of, falling on corpus, 878.

FEOFFMENT.
infant, by, 23, 24, 38, 39.
king, to use of, 45.
lunatic or idiot, by, 25.
married woman, by, 33.
tenant for life, by, formerly worked forfeiture, 2, 1059.
use on, when it might be declared by parol, 54.
results to feoffee if without consideration, 184

FIERI FACIAS. See EXECUTION; JUDGMENT. execution by, at common law, 1028.
in equity, 1029, 1030.

FINE.
effect of, in cases of election, 1235.
infant, by, 24.
lunatic or idiot, by, 25.
non-claim, with, a bar against constructive trust in favour of a volunteer, without notice, 1111.
no bar in case of notice, 1100.

FINES.
copyholds, for admission to, 262 et seq. See COPYHOLD.
apportionment of, between tenant for life and remainderman, 453.
payment of, not a condition precedent to admission, 262.
treated as income of the lord, 876.
lease of charity lands, upon, 637.
leases, on, under Settled Land Acts, 672, 679.
onerous, how avoided when estate devolves on several trustees, 264.
renewal of lease, on, how to be raised, 442 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
under-leases, on, 446.

FINES AND RECOVERIES ACT.
acknowledgement by married women under, 21, 223.
concurrence of husband when dispensed with, 35.
effect of conveyance in such case, 35.
legacy charged on land, on conveyance of, 1232.
not required, for conveyance of equitable interest in her separate freehold, 975.
reversionary interest in land directed to be converted, on conveyance of, 1232.
contingent remainders, trusts to preserve, how affected by Act, 455, 456.
declaration of trust of copyholds a "disposition" under, by feme covert, 21.
election under powers of by feme covert, 1232; by tenant in tail, 1237.
settlement where husband's property limited to heirs of body of wife, 130.
entail, married woman may bar, 962, 1005.
equitable estate tail, how barred under, 891.
infant, fine or recovery by, 24.
protector of settlement under, 137, 138, 455 et seq., 875. See PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT.
irresponsibility of, 138.
whether Court will appoint, in carrying out executory trust, 138.
vesting order need not refer to, 849 note.

FIRM. See PARTNERS. breach of trust of one partner, how far liable for, 1163, 1164.
joint judgment against, for breach of trust, effect of, 1176.
set-off against, right of, how affected by change of firm, 895, 896.
trustee lending money to, becoming bankrupt, 1184.

FIXTURES, trust property, on, trustee cannot buy up, for himself, 307.

FOLLOWING TRUST PROPERTY.
parol evidence admissible for purpose of, 189, 190.
right of c. q. t. to follow trust property, Chap. xxxi. ss. 1, 2, 1099-1157. See BREACH OF TRUST.
the trust follows the estate, 1073.
trustee in bankruptcy, into hands of, 268 et seq.

FORECLOSURE. See MORTGAGE.
judgment creditor entitled to, 1049.
lien of trustee for expenses not enforced by, 796.
vesting order when made in action for, 848.

FOREIGN LAW.
trust prohibited by, enforcement of, 52.
whether trustee or executor presumed to know, 406.

FOREIGN PROPERTY. account in respect of, decreed, 50.
boundaries of estates abroad, specific performance of articles for ascertaining, 49.
entail of lands abroad, 51.
Frauds, Statute of, may be pleaded in action as to, 57.
fraudulent conveyance of, relieved against, 50.
immoveable, Court will not determine title to, 51.
injunction against taking possession of lands, 50.
mortgage of lands abroad, foreclosure of, 50.
moveable, follows the person, 49.
real estate, Court will enforce natural equities and contracts provided parties are within jurisdiction, 49.
quære whether so as to trusts, 50, 51.
not where foreign law would make decree of Court, nugatory, 50.
sale of land abroad ordered, 50.
Scotch estate, equitable mortgage of, enforced, 49.
trusts of, how far effectual, 49 et seq.
as regards personal estate, 49.
as regards real estate, 50.

FOREIGN SECURITIES.
conversion of property invested in, 320.
investment in, by trustees, 354, 355, 356.
meaning of term, 354.

FOREIGNER.
will, foreigner may dispose of English property by, 26.
in case of personalty formalities regulated by law of domicile, 26 note.

FORFEITURE.
alienation or bankruptcy, on, 114 et seq., 660, 1044.
contingent remainder not destructible by forfeiture of previous estate, 137, 457.
Crown taking by, bound by trust, 276.
felony or treason, in case of.
abolition of, by recent statute, 27, 28, 1059.
chattels and goods, of, took place upon conviction, 27, 1059.

FORFEITURE—felony or treason, in case of—continued.
felon may sell goods, &c., before conviction, 27.
chattels and goods, felon may sell, but not collusively to defeat rights of Crown, 27.
how far he may make a settlement, 28.
equitable interests, of, 1058.
alien, trust for, 103 ; how Crown prosecuted its rights, 103.
chattels, in, 1059.
equity of redemption, of, 1058, 1059.
land, of, upon attainder, 27, 1058.
money to be laid out on land not forfeitable as personalty, 1059.
outlawry, on, 27, 279.
trust property not to be forfeited, 279.
trustee or mortgagee, of property vested in, 276, 1059.
chattels subject to, at common law, 248 ; secus now, 248.
secus as to assets in hands of executor, 251.
trust estate, person taking, under forfeiture bound by same equity as forfeitor, 276.
use anciently not subject to, 3.
feoffment by tenant for life under old law, by, 1059.
order and disposition clause in bankruptcy, under, 271 et seq.

FORGERY.
cestui que trust, by, 415.
letter of attorney, of, by broker, 410.
mortgage, trustee lending on forged, liable where negligent, 410.
trustee absconding on charge of, removeable, 1087.

FORISFAMILIATION, effect of, on trust for maintenance, 159.

FORMALITIES.
circuitous, dispensed with, 710, 711.
trust, for creation of, what formalities requisite, Chap. v. 53-70.
common law, at, 53 et seq.
Statute of Frauds, under, 55 et seq.
Statute of Wills, under, 60 et seq.
valuable consideration, where trust grounded on, formalities of minor importance, 71.
will, for execution of, 60 et seq.

FOUNDER, charity, of, observance of wishes of, 621, 622, 641, 642.

FRAUD.
account in cases of, carried back to accruer of title, 1146, 1150.
mesne rents, of, in equity though upon legal title, 1146.
agent, or attorney, by, gives rise to constructive trust, 213, 214.
allowance for repairs and improvements not made to person guilty of, 576, 577.
appointment, fraudulent, trustee suspecting, whether compellable to convey, 881.
assignee of equitable interest affected by fraud of assignor, 893.
bankruptcy, discharge in, does not release fraudulent trustee, 1190.
benefit from, party to fraudulent contract cannot derive, 1107.
concealed, whilst fraud is, time does not run against defrauded person, 1113, 1115, 1121, 1127, 1142.
confirmation obtained by means of, 582.
conveyance, fraudulent, as against creditors, 81 et seq., 599, 603, 604, 609.
absolute as against grantor, 165.
act of bankruptcy by making, 601 et seq.
delay not a bar to action to set aside, 1120 note.

FRAUD—continued.
conveyance, fraudulent, of estate abroad relieved against, 50.
for creating votes, 120.
costs in cases of, actual or alleged, 791.
co-trustee, of, trustee whether liable for, 283.
creditors, trust or settlement in fraud of, when invalid, 81 et seq., 598 et seq.
delay in bringing action for relief against, effect of, 1114, 1122.
devisee, by, promising to provide for child of testator, 64.
when trust is raised by, 67.
discovery of, time begins to run from, 1113, 1122, 1126, 1142, 1143, 1150.
discretion of trustee, fraudulent exercise of, controlled by Court, 769.
executor, fraudulent dealing by, 562 et seq.
expenditure, by allowing another to incur, 926.
Frauds, Statute of, not intended to cover a fraud, 56, 165, 188.
heir, by, in procuring estate to descend on false representation, 64.
infant not protected from consequences of, 40, 413, 414, 1168.
joint tenant, by, effect of, 66.
laches, effect of, where plaintiff alleges fraud, 1113, 1121, 1122.
land abroad, fraudulent conveyance of, relieved against, 50.
lapse of time, effect of, in cases of fraud, 1113, 1114, 1121.
legacy obtained by, intention of testator must be executed, 63.
Limitation, Statutes of, when beginning to run in cases of, 1114, 1121, 1142.
married woman, by, 951, 996, 1195.
when protected against, 975, 1195.
mistake of another man, by encouraging, 926.
money obtained by, right to follow, 1157.
notice of, not necessary to displace title of assignee of an equity, 893.
parol, may be established by, 63 et seq.
pleadings, where charged in, defence, whether by demurrer or plea, 1114.
possession, fraudulent, is adverse, 1108, 1109.
power, on, 881.
suspicion of, when justifying refusal by trustee to convey, 881.
when Court will interfere in cases of, 769, 770.
powers of executor vitiated by, 562.
preference, fraudulent, in creditors' deed, by secret agreement, 602, 603.
making good trust money is not, 1157.
release in respect of, when effectual, 1199.
renewal of lease, in respect to, 205.
secret equity, by person entitled to, designedly concealing, 925 et. seq.
solicitor, of, 1171.
tenant in common, by, devise procured by, may be good as to co-tenant, 66.
trust void on ground of, recovery of trust property where, 120.
trustee when liable for fraud of co-trustee, 283.
criminal proceedings against fraudulent trustee, 1157, 1158.
discharge in bankruptcy does not release fraudulent trustee, 1190.
trusteeship created by, 64 et seq., 1108, 1109.
trusts originated by, 1.
vitiates any transaction, 562, 599.
voluntary settlement procured by, 80.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF, Chap. v. s. 2, 55-59.
affidavit, trust may be evidenced by, 58.
answer in chancery, when sufficient declaration of trust, 58.
antenuptial agreement as to wife's realty assigned by husband not sufficient, 59.
assets by descent under s. 10, what are, 1065.
assignment of trust, writing necessary for, 58.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF—continued.
bill in chancery, whether declaration of trust might be by, 58 note.
charitable trusts are within, 57.
chattels real are within, 55.
but not chattels personal, 55, 56.
colonial lands, whether within, 57.
constructive trusts, how far applicable to, 216 et seq.
copyhold, declaration of trust of, is within, 55.
but not surrender to uses, 931.
Crown whether bound by, 57.
defence of, must be specially pleaded, 57.
devises of land, as to, 60, 931, 932.
elegit under s. 10, . . . 1035, 1036.
formalities required by, for creation of trust, 57 et seq.
fraud, not to be used to cover, 56, 165, 188.
implication of law, trusts arising by, are not within, 188, 216, 217, 218.
indemnity, verbal promise of, not within the statute, 409 note.
interests within, what are, 55 et seq., 890.
lands abroad, may be relied on as defence in action as to, 57.
letters &c., to constitute sufficient declaration of trust must relate to subject matter, and nature of trust must be clear, 58, 59.
parol evidence of surrounding circumstances admissible, 59.
memorandum when sufficient evidence under, 58.
money secured on mortgage not within, 55, 56.
part performance under s. 4, of parol agreement to settle, 59 note.
"party by law enabled to declare trust," who is, 59.
pleaded, must be, under present practice, 57.
recital in bond, trust may be evidenced by, 58.
signature, what, necessary to satisfy, 59, 60.
unsigned paper, reference to, 59, 60.
subsequent acknowledgment in writing, when sufficient for creation of trust, 58, 59.
trust estate how far assets under s. 10 of Act, 1065 et seq.
when to be taken in execution at law under same section, 1035.
trust of lands, formalities, required for declaration of, 57 et seq. See infra, writing.
wills, provisions of statute relating to, 60, 931, 932.
writing, trusts to be proved by, not declared in, 57, 58, 164.
money may be followed into land by parol, 1155.

FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE, &c., 91 et seq., 599, 603, 604, 609, 1119 note, 1159.

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE, 1157. See BANKRUPTCY.

FRAUDULENT TRUSTEES' PUNISHMENT ACT, 1157, 1158.

FREEBENCH.
equitable estate in copyholds, does not attach to, 945.
legal estate in trustee, attaches to, 246.

FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL (see 3 & 4 Vict. c. 77), 630.

FREEHOLD.
disclaimer of, how to be made, 220 et seq. See DISCLAIMER.
estate for life may be devised to trustee notwithstanding 1 Vict. c. 26, . . . 245.
legal estate in, when passing under devise to trustees, 234 et seq.
where freeholds and copyholds descend together, 241.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY, loan by trustees of, on improper security, 388.

FUND.
in Court, assignment of, 916 et seq. See STOP ORDER. investment of, 356 et seq.
purchase by trustees out of, 588, 593.
trust fund, assignment of, 902 et seq. See NOTICE.

FUNDS, meaning of term, 354.

FUNERAL EXPENSES.
priority of in administration of assets in bankruptcy, 1072.
wife, of, out of separate estate, 993.

FUTURE PROPERTY.
covenant to settle, avoidance of, against trustee in bankruptcy, 86.
enforcement of, in equity, 161, 250.

GAMEKEEPER, must not be appointed for pleasure of trustees, 306.

GARNISHEE, 251, 275. notice of assignment not necessary as against, 902.
order, when creating forfeiture under clause against alienation, 117.
trust debts vested in, not affected by attachment, 251, 275.
trust money, garnishee order as to, 275.

GAVELKIND LANDS.
descent of money arising from sale of, 1062.
of equitable interest in, 1063.
Dower Act extends to, 949.
feoffment by infant under custom of Kent, 24.
settlement of, under executory trust in articles, how made, 138.

GENERAL ORDERS. See RULES OF COURT. distringas, as to, 1251.
investment, as to, of cash under control of Court, 356, 357, 365, 366.

GENERAL WORDS, trust estate not construed to pass by, 251, 252.

GIFT.
banker's deposit receipt, of, 74 note.
chattels, delivery of, whether a gift or creating a resulting trust, 166.
equitable interest, of, 77.
father, by, to son, 191 note.
husband, by, to wife whether effectual as declaration of trust, 72; semble not, 73.
effectual as gift since Married Women's Property Act, 1882, . . . 73.
exception as against creditors, ib.
imperfect, Court will not give effect to, as trust, 78.
over, on alienation, 111 et seq.
power, words of, distinguished from words of gift, 1077 et seq.
stock, transfer of, whether gift or resulting trust, 166.
stranger, to, person sui juris may freely make, 75.
"trust" and "trustee," use of terms, does not necessarily exclude a beneficial gift, 169, 170.
trustee cannot accept, from c. q. t., 308.
wife, by, to husband, of separate property, 999 et seq.

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES.
conversion of investment of money arising from, 357, 358.
vesting order as to, form of, 856.

GOVERNMENT SECURITY.
Bank of England stock is not, 345.

GOVERNMENT SECURITY—continued.
Exchequer bills are, 353.
investment on, when proper, 344, 345, 362, 365, 388, 389. See INVESTMENT.
meaning of term, 345, 353, 388.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL, trust for, how carried into effect, 630.

GRANDCHILD, advancement for, presumed, 198.

GRANDFATHER, whether regarded as being in loco parentis, 198, 464 note, 476.

GRANT.
whether inserted in conveyance by trustees, 522, 882.
word "grant" does not imply warranty, 882.
use of, now not necessary for conveyance, 882.

GRANTEE, mala fides by, effect of, 165.

GRANTOR, resulting trust for, 163.

GREEK BONDS, investment in, 354.

GROUND RENTS.
lending on security of, power of trustee as to, 379.
whether trustees may purchase, 589, 593.

GUARDIAN.
administration granted to, limited to appointing new trustees, 817.
advantage, cannot gain, by his office, 310.
co-guardian, payment to, trustee not discharged by, 768.
infant cannot be, 38.
office of testamentary, survives, 293.
powers of, 293.
receipt by, for legacy of infant, when a good discharge, 412, 768.
trustee, is, to extent of property come to his hands, 310.

HARDSHIP, Court will not enforce against trustees a contract which involves, 522.

HAZARD, conversion of investments attended with, 335, 343.
trustee should avoid, in making investment, 373, 378.

HEIR.
advowson, right of presentation to, when devolving on heir, 306.
cestui que use, of, right to sue subpœna descended to, 3.
chattel interest resulting to heir devolves on his personal representatives, 163, 173.
chattel, limitation of, to A. and his heirs, 102.
common law heir when entitled to proceeds of sale of gavelkind lands, 1062.
conjecture, not excluded on mere, 168.
constructive trustee, when held to be, under Trustee Act, 836, 837.
contract of sale or purchase by testator, how affected by, 836, 1219, 1220.
conversion, cannot claim by virtue of, under will of ancestor, 1229.
creditors, how far heir a trustee for, 310, 311.
customary, when trust estate devolves on, 1062.
when competent to execute trust, 259.
debt of ancestor, when bound to discharge, 229, 1063.
disclaimer by, 219.
equity of, as against executor, 940, 1218 et seq.
failure of, 1059, 1060. See ESCHEAT. trustee accidentally advantaged by failure of heirs of c. q. t., 315 et seq.
favoured, whether, more than executor, 1221.
fraud by, inducing ancestor to allow estate to descend, 64.
"heirs," use of, as word of limitation, 125. See HEIRS; HEIRS OF THE BODY.

HEIR—continued.
incumbrance, effect of heir purchasing, 310, 311.
infant, of vendor, whether a constructive trustee for purchaser, 836, 837.
infant, vesting order as to estate of, 844, 846, 848.
legacy to, will not alone prevent a trust from resulting, 168.
land directed to be converted into money, heir when entitled to, 1075, 1215, 1229. See CONVERSION.
Limitations, Statute of, heir when barred by, 1122, 1123.
as to resulting surplus rents under express trust, 1126.
lunatic, of, interests of, how far regarded by Court, 1243 et seq. See LUNATIC.
money to be laid out on land, heir when entitled to, 1218 et seq., 1229. See CONVERSION.
merger of charge, heir benefited by, 940.
mortgagee, of, entitled as against residuary legatee who neglects to assert title, 1104.
mortgagee, of, executor might call for conveyance from, 1219.
took upon trust for executor, 13.
when a constructive trustee, 837.
mortgagor, of, formerly entitled to have debt discharged out of personalty, 1219.
persona designata, claiming as, 126, 1230.
personal representative to be deemed "heir" within the meaning of trusts and powers, 259.
personal representative of, chattel interest resulting to heirs devolves on, 163, 173.
power when exercisable by heir of donee, 752, 761.
power of sale exercisable by personal representative of last surviving trustee, 259.
receipt of, purchaser when discharged by, 548, 549.
resulting trust in favour of, when arising, 66, 68, 163, 168, 170, 171. See RESULTING TRUST.
whether resulting interest devolves as realty or personalty, 172. See CONVERSION.
retainer of debt by, 1068, 1069 note.
secret trust, right of heir to discovery as to, 67, 68.
Settled Land Acts, when tenant for life under, 657.
specialty debts, heir how liable to, 229, 1064.
trust attaches upon conscience of, where no trustee named, 1074.
trustee, of, originally not bound by a use, 2.
but afterwards held bound, 2.
bound by trust, 275; whether he can disclaim, 219.
descent to, 933; but see Conveyancing and Land Transfer Acts, 247, 248.
service on, under Trustee Act, when necessary, 1305.
where sale to trustee set aside, whether entitled to purchase-money, 579, 580.
whether competent to execute trust, 256.
Trustee Act, heir when deemed to be trustee within, 837.
undisposed of proceeds of conversion, heir when entitled to, 170, 171.
unlawful trust, right of heir to discovery as to, 67, 68.
use, is bound by a, 2.
younger child, heir not regarded as, entitled to portion, 460.

HEIRLOOMS.
bequest of, to same uses as chattels in strict settlement how construed, 139 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
cestui que trust, rights of, in respect to, 878, 879.
not forfeited on bankruptcy of, 878.
sale of, under Settled Land Acts, 653, 690 et seq., 879.

HEIRLOOMS—continued.
suspension of vesting of, how effected, 139.
tenant for life entitled to use of, 139, 878, 879.

"HEIRS."
blended real and personal estate, meaning of "heirs" in disposition of, 151.
devise to, cannot be cut down to chattel interest, 238.
equitable estate, devise of, without word "heirs" may give the fee, 124, 125.
secus conveyance by deed, 125.
grant or devise to two and survivor and heirs of survivor, 238.
"heirs female," construction of, in marriage articles, 130, 131.
"heirs male," construction of, in will, 135.
trust for sale, devise upon, confers fee without word "heirs," 238.

"HEIRS OF THE BODY."
construction of, in marriage articles as to chattels, 131, 1103.
in wills, where construed first and other sons, 135. And see EXECUTORY TRUST. daughters included under designation of, 130, 131, 137. equitable entail may be created without use of the words, 124.
husband's property, limitation of, to heirs of body of wife, 130.
"issue," not synonymous with, 136, 137.
purchaser without notice whether bound by construction of the term, 1103.

HERIOT, when payable as to copyholds on death of trustee, 263.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE, constitution of, 15.

HINDE PALMER'S ACT (32 & 33 Vict. c. 46), 230, 267, 617, 1070.

"HOPING," may raise a trust, 148.

HOTCHPOT. clause supplied in carrying out executory trust in marriage articles, 134.
interest on advances brought into, 397.
money to be laid out in land held not liable to be brought into, 1217.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS, trust of, right of c. q. t. under, to use goods, 879.

HOUSEKEEPING.
expenses of testator, when executors justified in continuing, 320, 719.
wife not bound to contribute to, from separate estate, 1002, 1003.

HOUSE PROPERTY.
loan by trustees on mortgage of, 375, 376.
purchase of, by trustees, when justifiable, 588, 589.

HOUSING OF WORKING CLASSES ACTS, improvements under 674, 675, 676.

HUSBAND. See MARRIED WOMAN. action against, by wife, 978.
administration to wife, small sums paid to husband without taking out, 412.
breach of trust of wife, formerly liable for, 33; secus since Married Women's Property Act, 1882 ib.; unless he interferes, ib.
cestui que trust, of, appointment of, as trustee, 41, 841.
cestui que use, of, could not sue subpœna, 3.
concurrence of, in execution of trust by wife, when necessary, 34, 35, 36, 37, 557.
power of Court to dispense with, 34, 35.
constructive trustee, when held to be under Trustee Acts, 837.
debts of wife, liability of husband for, 996, 1022, 1023, 1026.
disentailing assurance of wife's land, concurrence of husband in, 1005.
exclusion of rights of, by gift to separate use of wife, 970 et seq.

HUSBAND—continued.
gift by, to wife, 72, 73.
gift to, by wife, of separate property when presumed, 999 et seq.
when regarded as portion to wife, 480.
insurance by, for benefit of wife and children, 1021, 1025, 1026.
interest of, in life of wife, presumed, 1026.
life interest of, in wife's property, not necessarily forfeited by dissolution of marriage, 405.
second husband, whether entitled to, under executory trust, 141.
limitation of property of, to heirs of body of wife, 130.
loan by wife to, 975, 1024.
payment to, without taking out administration to wife, 412.
receipt of, when required, 34, 557, 963.
renunciation of marital right by, 1005.
reversion purchased by, term of wife married before 1883 does not merge in, 930 note.
title deeds of wife's lands, trustee in bankruptcy of husband whether entitled to, 874.
tort, husband and wife cannot sue each other for, 976.
transfer by wife, not to be required to join in, 1025, 1138.
trustee of wife's separate property, construed to be, 969, 1074.
gift to husband and another upon trust (inter alia) for wife not gift for her separate use, 972.
trustee parting with possession to husband, liability of, 1164 et seq.
wife's property, how far he may dispose of, 951 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
chattels real, equitable, 22, 959.
choses in action, 21, 22, 951 et seq.
wife's separate property, what arrears of, can be claimed from husband, 999 et seq.
pin money, 1001
undisposed of, husband surviving is entitled to, 994.

HUSBANDRY LEASE. See LEASE.

IDIOT. See LUNATIC.

IGNORANCE. See MISTAKE.
acquiescence defeated by, 1195; and so confirmation, 582, 583, 1201.
breach of trust when excused by, 1167.
laches excused by, 581, 1116, 1201.
law, ignorance of the, 583, 1201.
order and disposition clause does not apply where true owner ignorant that he is such, 273.
plea of, by corporation trustees of a charity where false, entails costs, 1276.
presumption of waiver, how far rebutted by, 1116.
release defeated by, 1116, 1201.
statutory bar not prevented by, from running in equity, 1111.
trustee, of, as to his true character, 274, 1147.
trustee pleading falsely, ordered to pay costs, 1275.

ILLEGAL TRUST. See UNLAWFUL TRUST.

ILLEGITIMATE CHILD. advancement for, presumed on purchase by father in his name, 198.
en ventre, 103.
future, trust for, invalid, 103.
except where child can take as persona designata, 103.
putative father of, may place himself in loco parentis, 476.

IMAGINARY VALUE, trustee not charged with, 1174.

IMBECILITY. See LUNATIC.

IMMORAL TRUST, 119. See UNLAWFUL TRUST.

IMPARTIALITY, duty of trustee to observe, as regards c. q. t., 324, 349, 388, 501, 508, 509, 588, 758, 1090, 1262.

IMPEACHABLE SETTLEMENT, trustee may assume validity of, 404.

IMPERATIVE POWER, 750, 751, 1074 et seq. See POWER.
direction for conversion when held imperative, 1221, 1222, 1226.
"shall and may," force of, in Act of Parliament, 294 note.

IMPERFECT TRUST, 71 et seq. See VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

IMPERTINENCE, charge of misconduct on part of trustee, is not, where, 1087.

IMPLICATION.
acceptance of trust, of, 225. See ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST.
costs and expenses of deed, of direction to pay, 796.
devise by, 239.
gift over, of, negatived by recital, 1078.
power by, 233, 513, 537 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST. power of sale, of, by charge of debts, 238. See SALE.
powers over land, of, to enable trustees to exercise powers as to income, 736.
reconversion by, where land directed to be taken as personalty, 573.
trust by, 148 et seq. See IMPLIED TRUST.
trustee by, who is, where no trustee named, 1073.
words "subject thereto" implied, 177.

IMPLIED TRUST. See Chap. viii. s. 2, 148-161.
accumulation, for, prohibited by Thellusson Act, 96.
agreement to settle property, by reason of, 160.
charge of debt or legacy, heir or devisee taking under, is impliedly a trustee, 160. See CHARGE.
condition, by use of words importing, 160.
constructive trust, distinguished from, 124 note.
contract for sale, how it arises under, 160, 161. See PURCHASE.
conversion, for, is question of intention, 1221, 1222, 1223.
gift of personalty with limitations appropriate to realty, 1222.
costs and expenses, direction that devisee should be allowed, held to imply trust, 170.
covenant or agreement to settle property, when raised by, 161.
Frauds, Statute of, not applicable to, 190, 215, 216, 217.
heir, attaches to conscience of, where no trustee named, 1073.
maintenance of children, when trust implied under gift for, 157 et seq. See MAINTENANCE.
operation of law, trust by, distinguished from implied trust, 124 note.
precatory words, by use of, 148 et seq.
implication of trust in such case now rather discouraged, 156, 157.
not a question of mere grammatical import, 154, 155.
uncertain words, no trust created by, 88, 150 et seq.
reconversion, for, 172, 173, 513.
resulting trust, where trust implied, but objects unascertainable, 150, 151. See RESULTING TRUST.
none where trust is partial only, 156.
Trustee Act, under, 835, 836, 837.
trustee under, not bound so strictly as by common trust, 155.

IMPLIED TRUST—continued.
trustee under, may be tenant for life only, 156; or mere trustee taking no beneficial interest, 156.
uncertainty, where there is, no trust is implied, 150; unless uncertainty arises from want of evidence as to whole intention of settlor, 151.
objects of trust, of, 151.
subject matter of trust, of, 152, 153.

IMPOUNDING beneficial interest of c. q. t. to answer breach of trust, 1179 et seq.

IMPRISONMENT.
for debt abolished, 1191.
exception in case of trustee ordered to pay money in his possession, 1191 et seq.

IMPROPER INVESTMENT, 388 et seq. See INVESTMENT.

IMPROVEMENT OF LAND ACT, 1864 (27 & 28 Vict. c. 110), 715. See TABLE OF STATUTES. provisions of, not more extensive than Settled Land Act, 674 note, 715 note.

IMPROVEMENTS.
Agricultural Holdings Act, under, 682, 744, 745. allowance for, where contract is set aside, 576, 578.
charity lands, to tenant of, 641.
ornamental improvements, not made for, 713.
purchase by trustee, in case of, 576, 578.
wrongful sale by trustee, in case of, 1164.
charity lands, of, 641.
drainage or sanitary works, expenses of, a charge on corpus, 712.
expenditure on, when equivalent to purchase, 591, 592.
Improvement of Land Act, under, 714, 715.
infant, to lands of, 713, 1246, 1247.
joint tenant, lien of, for improvements, 186.
land drainage charge, payment of instalments out of capital money under Settled Land Acts, 683.
lasting, lien of trustee for, 205, 711, 712, 795.
when sanctioned by Court, 712. lunatic's estate, of, when allowed out of personalty, 1243. See LUNATIC.
mansion house, rebuilding, 713, 714; repair or improvement of, 674, 675.
new building, erection of, in place of old, 675 note.
ornamental, by trustee, expense of, not allowed, 713.
real estate in Scotland, jurisdiction to sanction outlay of capital moneys on improvements of, 675 note.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, 673 et seq.
tenant for life, by, 711 et seq.
right of, to have moneys for improvements raised out of corpus, 714.
trust for, whether an accumulation, 101.
trustees when justified in applying money for, 713 et seq.

IMPROVIDENCE, cestui que trust, of, no ground for withholding payment, 403.

INABILITY, trustee, of, to act, 819.

INACTIVITY, trustee, of, whether ground for appointing receiver, 1263.

INCAPACITY.
trustee, of, when a ground for appointing new trustees, 818, 819, 1087.
or for appointing receiver, 1262, 1264.

INCOME.
accumulation of, 95 et seq. See ACCUMULATION.

INCOME—continued.
during minority of infant, 717, 724, 728, 729, 733. application of, accruing before conversion, as between tenant for life and remainderman, 335 et seq. See CONVERSION.
debts recovered, what proportion of, is, 1187, 1188.
expenses of trustee are first charge on, 795.
payment of, to two or more trustees, 292.
portion whether raisable out of, 495.
what is to be regarded as corpus and what as income, 340, 341, 876 et seq., 1187, 1188. See APPORTIONMENT.

INCOME TAX.
trust for payment of, lawful, 120.
trustee omitting to deduct, cannot afterwards do so, 409.

INCOMING TRUSTEE. See NEW TRUSTEE.

INCONVENIENCE. relief when refused after lapse of time on ground of, 1116 et seq.
charitable trustees, in action against, for account, 1210 et seq.

INCREASE. See AUGMENTATION.

INCUMBRANCE. See CHARGE; MORTGAGE. discharge of, under Settled Land Acts, 682 et seq.
equitable, purchaser having notice of, is bound, 1100.
inquiry as to, duty of trustee to make, 230, 231, 743, 910.
merger of, 936 et seq. See MERGER.
purchaser keeping charges on foot, obviated by, 937.
priority of, by giving notice, 902 et seq. See NOTICE; PRIORITY. purchase of, by heir, devisee, joint tenant, or tenant for life, effect of, 310.
by mortgagor, 938.
by solicitor, 307.
trustee cannot buy up, for himself, 307 et seq.

INDEBTEDNESS, settlor, of, only a circumstance of fraud, 83.

INDEMNITY.
Bank of England, to, on complying with orders under Trustee Act, 856, 1269. bond of, 409.
against breach of trust, 409.
on distribution of trust fund, 409.
breach of trust, against, covenant for, effect of, 409.
business of testator, executor carrying on, entitled to indemnity, 720 et seq., 793, 794.
cestui que trust bringing action in name of trustee must give, 1094.
gaining by breach of trust must indemnify trustee pro tanto, 1179.
instigating breach of trust, interest of, may be impounded, 1179 et seq.
let into possession, must give, 868.
Charity commissioners, persons acting under advice of, indemnified, 1209.
charity funds, trustee paying, to official trustee is indemnified, 436.
clause of, in trust deeds or wills, effect of, 305; special, 305, 306.
Court, trustee acting under sanction of, obtains, without release, 418, 419.
directors, to, properly incurring obligations, 745.
executor when entitled to, 207, 265, 267, 527, 720, 721, 793, 794.
leaseholds, in respect of, when trustees and executors can require, 205, 206, 265, 525.
indemnity fund, 525, 526. promise of, not within Statute of Frauds, 409 note.

INDEMNITY—continued.
remainderman, to be given by, in respect of back rents, 882.
statutory, under Trustee Act, 305.
trust for, not void for perpetuity, 110.
trustee when entitled to, 409, 793 et seq., 1179, 1267.
incurring legal liability at request of c. q. t., 799, 800.
married woman, out of fund appointed by, 1196.
money expended in preservation of trust property, in respect of, 1165 note.
Settled Land Acts, under, 692, 693.
Trustee Act, 1893, under, out of interest of c. q. t. instigating breach of trust, 1181 et seq.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, under, cannot require fund to be kept in Court, 427.
where no actual loss incurred, 799, 800.
trustee may be required to give, if suspected of intention to act unfairly, 1095.

INDIA. See EAST INDIA. assets in, conversion of, 390.
executor in, when allowed to charge commission, 781, 782.
railway securities, investment in, when proper, 355, 358, 359, 363, 365.
stock, 354, 356, 358, 362, 363.

INDICTMENT, withdrawal of, against fraudulent trustee, 1158.

INDUSTRIAL SOCIETY, dissolution, expediency of appointing new trustees, 839.

INFANT.
account when directed in favour of, 1144, 1147, 1149.
accumulation of income during minority of, 717, 724, 728, 729, 733.
acquiesce, cannot, in breach of trust, 581, 1195, 1200.
advancement to, what is, 192, 734 note. See ADVANCEMENT.
when trustee may make, 734 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
appropriation of residue where infants interested, 741.
assurance by, voidable, 39.
attorney, cannot be, in suit, but might be to deliver seisin, 38.
bailiff, cannot be, 38.
breach of trust, cannot commit, 40, or concur in, 1195 et seq.; or release, 1200.
unless guilty of fraud, 40, 1195.
protected after attaining majority until he has full information, 1200.
capacity, has no legal, 38.
chattels, delivery of, by infant voidable only, 39.
confirm, cannot, breach of trust, 1200; or purchase by trustee, 582.
consent, cannot, as "true owner" under Bankruptcy Act, 274.
constructive trustee, when deemed to be, within Trustee Act, 836, 837, 854.
contingent legacy to, 724 et seq.
contingently entitled, costs out of fund of, 1267.
conversion of property of, 1245 et seq.
in general not permitted, 1245.
position of infant as to, distinguished from that of lunatic, 1245.
mortgage, &c., paid off out of his money, considered personalty, 1246.
necessary outlay for realty when thrown on personalty, 1246.
sale by order of Court, effect of, 173.
seisin changed from ex parte maternâ to ex parte paternâ on renewal of lease, 1246.
timber cut, proceeds of, how applicable, 1246.
covenant by, effect of, 24, 25; infant feme covert, by, to settle property, 25, 982.
day to show cause, whether to be given to, 848 note.
debts contracted by, for necessaries, 612.
deed by, effect of, 24; quære, whether void or voidable, ib.

INFANT—continued.
delivery of goods by, voidable only, 38, 39.
disability of, effect of, 38.
how remedied under Trustee Acts, 844, 847, 848, 852, 854. See TRUSTEE ACTS.
discretion, cannot exercise trust requiring, 38.
election, is not competent to make, 1230.
estate tail of, barred by vesting order, 850.
executor, might formerly have acted as, 38.
exoneration of estate of, 1246. See supra, conversion.
feoffment by, 24.
fine levied by, formerly reversible only during minority, 24.
fraud, not protected from consequences of, 39, 413, 1195.
guardian ad litem to, appointment of, 1281.
guardian of, powers of, 412, 768. See GUARDIAN.
guardian to a minor, cannot be, 38.
improvements on lands of, 713, 714, 1247.
joint tenancy, can sever, 39, 133.
land of, person entering on, is bailiff for infant, 1113, 1144.
legacy to, appropriation of, 741.
maintenance out of, 723 et seq.
payment of, how to be made, 412 et seq.
Limitation, Statutes of, when barred by, 1113, 1149.
Lunacy Act, 1890, jurisdiction of High Court as to infants not affected by, 846, 861.
lord of manor, may give effect to custom, 38.
maintenance of, 717, 724 et seq. See MAINTENANCE.
direction for, share vested by force of, 235 note.
discretion of trustee as to, 767.
majority, protected by Court after attaining, 1200, 1275.
management of land of, during minority, statutory powers as to, 716 et seq.
married woman, cannot consent to transfer of her property to husband, 954.
attorney, may appoint, 40.
covenant by, to settle property, 24, 25, 982.
receipt by, for accumulations of income, 717.
Settled Land Acts, exercise of powers under, 694.
ministerial acts, may perform, 38.
mortgage of land of, to defray expenditure, only ordered in cases of salvage, 592, 1218.
mortgagee, vesting order of interest of, under Trustee Act, 847, 1292. parental influence, protected against, after majority, 1200, 1275.
Partition Act, under, interest of infants earmarked as "real estate," 173.
payment to, by trustee, how to be made, 412, 413.
into Court of money belonging to, 424, 1307, 1311.
portion, appointment of, to infant of tender years viewed with suspicion, 473, 474.
power of attorney by, 39.
power when exercisable by, 38, 750.
presumption of merger in favour of, 941.
presumption that he takes beneficially, 40.
purchase in name of, by parent, held to be for advancement, 191.
purchase of trust property by trustee for, 582.
ratification by, after majority, of voidable covenant, 24, 25.
rebuilding on land of, expenses of, how defrayed, 592.
receiver, cannot be, 38.
recovery of, formerly reversible only during nonage, 23.

INFANT—continued.
release, not competent to give, 1200.
rents and profits, account of, where decreed in favour of, 1144, 1147, 1149.
account barred unless brought within six years after majority, 1149.
where defendant ignorant of true character as trustee, 1147.
rents and profits, legal title, infant may sue in equity for account on, 1144, 1147.
repairs of real estate of, expenses of, how defrayed, 592, 1247.
retainer of investment where beneficial to infant, 323.
sale of estate of, by the Court, effect of, 173.
salvage of estate of, expenditure for purpose of, 592, 1248.
seisin, may be attorney to deliver, 38.
seneschal, may appoint, 38.
Settled Land Acts, exercise of powers under, 655, 662.
steward of manor, cannot be, 38.
stock of, power of Court to make vesting order as to, 852, 853.
statutory powers of Bank of England as to, 856.
timber cut on estate of, proceeds whether realty or personalty, 1245, 1246.
trust, how far he can create, 24.
created by him not enforced to his prejudice, 24.
requiring exercise of discretion, cannot execute, 38.
trustee, infant ought not to be appointed, 37.
substitution of new trustee for, 836, 837, 854.
vesting order as to interest of, 844, 846, 849, 852, 854.
trustee for, renewing lease in own name, 201, 202.
unsound mind, of, power of Court to deal with interest of, 846.
use upon a feoffment or recovery, an infant might declare, 23, 24.
ward of Court, constituted, by order for maintenance, 433.
will of, 24, 1217, 1245, 1247; formerly might make will of personalty if fourteen years of age, 24, 1245.
but not of freeholds, 1245; or money to be laid out on land, 1217.

INFLUENCE, undue, voluntary settlement will be set aside for, 80.

INFORMATION.
action in nature of, under new practice, 1202.
costs of, relator responsible for, 1202.
Attorney-General, in name of, when proper remedy, 92, 1202.
advowson vested in trustees for parishioners, in case of, 92.
charities, for breaches of trust as to, 1202.
corporation, against, for removal of governors, not sustainable, 621.
but in case of maladministration Court interposes, 621.
cestui que trust when entitled to, as to state of trust, 531, 886, 887, 907.
trustee should obtain, as to trust property, 230, 911.

INHABITANTS.
election of clerk by, 91.
trustees required to be, of particular locality, 1088, 1089.

INHERITANCE. See HEIR.
charges made to attend, 944.

INJUNCTION. breach of trust, to restrain, 1097 et seq.
cestui que trust entitled to, whether damage reparable or not, 1097.
where co-trustee should apply for, 304.
equitable tenants in common, between, 873.
executor, against administration of assets by, when granted, 1097.

INJUNCTION—continued
foreign property, to restrain taking possession of, 50.
husband, to restrain, from entering house of wife, 1003.
improper sale, to restrain, whether c. q. t. may have, 514, 515, 1096, 1097.
whether mortgagor, 515 note, 1096 note.
married woman, none against, to restrain dealing with separate property, 991.
partial owner, on application of, 1097.
payment into Court notwithstanding injunction, 1262.
solicitor, against, who has bought up mortgages, 1098.
timber, account of, not granted unless injunction prayed for, 1145.
trustee, insolvent, bankrupt, or dissolute, against, 1097.

INNOCENT TRUSTEE, costs of, guilty trustee ordered to pay, 1272.

INQUIRY.
assignee of equitable interest should make, of trustee, 906, 907.
cestui que trust, by, trustee when bound to answer, 531, 886, 887, 907.
incumbrancer, by, as to existence of previous charges, 906 et seq.
loss of trust fund, as to, and as to steps to be taken for recovery, 833.
purchaser, by, as to incumbrances, &c., 541 note.
trustee, by, as to foreign law, 407.
trustee, by, as to investments, 393.
trustee, by, when called upon to convey legal estate, 881, 882.
trustee, to be made by, before accepting office, 230, 231, 832, 910.
Trustee Act, s. 42, under, when directed, 431.

INQUISITION, when necessary to perfect title of Crown, 45.

INROLMENT.
conveyance, of, under Statute of Mortmain, 104.
disentailing assurance of equitable interest in copyholds of, 891.

INSOLVENCY. See BANKRUPTCY. limitation over on, effect of, 117, 118.
maintenance, trust for, at discretion of trustees, how far assignees take under, 111 et seq.
trustee, of, not an absolute disqualification, 41, 818, 1087 note.
but is ground for appointing a receiver, 1262.
discharge of, trust debts when barred by, 1189 et seq.
injunction against insolvent trustee, 1097.

INSOLVENT ESTATE, public trustee may not administer, 703.

INSPECTION.
accounts, of, right of c. q. t. to, 886, 887.
documents, of, right of c. q. t. to, 531, 874, 875; by public trustee, 707.
vouchers, of, right of c. q. t. to, 531.

INSPECTORSHIP.
deed of, does not create forfeiture under clause divesting property on bankruptcy, 115.
inspector under creditors' deed cannot profit by office, 208, 310.

INSTALMENTS, application of capital received by, 340.
payment into Court of money payable by, 426.

INSTRUMENTAL TRUST, meaning of term explained, 16.

INSUFFICIENT SECURITY. See INVESTMENT.

INSURANCE.
chattels, of, when settled as heirlooms, 330.
company, shares in, given in succession should be converted, 335.
payment by, of money into Court, under Trustee Act, 425.
executor not liable for neglecting to insure property, 329.
liable for allowing policy to drop, 1165.
fines for renewal, to secure payment of, 445, 451.
on admission to copyholds, to provide fund for, 264.
husband, by, on life of wife, 1026.
investment in purchase of annuity with life policy, 350.
lien of trustee for moneys advanced for premiums, 1165.
life, on, upon trust for person not interested in the life, 119.
maintenance or advancement by means of policy of, 734.
Married Women's Property Acts, under, for benefit of wife and children, 1021, 1025, 1026.
moneys payable under, appointment of agent to receive, 274.
payment of, into Court, under Trustee Act, 425.
mortgagee, by, in absence of stipulation, 719.
neglect by trustees to keep up, 1165, 1166.
policy of, chose in action, is, within Bankruptcy Act, 274.
letter offering to settle, held to constitute voluntary settlement of, 75.
notice of assignment of, neglect to give, 1166.
what sufficient, 913, 914.
premiums when to be paid out of income, 266, 719.
receipts of trustee for insurance moneys, company when discharged by, 326, 329, 530, 531.
statutory power of trustee as to, 719.
tenant for life, duty of, to keep premises insured, 266.
trust, upon, invalid where c. q. t. not interested in the life, 119.
trustee when justified in insuring trust property, 329, 719.

INTENTION.
merger depends on, 936 et seq.
settlor, of, carried into effect in construction, &c., of trusts, 88, 167, 237.
Statute of Uses, operation of, notwithstanding contrary intention of settlor, 233.
trust, necessary to creation of, 88.

INTEREST. Chap. xiv. s. 5, 394-402. accumulations of, under Thellusson Act, 96 et seq.
advances by trustee, on, 791 note.
allowance of, to trustee, 790.
arrears of, what recoverable under Statutes of Limitation, 1122, 1133.
balances, on, on further directions, 1168.
bankruptcy, trustee in, when charged against, 394.
bond creditor not entitled to, beyond penalty, 619.
compound, charged where accumulation directed, 400.
contribution to fine for renewal of lease, computed on, 448, 449.
defaulting trustee when charged with, 398 et seq.
trustee who is banker not allowed to charge, 312.
costs, interest on, not allowed to trustee, 790.
debts, on, what allowed under trusts for creditors, 617 et seq.
executor charged with, for moneys improperly retained, 394, 395.
from what period charged, 401.
not during first year after testator's decease, 401.
not charged on money that never came to hand, 401.
or lying idle through mistake, 401.
executor decreed to pay, whether to pay costs also, 1277.

INTEREST—continued.
fines for renewals, what interest allowed on contribution for, 448, 449.
hotchpot, on advance brought into, 397.
income, on arrears of, 393 note.
legacy, on, allowed to child by way of maintenance from death, 485, 486, 723 et seq.
in other cases from end of first year, 485, 486.
mesne rents and profits, account of, not decreed with interest, 1148.
nor where purchase by trustee set aside, 576.
mistake, trustee making, when excused from paying interest, 402, 408.
money charged on land, on, 1128 note.
motion for payment into Court, when ordered on, 1259, 1260.
portions, what interest raisable in respect of, 484 et seq.
profits, on, not charged against trustee, 576.
proof for, by c. q. t. on bankruptcy of defaulting trustee, 1184.
rate of, adjustment of rights of tenant for life and remaindermen, 338 note, 339.
charged against trustee retaining trust money, 389.
5 per cent. where direct breach of trust, 396 et seq.
or money employed in trade, 399. See infra, "trade."
rule of Court as to, recently modified, 396, 397.
when allowed by way of maintenance in discretion of Court, 485 et seq.
rents, not charged on, 576, 1148.
repairs, on money borrowed for, 714.
simple contract debt, on, 617.
solicitor, allowed to, on money employed in buying up incumbrances, 307 note.
specialty debts, on, 618, 619.
tenant for life, when to be kept down by, 448.
trade, on money employed in, by trustee, 396, 397, 400.
c. q. t. has option of interest or actual profits, 398.
whether with rests, 400.
money lodged at banker's in trustee's name considered as so employed, 396.
trustee when chargeable with, 393 et seq.; at what rate, 396, 397.
waste, in cases of, wrong-doer when and from what period charged with, 209, 210 note, 715.

INTERESTED PERSON not a proper trustee, 41, 42, 826, 827.

INTERPLEADER, to establish equitable title of c. q. t., 250.

INTESTACY.
cestui que trust, of, as to personal estate without next of kin, executor when entitled, 317.
as to real estate without heirs, whether trustee entitled, 315.
not so entitled now under Intestates' Estates Act, 316.
limitation of action for recovery of personal estate of intestate, 1135.
purchaser in fee, of, without heirs, 316.
trustee, of, as to trust estate, effect of, 252.
widow of intestate, where no next of kin, only entitled to moiety, 317 note.

INTESTATES' ESTATES ACT, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 71).
Court empowered to order sale of lands of Crown, 45.
escheat, extension of law of, to equitable estates, 315, 316, 1061.

INTESTATES' ESTATES ACT, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 29), charge under, has priority over dower, 950.
partial intestacy, Act does not apply to case of, 317; but does apply where complete failure by lapse of beneficial interests, 317.

INTIMIDATION, release or confirmation obtained by, 583, 1201.

INTRUDER, not bound by a use, 3.

INVENTORY, when trustee should make, of chattels, 231.

INVESTMENT, Chap. xiv. s. 4, 343-394. accommodation loan, trustees should not invest by way of, 348, 372.
Act of Parliament, in securities of company incorporated by, 351; under, directing special mode of investment, 357, 680.
advowson, in purchase of, 590.
annuity, in purchase of, with policy on life, 351.
annuity, to provide for, 361.
apportionment of dividends on change of investment, 371, 372.
appropriation of, to legacy, 722, 723.
"approved securities," in, 381.
bank or government annuities, in, when proper, 345, 362, 363.
conversion of securities into, when directed by Court, 332.
trustee should not sell out, to invest in irregular funds, 389.
bank, private, trustees may deposit to trust account at, for temporary purposes, 329, 330.
neglect in leaving money in, uninvested, liability of trustees for, 392.
bank stock, in, 344 et seq., 362, 363.
bearer, certificates to, not to be taken by trustees, 370, 371.
brickworks, on, 376.
calling in, duty of trustee as to, 319, 386.
direction to call in securities "not approved of by executors," 324.
"to convert with all convenient speed," 321.
hazardous investment, 322, 343.
liability of trustee improperly calling in trust investment, 391.
canal company's stock, in, 363.
capital money, of, under Settled Land Acts, 679 et seq.
care as to, degree of, which trustee bound to exercise, 372 et seq.
cash under control of Court, of, in what securities permitted, 365, 366.
certificates to bearer, trustee prohibited from taking, 370, 371.
change of, apportionment of dividends on, 371, 372.
though unauthorised, sanctioned by Court, 392.
charity money, of, 634, 635, 636.
church trustees, by, 359.
Colonial securities, in, 355, 356, 364.
Colonial Stock Acts, under, 364, 370.
Companies Acts, on securities of companies incorporated under, 351.
Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act, 1868, under, 359.
concurrent powers under Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 367, 368.
consent, with, of tenant for life, 349, 350, 358, 368; or other person, 359, 368.
what consent sufficient, 349, 350, 359.
consols, in, 345, 362, 365, 494.
redemption of, 361.
continuation of, which has ceased to be authorised, 322.
continue investments, power to, effect of, 334, 381.
contributory mortgage, on, improper, 385.
control, trustee must not put money out of his own, 330, 331, 385.
or under control of co-trustee or co-executor, 392.
conversion of, trustee or executor when bound to make, 332 et seq. See CONVERSION.
Government Annuities, of, 360.
copyholds, in purchase of, 590.
on mortgage of, 382.
corporation stocks, in, 364, 365, 366.

INVESTMENT—continued.
cottage property, in, 376.
co-trustee, trustee should not lend to, 379, 380.
nor subject fund to control of, 392.
trustee making investment should not rely on statement of, 297.
County Council stocks, in, 362, 364, 365, 366.
debentures or debenture stock of railway or other company, in, 351, 352, 363, 365, 366, 369, 380.
decree in administration action suspends trustee's powers of, 770.
deposit, of, paid in under Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870 . . . 363 note.
different accounts, power to hold stock on, 361.
directors, by, 393.
discretion of trustee as to, Court will not in general control, 767.
bona fide exercise of, protected, 355, 368.
how to be exercised, 348, 349, 355, 356, 357.
dividends, apportionment of, on change of investment, 371, 372.
drainage of settled lands, in, 592.
East India Stocks, in 357, 362.
East India Unclaimed Stock Act, 1885, under, 370 note.
equitable mortgage, on, objectionable, 384.
equity of redemption, in purchase of, 590, 591.
exchequer bills, in, 352, 353, 365.
foreign bonds, in, 354, 355.
foreign railway company, in bonds of, 355.
"form of," meaning of term, 323.
friendly society, by trustees of, 387.
funds in Court, of, 357 et seq.
"funds," meaning of term, 355.
General Orders, as to investment of cash under control of Court, 357, 358, 365, 366.
government securities, in, 344, 345, 362, 371, 388, 389.
"government or good securities," meaning of term, 389.
Greek bonds, in, 355.
ground rents, in, 379, 380.
hazardous, trustee should avoid, 373, 379.
hazardous, when trustees have express power to retain, 335.
house property, on mortgage of, 375, 376.
improper investment, liability incurred by, or by non-investment, 388 et seq., 1170, 1175, 1176.
action in respect of, within what time to be brought, 1125 et seq.
capital, as to, where money improperly retained, 395, 396.
where express direction to invest in funds and neglect so to do, 389, 390.
where direction to invest in funds or real security, 390.
where stock improperly sold out, 390, 391.
excessive sum, liability of trustee lending, 377, 378.
friendly society, by trustees of, 387.
insufficient security, realisation of, not directed in absence of c. q. t., 1175.
interest, trustee when chargeable with, Chap. xiv. s. 5, 393 et seq. See INTEREST.
India, on conversion of assets in, 390.
India stock, in, 353, 356, 357, 362, 365.
Indian railway annuities or securities, in, 354, 357, 358, 363, 365, inquiry, trustee should make, as to value of security, 373, 393 et seq.
as to value of reversion, 382.
as to title of borrower, 378 379.

INVESTMENT—continued.
Ireland, on real security in, 356, 382, 383.
Isle of Man Loans Act, 1880, under, 366, 370.
joint mortgage, on, 184, 385.
judgment not a "real security," 380.
land, of money liable to be laid out in purchase of, 359, 360.
Land Improvement Act, on charges under, 369.
existing charge under, does not preclude trustee from lending, 370.
Lands Clauses Act, of money paid into Court under, 359.
leased railways, on securities of, 363.
leaseholds for lives, on, 381; for years, 378, 379, 381, 382.
licensed house, mortgage of, 362 note.
lien of cestui que trust on securities retained pending realisation, 378.
liquidator, by, 394.
loan to co-trustee, trustee should not make, 380.
Local Loans Acts, under, 365, 366, 369.
London County Council stock, in, 362, 365.
long annuities, in, 388.
long term, on mortgage of, 369, 382.
Lord St. Leonards' Act, under, 356, 357, 383.
lunatic, of money of, 346.
market price of day, trustees justified in dealing at, 371.
Metropolitan Consolidated stock, in, 362, 365.
Mexican bonds, duty of trustees to convert, 320, 321.
mines, in purchase of, 590.
mix, trustee must not, trust property, with his own, 332; or with stranger's, 385.
"money liable to be laid out on land," of, 360.
Mortgage Debenture Act, under, 370.
mortgage on, 346, 347, 372, et seq. See infra, real security.
duty of trustee making, 372 et seq., 586.
National Debt (Conversion) Act, 1888, under, 360.
National Debt Act, 1870, under, 370.
neglect to invest, liability for, 392.
navy £5 per cents., in, 389.
new buildings, in erection of, 592.
new consols, in, 361, 362, 365.
new shares, in, substituted for existing investments, 322, 745.
new £3 per cent. annuities, in, 357.
conversion of, 360.
nominal debenture or debenture stock, meaning of, 369 note.
onerous covenants, on leaseholds subject to, 382.
outstanding, duty of trustee to call in, 303, 320 et seq.
Parliament, in securities the interest of which is guaranteed by, 362.
payment of money lent on mortgage, caution to be observed as to, 385.
periodical inquiries as to, trustees not bound to make, 393.
personal security, Court will not invest on, even where express power, 348.
executors should call in investments on, 323.
trustee should not invest on, 343, 344, 381.
unless where express authority, 347; what equivalent to such authority, 347, 348.
trustee "required" to invest on, 348.
trustees of friendly society, by, 388.
portion, of, in consols, equivalent to payment, 494.
postponement of, where particular investments perilous, 392.
power of, must be strictly followed, 349, 350.

INVESTMENT—continued.
where no express power, trustee ought to have invested in 3*l*. per cents., 345.
especially where successive estates, 335.
power to vary securities implied in, 543.
range of securities cannot be altered, 350.
private company, in stock of, 344, 345.
private security, on, 333, 344, 346, 372 et seq.
prohibition against, in trust instrument, effect of, 359 note, 373.
promissory note, on, 344.
public company, in securities of, 351.
public securities, in, 362.
purchase, by way of, 379.
purchase of land, in, under trust, 585 et seq. See PURCHASE.
railway bonds, duty of trustees to convert, 321.
railway stocks and securities, in, when authorised, 363, 365.
railway stock in, guaranteed by Indian Government, 363, 365.
range of, alteration by donee of power of appointment, 350.
real security, in—under power authorising such investment, 372 et seq.
buildings used in trade, 376, 377.
care to be observed in lending on, 372, 373, 375.
contributory mortgage, on, 385.
Court would not formerly order investment, 346, 347.
equity of redemption, on security of, objectionable, 383, 384.
excessive sum, liability of trustee advancing, 377, 378.
existing mortgages, trustee may retain, if sufficient, 379, 380.
form of mortgage by trustees, 386, 387; of transfer, 387.
freehold lands, not more than two-thirds of value of, should be advanced, 376.
ground rents, in, 379.
house property, in, 376.
Ireland, mortgage of land in, when proper, 356, 383, 384.
joint mortgage, 184, 385.
leasehold for lives, on security of, 381.
leaseholds for years, on, when a proper investment, 379, 380, 381, 382.
long terms of years, on, now declared to be proper, 369, 382.
mortgage to three jointly, 380.
personal security, with judgments entered up, not a proper investment, 381.
precautions to be taken in lending on, 372 et seq.
railway debentures or mortgages, on, 381 (see supra "debentures").
reversion, on security of, 382.
road bonds and mortgages of tolls, on, 380.
Scotland, on lands in, 383.
second mortgage, on, objectionable, 384.
stock, when trustees may sell out, and invest on mortgage, 371, 372.
under statutory power, 362, 365.
under trust for purchase of lands, 585 et seq. See PURCHASE. value and title, duty of trustee to inquire as to, 373 et seq., 586.
what proportion of value trustee should advance, 374 et seq.
where not expressly authorised, 346, 362, 367.
receipts, power to give, 386, 387, 542, 543.
redeemable stocks, in, 368.
reduced annuities, in, 345, 357, 358, 360, 365.

INVESTMENT—continued.
remaindermen, interests of, to be considered in reference to, 347, 348.
repairs and improvements of settled lands, in, 592, 593.
report as to value of security to be made to trustees, 374 et seq.
retention of, by trustees, 231, 323 et seq., 335, 352, 380 388.
improper, liability of trustees for, 395, 397.
under special direction as to, 352.
reversion, on mortgage or purchase of, 382.
road bonds, on, 380.
Scottish securities, in, 356, 383.
second mortgage, on, objectionable, 384, 385.
"securities," in, 351, 362 note.
Settled Land Act, 1882, under provisions of, 359, 360, 369 note, 680, 681.
shares in canal, insurance or railway companies, in, 351, 355.
where shares can stand in one name only, 353.
solicitor, duty of, advising trustee as to investment, 379.
liability of, receiving money for investment, 393.
trustee should not place money with, for investment, 411 note.
trustee should not rely on advice of, as to value, 1170.
nor, when lending, employ borrower's, 393.
South Sea stock or annuities, in, 344.
speculative, should be avoided by trustees, 373, 377, 378.
statutory powers of investment by trustees, 356 et seq.
stock mortgage, on, 372.
sufficiency of security, to be considered by trustees, 376, 377.
surveyor, employment of, by trustees lending money on mortgage, 375 et seq.
temporary, in Exchequer bills, 353.
tenant for life, apportionment in respect of dividends in favour of, on change of investment, 371, 372.
power exercisable with consent of, 349, 350, 359, 368.
trustee must not favour, at expense of remainderman, 347, 349, 388.
terminable securities, in, 332 et seq., 352.
timbered estate, in purchase of, 589.
title, trustee should inquire into, 373, 378, 379.
tolls, on mortgages of, 380.
trade, on buildings used in, 376, 377.
trade or speculation, trustee must not invest in, 350, 351.
trust for conversion, effect of, 353.
Trust Investment Act, 1889, under, 361.
trust money, meaning of expression, 343 note.
Trustee Act, 1893, under powers of, 361 et seq.
Trustee Act, 1893, of moneys paid into Court under, 1309.
"two-thirds rule" as to, 376, 377, 378.
unauthorised, becoming, after testator's death, 322, 323.
duty of trustee to convert, 334, 335.
replacement of security converted into, 391.
retention of, 353.
sanction of Court, with, in case of emergency, 392.
undivided share, on mortgage of, 382.
United States securities, in, 354. value, duty of trustee to inquire as to, of mortgage property, 373 et seq., 1170, 1171 note.
what proportion trustee should advance, 374 et seq.
varying securities, power of, implied in power of investment, 543.
when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145.
trustees who have, may sell out stock and invest on mortgage, 371.

INVESTMENT—continued.
Trustee Act, 1893, under, 367.
wasting securities, duty of trustee as to conversion of, 332 et seq.
water commissioners' stock, in, 364.
water company's stock, in, 363, 364.

IRELAND.
Accumulations Act, 1800, does not apply to, 102.
investment by trustees on real security in, 356, 383, 384.
rate of interest in, 485.
vesting order as to lands in, 859.

ISLE OF MAN, investment on securities in, 366, 369, 370.

ISSUE.
construction of word, in marriage articles, 129, 131, 136.
daughter included in, 130, 131, 136.
"heirs of the body," distinguished from, 136.
portion, where gift to issue is regarded as, to the parent, 480.
purchase, a word of, and not of limitation, 136.

ISSUE, TRIAL OF, directed on petition under Trustee Act, 430.

JAMAICA, commission for management of estates in, 781.

JOINT.
account, payment to, 331.
account clause, in mortgage to trustees, 185.
contract, effect of disclaimer as to, 224. liability of co-trustees for breach of trust, joint and several, 1176 et seq.
mortgage, investment on, 181, 385.
office, co-trustees exercise, jointly, 289 et seq.
power, exercise of, 757.

JOINT TENANT.
admission of trust by, 67.
body corporate, power to acquire and hold property in joint tenancy, 32.
conveyance by, without consideration, 164.
copyholds, of, fine payable on admission of, 263.
devise to, if void for fraud as to one is void as to all, 66.
to two and survivor and heirs of survivor, effect of, 239.
executory trust, words of joint ownership when construed tenancy in common, 133.
marriage articles, in, 133.
wills, in, 143.
father and son, purchase in joint names of, 192.
forfeiture by one joint tenant of chattels, 248.
grant to two and survivor and heirs of survivor, joint tenancy whether implied, 238, 239.
improvement of property by one, lien for, 185.
incumbrance, effect of joint tenant purchasing, 311.
infant, severance of joint tenancy by, 39.
merger of joint tenancy and equitable tenancy in common, 12, 133.
mortgage, advance by several on, joint tenancy not implied, 185.
partnership, jus accrescendi excluded in cases of, 185.
purchase by several who contribute equally, joint tenancy implied, 184, 185.
secus, where contribution unequal, 185.
renewal of lease by one joint tenant in his own name, effect of, 202 note.
rents, receipt of, by one co-trustee, 251.

JOINT TENANT—continued.
secret trust when binding on, 66, 67.
severance of joint tenancy by infant, 39; by trustees, 251.
vesting order in case of joint tenancy, 844, 845, 852.
widow of, not entitled to dower, 949.

JOINTURE.
deed, appointment of person to execute, 848 note.
power to charge, not authorised in executory trust under "usual powers," 145.
separate use, may be limited to, and made inalienable during present coverture, 973.

JUDGMENT, Chap. xxviii. s. 7, 1028-1057. And see DECREE. administration, priority of judgment creditors in, 1069 note.
annuitant, against, 1038.
attachment of debt due to judgment debtor, 1054.
bankruptcy of debtor, judgment or execution creditor how affected by, 1054.
charge created by, general, and to be postponed to specific charge, 928 et seq.
charge on land under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, . . . 381, 1037 et seq.
charging order on stocks and shares, 1040 et seq. See CHARGING ORDER.
chattel interest not affected by, until actual seizure whether legal or equitable, 1028, 1029.
common law, at, effect of, 1028.
covenant to settle future property, effect of, as against judgment creditor, 250.
creditor, not purchaser for value, 275, 276.
decree of court of equity when operating as, 1037.
delivery in execution, does not affect land until, 1047, 1048.
what amounts to, in equity, 1048.
equity of redemption how affected by, 1030, 1035.
execution of, at law, 1028, 1029.
equitable chattel, as against, 1051.
equitable interest, as against, by elegit, 1029 et seq.
by fi. fa., 1028, 1029.
by levari facias, 1028.
moiety only, could formerly be taken in execution, 1028, 1033.
entirety of equity of redemption, 1034.
entirety now under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 11, . . . 1037.
proviso against suing in equity until year after judgment, 1039, 1040.
garnishee order to attach debt due to trustee, 275.
land must now be delivered in execution, 1047 et seq.
receiver, by appointment of, 1051 et seq.
elegit need not be actually sued out, 1050.
stocks and shares, against, 85, 1040.
when complete, 1054.
execution of trust, for, effect of, on powers of trustee, 669, 747, 748, 770.
exoneration from, what agreement or covenant amounts to, 927, 928.
firm, against, several liability of partners not merged in, 1176.
foreclosure, right of judgment creditor to, 1049.
form of, 1193.
Frauds, Statute of, execution of trust estate by elegit under, 1035, 1036.
Frauds, Statute of, whether equitable elegit may be had where no legal elegit under, 1035, 1036.
land to be converted into personalty whether bound by, 1031 et seq.
married woman, against, form and effect of, 987 et seq.
in favour of, is chose in action, 961.
marshalling as between judgment creditors, 929.

JUDGMENT—continued.
money to be converted into land bound by, 1217.
mortgage, right of judgment creditor to redeem, 1030, 1033, 1050.
mortgagor, against, 1029, 1035, 1039, 1049.
whether binding on surplus proceeds of sale of mortgaged property, 1033, 1039.
notice of, how far material as against purchaser, 1031, 1037, 1046.
priority of, in administration of assets, 1069 note.
priority of equitable incumbrance over, 276 note.
property not capable of delivery, against, 1050.
purchaser for valuable consideration, judgment creditor is not, 276 note.
purchaser, who is, within 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, . . . 1048.
purchasers, as between, incidence of, 927, 928.
real security, is not, 381.
receiver, equitable execution by appointment of, 1051 et seq.
redeem, right of judgment creditor to, 1051.
registration and re-registration of, 1037, 1045, 1054 et seq.
necessary for priority in administration of assets, 1069 note.
sale of land, remedy by, when available to creditor, 1048.
search for, to be made by purchaser of land, 587, 1046, 1047, 1055 et seq.
settled and unsettled estates, incidence of judgment as between, 928.
surplus proceeds under trust for sale or power of sale in mortgage, whether bound by, 1033, 1039.
tack, right of judgment creditor to, 1034.
trustee, against, whether chattel may be taken in execution of, 250.
trustee, estate of, judgment binding on, 274.
but c. q. t. will be protected in equity, 275.
Trustee Act, when judgment makes legal owner trustee within, 836, 847.
vendor, against, after contract to sell, 1031 et seq.
vesting order consequential on, 846, 847.
Westminster, under Statute of, effect of, 1028.

JUDGMENTS ACTS, provisions of, 1037 et seq.

JUDICIAL OPINION, proceedings by trustees to obtain, 419 et seq., 771.

JUDICIAL SEPARATION, choses in action of married woman how affected by, 404, 952, 972.

JUDICIAL TRUSTEE, Chap. xxiii. pp. 698-700.
accounts to be kept by, 699.
appointment of, by Court, 698, 699.
application for, how made, 698.
audit of accounts of, 699.
beneficiary may be appointed, 700.
executor or administrator, appointment of, 700.
judicial factors, appointment of, in Scotland, 698 note.
official of the Court, appointment of, 699.
persons to be appointed, 698, 699, 700.
private trustee, to act with, Court unwilling to appoint, 700.
Public Trustee may be appointed a, 701.
removal of, 700.
remuneration of, 699.
reversioner, refusal to appoint at instance of, 699.
rules as to, 700.
security to be given by, 700 note.
trustee, person who is already a, may be appointed, 700.

JUDICIAL TRUSTEES ACT, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict. c. 35). See JUDICIAL TRUSTEE. relief of trustee under, from personal liability for breach of trust, 1169 et seq.

JURISDICTION.
breach of trust, to relieve trustee from consequences of, 1169 et seq.
Crown, Court of Equity has no jurisdiction over conscience of, 30.
executor out of, vesting order as to interest of, 852.
foreign property, as to, 49 et seq.
lands abroad, jurisdiction to enforce equities, contracts or trust of, 49 et seq.
lunatic residing out of, vesting order as to stock of, 860, 1314.
parties out of, may now be served abroad, but this does not enlarge right to relief, 50.
payment by trustee to c. q. t. out of, 411, 412.
receipt by trustees pending residence of c. q. t. abroad, 537, 559.
receiver appointed when trustees all out of, 1263.
service on parties out of, 49, 1045, 1305.
trustee residing out of, 40, 840, 841 note, 844; new trustee appointed instead of, 804, 808, 840, 841 note, 844 note.
vesting orders as to interest of, 844, 852.
whether persons residing out of, may be appointed trustees, 822.

JUROR, cestui que trust of lands, when qualified to be, 875.

JUS ACCRESCENDI, excluded in cases of partnership, 185.

JUS DISPONENDI of c. q. t., 880 et seq. See CONVEYANCE.

JUS HABENDI of c. q. t., 867 et seq. See POSSESSION.

JUST ALLOWANCES, direction for, when given, 308, 309.

KENT, custom of, 24. See GAVELKIND LANDS.

KING. See CROWN.

KING'S BENCH.
civil corporations formerly visited by Court of, 622 note.
Division, business assigned to, 15.

KNIGHT OF THE SHIRE. See MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT.

LACHES. See ACQUIESCENCE: LIMITATION OF ACTION. account, right to, when barred by, 581, 1116 et seq., 1147.
acquiescence, distinguished from, 1119, 1120.
breach of trust, right to relief for, when barred by, 581, 582, 1162, 1196 et seq.
cestui que trust, by, in setting aside sale to trustee, 581, 582.
charitable trust, in case of, 1210, 1211.
class of persons, by, 581.
constructive trust, when a bar to enforcement of, 207, 1109 et seq.
creditor, by, in not suing executor, 610.
in not suing to set aside voluntary settlement, 84.
creditors' deed, time limited in, for creditors to come in, 613, 614.
disclaimer of trust, in making, effect of, 220.
equitable interest, by person entitled to, 935.
executor or administrator, of, in payment of debts, 401.
fraudulent conveyance, action to set aside, not prejudiced by, 1120 note.
ignorance, mistake or poverty, when excused by, 583, 1116, 1201.
incumbrancer, by, where whole beneficial interest absorbed by prior incumbrancers, 1197.
interest when charged against trustee guilty of, 394 et seq.
legal right to set aside transaction not affected by, 1120 note.

LACHES—continued.
legatee, by, in requiring executor to account, 416.
purchase by trustee, when a bar to action to set aside, 580 et seq., 1118.
remainderman, when imputed to, 452.
resulting trust on purchase in name of another defeated by laches of purchaser, 190.
sale by executor, action to set aside, barred by, 568.
tenant for life, by, as to renewal of lease, 452, 453.
trustee, of, cestui que trust not to be prejudiced by, 611, 946, 1073.
in enforcing covenant, 319, 320, 1164, 1165.
in getting in trust property, 319 et seq., 585.
in investing trust property, 303.
in keeping up policy, 1165, 1166.
in suffering money to be in hands of co-trustee, 297 et seq.

LAND.
"at home," when land is considered to be, 1224, 1225.
converted, directed to be, taken as money, 1224 et seq. See CONVERSION.
definition of, in Trustee Act, 844 note.
devise of, will pass money to be laid out on land, 1217.
discharged from trust where money has been raised, 532.
foreign, dispute as to title to, 51.
investment of money liable to be laid out in, 359, 360.
portion charged on, failing, sinks for benefit of inheritance, 488.
tortiously sold by trustee, rights of c. q. t. in respect of, 1125.
trust money tortiously invested in, by trustee, may be followed, 1151 et seq.
vesting order as to, 844 et seq.

LAND CHARGES ACT, 1900, provisions of, 1056, 1057.

LAND CHARGES REGISTRATION AND SEARCHES ACT, 1888, provisions of, 615, 1055, 1056.

LAND IMPROVEMENT ACT, 1864, . . . 369, 370.

LAND IMPROVEMENT CHARGES, discharge of, under Settled Land Acts, 683.

LAND TAX, lunatic's estate, on, redeemable by sale of timber to be cut, 1242.

LAND TRANSFER ACT, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65). appropriation under, in satisfaction of legacy, 722, 723.
charge taken from devisee under, 437 note. devolution of real estate under, 248, 316 note, 560 note, 565 note, 1216 note.

LANDS CLAUSES ACT.
"absolutely entitled," trustees for sale are, within the Act, 528.
"grant" in conveyance under, implies covenants for title, 882.
improvements, application of purchase-money in, 712.
investment of purchase-money paid into Court under, 359.
leaseholds which tenant for life entitled to enjoy in specie, application of compensation for, 334 note.
payment out of Court under, to tenant in tail, 1238.
to trustees appointed under Settled Land Acts, 688.
trustees' costs of petition for, 1266.
sale of infants' property under, 174.
surveyor under, trustees cannot appoint one of themselves to be, 289.

LAPSE, 179 et seq., 611. See LEGACY.

LAW, ignorance of, when an excuse, 583 note.

LAWFUL TRUST. Chap. vii. s. 1, 90 et seq. See UNLAWFUL TRUST. meaning of term, explained, 17.

LEASE.
agricultural, duration of, 640.
Agricultural Holdings Act, under, 744, 745.
building, duration of, 641.
cestui que trust, by, effect of, 872, 873.
charity lands, of, 637 et seq. See CHARITY.
company, to, under power of leasing, 744.
contract for, by tenant for life, carried out, 757, 758.
covenants in lease to testator, indemnity of executor against, 525, 526.
for private advantage of trustee, improper, 637.
equitable tenant for life, by, 872.
executor, by, 502.
executor of lessee, liability of, 525.
landlord allowing tenant to build when compelled to grant lease, 927.
lives, for, whether trustee may grant, 641.
non-entry on cesser of, by mistake, 1145.
mining, power to grant, 147, 211, 663, 744.
notice of, presumed from recital of surrender, 207.
option of purchase, trustee must not lease with, 502.
power to grant, 744.
control of Court over exercise of, 766.
effect of, in determining legal estate taken by trustee, 244.
improvements by tenant not to be taken into account in estimating best rent, 744.
mines, of, 663, 744. See MINES.
Settled Estates Act, under, when conferred on trustees, 774.
"usual power," is a, 145.
including building or mining leases where beneficial, 145.
purchaser of, shall assume its validity, 519.
renewal of, by trustee, tenant for life or other limited owner, in own name, 201 et seq., 438 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
specific performance of contract for, vesting order to give effect to, 848 note.
tenant for life, by, under Settled Land Acts, 212, 663, 668, 669.
tenant right, lease obtained under cover of, is subject to equity of original term, 1104.
trust to lease confers fee simple on trustee, 242, 243.
trustees, their power to grant, generally, 744, 745.
must not grant to or for benefit of themselves, 571.
for sale cannot grant, 502, 744.

LEASEHOLDS.
assignment of, by trustees, covenants to be entered into on, 525, 526.
assignment of, to new trustees, how effected, 810, 811.
conversion of, duty of trustee as to, 333 et seq.
when bequeathed in succession, trustee should convert, 333.
unless contrary intention can be collected, 333, 334.
tenant for life to what income entitled, 340.
executor, right of, to indemnity against liabilities under, 525, 526.
freehold title, lessee or assign not entitled to proof of, 519.
insurance of, against fire, executor empowered to effect, 329.
investment on security of, when proper, 378, 379, 381, 382.
legal estate in, when passing under bequest to trustees, 241.
where freeholds and leaseholds coupled together, 241.
legatee of, whether competent to execute trust, 256.

LEASEHOLDS—continued. lives, for, devolution of equitable interest in, 186 note.
lives, for, renewal of, 443 et seq.
long term, conversion of, into fee simple, 746.
renewable, 201 et seq., 438 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
sale of, proof of title on, 518 et seq.
settlement of, on trusts to correspond with freeholds, 140. See EXECUTORY TRUSTS.
tenant for life of, rights and liabilities of, 266.
title-deeds of, executor may hold, until all debts paid, 874.
trustee of, liable on covenants, 265; but entitled to be indemnified out of trust estate, 265.
trustees for sale of, cannot require covenant of indemnity from purchaser, 525.
should not sell by way of under-lease, 502.
vesting order as to, 847.

LEGACY.
abroad, where legatee is, payment of, 411, 427.
accounts, legatee may require inspection of, but no copy, 887.
ademption of, by subsequent advance to child, 474 et seq.
administration, what legacies will be paid without taking out, 412.
annuity, for purchase of, when legatee may claim immediate payment, 885.
appropriation of, by executor, 228, 722, 723, 894, 1134, 1135.
assent to, by executor, 228, 561.
breach of trust, legatee taking, with notice of, 1162.
capital and income of residue, how to be apportioned between, 335, 336, 337, 340.
charge of, on land, when discharged, 532.
Statutes of Limitation, how affected by, 1121 note, 1134, 1135.
on particular property, distinguished from exception, 177. power of selling or mortgaging to raise, in whom vested, 550, 551.
who entitled on failure of charge, 177.
charitable, lapse of, 181 note.
charity, to, out of sale moneys, 1226.
child, to, regarded as portion unless otherwise expressed, 479.
class, to, maintenance when allowed out of, 727 et seq.
conditional, duty of executor to give legatee notice of terms of, 888.
conditional or contingent charge of, 176.
tenant for life entitled to income of, until contingency happens, 336, 337.
contingent legacy to infant, maintenance, when allowed out of income of, 725 et seq.
costs of legatee's action, 1268, 1269.
co-trustee, of, lien on, for contribution, 1181.
devised real estate, out of, which lapses or is void, 178 et seq.
duty on, 521, 611, 1223. See LEGACY DUTY.
executor, to, for trouble, 783, 784, 792.
executor may claim, though he renounce probate, 220, 221.
powers of executor who is also legatee, 563 et seq.
express trust declared of, effect of, 1134.
following trust money into hands of legatee, 1169.
heir, to, will not necessarily rebut resulting trust, 168.
incidence of, as between tenant for life and remaindermen of residue, 337.
infant, to, how to be paid, 412, 413; appropriation of, 722, 741; maintenance when allowed out of income of, 485, 486, 725 et seq.; out of capital, 729, 730.
interest on, when paid out of reversion which has fallen in, 342.
when allowed by way of maintenance, 485, 486, 723 et seq.

LEGACY—continued.
lapse of, given out of proceeds of sale of realty, effect of, 180.
none of legacies to creditors in satisfaction of debts, 611.
Limitations, Statute of, legacy when barred by, 1121 note, 1134, 1135, 1162 et seq.
notice to legatee of terms of condition, 888.
over-payment of, legatee when bound to refund, 414 et seq.
partner, to, may be set off against debt owing by firm, 898.
payment of, legatee may claim, when exclusively interested in legacy, 885.
fund applicable for, 337.
time for, 719.
where legatee deceased, 412.
payment of, into Court, where legatee infant, 424, 741, 1307.
portion, regarded as, to a younger child, 479.
not where contingent only, 483.
refund, legatee when bound to, 413 et seq.
release, whether legatee bound to give, 417, 418.
residuary legatee, executor who is, powers of, 563.
lien on estate, when entitled to, 561.
settlement of account with one, 416, 740, 741.
sale by executor, legatee may impeach, 561.
set-off, between legatee and executor, 893, 898.
specific legatee, right of, to enjoyment of income in specie, 333.
trust, held upon, appropriation of investment to, 721, 722, 1134, 1135.
trust for payment of debts and legacies, effect of, 238, 538 et seq. See DEBT; RECEIPT.
trustee of, may be attesting witness to will, 306 note.

LEGACY DUTY.
annual payment to trustees for trouble is liable to, 792.
creditor when liable to pay, 611.
land converted in equity is subject to, 1223, 1224.
money to be laid out on a purchase of land is subject to, 1217 note.
secret trust, duty payable by apparent beneficial owner who holds upon, 63 note.
trustees can pass estate free from, 521.

LEGACY DUTY ACT. payment into court under, new procedure now substituted for, 423 et seq.
did not make infant ward of court, 433.

LEGAL ASSETS, 1063, 1067. See ASSETS.

LEGAL ESTATE. Chap. xii. 233-280. account when granted at instance of owner of, 1144, 1147, 1148.
appointment of, under power, 748, 749.
assignment of, trustee may make, 276. See infra, conveyance.
but assignee bound by trust, unless purchaser without notice, 276.
bankruptcy of trustee, how affected by, 266 et seq.
burdens annexed to legal estate in trustees, 260 et seq. See infra, privileges.
cestui que trust, action by, for protection of legal estate, 1094, 1095.
cestui que use empowered to pass, by 1 Ric. 3. c. 1, . . . 4, 5.
charge of debts on, not sufficient to exclude operation of Statute of Uses, 235.
legal fee when passing by virtue of, 243.
charge of debts on, trust estate when excluded from passing by reason of, 253.
charity, cannot be limited to objects of, in succession, 47.
secret trust for, devise of legal estate good, 68, 69.
charity trustees, majority of, may pass legal estate, 291, 635, 642, 643.

LEGAL ESTATE—continued.
legal estate when and how vested in new trustees, 1092 et seq.
chattel interest, trustees when held to take, 245.
chattel real, in, limitation of, 91.
chattels, devolution of, to administrator or executor of trustee, 248.
codicil substituting "trustee," effect of, 240.
commensurate with trust if possible, 233 et seq.
contingent remainder, existence of, does not show that trustee takes legal estate, 458.
conveyance of, does not transfer powers of trustees, 288, 289.
not essential to valid appointment of new trustee, 809, 810.
right of c. q. t. to call for, 880 et seq.
right of trustee to make, 250.
without disposing of equitable interest, 163 et seq.
copyholds, in, when passing under devise to trustees, 247, 248.
surrender to use of will formerly necessary to pass, 931.
curtailed from nature of trust, 240 et seq.
curtesy, is subject to, in trustee, 9, 246; but tenant by, bound by trust, 8, 276.
devise in favour of charity, effect of, 69.
devise or bequest of, trustee might make, 252, 255; secus now since Conveyancing Act, 1881, . . . 247, 248.
general devise, when passing under, 252, 253.
devisee whether competent to execute trusts, 256 et seq.
notwithstanding devise or bequest, vests now in personal representatives of trustee, 247, 248.
devolution of, in trustee, Chap. xii. s. 2, . . . 246.
under Conveyancing Act, 1881, . . . 247, 248.
under Copyhold Act, 1894, . . . 247.
under Municipal Corporations Acts, 1091, 1092.
under Trustee Appointment Acts, 1092 et seq.
disclaimer, when divested by, 221, 223.
discretionary powers superadded to devise to trustees, effect of, 243, 244.
disseisin by c. q. t., effect of, 1131.
disseisor of trustee not bound by trust, 13, 280.
dower, legal estate in trustee is subject to, 246; but dowress bound by trust, 276.
enlarged, when, by nature of trust, 237.
equitable interest compared with, 46, 47, 90, 91.
escheat, estate in trustee whether subject to, 276, 277.
copyholds and customary freeholds, as to, 277, 278.
equity of redemption, as to, 278.
lord taking by, whether bound by trust, 276 et seq.
executor, right of, to call for conveyance of, 1219.
when empowered to convey, 246, 548, 549.
fee simple, when trustee takes, without word "heirs," 235, 243, 244.
fee upon a fee may be limited by executory devise, 90.
feme covert trustee cannot convey without concurrence of husband, 36.
forfeiture, estate in trustee formerly liable to, secus now, 276.
but lord was bound by trust, 277.
equitable interest how affected by, 1058, 1059.
general words when construed to pass trust estate, 251, 252.
getting in, duty of trustee as to, 319.
grant or devise to two and survivor, effect of, 238, 239.
indefinite chattel interest, trustee not to be deemed to take, under simple devise to him, 245.
judgment against trustee binds trust estate, but c. q. t. protected, 275.
Land Transfer Act, 1897, devolution under, 248.

LEGAL ESTATE—continued.
lawful trust may be created of, in cases where legal estate cannot itself be operated on, 90.
lease, trust to, confers fee simple, 242, 243.
secus where power of leasing not intended to affect the fee, 244.
legal personal representative, devolution of trust estate upon, 247, 248.
maintenance, provision for, held to show intention to pass legal estate, 235.
majority of charity trustees, empowered to convey, 290 ; secus, ordinary trustees, 290.
mortgages, in, distinction between, and trust estates, 254, 255.
net rents, trust to permit A. to receive, 234, 235.
"pay" or "permit to receive," trust to, whether legal estate passes by, 235 et seq., 240, 241.
persons taking, when bound by trust, 275 et seq., 1100 et seq.
privileges and burdens annexed to legal estate in trustee, 260 et seq.
action, trustee brings, 260.
bankruptcy, trustee proves in, 261.
copyholds, trustee pays admission fine to, 262 et seq.; but is entitled to reimbursement out of trust estate, 265.
living, trustee presents to, 261.
rates, trustee liable for, 262.
steward of manor, trustee appoints, 261.
title-deeds, as to, 873, 874. See TITLE-DEEDS.
trade, trustee engaging in, amenable to bankrupt laws, 266.
voting for coroner or member of Parliament, as to, 261, 262.
purchase, trustee for, should get in legal estate, 591.
purchaser without notice when protected by getting in, 1100, 1101.
quantity of, taken by trustees, 237 et seq.
determined by nature of trust, 237.
rules restricting limitation of, not applicable to trusts, 90 ; e.g. rule that no fee can be upon a fee, ib.; or no life estate in chattels, 91.
sell, trust to, confers a fee, 238.
special trust, conveyance upon, not within Statute of Uses, 234.
supplied on account of trust, 237. transfer of, when necessary, in order to constitute trust, 73 et seq.
trust, legal estate sufficient for execution of implied, 237.
persons taking legal estate bound by trust, 275 et seq., 1100.
trustee can avail himself of, in absence of notice, 1102.
cannot recover in equity for his own benefit, 318.
"trustee," devise whether implied by use of word, 240.
uses, devise to, when legal estate passes to trustees under, 244.
Uses, Statute of, when legal estate executed by, in c. q. t., 233.
separate use, trust for, is executed by statute, 234.
special trusts not within, 234. See SPECIAL TRUST.
trust to pay rents to A. executed by statute, 234.
to permit A. to receive rents, secus, 234, 235.
to pay unto or permit A. to receive, 236.
vesting the legal estate in the trustee, mode of, 233 et seq.
volunteer, incurring expense, entitled to call for conveyance of, 79.
wills, in gift under, legal estate supplied or enlarged by reason of character trust, 237.
Wills Act, enactment of, as to estate taken by trustees, 245.

LEGAL PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE. See ADMINISTRATOR ; EXECUTOR. devolution of personal estate upon, 245.
empowered to convey under contract for sale, 259, 260, 836.

LEGAL PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE—continued.
new trustees, appointment of, where there is no legal personal representative, 838.

LEGAL POWER, distinguished from equitable, 748, 749.

LEGAL TITLE, relief upon, when granted in Court of equity, 1144 et seq., 1148, 1149.

LEGATEE. See LEGACY.

LESSEE. See LEASE.
not prejudiced where purchase by trustee for sale set aside, 577.

LETTER, declaration of trust by, when sufficient, 58.

LETTERS PATENT, necessary for declaration of trust by Crown, 19.

LEVARI FACIAS.
execution under, 1028.
writ of, not to be in future issued in civil proceeding, 1029.

LEX LOCI, 50.
descent of trust is subject to, 1062.

LIEN.
agent, of, on trust estate for his charges, 796.
bank, of, on shares, 916.
cestui que trust, of, on property into which trust estate is tortiously converted, 269, 1152 et seq.
for advances by him to trustees, 796.
none against land properly sold for proceeds misapplied, 532.
securities retained pending realisation, on, 378.
clause reserving, when requiring registration as bill of sale, 410.
costs of suit when postponed to lien of trustee for expenses, 795.
creditor having specific lien, proof of debt by, 612.
whether he releases by executing trust deed for payment of debts, 612, 613.
decree creates, on real estate, 1069, but see 1047, 1048.
deposit by way of, not forfeited on bankruptcy of banker, 273.
devise to debtor, whether created by, 1180.
expenses, for, trustee entitled to, 205, 795 et seq.
improvements, for, by trustee, 205, 712, 713, 795.
joint tenant, of, for improvements, 185, 186.
judgment creditor, of, on goods or lands of debtor, 1029, 1030, 1045, 1049, 1069 note. See JUDGMENT.
land abroad, against, how far enforceable, 50.
legacy of trustee who has committed a breach of trust is subject to, in favour of co-trustee, 1181.
married woman's contract does not create, on separate property, 979, 980.
moneys in hands of Secretaries of State for public purposes, against, 798.
ostensible vendor, of, 165.
policy moneys, on, for payment of premiums, 1165.
purchaser dying without heir, of personal representative of, 315, 316.
with notice of lien, bound thereby, 1100.
renewal of lease, in respect of, 205, 445.
residuary legatee, of, on estate, 561.
solicitor, of, for costs, 796, 894 note, 905. See SOLICITOR.
specialty creditor has not, upon estate, 616.

LIEN—continued.
specific preferred to general, 902, 1043.
tenant for life, of, renewing lease, for contribution from remainderman, 205, 438, 447.
trustee, of, for expenses, &c., 793 et seq.
breach of duty, trustee committing, not entitled to, 796, 800.
business of testator carried on, in respect of, 720, 721.
contribution, for, against co-trustee, 1177 et seq.
costs of purchase, for, on purchased estate, 593.
creditors of business carried on by trustee, when entitled to benefit of, 793, 794.
improvements, for, 205, 711, 795.
overpayment, for, on interest of c. q. t., 413, 416.
persons employed by trustee have no lien upon trust fund, 796, 797.
secus if trustee positively directed to employ particular agent, 797.
policy moneys, on, for moneys advanced for premiums, 1165.
priority of, over costs of action, 795.
remedy for enforcement of, 795, 798, 799.
renewal of lease, in respect of expenses of, 205.
several estates, held on same trusts under same instrument, are subject to, 798.
void trust deed, under, 795.
vendor, of, for purchase-money, 921.
heir of vendor bound to discharge, 1219, 1220.
may be postponed to equitable mortgage, 920, 921.
notice of, purchaser having, is bound, 1100.
receipt of, being trustee, does not prejudice c. q. t., 921.
waiver of, by proof in bankruptcy, 1184.

LIFE. See TENANT FOR LIFE.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, payment into Court by, under Act of 1896, . . . 425.

LIMITATION. action or suit, of. See LIMITATION OF ACTION; LIMITATION, STATUTES OF.
chattels how far capable of, at law, 91.
gift of personalty with limitations appropriate to realty, 1222.
over, on alienation or bankruptcy, effect of, 114 et seq. See ALIENATION; BANKRUPTCY.
personalty, of, cannot be made, so as to knit same entirely to realty, 133.
words of, how far required to create equitable fee under will or deed, 124, 125.

LIMITATION OF ACTION. See LIMITATION, STATUTES OF. account, action for, 1116, 1117, 1143 et seq.
acquiescence, by, 1119 et seq.
(1) when act done with full knowledge of plaintiff, 1119.
(2) when he stands by without objecting, 1119, 1120. secus if party dealing with property knew the real owner's rights, 1120.
analogy, by, to Statutes of Limitation, 1109 et seq.
concealed fraud, in cases of, 1113.
distress, ignorance, mistake or poverty, statutory bar not avoided by, 1111.
period of limitation adopted by Court, 1110 et seq.
five years in case of fine by volunteer without notice of constructive trust, 1111.
remainderman of equity of redemption, as against, 1110.
twenty years equitable bar by analogy to Statute of James, 1110.

LIMITATION OF ACTION—continued.
breach of trust, for, 1157, 1161, 1162, 1169.
constructive trust barred by lapse of time, 1108, 1118.
delay, by reason of, 1116 et seq. See infra, laches.
devastavit, claim against executors for, when barred, 415.
fraud, in cases of, 1113.
ignorance of rights when an excuse for delay, 1111, 1116.
inconvenience, on ground of, 1116 et seq.
account against trustees of charity, 1211 et seq.
when parties dead and vouchers, &c., lost, 1116.
whether mere lapse of time a bar, 1118.
laches in application to Court, by reason of, 1115 et seq.
accounts between partners, as to, 1118.
constructive trust, to enforce, 207, 1108, 1118.
fraud, in cases of, 1113.
purchase by trustee or solicitor, to set aside, 565, 566, 1118.
reversionary interest, in respect of, 1118.
specific performance, inaction for, 1118.
Statute of Limitations, when there is, 1118.
trust for payment of debts does not justify, 611.
mistake when an excuse for delay, 1111, 1115.
poverty when an excuse for delay, 1111. presumption, by, of release or other act, after lapse of time, 1115 et seq.
charities, as to, 1117.
class, as against, does not easily arise, 1116.
corporation, against, not readily made, 1212.
distress of persons entitled, effect of, 1116.
favoured in law, 1116.
ground of, for purpose of quieting possession, 1115.
ignorance or mistake, effect of, 1116.
period of, 1115.
release when presumed, 1115, 1116.
statute, by, 1120 et seq. See LIMITATION, STATUTES OF.

LIMITATION, STATUTES OF, 1120 et seq.
absence beyond seas, effect of, 1123.
account, formerly not applicable to action for, 1116.
action of, how affected by statutes, 1120, 1144 et seq.
acknowledgment of debt by one trustee or executor, effect of, 290, 298 note, 1133.
acquiescence, effect of, not interfered with by, 1112.
agent when entitled to benefit of, 232.
arrears of rent, as to action for, 1122.
express trust, in case of, c. q. t. might recover all, 1133.
but secus now under Real Property Limitation Act, 1874, . . . 1133, 1134.
where express trustee ignorant of his true character, 1147.
period of limitation of action for, limited to six years, 1132.
blended fund, where debts payable out of, 611.
breach of trust, action in respect of, how affected by statutes, 1137 et seq., 1157, 1169 et seq.
cestui que trust and trustee, application of, as between, 1124, 1130.
in case of express trust, 1124.
volunteer claiming under trustee, 1124.
cestui que trust of specifically devised real estate, entitled to plead, 737 note.
cestui que trust or trustee and stranger, apply as between, 1112 et seq., 1133.
quære, where c. q. t. an infant, 1112, 1113.

LIMITATION, STATUTES OF—continued.
charge distinguished from express trust, 1127.
coupled with duty, 1128.
of debts, when barred, 1127 et seq.
charities how affected by, 1134, 1210.
claim by creditor in answer to advertisements, effect of, 437 note.
constructive trust not saved by s. 25 . . . 1126.
covenants and contracts, application of statutes to, 1112.
creditors, trust for, how affected by, 610, 611.
debt, action for, when barred, 1120.
charge for payment of, when barred, 1127 et seq.
executor whether liable for paying statute-barred debts, 737.
trust for payment of, effect of, 610, 611.
whether when trustee is barred, c. q. t. is also barred, 1112.
demurrer, whether the subject of, 1115 note.
directors of company paying dividends out of capital cannot plead, 1161.
disability of c. q. t., effect of, 1112, 1113, 1123, 1124, 1144.
term of six years allowed after cesser of, 1112.
dispossession of trustee, or c. q. t., 1130.
disseisin by c. q. t., 1131.
dower, arrears of, action for, when barred, 1149.
equity acts in obedience to, 1110.
executor, right of, to plead statute, 415, 737.
express trust, in case of, 1107, 1108, 1121, 1125 et seq., 1137 et seq.
definition of, 611, 1125, 1126.
distinguished from charge, 1127 et seq.
residue, when held upon, 1134.
time when beginning to run against assignee of trustee, 1124.
Trustee Act, 1888, under provisions of, 1136 et seq.
extinguishment of title under, 1122.
fraud, statute runs from discovery of, 1113, 1114, 1121, 1126.
ignorance of rights does not prevent operation of, 1111.
infancy, time running notwithstanding, 1123.
infant, action by, for account, when barred, 1149.
interest, arrears of, action for, when barred, 1122, 1132, 1133.
intestate, right to personal estate of, how affected by recent Act, 1135.
laches, bar from, where statute applies, 1119, 1162 et seq.
land or rent, action to recover, when barred by, 1120, 1121.
lands, equitable claim to, when barred, 1110 et seq.
legacy, action to recover, when barred, 1123 note, 1133, 1134.
married woman, when time begins to run against, 977.
whether applicable to action against separate property of, 991, 992.
mesne rents and profits, action for account of, how affected by, 1143 et seq.
mistake does not prevent operation of, 1116, 1126.
money charged on land, action for, when barred, 1121 note.
mortgage by way of trust for sale, not an express trust, 1129.
mortgagee, when time runs in favour of, 1110.
next of kin, action by, when barred, 1135.
payment by devisee for life of part, creditor's right of action kept alive by, 1124 note.
pleaded, must be, 1114.
cannot be, by person having notice of trust, 1112.
possession, adverse, 1130.
cestui que trust, by, effect of, 1130.
prior mortgagee, by, 1111.
trustee, by, who pays rent, &c., to wrong person, 1131.

LIMITATION, STATUTES OF—continued.
poverty of plaintiff does not affect operation of, 1111.
present right to receiver, 1135.
purchaser, as against, 1124.
under marriage settlement, 1124.
purchaser for value without notice of trust may rely on, 1124.
receiver whether express trustee within, 1135 note.
redemption, action for, when barred, 1110.
remainderman, when time begins to run against, 1110.
rent, action to recover, when barred by, 1120, 1121, 1132, 1133.
rents and profits, action for account of, how affected by, 1143 et seq., 1147, 1148.
residue or share of, action for, when barred, 1135.
resulting trust, when an express trust within, 1125.
reversionary, where right of c. q. t. is, 1123 et seq., 1142, 1143.
set-off of debt barred by, as against legacy or share of residue, 898, 899.
solicitor receiving money, when entitled to plead, 1161 note.
tenant at will, application of statutes to, 1130.
c. q. t. not to be deemed, 1130.
trust, application of statutes in cases of, 1125 et seq. See sup., express trust.
trust to sell and pay debts, 611, 1126 note.
trustee allowing to run, when responsible, 320.
Trustee Act, 1888, provisions of statutes extended by, 1136 et seq.
trustee, right of, to plead statute, 1161 et seq.
volunteer claiming under trustee cannot rely on, 1124.
waste, action in respect of, when barred, 209, 211.

LIQUIDATOR.
official, costs of, 1244.
trustee, is not, for creditors or contributories, 310 note, 393.

LIS PENDENS.
effect of, upon powers of executor or trustee, 747, 748, 831. See ACTION. order under Settled Land Act, 1884, s. 7, registration of, as . . . 778.

LOAN.
investment on, 343, 344, 347, 348, 381, 767. See INVESTMENT.
married woman, by, to husband, 975, 1024.
trustee, by, in breach of trust, borrower how affected with notice, 1107.

LOCAL LOANS ACTS, 1875, 1887, investment under, 365, 369.

LOCKE KING'S ACT, . . . 1226.

LOCO PARENTIS.
ademption, presumption of, applies only to persons in, 475, 476.
advancement, presumption of, applies to relatives to whom purchaser in loco parentis, 191 et seq.
but not to strangers, 198, 199.
intention to assume parental character, how evidenced, 476, 477.
portions, doctrine of, whether confined to persons in, 464 et seq.
satisfaction, presumption of, applies only to persons in, 474, 475.
who regarded as being in, 197, 198, 464, 465, 475, 476.

LODGMENT IN COURT. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, under, mode and effect of, 424 et seq., 1306 et seq.

LONDON, CITY OF, PAROCHIAL CHARITIES ACT, 631.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, investment in stock of, 362, 365.

LONG ANNUITIES.
conversion of, by trustees, when compulsory or desirable, 333, 334, 335.
enjoyment of, in specie, direction for, when sufficient, 333, 334, 335.
investment in, by trustees, 389.

LONG TERM.
enlargement of, into fee simple, 746.
investment on mortgage of, 369, 381, 382.

LORD CHANCELLOR. See CHANCELLOR.

LORD CRANWORTH'S ACT (23 & 24, Vict. c. 145).
appointment of new trustees under powers of, 805, 806.
maintenance of infant, powers as to, 725 et seq.
power of trustees to give receipts, 535.
repeal of, 326 note.

LORD OF MANOR. See COPYHOLD. consent of, to vesting order, effect of, 851.
escheat, taking by, whether bound by trust, 9, 14, 276 et seq.
infant, may give effect to custom, 38.

LORD ST. LEONARDS' ACT (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35).
advertisement for creditors under, 436, 437.
assignment of chattels real, &c., to assignor and another, 810, 811.
charge of debts or legacies, effect of, 546 et seq.
investment under, 356, 357, 383.
receipts, power of trustees, &c., to give, 534.

LORDS JUSTICES, jurisdiction of, in lunacy, 861, 1312.

LOSS, trust property, of, trustee when liable for, 327 et seq., 1173 et seq.

LOTS.
abstract of title, right to, on sale in lots, 517.
resale in, of trust property purchased by trustee, 578.
whether trustee for sale may sell in, 517.

LUNACY. See LUNATIC.

LUNACY ACTS, 1890 and 1891 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 5, 54 & 55 Vict. c. 65), 859-866; 1312-1318. application of provisions of Act relating to management and administration (s. 116), 859, 864, 1312, 1313.
Bank of England bound by orders under (s. 136), 862, 1316.
charity, vesting of property in trustees of (s. 138), 1316.
chose in action, vesting order as to (s. 136), 863, 1315, 1316.
contingent right of lunatic, order releasing (s. 135), 862 et seq., 1315.
conveyance, appointment of person to execute (s. 135), 862, 865, 1315.
copyholds, vesting order as to (s. 135), 863, 1315.
costs of order under, discretion of judge as to (s. 142), 864, 865, 1317.
criminal lunatics, application of Acts to, 1313.
infant, jurisdiction of High Court as to, not affected (s. 143), 846, 860, 1317.
judge in lunacy, jurisdiction and powers of (ss. 108, 139, 142), 860 862, 864, 1312, 1316, 1317. jurisdiction, out of, vesting order as to stock of lunatic (s. 134), 860, 1314.
land of lunatic, vesting order as to (s. 135), 862, 1314, 1315.
lunatic, definition of, 860, 1317.

LUNACY ACTS—continued.
maintenance of lunatic, application for, 864.
new trustees, appointment of, jurisdiction to make orders for (s. 141), 860, 861, 1317.
under power vested in lunatic (s. 129), 860, 861, 1314.
orders made under, allegations in, are evidence (s. 140), 1316.
powers vested in lunatic, exercise of (ss. 128, 129), 860, 861, 1313, 1314.
stock of lunatic, vesting order as to (ss. 133, 134), 863, 1314.
of lunatic trustee, vesting order as to (s. 136), 863, 864, 1315, 1316.
appointment of person to transfer (ss. 136, 137), 865, 1316.
transfer, appointment of person to make or join in (ss. 136, 137), 863, 1316.
vesting orders under powers of (ss. 133-142), 862 et seq., 1314 et seq.
effect of (ss. 135, 139), 862, 1315, 1316.

LUNATIC.
administration of trust in lunacy refused, 863.
allowance to wife of, 432 note, 970.
charging order on stock of, 1043.
committees of, regarded as mere bailiffs, 293. See COMMITTEE OF LUNATIC.
consent to exercise of power of sale, 861.
contingent right of, power of Court to discharge, 862 et seq.
conversion of property of, 1240 et seq.
benefit of lunatic, conversion only allowed where it is for, 1240.
copyholds, enfranchisement of, 1244.
Partition Act, sale under, does not effect conversion, 173.
personalty applied in aid of realty, 1243, 1244.
charge on realty, to pay off, 1244.
fines on renewal or admission, to defray, 1243.
improvements, for, 1242.
necessary repairs or expenses, for, 1242, 1243.
timber, proceeds of, applied to pay debts, redeem land tax, &c., 1242.
cut on estate ex parte paternâ applied for benefit of estate ex parte maternâ, 1241.
felled tortiously by stranger, proceeds belong to next of kin, 1244.
purchased, should not be, for repairs, &c., where it might be cut, 1243.
surplus proceeds belong to next of kin, 1242.
criminal, vesting order of property of, 864.
deed of, when void, 25.
definition of, 860, 1317.
disability remedied where lunatic mortgagee, trustee, &c., 861 et seq.
election, lunatic cannot make, 1230.
estate duty on realty of, 1243.
feoffment of, voidable by heir only, 25.
fine or recovery by, valid unless reversed, 25.
foreign, or colonial, application of fund belonging to, under Trustee Relief Act, 431, 432.
heir of founder of charity being, visitatorial power exercised by Crown, 622.
husband, concurrence of, in wife's deed when dispensed with, 35.
infant, position of, distinguished from lunatic's, 1245, 1246.
investment of estate of, 346.
jurisdiction of Lords Justices in lunacy, 861.
maintenance of, directed out of fund which most for his benefit, 1241, 1245,
discretion of trustee as to, 767.
out of fund paid into Court under Trustee Act, 432, 864.

LUNATIC—continued.
money of, invested in land, treated as personal estate, 1244.
mortgagee, vesting order as to property of, 861 et seq. See LUNACY ACTS.
needs of, not paramount consideration with High Court, 432 note.
payment into Court of money belonging to, 431, 432.
payment out of Court of money belonging to, 432.
payment to committee of, 413.
personal representative, power to make vesting order as to property of, 863 note.
poor law guardians, expenses of, for maintenance of, 431.
poor law guardians, payments to by receiver, 432.
power vested in, exercise of, 861, 1313, 1314.
reconversion of property of, 1240.
recovery by, valid unless reversed, 25.
Settled Land Acts, exercise of powers under, on behalf of, 656, 670.
tenant for life, exercise of powers of Settled Land Act by, 670.
trust declared by, when set aside, 25.
trustee, appointment of new trustee in place of, 861 et seq., 1317.
vesting order as to interest of, 862 et seq., 1314 et seq.
Trustee Act, proceedings under, when to be in lunacy and when in chancery 860 note, 862, 863.
Trustee Act, s. 42, under, repayment to guardians out of lunatic's funds of expenses incurred for his support, 432.
vesting order as to lands or stocks of, 862 et seq., 1314 et seq. See LUNACY ACTS.

LYING BY, equity arising from, 925 et seq.

MAINTENANCE, 716 et seq.
accumulation of income not required for, 717, 724, 728, 729, 730, 733.
accumulation, out of, form of order for, 733.
class of persons, out of legacy to, 728.
Conveyancing Act, 1881, powers of maintenance under, 147, 716 et seq. creditors when entitled to benefit of trust for maintenance of bankrupt, 112 et seq., 885.
where trust for benefit of bankrupt and another, 112, 113.
where trustees have a bare discretionary power, 113.
when entitled to charge under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, . . . 1038.
direction to co-trustees to apply income for, not terminated by death of one, 293.
discretion of trustees as to, not in general interfered with by Court, 767.
gift to parent for maintenance of children, whether trust for children implied, 157 et seq.
infant of, accumulation for, effect of trust for, 733.
capital, out of, 729, 730.
contingent, where legacy is, 726 et seq.
discretion of trustee as to, not interfered with, 765, 766.
expenditure for, when allowed to trustee, 723 et seq.
interest of legacy, out of, 484 et seq., 724 et seq.
whether trustee should allow, when father alive, 730, 731; whether to mother after death of father, 732, 733.
legal estate, provision for maintenance held to show intention to pass, 235.
lunatic, of, 431, 432, 767, 1240, 1245. See LUNATIC. mother when liable for children's, 1027.
past, when allowed, 724, 730, 732.
payment to guardian, trustee when discharged by, 768.
policy of assurance, by means of, 733.
power of, statutory, 147, 717 et seq.

MAINTENANCE—continued.
power of, whether authorised by executory trust silent as to powers, 144 note.
when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 144.
savings out of, allowed to wife on separation belong to her absolutely, 993.
summons for, jurisdiction of Court on, 767, 768.
trust for, bankruptcy of c. q. t., effect of, 111 et seq., 885.
cestui que trust cannot call for transfer of proportionate share, 160.
duties, &c., of person bound by trust, 158, 159.
forisfamiliation of child, trust ceasing on, 159.
majority of infant, whether trust ceases on, 159.
nature and effect of, 157, 158.
to apply rents for, is a special trust, 234.
to "provide suitably" for younger children, held not too vague, 134.
words sufficient to create, 156 et seq.
trustee may expend money for, if c. q. t. incapable, 724.
right to sue trustee, whether assignable, 889.
Trustee Act, s. 42, order under, constitutes infant ward of Court, 433.

MAJORITY.
cestuis que trust, of, cannot consent to trustees' relinquishment of trust, 803.
charity trustees, of, binds minority, 290, 291, 635, 642, 747.
creditors, of, sanction of, to purchase by trustee, 573.
infant protected by Court after attaining, 1200, 1275.
trustees, of, when competent to bind the rest, 290, 291, 635, 642, 643, 747.
may pay money into court, 424, 1267.

MALINS'S ACT (20 & 21 Vict c. 57).
assignment under, effect of, 21.
choses in action of married woman, powers of Act as to, 21, 22.

MANAGEMENT. See POWER.
advice of Court as to, how obtained by trustee, 419 et seq., 771, 772.
allowance for, when made to person in fiduciary position, 780 et seq.
infant's land, of, by trustees during minority, 716 et seq.

MANDAMUS, lord of manor, directing, to admit heir of trustee, 317.

MANOR. See LORD OF MANOR.
trustee of, appoints steward but subject to directions of c. q. t., 261.

MANSION HOUSE.
lease or sale of, under Settled Land Acts, 673.
repair or improvement of, by trustees, 674, 675.

MARKET OVERT.
owner's title to goods sold in, barred, 1102, 1151.
but if they come to trespasser again the owner may seize them, 1102.

MARKET PRICE, trustees justified in dealing at, 371.

MARRIAGE. See MARRIED WOMAN.
forfeiture, when it creates, under clause against alienation, 115.
severance of joint tenancy, whether operating as, 951 note.
valuable consideration, is, 1124.

MARRIAGE ARTICLES.
executory trusts in, construction of, 128 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
distinguished from executory trusts in wills, 128.
money to be laid out in land when bound by, 1215.
notice of, how far binding on purchaser, 1103, 1104.
renewable leaseholds, of, direction to renew implied in, 440.

MARRIED WOMAN.
accounts, may settle, with trustee though restrained from anticipation, 1017.
acknowledgment of deed by, when necessary, 35, 37.
effect of, 954.
acquiescence by, 581, 1195, 1200 et seq.
bound by, as to separate property where no restraint on anticipation, 581, 1168.
separate property, in husband's receipt of, 1000 et seq.
where restrained from anticipation, when bound by, 1183 et seq.
action against, 988 et seq., 1026, 1027.
action by, as to separate property, 974.
since Married Women's Property Act, 1882, 974, 975 et seq.
administratrix, liability of, for breaches of trust, 987.
admission by, 975, 1017. advancement for, presumed on purchase by husband in her name, 198.
after acquired property of, how affected by contract or judgment, 984, 985, 991, 993, 994.
Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883, powers of married woman under, 1027.
alimony allowed to, is inalienable, 964.
annuity, Government, granted to, 1020, 1024.
antenuptial debts, when liable for, 985, 1019, 1026.
liability of husband in respect of her, 1023, 1026.
appointment by, whether operating to make appointed property assets, 996 et seq.
assets, administration of separate property as, 994 et seq.
attachment against, where answering separately as to separate property, 975.
attorney, may appoint, 40, 978.
bankrupt, may be made, if trading separately from husband, 1023, 1024.
property devolving on trustee in bankruptcy, 1006.
bare trustee may convey as feme sole, 36.
bill of exchange by, binds separate estate, 978.
bond by, binds separate estate, 978. breach of trust, by, husband liable for, 33; except in cases within Married Women's Property Act, 1882, ib.
liability of married woman's separate estate for, 984 et seq., 1017, 1180, 1183.
in case of restraint against anticipation, 1017, 1180, 1183.
business, husband permitting wife to carry on, effect of, 969.
capacity of, to acquire property, 967.
chattels personal of, husband's right to, 951.
chattels real of, husband's power over, 22; if equitable, 22, 959, 960.
children, when liable for maintenance of, 1027.
choses in action of, powers of disposition over, 21, 22.
alienation of, how far marriage of feme is, 115.
divorce, judicial separation, or protection order, how affected by, 404.
husband, power of, to create trust, sub modo, 22.
taking out administration, is entitled to undisposed of, 959.
joint tenancy in, not severed by marriage of feme, 951 note.
Married Women's Property Act, 1882, under, 22.
possessory choses, equity to settlement out of, may be waived under Malins's Act, 22.
reduction of, into possession, by husband, 951 et seq.
reversionary choses, 21, 951, 960.
survivorship of, to her, on husband's death, 951 et seq.; none by Scotch law, 407.

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
choses in action of, transfer of, into Court under Trustee Act, 424 et seq.
committal of, under Debtors' Act, 991. company, is liable as contributory in winding up of, 975.
compromise on behalf of, jurisdiction of Court to sanction, 1201.
confirmation by, of breach of trust inoperative except as to separate property without restraint, 582, 1201.
confirmation of settlement by, 1231.
consent of, to investment, when and how to be given, 349, 350.
to transfer to husband may be revoked, 954.
contempt, process of, may be liable to, 975.
contingent interest, may alienate, 1004.
contract by, 975 et seq.
after acquired property when bound by, 984, 985, 993, 994.
husband, with, in equity, 968.
intention, in contravention of, 981.
particul r power, in exercise of, 999.
real estate, as to, under Fines and Recoveries Act, 978 note.
verbal, how far separate property bound by, 979 et seq.
written, as by bond, bill of exchange, promissory note, effect of, 978.
when necessary, 981.
contributory, may be made, under winding-up order, 975, 985.
conversion of property of, by sale under order of Court, 173, 174.
conveyance by, 33, 36, 1005, 1012, 1013, 1232.
concurrence of husband in, power of Court to dispense with, 35, 36.
costs, liability of feme for, 977, 1018, 1019.
covenant by, not to sue, 985, 1201.
covenant by, when infant, ratification of, 982.
creditor of, his remedies against separate property, 992, 993. See infra, separate property.
curtesy, right of husband as tenant by, 945 et seq., 963. See CURTESY.
damages awarded to, are separate property, 966.
death of, rights of husband on, 966.
debts of, antenuptial, husband when liable for, 1023, 1026.
separate property, when liable for, 985, 1019, 1026. See infra, separate property.
devastavit by, 986, 987.
disclaimer by, of interest in land, how effected, 223.
discretionary trust, is competent to exercise, 33.
disentailing assurance of lands to wife, 962, 1005.
divorce of, property how affected by, 404, 405, 952, 957.
dower, her right to, 945 et seq. See DOWER.
earnings of, protected, 23.
are her separate property, 23, 992, 1020.
divisible on death among creditors pari passu, 992.
election by, as to taking property in converted or unconverted state, 1230 et seq.
personalty, to take fund in Court as, 964.
when restrained from anticipation, whether effectual, 1015, 1016.
elegit, estate by, in trust for feme covert, 961.
engagements by, 979 et seq. See sup., contract.
enlargement of estate by, is not alienation, 1012.
entail in favour of, how and when barrable, 962, 1005.
entireties, husband and wife take by, 953, 967.
equitable chattels real of, rights of husband in respect of, 959, 960.
equitable execution, remedy against separate estate is in nature of, 989; but

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
money ordered to be paid by husband to divorced wife is personal and cannot be taken in equitable execution by creditor, 989 note.
equitable interest of, generally, 951 et seq.
equity of, to settlement, 951 et seq.
antenuptial debts, is subject to, 951.
arrears of income, whether it attaches to, 960, 961.
asserted, may be, by feme actively, 953, 954.
assignee of husband for value, as against, 955, 957, 960.
assignee of life estate, as against, 957, 958.
bankruptcy or insolvency of husband, in case of, 957, 958.
choses in action, out of, 951 et seq.
debt of husband to estate, prevails over, 955.
discretion of Court as to, how exercised, 956.
domicile, law of, how affected by, 954.
equitable chattels real, out of, 960.
equitable freeholds, out of, 961, 962.
extent of, 955 et seq.
proportion usually settled, 955, 956.
form of settlement, 956, 957.
fraud, where feme is guilty of, 951.
fund subject to, paid into Court under Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 426 note.
fund under 200*l.*, out of, 954.
husband's act alone does not affect, 962.
life interest of wife, out of, 957.
origin of, 952, 953.
outstanding term, out of lands subject to, 964.
personal to wife, equity is, 953.
possessory fund not actually distributable, out of, 953.
priority of, over right of retainer for debt of husband, 955.
release of, out of her personal estate in possession, 21.
out of possessory chose in action under Malins's Act, 21, 22, 954 note.
reversionary, while fund is, 958.
survivorship, right by, distinguished from, 958.
trustee in bankruptcy of husband, as against, 955.
waiver of, by wife, 954.
in reversionary choses in action, 21, 22.
execution against, 988 et seq.
executor of, did not take separate property jure representationis, 995.
executory trust for settlement in favour of, how carried out by Court, 143.
executrix, assets in hands of, husband formerly could dispose of, 250.
feme may make a will of such assets without husband's consent, 250.
and transfer stock, 36.
devastavit or breach of trust, liability for, 986, 987.
husband of, held a trustee within Trustee Acts, 837.
vesting order as to interest of, 850.
where husband abroad, receiver appointed, 1263.
expectancy, mere, belonging to, 966.
feoffment of estate vested in her upon condition, might make, 33.
Fines and Recoveries Act, conveyance under, operation of, 21, 35, 803, 962, 1005, 1012, 1232.
concurrence of husband effectual though bankrupt, 1005.
formâ pauperis, right to sue in, life interest will be considered notwithstanding existence of restraint on anticipation, 1008 note.
fraud by, effect of, 951, 996, 1013.
fraud, protected against, 23, 974.

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
freeholds of, rights of husband in respect to, 961 et seq., 1021.
funeral expenses of, whether payable out of separate property, 993.
gift by husband to wife, effect of, 72, 73, 969.
may be bound by covenant to settle after acquired property, 993, 994.
to husband, by wife, of separate property, when presumed, 1003 et seq.
gift to, for separate use, 968 et seq.
guarantee by, binds separate property, 978.
guardian ad litem, cannot act as, 977.
housekeeping, not bound to contribute to, from separate property, 1002, 1003.
infant, covenant by, to settle property, effect of, 25, 982.
may appoint attorney, 40.
ratification of contract by, 25.
receipt by, for accumulations of income, 717.
Settled Land Acts, exercise of powers under, 694.
waiver of equity to settlement cannot be made by, 8.
insurance for benefit of, under Married Women's Property Acts, 1021, 1022, 1025, 1026.
jointure to, may be made inalienable during present coverture, 974.
judgment against, form and effect of, 988 et seq.
judgment recovered by, is chose in action, 961.
judicial separation, effect of order for, on her property, 404, 952, 972.
legacy to, cannot as against assignee be set off against debt of husband, 898.
legal estate, disability of, to pass, 34, 36.
could not be conveyed to, so as to exclude husband's rights, 47.
legal estate, effect of getting in, in wife's equitable term, 960.
Limitations, Statute of, when beginning to run against, 977.
applicable to action against separate property, 991, 992.
loan by, to husband, 975, 1024.
long term, enlargement of, by feme into fee simple, 1012.
lunatic, allowance to wife of, 970.
maintenance of children, when liable for, 1027.
maintenance of parents, liability for, 1027 note.
Married Women's Property Acts, 964 et seq., 1020 et seq. See those titles.
mortgage term in trust for, whether assignable by husband so as to carry beneficial interest, 961.
necessaries, money advanced by stranger for supply of, 983.
next friend, may now sue without, 975.
but incapable to act as, 977.
payment out of Court to, on separate examination, 964.
of small sum, 412.
petition by, 349 note.
pin money, arrears of, whether recoverable from husband, 1001.
policy of insurance, may effect, on own life or life of husband, 1021, 1025, 1026.
power, may execute, simply collateral, appendant or in gross, 32, 33, 749.
release of, where feme restrained from anticipation, 1010, 1011.
when her appointment under, constitutes appointed property assets, 996 et seq.
proceedings "instituted by," what are, 1018; liability for costs of, 977, 1018.
promissory note by, binding on separate estate, 978.
protection order, effect of, on chose in action, 404, 952, 972.
protector of settlement, is, where legal freehold limited to her separate use, 1005.
real estate of, what estate husband has in, 961, 962.
separate use in respect of, 1004.
receipt by, acting as trustee, 37, 557.
refund, liability to, enforced against, 991.

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
release by, when effectual, 1200.
representation, bound in equity to make good, 976.
restraint against anticipation, 23, 890, 1007 et seq.
absolute gift followed by, 1011.
acquiescence, cannot be defeated by, 582, 1196, 1201.
arrears of income, does not attach to, 1009, 1017, 1201.
received by husband, what recoverable by wife, or her representatives, 1017, 1018.
breach of trust, property subject to restraint not liable for, 1017, 1180, 1181, 1196.
but may be impounded under s. 45 of Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 1181.
confirmation of breach of trust precluded by, 582, 1201.
consenting as "true owner," precludes feme from, 274.
contract of feme, how affecting property subject to, 1017.
corpus when affected by, 1011.
determination of coverture, ceases on, 1009.
discharge of, under Conveyancing Act, 1881, . . . 1014 et seq.
divorce, effect of, on, 1013.
election, whether feme restrained from anticipation is competent to make, 1016.
enlargement of estate is not alienation, 1012, 1013.
estate tail, enlargement of, into fee simple not prevented by, 1012, 1013.
executory trust, in settlement under, clause when inserted by Court, 143, 1009.
formâ pauperis, right to sue in, existence of restraint not sufficient to exclude life interest from consideration in reference to, 1008 note.
fraud in the feme will not prevent operation of, 1013.
gift over on anticipating income, effect of, 1011.
interest due but not payable is affected by, 1017.
legal estate, right of feme becoming discovert to call for conveyance of, 457.
marriage, upon, the clause operates during the coverture, 881, 890, 1009.
Married Women's Property Act, 1882, how affected by, 1018.
marshalling securities so as to obviate effect of, 1013 note.
nature and effect of, 23, 1008, 1009.
order of Court, duration of, not affected by, 1018.
origin of, 1008.
perpetuity, may be void for, 110, 1016.
possession, tenant for life let into, though subject to restraint, 870, 871.
resumption of cohabitation, effect of, as to property, 972.
reversionary, where interest of married woman is, 1012.
right to sue in formâ pauperis, 1008 note.
savings from income not subject to, 993.
Settled Land Act, powers under, not affected by, 1020.
solicitor, lien of, notwithstanding, 1013.
special trust, trustee holds during coverture upon, 881.
words appropriate for creation of, 1008.
reversionary interest of, 951, 958, 959, 1003. conveyance of, by deed acknowledged, 21, 962 note.
how affected by Married Women's Property Act, 1882, . . . 965.
necessarily survived to her, 952, 958.
when becoming "interest in possession" under Trustee Act, 1888, s. 8, . . . 1143.
savings of wife, 993.
separate examination of, when required by Court, 964, 1016

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
separate property of, 968 et seq.
accumulation of income by married woman requiring husband to support her, 1002, 1003.
acknowledgment of conveyance of, unnecessary, 974.
action by creditor as against, 987 et seq.
action in respect of, how to be brought, 974 et seq.
trustee not necessary party, 989.
administration of, on feme's decease, 992, 993.
antenuptial agreement signed by husband not sufficient to create trust of fee, 59.
antenuptial debts, liable for, 984.
arrears of income of, 999, 1000, 1017. received by husband, what recoverable by wife or her representatives, 999 et seq.
when available to answer debt or costs, 977, 988, 989.
where wife non compos, 1001.
whether distinguishable from arrears of pin money, 1001.
assets, is administered as equitable, 994.
assignment of, good against creditors, 994.
attachment, wife liable to, where answering separately as to separate property, 975.
breach of trust, impounding property of feme to answer, 1181 et seq.
separate property when liable for, 986 et seq.
contingency, whether alienable pending, 1003, 1004.
contract of wife, when binding separate property, 976.
after acquired property, as to, 984.
appointment, does not operate by way of, 980.
infancy, contract made during, 25, 982, 983.
purchase, contract by feme for, enforced, 975.
written contract when necessary, 979 et seq.
conveyance of equitable interest in, without acknowledgment under Fines and Recoveries Act, 975.
conveyance, when c. q. t. restrained from anticipation is entitled to call for, 881.
corpus expended by husband with assent of wife, not treated as gift by her, 1001 et seq.
corpus, separate use extending to, 988, 1003.
costs out of, 977, 978.
created by what words, 970, 971.
creditors may bring action for payment out of, after feme's death, 992.
paid pari passu out of, 992.
curtesy of, allowed, 947 et seq.
damages recovered by wife, when deemed to be, 976.
debts, antenuptial, separate property liable to, 984, 985.
destroyed, separate use may be, during discoverture, 881.
election as to, married woman competent to make, 1232.
engagements of feme when binding on, 978 et seq., 996 et seq. See sup., "contract."
execution against, 988 et seq.
expenses of trustee, separate property of c. q. t. when liable to, 798, 799.
feme sole, married woman considered as, as regards separate estate, 23, 1200.
as to realty, 1004.
funeral expenses whether thrown upon, 993.
future husband, exclusion of, 974.

MARRIED WOMAN, separate property of—continued gift of, to husband, what amounts to, 1002 et seq.
husband receiving corpus prima facie trustee for wife, 969, 1002, 1138.
gift by husband to wife, 72, 73, 969, 970.
injunction against husband interfering with, 1003.
injunction to restrain dealing with, not granted before judgment, 991.
inventory of, when trustee ought to make, 231.
judgment against, form and effect of, 990 et seq.
legal estate, what, trustees take, where limitations for separate use, 234.
wife may direct conveyance of, after husband's death, 881.
liabilities of feme covert in respect of, 988 et seq. See sup., "breach of trust"; "contract."
life estate, power of feme over, 1003.
Limitations, Statute of, whether feme can plead, 977, 991, 992.
loan of, by wife to husband, 1024.
maintenance of parents, liability for, out of separate property, 1027 note.
marriage, upon, the separate use operates, 972, 973.
Married Women's Property Act, under, 23, 24, 964, 965, 970, 975, 976.
mortgagee of husband bound by trust for separate use, 1124.
origin of, 968, 969.
personal estate survives to husband in marital right, 994.
corpus of, when alienable by wife, 1003.
possession, when c. q. t. entitled for separate use is entitled to, 869, 870.
real estate settled to separate use, whether feme may dispose of corpus of, 988, 1004 et seq.
receiver of, at instance of creditor, 989.
remedies for protection of, 977.
remedy against, is in nature of equitable execution, 989.
reversionary, power of wife to dispose of, 958, 1003.
revivor of separate use upon subsequent marriage, 973.
savings out of, belong exclusively to wife, 993.
out of household moneys belong to husband, 993.
second marriage of wife, effect of, 973.
separate use, devise for, does not pass trust estate of testator, 254.
trust for, whether a use within Statute of Uses, 254.
where life estate for, rule in Shelley's Case not applicable, 136.
words necessary for creation of, 970, 971.
sequestration against, 975, 991 note.
settlement of accounts in respect of, 1017.
statutory. See MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACTS. submission in pleading in respect of, wife bound by, 974.
sui juris as to, wife when regarded, 803.
suspension of separate use on death of husband, 973.
theft of goods from husband's house, 1003 note.
trespass against, right of married woman to sue for, 1003.
trust estate not passing under devise to separate use, 254.
trustee for, allowing husband to get possession, liability of, 1164.
trustee of, not necessary, 969, 1074; but husband is construed to be trustee, 969, 1074.
trustees with discretion to apply for maintenance of, may pay to her for separate use, 971, 972.
undisposed of, survives to husband, 994.
will, feme covert may dispose of separate estate and accumulations by, 994.
separated from husband, moneys advanced to, for necessaries, 983.
set-off of debt of husband against her assignee, 898.
Settled Land Acts, exercise of powers of, by married woman, 694.

MARRIED WOMAN—continued.
settlement by, fraudulently obtained from her set aside, 974.
but not where mere absence of independent advice, 974.
settlement of property of, excepted from operation of Act of 1882, . . . 1005, 1006, 1019.
solicitor, may retain, 977, 1013.
status of married woman, effect of recent Act as to, 970.
stock, registration of, in name of feme, 1021, 1025.
settled to separate use, execution against, 992.
transfer of, by married woman being trustee, 36, 987.
submission in pleadings, bound by, 975.
survivorship, her right by, cannot be defeated by assignment to husband of prior life interest, 958, 959.
tenant for life, equitable, let into possession, 869 et seq.
term of wife married before 1883 does not merge in reversion purchased by husband, 930 note.
term of years belonging to, rights of husband in respect to, 960, 961.
tort, may sue in respect of, under recent Act, 975, 976.
but husband and wife cannot sue each other, 977; though action will lie against husband for return of wife's property, 978.
liability of husband for her, 986 note, 1026.
feme could not strictly speaking commit, 986; secus now, 987.
trade, may carry on, separately from her husband, 1020, 1023, 1024.
transfer of stock, &c., by, 987, 1025.
trespass, action for, by wife against husband or stranger, 1003.
trust, power of married woman to create, 20.
as to real estate, formalities formerly requisite, 20.
since Married Women's Property Act, 1882, . . . 36.
since Married Women's Property Act, 1907, . . . 37.
trustee, may be, but not advisable to select her, 33.
conveyance of land by, 34, 35, 987 note.
concurrence of husband when necessary, 34, 36, 37.
power of Court to dispense with, 35.
husband of, is trustee within Trustee Acts, 837.
judgment against, execution of, 988.
liability of, for breach of trust, 1039.
receipts, power to sign, 37.
sale, may exercise discretion as to, 37.
stock, may transfer as though feme sole, 36, 987.
wages and earnings of, protected, 23, 1020.
are her separate property, 965, 1020.
wearing apparel purchased for wife out of husband's money, 970.
widow, payment of small sums to, without taking out administration, 412.
will of, 964 et seq., 994 et seq., 1004.
did not pass property acquired after husband's death, 967, 968.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1870, . . . 1020 et seq.
insurance under, for benefit of wife and children, 1021.
real estate descended on married woman, 1021.
repealed by Married Women's Property Act, 1882, . . . 1023.
restraint on anticipation, separate property liable for antenuptial debts notwithstanding, 984.
wages and earnings of married women, protection of, 23, 1020.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1874, . . . 1023.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1882, . . . 964 et seq., 1023 et seq.
See MARRIED WOMAN.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1882—continued.
action by married woman under, 975, 977.
application of, considered, 967.
contract by married woman, effect of, 983 et seq.
curtesy, right of husband to, out of wife's separate property, 948.
debts, liability of husband for, 1026.
disclaimer by married woman, whether authorised by Act, 223.
general power, execution of, by will, effect of, 999.
gift by husband to wife, valid, 73 ; exception as against creditors, ib.
insurance under, for benefit of wife and children, 1025, 1026.
mother, liability of, for maintenance of children, 1027.
property, power of disposition over, conferred by, 964 et seq.
retrospective, is not, as to capacity of feme, 977.
restraint against anticipation not rendered inoperative by, 1019.
reversionary interest of feme, how affected by, 965.
rights of husband in wife's property, how far excluded by, 965 et seq., 1023 et seq.
as to property of wife, the title to which accrued before commencement of Act, 965.
after death of wife, rights of husband not excluded, 966.
separate property under, 964, 965, 970, 973.
conversion of land into money after commencement of Act gives no new title to woman married before Act, 966.
settlement not interfered with or affected by, 1005, 1006 ; but no settlement made by husband after 1908, respecting wife's property, valid unless executed or confirmed by her, 1007 ; except settlement under Infant's Settlement Act, 1855, 1007 note.
trust, married woman can create, without consent of husband, 21, 22.
and execute trust, and sign good receipt, 37 ; but not pass legal estate in realty, ib.
wages and earnings of married woman are her separate property, 965, 1019.
will, power of married woman to dispose of property by, 966 et seq.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1893, provisions of, 968, 983, 999. 1018.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1907, provisions of, 37, 1005, 1007.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1908, . . . 1027 note.

MARRIED WOMEN'S REVERSIONARY INTERESTS ACT, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 57) . . . 21, 22, 958.

MARSHALLING SECURITIES, 929, 930.

MASSES FOR THE DEAD, trust for, 120.

MASTER IN CHANCERY, powers of, under Judicial Trustees Act, 1896, . . . 700 note.

MAYOR, profit, cannot make, by his office, 310.

MEETING HOUSE, trust for, 627, 628. See CHAPEL.

MEMORANDUM, trust evidenced by, within Statute of Frauds, 57, 58.

MERE POWER, 752, 763, 764. See POWER.

MERGER. Chap. xxviii. s. 4, 936-945. charge, of, on purchase of estate, 936 et seq.
payment of charge and subsequent acquisition of fee, 943.
purchaser, to prejudice of, how avoided, 937, 939, 940.

MERGER—continued.
contingency, may be made to depend on, 938.
contingent remainders not destroyed by, 137, 457.
debentures, of, on payment off by company, 939 note.
debt, of, in judgment, 1176.
declaration keeping mortgage on foot, 944.
doctrine of, in equity, 936 ; prevails now, over legal doctrine, 944.
equitable estate, of, in legal estate, 12.
only where estates co-extensive and commensurate, 12.
incumbrance, of, 938, 939.
inheritance, whether the charge can be made to attend the, 944.
intention, is question of, in equity, 936 et seq.
parol evidence of, admissible, 941.
mistake by person paying off charge, 942, 943.
notice, materiality of, in equity, 936.
presumption of, when arising, 940 et seq.
where tenant in fee, in tail, or for life pays off charge, 941, 942.
purchaser paying off charge pending contract, 938.
real and personal representative, question of, as between, 940.
reversion purchased by husband, term of wife married before 1883, does not merge in, 936 note.
trustee, assignment to, not necessary to prevent merger, 938.

MERITORIOUS CONSIDERATION, 87. See CONSIDERATION.

MESNE RENTS AND PROFITS, 206, 1144 et seq. See RENTS AND PROFITS.

METROPOLITAN BOARD OF WORKS STOCK, investment in, 362, 365.

MINES AND MINERALS. account of profits of, may be sought in equity on legal title, 1144.
lease of, by tenant for life, 147, 211, 663.
by trustee, 744.
power to grant, when inserted in settlement under executory trust, 145.
portion, when to be raised out of produce of, 494, 496.
purchase of, apart from surface, 590 ; under powers of Settled Land Acts, 681.
sale of surface apart from, 511, 512.
or of minerals apart from surface, ib.
tenant for life, powers of, as to, under Settled Lands Acts, 511, 512, 663, 681.
to lease, 146, 147, 211, 662, 876, 877.
trustees not justified in purchasing mining property, 590.
selling under power cannot reserve minerals, 511, 512.
except with previous sanction of Court, 511, 512.
working of mines on land of infant may be continued by, 716.
waste by working, improperly, 211. See WASTE.

MINISTER, chapel, of, 627, 628. See CHAPEL.

MINISTERIAL TRUST, meaning of term explained, 16.

MISAPPLICATION. See BREACH OF TRUST.

MISCONDUCT OF TRUSTEE. See BREACH OF TRUST.
cestui que trust not prejudiced by, 1214.
costs, trustee when deprived of, or made to pay, 394, 790, 1088, 1266, 1270 et seq. See COSTS.
loss occasioned by, must be borne by trustee, 1173.
receiver, when Court will appoint, on misconduct of trustee, 1262, 1263.
removal of trustee on ground of, 840, 1087.
costs, trustee when ordered to pay, 1088.

MISDEMEANOUR.
fraud of trustees is a, 1157, 1158.
outlawry for, effect of, 27, 280.

MISREPRESENTATION. See FRAUD. account of rents and profits, where plaintiff kept out of estate by misrepresentation, 1147, 1150.
trustee, liability of, for making, as to accounts, 1276.
to purchaser of equitable interest, 907.

MISTAKE.
account of mesne rents and profits in cases of, 1144 et seq.
against trustees for charities refused on ground of mistake, 1212.
legal title, account upon, granted in equity on ground of mistake, 1145.
breach of trust when excused by, 408, 409, 1160.
building on land of another by mistake, effect of, 926, 927.
election of recipients of charity not set aside on ground of, 629.
encouragement of, by legal owner of property, when equivalent to fraud, 926, 927.
grantee not permitted to take advantage of mistake by grantor, 165.
law, of, relief against, in equity, 583 note.
Limitation, Statutes of, mistake does not prevent, from running in equity, 1110, 1131.
merger not presumed in case of, 943.
non-entry on cesser of lease for lives by mistake, 1145.
notice of assignment, in giving, when fatal, 916.
overpayment by, 413 et seq.
payment by, to officer of Court, 414.
trustee making, not charged with interest, 408, 409.
payment of money into Court by, 431.
presumption of release rebutted by evidence of, 1116.
recital in trust deed, in, trustee whether affected by, 224, 225.
rectification of settlement on ground of, 129, 130.
trust when supported on ground of, 68.
trustee, by, as to rights of parties, is at his own expense, 402.
cestui que trust does not lose title under Statute of Limitations by reason of, 1131.
charitable trustee not made to account, 1210, 1211.
costs of trustee who had occasioned suit by innocent mistake, 1271 note, 1273.
person assuming office of trustee accountable as such, 231, 232.
when an excuse for non-investment, &c., of trust funds, 389, 395, 402.
where no wilful default, not a ground for his removal, 1089.
voluntary settlement executed under, may be set aside, 80, 165.

MIXING TRUST FUNDS.
trustee mixing trust funds with own money, effect of, 332, 1152 et seq.
cestui que trust must prove in bankruptcy of trustee, 270.
trustee should not mix trust fund with rights of strangers, 385, 404.

MIXTURE OF TRUST AND POWER distinguished from trust with power annexed 17, 1075.

MODERATION, Court, by, of expenses charged for by trustees, 788, 790.

MONEY.
at home, 1220.
attachment of trust debt, 251, 275.
bills and notes, distinction between, and money, 1151 et seq.
co-trustee should not permit, to be in hands of co-trustee, 325.
deposited, may be, in bank to trust account, 330.

MONEY—continued.
distringas extended to, 1252.
ear-marked, when, 269, 1151, 1152. followed in equity, where, 269, 1150 et seq.
into land, 190, 1155, 1156; even by parol, 1155.
mixed with trustees' money, 1152.
paid into bank on account of trustee, 1153, 1154.
land, money to be laid out in, treated as land, 1215 et seq. See CONVERSION.
cestui que trust may elect to take it as money, 886. See ELECTION.
results, on failure of purpose, to next of kin, 174.
leaving, in hands of co-executor or co-trustee, improper, 303.
legacy of, not adeemed by subsequent settlement of land, 478.
payment of trust money into bank, must be to account of trust, 287. See BANK.
scrivener, now obsolete, 89.
single trustee, whether it may be paid to, 413.
transmission of trust money, how to be effected, 287.
trust to raise, is a special trust, 234.

MONUMENT, trust for, in church, valid as charitable gift, 122.

MORAL CONSIDERATIONS, trustee must not regard, in execution of trust or power, 318, 758.

MORTGAGE.
agreement to give, for past debt, whether enforceable, 605 note.
assets may be left outstanding on, by executor, 325.
assets, of, by executor, 560 et seq.
calling in, inquiry directed as to propriety of, 335 note.
cautions in lending on, what trustees should observe, 372 et seq.
charge of debts or legacies, to give effect to, 503. See SALE.
consolidation of, 742, 743, 894.
whether trustees bound to enforce, 743.
copyholds, investment by trustees on mortgage of, 382.
costs, dower trustee of mortgagor not entitled to, against mortgagee, 1265.
debt, assignment of, no priority by notice, 908.
declaration keeping mortgage on foot, 944.
discharge of, by trustee of settled estate, 743.
equitable, assignee of, bound by equities affecting assignor, 893.
executor, by, of assets, 560.
husband, by, of wife's lands, 964.
lands in Scotland, of, 49.
overrides subsequent judgment, 276 note.
priority of, where title-deeds improperly dealt with by legal owner, 923 et seq., 1106, 1107.
purchaser affected with notice of, is bound thereby, 1100.
trustee, by, in breach of duty inoperative as against c. q. t., 1106.
trustee should not invest on, 385.
vendor's lien postponed to, 921.
executor, by, of personal estate, 560, 561.
with or without power of sale, 560.
of real estate charged with debts or legacies, 550 et seq.
fines on renewal of lease, to raise, 443 et seq.
foreclosure decree, vesting order to give effect to, 837, 847, 848.
foreign lands, of, jurisdiction to order foreclosure of, 50.
forged by solicitor, trustee lending money on, held liable, 410.
husband, by, of wife's chattel real, 959, 960.
infant's realty, of, 1246.

MORTGAGE—continued.
insufficient, adjustment of rights of successive owners as to, 342.
investment on, by trustees, 322, 346, 372 et seq. See INVESTMENT, real securities.
charity, of accumulations and other moneys of, 635.
conversion of, by executor or trustee, when to be made, 324, 325.
Court, formerly not ordered by, 346, 347.
release of part of security by trustee, 742.
statutory powers of trustees as to, 362, 365.
trust how kept out of sight on mortgage or transfer, 386, 387.
valuation of security, duty of trustees as to, 373 et seq.
value, what proportion of, trustees may advance, 373 et seq.
joint account clause in mortgage by trustees, 185.
judgment creditor may redeem, 1030, 1034, 1049, 1051.
right of, against entirety of equity of redemption, 1034.
against surplus proceeds under power of sale, 1032, 1039.
to tack, 1034.
judgment directing, vesting order consequential on, 847.
lands abroad, jurisdiction to order foreclosure of, 50.
lapse of time, equity of redemption when barred by, 1110.
leaseholds, investment by trustees on mortgage of, 381.
legal estate when passing under general devise by mortgagee, 254, 255.
lunatic's realty, of, not discharged out of personalty, 1243, 1244.
money, trust of, may be by parol, 56.
new trustee, vesting of mortgage in, 387, 810, 812.
notice of, to trustee, 402.
portion, to raise, 494, 495, 497.
power of sale in—assigns, who are, within meaning of, 510, 753, 754.
concurrence of mortgagor not required to exercise of, 527.
improper exercise of, injunction to restrain, 514, 515, 1096 note.
statutory, under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, . . . 510; under 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 19, 386 note, 510, 511.
surplus under, is personalty or realty of mortgagor according as sale takes place before or after his death, 1227.
whether bound by judgment against mortgagor, 1033.
survives when the advance is joint, 510, 754.
tender of principal and interest, may not be exercised after, 1096 note.
whether authorised by power to mortgage, 504, 505.
priority of, how affected by notice, 902 et seq.
by improper dealing with title-deeds, 923, 924.
realisation of, by executor or trustee, when necessary, 333, 334.
reconvey, by what description mortgagee should, 880.
reconveyance, lunatic's property, of, how to be made, 1244.
release of part of security, whether trustees may make, 742, 743.
renewal of lease, to raise fines payable on, 441, 445, 446.
sale by trustee to pay off, 556, 743.
second, trustees should not invest on, 384.
solicitor of mortgagor buying up, injunction to restrain sale by, 1098.
stock mortgage, whether trustees should lend on, 372.
stock, trustees may transfer, to mortgagor, 710, 711.
tacking securities to legal estate, 384, 1034, 1102.
tenancy in common implied in equity on advance by several, 185.
tenant for life, by, under Settled Land Acts, 670, 679, 685.
term certain, trustees should not lend money, for, 386.
term of years, for long, why formerly preferred, 382.

MORTGAGE—continued.
transfer of, by mortgagees being trustees to new trustees, how framed, 387.
trust, is not, within Trustee Act, 836.
trust for sale, by way of, is not express trust within Statutes of Limitation, 1129.
trust for sale, distinguished from, 1228.
trust, how kept out of sight on mortgage or transfer by trustees, 386, 387.
trust to, will not authorise sale, 504, survives, 509.
to sell, whether it authorises mortgage, 503.
trustees, by, for purpose of carrying on testator's business, 721.
trustees, whether at liberty to invest on, without a power, 385.
trustees, to, by one of themselves not allowed, 380.
wilful default, plaintiff in redemption action need not allege, 1168.

MORTGAGE DEBENTURE ACT, investment under, 370.

MORTGAGEE.
assent by, to distribution, though security insufficient, 415.
bonus to, stipulation for, when valid, 785.
charge, may not, for time and trouble, 781, 785.
collateral advantage, may not stipulate for, 785.
constructive trust, bound by notice of, 1100, 1106, 1107.
covenant for title by, 523.
disability of, how remedied, 1292, 1293.
equity of redemption, mortgagee buying, may keep his charge on foot as against intervening incumbrancers, 939, 940.
vested in mortgagee on death of mortgagor intestate without heirs, 316, 1060.
secus now under Intestates' Estates Act, 1884, 316, 1061.
executor of, might call on heir to convey, 1219.
following trust money into hands of, 1106, 1107.
heir, of, whether bound by title of residuary legatee, 1104.
husband of, bound by implied trust for separate use of wife, 1104.
infant, vesting order as to interest of, 846.
injunction against, to restrain improper sale, 515 note, 1096 note.
insurance, expenditure of money for, in absence of stipulation, 719.
legal estate in, vests on death in legal personal representative, 255, 1219.
Limitations, Statute of, when beginning to run in favour of, 1110.
lunatic, vesting order as to interest of, 862 et seq.
notice to, of subsequent incumbrance, effect of, 403.
possession, mortgagee in, constructive trustee of rents and profits, 213.
power of sale, not a constructive trustee of, 212.
proof by, in administration, bankruptcy, or under creditors' deed, 612.
purchase by, from mortgagor, upheld, 308, 575.
merger of charge how obviated in case of, 939, 940.
receipts, power of mortgagee to give, 403, 426, 535.
renewal of lease by, effect of, 202, 204.
rents and profits, accountability of mortgagee in possession for, 213.
sale by, 504, 505.
separate use, trust for, binds mortgagee of husband, 1104.
set-off, between and executor of mortgagor, 899.
solicitor who is, charges by, 781 note.
title-deeds, what conduct in relation to, will postpone legal mortgagee, 923, 924.
transfer by mortgagee in possession, effect of, 213.
trust, notice of, when affected with, 1104, 1126.
trustee, in what sense mortgagee is, for himself and his executors, 13, 308, 403.
or as respects purchase of equity of redemption, 308.

MORTGAGEE—continued.
trustee for mortgagor, 202, 1129.
Trustee Act, when a trustee within, 424, 835, 837.
vesting order as to estate of, 835, 837, 847.

MORTGAGEES' LEGAL COSTS ACT, 1895 . . . 781 note.

MORTGAGOR.
death of, intestate and without heirs, effect of, 316, 1060.
heir of, might formerly require exoneration out of personalty, 1219.
judgment against, effect of, 1030, 1035, 1037, 1049. See JUDGMENT.
purchasing under power of sale in first mortgage, 939.
rents, is not accountable for, until notice from mortgagee, 403.
surplus proceeds of sale whether personalty or realty of, 1227.
tenant at will, when, of mortgagee, 1131.

MORTMAIN.
accumulations from charity estate, investment of, 635.
Act merely prescribes mode of alienation, does not prohibit it, 47.
charity, trust of land for, what formalities required for creating, 104 et seq.
devise upon trust to sell and pay part of proceeds to charity, effect of, 169 note enrolment of conveyance under 51 & 52 Vict. c. 42 . . . 105, 106.
exemptions from statute as to, 105.
buildings for religious or literary societies, 105, 106.
parks, schools, and museums, 105.
recreation grounds, 106.
land, definition of, by statute as to, 104 note, 106, 107.
legacy to charity charged on realty, 178.
licence in, for conveyance to corporation upon trust, 31.
not required on re-investment of charity funds, 635.
mortgage by charity trustees, 635, 636.
requirements of statute as to, 104 et seq., 636.
secret trust for charity, discovery by devisee, 67.
trust whether void at law or only in equity, 68, 69.
trusts originated by desire to evade statutes of, 1.

MORTMAIN AND CHARITABLE USES ACT, 1888. See CHARITY; MORTMAIN. provisions of, 69, 103 et seq.

MORTMAIN AND CHARITABLE USES ACT, 1891. See CHARITY; MORTMAIN. provisions of, 69, 106 et seq.

MOTHER.
doctrine of advancement applicable to, 199. liability of, for maintenance of her children, 199 note, 1027.

MOTION.
payment into Court, for, 1255, 1256. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
Romilly's Act, proceedings under, subsequent to petition may be by, 1206.

MOVEABLES, governed by lex domicilii, 49.

MULTIPLICATION OF CHARGES, 148.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATION. See CORPORATION.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS ACT (5 & 6 W. 4. c. 76).
alienation by corporations with consent of Lords of Treasury, 31.
charity, appointment of trustees for, in place of corporation, 1091, 1092.
property of corporations how affected by, 20.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS ACT, 1882, . . . 1091.

NATIONAL DEBT COMMISSIONERS, trust not affected by notice to, 32.

NATIONAL DEBT CONVERSION ACT, 1888, . . . 361.

NATIONAL DEBT STOCKHOLDERS RELIEF ACT, 1892, provisions of, 857.

NATURALIZATION ACT, 1870, . . . 25, 46.

NAVY 5 PER CENTS., investment in, 389.

NECESSITY, moral, justifying delegation of trust, 284 et seq.

NE EXEAT, writ of, against trustee, 1160.

NEGLIGENCE.
agent, of, trustee whether liable for, 793.
breach of trust by reason of, 502, 1164 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST. action in respect of, when barred under Statutes of Limitation, 1136 et seq.
calling in trust estate, as to, 303, 322 et seq., 395, 585.
application of Statutes of Limitation in case of, 1112.
care, degree of, required of trustee, 327 et seq., 372 et seq.
contributory, by c. q. t., no excuse, 1173.
costs of trustee in case of, 791, 1270, 1271.
legal proceedings caused by, trustee liable for costs of, 421, 790.
postponement of equitable interest by reason of, 920 et seq.
premiums on policy, by trustee in paying, 1165.
reimbursement, right of trustee to, lost by negligence, 792.
selling, as to, trustee liable for, 502, 1164.
solicitor profiting by, held a constructive trustee, 213.
transfer, by trustee in enforcing covenant for, 1164, 1165.
trustee, by, to convey or transfer, vesting order in case of, 845, 853, 854, 855.
trustee, of, rights of c. q. t. not prejudiced by, 610, 946, 1073, 1081, 1214.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT, 269.

NEPHEW, advancement for, when presumed, 199.

NEW BUILDINGS, erection of, equivalent to purchase of lands, 592, 714, 715.

NEW CONSOLS.
conversion of consols into, under National Debt (Conversion) Act, 361.
investment in, 361, 362, 363.
power to trustees to hold, on different accounts, 361.

NEW SHARES.
tenant for life when entitled to, 878.
trustees cannot accept, unless expressly authorised, 322, 745.
neglecting to get in, 1174.

NEW TRUST, created without intervention of new trustee, 78.

NEW TRUSTEES, Chap. xxvi. 803-866. abroad, in place of trustee permanently residing, 840, 841 note, 844 note, 1087.
absconding trustee, in place of, 838, 1087.
action for appointment of, whether c. q. t. should bring, 840.
administration, limited, for purpose of appointing, 817.
appointed by Court, powers of, 760, 1090. appointment of, by Court, 835 et seq., 1087 et seq.
cestui que trust when entitled to, 1086, 1087.
costs of, 831. See infra, COSTS.

NEW TRUSTEES—continued.
appointment of, principles on which Court acts in selecting, 1090.
Trustee Acts, under, 806, 807, 835 et seq. See infra, Trustee Acts.
under power, 804 et seq. See infra, power.
when complete, 809.
bankruptcy of trustee a ground for appointing, 838, 839, 1087.
breach of trust, trustee should not retire in favour of one who intends to commit, 829, 830.
trustee permitting co-trustee to commit, removed, 1087.
caprice of c. q. t., appointment not governed by, 1089.
cestui que trust not usually appointed, 41.
right of, to appointment of new trustees, 1086.
chapel, meeting-houses, &c., of, 1092, 1093.
charitable trusts, appointment of new trustee to act in, 1091 et seq., 1205, 1209. See CHARITY.
sanction of Charity Commissioners, 1092, 1209.
where corporation are trustees, 1091.
Charitable Trusts Acts, appointment of new trustees under, 1092.
chattels real how vested in, 810, 811.
consent by, to act how evidenced, 1306.
Conveyancing Act, 1881, appointment of new trustees under, 806 et seq.
conviction of existing trustee for felony a ground for appointing, 838, 839.
copyholds, of, fine when payable on admission of, 262, 263.
costs of appointment of.
corpus, are payable out of, 831.
improper appointment, 830.
remainderman, when thrown upon, 842 note.
tenant for life often pays, where there is no fund, 831.
trustee removed for misconduct, in lieu of, 1088.
Court, discharge of trustee by authority of, 832.
powers of trustees appointed by, 760, 1090.
death of existing trustee when a ground for appointing, 1086.
executors of surviving trustee superseded by new trustees appointed under power, 248 note.
expedient to appoint, when Court considers it to be, 838.
felony, conviction of trustee for, a ground for appointing, 838, 839.
fitness of, Court how satisfied as to, 1305, 1306.
husband of c. q. t. sometimes appointed, 42.
not appointed trustee of own marriage settlement, 42.
ineffectual appointment of, effect of, 831.
infant, in place of, 836, 837, 854.
inquiries to be made by, before accepting office, 230, 231, 832, 910.
irregularity in appointment of existing trustee, when a ground for appointing, 1088, 1889.
jurisdiction, person to be appointed should be within the, 822, 1087.
legal estate, transfer of, to new trustee, 810 et seq. See infra, vesting property.
lis pendens, after decree in, trustee should not exercise power without sanction of Court, 747, 748, 831.
Lord Cranworth's Act, appointment of new trustees under, 805, 806. lunacy, order in, for appointment of new trustees, 860, et seq., 1287. See LUNACY; LUNATIC.
without being made in Chancery, when, 860 note, 862, 863.
misconduct of existing trustee, when a ground for appointing, 1088.
misunderstanding of duty by existing trustee not a ground for appointing, 1089.
mortgage, transfer of to new trustees, 386, 387.

NEW TRUSTEES—continued.
motion, application by, for discharge of trustee, 833.
Municipal Corporations Act, appointment of new trustees under, 1091.
new trust created without appointment of, 78.
no existing trustee, where there is, appointment of trustee to act, 1086.
number to be appointed, 43.
directory power, under, 751.
one in place of several, appointment of, improper, 819.
one retiring, could not appoint two successors, 819, 820.
original number, whether to be kept up, 820 et seq., 828.
Court does not limit itself to, 821.
several in place of one, appointment of, when proper, 819, 820, 821.
persons proper for office of—cestui que trust or near relative undesirable, 41, 826; c. q. t. sometimes appointed by Court, 41, 826.
donee of power cannot appoint himself, 827.
jurisdiction, should be within, 822.
policy of assurance, of, effected under Married Women's Property Act, 1882, 1021, 1025, 1026.
power to appoint.
administration action, how affected by pendency of, 770.
consent of alienee of tenant for life whether necessary, 829.
construction of, in various cases—
"acting" trustee, who is, 816, 817, 823, 825.
"continuing" trustee, 818, 824.
death of trustee in testator's lifetime, 817.
departing the United Kingdom, 819; does not include temporary absence, 819.
"incapable to act," meaning of, 818, 819.
"other trustees," meaning of, 825.
"refusing" or "declining," meaning of, 815, 816.
"return to England," person to be trustee on his, 819.
"said trustees," meaning of, 826.
"survivor," "surviving trustee," 818 et seq.
"unfit," meaning of, 804, 818.
when number reduced to three, 829.
donee appointing himself, 827.
extinguishment or variation of, by Court, in case of divorce, 832.
form of, usual form and suggested additions, 804, 805.
where several sets of trustees, 805.
lunatic, vested in, jurisdiction of Court, in case of, 838 note.
mode of appointing under, 810 et seq.
trustee surviving testator may appoint new trustee in place of one who predeceased testator, 817, 818.
new trustees when appointed by Court notwithstanding existence of, 838, 839.
statutory powers, 805 et seq.
trust survives notwithstanding, 294, 509, 510.
Trustee Act, 1893, under, 806 et seq.
trustee retiring should see that power contemplates precise case, 814.
trustee retiring should not part with fund before complete appointment of successor, 814, 815.
when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 144, 145.
where more than two trustees, secus under Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 814. vesting trust estate in new trustee, 811 et seq. See infra, vesting property in new trustee.

NEW TRUSTEES—continued.
powers exercisable by, 760.
public trustee may be appointed, 701.
reappointment of, for purpose of making vesting order, 840.
receiver discharged on appointment of, 1264.
rectification of invalid appointment of, 824.
refusal to act by existing trustee, a ground for appointing, 1087.
to transfer to new trustees, 815.
relative of c. q. t. objected to, 826.
religious opinions of trustee for charity, when regarded, 43.
residence abroad of existing trustee, a ground for appointing, 819.
several trusts, of, when separate trustees may be appointed, 827, 828.
stamp on appointment of, 813.
statutory powers for appointment of, 805 et seq.
surviving trustee, right of, to call for appointment of new trustee, 406. transfer of trust property to, 809 et seq. See infra, vesting property.
Trustee Acts, appointment of new trustees under, 835 et seq.
abroad, person resident, not appointed trustee, 841.
where persons having power to appoint are, 839.
where trustee is, 840, 844 note.
absconding trustee, in place of, 838.
additional trustee, costs of appointment of, thrown on remainderman, 842 note.
administration to deceased trustee, where there is difficulty in obtaining, 838.
administrator or executor, Court has no power to appoint, 838, 843.
affidavit as to fitness of new trustee, 1305, 1306.
age or infirmity of trustee, in case of, 838.
alien, appointment of, as trustee, 841 note.
application for, how to be made, 1304, 1305.
persons entitled to make, 857.
service of, 1305.
dispensed with, when, 1305.
assignee in bankruptcy, in place of, 840 note.
assistance of Court, case for, 838, 839.
bankrupt, assignee of, held constructive trustee, 837.
bankrupt, in substitution for, 838, 839.
cestui que trust not appointed trustee, 841.
service of application on, 1305.
charity, number of trustees appointed of, 843 note.
consent of new trustee to act, 1306.
constructive and implied trusts, under, 835, 836, 837.
contingently interested, application by person who is, 857.
convict, in substitution for, 838, 839.
copyholds, owner of, covenanting to surrender, when a constructive trustee 836.
devisee, infant, when a constructive trustee, 836.
discharge of former or continuing trustee, 838.
evidence to be adduced on application for, 1305.
executor or administrator, Court has no power to appoint, 838, 843.
but Court may appoint in place of executor who has assumed character of trustee, 844.
executor when constructive trustee of legacy, 837.
expediency of appointing, cases of, 838.
felon, in substitution for, 838, 839.

NEW TRUSTEES, Trustee Acts, appointment of new trustees under—continued.
feme covert trustee of stock, husband of, a constructive trustee, 837.
fitness of new trustee, affidavit as to, 1305, 1306.
heir of mortgagee when constructive trustee, 837.
heir taking trust estate by disclaimer, a constructive trustee, 837.
husband and wife, judicially separated, where power is vested in, 839.
husband of cestui que trust, appointment of, as trustee, 842.
husband of feme trustee held constructive trustee, 837.
implied and constructive trusts, under, 836, 837.
infant when a constructive trustee, 836, 837, 854.
jurisdiction, out of, person resident, when appointed trustee, 841.
where donee of power is, 839.
where trustee is, 841, 844 note.
legal personal representative, where there is none, 839.
lunatic, where power of appointing new trustees is vested in, 838 note.
mortgage, exception of duties incident to, 835.
mortgagee when a trustee within the Act, 835, 836.
no existing trustee, where there is, 839.
no trustees appointed by testator, where, 840.
number of trustees to be appointed, 842.
Court requires whole number to be filled up, 842.
office, where trust is, without an estate, 841 note.
power of appointment of trustees, where donee is willing to exercise, 839.
power of Court under s. 25 of Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 838 et seq.
purchaser or purchasers, application by, 857.
reappointment of trustees already appointed, Court will not make, 841.
relative of cestui que trust, appointment of, as trustee, 842 note.
removal of trustee, jurisdiction of Court as to, 840.
secretary of company, in place of, to whom land conveyed, 835 note.
separate sets of trustees, appointment of, 843.
service of application for, 1305.
single trustee, when Court will appoint a, 842.
solicitor of tenant for life whether eligible to be appointed, 842.
solicitor trustee not removable against his will, 841 note.
suit for, right of cestui que trust to institute, notwithstanding Act, 858.
surviving trustee, where there is no legal personal representative of, 839.
"trust" and "trustee," definition of, 835.
undertaking by trustee to bring trust funds into Court, 843 note.
to take steps for appointment of co-trustee, 842.
unsound mind, where trustee alleged to be of, 840.
vendor, heir of, when a constructive trustee, 836, 837.
refusal by, to convey, in case of, 836.
vesting order in case of, 843 et seq. See VESTING ORDER.

vesting property in new trustee.
bank annuities, 810.
charity, legal estate vested in trustee for, without conveyance, 1092, 1093.
chattels real, 810, 811.
copyholds, 812.
mode of, upon appointment of trustees under power, 810 et seq.
upon appointment by Court, 843 et seq. See VESTING ORDER.
money in funds, &c., 810 et seq.
mortgage securities, 386, 387, 810, 811.
Trustee Act, 1893, by declaration under, 811, 812.
two deeds when necessary, 811.

NEXT FRIEND.
married woman cannot act as, 977.
married woman may now sue without, 974.

NEXT OF KIN.
breach of trust, taking with notice of, 1162.
cestui que trust dying intestate without leaving, 317.
charge, keeping on foot, for benefit of next of kin, 940 note.
conversion directed by will not construed to confer any right on, 1229.
covenant to convey land on trust for sale, when entitled to benefit of, 1224.
executor denying relationship of, ordered to pay costs, 1277.
executor when trustee for, 63.
followed, trust money may be, into hands of, 1162, 1169.
land to be converted into money, next of kin not entitled where land "at home," 1224.
Limitation, Statutes of, when barred by, 1136.
lunatic, of, interests of, how far regarded by Court, 1243 et seq. See LUNATIC.
money to be laid out in land, next of kin entitled to undisposed of interest in, 174. See RESULTING TRUST.
nearest of kin, "next of kin" construed as equivalent to, 1084.
personæ designatæ, when entitled to claim as, 1230.
personalty given upon trust to be afterwards declared, next of kin entitled to, 62.
proceeds of sale of land, next of kin not entitled to undisposed of, 170, 171.
even where it is directed that proceeds shall be personal estate, 172.
refusal by, to take out administration, 854 note.
residuary gift, where will contains, no resulting trust for next of kin, 180.
unless part of personal estate is expressly excepted from residue, 180.
trustee, of, where sale of land set aside, whether entitled to money, 579, 580.

NOTES (BANK), followed in equity, 1151 et seq.

NOTICE.
army agent, to, of charge on proceeds of officer's commission, 912.
assignment, of, when necessary, 76, 79, 892, 894, 902 et seq., 1164.
debt, on assignment of, 894.
equitable interest, on assignment of, 77, 276, 402, 903.
to person whose interest it is to suppress assignment, ineffectual, 910, 915.
banker, to, that money is trust money, 214.
bond, by assignee of, to obligor, 895, 896.
borrower how affected by, 1107, 1113.
breach of trust, of, effect of, 1099, 1100, 1112, 1162.
of apprehension of, 542, 543, 769.
cestui que trust, to, of intention to do particular act, 710.
charge, of, in general terms, sufficient, 915, 916.
chose in action, on assignment of, 76, 77, 907; effect of, 907 et seq.
neglect to give, liability of trustee for, 907, 1166.
precautions to be taken as to giving, 907 et seq.
company, to, of equitable interest in shares, 905, 906.
constructive, v. q. t., to, of breach of trust not a bar to relief, 1199.
of sub-mortgage, 924.
solicitor, agent, or clerk of trustee, through, 914, 915, 1104, 1105.
constructive trust by reason of, 213, 214, 215, 1100.
corporation, to, not readily presumed, 1212.
death of trustee, determined by, 906, 911, 917.
debt, on assignment of, 894.
derivative settlement, in case of, 913.
distringas, in lieu of, practice as to obtaining, 1251 et seq.

NOTICE—continued.
doubtful equity, of, how far binding on purchaser, 1103 et seq.
equitable interest, on assignment of, 79, 902 ; effect of, 403, 901 et seq.
as against assignor or settlor immaterial, 79, 276 note.
as against purchasers material, 276 note, 1100.
executory trust, of, 1103.
form of, should be clear and distinct, 916.
fund in Court, on assignment of, 916, 917. See STOP ORDER.
implied against volunteer, 14, 1099.
incidental mention not equivalent to notice, 915.
judgment, of, when material, 1031, 1038, 1046, 1056.
lease, of, presumed from recital of surrender, 207.
lien of bank, of, under deed of settlement, 916.
marriage articles, of, how far binding on purchaser, 1103.
merger, equitable, how affected by, 936 et seq.
mistake, when vitiated by, 916.
money charged on land, assignee of, should give, 908.
mortgage debt, application of doctrine of notice to, 909.
parol, by, must be explicit, 915.
policy of assurance, of assignment of, 1166.
presumed against volunteer, 14, 1099.
priority by giving, 902 et seq.
assignees of choses in action, as between, 76, 276 note, 902.
doctrine of, not applicable to real estate, 908.
English law, when applicable, 909.
trustee in bankruptcy, as against, 902, 903, 904.
not where debt recoverable at law by bankrupt, semble, 904.
priority, for purpose of obtaining, distinguished from notice for purpose of protection only, 913.
production of documents by person bound by notice of trust, 1254.
purchaser, to, of breach of trust, 500, 542, 543, 564, 1100 et seq.
purchaser with or without, 207, 918, 1075 et seq. See PURCHASER.
real estate, doctrine of notice not applicable to, 908.
recitals, presumed from, when, 207.
recitals, &c., with view of keeping, off title, 386.
renewal of, when advisable, 912.
shares in company, on assignment of, 905, 906.
simultaneous notices, effect of, 913.
solicitor having lien on documents not bound to give, 905.
solicitor, implied notice from both parties employing same, 393.
trustee, of, notice to, not necessarily notice to trustee, 914, 915.
stranger, by, whether effectual, 914, 915.
trust, of, entry of public trustee's name in books of company, not to constitute, 707. trust, of, to vendor, practice of conveyancers as to giving, 593, 594.
trustee, by, when necessary to be given, 319, 910, 915.
equitable interest, trustee of, should give notice to holder of legal estate, 319.
where assignor or assignee holds on trust, 910, 911, 915.
trustee, to, 403, 902 et seq.
assignment, of, effect of, 403.
not necessary to complete assignment as between assignor and assignee, 79, 276 note, 902.
but necessary to make trustee liable who pays under original title, 903.
fund in Court, where trust fund consists of, 916, 917, 918.

NOTICE, trustee, to—continued
mortgage, of, effect of, 403.
one of several trustees, notice to, good during his life, 909.
but not after his death, nor where trustee is assignor, 909, 910, 917.
person about to become trustee, notice to, 911, 912.
Settled Land Acts, of intention, to exercise powers of, 668 et seq.
shares in company, where trust fund consists of, 914.
time of giving, 912.
trustee receiving, not bound to communicate notice of own incumbrance, 911.
written or unwritten, whether to be, 914.
voluntary assignment of equitable interest, notice not requisite on, 79, 80, 912, 913.
volunteer, notice of trust presumed against, 14, 1099.
volunteers, as between, not material, 913.
want of, is not a defect in title, 911.
will, of, purchaser not prejudiced by, 561.

NUMBER OF TRUSTEES, 43, 44, 820 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
four only allowed of bank annuities, 44 ; except in special cases, 44.
original, whether to be kept up, 820 et seq., 842.
power to appoint, when number reduced, 751.
Trustee Act, number to be appointed under, 842.
Trustee Act, 1893, provisions of, as to, 813, 814, 823.

NUNCUPATIVE WILL, 55 note, 60.

OCCUPATION RENT, trustee charged with, 576.

OFFICE OF TRUSTEE, Chap. xiii. 281-318. acceptance of, effect of, 230, 281. See ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST. appointment of trustee where trust is, without estate, 841 note.
co-trustees not liable for each other's acts and defaults, 294 et seq. See CO-TRUSTEES.
co-trustees, office of, is joint, 289 et seq. See CO-TRUSTEES.
Court assumes office where no trustee appointed, 1075.
delegation of, by trustee, 282 et seq. See DELEGATION. discharge of trustee from, Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq. See DISCHARGE.
disclaimer of, distinguished from disclaimer of estate, 222, 223. See DISCLAIMER.
personal benefit, trustee must not derive, from office, 201, 306 et seq. See CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST. power primâ facie incident to, 755 note.
survivorship of, 292 et seq.

OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR not entitled to same latitude as trustee as to costs, 1273.

OFFICIAL OF COURT, appointment of, as judicial trustee, 699.

OFFICIAL TRUSTEE.
charity, of funds of, 436, 1209. See CHARITY.
of lands of, 1209.
powers and duties not affected by Public Trustee Act, 708.

OPERATION OF LAW.
trusts resulting by, distinguished from implied and constructive trusts, 19, 121 note.
Frauds, Statute of, how affected by, 215, 216, 217, 218.

OPERATION OF LAW—continued.
trusts resulting by, intention expressed or presumed that grantee or devisee should not take beneficial interest, 169, 170.
purchase in name of third persons, by reason of, 183 et seq.
voluntary conveyance, by reason of, 164. See RESULTING TRUST.

OPINION.
charity commissioners, of, is an indemnity, 1209.
counsel, of, trustee acting under, how far protected, 230 note, 406, 791. See COUNSEL.
cases for, and opinions, trustee when bound to produce, to c. q. t., 874, 875, 1253.
Court, of, how and when obtained, 419 et seq., 771, 772.
religious, trustee of chapel holding, contrary to those of founder, 43.

OPTION.
cestui que trust, of, when trust moneys improperly dealt with, 396 et seq.
conversion of property, effect of optional direction for, 1221, 1222.
whether exercise of option to purchase effects retrospective conversion, 1227, 1228.
purchase of business by son, caution to be observed on, 409, 410.
trustee or executor cannot grant lease with option of purchase, 502, 503.

ORDER OF COURT OF EQUITY. See DECREE; JUDGMENT.
contingent right, discharging, 845 et seq.
conversion how far effected by, 172, 173, 1226.
indemnifies trustee, 418, 419.
judgment, has same effect as, 1037.
land, affecting, registration of, 1055, 1056.

ORDER AND DISPOSITION, 271 et seq. See BANKRUPTCY.

ORDERING AND DIRECTING, may raise a trust, 148.

ORDERS, GENERAL. See GENERAL ORDERS; RULES OF COURT.

ORIGINATING SUMMONS.
appointment of new trustees, on, 1304.
costs of payment into Court unnecessarily, disallowed, 421.
marking, with name of judge, 1088 note.
parties to be served, 420.
payment into Court by trustees ordered on, 1259.
questions affecting trusts may now be determined by means of, 420 et seq., 771, 772.
wilful default, order on footing of, not made on, 1168.

ORPHANAGE SHARE, money to be laid out on land in favour of child, formerly not brought into hotchpot, 1217.

OUTLAWRY, 27, 279.

OUTSTANDING PROPERTY, duty of executors and trustees, to get in, 303, 323 et seq., 394.

OVER-PAYMENT by trustee or executor, effect of, 413 et seq.

PALATINE COURT, jurisdiction of, under Trustee Act, 1893 . . . 1293.

PAPISTRY ACTS, purchase in contravention of, did not give rise to resulting trust, 188.

PARCELS.
by what description trustee should convey, 880.
description of, in vesting order, 850.
whether trustee can be required to divest himself of trust estate in, 880.

PARENS PATRIÆ, Sovereign is, 1202, 1206.

PARENT AND CHILD. See INFANT. advancement, presumption of, on purchase by parent in name of child, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
influence of parent, child protected against, after attaining majority, 1200, 1275. maintenance of child, duty of parent to provide for, 730 et seq.
portions, doctrines as to, applicable as between parent and child, 475, 476.

PARISH; PARISHIONERS. account, retrospective, not directed against, 1213.
acquiescence, parishioners whether bound by, 1197.
action by, to set aside nomination of clerk, 1202 note (1).
advowson, trust of, for parishioners, how carried into effect, 91 et seq., 288, 1202.
charities, apportionment of, on division of parish, 1205.
clerk, election of, when in parishioners, 92, 93.
"parishioners and inhabitants," meaning of, 92 et seq., 633; of "chiefest and discreetest," 93; of "ratepayers," 94.
property of, when vested in churchwardens and overseers, 624 note.
qualification of "parishioner," how gained, 633.
trust for poor of parish, how carried into effect, 91, 623, 624.

PARLIAMENT.
Act of, necessary for total alteration of scheme of charity, 629.
application to, costs of, when allowed to trustees, 629, 718.
Bill in, money paid for not opposing, how treated, 212.
costs of opposition to, when allowed, 718, 789.
fagot voters, conveyances for purpose of creating, 120.
member of, trustee not entitled to vote for, 262, 875.
resulting trust not implied in evasion of Act of Parliament, 187.
securities interest of which is guaranteed by, 362.
splitting votes, conveyances, &c., for purpose of, 120.

PARLIAMENTARY SECURITIES, investment in, 345, 362, 365, 388. See INVESTMENT.

PAROL (PAROL EVIDENCE). And see WRITING.
acceptance of trust, parol evidence admissible on question of, 228.
ademption, to rebut or raise presumption of, 477.
advancement, parol evidence to prove or rebut presumption of, when admissible, 164, 165, 168, 196.
chattels personal, trust of, may be declared by parol, 55, 56.
Crown, parol evidence not admitted to prove declaration of trust by, 19.
declaration of trust requiring writing, parol evidence of surrounding circumstances admissible, 58, 59.
not affected by subsequent declaration, 56.
approval of draft declaration does not amount to, 56.
disclaimer by, when effectual, 222, 223.
election may be evidenced by, 1240.
equitable interest formerly transferable by, 890, 930.
executors, how far formerly admitted against title of, to residue, 63.
following trust property, admissible for purpose of, 190, 1155.
fraud, in cases of, 63.
investment of trust money in land, whether capable of proof by, 190, 191.

PAROL (PAROL EVIDENCE)—continued.
loco parentis, of intention to place oneself in, 476, 477.
merger, intention as to, capable of proof by, 940.
presumption of law may be rebutted by, 169, 190.
purchase in name of another, to prove, 188, 189. See RESULTING TRUST.
purchaser, nominal, after death of, whether admissible, 189.
resulting trust not rebutted by, when devisee or grantee is expressly made trustee, 62.
secus, when mere presumption of trusteeship, 63, 168.
or in case of purchase in name of stranger, 189, 190.
whether admissible against defendant's denial by answer, 189 ; whether after his death, 189.
satisfaction, to rebut or raise presumption of, 477.
secret trust, parol evidence to show, when admissible, 67.
trust when capable of being declared by, 53 et seq., 63.
when capable of being rebutted by, 62, 63.
trust, when parol evidence is admissible to prove, 168.
trustee under parol trust whether entitled to release under seal, 417, 418.
use when capable of being declared by, 53, 54.
will, parol trust cannot be declared upon property given by, 62, 63.
except in case of fraud, 63, 64.

PARTIES.
conveyance, to, by trustee or c. q. t., 528, 879 et seq. See CONVEYANCE.
duty of trustee to see that proper parties are before the Court, 422.
service of, under Trustee Acts, 428, 429, 845 note, 1305.

PARTITION.
judgment for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Acts, 848.
power of, when inserted by Court in settlement under executory trust, 145.
power to concur in, conferred by Settled Land Acts, 663.
power to sell or sell and exchange, whether authorised by, 505.
vesting order consequential on judgment for, 848, 849.

PARTITION ACTS.
sale of real estate of infant or lunatic under, proceeds still realty, 173.
and so formerly as to married woman, 173.
but since Act of 1876, sale with married woman's consent operates as a conversion, 173, 174.

PARTNER.
account against, in respect of assets of deceased, 308.
account by, against estate of deceased partner when barred by laches, 1118.
breach of trust by co-partner, when liable for, 1163, 1164, 1185, 1186.
change of firm, duty of trustee to call in investment in case of, 322 ; right of set-off how affected by, 895, 896.
costs of action by creditor of deceased, 1269.
deceased partner, partner trading with assets of, how far liable, 308.
following assets employed in trade, rights of c. q. t. as to, 1152, 1155, 1185, 1186.
judgment against firm does not cause merger of separate liability, 1176.
jus accrescendi excluded as between co-partners, 185.
legacy to, set-off against debt owing by firm, 898.
Limitations, Statute of, when running in favour of, 1143.
manager of partnership, unauthorised borrowing by, 745.
notice to, effect of, 915.
payment by trustees to, how to be made, 413.
production of documents by co-partners of trustee or executor, 1254.

PARTNER—continued.
profiting by his fiduciary relation is constructively a trustee, 208, 210, 308, 310.
purchase, may, from representatives of deceased partner, 575.
renewing a lease is trustee for partnership, 102.
representation of co-partner, bound by, 1143.
representative of deceased, purchase from, by surviving partner, 575.
sale by, to co-partner, duty to disclose material facts, 575.
set-off as against members of firm, 895, 896.
share in partnership forming part of residue, income attributable to tenant for life, 340.
solicitor trustee, employment of partners of, to act for trust, 314, 315.
surviving partner, whether in fiduciary relation to deceased, 308 note, 575.
time and trouble, surviving partner cannot charge for, 781.
trading with assets of deceased partner, must account for profits, 308, 309, 1152, 1155.
but not for extra profits if he did not know he was a partner, 309.
or has bonâ fide settled partnership accounts, 309.
trustee, of, cannot purchase trust estate, 571.
when liable for breach of trust by co-partner, 1163, 1164, 1185, 1186.
trustee who is, account against, for share of profits arising from trust money, 309 note, 1152.

PATENT.
declaration of trust by Crown must be by, 19, 54.
equities in respect of, enforceable as of other personal property, 188.
registration of patents for inventions, 188.
notice of trust not allowed on register, 188.

PATENTS, DESIGNS AND TRADE MARKS ACT, 1883, . . . 188.

PAYMENT. See RECEIPT. bank, into, to account of trust, 330, 557.
charity, of trust money of, to official trustee, 436.
Court, into, 1254 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT. investment in consols considered equivalent to, 494.
legatee when entitled to payment of legacy to buy annuity, 885.
small sums, of, when allowed without taking out administration, 412.
sole trustee, to, 413.
trust to "pay" or to "pay or permit to receive," whether legal estate passes by, 235 et seq.
trustee by, 409 et seq.
to agent, 410.
to c. q. t. abroad, 411.
to husband of feme covert, 1164.
to improvident cestui que trust, 403, 433.
to infant, 412, 413.
to lunatic, 413.
to mortgagee, 404.
to partner, 413.
trustees, to, of purchase or other money, how to be made, 324, 325, 329, 529, 530, 558.
will, in pursuance of directions contained in, 301.

PAYMENT INTO COURT. Chap. xxxii. s. 3, 1254-1262.
account, of balance appearing due on, 1257.
admission, upon, when ordered, 1256 et seq.
answer, formerly only on admission in, 1256.
but now upon any admission direct or indirect, 1256, 1257.

PAYMENT INTO COURT—admission—continued.
payments not specified in pleading may be verified by affidavit, 1259.
title, admission of, formerly necessary, 1258.
sufficiency of admission, 1258 et seq.
admission of receipt of money sufficient, 1258.
fund need not be in defendant's hands, 1258.
admission from which liability merely inferred not generally sufficient, 1259.
nor where trustees mean forthwith to apply fund, 1260.
trustee or executor, admission by, that he owes a debt to the estate, 1260.
application for, how made, 1255.
balance, of, where payments have been made, 1259.
compulsorily, when ordered, 1254 et seq.
costs of, where unnecessary, disallowed, 419 et seq.
debtor to estate, by, not ordered, 1260.
unless executor or trustee, 1260.
decree, after, 1258.
distringas, "notwithstanding" notice in lieu of, 1262.
equity to settlement, where trustee thinks feme covert entitled to, 954.
executor, after discovering debts of testator, allowed to have money paid out again, 431.
hearing, at, ordered though refused on motion, 1261.
infant, of money of, under Trustee Act, 1307.
injunction against transfer, "notwithstanding," 1262.
majority of trustees, by, 424 et seq.
motion for, proceedings on, 1255.
order for, whether a matter of course, 1261.
parties, what, must be before the Court, 1255, 1256.
rise in price of stock, after payment in and investment, 577.
stakeholder, of money in hands of, 1255.
time, what, allowed for, 1261.
title of party applying for, 1254, 1255.
partial title sufficient, 1255.
possible title sufficient, where all parties before Court, 1255.
where applicant's title clear, Court has ordered defendant to pay in only his share, 1255, 1256.
trustee or executor, by, when ordered on admission, 1255 et seq. See supra, admission.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, under provisions of, 424 et seq., 1306 et seq.
account, heading of, to which fund to be paid in, 427.
separate, shares should be carried over to, 427.
affidavit by trustees, 424 note, 429, 1306 et seq.
form and contents of, 1306 et seq.
schedule to be annexed to, 1309.
breach of trust, does not discharge trustee from consequences of, 428.
charge, owner of estate subject to, not trustee, 425.
charity, by trustees for, 425 note.
Charity Commissioners, consent of, whether necessary to proceedings under, 425 note, 1208.
costs of, 426 et seq.
corpus or income, whether payable out of, 435, 1310 note.
deduction of, by trustees, 427, 433, 434.
improper, trustee liable to pay, 427.
originating summons, when question decided on, 419, 421, 426.
remainderman, of, 430, 436.

PAYMENT INTO COURT—Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42—continued.
County Courts, jurisdiction of, 437.
payment or transfer to, how to be made, 437.
discharge by payment into Court under, 424, 428.
effect of, 428.
equity to settlement, of fund subject to, 426 note.
indemnity to trustee, when operating as, 427.
trustee cannot require fund to be kept as, 427.
infant, appointment of guardian ad litem to, 1311.
order for maintenance, constitutes infant ward of Court, 433.
instalments, of money payable by, 426.
insurance company, payment into Court of policy moneys by, 425.
justifiable, when deemed to be, 426.
Life Assurance Companies (Payment into Court) Act, under provisions of, 425.
majority of trustees, payment into Court by, 424.
misapprehension, under, 431.
mortgagee of trust fund, of money demanded by, 426.
notice of payment in, practice as to giving, 1307, 1310.
of proceedings, to whom to be given, 1307, 1311.
pauperis, in formâ, claimant may proceed, 1311.
payment out of fund paid in, 428 et seq., 1310. See PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.
policy moneys, of, 425.
retirement of trustee by, 427, 428.
trustee entitled to pay in, but not bound, 421.
entitled to pay in, who is, 424, 425, and under what circumstances, 426.

PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.
Lands Clauses Act, under, 688, 1237, 1266. See LANDS CLAUSES ACT. married woman, to, upon her separate examination, 964, 1232.
examination dispensed with where sum of comparatively small amount, 412, 1231 note.
tenant in tail, to, under Lands Clauses Act, 1237.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, of money paid into Court under, 428 et seq., 1310.
abroad, where persons interested are resident, 428 note.
application for, 428 et seq., 1310.
chambers, when proceedings may be taken at, 1304, 1307, 1310.
costs of application for, 433, 434.
out of what funds payable, 435, 436.
County Court, jurisdiction of, as to, 437.
declarations and inquiries on application for, 431.
discretion of Court as to, 432, 433.
jurisdiction of Court on application for, 429, 430, 434.
lunatic, of money belonging to, 431, 432.
misapprehension, of money paid in under, 431.
notice to beneficiaries, when necessary, 429.
numerous parties interested, where, 429.
petition for, 428, 429, 1310.
prodigal, to, 433.
Poor Law Guardians, to, in respect of pauper lunatic, 431, 432.
remainderman, service on, 430.
service of proceedings for, 429, 430.
dispensed with, when, 429, 430.

PAYMENT OUT OF COURT—continued. out of jurisdiction, 430.
shares in fund, to person entitled to, 429.
summons, on, 428.
trustees, costs of, 433, 434.
trustees should not apply for, 428.
wrongful claimant, costs against, 436.

"PAY THE RENTS," trust to, not within the Statute of Uses, 234.

"PAY UNTO OR PERMIT AND SUFFER TO RECEIVE," whether within Statute of Uses, 235 et seq.

PEERAGE.
settlement of property to accompany peerage, directions for, how carried out, 141, 142, 145.
trust of, cannot be created, 48 note.

PENSION, from Crown to A., trust of, cannot be raised by parol for B., 54.

PERFECT TRUST.
requisites for creation of, 71 et seq.
voluntary assurance, under, 71 et seq. See VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

PERISHABLE PROPERTY, 333 et seq. See WASTING PROPERTY.

"PERMIT AND SUFFER, 'A' TO RECEIVE RENTS," within the Statute of Uses, 235.

PERNANCY OF PROFITS, right of c. q. t. to, 867 et seq..

PERPETUITY.
accumulation, trust for, leading to perpetuity, when void, 95, 96.
appointment ex facie void will not raise case of election, 110 note.
charitable or public trust not affected by rule against, 18.
chattels, settlement of, when void for, 110.
contingent remainders, application of rule against perpetuity to, 109 note, 458.
direction for leasing charity land under true value is void for, 638.
discretionary trust for maintenance, 110 note.
indemnity, trust for, against perpetual outgoing, 110.
legal contingent remainder subject to rule against, 109.
management, trust for, during minorities when void, 108.
power how affected by rule against, 109, 757.
proviso for settlement of share, when void, 110.
restraint on anticipation may be void for, 109.
shifting clause, in executory trust, read divisibly, 141.
tombs, trust for repair of, 122.
trusts when obnoxious to rule against, 18, 95, 109, 122.

PERSON, equity attaching to the, 49 note.

PERSONA DESIGNATA, when heir or next of kin may claim as, 1229.

PERSONAL CONTRACT, disclaimer of, 225.

PERSONAL ESTATE.
advancement, doctrine of, applies to, 200.
blended real and personal estate, effect of gift of, 179.
conversion of, by trustee, 1240, 1241. See CONVERSION.
direction that residuary real estate shall devolve as, effect of, 1227.

PERSONAL ESTATE—continued.
gift of, will not pass undisposed of proceeds of sale of testator's lands, 179, 180.
secus where testator himself entitled to money, 1223.
whether it will pass lapsed legacies from proceeds of sale of real estate, 179, 180 judgment creditor, remedy of, as against, 1054.
real estate, direction that personalty shall devolve as, 143.
resulting trust of, 180.
settlement of, cannot be made to follow realty exactly, 91, 133.
strict settlement of, how effected, 110. testator, of, must possess that character at his decease, 179.
trust for payment of debts out of, 599, 611.
will of, 60 et seq. See WILL.

PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE. See EXECUTOR.
proceeds of real estate to be converted pass to, 1223.
trust and mortgage estates devolve on, 246 et seq., 836.
trustee, of, action against, for trustee's breach of trust, 1169.

PERSONAL SECURITY.
assets must not be left outstanding upon, 323, 324.
investment upon, by trustee improper, 343, 344, 347, 348, 381; unless under express power, 347, 348. See INVESTMENT.

PERSONALTY. See CHATTELS; PERSONAL ESTATE.

PETITION.
amendment of, 1311.
costs of appearance on, 434.
equity to settlement, to enforce, 953.
married women, by, 349 note.
mines, for leave to sell, separate from surface, 572.
new trustees, for appointment of, 1304.
restraining order, for, 1249.
Romilly's Act, under, 1092, 1203 et seq.
service of, 428, 429, 845 note, 1305, 1311.
Trustee Act, under, 428 et seq., 1304, 1311.
service of, 428, 429, 1305, 1311.

PETITION OF RIGHT, remedy by, where Crown is trustee, 30.

PETO'S ACT (13 & 14 Vict. c. 28), 1092, 1093.

PIN-MONEY.
arrears of, whether recoverable, 1001.
savings out of, belong to husband, 993.

PLEADING.
disclaimer by, 221.
Frauds, Statute of, when defendant must plead, 57.
Limitations, Statute of, to be pleaded, 1115.

POLICY OF INSURANCE. See INSURANCE.
assignment of, 75.
child, in name of, effected by father, 195, 196.
chose in action, is, within Bankruptcy Act, 272.
declaration of trust of, 75, 76.
direction to keep up, not an accumulation, 101.
improper surrender of, measure of liability in respect of, 1175.

POLICY OF INSURANCE—continued.
lien on policy moneys for payment of premiums, 1165.
Married Women's Property Acts, under, for benefit of wife and children, 1021, 1025, 1026.
money payable under, appointment of agent to receive, 274, 531.
notice of assignment of, sufficiency and effect of, 915, 919, 1140.
payment of moneys into Court under s. 42 of Trustee Act, 426.
settlement of, in fraud of creditors, 84.
trustee of, rights and duties of, 1165, 1166.

POLICY OF LAW, trusts contravening, are unlawful, 102 et seq.

POOR LAW GUARDIANS, repayment to, of expenses incurred for maintenance of lunatic, 431.

POOR OF PARISH.
limitation to, void at law, 47, 91.
trust for, how carried into effect, 91, 92, 623, 624.

POOR RELATIONS.
gift to, how construed, 1083.
power of distribution amongst, how construed, 1076, 1082.

PORTION, Chap. xvii. 459-497.
accumulation of income for raising, what permissible under Thellusson Act, 99, 100.
ademption of legacy, by subsequent advance by parent or person in loco parentis, 474 et seq., 478.
advancement by way of portion, definition of, 734 note.
advances to children regarded as portions, 479.
amount to be raised for, 484 et seq.
annual rents and profits, when to be raised out of, 495, 496.
Chancery Division, causes as to portions assigned to, 498.
contingent, where fund is, interest of portionist is, 470, 471.
costs of raising, 488.
daughters treated as younger children, 463.
debts, forgiveness of, by testator to sons, 479 note.
definition of, 100.
distribution, period of, when the time for ascertaining portionists, 460, 466.
doctrine of, whether applicable only to parents and persons in loco parentis, 464 note, 465 et seq., 475, 476.
double portions, rule against, 477.
eldest child when regarded as younger, 460, 462, 463, 464.
eldest daughter treated as younger child, 463.
eldest son when disentitled to portion, 462.
where estate is insufficient to meet charges upon it, 462, 463.
election, persons entitled to portions put to, 483.
heir not considered a younger child, 460.
income or corpus, whether raisable out of, 495.
infant, appointment to, 468, 469, 473, 474. interest on, when portionist is entitled to, 484 et seq.
payable although portion not vested, 485.
not where portion raisable out of annual rents, 485.
rate of, 486; allowed by way of maintenance, is in discretion of Court, 486 et seq.
investment of, in consols, equivalent to payment, 494.
land, portion charged on, failing, sinks for benefit of inheritance, 488.
legacy to child regarded as, 479.

PORTION—continued.
loco parentis, doctrine of portions whether confined to persons in, 464 et seq.
doctrine of ademption and satisfaction applicable to persons in, 475, 476.
maintenance, when allowed though corpus of portion not vested, 485 et seq.; 725 et seq.
mines, may be raised out of, 494, 496.
mode of raising, 494 et seq.
mortgage, when to be raised by, 494, 495, 497.
undivided shares, by mortgage of, 497.
portionists, who are, 459 et seq.; when estate is settled on eldest son, 460 et seq.; where it is not so settled, 465 et seq.
power to appoint, exercisable in favour of children of tender years, but such appointment viewed with suspicion, 473, 474.
power to charge, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145.
presumption as to vesting of, 467 et seq.; when rebutted by language of instrument, 470 et seq.
presumption of ademption or satisfaction of, 477 et seq.
priority of, when raised by mortgage by direction of Court, 497.
raisable from time to time, how to be raised, 495, 496.
rents and profits, how and when to be raised out of, 495, 496.
where raisable out of, interest not allowed, 485.
vesting of portion raisable out of, 473.
residuary bequest to child regarded as, 480, 481.
reversion, when raisable out of, 488 et seq.
sale or mortgage, whether to be raised by, 494, 495.
satisfaction of, by subsequent gift or legacy, 474 et seq.
second son succeeding to estate disentitled to portion, 461.
stranger, doctrine of portions whether applicable to gift by, 464 note.
strangers may indirectly profit by doctrine of, 432, 433.
Thellusson Act, provision for raising portion excepted from, 99, 100.
timber, when to be raised out of proceeds of, 494, 496.
time for ascertaining parties entitled to, 459, 460.
time for raising, 488 et seq., 493, 496, 497.
time of vesting of, 467 et seq.
title deeds, trustees of term for portions not entitled to custody of, 497.
trust to "provide suitably" for younger children held not too vague, 134.
vesting of, 461, 467.
at what time portions vest, 467 et seq.
where portional fund has to be created, 469.
where settlement silent as to vesting, 471.
where portion raisable out of rents, 473.
younger child when treated as eldest, 460 et seq., 465.

POSSESSIO FRATRIS, 933, 1062.

POSSESSION.
adverse, of equity of redemption, bars all claim, 935.
trustee and c. q. t., as between, cannot exist, 1107, 1130 et seq.
secus, in case of constructive trust arising by fraud, 1108.
cestui que trust, of, is in law possession of trustee, 878 operation of Statute of Limitations how affected by, 1130 et seq.
right of, to possession, 867 et seq.
as to chattels, 878.
as to lands, 867.
formerly recognised in equity only, 871.
rent, arrears of, indemnity to be given in respect of, 882.
Settled Land Act, provisions of, effect of, 870.

POSSESSION—continued.
equity, action in, when barred by long possession, 1107 et seq. See LIMITATION OF ACTION.
purchase by trustees of estates in, 593. reduction into possession of married woman's choses in action, 951 et seq., 958, 959. See MARRIED WOMAN.
tenant for life, equitable, when entitled to, 868 et seq.
title deeds, of, may give better equity, 922 et seq.
transmutation of, where necessary to creation of a trust, 71 et seq.
trustee, of, is possession of c. q. t., 1107.
trustee for sale should not give up, before payment of purchase-money, 522.
whether receiver appointed if he do so, 1264.

POSSIBILITY.
cestui que trust of mere possibility cannot maintain action, 1096.
in a trust assignable, 889.

POST, "assign in the," bound by trust, 276.

POSTNUPTIAL SETTLEMENT, executory trust in, construed as in wills, 144.

POST OBIT, trust for creditors, whether revocable, 608.

POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK, trust money may be paid into, 437.

POVERTY.
executor, of, whether ground for injunction or receiver, 1097, 1262, 1263.
laches whether excused by, 1111, 1116.
statutory bar runs notwithstanding, 1111.
trustee, of, whether ground for injunction or appointment of receiver, 1097, 1262, 1263.

POWER.
administration, effect of judgment for, on powers of trustees, 532, 747, 748, 770, 771.
advancement, of, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145. And see ADVANCEMENT.
alienation by trustee, whether power will remain after, 760, 761.
annexed to estate or office of trustee, 17, 749.
survivorship of, 763 et seq.
anticipation, should not be exercised by, 769.
appendant, married woman may exercise, 37.
appointment under—married woman, by, effect of, 996 et seq.
remoteness, when void for, 109.
trustees under, when entitled to call for transfer, 883.
when appointment fails, property results to the appointor, 175.
arbitrary, when exercise of power is, 750.
power does not survive, 765.
assets of appointor, when property appointed is, 996 et seq.
"assign" within meaning of, who is, 753, 754.
new trustee is, 760.
assignable, when, 752, 754.
assignment of estate of donee of power, exercise of power how affected by, 759 et seq.
attorney, of, 226, 230, 410, 879. See ATTORNEY.
bare power and power coupled with trust distinguished, 750.
borrowing powers of directors of company, 745.

POWER—continued.
building leases, to grant, 642.
when inserted by Court in settlement under executory trust, 144.
ceases when settlement is at an end, 756, 757.
charity, control of Court over trustees of, 751, 766, 770.
co-extensive with estate, when, 753.
collateral, 33, 38, 749, 750.
infant may exercise, 38, 750.
married woman may exercise, 33, 749.
consent to exercise of, 774, 775.
bankruptcy of persons whose consent required, 736, 774.
concurrence of one of persons concurrently interested, 775.
lunatic, by, given by committee, 1313.
under Settled Land Acts, what required, 774 et seq.
"continuance of trust," during, 756.
continuing or retaining investments, of, effect of, 335, 380.
continuing trustee, when exercisable by, 758, 759.
contract not to exercise, 762.
coupled with interest, 749.
coupled with trust, 750.
Court, control of, over power, 765 et seq., 1073 et seq.
discretionary powers not in general interfered with by Court, 765 et seq.
when and how Court will exercise power, where donee fails to exercise same, 1074 et seq.
where power is testamentary, 1080; where not merely testamentary, 1080 et seq.
where subject of gift incapable of division, 1084 et seq.
wherever possible, Court will execute power, 1075.
defective execution of, aided, 997, 1075.
delegation of, 282 et seq., 554.
directors of trading company, power of, to borrow money, 745.
directory, what powers are, 751.
as to number of trustees, 751.
disclaimer of, 758.
renunciation by executor operating as, 759.
trust, of, effect of, upon exercise of power, 759.
release with intention of disclaiming, effect of, 760.
discretionary, 709, 765 et seq., 1076 et seq.
conversion, to make, does not change nature of property in equity, 1226. See CONVERSION.
Court cannot interfere with exercise of mere discretionary powers, 766, 1077.
secus if trustee "authorised and required," 767.
or where there is fraud, misbehaviour, or trustees decline to exercise discretion, 769, 770.
sale by Court where trustees have discretionary power effects conversion, 174.
legal estate taken by trustee, effect of power in determining, 244.
mixed trust and power, mode of execution, discretionary, 17.
renewal of lease, for, how construed, 439.
severance of, by severance of estate of trustees, 264.
whether trustees exercising, should state reasons for choice, 769.
distinction between different kinds of, 748 et seq.
distribution, of, distinguished from power of selection, 1079 et seq.
duration of, 756, 757.
duty, accompanied with, controlled by Court, 766.

POWER—continued.
release of, 762, 763.
equitable distinguished from legal powers, 748, 749.
may be annexed to estates or simply collateral, 749.
estate, not appendant to, 759.
exchange, of, whether a proper power, 145.
execution of, controlled by Court, in what cases, 1073 et seq.
resulting trust when prevented by, 174, 175.
executor of donee, when exercisable by, 755.
"executors," power to trustee and his, 755.
"executors," to, 759.
executory trust, what powers may be introduced in settlement under, 145 et seq.
extinguishment of, 756, 757, 760, 761.
where real and personal estate coupled together, 761.
form, matter of, may be dispensed with to avoid circuity, 710, 711.
formalities, trustee should see that requirements as to, are strictly complied with, 883.
fraud, interference of Court in cases of, 769, 770.
fraudulent appointment, trustee suspecting, whether compellable to convey, 881.
general, executor of donee of, may call for transfer of appointed funds, 883, 884.
secus in case of special power, 883.
gift, words of, distinguished from words of power, 1077 et seq.
gross, in, married woman may execute, 33.
in what cases infant can, 38, 750.
heir of donee, when exercisable by, 752, 761.
"heirs," to A. and B. and their, 751, 752.
imperative, when exercise of power is, 750, 751, 1074 et seq.
breach of trust by neglecting to exercise, 1074, 1075.
imperative, failure of donee of, Court protects c. q. t. against, 1074 et seq.
mixed trust and power, exercise of power imperative, 17, 1076.
implied, to give receipts, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542.
improvements, to make, 711 et seq. See IMPROVEMENTS.
infant, when exercisable by, 38, 39, 750.
interest, without an, 749.
investment, of, must be strictly followed, 349, 350. See INVESTMENT.
Court will not in general control discretion of trustees as to, 767.
joint, must be exercised jointly, 757.
jointure, to charge, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145.
judgment in action for execution of trust suspends power of trustee, 747, 748.
secus mere institution of action, 748.
leases, power of trustees to grant, 744. See LEASE.
whether Court will insert power in settlement under executory trust, 144, 145. See LEASE.
legal distinguished from equitable, 709, 748, 749.
legal estate taken by trustees, effect of powers as determining, 242 et seq.
lunatic, vested in, exercise of, by judge in lunacy, 1313. maintenance, to apply income for, 147, 716, 717, 724 et seq. See MAINTENANCE.
creditors of c. q. t. how far entitled to benefit of, 111 et seq.
discretion of trustees not interfered with by Court, 765 et seq.
whether Court will insert power in settlement under executory trust, 144, 147.
management, of, distinguished from powers which confer personal privileges, 144, 145.

POWER—continued.
management, of, of land of infant during minority, 715 et seq.
married woman may exercise, 33, 749.
when exercise of, renders appointed property her assets, 996 et seq.
mere power, meaning of, 752, 1085 note; does not survive, 752, 763, 764.
mining leases, to grant, 663, 744.
when inserted by Court in settlement under executory trust, 144.
mixture of trust and power, 17, 1076.
moral considerations, trustees exercising powers must not regard, 758.
mortgage powers exercisable by assigns, 753, 754.
mortgagee, statutory powers of, 510, 511.
new trustees, power to appoint, 804 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
administration action, how affected by pendency of, 770.
donee of, must not appoint himself, 825, 827.
statutory, under Lord Cranworth's Act, 805.
under Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 835 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
survivorship of trust notwithstanding existence of, 294, 509, 510.
when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 144.
where donee willing to exercise, Court will not appoint, 839.
new trustees, powers exercisable by, 760. See NEW TRUSTEES.
notice to c. q. t. of trustee's intention to exercise, 710.
originating summons, exercise of, how affected by, 772.
partition, of, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 144.
perpetuity, rule against, application of, to power, 109, 757.
appointment when obnoxious to, 109.
restraint on anticipation, affecting to impose, 109.
personal representative of donee, when exercisable by, 754, 761.
personal to donee, when, 752, 754 et seq., 765.
portions, to appoint, how to be exercised, 473, 474.
portions, to charge, when Court will insert, in settlement under executory trust, 145.
"proper," what is, in settlement, 146.
under Conveyancing Act, 1881, . . . 147.
receipts, of signing, 533 et seq. See RECEIPT.
reimbursement, powers of trustee as to, 743, 744.
"relations," to appoint amongst, how construed, 1082 et seq.
whether in default of appointment they take per stirpes or per capita, 1083.
power of selection implied, where not implied in case of "children," 1082 note.
release of, 726 et seq.
by deed under Conveyancing Act, 762; by trustee in bankruptcy, 762 note; where power coupled with a duty, 762.
married woman, by, 1010, 1011.
release, to make, of equity of redemption or mortgage, 742.
renunciation by executor, effect of, 759.
repairs, to make, 711 et seq. See REPAIRS.
request for exercise of, how to be testified, 508.
resulting trust of appointed fund in favour of donee of power, 175.
retirement of trustee by virtue of, 804; precautions to be observed on, 814.
revocation, of, is personal to donee, 765.
sale, of. See SALE.
discretionary, when exercise of power is, 504, 765.
duration of, 756, 757.
implied by power to vary investments, 147, 148.
improper exercise of, injunction to restrain, 514, 515, 1096, 1097.

POWER—sale, of—continued.
mortgage, in, 510, 511, 753, 754. See MORTGAGE.
partition when authorised by, 505.
personal representative of surviving trustee empowered to exercise, 260.
postponement, of, 756.
remoteness, when void for, 110.
settlement, in, effect of usual power, 505.
statutory, 505, 506, 510, 511.
surplus proceeds whether bound by judgment against mortgagor, 1033.
survivorship of, 509, 510, 752, 753.
sanction of Court when required to exercise of, 499, 532, 588, 747, 748, 771.
selection, of, distinguished from power of distribution, 768, 1079 et seq.
not interfered with by Court, 768.
Settled Land Act, 1882, restrictions imposed by, on powers of trustees, 772 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS. advice of Court as to exercise of powers under, how obtainable, 772.
severance of estate from, 265, 760 et seq.
simply collateral, 749.
special, all trustees must join in executing, 291.
special, trustee under appointment by donee of, when entitled to call for transfer, 883.
Statute of Uses, anterior to, summary of law as to, 764 note.
statutory, new trustees, to appoint, 805 et seq., 1092 et seq.
receipts, to give, 326, 534, 535, 546, 547.
tenant for life, of, under Settled Land Act, 1882, . . . 506, 507, 662 et seq.
strict, distinguished from directory, 751.
"survivor" or "survivors," power to trustees and, 755, 756.
survivorship of, 293 et seq., 509, 510, 752 et seq.
arbitrary power, 765; disclaimer of trustee, on, 758, 759; mere power to several, 752; power annexed to trust, 763; power given to trustees, 764, 765; trust or power created by instrument subsequent to 31st December, 1881, 765; Trustee Act, 1893, under, 765.
tenant for life, consent of, to exercise of powers, when required under Settled Land Acts, 773 et seq.
tenant for life, of, how affected by his sale or mortgage, 829.
under Settled Land Act, 1882; . . . 662 et seq.
testamentary, in whose favour Court will exercise, 1080.
time for exercising, trustee must not anticipate, 769.
transfer, trustee under appointment when entitled to call for, 883.
trust distinguished from, 533, 534, 1074 et seq.
trust estate, transfer of, does not transfer power, 289.
trust, mixture of, and power, 17, 1076.
trust to which power is annexed, 17, 750.
trustee, given to, is primâ facie incident to his office, 755 note.
"trustees," "trustee for the time being," to, 755; "trustees and executors," to, 759, 761.
"usual," what is, 145 et seq.
varying investments, of, 367, 368. See INVESTMENT.
implies power of sale, 147.
will, exercise of power by, 769; by married woman, 996 et seq.
words of recommendation, &c., whether trust or power is created by, 153 et seq.

PRACTICE, Chap. xxxiii., 1248-1277.
application to Lord Chancellor where Crown is visitor of charity, 622.
charging order, as to obtaining, 1040 et seq.
County Court, payment into, 437. And see COUNTY COURT.

PRACTICE—continued.
declaratory orders, as to, 423.
distringas, or notice in lieu of distringas, as to obtaining, 1248 et seq.
judgment that plaintiff "do recover," 1193.
nominal plaintiff, security for costs, 264 note.
originating summons, questions as to trusts determined on, 420 et seq., 772. payment of money into Court, as to, 1254 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
production of documents by trustee, as to, 1253, 1254.
receiver, as to appointment of, 1262 et seq.
restraining order on stock, shares, &c., as to obtaining, 1248 et seq.
special case, as to determination of questions by, 423.
stop orders, as to obtaining, 916, 917.
Trustee Acts, under, 1304 et seq.
wilful default, account on footing of, when directed, 1148, 1167, 1168.

PRÆCIPE, tenant to, 456; equitable, 891.

PREACHER, trust to elect and present, 17.

PRECATORY WORDS, trust when created by use of, 148 et seq. See IMPLIED TRUST.

PRE-PAYMENT of trust money to trustees, 320.

PRESENTATION.
sale of, for benefit of creditors, 306.
trust to purchase for particular person, whether simoniacal, 119.
trustee may delegate mere act of, to proxy, 289.
trustee of advowson presents but must do so for benefit of c. q. t., 261, 306.

PRESUMPTION.
acceptance of trust, of, by lapse of time without disclaimer, 224.
account, of settlement of, 1116 et seq.
ademption and satisfaction, of, 477 et seq.
advancement of, 164, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
child-bearing, of woman being past, 408 note.
corporation, of notice to, not readily made, 1212.
death, of, by disappearance for seven years, 408.
debts, of payment of, 540, 565.
disclaimer of trust, of, by lapse of time without acting, 225.
election by c. q. t., of, when arising, 1238, 1239.
executor taking beneficially, against, 63.
favoured in law, 1116.
gift, of, by wife to husband of separate property, 1002 et seq.
infant, gift to, presumption that he takes beneficially, 40.
law, of, may be rebutted by parol evidence, 63, 168.
limitation of action by presumption after lapse of time, 1115 et seq.
merger, of, when arising, 940 et seq.
notice, of, against volunteer, 14.
purchase of estate by trustee at price equal to trust money in his hands, 1155, 1156.
release, of, when arising, 1115.
resulting trust, of, 163 et seq. See RESULTING TRUST.
where new property made over to trustees of old settlement, 165, 166. vesting of portions, as to, 467 et seq.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT. See AGENT.

PRIORITY.
breach of trust, cannot be gained through medium of, 922.
creditor, of, over legatee, 615 ; over volunteer, 87 note.
creditors, of, inter se, in administration of assets, 1063 et seq. See ASSETS. costs of action to ascertain or declare, 1269 note.
costs of trustee, of, 1267, 1268.
fund in Court, of incumbrancers on, 916 et seq. See STOP ORDER.
judgment creditors, of, 1069 note.
legal estate, by obtaining, 884, 1101, 1102, 1106, 1107.
mortgagees, of, 902 et seq. See MORTGAGE.
notice, by giving, 902 et seq. See NOTICE.
portions, of, raised by mortgage by direction of Court, 497.
"qui prior est tempore potior est jure," 919 et seq., 1106, 1107.
receipt, of person entitled to rely on, 1107.
time, by, 913, 920 et seq., 1106, 1107.
title deeds, by possession of, 922.

PRISON, trustees of, not rateable, 262.

PRIVATE CONTRACT, trustees may sell by, 513, 514.

PRIVATE SECURITY, investment in, 344, 345, 372 et seq. See INVESTMENT.

PRIVATE STREET WORKS ACT, expenses of works under, 713 note.

PRIVATE TRUST, duration of, 18.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS, what are, 1253, 1254.

PRIVILEGES.
cestui que trust, of, 875. See CESTUI QUE TRUST. trustee, of, 261 et seq.

PRIVITY.
estate, of, at first held essential to existence of trust, 2.
but secus in later times, 8.
meaning of, explained, 2, 3, 13.
person, trust annexed in privity to, 14.
personal between parties required to found jurisdiction as to foreign property, 50.

PRIZE OF WAR.
vests in sovereign, 20.
warrant, royal, for distribution of, does not constitute Crown a trustee, 20.

PROBATE. See EXECUTOR.
acceptance of trust by proving will, 225, 226.
act, executor may, before taking out, 567.
effect of taking out, 225 et seq.
executor may sell before, 567 ; but purchaser not bound to pay, 567.
executor's title evidenced by, 567.
public trustee, may be granted to, 702.
renunciation of, effect of, 220, 225, 249.
sovereign, will of private property of, not admitted to, 20.

PROBATE DUTY. payable on proceeds of land to be converted into money, 1223.
on money of lunatic invested in land, 1244.

PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS, 1253, 1254.
accounts, duty of trustee to produce, 887, 1254.

PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS—continued.
cestui que trust entitled to, from trustee, 1253.
but trusteeship must first be established, 1254.
covenant for, by trustees, how to be framed, 525.
mortgages, of, upon which trust fund invested, 1254.
opinions of counsel, trustee when bound to produce, 874, 875, 1254.
trustee suppressing documents ordered to pay costs, 1276.
vouchers, duty of trustee to produce, 531, 887.

PROFIT.
set off, defaulting trustee cannot, against loss, 1174.
trustee or person in fiduciary position must not make, from his office, 201, 209, 306 et seq., 780 et seq. See CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST.

PROFITS OF TRADE.
account of, what included in, 308, 309.
partner trading with assets of deceased partner must account for, 308.
stranger trading with trust money not answerable for extra profits beyond principal and interest, 309.
trustee or executor trading with trust estate must account for, 307, 308, 309, 395 et seq.

PROHIBITION, against spiritual Court interfering in a trust, 15.

PROMISE TO SUBSCRIBE, by testator, effect of, 738.

PROMISSORY NOTE.
assignment of, upon trust, without indorsement, 76.
indorsement and delivery of, with view to testamentary disposition does not create trust inter vivos, 88.
married woman, by, binds separate estate, 979.
security, is not, 344.
trustees may not invest on security of, 344.
voluntary, creates debt, when, 87 note.

PROMOTER.
company, of, may be a constructive trustee, 209, 310.
gift by, to director, must be accounted for, 1167.
secret profit, receiving, whether entitled to benefit of s. 8 of Trustee Act, 1888, . . . 1138 note.

PROOF.
bankruptcy, in, 261. See BANKRUPTCY.
mortgagee, by, 612.
trustee, in bankruptcy of, 1184 et seq.

"PROPER POWERS," to tenant for life, what powers authorised by, 146.

PROTECTION ORDER, effect of, on married woman's chose in action, 404, 952, 973.

PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT, 455-457, 875.
alien cannot be appointed, 456.
bare trustee is not, of settlement subsequent to Fines and Recoveries Act, 456.
bare trustee, who is, duties of, 456.
consent of, to disentailing deed, effectual though given after execution, 455.
consent of, to disentailing deed, required, 455; to vesting order under Trustee Act, 849.
death of, 456 note.
disclaimer of office by, how to be made, 224.
dowress is not, 456.

PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT—continued.
equitable tenant for life in possession is, 875.
executory trust, in pursuance of, whether Court will appoint, 137.
irresponsibility of, 138.
married woman is, where legal freehold limited to her separate use, 1005.
number of protectors not to exceed three, 456.
power of appointment of new protectors may be given, 456.
survivorship of office, 457.
trustee, is not, in respect of his power of consent, 456.

PROVING WILL. See PROBATE.

PROXY.
appointment of, distinguished from delegation of office, 289.
election of clerk or incumbent, trustees ought not to depute, to proxy, 289.

PRUDENT MAN, trustee bound to act as, 327, 372 et seq., 1170.

PUBLIC POLICY.
trust in contravention of, not permitted, 102.
where not contravened, Court will exercise trust, 90.

PUBLIC TRUST. See CHARITY. inhabitants, for, 30.
majority of trustees of, may bind the rest, 290, 291, 634, 642, 643, 747.
meaning of term, explained, 18.
perpetuity, not confined within limits of law against, 18.
remedy for enforcement of, by information, 30, 1202.

PUBLIC TRUSTEE, THE, Chap. xxiii. pp. 700-708.
acceptance of trust by, 701.
accounts, audit of, 705.
additional trustee, may be appointed as, 701.
administration, letters of, may be granted to, 702.
agents, employment of, by, 706.
appeal to Court, right of, by persons aggrieved, 706.
assurances by, 708.
audit of trust accounts, 705.
barristers, protection of rights of, 707.
business, may not manage or carry on, 703.
capital and income, power to determine incidence of fees as between, 708.
charitable trusts excepted from jurisdiction of, 708.
company, not entitled to object to entry of public trustee's name in books of, 707 consent of, to act, 702.
contrary direction in instrument creating trust, effect of, 702.
convict, property of, may be appointed administrator of, 701.
copyholds, powers as to, 704.
corporation sole, is a, 700.
co-trustee, retirement of, where public trustee appointed, 701.
Court, power to take opinion of, upon question arising in administration, 704.
transfer by, of administration proceedings to public trustee, 704.
custodian trustee, may be appointed to act as, 701.
corporate bodies may act as, 705.
powers and duties of, 705.
deputies, power of, to appoint, 708.
may not act as solicitors to trust administered by him, 708 note.
directions, applications for, by, 708.
documents, custody of, 707.

PUBLIC TRUSTEE, THE—continued.
evidence as to parties entitled, 708.
executor who has obtained probate may retire with sanction of Court and transfer estate to Public Trustee, 703.
false statements in accounts, penalties for, 705.
fees to be charged by, 708.
general powers of, 701.
information as to trust property, public trustee must give to persons interested, 708.
insolvent estate may not be administrated by, 703.
inspection of accounts and documents, 708.
investment by, 707.
new trustee, may be appointed as a, 701.
notice of appointment of, 702.
failure to give, not to invalidate appointment, 702.
trust, of, entry of public trustee's name in books of company, 707.
officers, power of, to appoint, 708.
official trustee of charity lands, powers or duties not abridged or affected, 708.
ordinary trustee, may act as an, 701.
original trustee, may be appointed as an, 701.
payments by—
into bank, 708.
to parties, 708.
penalties for false statements in accounts, 705.
persons by whom applications to appoint may be made, 702.
proceedings by and against, 700.
probate, may be granted to and accepted by, 702.
refusal to act, 701.
register of trusts in which public trustee is acting, 707.
representation in proceedings, 707.
retirement of co-trustee where public trustee appointed, 701.
reward, except as provided by Act, public trustee may not act for, 706.
secrecy to be observed by, 708.
security not required from, 707.
small estates, administration of, may act in, 701.
sole trustee, may be appointed, 701.
solicitors, protection of rights of, 707.
stock, transfer of, by, 704.
testator may appoint, as trustee, 702.
vesting of trust property in, 703.

PUR AUTRE VIE.
copyholds for lives, devolution of, under Wills Act, 186.
De Donis, estate pur autre vie not within statute of, 891.
leaseholds for lives, devolution of, on personal representative, 186 note.
quasi entail, how barred, 891, 892.
Settled Land Act, tenant under, may exercise powers, 658, 659.
special occupant, heir taking as, may disclaim, 220.

PURCHASE.
agent, by, parol evidence of agency when admissible, 188.
charges, subject to, precautions in case of, 936, 937.
child, in name of, effect of, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
contract of, by testator or intestate, effect of, 1220, 1227.
contract of, power of trustee to enter into, 585, 586.
debt, of, by person in fiduciary relation to debtor, 307.
deposit on, trustees may make, 588.

PURCHASE—continued.
equitable interest, of, notice necessary to complete, 902, 903.
equity of redemption, of, by owner of charge, 939.
executor, by, of assets, improper, 575.
fixtures, of, on trust property by trustee, 307.
incumbrance, of, by trustee, heir or devisee, or joint purchaser, 310, 311.
investment by way of, 379.
land, money to be laid out in purchase of, 1214 et seq. See CONVERSION.
money, duty of purchaser to see to application of, 534 et seq.
payment of, to trustees, how to be made, 557, 558.
mortgagee, by, of mortgagor's wife's right of dower, 308.
resulting trust when created by purchase in name of third person, 183 et seq. See RESULTING TRUST.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, 657, 688, 689, 692. See SETTLED LAND ACTS. tenant for life, by, of incumbrance on settled estate, 311, 942, 943.
of settled property, 570.
trustee, by, from c. q. t. when upheld, 572, 573.
trustee, by, of land out of trust moneys, 1156.
lien of c. q. t. in such case, 1156.
trustee, by, of trust property, 568 et seq.
account against trustee, 579.
agent for another, trustee cannot purchase as, 571.
agent of trustee disqualified from purchasing, 571.
auction, at, not permitted, 569, 574.
business sold as going concern, of, 577.
cestui que trust, purchase from, when sustainable, 571 et seq.
confirmation of purchase by c. q. t., 582, 583.
costs of action to set aside purchase, 579, 1272.
co-trustee, trustee cannot purchase from, 569, 590.
co-trustee, trustee cannot sell to self and, 590.
creditors, purchase by trustee for, not permitted, 573.
deterioration, compensation for, payable by trustee, 577.
devise by trustee before sale set aside, effect of, 579, 580.
disclaiming trustee, by, permitted, 569.
duration of disability, 569, 570.
fairness of transaction not a justification, 569.
infancy of c. q. t., in case of, 574, 575.
laches when a bar to relief, 576, 580, 581.
distress or ignorance of c. q. t., delay when excused by, 582.
infant or married woman not barred by, 581.
leave to bid at sale, when granted, 574.
name of another, in, not allowed, 569.
nominal trustee, by, permitted, 570.
notice of prior charge, without, 906.
partner of trustee, by, 571.
partner, representatives of deceased, purchase from, by surviving partner, 575.
purchaser without notice, trustee purchasing from, bound by trust, 1102.
receiver, cannot purchase without leave of Court, 571.
reconveyance, right of c. q. t. to, on payment of purchase-money and interest, 576.
without prejudice to bona fide lessees, 577.
rents, account of, against trustee, 575, 576.
repairs and improvements, allowance for, if sale set aside, 576, 577.
repurchase, duration of disability to, 569.

PURCHASE, trustee, by, of trust property—continued.
resale, right of c. q. t. to, 577, 578.
setting aside purchase, what terms imposed in case of, 576 et seq.
purchase-money, whether belonging to heir or personal representative of trustee, 580.
shares, remedy of c. q. t. in case of, 579.
time within which relief must be sought, 580 et seq., 1118.
trustee paying money into Court not entitled to rise in stock, 577.
trustee, by, under trust for purchase of lands, Chap. xix. 585-597.
advowson, of, unadvisable, 590.
contract, power of trustee to enter into, 585, 586, 587.
conveyance, how to be framed, 593 et seq.
copyholds for lives, of, 590.
costs of purchase, how to be raised, 593.
co-trustee, purchase from, 590.
declaration of trust to be executed, 593, 594.
deposit, trustee justified in paying, 588.
disclosure of trust avoided, 593.
duty of trustee for purchase, 585 et seq.
equity of redemption, of, 590, 591.
fund in Court, out of, 588, 593.
ground rents, of, 380, 589, 593.
house property, of, 588, 589.
impeachment for waste, tenant for life when to be subject to, 596.
interests, relative of cs. q. t. to be considered, 588.
legal estate, duty of trustee to get in, 591.
mines, of, apart from surface, 590.
new buildings, erection of, equivalent to purchase, 592, 713, 714.
part of purchase-money provided by trustee, where, 594.
prospective purchase, improper, 586.
rebuilding mansion house, expenditure for, 713, 714.
repairs and improvements, expenditure on, not equivalent to purchase, 591, 592.
reversion, of, 593.
searches to be made by, for judgments, &c., 587.
tenant for life, purchase from, whether justifiable, 590.
timbered estate, of, 589.
title, duty of trustee to procure good, 586.
value of purchased property, duty of trustee to see to, 585.
trustee, from, by co-trustee, 590. value, for, without notice, defence of, when applicable, 2, 14, 783, 1073, 1074, 1124. See PURCHASER.
wife, in name of, effect of, 199. See ADVANCEMENT.

PURCHASER.
accidental damage to estate purchased must be borne by, 162.
administration action, pending, should not purchase from trustees, 532.
application of purchase-money, when bound to see to, 534 et seq. See RECEIPT.
bankrupt, from, completing contract without notice of bankruptcy, 900.
breach of trust, with notice of, 500, 542, 543.
cestui que trust sub modo, purchaser is, 162.
charges, keeping on foot, 937 et seq.
chattel, of, when compelled to restore to rightful owner, 1102.
not concerned to see to application of money, 561, 562.
chose in action, of, from trustee bound by same equity as trustee, 1106.

PURCHASER—continued.
constructive notice of trust, when bound by, 1100 et seq. See infra, trust.
Court, from, duty of, to make disclosure, 574.
covenants by vendor with, what may be required, 518 et seq.
death of, intestate and without heir, after payment of price, effect of, 315, 316.
discretion of trustee cannot be questioned by, 504.
doubtful equity, whether bound by, 1103 et seq.
equitable interest, of, inquiries and notice by, 907.
priority of, over general and roving charge, 927, 928.
equity of redemption, of, bound to indemnify vendor, 939.
equity to settlement of married woman, as against, 955, 960.
executor, from, not bound to pay purchase-money before probate, 567.
exoneration of property from charges as between several purchasers, 928.
expenses to be borne by, 520.
fire insurance, not entitled to benefit of subsisting policy of, 162 note.
following trust property into hands of, 1100 et seq.
heir taking as, 1063.
improvement to estate purchased, entitled to benefit of, 162.
incumbrances, how he may protect himself against, 938.
whether vendor must answer inquiry as to, 541 note.
joint, buying up incumbrance, declared trustee, 311.
judgment creditor not, 276 note; who is purchaser as against, 1047.
judgment, onus of, when thrown on latter of two purchasers, 928.
legal charge, purchaser bound by, whether with or without notice, 13.
legal estate, priority by obtaining, 1106, 1107.
legatee, from, cannot be made to refund, 413, 414.
lien of, for improvements as against co-purchaser, 185, 186.
lien, with notice of, bound, 1100.
loss falling upon, 162.
lunatic or idiot, from, without notice, 25.
mortgage debt, incidence of, as between purchaser and devisees, 928.
mortgagee, from, constructive notice of sub-mortgage, 924.
mortgagee with power of sale, from, 1096 note.
new trustees appointed on application of, 857.
notice, importance of, as between purchasers, 902 et seq., 1102 et seq. See infra, trust.
notice, purchaser with, bound by trust, 207, 1100 et seq.; cannot obtain priority, 918, 1100, 1101.
notice to, of intended breach of trust, effect of, 542, 543.
of will, 561, 562.
notice, without, from purchaser with, 1102.
payment by, to trustees, how to be made, 325, 326, 528, 529, 557, 558.
to person who has ceased to be owner, 918.
propriety of sale by trustee, when bound to see to, 533, 534. receipt of trustee, when discharged by, 326, 534 et seq. See RECEIPT.
registration of writs and orders affecting land as against, 1055, 1056.
release of mortgage by trustee, purchaser not bound to see to propriety of, 742, 743.
time, lapse of, purchaser from trustees when put on inquiry by, 501 et seq.
title, omission to investigate, 1105; purchaser taking less than forty years' title fixed with constructive notice, 1105 note.
trust, whether bound by, 276, 1073, 1074, 1099 et seq.
notice of, when presumed from recitals, 207; doubtful equity, 1103 et seq.
purchaser of equitable interest, 1100.
purchaser of legal estate with notice, 1100.
purchaser of legal estate without notice, not bound, 276, 1101.

PURCHASER, trust—continued.
purchaser of legal estate without notice, Statute of Limitations runs in favour of, 1124.
renewed lease, purchaser of, from trustee when bound by constructive trust, 207, 208.
shares, purchaser of, without notice before registration, 1101, 1102.
trustee selling to purchaser without notice, and then becoming owner, trust revives, 1102.
value for, without notice, 2, 14, 276, 1100 et seq.
vendor trustee for, sub modo, 162.
vesting order in, under special circumstances, 855.
vesting order on application of, 858.
voluntary settlement of realty binding on, 87, 88.

QUANTUM OF ESTATE, taken by trustee, 237 et seq. See LEGAL ESTATE.

QUASI TENANT IN TAIL, 891, 892.

QUASI TRUSTEE, person assuming to act as trustee, liability of, 1166, 1167, 1270.
persons who may not profit by office, 309, 310.

QUEEN'S BENCH. See KING'S BENCH.

QUI PRIOR EST TEMPORE POTIOR EST JURE, 920 et seq., 1106.

QUORUM, 291.

RAILWAY DEBENTURES OR MORTGAGES. investment in, by trustees, when authorised, 351, 352, 363, 364, 366, 369, 380.
foreign railways, 355.

RAILWAY SHARES OR STOCK.
investment in, by trustees, when authorised, 351, 363, 365.

RATEPAYERS. See PARISHIONERS.

RATES.
tenant for life must pay, during his life, 878.
trust in aid of, when constituted, 624.
trustees liable to, unless holding exclusively for public purposes, 262.

REAL ESTATE CHARGES ACT, 1854, share of proceeds of sale not an interest in land within, 1226.

REAL PROPERTY LIMITATION ACT, 1874, . . . 1122 et seq. See LIMITATION, Statutes of.

REAL SECURITIES, investment in, by trustees, 346, 347, 372 et seq. See INVESTMENT; MORTGAGE.

REALTY.
conversion of, by trustee, 1240. See CONVERSION.
costs payable out of, 801.
direction that personalty shall devolve as, 143.
distinction between, and choses in action, as regards doctrine of notice, 908.
effect of blending, into one fund with personalty in a will, 179.

REAPPOINTMENT of trustees already appointed, objection of Court to making, 841.

REASONS, trustees need not assign, for exercise of their discretion, 769.

REBUILDING, expenditure for, when allowed to trustees, 592, 674, 713, 714.

REBUTTER, presumption of law, of, by parol evidence, 168, 170, 189, 190, 196, 197. See RESULTING TRUST.

RECEIPT, Chap. xviii. s. 2, 533-568.
administrator, of, after lapse of time, 565, 566.
where there is a charge of debts, 550.
agent or attorney, signed by, 530, 531.
purchaser from trustee not in general discharged by, 530, 531, 556, 557.
assignee, by, when a sufficient discharge, 404.
breach of trust, receipts of trustees intending to commit, 326, 327, 542, 564.
receipt whether effectual after commission of, 555.
cestui que trust abroad, in case of, 537, 559.
charge of debts, power to give receipts implied by, 543 et seq.
tenant for life, concurrence of, whether necessary under Settled Land Act 553, 554.
chattel, on sale of, purchaser not bound to see to application of purchase-money, 561, 562; except in cases of fraud or collusion, 562.
co-administrators on same footing as co-executors, 304.
co-executor liable for joining in, 298 et seq.; unless joining nugatory, 299; or ex necessitate, 302.
conformity, trustee joining in receipt for sake of, not liable, 296, 297, 325 note.
co-trustees.
all must join in giving receipt, 290, 554.
secus co-trustee who has disclaimed, 554.
co-trustee joining, but not actually receiving, not liable, 296; unless he permits money to lie in hands of co-trustee, 297 et seq.; 330, 530.
joint receipt conclusive at law of actual receipt, 296.
onus probandi that co-trustee did not receive money, 296.
deed, in, indorsed or otherwise, 921.
devisee, of, purchaser when discharged by, 543 et seq.
executor, of, purchaser when discharged by, 543 et seq., 547, 549, 560 et seq, 747. See EXECUTOR.
guardian of infant, of, when a good discharge, 412.
heir at law, of, purchaser when discharged by, 548, 549.
husband of married woman, of, when required, 35, 557, 941.
infant, of, representing himself to be of full age, 413.
insurance money, for, 531.
investment, power of, whether power to give receipts implied by, 542, 543.
married woman, of, who is trustee, 36, 557.
mortgage, on sale of trust estate subject to, 556.
mortgagor, by, in full, effect of, 921.
official trustees of charitable funds, of, 436.
partner, of, 413.
power to give receipts, 533 et seq.
assignment conferring, effect of, 403.
delegation of, 554.
disclaimer by trustee, not affected by, 758.
express, effect of, 536.
extraneous moneys, does not extend to, 557.
implied by charge of debts, 543 et seq. See sup., charge of debts.
implied by direction for immediate sale, 537.
quære as to c. q. t. abroad, 537.
implied by power of investment and varying securities, 542, 543.
but not by mere power of sale and exchange, 543.
implied by special trust annexed to purchase-money, 537, 538.
ex gr. to pay debts, 538, 539.
or debts and legacies, 538, 539; even though purchaser knows debts are paid, 538, 539, 540, 542.

RECEIPT, power to give receipts—continued.
intention of settlor at date of instrument, depends on, 540.
statutory power, 326, 534 et seq., 550.
subsequent events or lapse of time, how affected by, 540 et seq.
title, is question of, 536 note.
priority of person entitled to rely on, 921, 1107.
purchaser when discharged.
executors, by receipt of, 543 et seq.
principle on which purchaser required to see to application of money, 533, 534, 535 et seq.
several capacities, where vendor is interested in, 559, 560.
several purchasers, 558.
trustees, by receipt of, 326, 534, 535, 546, 547.
rent, for, evidence that covenants in lease performed, 520.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, 647, 692.
signature of, must be of all trustees, 290, 554.
signature of, trustees bound though money not actually received, 296.
single trustee, of, when sufficient, 413.
statutory power to give, 326, 534, 535, 550, 551.
stock, trustee entitled to receive, cannot give receipt for cash, 536.
tenant for life, concurrence of, when necessary under Settled Land Act, 553, 554.
time, lapse of, purchase from administrator or executor after, 540, 565.
from trustee after, 539, 540.
power to give receipts a question of intention at date of deed, 540, 541.
trustee, actual receipt of purchase-money by, whether essential, 522, 529, 530, 531, 556, 557.
appointed by Court, power of, to give receipts, 554.
assignee of, receipts by, 554, 555.
executor or administrator of, receipts by, 568.
married woman, who is, receipts by, 35, 557.
statutory power of, to give receipts, 326, 534, 535, 550, 551.
vendor, of, does not prejudice c. q. t. 921.
varying securities, power of, implies power to give receipts, 542.

RECEIVE.
trust money, how trustees should, 325, 326, 556, 557.
trustee may receive money before due, 320.

RECEIVER. Chap. xxxiii. s. 4, 1262-1264. abroad, where trustee or executor is, when appointed, 1263.
accounts, duty of, to keep, 887.
appointment of, by Court, at instance of c. q. t., 1262 et seq.
where tenant for life allows property to fall into disrepair, 266.
at instance of judgment creditor, 1052 et seq.
by County Court, 1052.
bankruptcy or insolvency of trustee a ground for appointment of, 1262.
creditors' action, in, where executor threatens to prefer one creditor, 1097, 1098.
danger to trust estate a ground for appointment of, 1097, 1262.
depositing trust money in bank, held liable, 330.
disagreement by trustees, a ground for appointment of, 1263.
discharge of, not ordered at mere instance of party procuring appointment, 1264.
except where the purpose has been answered, 1264.
disclaimer by one trustee not a ground for appointment of, 1263.
drunkenness of executor when a ground for appointment of, 1262.
equitable execution by appointment of, 1052 et seq.
elegit need not be actually sued out, 1050.

RECEIVER—continued.
expense of, borne by tenant for life, 1264.
incapacity of trustees to act a ground for appointment of, 1262.
infant cannot be appointed, 37, 38.
interest, charged with, for improper retainer, 395.
leaseholds, of, appointed at instance of trustees, 266.
to provide for renewal fine, when appointed, 452, 1095.
Limitation, Statutes of, whether express trustee within, 1136 note.
married woman, of separate property of, at instance of creditor, 989.
where executrix is, and husband resident abroad, 1263.
misconduct of trustee a ground for appointment of, 1262.
poverty of trustee or executor when a ground for appointment of, 1262, 1263.
purchase by, of trust estate, not permitted, 571.
registration of order appointing, 1055, 1056.
remainderman, appointed on application of, 1095.
remuneration of, priority of, 1264.
renewable leaseholds, of, where tenant for life neglects to renew, 1095.
security to be given by, 1052, 1262.
time or trouble, cannot charge for, 781.
trustee bound to check, 312.
trustee cannot, in general, be, at a salary, 311.

RECITAL,
correctness of, when to be presumed, 518.
declaration of trust proved by, 58.
false, effect of, 1270.
implied gift negatived by, 1078.
notice by, of surrender of former lease, 207.
trustee executing deed should see that recitals are correct, 224, 225.
with view of keeping notice of trust off title, 386, 387.

RECOGNISANCES.
purchasers, how far bound by, 1046 note.
receiver, by, 1053, 1262.

RECOMMENDATION, words of, whether sufficient to raise implied trust, 148 et seq., 797.

RECONVERSION.
election of c. q. t., by virtue of, 1230 et seq. See ELECTION.
implied trust for, 173.
lunatic's property, of, 1230.
property improperly purchased by trustee, of, 576 et seq.

RECONVEYANCE, 1244, 1292. See MORTGAGE.
trustee executing, liability of, 230.
trustees, by, where settlement does not become effective, 419.

RECORD, disclaimer by matter of, not necessary, 222.

RECOVERY.
contingent remainder formerly defeated by means of, 454.
equitable entail how affected by, 891.
infant, of, formerly only reversible during nonage, 24.
lunatic or idiot, of, formerly valid unless reversed, 25.
vacation, could not be suffered in, 1235.

RECREATION GROUND, conveyance for, exempted from Mortmain Act, 106.

RECTIFICATION.
appointment of new trustees, of, 824.
deed, of, ordered in proceedings under Trustee Relief Act, 430. settlement, of, in accordance with articles, 129, 130. See SETTLEMENT.

REDEEMABLE STOCKS, investment in, 368.

REDEMPTION.
action for, when barred, 1110.
wilful default need not be alleged, 1168.
equity of, 278. See EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.
judgment creditor, by, 1049.

REDEMPTION OF LAND TAX of lunatic's estate, may be effected from proceeds of timber, 1213.

REDUCED ANNUITIES, investment in, 356, 357, 358.

REDUCTION.
married woman's choses in action, reduction of, into possession, 22, 951 et seq., 958, 959. See MARRIED WOMAN.
salaries, of, power of trustees as to, 633.
trust property, of, into possession, duties of trustees as to, 319 et seq.

REFERENCE, words of, creation of charges or trusts by, 148, 594, 595.

REFUND.
legatee when bound to, 413, 414, 415.
married woman bound to, 991.
officer of Court when directed to, 414.
tenant for life when bound to, 388, 389, 415, 416.

REFUSAL.
trustees, by, to act, 816; how remedied under Trustee Acts, 845, 852, 854, 855.
to convey or transfer at request of c. q. t., 879 et seq.
to sue in respect of trust property, 1094, 1095.

REGISTRATION.
breach of trust by neglecting to effect, 1166.
Crown debts, of, 1046, 1047.
deeds, &c., of, in register counties, 587, 882.
designs, of, 188.
incorporation of charity trustees, of, 643. judgments, of, 1037, 1045, 1055, 1056. See JUDGMENT. patents, of, 188.
shares, of, after notice of trust, 1101, 1102.
ships, of, 187.
trade marks, of, 188.
writs and orders affecting land, of, 1055, 1056.

REGULATION OF FORCES ACT, 1871 . . . 912.

REIMBURSEMENT, 743, 787 et seq. See EXPENSES; LIEN.

RELATIVE.
cestui que trust, of, not in general appointed trustee, 41, 826, 842 note.
but may be appointed a judicial trustee, 700.
meaning of term "relations," 152.
"poor relations," bequest in favour of, how construed, 1077 note.
power to appoint among relations, how construed, 1082 et seq.
how executed by Court, 1083 et seq.
recognition of relationship, effect of, on construction of trust, 168.

RELATIVE—continued.
trust for relations how construed, 152, 1076.
trustees should not grant leases to their relatives, 637.

RELATOR, necessary in information on account of costs, 1202.

RELEASE.
assignee having power to give receipts can call for payment without tendering, 404.
breach of trust, in respect of, by c. q. t., 1200 et seq.
by married women or infant, 1200, 1201.
cestui que trust, by, in ignorance of his rights, 1201.
consideration, what sufficient for, 1201.
contingent right, of, vesting order in place of, 845.
co-trustee, of one, discharges other, 1190; secus as to covenant not to sue, 1189, 1190.
creditor, by, by accepting composition, 612.
debts, power of trustees or executors to release, 738 et seq.
disclaim, with intent to, effect of, 220, 760.
disclaimer by, in case of conveyance to uses, 222, 223.
equity of redemption, whether trustee may release, 742.
executor entitled to, on final settlement of accounts, 417.
husband, by, of wife's chose in action, 951 note.
lapse of time, set aside after, 1201.
married woman, by, of her equity to a settlement, 21, 22, 954.
covenant not to sue, 1201.
of power, 1010, 1011, 1232.
mistake in, trustees not estopped by, 225.
mortgage security, release of part of, whether trustees may make, 742.
power, of, under Conveyancing Act, 1881, . . . 762.
presumption of, when made, 1115.
property falling in after, 418.
seal, under, its effect, and whether trustee may require, 417, 418.
trust, from, how trustee can obtain, 281, 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT.
trustee, expense of release to, and by whom prepared, 418.
paying to other trustees, whether release can be required by, 418.
paying under direction of Court, not entitled to release, 418, 419.
release by, with intention of disclaiming, operates as disclaimer, 760.
right of, to demand release, 417; under seal or not, 417, 418.
validity of, not determined on hearing of originating summons, 420.
void transaction, in respect of, invalid, 1199.

RELIGION, established, when Court executes trust in favour of, 625.
gift for advancement of, 122.
trust subversive of, unlawful, 120.

RELIGIOUS BODY. appointment of new trustees of property of, 1092 et seq.
trust in favour of, how construed and administered, 625 et seq.

RELIGIOUS DOCTRINE, trustee of charity for preaching, should hold same, 42.

RELINQUISHMENT OF TRUST. Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq.
consent, by, of all c. q. t. if sui juris and in esse, 803.
Court, by application to, 832 et seq.
power, by virtue of special, 804 et seq.; statutory, 804 et seq.

REMAINDER, CONTINGENT. See CONTINGENT REMAINDER.

REMAINDERMAN. See TENANT FOR LIFE.
acquiescence by, 452.
breach of trust, action by, in respect of, 1169.
consent by, to election by tenant in tail, 1234, 1235.
copyholds, of, fine payable on admission of, 263.
costs of appointing additional trustee at instance of, 842 note.
election by, when effectual, 1233. See ELECTION.
equity of redemption, of, when time runs against, 1110.
Limitation, Statutes of, application of, as against, 1110, 1122 et seq., 1137, 1142, 1143.
possession given to, on giving security as to back rents, 882.
prepayment to, when authorised by Court, 160.
remedy of, by action, to have number of trustees filled up, 1086.
for appointment of receiver, 1095.
renewable leaseholds, of, adjustment of rights between, and tenant for life, 442 et seq.
remedy of, where tenant for life neglects to renew, 1095.
service on, under s. 42 of Trustee Act, 1893, when necessary, 430.
Settled Land Acts, position of, under, 666 et seq.
trustee must not favour tenant for life at expense of, 324, 347, 349, 388, 758, 1090.
wilful default, cannot sue for, in respect of prior estate, 1169.

REMEDY.
cestui que trust, of, in Chancery, 14 et seq.
for breach of trust, 1160 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST.
trustee, of, in case of breach of trust—against c. q. t., 1179 et seq.
against co-trustee, 304, 1176 et seq.
where construction of trust doubtful, 419.

REMOTENESS, trust when void for, 18, 95, 108. See PERPETUITY.

REMOVAL.
charity, of officer of, possession how recoverable on, 631.
trustee, of, 1087 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
under Trustee Act, 840.

REMUNERATION.
contract by trustee for, 784, 785.
specific allowance for, does not exclude allowance for expenses, 792.
trustee not in general entitled to, 312.

RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS, 201 et seq. Chap. XV. 438-453. account of rents and profits against trustee of, 206.
accumulations for renewal, right to, when renewal not obtainable, 445, 446.
agent of trustee cannot renew for his own benefit, 203, 204.
articles for settlement of, direction for renewal implied in, 440.
charges, trustee making renewal impossible bound to give effect to, 208.
charity lands, tenant of, cannot demand renewal, 639.
constructive trustee, person renewing in own name, when deemed, 201 et seq. 438.
conveyance of, to trustees and their heirs upon trust for A., 125.
covenant for perpetual renewal, devisees in trust not bound to give, 522 note.
covenant for renewal within specified time, 453.
direction for renewal when implied, 438, 439.
discretionary power to renew, construction of, 440.
fines and other expenses on renewal, 442 et seq.

RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS, fines &c., on renewal—continued.
annual rents, whether to be raised out of, or by mortgage, 442 et seq.
apportionment of, how made, 442 et seq.
actual enjoyment, tenant for life and remainderman pay in proportion to, 443, 449, 451.
Court will not act on speculative calculations, 448, 451.
leaseholds for lives, in case of, 445 et seq.
leaseholds for years, in case of, 442 et seq.
compound interest when allowed to tenant for life, 449.
contribution to, 438, 447; annuitant whether bound to make, 205, 206; security for, given by tenant for life, 450, 451.
leaseholds for lives, in respect of, how to be raised, 443 et seq.
raising by way of insurance, 445.
leaseholds for years, in respect of, how to be raised, 442 et seq.
lien of tenant for life for, 205, 438, 447; of trustee, 205.
mortgage, when and how to be raised by, 441, 444, 445, 447.
receiver to provide for, at instance of remainderman, 451, 1095.
tenant for life of reversion when entitled to, 876.
incumbrances created by trustee must be discharged by him, 206.
indemnity, right of trustee to, on assigning renewed lease to c. q. t., 206.
interest does not per se prevent renewal for own benefit, 203.
joint tenant, renewal by, in own name, 202 note.
liability of trustees and tenant for life neglecting to renew, 438 et seq., 452, 453, 1095.
Limitation, Statutes of, run in favour of devisee renewing, 1126.
mortgagee, renewal by, in own name, 202, 204, 205.
notice of intention to renew, sufficient if served on one trustee, 290.
obligation to renew, 438 et seq.
partner, renewal by, in own name, 202.
reversion, tenant for life of, when entitled to fines, 876.
trustee purchasing, held a constructive trustee, 207.
trustee when empowered or bound to purchase, 438, 445, 446.
right of renewal, trustee may not sell, 204.
where corporation being lessors have sold to an individual, 208.
settlement of, when implying direction to renew, 438, 439.
statutory power of renewal, 440, 441.
successive estates, obligation to renew not necessarily imposed by limitation of, 438 et seq.
tenant at will or at sufferance, renewal by executor of, 203.
tenant for life, renewal by, in own name, 202, 438, 452.
or other person having limited interest, 202.
where holding on yearly tenancy, 203.
trustee, renewal by, 201 et seq., 438, 439.
cannot renew for his own benefit, though landlord refuse to renew to c. q. t., 201, 202.
remedy of c. q. t. against purchaser and others claiming under trustee, 207.

RENTS AND PROFITS. account of, when directed by Court of Equity, 1143 et seq.
charity, against trustees for, 1210 et seq.
complicated, where account is 1144.
death of accounting party, whether directed after, 1145.
dowress, in action by, 1149.
equitable title, where plaintiff recovers on, 1147, 1149.
form of order for, 1148.
fraud, in case of, 1146, 1150.

RENTS AND PROFTS, account of—continued.
infant, in action by, 1144, 1149.
legal title, in respect of, 1144, 1148, 1149.
mines, in respect of, 1144.
mistake, in cases of, 1145, 1147.
mortgagor, against, 403.
period from which account directed, 1145.
tenant for life, against, 446. See TENANT FOR LIFE.
timber, in respect of, 1144, 1145.
trustee, against, right of c. q. t. to, 206, 210, 211, 867.
trustee, against, who has purchased trust estate, 576, 577.
accumulation of, 95 et seq. See ACCUMULATION; ACCUMULATIONS ACT.
adverse possessor bonâ fide, what account directed against, 1144, 1147.
arrears of rent, security for, when possession delivered to remainderman, 882.
what recoverable under Statutes of Limitation, 1123 et seq., 1148.
assignee of trustee, account against, 1148.
cestui que trust in receipt of, is bailiff of trustee, 1131.
charitable trusts, account when directed in case of, 1210 et seq.
compromise with sanction of Attorney-General, 1211.
inconvenience, bar to account from, 1210.
mistake of trustees, effect of, 1212.
charity estate, of, increasing surplus, how applied, 182, 633.
commission on receipt of, when allowed, 312, 781.
constructive trustee, account against, when directed, 207, 1144 et seq.
from what time directed, 1145, 1147, 1148. conversion of estate, prior to, tenant for life entitled to, 1224.
direction to pay, whether conferring right to enjoy leaseholds in specie, 333.
dowress allowed to proceed in equity on legal title, 1149.
executor when accountable for, 1145.
express trust, in cases of, account runs from time when rents withdrawn, 1144.
where trustee ignorant of his true character, 1147.
form of order to account for, 1148.
fraud, a ground for ordering an account of, 1145, 1150.
impounding, to procure renewal of lease, 452, 453.
infancy of plaintiff, a ground for ordering account of, 1144, 1147, 1149.
interim, where sale or conversion postponed, 338, 339.
laches, in case of, from what time account directed, 1147.
Limitation, Statutes of, right to account how affected by, 1143 et seq., 1147, 1148, 1211.
mortgagee in possession, how far accountable in respect of, 213.
mortgagor when accountable for, 404.
occupation rent, trustee when charged with, 576.
person to account, 1148.
portions raisable out of, 495, 496; when vesting, 473.
interest not allowed on, 485.
purchase by trustee for sale, account of profits on, 578.
rack rent, trustee occupying charity land charged with, 637.
receipt of, by one co-trustee, 291.
renewal of lease, liability of trustee to account in respect of, 207.
fines for, when to be paid out of rents, 442 et seq.
repairs, trust to apply rents in making, 234, 714.

RENUNCIATION.
probate, of, 220, 225, 249, 759. See EXECUTOR.
trust, of, not permitted after acceptance, 281.

REPAIRS.
allowance for, when made to trustees, 576, 578, 711 et seq.

REPAIRS—continued. allowance for, upon setting aside purchase by trustee for sale, 576, 578.
to tenants of charity lands, 641.
church or chapel, trust for repairing, effect of, 122, 632.
direction to keep in repair, how to be carried into effect, 713, 714.
executor cannot mortgage for purpose of, 562.
expenditure on, not an accumulation, 101 ; nor equivalent to purchase, 591, 592.
infancy of beneficial owner, may be executed notwithstanding, 713.
infant's lands, upon, made out of his personalty, 1246.
or by mortgage or sale of realty, 592, 1247.
lunatic's lands, upon, may be made out of his personalty, 1241, 1242. See LUNATIC.
ornamental, expense of, not in general allowed, 713.
rebuilding whether authorised by power to repair, 713.
Settled Land Acts, under powers of, out of capital moneys, 673 et seq.
tenant for life, by, are his own voluntary act, 711.
neglecting to repair, cannot be interfered with by trustees, 711.
trust to apply rents in making, 234, 714.
trustee when justified in applying trust money for, 591, 711 et seq.

REPAYMENT, trustee or executor, to, when ordered, 413 et seq.

REPORT, value of security, as to, to be obtained by trustee, 374 et seq.

REPUGNANCY, gift over when void for, 115.

REPUTED OWNERSHIP, 271 et seq. See BANKRUPTCY.

REQUEST.
direction for conversion upon, held imperative, 1222, 1223.
lodgment, for, under Trustee Act, 1893 . . . 1308.
sale to be made at, 508.
words of, when held to give rise to a trust, 148 et seq.

RE-SALE of property purchased by trustee for sale, 578, 579, 1272.

RESERVED BIDDING, sale for less than, by assignee of insolvent, 514.

RESETTLEMENT, effect of, 650.

RESIDUE.
appropriation of, 741.
bequest of—accumulation void under Accumulations Act passes under, 98, 99.
ademption and satisfaction, doctrines of, apply to residuary gifts, 480.
lapsed or void legacy out of proceeds of sale of lands when passing under, 179, 180.
portion regarded as satisfaction of, 480.
resulting trust of proceeds of sale of land when passing under, 179, 180.
charity, gift to, apportioned as between pure and impure personalty, 1225, 1226.
construction of word "residue" as to real estate, 178.
conversion of, where given to persons in succession, 332 et seq. See CONVERSION.
costs payable out of, 435, 436.
devise of, effect of, 178, 179.
accumulations void under Accumulations Act, whether passing under, 98.
resulting trust in real estate whether passing under, 178, 179.
trust estate, whether passing under, 252 et seq.
devisee of, takes under devise or trust where no trust defined by will, 62.
distribution of estate, 402 et seq., 416, 740, 741.

RESIDUE—continued.
executor who is residuary legatee, powers of, 563.
legatee of, when entitled to sue for outstanding assets, 1094, 1095.
legatee of, overpaid, when bound to refund, 413 et seq.
Limitation, Statutes of, action when barred by, 1135, 1141.
settlement with one of many residuary legatees, effect of, 416, 740.
tenant for life of, and remainderman, relative rights of, 332 et seq. See CONVERSION.

RESIGNATION.
incumbent, of, stipulation for, illegal, 119.

RESTORATION of life estate, effect of, 650.

RESTRAINING ORDER. See CHARGING ORDER; DISTRINGAS. under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 4, 1249 et seq.
special grounds necessary for obtaining, 1252.
transfer into Court ordered notwithstanding, 1262.

RESTRAINT.
alienation, against, 111, 115 note.
bad generally as regards equitable estates, 111 et seq., 890.
anticipation of income by married woman, against, 890, 1008 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.

RESULTING TRUST, Chap. ix. 163-200.
accumulations, of, void under Thellusson Act, 98, 99.
Act of Parliament, in evasion of, not implied, 187.
advancement, presumption of, on voluntary conveyance to wife or child, 164.
or purchase in name of wife or child, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
appointed fund resulting to donee of power, 174.
charge, distinction between, and trust, 166, 167, 175, 176; or exception from gift, 177.
charities, in gifts to, 181, 182. See CHARITY.
chattel interest resulting to heir devolves on heir's personal representatives, 163.
chattels, on delivery of, when arising, 166.
consideration, nominal, will not prevent, 164.
conversion, trust for sale, by reason of, 171, 172, 173.
conveyance of property without consideration, upon, 164.
to wife or child, presumed to be an advancement, 164.
by son to father to facilitate raising of money, 164, 165.
costs and expenses, direction that devisee shall be allowed, 170.
creditors' deed, under, as to surplus, 167, 603.
Crown, in favour of, when arising, 20, 181.
death of c. q. t. without heir or next of kin, in case of, 317.
death of settlor intestate and without heir or next of kin, in case of, 180, 181.
descent of, follows course of descent of legal estate, 1061.
distinguished from constructive trust, 124 note.
executor, for, when arising, 163.
Frauds, Statute of, how applicable to, 215 et seq.
grantor, for, when arising, 163.
heir at law, for, when arising, 163, 171.
heir not to be excluded on mere conjecture, 168.
illegal purpose, on failure of, 120.
intention of settlor governs decision as to, 167.
investment in names of trustees of marriage settlement does not give rise to, 166.
joint tenants, on voluntary conveyance by, 164.
land devised on trust to sell, undisposed of proceeds result to heir not to executor, 170, 171.

RESULTING TRUST—land devised on trust to sell—continued.
whether resulting interest devolves as realty or personalty, 172.
partial or entire failure of trusts, depends on, 172.
legal estate, by disposition of, without disposing of equitable, 163 et seq.
Limitation, Statutes of, when an express trust within, 1125.
marriage settlement, under, whether it arises, 165, 166.
mistake by grantor, grantee not permitted to take advantage of, 165.
money to be laid out in land, undisposed of interest in, results to next of kin, 174; whether as realty or personalty, 174.
order for sale, conversion, by reason of, 173.
Papistry Acts, resulting trust not presumed where forfeitable under, 188.
parol evidence when admissible to rebut presumption of, 62, 63.
partial trust, declaration of, distinguished from charge, 166.
where words raise, by implication, surplus does not result, 156.
Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, effect of, 188.
personal estate, effect of residuary bequest of, 180.
policy, under settlement of, where bonuses not to vest in trustees, 900.
where wife murders husband, the settlor, 1026 note.
presumption, by, of intention to exclude legal owner from enjoyment, 164.
presumption of, how rebutted, 62, 63, 169 et seq., 190.
where trust appears on face of will, 67.
purchase in name of child, wife, or near relative, 191 et seq. See ADVANCEMENT.
raises presumption of advancement, 191, 192; but such presumption may be rebutted by evidence tending to support resulting trust, 196.
purchase in name of stranger, 183 et seq.; resulting trust generally created by, 183.
copyholds for lives, how far rule applies to purchase of, 186.
joint purchase, rule applies to, 184.
joint purchase, where purchasers contribute equally, joint tenancy implied, 184; where unequally, tenancy in common, 185.
Papistry Acts, effect of, 188.
parol evidence, purchase provable by, though otherwise expressed in deed, 188; or against defendant's denial, 189; or after death of nominal purchaser, semble, 189.
secus where purchase by agent and no money paid by principal, 188.
parol evidence to rebut presumption, admissible, 190.
subsequent declaration, effect of, 190.
purchase in evasion of Act of Parliament or for giving votes, 187, 188.
ship, purchase of, in name of stranger, 187.
tenancy in common implied in case of joint loan, 185; or where two possessed of mortgage term purchase equity of redemption, 185.
unequal contribution by purchasers, effect of, 186.
relationship of parties, how far a material consideration, 167, 168.
residuary devisee since Wills Act entitled to benefit of, 178, 179.
sale, trust for, as to proceeds undisposed of under, 170, 171, 172, 173.
secret trust for charity, where donee agrees to hold upon, 66, 67, 68.
settlor, for, when arising, 163, 316 et seq.
ship, of, formerly not implied, 187; secus since recent Acts, 187.
stock, on transfer of, 166.
subscribers to fund, in favour of, 167.
technical phraseology not regarded in face of contrary intention, 167.
time, effect of, in barring presumption, 191.
"trust," conveyance upon, and no trust declared, 169.
"trust" and "trustee" do not necessarily exclude a beneficial gift, 170.
uncertainty of objects of trust, in case of, 150, 151, 169.

RESULTING TRUST—continued.
unlawful trust, on failure of, settlor may recover property, 121.
unlawful trust, where there is secret engagement to hold upon, 66.
voluntary conveyance, under, 164.
conveyance of whole estate to stranger, effect of, 164.
votes, on purchase for giving, not implied, 188.
will, where no trust appears on, and no fraud, 62.
where devisee is made by will a trustee but no trust declared, 62, 63.
where trust for stranger declared by parol, 68.
written instrument, trust resulting under, cannot be rebutted by parol, 170.

RETAINER. See SET-OFF.
charity fund, of, by trustee, in own hands, 633.
executor, by, of balance improperly, 1274 ; of costs, 1266.
of husband's debt, is subject to wife's equity to a settlement, 954.
of statute barred debt, 737, 738 ; of surplus estate, 395.
executor's right of, not affected by abolition of distinction between specialty and simple contract debts, 1070.
but ceases upon administration of estate in bankruptcy, 1072.
exercise of right of, for benefit of c. q. t., 1070.
heir at law or devisee, right of, to retain debt how affected by 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 104, . . . 1068.
improper, of balances by executor, 1274.
investment, of, by trustees, 231, 323 et seq., 335 et seq., 352, 380, 388, 392. See CONVERSION ; INVESTMENT.
personal representative of insolvent trustee, by, 1173.
receiver, by, of rents in his hands, 394.
solicitor, of, by married woman, 979.
trust funds, of, by trustees in bankruptcy, 395.

RETIREMENT.
representative of trustee, right of, to retire from trusteeship, 834.
trustee, of, from office, Chap. xxvi., 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT ; NEW TRUSTEES.
as to part only of trust, 827, 828.
in consideration of premium or in favour of trustee who intends to commit breach of trust, 829, 830.
where no new trustee can be found, 833 ; or trust is complicated, 834.
without new trustee being appointed in his place, 813, 814.

RETIRING TRUSTEE. See NEW TRUSTEE.
concurrence of, in appointment of new trustee, not necessary, 824.
duty of, to see that new trustee is appointed, 813 et seq.
inquiries to be made of, 832, 910.
meaning of term, 816.
power of, to appoint new trustees, 816.
receiving money as consideration for retiring, accountable, 308, 829, 830.
right of, not interfered with by Court, 840.
trustee paying fund into Court under Trustee Act, 427, 428.

REVERSION.
Bankruptcy Act affects chattels in, 273.
chose in action, reversionary, duty of trustees as to getting in, 320.
married woman's, rights of husband in respect to, 21, 952.
conversion of, in favour of tenant for life, 341, 342.
equitable execution against, 1052.
investment by trustees on mortgage of, 382.
laches, effect of, in suit to set aside purchase of, 1118.

REVERSION—continued.
legacies paid out of, what interest payable in respect of, 341.
Limitations, Statute of, operation of, as against reversioner, 1110, 1122 et seq., 1137, 1142, 1143. See REMAINDERMAN.
married woman, of, disposition of, 951, 958, 959, 962, 1003.
mortgage of, investment by trustees on, 382.
order and disposition clause applies to, 273.
portions how and when raised out of, 488 et seq.
possession, falling into, when arrears of income unpaid, 882.
purchase of, by father in name of child, 192, 194.
purchase of, by trustee when improper, 593.
by trustee of leasehold interest, effect of, 207.
purchase-money of, apportionment of, as between tenant for life and remainderman, 340, 341, 689.
renewable leaseholds, of, how far trustee purchasing, is constructive trustee, 208.
renewable leaseholds, of, trustee empowered or bound to purchase, 445, 446.
sale of, by trustee concurring with owner of prior estate, 508, 509.
separate use as to, effect of, 959, 1003.
title to, when to be deduced to purchaser of leaseholds, 520.
trustee purchasing, when a constructive trustee, 207.

REVERSIONER. See REMAINDERMAN.

REVOCABLE TRUST, 20, 604 et seq. See DEBT, trust for payment of.

REVOCATION. power of, given to trustees by name, does not survive, 765.
voluntary settlement, of, by sale for value, 80.
will, of, 932.

ROAD BONDS, investment in, 380.

ROBBERY of trust property, trustee when liable for, 327.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHARITIES, 644.

ROMILLY'S ACT (52 Geo. 3. c. 101), 1202 et seq.
construction of, 1202 et seq.
new trustees of charity, appointment of, under Act, 1092, 1205.
proceedings under, 1092, 1204 et seq.

ROYAL WARRANT, grant of prize of war by, 20.

RULES OF COURT, 1883.
O. i. r. 1...31 note, 1202.
O. xi....975.
O. xi. r. 1...49 note, 1044.
O. xiv....990.
O. xv....422.
O. xv. r. 1...1070.
O. xvi. rr. 9, 11, 32...423.
O. xvi. r. 11 ..1094 note, 1177 note.
O. xvi. r. 16...349, 557, 975.
O. xvi. rr. 48 et seq.....1177 note.
O. xvi. r. 55...1177 note.
O. xix. r. 3...896 note.
O. xix. r. 15...57, 1115, 1145.
O. xxv....1115.
O. xxv. r. 5...423.

RULES OF COURT, 1883—continued.
O. xxviii. r. 11...1044.
O. xxxiii. r. 8...1148.
O. xxxiv....423.
O. xxxiv. r. 2...423.
O. xxxiv. r. 8...423.
O. xxxvi. r. 1...51 note.
O. xxxviii. r. 19 A...1306.
O. xlii. r. 23...1042 note.
O. xlv....902, 991, 1054.
O. xlvi....905, 1223.
O. xlvi. r. 1...1040 note.
O. xlvi. rr. 2 et seq....919, 1251.
O. xlvi. rr. 12, 13...919.
O. l. r. 10...532.
O. li. r. 1 A. (b)...533.
O. liv. B. rr. 1, 2...1304.
O. liv. B. r. 4...1306, 1307.
O. lv. r. 3...421, 771, 772, 1300.
O. lv. rr. 3, 4, 5...420, 1088.
O. lv. r. 9 B...1048.
O. v. r. 10...421.
O. lv. r. 11...1088.
O. lv. r. 12...772.
O. lv. r. 13 A...1304.
O. lv. r. 63...618 note.
O. lxv. r. 1...1307, 1308.
O. lxv. r. 27 (19)...1307.
Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1894, rr. 30, 41, 73, 74...1277 et seq.; r. 99...1042 note.

RULES OF SUPREME COURT (TRUSTEE ACT) 1893. See APPENDIX No. 2, pp. 1304 et seq.

ST LEONARDS' (LORD) ACT (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), See TABLE OF STATUTES.
advertisement for creditors under, 436.
charge of debts or legacies, effect of, 546 et seq.
investment under, 356, 383.
receipts, power of trustees, &c., to give, 534.

SALARIES, augmentation and reduction of, by governors of charities, 632.

SALARY. allowance of, to trustee, when directed by settlor or contracted for by trustee, 783, 784; does not exclude allowance for expenses, 792.
bailiff of trustee, allowed to, 786.
direction to allow, trust when created by, 797.
management of business, for, when allowed to trustee, 576, 577, 782.

SALE, and see PURCHASE; PURCHASER. administrator, by, 550.
agent, mode of conducting sale by, 514.
trustee for sale cannot purchase by means of, or as agent for another, 570, 571.
apportionment of purchase-money among beneficiaries, 508, 509, 743.
auction, by, advertisements by trustees in case of, 513, 514.
duty of trustee to sell by, 500.
lots, trustees may sell in, 517.
trustees for sale cannot purchase at, 569, 574.

SALE—continued.
breach of trust by sale at inadequate value, 501.
sale of property purchased in breach of trust, 555, 556 note.
sale which is, cannot be specifically enforced, 500.
buying in property at, duty of trustees as to, 517.
cestui que trust, by, to trustee when upheld, 571 et seq.
charge of debts on realty, to give effect to, 531 et seq.
charges, trustee may sell subject to, 515.
charity lands, of, 634.
chattels, of, by executor, 560 et seq.
cheque, trustee justified in accepting payment of deposit by, 517.
completion of, by trustees, 522. conditions of, on sale by trustees, what proper, 515 et seq.
contract of—approval of Court, must be with, after institution of suit, 499, 532.
cestui que trust, by, how usually entered into, 501.
conditional, on approval of Court, mode of entering into, 499 et seq.
conversion effected by, 1219, 1220, 1227.
death of purchaser without heir after payment but before conveyance, effect of, 315, 316.
estate contracted to be sold, included in general devise, 260.
executor, by, as to real estate, 548, 549.
empowered to convey estate contracted to be sold, 836.
implied trustee, vendor is, for purchaser, 162; but sub modo only, 162.
rescission of, powers of trustees as to, 518.
specific performance of, against trustee, 500. See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE. conveyance by trustee for sale, covenants in, 522 et seq.
"grant," use of word, in operative part, 522.
parties to, 528, 1293 note.
costs and expenses of trustees, to raise, 534.
co-trustee, to, improper, 590.
co-trustees, responsibility of, for sale, 501.
Court, by, conversion of property effected by, 172, 173, 174.
conduct of, to whom given, 532.
duty of purchaser to disclose facts, 574.
Crown Debt, under extent for, 1057.
debts, for payment of, 533.
deposit on, trustees may accept cheque in payment of, 517; should not leave in auctioneer's hands, 531; trustees purchasing may pay, 588.
depreciatory conditions, on, 515, 516.
devise upon trust for, held to pass the fee, 238.
devisee, by, of real estate charged with debts, 547, 548, 552.
different trusts, of property held on, 509.
direction for. See TRUST FOR.
discretion of trustee cannot be questioned by purchaser, 504.
Drainage Acts, charge under, effect of, on exercise of powers of sale, 506.
duration of trust for sale, 502.
equitable interest, of, information to be given by vendor, 911.
equity of redemption, of, by trustee subject to mortgage, 505.
execution creditor, sale by sheriff at instance of, 576, 1049.
executor, by, of assets, when effectual, 560 et seq. See EXECUTOR. of real estate charged with debts, 548 et seq.
extinguishment of trust for sale, 502.
Extraordinary Tithe Redemption Act, 1886, under, 507.
fee simple, trust for sale confers, 238.
foreign property, of, jurisdiction to order, 50.

SALE—continued.
heirlooms, of, under Settled Land Act, 653, 690 et seq., 879.
infant's estate, of, when directed, 1247.
injunction to restrain improper sale by trustee, 514, 515, 1097.
judgment for, equitable interests bound by, 847, 1293.
vesting order consequential on, 847, 857.
judgment creditor when entitled to enforce judgment by, 1048.
lands abroad, of, jurisdiction to order, 50.
lease, trustee for sale may not grant, 502, 744.
leaseholds, of, title to be deduced on, 518 et seq.
lots, in, right of purchaser to abstract of title, 521.
lots, trustees may sell in, 517.
lunatic's estate, of, when authorised, 1242. See LUNATIC.
market overt, in, 1102, 1151.
mines, sale of, and surface separately, 511, 512, 513.
mortgage, sale to pay off, 743.
mortgage, trust for sale will not in general authorise, 503.
trust to mortgage does not authorise sale, 504.
mortgagee, by, by virtue of statute, 385 note, 505.
neglect by trustee to make, 502, 1165.
option of purchase, trustee should not lease with, 502.
partition, in lieu of, effect of, 173, 174. See PARTITION ACTS.
partition when authorised by power of sale, 505.
payment of debts, for, 533.
personal estate, trust for sale on its insufficiency for debts, 533, 534.
policy money, receipt of, by trustees, 530.
portions, to raise, 494, 495.
possession to purchaser, when to be given, 522.
postponement of, by trustees, effect of, 321, 322, 339, 501, 720.
power of—
consent to exercise of, 507.
control of Court over exercise of, 765 et seq.
deferred, exercise of, 508.
discretionary, purchaser cannot question exercise of, 504.
division, for purposes of, duration of, 756, 757.
Drainage Acts, charge under, effect of, on exercise of power, 506.
executory trust, when inserted by Court in settlement under, 144 et seq.
implied, when, 145, 238, 513, 550.
mortgage, in, 510, 511. See MORTGAGE.
mortgage with power of sale, whether authorised by power to mortgage, 504, 505.
partition whether authorised by, 505.
personal representative of trustee, exercisable by, 259.
receipts, whether implying power to give, 543.
remoteness, when void for, 108.
Settled Estates Act, general power when conferred under, 774.
Settled Land Act, under, 506, 507. See SETTLED LAND ACT.
settlement, in, duration of, 756, 757; effect of usual power, 505.
not necessary to be inserted since Settled Land Act, 1882. . . . 507.
survivorship of, 509, 510, 752, 753.
time within which power should be exercised, 510, 511.
trust distinguished from, 533, 534.
trustee when bound to exercise, 764, 765.
usual power, whether, under executory trust, 145, 147.
preliminaries to sale by trustees, 499.
propriety of, by trustees, purchaser when bound to see to, 534 et seq.

SALE —continued.
purchase of trust property by trustee for sale, 568 et seq. See PURCHASE.
purchase-money, payment of, to person who has ceased to be owner, 900.
to trustees, how to be made, 325, 326, 529, 556, 557.
purchaser when bound to see to application of, 533 et seq.
unpaid, lien of vendors for, 921.
purchaser whether bound by trust, 276, 1073, 1074, 1100 et seq. See PURCHASER. receipt of purchase-money by trustees, 528, 529, 530, 534, 556, 557.
power to give receipts, 534 et seq. See RECEIPT. request for, how to be testified, 508.
reversion, sale of, in concurrence with owner of prior estate, 509.
Settled Land Act, 1882, under powers of, 506, 507, 662 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS. effect of Act on power of sale arising under charge of debts, 553, 554.
solicitor, liability of trustees for acts of, 528, 529.
solicitor or agent, receipt of money by, 528, 529, 556, 557.
specific performance of contract for, 500, 508, 522. See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
succession duty attaching on property does not prevent trustee making good title, 521.
survivorship of trust for sale, 509, 510, 752, 753.
surviving partner, purchase of trust property by, 575.
tenant for life, by, under Settled Land Act, 1882, . . . 147, 506, 507.
sale by trustees with concurrence of, 512, 553.
timber, sale of, by trustees apart from estate, 511.
time for sale, reasonable time allowed, 501, 518.
"after death of A," trust for sale, 508.
"convenient speed," trust to sell with, 501.
limited period, trust to sell within, 502. portions, in order to raise, 488 et seq.
title, commencement of, 518.
conditions as to, on sale by trustees, 515, 516.
investigation of, by trustees before sale, 511.
objection to, on ground of improper appointment of trustees, 823.
production of documents of, covenants to be entered into as to, 518 et seq.
purchaser, to be deduced to, 518 et seq.
trustee may do all reasonable acts for clearing title, 521.
title-deeds, production of, 518, 519, 523, 524.
tortious sale of land by trustee, remedy for, 1164.
trust for—administration action, how affected by, 532.
assign of trustee, when competent to execute, 753.
consent required to exercise of, under Settled Land Acts, 673 et seq., 772 et seq.
debts, for payment of, effect of, 533.
extinguishment of, 502.
fee simple conferred by, 238.
heir of settlor, attaches to, where no trustee named, 1073.
heir of trustee when competent to exercise, 255, 256. See HEIR.
legal estate passing under devise upon, 238, 242, 243, 254.
limited interest, of, 743.
ministerial, whether, or arbitrary, 16.
mortgage not authorised by, 503.
personal representative of trustee, exercisable by, 259, 260.
postponement of, 756.
power of sale distinguished from, 533, 534.

SALE—trust for—continued.
proceeds undisposed of result to heir, 171.
remoteness, when void for, 110.
restriction on exercise of, under Settled Land Acts, 772 et seq.
Settled Land Acts, powers under, where settlement made by way of trust for sale, 695 et seq., 775 et seq.
special trust, is, and not use within Statute of Uses, 234.
survives, 293, 509, 510.
that may never arise, 776 note.
time within which trust should be executed, 502.
trustee, by, to co-trustee improper, 590.
trustee for—
"absolutely entitled," is, within Lands Clauses Act, 528.
acceptance of trust by, 226.
action instituted suspends exercise of powers of, 532, 747, 748, 770.
advantage, duty of trustee to sell to, 500, 515.
advice or sanction of Court how obtainable by, 771 et seq.
auction, Court will not authorise trustee to bid at, 574.
beneficiaries, concurrence of, 508.
charge, may apply purchase-money in paying off, 743.
concurrence by, in sale, with other vendors, 508, 509.
of beneficiaries, 508.
contract by, 499. See sup., contract.
conveyance by, 522 et seq. See sup., conveyance.
costs and expenses of, 534.
covenants on sale by, what to be entered into, 522 et seq.
indemnity, for, against breach of covenants, 525.
production of title-deeds, as to, 519, 524.
statutory, implied in conveyance, 523.
delegation of trust by, 501, 514.
discharge of mortgage on settled estate by, 743.
discretion of, sale at, purchaser cannot question its exercise, 504.
discretionary power of postponement, right of beneficiary to call for sale, 756.
inquiries to be answered by, 531.
lease, trustee for sale may not in general grant, 502, 744.
leaseholds, of, should not sell by way of under lease, 502.
limited interest, of, may concur in sale of whole, 509, 743.
married woman trustee can exercise discretion, 17, 37.
mode of conducting sale, 499 et seq.
mortgage, may not, 503; but may sell to pay off, 743.
neglecting to sell, held liable, 501, 502, 1165.
partition, not authorised to make, 505.
purchase of trust property by, 568 et seq. See PURCHASE.
purchaser from, when bound to see to propriety of sale, 533, 534; or application of purchase-money, 534 et seq.
quantity, whether trustee may sell larger, than trust requires, 534. receipt of purchase-money by, 533 et seq., 556, 557. See RECEIPT.
Settled Land Acts, powers of trustee how restricted by, 772 et seq.
single trustee, payment to, 413.
solicitor of, when he may receive purchase-money, 528, 529.
surviving trustee can make a good title, 509, 510.
notwithstanding there be power to appoint new trustees, 509, 510.
tenant for life, trustee should not sell to gratify, 506.
time for sale, 501, 502. See sup., time.
title, bound to show good, 511.

SALE—trustee for—continued.
value of property, duty of trustee to ascertain, 501.
vouchers, right to custody of, 531.
Trustee Act, 1893, provisions of, in reference to, 516.
Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, provisions of, in reference to, 518 et seq., 586, 587.
vesting order in aid of judgment for, 847, 848, 857.

SALMON FISHING, grant of, by Crown, to trustees, 212.

SALVAGE, expenditure with a view to, jurisdiction of Court to order, 592, 1247.

SATISFACTION, 474 et seq.
ademption, distinguished from, 474, 483.
contemporaneous instruments, as between gifts contained in, 483.
contingent legacy not a satisfaction of previous vested interest, 482.
covenant to settle property, of, by subsequent advance, 475 et seq.
debt, of, by subsequent legacy, 481, 482.
direction for payment of debts negatives presumption of, 482.
doctrine of, explained, 474, 475.
election arises in cases of, but not in cases of ademption, 483.
land, covenant to settle, not satisfied by settlement of money, 478.
parents and persons in loco parentis, doctrine of, applies only to, 475, 476.
partial, by legacy of smaller amount than that agreed to be settled, 479, 480, 481, 482.
presumption, is matter of, only, 477.
residuary gift may operate by way of, 480, 481.
son, legacy to, not a satisfaction of interest of son's children, 481.

SAVINGS BANK, deposit in, in another's name, 88.
trust, not affected by notice of, 32.

SCANDAL, charge of misconduct on part of trustee is not, 1087, 1088.

SCHEME.
charity, as to, 182, 625 et seq., 1205. See CHARITY. improvements, as to, under Settled Land Acts, 674 et seq.

SCHOOL.
appointment of new trustees of school house, 1093.
chapel for, trust of, how to be administered, 623.
corporation, trustees for, falsely pleading ignorance, 1276.
Endowed Schools Act, 1860, provisions of, 629, 630.
exemption of, from Mortmain Act, 105.
"free grammar and free school," trust for, how to be administered, 630.
trust for poor applied to school house, 632.
trustees of, religious opinions of, 627.

SCHOOLMASTER.
ejectment of person ceasing to be, 631.
removal of, proceedings for, under Charitable Trusts Acts, 1207, 1209.
under Romilly's Act, cannot be taken, 1204.
salary of, augmentation or reduction of, by governors of charity, 632.
trust for "finding a master," how carried into effect, 631.

SCOTLAND.
Accumulations Act, 1800, formerly excepted from, 101; secus now, 101.
chose in action, no survivorship of, by Scotch law, 407.
deposit of deeds in, creates no lien, 49, 50.
equities in respect of lands in, administered here, 49, 50.
executors here not bound to know the law of, 407.

SCOTLAND—continued.
real securities in, whether trustees may invest on, 356, 383.
Trustee Act, excepted from, 860.

SCRIVENER, money, business of, now obsolete, 88, 89.

SEAL, 86, 417.

SEARCHES, purchase, on, for judgments, &c., 587, 1045, 1046, 1055, 1056.

SECOND MORTGAGE, investment on, 382, 383.

SECRECY, to be observed by public trustee in respect of trusts administered by him, 708.

SECRET EQUITY, party having, standing by, may be precluded from setting up, 925 et seq.

SECRET TRUST, 65 et seq.
charity, for, heir at law may compel disclosure by devisee, 67, 68.
charity, for grantor of lands to, 105.
discovery as to, trustee bound to give, 67, 68.
parol evidence to prove, when admissible, 63, 64, 65, 68.
unlawful trust, devisee will not be allowed to take under, but trust results for heir at law, 66.

SECRETARY.
company, of, cannot make a profit by his trust, 310.
new trustee in place of, to whom land conveyed, 835 note.
notice to, when sufficient, 914.

SECRETARY OF STATE, not trustee as to moneys in his hands, 798.

SECURITY.
agent, from, trustee not called upon to require, 287.
cestui que trust, by, on taking possession, 868.
company, issued by, transferee of, by what equities affected, 901, 902.
conversion of, when executors or trustees should make, 332 et seq.
costs, for, nominal plaintiff, 264 note.
deposit of, with bankers of trustees, 329.
hazardous, though not wasting securities, 343.
insufficient, investment on, 372 et seq., 1170, 1171, 1173, 1174 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
marshalling securities as between purchasers, 929, 930.
money, for, gift of, in will may pass mortgage in fee, 254.
negotiable, when capable of being followed, 269, 1151, 1152.
personal, trust money should not be invested or continued in, 343, 344, 347, 348, 381.
power to invest in securities will not authorise purchase of shares, 351.
promissory note is not, 344.
public trustee, not required from, 707.
real securities, investment in, by trustees, 372 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
refund, to, when required from recipient of money, 408.
safe custody of, by trustees, 327, 328.
shares in railway are not, 351.
tenant for life of renewable leaseholds, by, 450 et seq.
terminable securities, what are, 352.
trustee required to give, for due execution of trust, 1095.
vary securities, power to, 333, 367, 371; a "usual power," 145.

SEISIN.
curtesy, what required to give, 933, 945 et seq.

SEISIN—continued.
equitable, 933, 934.
revocation of will by disturbance of, 932.
ex parte maternâ, descent in case of, 1062.
infant, of, ex parte maternâ of leaseholds for lives may be changed to seisin ex parte paternâ, 1246, 1247.
possessio fratris of a trust, 933, 1062.

SELECTION.
power of, distinguished from power of distribution, 768, 1079.
not interfered with by Court, 768.

SEPARATE USE, 968 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.

SEQUESTRATION. corporation, against, 1213.
delivery in execution by, 1049.

SERVICE.
jurisdiction, on person out of, 50, 430.
motion for payment into Court, of notice of, 1256.
Trustee Act, under, 428, 429, 845 note, 1305, 1311.

SET-OFF, 895 et seq.
agreement for, when presumed in equity, 895, 896.
army agent, by, against proceeds of officer's commission in his hands, 912.
assignee of debt when bound by set-off against assignor, 892, 893.
assignor, between, and trustee, does not affect assignee, 892 note.
autre droit, of debt due in, not permitted, 896, 897, 899.
banker and customer, between, 896, 897, 1153, 1154.
trust account and private account, 1153, 1154.
bankrupt co-trustee, against, to prejudice of solvent co-trustee, 1185.
bankrupt legatee, as against, by executor, 899.
bankrupt trustee entitled to beneficial interest, against, 1185.
bankruptcy of debtor or creditor, effect of, 899.
costs, for, how affected by solicitor's lien, 894 note.
costs, of proportion of, against debt due from co-trustee, 788.
costs, solicitor may set off, in accounting for receipts to trustees, 796, 797.
damages, mere right to, cannot be set off against debt, 899.
debt of trustee, for, against his costs, 788; or beneficial interest, 893, 894.
defaulting trustee cannot set off gain against loss, 1174.
equity, in, may be though not at law, 895, 896.
cross demand must not be in autre droit, 896 et seq.
legatee and executor, between, 894, 898.
statute barred debt, of, 898.
mortgagee and executor, between, 899.

SETTING ASIDE.
deed, costs of action for, 1270, 1271.
deed, creditors', 81 et seq.
purchase of trust property by trustee, 576 et seq. See PURCHASE.

SETTLED ACCOUNT, opening, against solicitor trustee, 783.

SETTLED ESTATES ACT.
general powers of sale or leasing when granted under, 774.
investment of purchase-money under powers of Settled Land Acts, 679.
leaseholds which tenant for life entitled to enjoy in specie, purchase-money of, how to be dealt with, 334 note.
money arising from land sold under, devolution of, 1216.

SETTLED ESTATES ACT—continued.
powers given by, how affected by Settled Land Acts, 774.
trustees when proper persons to apply to Court under, 738, 870 note.

SETTLED LAND ACTS, Chap. xxii. 646-697 ; Chap. xxiv. s. 2, 772-779.
abortive sale, costs of, 685.
accumulation of income, trust for, effect of, 660.
Act of Parliament, general, may form part of a settlement, 649.
action for execution of trusts, decree in, does not prevent exercise of powers, semble, 669.
additions or alterations to buildings, expenditure for, when allowed, 674 note.
Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, applications of money in improvements under, 682.
assignee not affected by exercise of powers, 664.
assignment, powers under Act incapable of, 664.
award to vicar "and his successors," not a settlement, 647.
base fee, owner of, may exercise powers of Acts, 658.
capital money arising under the Acts, definition of, 679, 680.
devolution of, as land or personalty, 686, 687.
investment and application of, 679 et seq.
application for, how to be made, 687, 688.
payment of, to trustees, 659, 682, 686 ; or into Court, 686.
prospective order as to, Court will not make, 678.
purchase of land, when to be applied in, 681.
charge of debts, powers of sale or mortgage by virtue of, how affected by Acts, 553, 554.
charges, power of tenant for life to convey free from, 664.
chattels, sale of, 690 et seq. See infra, heirlooms.
compound settlement, what instruments constitute, 648 et seq.
conflict between provisions of settlement and Act, provision for, 773.
conveyance by beneficial owner, parties to, 880, 881.
conveyance by tenant for life, 663, 664.
conveyance of land purchased under provisions of, 688, 689, 693.
copyholds, fine payable on sale of, under Acts, 264.
costs payable by trustees out of purchase-money, 682, 685.
costs payable out of capital money, 791.
Court, powers of, under Acts, 672, 673, 682, 686 et seq., 772 et seq.
Crown entitled in reversion bound by exercise of powers, 658.
when entitled to proceeds of sale under, 181.
curtesy, tenant by, exercise of powers of Acts by, 659.
derivative settlement, when to be deemed part of original settlement, 651 et seq.
enfranchisement, power of, conferred by Acts, 146, 147, 663.
exchange, power of, conferred by Acts, 146, 147 note, 663, 669.
executors when trustees for purposes of, 652.
expenses incurred under, trustee may reimburse himself for, 790.
fines on granting of leases are capital moneys, 679 note.
heir at law, when tenant for life under Acts, 657 note.
heirlooms, 653, 690 et seq.
directions for disposal of, where mansion house sold, 673 note.
proceeds of sale of, are capital money under Acts, 679, 879.
but, semble, do not devolve as land but as personalty, 691.
sanction of Court required to sale of, 690, 691.
improvements, application of trust money in, 673 et seq.
definition and enumeration of, 673 note.
income of land, person entitled to, may exercise powers of, 659 et seq.
incumbrances, discharge of, 681 et seq.

SETTLED LAND ACTS—continued.
infant, exercise of powers of Acts on behalf of, 656, 662.
investment under, of moneys liable to be laid out in land, 359, 360, 369.
direction of tenant for life as to, 687.
of moneys paid into Court under Acts of Parliament, 679.
jointress whose jointure paid, position of, 657 note.
jointure, discharge of, by conveyance of tenant for life, 664.
judgment in action to execute trusts, effect of, on powers, 669.
land improvement charges, discharge of, 683.
leaseholds, proceeds of sale of, how to be dealt with, 688.
leases, powers as to granting, conferred by Acts, 146, 147, 663, 668.
limited interests, application of money arising from, 689.
lunatic, exercise of powers on behalf of, 656, 670.
mansion house, lease or sale of, consents, &c., necessary to, 673.
married woman, exercise of powers by, 694.
mines, power of tenant for life to work, 212; to sell, 512; to lease, 147, 212, 663.
purchase of, out of capital moneys arising under Acts, 681.
mortgage, money raised on, when capital money, 679.
power of tenant for life to make, 669, 679, 685.
mortgagees of tenant for life, consent of, when required, 664.
costs of obtaining, 685.
notice to trustee of intention to exercise powers, when to be given, 668 et seq.
general notice now sufficient, 670; except as respects mortgage or charge, 670.
mode of giving, 670, 671; number of trustees to receive, 670, 671.
purchaser not bound to inquire as to giving of, 671.
waiver of, by trustees, 670, 671.
Parliament, applications to, costs of, allowed, 718.
partition, power to concur in, conferred by Acts, 662, 663.
powers conferred by Acts generally, 662 et seq. See infra, tenant for life.
restriction imposed by Acts on powers of trustees, 553, 554, 772 et seq.
purchase-money of land, payment of, to trustees, 657.
purchaser under, inquiries to be made by, 671.
rebuilding, expenditure for, when allowed, 675.
receipts of trustees under, 647, 692.
remainderman, provisions for protection of, 666 et seq.
reversionary interest, application of purchase-money of, 334 note, 689.
sale, powers of, conferred by Acts, 146, 147, 506, 507, 663 et seq.
sale, trust or direction for, 775 et seq.
scheme for improvements under, 676, 677, 695.
Settled Estates Act, powers of, how affected, 774.
settled land, what is, 776.
settlement, definition of, 646 et seq.
instruments constituting, 647 et seq.
powers of, may be exercised in addition to powers of Acts, 665, 666, 693, 694.
consents required to exercise of, 773 et seq.
shares, where settled property divided into, powers how exercisable, 774, 775.
solicitor for trustees, notice to be given to, 669.
solicitor of tenant for life not appointed trustee for purposes of, 42, 655.
summons, application by, to Court under, 655.
surrenders, powers to accept, conferred by Acts, 663.
tenant for life—
annuitants held to have powers of, 661.
bankruptcy of, effect of, on exercise of powers, 774.
bribe, acceptance of, for granting lease, 672.

SETTLED LAND ACTS—tenant for life—continued.
consent of, to exercise of powers by trustees when necessary, 773, 774, 775, 776.
contract by, not to exercise powers, is void, 664, 665.
conveyance by, effect of, 663, 664.
costs allowed to, 682, 685, 686.
dealings between, and the trustees, 662.
definition of, under Acts, 657 et seq.; what persons are within, 657 et seq.
differences between, and the trustees, 693.
easements, exchange of, not within powers of, 664 note.
exchange, powers of, cannot be clogged by provisions, 665.
forfeiture, exercise of powers by, does not occasion, 664, 665.
infant, exercise of powers on behalf of, 656, 662.
investment of capital money, powers in reference to, 668, 686, 687.
leave to, to sell land settled on trust for sale, 777, 778.
lunatic, consent of, when required, 774.
lunatic, exercise of powers on behalf of, 656, 670.
lunatic, not a trustee within Lunacy Act, 1890, 669 note.
married woman, exercise of powers by, 694.
persons having powers of, 658 et seq.
powers of, under Acts, generally, 146, 211, 212, 662 et seq.
cannot be assigned, 664; are cumulative, 666, 774, 775.
must be exercised bonâ fide, 668.
provisions prohibiting exercise of, are void, 665.
trustees with estate pur autre vie cannot exercise, 658 note.
reimbursement of expenditure by, when allowed, 678, 679, 684.
sale with consent of mortgagee of life estate, 664.
several persons together may constitute, 774, 775, 776.
but consent of one is sufficient, 775.
trustee, is, in relation to exercise of his powers, 517, 666 et seq.
will not be appointed, for purposes of Acts, 42, 43.
undesirable investment by, 668.
wrongful refusal by, to exercise power, 774.
tenant for years when competent to exercise powers of, 658, 659, 660.
tenant in fee with executory limitation over may exercise powers of, 658, 659.
tenant in tail may exercise powers of, 658.
secus of estates given for public services, 658.
tenant pur autre vie may exercise powers of, 658, 659.
Thellusson Act held to constitute part of a settlement, 649.
timber, power of tenant for life to cut, 209 et seq., 673.
proceeds of sale of, when capital money, 679.
title of honour is land within meaning of, 691.
trust for sale, exercise of powers where settlement is by way of, 695 et seq. 775 et seq.
trustees for purposes of—appointment of, 42, 651, 652.
by Court, 653, 656.
discretion of Court, how to be exercised, 655.
to receive money under Lands Clauses Act, 688.
compound settlement, of, when necessary, 652.
settlement should contain express appointment, 654.
Trustee Act, 1893, under, 1298, 1299.
broker and solicitor, may select, 687 note. consent of, when required to exercise of powers, 673 et seq.
conveyance, how far bound to see to sufficiency of, 693.
definition of, 651, 652.

SETTLED LAND ACTS—trustees for purposes of—continued.
differences between, and tenant for life, 693.
discretion, exercise of, by trustees when required, 687, 689.
executors having power to sell settled lands are, 652.
indemnity to, giving consent, &c., to exercise of powers, 692.
independent persons, must be, 826.
notice to, of intention to exercise powers, 668 et seq. See sup., notice.
number of, to whom capital moneys to be paid, 656, 657.
to whom notice to be given, 670.
persons proper to be appointed, 42.
persons resident out of jurisdiction appointed under special circumstances, 656.
power of sale with consent of tenant for life, trustees with, are, 653.
propriety of sale, not bound to inquire as to, unless on suspicion of fraud, 672.
receipt of, 647, 692.
solicitor not appointed, 42.
tenant for life will not be appointed, 42, 655; nor his solicitor, 42, 655.
title, when not liable to see to, 693, 694.
undivided share, settlement of, 657 note.
Universities and College Estates Act, made applicable under, 697.

SETTLEMENT.
alteration of, by Court in case of divorce, 832.
bankruptcy, settlor cannot settle own property with trust to go over on, except on marriage, 118.
compound, under Settled Land Acts, 648 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS. conversion of land or money under trusts of, 1215 et seq. See CONVERSION. conveyance upon trusts of, how to be framed, 595 et seq.
covenant or agreement to settle property, effect of, 161.
avoidance of, as against trustee in bankruptcy, 85, 86.
execution creditor of settlor, rights of, as against c. q. t., 250.
satisfaction of, by advance by parent, 474 et seq. See SATISFACTION.
trustee under settlement entitled to assume due performance of, 231.
definition of, under Bankruptcy Act, 1883, . . . 85, 86.
under Settled Land Acts, 646 et seq.
equity of married woman to, 951 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN. executory trust for, how carried into effect, 129 et seq., 596. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
impeachable, trustee should assume validity of, until actually impeached, 318.
infant married woman, by, confirmation of, by her while covert, 982.
inoperative, trustees of, ordered to reconvey, 419.
judgment debt, onus of, thrown on unsettled estates, 928.
leaseholds, of, does not per se imply a direction to renew, 438, 439.
marriage articles, executory trusts in, 129 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
marriage, on, avoided if in fraud of creditors, 82.
married woman, by, of own property, with restraint on anticipation, 1019.
married woman, by, of reversionary chose in action, void, 952.
Married Women's Property Act, not interfered with or affected by, 1005, 1006, 1019.
new property, of, on old trusts, 78.
personalty, of, so as to correspond with limitations of realty, 91, 133.
post-nuptial, executory trust in, construed as in will, 144.
power of sale in, effect of, 505 et seq. See SALE.
precatory trust may arise by words of recommendation, &c., in, 149.
protector of, 455 et seq. See PROTECTOR OF SETTLEMENT.

SETTLEMENT—continued.
purchaser under, who is, as against judgment creditor, 1048.
realty, of, usual frame of, 454, 455.
rectification of, in conformity with marriage articles, 129, 130.
distinction where settlement after marriage and where before, 130.
referential, form of, 595.
renewable leaseholds, of, when implying direction to renew, 438, 439.
resettlement, effect of, 650.
resulting trust when arising under, 163 et seq.
separate use of married woman, for, 968 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
Settled Land Acts, under, what is a, 646 et seq.
settlor, who may be, Chap. iii. s. 1, 19-27.
"strict," meaning of term, 143.
tenant for life and remainderman under, rule of conversion not applicable to, 342, 343.
voluntary, of lands or chattels real (but not of personalty) formerly defeated by subsequent sale by settlor, 80 ; secus now, 81.
void as against creditors, when, 81 et seq. See VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

SETTLOR. See SETTLEMENT.
who may be, Chap. iii. s. 1, 19-27.

SEVERANCE. estate from powers, of, 760 et seq.
trustees, by, in legal proceedings, not in general permitted, 292.

SHALL AND MAY, in Acts of Parliament, force of, 294 note.

SHARE.
aliquot, payment of, into Court sometimes ordered, 1255, 1256.
mortgage of undivided, loan on, whether authorised, 382.
payment out of, on application of person entitled to, 428.
sale of undivided, 743.

SHARES. See STOCK.
breach of trust by neglecting to get in, 1174.
certificates for, deposit of, by trustee, for own debt, 924.
charging order on, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, . . . 1040 et seq. See CHARGING ORDER.
choses in action, how far to be regarded as, 272, 901.
co-executor, transfer of shares by, 298.
constructive trustee of, vendor after contract for sale is, 836.
conversion of, in canal, insurance or railway companies, 30, 321, 335.
distringas, writ of, notice in lieu of, extended to, 1252. See DISTRINGAS. dividends on, how received, 291, 879. See DIVIDENDS.
investment in, 351, 355.
legal title to, priority by obtaining, 1102.
married woman, of, provisions of Married Women's Property Acts, as to, 1020, 1024, 1025.
new, are an accretion to trust estates, 1175.
but trustees cannot accept, unless expressly authorised, 745.
new trustee, how vested in, 811, 812.
notice of equitable interest in, effect of giving, 905, 906.
purchase by trustee of shares belonging to trust, 579.
restraining order as to, under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 4, . . . 1249 et seq.
retention of, belonging to testator, by executor, whether justifiable, 322, 323.
security, shares in railway are not, 351.
standing in one name only, trustees should not invest in, 353.
stock, are, within Trustee Acts, 854.

SHARES—continued.
things in action, are, within Bankruptcy Act, 271, 272, 901 note.
transfer of, by deed, 1102 note.
transferee of, when subject to equities affecting transferor, 900, 901.
trustee of, liable as if beneficial owner, 267.
trusts of, company not bound to take notice of, 905.
vesting orders as to, 854 et seq.
voting in respect of, power of executors to agree as to, 769 note.

SHELLEY'S CASE.
rule in, application of, to trusts, 126.
separate use of married woman, where life estate is for, 136.
where estates of ancestor and heir of different qualities, 126.

SHIP.
mortgagee of, selling, not express trustee of surplus proceeds, 1126.
purchase of, in name of stranger, 187.
vesting orders as to shares in, 1296.

SIGNATURE.
declaration of trust, required for, 59; by whom, 59.
receipt, of, must be by all trustees, 290, 554.

SIMONY.
advowson, purchase of, when simoniacal, 119.
presentation, direction to purchase, for a particular person, 119.

SIMPLE CONTRACT DEBT. See DEBT. breach of trust per se creates simple contract debt only, 228, 1173.
interest on, when allowed, 617.
lands of trustee trading liable for, 267.
money to be converted into land formerly not liable for, 1217.
real assets, now payable out of, 1066, 1068; under devise for payment of debts, 1064.
retainer of, by executor, 1070; none by heir or devisee, 1069.
specialty and simple contract debts now rank in equal degree, 230, 267, 617, 1070.
trust for payment of debts, under, how paid, 614 et seq.

SIMPLE INTEREST. See INTEREST.
usually charged for improper retainer of trust money, 394 et seq.

SIMPLE TRUST.
assets, is, within Statute of Frauds, s. 10, . . . 1065.
cestui que trust, estate of, in what it consists, Chap. xxvii. s. 1, 867-884.
intermediate equitable interests not regarded, 883.
judgment against c. q. t. under Statute of Frauds, s. 10, . . . 1035, 1036.
under recent Acts, 1047.
nature of, explained, 3, 16.
powers of trustee holding upon, 709.
special trust, when converted into, 884.
Uses, Statute of, applicable to, 5.

SINGLE TRUSTEE. See SOLE TRUSTEE.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS, burial ground restricted to, trust for keeping in repair, 122.

SOLE TRUSTEE. appointment or continuance of, in general improper, 43, 820.
composition of debts, &c., by, 738.

SOLE TRUSTEE—continued.
Court will not appoint, except under special circumstances, 842.
death of, to whom notice given, effect of, 910, 911.
judicial trustee may be appointed to act as, 698.
jurisdiction, where resident out of, receiver appointed, 1263.
vesting order as to interest of, 855.
payment of money to, when justifiable, 413.
power when exercisable by, 739, 756.
Public Trustee may be appointed to act as, 43, 701.
retirement of, 819, 820.
Settled Land Acts, powers of, whether exercisable by, 656, 657, 671.
solicitor, who is, should have other professional advice, 789 note.
trust when exercisable by, 756.
Trustee Act, under, when Court will appoint, 842.

SOLICITOR.
advancement, presumption of, rebutted where son is, 200.
affidavit of fitness of trustee, not proper person to make, 1306.
assertion of, trustee acting on, 1171.
borrower, of, trustee lending money should not employ, 393.
breach of trust, wilfully advising, may be struck off roll, 1158.
when liable for, 1163, 1164.
cestui que trust, of, cannot bind him by contract with trustee, 573.
constructive notice through solicitor or agent, 1104, 1105.
constructive trustee, when liable as, 214, 215, 1159, 1163.
costs, may set off, against receipts, 796, 797.
co-trustees should act by same, 292.
should not rely on solicitor co-trustee, 230, 788.
declaration of trust, misleading, by, 215.
deposit of money with, for investment, does not create trust, 89, 392, 393.
deputy appointed by Public Trustee may not act as solicitor to trust administered by him, 708.
direction to employ testator's, trustees whether bound by, 797.
election by, as to charging, under Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 789.
employment of, by trustees, when justifiable, 282, 286, 287, 788.
to receive moneys, 286, 287, 325, 529, 530, 557.
fraud of, 1171.
ignorance or negligence of, trustees when liable for, 379.
incumbrances created by client, solicitor buying up, is accountable, 307.
investment, advising trustee as to, duty of, 379.
receiving money for, liability of, 392, 393.
trustee should not entrust money for, to his solicitor, 411 note, 1171.
joint retainer of, liability of trustees in case of, 788.
liability of, to indemnify co-trustee, 230.
lien of, for costs, 796, 797, 894 note, 902 note, 905.
notice of, on documents, not bound to give, 905.
right to set off costs is in general subject to, 894 note.
trustees' priority over, 795.
Limitation, Statutes of, when entitled to plead, 1161 note.
loan of trust money, solicitor negotiating, when liable for breach of trust, 392, 393.
married woman, retainer of solicitor by, 979, 1013.
money scrivener, business of, now obsolete, and transacted by solicitor, 89.
mortgages on client's property, buying up, 1098.
notice to solicitor of trustee not necessarily notice to trustee, 915.
partner, when liable for breach of trust by, 1163, 1164.

SOLICITOR—continued.
protection of rights of, under Public Trustee Act, 707.
purchase by, from client not set aside after lapse of time, 1118.
purchase in name of son, a solicitor, held not an advancement, 200.
purchase of trust property by, when improper, 571.
purchase-money, misapplication of, by solicitor trustees liable for, 557, 558.
payment of, to solicitor of trustees, 529, 530.
receipt, cannot give, virtute officii for money recovered in action, 287.
sale, liability of trustee for acts of solicitor in reference to, 529, 530.
securities to bearer not to be left with, 328.
security to, for professional charges, when set aside, 783.
Settled Land Act, not appointed trustee under, 42.
sole trustee, appointment of, as, 239 note.
surveyor, trustees should not leave appointment of, to their solicitor, 375, 385 note.
tenant for life, of, not appointed trustee under Settled Land Act, 42, 655.
testator, to, whether trustees should employ, 797.
Trustee Act, whether eligible to be appointed under, 841.
title-deeds, when trustee may deposit with, 328, 329.
trust money not to be left under control of, 286, 1172.
trustee justified in employing, for conduct of trust, 788.
but should not delegate his duty to, 282, 375, 410 note, 1170, 1171.
when liable for acts of, 379, 788.
trustee, of, has no lien on trust fund, 796.
notice to be given to, under Settled Land Acts, 670.
release drawn by, 418.
when debarred from accepting payment of costs out of trust estate, 1160.
when liable for breach of trust, 1159, 1160, 1163.
trustee who is, cannot charge for time and trouble, 312, 313, 314, 782, 1268.
costs of, form of order as to, 1268.
co-trustees, liability of, for acts of, 788.
co-trustees, several, made defendants to suit allowed to employ one, 314.
country solicitor defending suit by agent, costs when allowed to, 314.
non-professional charges not allowed unless expressly authorised, 312, 313, 314.
not removeable against his will, 840 note.
partner, trustee employing his, when allowed to charge, 314.
value of security, trustees should not rely on advice of solicitor as to, 1170.
valuer, trustees should not leave appointment of, to their solicitor, 375, 585 note.

SOLICITORS' ACT, 1843, . . . 797, 798.

SOLICITORS' REMUNERATION ACT, 1881, . . . 789.
solicitor electing to charge under old system, whether trustee should employ, 789.

SON. See CHILD; ADVANCEMENT.

SOUTH SEA, stock and annuities, investment in, 344.

SOVEREIGN. See CROWN.
declaration of trust by, 19, 20, 54.
Frauds, Statute of, whether bound by, 57.
parens patriæ, is, 1202, 1206.
prizes taken in war vest in, 20.
grant to trustees for captors, 20.
trustee, may be, 29, 30.
will of, as to private property, 20.

SPECIAL CASE, 423.

SPECIAL OCCUPANT, 892.
devolution of estate in absence of, 186.
heir taking as, may disclaim, 220.

SPECIAL POWER. See POWER.

SPECIAL TRUST.
assets, is not, within Statute of Frauds, s. 10, . . . 1065.
cestui que trust, estate of, in what consisting, Chap. xxvii. s. 2, 884-887.
continues until countermanded by c. q. t., 886.
nature of, explained, 3, 16, 234, 709.
powers of trustees under, 709, 710.
simple trust, how converted into, 884.
Statute of 1 Ric. 3. c. 1 not applicable to, 4.
Uses, Statute of, not applicable to, 5, 234.

SPECIALTY DEBT.
breach of trust, when created by, 229, 1173.
devise avoided as against specialty creditor, 229.
heirs where bound by, 229, 230.
innocent trustee, claim of, to indemnity, is, 1177.
interest on, when allowed, under creditors' deed, 618, 619.
priority of, formerly, in administration of assets, 1063 et seq.
retainer of, by executor, 1070.
by heir or devisee, 1068 and note.
simple contract debt, now ranks in equal degree with, 230, 267, 617, 1070.
trust for payment of debts, rights of specialty creditor under, 617, 618.

SPECIE, enjoyment in, a question of intention, 333, 334, 335.

SPECIFIC APPROPRIATION.
letter of advice as to special credit opened when constituting, 89.
loan for specific purpose, effect of, 1153.
trustee in bankruptcy, money, &c., followed into hands of, 270, 1184.

SPECIFIC BEQUEST.
direction to enjoy in specie distinguished from, 333.
residuary, distinguished from, as regards duty of trustee to convert, 333.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.
costs of trustee in action for, when chargeable on trust estate, 511.
where trustee cannot make a title, 1265.
judgment for, makes legal owner a trustee within Trustee Acts, 836.
laches in bringing action for, effect of, 1119.
lands abroad, contracts as to, when enforced, 49, 50.
married woman, at instance of, 979.
mortgage, of agreement to give, 605 note.
trust, of, could not be at common law, 15.
trustee, against, when granted, 501.
breach of trust, not when it involves, 501.
hardship, whether in case of, 521, 522.
heir of trustee for sale, who has bought by agent, in favour of, 571.
improper sale by trustees not enforceable, 500.
request of party, where trustee has not obtained proper, 508.
trust for sale to pay debts, under, where sale long postponed, 534.
unreasonable annulment of sale, in case of, 516.
trustee, at instance of, not granted where sale impeachable by c. q. t., 516.
unlawful trust, of, Court will not order, 120.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—continued.
vesting order consequential on judgment for, 847, 848.
voluntary contract not enforced in equity, 86, 87.
but carries consideration at law, if under seal, 86 note.
voluntary settlement by vendor, effect of, 80, 81.

SPECULATIVE CALCULATION, Court will not act on, 448 et seq.

SPECULATIVE INVESTMENT, trustees should avoid, 373, 377, 378.

SPIRITUAL COURTS, have no jurisdiction of trusts, 15.

SPORTING, trustee not entitled to, where it can be let, 306.

STAKEHOLDER, payment into Court by, 426, 1255.

STAMP DUTY.
appointment of new trustees, on, 813.
settlement of land to be converted into money, on, 1223 note.
vesting order, on, 813.

STATUTE MERCHANT, tenant by, bound by a trust, 8.

STATUTES. See TABLE OF STATUTES.

STEP-FATHER, may place himself in loco parentis, 476.

STEP-MOTHER, doctrine of advancement does not apply to, 199.

STEWARD.
infant cannot be steward of manor, 38.
manor, trustee of, appoints, but must observe directions of c. q. t., 261.

STOCK. See INVESTMENT. appointment of person to transfer, 855, 865.
Bank of England cannot be trustee of, 32.
officer of, direction to, to transfer, 1316.
charging order on, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, effect of, 1040 et seq. See CHARGING ORDER.
co-executor concurring in transfer of, not liable, 302.
conversion of, persons interested in expectancy, when entitled to, 335.
corporation and individual registered as co-proprietors of, 31.
creditor, how available to, 1040 et seq. See CHARGING ORDER.
distringas, writ of, applicable to, 1249 et seq. See DISTRINGAS. dividends of, may be received by one co-trustee, 291. See DIVIDENDS.
cestui que trust, how put in possession of, 879.
vesting order as to right to receive, 855, 856. See VESTING ORDER. execution, liable to be taken in, under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, . . . 85, 1029.
executors and administrators, how transferred by, 32.
gift of, by transfer into joint names of settlor and stranger, effect of, 166.
irregularity in issue of, transferee when affected by, 901.
lunatic, in name of, vesting order as to, 860 et seq., 1314 et seq.
married woman trustee of, may transfer as if she were feme sole, 36, 987.
Married Women's Property Acts, provisions of, as to, 1020, 1024, 1025.
mortgage to replace, whether trustees should lend on, 372.
new trustee, how vested in, 810 et seq.
private company, trust money must not be invested upon stock of, 344.
public, investment upon, 362 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
purchase of, in name of child, raises presumption of advancement, 199, 200.
purchase of, in name of stranger, gives rise to resulting trust, 184.
receipt for, power to give, does not authorise receipt for cash, 536. restraining order under 5 Vict. c. 5, s. 4, . . . 1249 et seq.

STOCK—continued.
resulting trust on transfer of, 166.
rise in price of, trustee not entitled to benefit of, 577.
sale of, all trustees must concur in, 291.
at time of depreciation should be avoided, 371.
tortious, proof for, in bankruptcy of trustee, 1184.
under power of attorney given by trustees, 879.
settlement of, in fraud of creditors, defeasible under 13 Eliz. c. 5, . . . 85.
sole name of deceased trustee, in, vesting order as to, 855.
specific legatee of, entitled to dividends, 333.
transfer of, at Bank of England, on production of probate, 32.
transfer of, to mortgagor, by trustees in lieu of selling and paying over proceeds, 710.
whether operating as gift or resulting trust, 166.
transferee of, whether affected by notice of trust, 901.
trust of, when perfectly created, 73 et seq.
Trustee Act, under, definition of, 853.
trustee liable for neglecting to enforce transfer of, 1164, 1165.
vesting order as to, 852 et seq. See VESTING ORDER.
voluntary settlement of, when void as against creditors, 85.

STOCKBROKER, trust money in hands of, followed into hands of trustee in bankruptcy, 270.

STOP-ORDER, 916 et seq.
charging order not a necessary preliminary, 1042 note.
creditor may obtain, within six months after charging order, 1042.
practice as to obtaining, 918.
priority when gained by obtaining, 916, 917, 918.

STRANGER. advancement for, whether presumed when purchaser in loco parentis, 199, 200.
benefiting indirectly by doctrine as to portions, 482, 483.
doctrine of portions whether applicable to gift by, 464 et seq.
notice by, to trustee, ineffectual, 916.
purchase in name of, resulting trust when created by, 183 et seq. See RESULTING TRUST.

STRICT SETTLEMENT.
direction for, 596.
female, upon, how to be framed, 143.
meaning of term, 596.

SUBPŒNA.
issue of, before bill filed under old practice, 1224.
origin of, as remedy of c. q. t., 1.
remedy by, c. q. t. limited to, 14.

SUBROGATION.
cestui que trust, of, advancing money, to right of trustees, 796.
creditors, of, to right of trustees carrying on business, 793, 794.
enforcement of right of, against estate, 793.
stranger, of, advancing money, to rights of trustee, 1165 note.
stranger, to right of, injured by wood cutter, 793.

SUBSCRIPTIONS, promised by testator, executor not justified in paying, 738.
resulting trust in favour of subscribers to fund, 167.

SUCCESSION DUTY.
accounts necessary for discharge of, expense of, how payable, 878.
attaching on money does not prevent trustee for sale making good title, 521.
trustee liable for, 880.

SUIT. See ACTION.

SUMMONS.
originating, for determining questions, 419 et seq., 772.
Settled Land Act, 1882, for determining questions arising under, 655.
Trustee Act, applications under, when to be made by, 1304 et seq.

SUPERSTITIOUS PURPOSES, trusts for, void, 120.

SUPERSTITIOUS USE, whether Crown may prove, by parol, 57.

SUPPLYING WORDS, in marriage articles, 133.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE, 15.

SURFACE, sale of, apart from minerals, 511, 512.

SURRENDER.
contingent remainders, not now destroyed by, 137, 457.
copyholds, of, to use of will, 931. See COPYHOLD. power to accept, conferred by Settled Land Acts, 663.

SURVEYOR.
Lands Clauses Act, under, one of trustees cannot be appointed, 289.
lien of trustee for expenses of surveying estate, 792.
report and fee of, 375.
trustee, employed by, is not entitled to lien on trust estate, 796.
trustees, employed by, on lending money on real security, 375 et seq., 585.

"SURVIVING" TRUSTEE, 755, 756, 824. appointment of trustee where no legal personal representative of, 838.

SURVIVORSHIP. bare authority, none of, secus authority coupled with interest, 293.
committeeship of lunatic, of, 293.
executorship or administratorship, of, 293.
guardianship, of, 293.
married woman's right of, 958 et seq.
office of trustee, of, 293 et seq.
power of sale in mortgage, of, 510, 753, 754.
powers of trustees, of, 753 et seq. See POWER. trust, of, 293; though there is power to appoint new trustees, 294, 509, 510.
trust for sale, of, 509, 510.
uncertainty as to, power to make vesting order in case of, 845, 853.

SUSPICION, trustee must not act on mere, 318.

TACKING, 384, 1034, 1107 note. See MORTGAGE.

TAXATION. See COSTS.
cestui que trust, when directed at instance of, 788, 790, 797, 798.

TAXES. See RATES.

TECHNICAL TERMS, employment of, for creation of trust, 124, 125.

TENANT AT WILL.
building on landlord's land with his connivance, 926, 927.
cestui que trust, is, to trustee, 871.

TENANT AT WILL—continued.
determination of tenancy by, 1131.
Limitations, Statute of, provisions of, as to, 1130.
mortgagor when, of mortgagee, 1130.
renewal of lease by executor of, effect of, 203.

TENANT FOR LIFE.
advancement of, power to apply trust fund for, 736.
alienation by, effect of, on exercise of power vested in him, 829.
annuity, keeping down, entitled to charge on corpus, 337 note.
appointing improper person trustee, personally liable for costs, 831.
apportionment of purchase-money as between, and remainderman, 508, 509, 689, 743. See APPORTIONMENT. of annuity payable under covenant by testator, 342.
of money recovered from person in default, 1187, 1188.
of value of reversion, 341, 689.
bankruptcy of, effect of, 736, 774.
bonus dividend on issue of new shares, whether entitled to, 878.
breach of trust, participating in, liability of, 1179 et seq.
business, of, when bound to make good losses during previous life tenancy, 877.
charge, of, who is also owner of fee, time when running in favour of, 1110, 1111.
charge, paying off, primâ facie no merger, 942. See MERGER. chattels or heirlooms, of, 879.
should sign inventory, 231.
consent of, to investment by trustees, 349, 350, 359, 368.
discretion of trustees not dispensed with, 325.
when necessary, under Settled Land Act, 553, 554, 773 et seq.
contingent legacy, tenant for life of residue entitled to interim income of, 337.
contract by, to grant lease, power of trustees to effectuate, 757, 758.
conversion, how interested in income accruing before, 335 et seq.
rents accruing before, right of tenant for life to, 1121.
copyholds, fines on admission to, how to be borne, 453.
tenant for life of manor, when entitled to, 876.
costs incurred by, in protecting estate, allowed to trustees, 789.
costs occasioned by incumbrance of his estate, liability for, 834.
covenant for title by, 523.
debts and legacies, how payable as between tenant for life of residue and remainderman, 336, 337.
dividends, apportionment of, on change of investment, 371, 372.
possession of, how tenant for life put in, 879.
equitable, leave to, to exercise powers under Settled Land Acts, 779.
equitable, right of, to possession, 779, 868 et seq.
favour to, trustee should not show, 324, 347, 349, 388, 501, 508, 509, 758, 1090.
forfeiture by, by feoffment of fee simple, 1059.
household goods, his right to use, 878.
improvements and repairs by, 711 et seq.
income of, in respect of debts recovered, 335, 1187, 1188.
income, wrongly in possession of, accountable, 388, 389.
incumbrance, effect of tenant for life purchasing, 310, 311, 942.
infant, powers of, under Settled Land Acts, 656, 662, 694.
interest, when bound to keep down, 448, 451.
investment with consent of, 349, 350, 354, 368.
lease by, 212, 663, 673 note.
leaseholds, of, obligation of, to repair, 266.

TENANT FOR LIFE—continued.
leaseholds, of, to what income entitled, 333, 334.
married woman, rights of, 694, 869, 957.
minerals, power of tenant for life to work or sell, 212.
mines, power of tenant for life to lease, 147, 212, 663, 876, 877.
right of tenant for life to rents and royalties, 876, 877.
new shares, whether entitled to, 878.
partnership, share in, tenant for life to what income entitled in respect of, 341.
possession, equitable tenant for life when entitled to, 779, 868 et seq.
powers whether exercisable by, after alienation of estate, 829.
powers of, persons having, 658.
protector of settlement, equitable tenant for life may be, 875.
purchase by, from trustees for sale, 569.
purchase from, by trustees for purchase, 590.
rates and taxes, must pay, 878.
receiver appointed by Court, expense of, falls on, 1264.
refund, must, where overpaid, 389, 415.
renewable leaseholds, of, 446 et seq., 1095.
fines on renewal how provided for, 446 et seq., 1095.
neglect or refusal by, to renew, 452, 453.
renewal of lease by, in own name, effect of, 202 et seq., 438.
reversion, of, of lease annually renewable, rights of, as regards income, 876.
repairs by, 711 et seq. See WASTE.
request by, for exercise of power, 508.
residue, of, to what income entitled, 333 et seq.
restoration of life estate on resettlement, effect of, 650.
reversionary interest, of, what proportion of proceeds attributable to, 341, 342.
sale by, to trustees for purchase, 590. sale by, under powers of Settled Land Act, 147, 506, 507, 662 et seq.
Settled Land Act, his powers under, 662 et seq. See SETTLED LAND ACTS. shares in company, payments out of profits, true rule as to, 878 note.
specifically bequeathed property, of, is entitled to full income, 333.
stock, of, apportionment of dividends on change of investment of, 371, 372.
succession duty, must bear expense of accounts in respect of, 878.
timber, his power to cut, 209 et seq., 711, 876, 877, 1196. See WASTE.
title-deeds, duty of tenant for life to produce, 214, 215.
rights of equitable tenant for life as to custody of, 874, 875.
trade, where trust estate employed in, to what income entitled, 340, 877.
trust for sale, may buy under, though his consent be necessary to sale, 590.
trustee, not appointed, 41, 655, 826, 827.
trustee for sale, tenant for life who is, cannot profit by postponing sale, 338, 339.
Trustee Act, is not person "absolutely entitled" under, 854.
except as regards income only, 854.
Trustee Act, s. 42, petition by tenant for life under, 429.
underwoods and thinnings of plantations, entitled to, 876.
waste by, 209 et seq., 711, 1224. See WASTE.
waste, when to be made dispunishable for, 595.

TENANT IN COMMON.
devise to co-tenants, may be good as to one and void as to another, 66.
trust property does not pass by, 254.
election by, to take property in unconverted state, 1234, 1235. See ELECTION.
equitable, injunction against co-tenant, cutting timber, 873.

TENANT IN COMMON—continued.
fiduciary relation, not in, co-tenant, 213.
implication of tenancy in common, 184, 185.
implication of tenancy in common in case of joint loan, 185; or where two possessed of mortgage term purchase equity of redemption, 185; in joint purchase where purchasers contribute unequally, 185; or in joint undertaking in trade, 185.
mortgagee, tenant in common of equity of redemption, time does not run against, 1111. presumption of ouster, none between equitable tenants in common, 1115 note.
stock, of, held by corporation and individual, 31.

TENANT IN TAIL.
assignment of equitable interest by, 890 et seq.
charge, paying off, when presumed to intend merger, 943.
chattels, bequest of, to tenant in tail first attaining twenty-one, 110.
consent of protector, effectual though given after execution of disentailing deed and death of tenant in tail, 455 note.
disentailing assurance by, under Fines and Recoveries Act, 455, 891.
election by, 1235 et seq. See ELECTION.
equitable, cannot require trustee to convey legal fee, 880.
equitable recovery, effect of, 12, 891.
estate pur autre vie, of, powers of alienation of, 891, 892.
executory trust, under, for A. for life, and after his decease to the heirs of his body, 134.
lunatic, improvement of estate of, 1243.
vesting order of property of, 862.
married woman, equity of, to settlement, 963.
payment out of Court to, under Lands Clauses Act, 1237.
Settled Land Act, powers of, under, 658. trust for management during minority of, when void for remoteness, 109.
Uses, Statute of, not applicable to seisin of, 4.

TENANT TO PRÆCIPE, 456; equitable, 891.

TENANT, YEARLY, renewing lease, is trustee for remainderman, 203.

TERM OF YEARS.
attendant, 102, 280 note. See ATTENDANT TERM. charge secured by, when barred under Statutes of Limitation, 1128, 1132.
long, may be converted into fee, 746, 1013.

TERMINABLE SECURITIES. duty of trustees to convert, 332 et seq.
investment in, by trustees, 352.

TERROR, confirmation or release must not be obtained by, 583.

TESTAMENTARY DISPOSITION. See WILL.

TESTAMENTARY EXPENSES.
costs of administration action are, 800, 801.
costs of taking opinion of Court, quære, 801.
priority of, in administration of estate in bankruptcy, 1071, 1072.

THEFT of trust property, trustee when liable for, 327.

THELLUSSON ACT, 96 et seq. See ACCUMULATIONS ACT, 1800.

THINNINGS OF WOOD, tenant for life when entitled to, 876.

TIMBER. See WASTE.
account of, in equity on legal title, 1144.
improperly felled, account in respect of, 209.
infant's estate, on, 716, 717. See INFANT.
proceeds of, whether realty or personalty, 1245, 1246.
interest when charged in respect of proceeds of, 209, 715.
larch plantations blown down, application of proceeds of, 211 note.
lunatic's estate, on, proceeds of, how applicable, 1241 et seq. See LUNATIC.
portions when raisable by sale of, 494, 496.
produce of, directions touching, excepted from Thellusson Act, 99.
property in, when felled, to whom belonging, 209, 210.
repairs, legal tenant for life may cut for, 711.
quære whether trustee may also do so, 713 et seq.
sale of, by order of Court, 172, 173.
sale of, by trustees separately from estate, 511.
sale of estate by trustees separate from timber, 511.
Settled Land Acts, proceeds of sale under, how applicable, 673, 679.
tenant for life when trustee of proceeds of sale of, 209, 210.
powers of, to cut and sell timber, 209 et seq., 711, 876, 877, 1224.
timber estate, purchase of, by trustee, 589.
trustee, power of, to cut timber, 715 et seq.; during minority of beneficial owner, 716, 717; where holding on implied trust, 156.
underwood treated as income, 876.
windfalls belong to owner of first estate of inheritance, 211 note.

TIME.
bar by lapse of, 191, 565, 566. See LACHES; LIMITATION OF ACTION.
creditors' deed, time limited in, is not of the essence, 613.
notice of equitable incumbrance, for giving, 912.
payment of fund into Court, what, allowed for, 1261.
power of sale, within what time exercisable, 501, 508.
powers of executor or trustee, how affected by lapse of, 565.
priority, how it affects, 920 et seq., 1106, 1107.
trust for sale, within what time to be executed, 501, 518.
trustee not entitled to allowance for his, 780 et seq.

TITLE.
adverse, trustee cannot set up against c. q. t., 318.
clearing, on sales, trustees may do all acts for, 521.
commencement of, which purchaser may require, 518 et seq.
conditions as to, on sale by trustee, 516, 517.
covenants for, by trustees and mortgagees, 518, 522.
duty of trustee to inquire into, on lending money on real security, 378, 379.
on purchasing property, 586 et seq.
good or marketable, what is, 586.
landlord's, tenant not allowed to dispute, 872.
proof of, which purchaser may require, 518 et seq.
receipt, power of vendor to sign, is question of title, 536 note, 823.
secret, person concealing, precluded from setting up, 925 et seq.
sole trustee, objection to title on sale by, 823.
trustee bound to investigate, on lending on mortgage, 373, 378, 379.
trustee for sale bound to make good title, 511.
trustee setting up his own, ordered to pay costs, 1276, 1277.
trustees for purchasing must see to sufficiency of, 586.
Trustee Act, Court cannot decide question of title under, 835.
vesting orders forming links in, to be framed with care, 849.

TITLE DEED
copies of, c. q. t. entitled to, at own expense, 874, 875.
covenant to produce, effect of, 214, 215.
trustees when bound to enter into, 523 et seq.
custody of, who entitled to, when legal estate in trustee, 873.
cestui que trust entitled absolutely in possession, 874, 1238, 1239.
custody of, one of several trustees, may be committed to, 875.
solicitor, with, when trustee may leave, 328, 329.
tenant for life, when entitled to, 873, 874.
tenant in tail when entitled to, 874 note.
trustee in bankruptcy of husband of legal tenant for life not entitled to, 874.
trustee, negligence of, as to, 921.
trustees of term for raising portions not entitled to, 498.
trustee should not part with, to settlor, 873.
deposit of, 49, 921 et seq. See MORTGAGE, equitable.
holder of, how far a constructive trustee for remainderman or part owner, 215.
may gain priority over earlier incumbrancer, 921 et seq.
inspection of, right of c. q. t. to, 874, 875.
leaseholds, of, executor may hold, till debts paid, 874.
mortgagee improperly dealing with, may be postponed, 923, 924.
priority by possession of, 921 et seq.
as against holders of floating securities, 922 note.
production and copies of, when purchaser entitled to require, 518 et seq., 523, 524.
purchaser neglecting to obtain, postponed, 924.
recital in title deed more than twenty years old, 516.
retention of, vendor entitled to, 519.

TITLE OF HONOUR, land, is, within Settled Land Acts, 691.

TOLLS, investment on mortgage of, by trustees, 380.

TOMBS.
trust for keeping up, effect of, 122, 123 note.
void unless charitable, ex. gr. for monument in church, ib.
for erection of monument in church to deceased person, valid, 122.

TORT.
husband and wife cannot sue each other in, 978.
married woman may be sued for, as if feme sole, 976.
trustee de son tort, 214, 231, 232, 798.

TORTIOUS.
conveyance, 2.
conversion of trust property, 270, 1150 et seq., 1243. See CONVERSION.
sale of land by trustees, 1164.
of stock by trustees, proof in respect of, 1184.
timber, felling of, on estate of lunatic, 1242.

TRADE.
allowance for management given to constructive trustee, 782; secus, express trustee, 782.
bank, money lodged in, to executor's account, considered to be traded with, 396.
buildings used in, investment by trustees on, 376, 377.
direction to employ assets in, effect of, 720, 721, 793, 794.
executor might formerly have used assets in, 395; secus now, 395 et seq.
trading with assets, liability of, 308 et seq., 395 et seq., 562, 720, 721.
following trust property employed in, 1152.
investment in, 350.
loss, tenant for life when bound to pay, out of income, 877.

TRADE—continued.
married woman may carry on, separately from her husband, 1020, 1023, 1024.
postponement of sale, effect of direction for, 721.
profits of, fiduciary agents when accountable for, 310.
profits of, trustee when accountable to c. q. t. for, 307, 308.
set-off as against specific legatee of profits of, 898.
tenancy in common implied on joint advance for, 185.
tenant for life of residue, right of, to income of trust estate employed in trade, 341.
testator, of, executor carrying on, 719, 720.
trustee carrying on, is amenable to bankruptcy law, 266.
pursuant to direction of testator, 721, 793, 794.
rights of creditors as against trust estate, 793.
trustee must not employ trust money in, 307, 350.
so employing trust money, charged at option of c. q. t. with profits, 307, 398; or interest, 398, 399.

TRADE MARK.
equities in respect of, enforceable, 188.
registration of, 188.

TRADER, 599, 603, 604. See BANKRUPTCY; DEBT.

TRAITOR. See CONVICT; FORFEITURE.

TRANSFER.
action for administration, of, to Court of Bankruptcy, 1071.
appointment of person to transfer stock under Trustee Act, 855.
definition of, in Trustee Act, 854.
mortgage, of, by trustees, 386, 387. See MORTGAGE.
refusal by trustee to transfer, vesting order in case of, 853, 854, 855.
shares or stock, of, 710, 900, 901. See SHARES; STOCK. into Court, 1261. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
under Trustee Act, 1307, 1308.
vesting order in place of, 851 et seq.
transferee when bound by equities affecting transferor, 901.

TRANSMISSION, trust money, of, to a distance, how to be effected, 287, 411.

TRANSMUTATION OF POSSESSION. Chap. vi. 71 et seq.
where there is, the trust, though voluntary, will be enforced, 71.
and where there is not, if trust be perfectly created, 71.

TRAVELLING, expenses of, trustee when allowed, 788.

TREASON.
forfeiture in case of, 26, 27, 1058, 1059; now abolished, 27, 1059. See FORFEITURE.
outlawry upon, effect of, 279.

TREASURY, consent of, required to alienation by corporation, 20, 31.

TROUBLE.
allowance for, may be made by special direction, 783, 784.
will not cease on institution of suit, 783.
amount of, where not known, settled by reference, 784.
annuity to trustee for, does not prevent allowance for expenses, 792.
business, in carrying on, allowance for, 782.
commission whether allowed to executor in East Indies, 781, 782.
committee of lunatic not allowed to charge for, 781.

TROUBLE—continued.
contract by trustee with c. q. t. or Court for allowance for, 784, 785.
executor not allowed to charge for, 781.
mortgagee not allowed to charge for, 781 ; whether to contract for allowance, 784, 785.
receiver not allowed to charge for, 781.
settlor may direct allowance for, to be made to trustee, 783.
trustee not generally allowed to charge for, 780.

TRUE OWNER, whether bare trustee is, within bankrupt laws, 274.

TRUST.
absolute gift or trust, words of recommendation whether giving rise to, 148 et seq. See IMPLIED TRUST.
acceptance of, 224 et seq., 281, 282. See ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST.
accumulation, for, 95 et seq. See ACCUMULATION. advantage by, trustee may not make, 306 et seq.
advowson, of, for parishioners, 91, 92, 288.
alienation, restriction of, not allowed by way of trust, 111 et seq., 890.
annexed in privity to the estate, 13 ; to person, 14.
assets, a trust is, 9, 1063, 1064. See ASSETS.
assignment of equitable interest, 7, 889 et seq. See EQUITABLE ESTATE.
averrable, when, 53, 54.
Bank of England does not take notice of, 32.
bare trust and trust coupled with interest, 246 note, 292, 763, 764. See BARE TRUSTEE.
cestui que trust, estate of, 867 et seq. ; remedy of, 14. See CESTUI QUE TRUST.
chapel, for, how created, 88 ; how administered, 616, 627.
charges and expenses, allowance of, to trustee, 787 et seq., 881. See EXPENSES.
charitable or public trust, 18. See CHARITY.
chattels, of, 3 ; when perfectly created, 73.
church or chapel, for, how effected in equity, 91.
churchyard, for repair of, 122.
classification of trusts, Chap. ii. 16-18.
common, with power annexed, 17.
condition distinguished from, 34.
confidence, in what sense trust is, 12.
consideration for, 71 et seq. See CONSIDERATION.
construction of, 124 et seq.
constructive, Chap. x. 201-218. See CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST. contingent remainders, for preserving, Chap. xvi. 454-458. See CONTINGENT REMAINDER. convey, trust to, 16.
conveyance upon, and no trust declared, 169, 170.
copyholds, of, 55, 931.
creation of, Chap. iii. 19 et seq. See CREATION OF TRUST.
formalities required for, Chap. iv. 55 et seq.
creditors, for, Chap. xx. 598-619.
to defeat or delay, invalid, 18, 81 et seq., 599, 600, 609.
Crown whether bound by, 20.
curtesy of, 9.
debts, for payment of, Chap. xx. 598 et seq. See DEBT. declaration of, when sufficient, 53 et seq., 124 et seq. See DECLARATION OF TRUST.
definition of, 11 ; in Trustee Act, 835.
delegation of, not permitted, 282 et seq., 501, 514, 554. See DELEGATION.
descent of, 1061, 1062. See DESCENT. determination of, by cestui que trust solely interested, 885.

TRUST—continued.
devise of, 252 et seq., 930 et seq.
devisee, whether capable of executing, 256.
disclaimer of, 219 et seq. See DISCLAIMER.
discretionary, 16, 121, 769. See DISCRETIONARY TRUST.
dower of, 7, 9.
duration of, 18, 95, 96, 886.
equitable interest, of, when sufficiently created, 77.
escheat of, 10, 315, 1059 et seq. See ESCHEAT.
estate, devolution of, 247, 248.
estate, the trust follows the, 1073.
estate tail, equitable, 890, 891. See ENTAIL. execution of, causes and matters for, assigned to Chancery Division, 15.
executory, 127 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST. express, Chap. viii. s. 1, 124-148. See EXPRESS TRUST.
express, how affected by Statute of Limitations, 1121 et seq.
extent from Crown against, 1057, 1058.
extinguishment of, 502.
failure of, for want of trustee, equity will not permit, 1073 et seq.
follows estate into hands of all claiming under trustee, 14.
foreign property, of, 49 et seq.
forfeiture of, 276, 1058. See FORFEITURE.
Frauds, Statute of, how affecting trusts, 35 et seq.; 216 et seq. See FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
horses and dogs, for maintenance of, 121.
immoral, is void, 120. See UNLAWFUL TRUST.
imperfect gift not carried into effect as, 71 et seq.
implied, Chap. viii. s. 2, 148-162. See IMPLIED TRUST.
instrumental, explained, 16.
intention by settlor to create, 88, 167.
irrevocable, when, 605, 606.
judgments, how affected by, 1028 et seq.
land discharged from, when money raised by trustee, 531.
land, does not issue out of, 13.
land, of, when perfectly created, 13.
lands abroad, of, 49.
lawful, 17, Chap. vii. s. 1, 90 et seq.
legal estate, persons taking, when bound by, 275 et seq., 1100 et seq.
limitation of, compared with legal limitations, 48, 90 et seq., 124, 125.
maintenance, for, 157, 158; how far valid as against creditors of c. q. t., 112 et seq. See MAINTENANCE.
married woman, for, 47. See MARRIED WOMAN.
ministerial, explained, 16.
mixed power and trust, 17, 1076.
money followed into land, 189, 190, 1150 et seq.
mortmain, in, 47, 102, 103. See MORTMAIN; CHARITY.
nature and origin of, 1, 6.
notice of, 593 et seq., 1100 et seq. See NOTICE.
recitals with view of keeping, off title, 386, 387.
obligatory, exercise of, is, 1075.
operation of law, by, 19, 124 note, 216 et seq.
origin of modern trust, 1, 7 et seq.
parishioners, for, 91 et seq.
parol, may be declared by, when, 53 et seq., 63, 64.
partial, effect of, 156, 166.
peerage, of, cannot be created, 48 note.

TRUST—continued.
pension, of, cannot be raised by parol, 63.
perfectly created, when, 71 et seq. See CONSIDERATION; VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.
performance of, 71.
perpetuity, rule against, application of, to trusts, 18, 95, 110. See PERPETUITY.
poor of parish, trust for, how carried into effect, 91, 92, 723, 724.
post obit, 608.
power, distinguished from, 17, 533, 534, 750, 1074 et seq. See POWER.
precatory words, when created by use of, 148 et seq. See IMPLIED TRUST. principles governing, at present day, 9.
private, 18.
privity of estate, extent of term, as applicable to, 13.
prize of war, grant by royal warrant to trustees, 20.
profit by, trustee must not make, 201, 209, 306 et seq.
properties of, in analogy to legal estates, Chap. xxvii. 867 et seq.
property, what may be made the subject of, Chap. iv. 47 et seq.
public, 18, 30, 1202. See PUBLIC TRUST. purchase, for, Chap. xix. 585-597. See PURCHASE. purchaser whether bound by, 275, 1073, 1074. See PURCHASER.
recommendation, whether raised by, 148 et seq. See PRECATORY TRUST.
reference, by, how to be framed, 595; how construed, 148.
relinquishment of, Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT OF TRUST.
renewable leaseholds, of, 201 et seq., 438 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
repair, to, a window or monument in church valid as charitable gift, 122.
resulting, Chap. ix. 163-200. See RESULTING TRUST. retirement from, Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT OF TRUST.
revocable or irrevocable, 605, 606.
rise and progress of trusts, 1 et seq.
sale, for, 234, 499 et seq. See SALE.
secret, parol evidence of, when admissible, 63 et seq.
seisin and disseisin of, 933 et seq.
separate use of married woman, for, 968 et seq. See MARRIED WOMAN.
settlor, who may be, 19 et seq. See SETTLEMENT.
several estates, of, 798.
shares in companies, of, not noticed on register, 905.
ship, of, 187.
simoniacal, 118, 119.
simple trust, 1, 16, 867 et seq., 1065. See SIMPLE TRUST.
special trust, 1, 16, 234, 709. specific appropriation, what amounts to, so as to create trust, 89, 269. See SPECIFIC APPROPRIATION.
stock, of, when perfectly created, 73.
superstitious purposes, for, 120.
survivorship of, 293 et seq., 509, 510, 763. See SURVIVORSHIP.
tombs, for repair of, 122, 123 note.
trustee, trust does not fail for want of, 1073 et seq.
uncertainty of object or subject of, effect of, 149, 150, 151, 152.
unlawful, 17, 66 et seq., 102 et seq. See UNLAWFUL TRUST.
use, anciently known as a, 11.
Uses, Statute of, special trusts not within, 5, 234.
validity of, trustee bound to assume, as against cestui que trust, 318.
voluntary, 79 et seq. See VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT; VOLUNTARY TRUST.

TRUST ESTATE. See LEGAL ESTATE.

TRUST INVESTMENT ACT, 1889, investment under, 362.

TRUSTEE. abroad, person domiciled, should not be appointed, 819 et seq. See ABROAD.
absconding, removal of, 1087, 1305.
absent, where trustee is, Court may make vesting order, 844 et seq.
acceptance of trust by, 224 et seq., 281, 282. See ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST.
accountable for rents and profits, 206, 211, 576, 867, 1143 et seq., 1211 et seq. See RENTS AND PROFITS.
accounts, bound to keep, 531, 886, 887.
act or neglect of, does not vary rights of c. q. t., 611, 946, 1073, 1214, 1215, 1240 et seq.
action for breach. See BREACH OF TRUST.
"acting," meaning of term, 290, 816, 825, 914.
action when to be brought in name of, 260, 261. See ACTION.
active, bound to be, 230.
admission by, sufficient to ground order for payment into Court, 1256 et seq.
advantage, trustee may not make, by trust, 201, 208, 306 et seq.
adverse title, trustee cannot set up against c. q. t., 318.
agent, employment of, by trustee, 284, 785, 786. See AGENT.
alien may be, 40, 841 note.
allowances to, 779 et seq. See COSTS; EXPENSES.
appointment of, 835 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
assign of, liable to execute use or trust, 2, 14, 276.
auctioneer, trustee who is, cannot make profit from trust, 312.
Bank of England cannot be, 31, 32.
banker, trustee, who is, cannot make profit by trust, 312.
bankrupt not absolutely disqualified from being, 41, 818.
bankruptcy of, 41, 266 et seq., 818. See BANKRUPTCY.
bare trustee, meaning of term, 248 note. See BARE TRUSTEE. beneficial interest of, committing a breach of trust, may be stopped, 1181 et seq.
beneficially interested, assignee of, bound by equities, 894.
bond given by, for due execution of trust, effect of, 282.
breach of trust by, Chaps. xxx., xxxi., 1086-1213. See BREACH OF TRUST.
broker, trustee who is, cannot profit by trust, 312.
business of testator, carrying on, 719 et seq. See EXECUTOR; TRADE. care to be taken by, 327 et seq., 372 et seq.
cestui que trust can compel performance of duty by, 1086 et seq. See CESTUI QUE TRUST.
cestui que trust should not be appointed, as a general rule, 41, 841.
charge, cannot generally, for personal services, 780.
charity, for, duties of, 620 et seq.; removal of, 1087, 1089.
chattels personal, duties of trustees of, Chap. xiv. 319-437.
commission, when allowed to charge, 312, 780, 781.
concurrence by, in sale with owners of other shares, 508, 509, 743.
contingent remainders, to preserve, duties of, Chap. xvi. 454-458.
"continuing," 818, 824; exercise of power by, 755, 756.
conversion of trust property, duties of trustee as to, 332 et seq., 1214 et seq. See CONVERSION. conveyance by, at request of c. q. t., 251, 878 et seq.; of assignee of c. q. t., 889; on sale, 518 et seq. See CONVEYANCE; SALE.
conveyance to, how to be framed, 593 et seq.
copyholds, of, 262 et seq. See COPYHOLDS. corporation, capacity of, to be, 30, 31, 32.
costs of, 1265 et seq. See COSTS.
co-trustees, liability of, for each other's acts, 283, 289 et seq., 757. See CO-TRUSTEE.
Court, powers of trustees appointed by, 760.

TRUSTEE—continued.
covenants by, on sale, &c., 522 et seq. See COVENANT; SALE.
creditors, for, duties, &c., of, 598-612. See DEBT.
Crown may be, but quære as to remedy of c. q. t., 29.
custodian trustee, public trustee may be appointed, 701.
custody of chattels by, 327 et seq.
debt of, has no priority over other debts, 616.
debtor to estate, assignment of beneficial interest by, 893, 894.
debts, may not buy up, for himself, 307.
power of trustee to compound, 739.
defaulting, when liable to attachment, 1191 et seq. See DEBTORS' ACT; BREACH OF TRUST.
definition of, in Trustee Act, 835.
delegation of duty by, 282 et seq. See DELEGATION. devise by, of trust estate, effect of, 255 et seq. See DEVISE.
devise to, when to be construed to pass fee simple, 252, 253.
implied by nomination as trustee, 239, 240.
devisee when to be deemed, 67, 68.
discharge of, Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq. See INDEMNITY; RELEASE; RELINQUISHMENT.
disclaimer by, effect of, 219 et seq. See DISCLAIMER. distribution of trust fund by, 402 et seq.
domiciled, should be, within jurisdiction of Court, 40, 822.
duties, how compelled to observe, 1086 et seq.
equitable interest, of, when entitled to conveyance, 882, 883.
equitable mortgage by, 1106.
estate of, Chap. xii. 233 et seq. See LEGAL ESTATE.
executor when converted into, 228, 724 note, 844, 1134.
expenses of, allowance of, 787 et seq. See EXPENSES.
failure of, remedy of c. q. t., on, 1073 et seq.
failure of c. q. t. 315 et seq.
feme covert may be, but not advisable to select her, 32, 33.
forfeiture by, effect of, 276, 1058. See FORFEITURE. fraudulent, liability of, 1157, 1158, 1181 et seq., 1191 et seq. See FRAUD.
gift, cannot accept, from c. q. t., 308.
heir of, formerly not bound by trust, 2. See HEIR.
husband held to be, for wife, of her separate property, 969, 1074.
ignorance of, as to his true character, 273, 1147.
impartial, should be, as regards interests of c. q. t., 324, 349, 388, 506, 758, 1090.
implied trust, under, liability of, 156. See IMPLIED TRUST.
improvements by, 711 et seq. See IMPROVEMENTS.
"incapable," 819.
incumbrance on trust property, cannot buy up, 307.
infant ought not to be appointed, 37 et seq.
injunction against, to restrain breach of trust, 1096 et seq. See BREACH OF TRUST. interest, when charged with, 393 et seq. See INTEREST.
intermediate trustees, 883.
investment of trust money by, Chap. xiv. s. 4., 343 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
judgment against, effect of, 250, 274. See JUDGMENT.
laches by, its effect as to right of c. q. t., 611, 946, 1073. See LACHES.
legacy to, who is attesting witness of will, 306 note.
legal estate taken by, Chap, xii. 233-280. See LEGAL ESTATE.
legal personal representative, estate of trustee devolves on, 247.
legal proceedings, compelled to take, on having indemnity, 1094, 1095. See ACTION.

TRUSTEE—continued.
lien of, for expenses, &c., 205, 793 et seq.
limitation of action against, 1118 et seq. See LIMITATION OF ACTION; LIMITATION, STATUTES OF.
loss of trust property, when liable for, 327 et seq.
lunatic, exercise of powers vested in, 861, 1313, 1314.
majority of trustees binds minority in public trusts, 290, 291, 747.
married woman may be, but not advisable to select her, 32, 33. See MARRIED WOMAN.
merger of charge, assignment to trustee to prevent, 938 et seq. See MERGER.
misconduct by, a ground for his removal, 1087, 1088.
mortgagee, how far he is, 13. See MORTGAGEE.
negligence of, as to title deeds, postponement, 923.
new, appointment of, 835 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
non-professional, duty of, 230.
notice to, effect of, 402, 404, 902 et seq. See NOTICE.
number of trustees, 43, 44, 820 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
office of, general properties of, Chap. xiii. 281-318. See OFFICE OF TRUSTEE. partner of, when liable for his breaches of trust, 1163, 1164, 1185, 1186.
payment by, 410 et seq. See PAYMENT. payment to, how to be made, 324, 325, 329, 528, 529, 558. See RECEIPT.
persons in position of trustee, 309, 310.
portions, duties of trustees for raising, Chap. xvii. 459 et seq. See PORTION. possession of trust estate, rights and duties of trustee as to, 871, 1130 et seq. See POSSESSION.
power, when bound to exercise, 750, 751, 1074 et seq. See POWER.
powers of, general, Chap. xxiv. 709 et seq. See POWER. production of documents by, 1253, 1254.
profit, must not make, by office, 201, 209, 306 et seq.
public trustee. See PUBLIC TRUSTEE. purchase, for duties of, Chap. xix., 585 et seq. See PURCHASE. of trust estate by trustee, 568 et seq. See PURCHASE.
quorum, Court sometimes appoints, where trustees numerous, 291.
receipt by, 533 et seq. See RECEIPT.
receiver, cannot be, at salary, 311.
refusal by, to act, 816, 845, 852, 853, 854.
relative of c. q. t. objectionable as a rule, 41, 826, 841 note.
relinquishment of office by, Chap. xxvi. 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT. removal of, for misconduct, &c., 1087 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES. remuneration to, 311, 699, 784, 785.
renewable leaseholds, of, duties of, 438 et seq. See RENEWABLE LEASEHOLDS.
renewal of lease, by, in own name, 201 et seq.
renounce, cannot, having once accepted, 281, 282.
repairs by, 591, 592, 711 et seq. See REPAIRS.
retirement of, 803 et seq. See RELINQUISHMENT OF TRUST.
sale, duties of trustee for, Chap. xviii. 499 et seq. See SALE.
school, for, 630.
services, may not charge for, 201, 209, 306 et seq., 780.
Settled Land Acts, under, duties of, Chap. xxii. 646-697.
sole, 43, 413, 701, 740, 755. See SOLE TRUSTEE. solicitor, employment of, 771.
solicitor-trustee cannot charge for professional services, 312, 313, 314, 782.
liability to indemnify co-trustee against negligent conduct of trust business, 230 note.
surviving, powers of, 292, 293, 509, 510, 764 et seq. See SURVIVORSHIP.
tort, trustee de son, 214, 231, 532, 798.

TRUSTEE—continued.
tortious conversion by, 270, 1150 et seq., 1243. See CONVERSION.
trade, employing trust fund in, accountable, 307, 350.
trust not permitted to fail for want of, 1073 et seq.
"trustee," use of word, whether devise implied by, 239, 240.
Trustee Acts, within, who is, 835 et seq.
Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42, protected by, 424 et seq.
"unable" to act, 819.
undivided share, of, powers of, 508, 509.
"unfit," 818.
vendor is, sub modo, for purchaser, 162, 259, and see 836, 837.
vouchers, entitled to custody of, 531.
want of, Court will supply, 72, 1073 et seq.
who may be, Chap. iii. s. 2, 29 et seq.
widow of, anciently entitled to dower, 7.
woman, not desirable as a trustee, 37.

TRUSTEE ACTS, 1850, 1852.
repeal of, by Trustee Act, 1893, and replacement of, by Part III. of that Act, 835.
scope and object of, 835, 836.

TRUSTEE ACT, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 52).
Limitation, Statutes of, when trustees protected under (s. 8) . . . 1136 et seq.
provisions of, repealed by Trustee Act, 1893, . . . 1301, 1302.

TRUSTEE ACT, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53). See Act printed in extenso in Appendix No. 1, pp. 1279 et seq.
appointment of new trustees under, 806 et seq., 835 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES.
County Court, jurisdiction of, under, 437.
definition of "trust" and "trustee" under, 835.
disputed question of title not decided under, 835.
investment of trust funds under, 361 et seq. See INVESTMENT.
payment into Court under provisions of, 424 et seq. See PAYMENT INTO COURT.
separate sets of trustees, 828, 829.
vesting orders under, as to land, 844 et seq. See VESTING ORDER.
vesting orders under, as to stock and choses in action, 851 et seq. See VESTING ORDER.

TRUSTEE RELIEF ACTS (10 & 11 Vict. c. 96, 12 & 13 Vict. c. 7). repeal of, and replacement of provisions of, by Trustee Act, 1893, 424 et seq.

ULTRA VIRES, borrowing by directors, effect of, 745.

UNBORN PERSON, power of Court to deal with interest of, 846, 847 note, 848.

UNCERTAINTY.
"missionary purposes," trust for, is void, 169 note.
object of gift, of, a ground for not implying trust, 150 et seq.
subject matter of trust, of, 152, 153.
vesting orders in cases of, 844, 852.

UNCLAIMED DIVIDENDS, trust deed for creditors, under, 617.

UNDERLEASE.
cestui que trust in possession, by, 1130.
fines on granting, tenant for life when entitled to, 446.
title on sale of, deduction of, 519, 520.

UNDERTAKING.
equitable tenant for life, by, on being let into possession, 870.

UNDERTAKING—continued.
sole trustee, by person becoming, to take steps to appoint new trustee, 41, 842.
title-deeds, for safe custody of, 525.
trustee, by, to bring funds into Court, 843 note.

UNDERVALUE.
lease of charity lands set aside on ground of, 638, 639.
compensation in such case, by whom to be paid, 639.
sale by trustee or executor at grossly inadequate value, 501, 562.

UNDERWOOD, treated as income, 876.

UNDIVIDED SHARES.
mortgage of, for raising portions, 497.
investment on, 382.
trustee of, may concur in sale of entirety, 508, 509.

UNDUE INFLUENCE. See FRAUD. release, &c., procured by, invalid, 80, 1200, 1201.

UNDUE PREFERENCE, assignment giving, held fraudulent, 602, 603.

UNFITNESS, of trustee, 818; foreign domicile when a ground of, 40, 41, 819.

UNITED STATES, investment in securities of, 354.

UNIVERSITIES.
exemption of, from Charitable Trusts Acts, 644.
from Mortmain Act, 105.

UNLAWFUL TRUST. Chap. vii. s. 2, 102-123. accumulation, trust for, void if leading to perpetuity, 95.
when void under Accumulations Act, 96 et seq. See ACCUMULATIONS ACT. alien, for, 103. See ALIEN.
alienation, restraint against, 110 et seq.
burial ground restricted to Society of Friends, gift for keeping in repair, 122.
charity, for, 103 et seq. See CHARITY. consequences of creating, 120 et seq.
where trust partly lawful, partly unlawful, 122.
Court will not enforce, 120.
devisee engaging to hold upon, not permitted to profit by wrong, 65.
where engagement is as to indefinite part of estate, 67.
where no trust actually declared, 68.
illegitimate children, trust for future, 103.
immorality, 120, 121.
income tax, for payment of, 120.
insurances for life, 119.
joint tenants, devisee to, procured by fraud of one, 66.
meaning of term, explained, 17, 18.
Mortmain Acts, trust unlawful under provisions of, 104 et seq. See CHARITY.
naval and military services, trust prohibiting entry into, 104.
perpetuity, rule against, application of, to trusts, 95, 108, 109.
restraint against alienation, trust imposing, 106 et seq.
secret trust for charity, 64; or other unlawful purpose, 66, 67.
devisee must discover what the secret trust was, 66, 67.
simony, 119.
Society of Friends, burial ground restricted to, gift for repair of, 122.
splitting votes, 120.
superstitious purposes, 120.
tenants in common, devise to, may be good as to one and void as to another, 66.

UNSOUND MIND.
person of, power of Court to deal with interest of, 846, 860. See LUNATIC.

USAGE, how far evidence in construction of religious trust, 627.
trade or business, of, justifying delegation by trustee, 284 et seq.

USE.
averrable, 53; but not where deed is required to pass estate, 54.
cestui que use empowered to pass legal estate by Stat. 1, Ric. 3. c. 1 . . . 4. charitable, 57. See CHARITY.
copyholds, in surrender of, not within Statute of Frauds, 55 note.
Crown, declaration of use by, must be by letters patent, 54.
definition of, 2.
devise to uses, when legal estate passes to trustees under, 244.
disclaimer of, 222, 223.
estate on which it might be declared, 4; whether on a feoffment in tail, 4, 5 note; whether upon an estate for life, 4 note, 5 note.
executed, is, under statute, whether designated as trust or use, 233.
foreign real estate, cannot be engrafted upon, 50, 51.
land, as to, use and trust distinguished, 6.
origin of, 1.
parol, when it might be declared by, 54; devisable by, before Statute of Wills, 930, 931.
possession distinct from, 6.
powers before Statute of Uses, 764 note.
shifting of fee simple by, allowed, 90.
trust anciently known as, 11.
upon a use not executed by Statute of Uses, 5.
but execution enforced under name of trust, 5.

USES, STATUTE OF.
disclaimer under, 222, 223.
effect of, stated, 5.
power operating under, effect of, 748, 749.
powers anterior to, summary of law as to, 764 note.
special trusts and trusts of chattels not within, 234. See SPECIAL TRUST. vesting legal estate in trustee under, 233 et seq.

USUAL POWERS, 145 et seq.

USURY LAWS, effect of repeal of, as regards charges by mortgagees, 785.

VAGUE TRUST, younger children, for, 134.

VALUATION.
duty of trustees to obtain, on lending money on real security, 373 et seq., 1170.
prior to sale of trust property, 501; or purchase under trust, 585, 586.

VALUE. See CONSIDERATION; INVESTMENT. purchase for, without notice, 3, 16, 276, 1100 et seq. See PURCHASER.

VALUER, employment of, by trustee, 375 et seq.

VARY. rights of c. q. t., trustee cannot vary, 501, 611, 946, 1073, 1111, 1185, 1214 et seq., 1240 et seq.
securities, power to vary, effect of, 333, 364, 371, 542.
exercise of, by trustees, how to be made, 334, 335.
implied in power of investment, 542, 543.
power to give receipts implied by, 542.

VENDOR. See SALE; PURCHASE accountable to purchaser for rent, waste, &c., 161, 162.
incumbrances, not bound to answer inquiry of purchaser as to, 541 note.
but bound to furnish full means of inquiry, 912.
judgment against, after contract to sell, 1031 et seq.
lien of, postponed by negligence, 920, 921. See LIEN.
personal representative of, empowered to convey, 836. receipt, of trustee being, does not prejudice c. q. t., 921.
refusal by, to convey, 836.
trustee sub modo for purchaser, vendor is, 161, 162, 259, 260.
within Trustee Acts, when he is, 835, 836.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER ACT, 1874, . . . 518. contract for sale or purchase, stipulations implied in, 518, 519, 586, 587.

VESTING ESTATE.
in new trustees, 810 et seq., 844 et seq. See NEW TRUSTEES. in trustee under Statute of Uses, 233 et seq.

VESTING OF PORTIONS, 467 et seq. See PORTION.

VESTING ORDER, Chap. xxvi. 843 et seq.
abroad, where trustee is, 844.
absolutely entitled, vesting property in person, 849 note.
absolutely entitled, who is, under s. 35, . . . 853, 854.
administration action, in, 847 note. appointment of new trustees, consequential on, 843, 845, 846, 852.
application for, persons entitled to make, 857.
administration, when next of kin refuses to take out, 855 note.
assignee of bankrupt, of estate of, 837 note.
allegations contained in, when conclusive evidence, 858, 859.
application for, how to be made, 1304.
Bank of England, form of order satisfactory to, 855, 856.
Bank of England, powers of, as to stock of infant under National Debt Stock holders Relief Act, 1892, . . . 857.
Banks of England and Ireland, duty of, to obey order, 855.
charge, subject to, 849 note.
charity, of property of, 843 note, 858.
chose in action, as to, 852 et seq.
consent to, by lord of manor, 852.
contingently interested, application by person who is, 858.
contingent right, where trustee entitled to, 845, 846.
unborn person, of, as to, 846.
"convey," and "conveyance," definition of, 849 note.
convey, power of Court to appoint person to, 850; when exercised, 850.
conveyance, execution of, power of Court to direct, under Judicature Act, 1884, . . . 849 note.
conveyance, in lieu of, 845.
conveyance, is a, and to be framed accordingly, 849.
conveyance of land, consequential on judgment for, 847, 848.
copyholds, effect of vesting order as to, 851, 852.
consent of lord of manor, effect of, 852.
costs, power of Court to charge, on trust estate, 858.
how exercised, 858.
costs, recusant trustee, against, 854.
criminal lunatic, of property of, 864.
date of, estate vests from, 849.
directions as to mode of executing trust not given by Court, 845, 846.

VESTING ORDER—continued.
disability, where person to convey not under, 844 note, 847 note.
dividends, accumulation of, on stock of infant, 857 note.
dividends, apportionment of, not made by Bank of England, 857.
dividends, order severing, from capital objected to by Bank of England, 857.
dividends, receipt for, by person in whom stock vested, 857.
effect of, as to land, 848, 849, 850.
as to stock or chose in action, 855.
equitable mortgage, in action to enforce, 849 note.
evidence, allegations in orders when conclusive, 858, 859.
exchange of land, consequential on judgment for, 848.
executor declining to prove will, in case of, 854 note.
foreclosure action, in, 848, 849.
form of, as to land, 845, 848, 849.
as to stock or chose in action, 852, 853, 855.
found, where trustee cannot be, 844, 852.
government stocks, as to, form of, 856.
incapacity to convey, not condition precedent to making of, 844 note, 847 note.
infant, day to show cause when given to, 849 note.
infant, stock of, statutory powers of Bank of England in reference to, 857.
infant tenant in tail, of estate of, 850.
infant, when declared trustee, 848.
infant, where mortgagee is, 847.
infant, where trustee is, 844, 847, 849 note, 852, 853.
Ireland, as to land in, 860.
jointly, where trustee entitled, 844, 845, 852.
jointure deed, appointment of person to execute, 847 note.
judgment as to land, consequential on, 846, 847, 848.
application for, 1304.
jurisdiction of Court to make, extent of, 845, 846.
jurisdiction, out of, where trustee is, 844, 845, 852, 855 note.
land, as to, under s. 26, 844 et seq.
land, definition of, 844 note.
land out of England, as to, 860.
lease, in suit for specific performance of contract for, 848 note.
leaseholds, as to, 846.
lord of manor, with or without consent of, 851.
lunacy jurisdiction, under, 860 et seq., 1314 et seq. See LUNACY; LUNATIC. lunacy, when made in, as well as in Chancery, 860 note, 862, 863. lunatic trustee, of property of, 861 et seq.; 1314 et seq.
married woman executrix, in case of, 850.
mortgage of land, consequential on judgment for, 847, 848.
mortgagee, in lieu of conveyance by heir, devisee, or personal representative of, 847.
mortgagees, where one of, out of jurisdiction, 836.
National Debt Stockholders Relief Act, 1892, provisions of, 857.
neglect or refusal by trustee to convey, in case of, 845.
neglect to transfer stock, receive dividends, or sue for chose in action, 852, 853, 854.
no heir, where there is, to trustee, 845.
no personal representative, where there is, to trustee of land, 845.
or to trustee of stock or chose in action, 855.
parcels, description of, in order should be clear, 850.
partition, consequential on judgment for, or sale in lieu of, 848.
persons entitled to apply for, 857.
purchaser or purchasers, on application of, 857.

VESTING ORDER—continued.
purchaser or purchasers, in, under special circumstances, 856.
re-appointment of trustees already appointed, for purpose of making, Court will not make, 841.
refusal by trustee to convey, in case of, 845.
or to transfer stock, receive dividends, or sue for chose in action, 853, 854, 855.
married woman, by, 845 note.
wilful, when refusal is, 845 note.
release of contingent right, in place of, 846.
sale of land, consequential on judgment for, 847.
Scotland, not to be made as to land in, 860.
separate orders as to separate parts of estate when made, 850.
service of application for, 1305.
mortgagor, on, dispensed with, 845.
shares in companies, as to, 853.
sole name of deceased trustee, where stock in, 855.
specific performance, consequential on judgment for, 847, 848.
stamp duty on, 813.
stock, appointment of person to transfer, 855.
stock, as to, 852 et seq.
"stock," definition of, 853.
suit, where new trustee appointed in a, 843 note.
title, forming link in, should be prepared with care, 850.
"transfer," definition of, 854.
transfer of stock, appointment of person to make, 855.
statutory power of person in whom right vested, 857.
"trust" and "trustee," definition of, 835.
unborn persons, as to property of, 846, 847.
expression includes heirs of a living person, 848 note.
uncertainty, in case of, as to survivorship, 844, 845.
or as to whether trustee alive or dead, 844, 845, 852.
or who is heir or personal representative or devisee of trustee, 844, 845.
unsound mind, of, where trustee out of jurisdiction is, 844 note.
where infant trustee is, 846 note.
where trustee is, 859 et seq. See LUNACY; LUNATIC.

VESTRY, meaning of term, 93 note.

VISITOR, 620 et seq.
Court does not interfere with jurisdiction of, 620.
Crown is, in civil corporations, through King's Bench Division, 622 note.
may be, in eleemosynary corporations, 622.
visitatorial power of, committed to Lord Chancellor, 622.
founder of charity is, by common right, 620.
gift to charity whether subject to visitatorial power, 621.

VOIDABLE. See INFANT; LUNATIC; VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

VOID DEED.
trustee of, when entitled to charge for expenses, 795.
when entitled to costs, 1270.

VOLUNTARY.
agreement, Court will not enforce specific performance of, though under seal, 86, 1221.
how far provable in equity as a debt, 87 note.
bond creates a debt, 87 note.

VOLUNTARY—continued.
covenant, 86 note, 1221. See COVENANT.
promissory note, original payee cannot recover upon, against the maker, 87 note.
accompanied with deposit of deeds, 87 note.
delivery of, on condition, not a trust, 16.

VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCES ACT, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 21) . . . 81.

VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.
Bankruptcy Act, 1883, when avoided under, 85, 86.
chattels personal, of, not within 27 Eliz. c. 4. . . . 81.
complete, may be, though words of futurity used, 80.
consideration for, may be proved by extrinsic evidence, 82.
costs of action to set aside, 795, 1270.
covenant to settle future property when void under Bankruptcy Act, 1883, . . . 86.
covenant, voluntary, when debt is created by, 86, 87 note.
creditors, when invalid as against, under 13 Eliz. c. 5, 82 et seq., 599, 603, 604, 609.
insolvency of settlor, 82.
judgment against voluntary settlor, effect of, 1037 note, not invalid if settlor was solvent at time of making it, 83.
unless there was fraud, 83.
revocability of, 604 et seq.
subsequent creditors, how far void as against, 84.
delay when a bar to right to set aside, 85.
donee under, incurring expense, not a volunteer but may call for conveyance, 79.
effectual, if sealed and delivered, although retained by settlor, 79.
equitable property, of, when trust perfectly created by, 71, 74.
where settlor appoints stranger trustee, 77.
where new trust created without new trustee, 78.
expectancy, of, 78.
assignment of, under seal, not enforced in equity, 78 note.
fraud or mistake a ground for avoiding, 80, 599.
gift, every person sui juris can make a, 75.
lands or chattels real, of, formerly defeasible by subsequent sale by settlor, 80, 81.
secus now, under Voluntary Conveyances Act, 1893, . . 81.
judgment against settlor not binding on, 1037 note.
legal property, of, when trust perfectly created by, 71, 72.
where settlor appoints stranger trustee, 73.
where legal property incapable of legal transfer, 74, 75.
meritorious consideration, agreement founded on, not enforced against settlor, 87.
notice of, when necessary or effectual, 79, 902, 913.
policy of assurance, of, by letter to trustees of settlement, 75.
resulting trust under, 164.
revocable by settlor, is not, 79, 80; unless merely in favour of creditors, 605 et seq.
set aside, may be, on grounds of fraud, 80.
specific performance of, not enforced in equity, 86; secus where grantee lays out money on strength of it, 79, 927.
stock, &c., of, is within 13 Eliz. c. 5, 85.
subsequent acts and deeds, may acquire validity by, 87 note.
trust supported if perfectly created, 71.

VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT—continued.
distinction between voluntary assignment of expectancy and interest, 78.
no trust unless intention to create it, 88.
trustees of, entitled to costs, charges, and expenses, though deed set aside, 795

VOLUNTARY TRUST, when enforced by Court, 73 et seq.

VOLUNTEER.
assign of trust estate presumed to have notice, 14, 207.
covenant for further assurance does not confer additional right on, 929.
equity will not constitute a trust for a, 74.
notice implied as against, 1099.
notice of assignment not necessary as to volunteers, 902, 913.
time no bar to express trust in favour of, 1124.
trust estate followed into hands of, 1099, 1124, 1146.

VOTE.
coroner, for, right to, 262.
member of Parliament, trustee cannot vote for, 262, 263.
purchase for purpose of giving, 120, 188; does not raise resulting trust, 188.
unqualified candidate, for, thrown away, 633.

VOUCHERS.
cestui que trust may inspect, but must pay for copies of, 531, 887, 888.
trustees entitled to custody of, 531.

WAIVER. breach of trust, remedy for, not waived by c. q. t. receiving satisfaction in part, 1198.
consideration for, 1199.
lien, of, by proof in bankruptcy, 1184.
married woman, by, of her equity to a settlement, 953 note, 954.
meaning of term, 1200.
trustee, by, of notice under Settled Land Acts, 670.

WARD. See GUARDIAN; INFANT.

WASTE, 209 et seq.
account in respect of, 209.
right to, barred by laches, 1118.
coal taken under compulsory powers, tenant for life not entitled to compensation, 211 note.
collusion by owner of first vested estate of inheritance, 211.
contingent remainders, trustee to preserve, bound to prevent waste, 137.
equitable, 209 et seq.
executory trust, tenant for life under, when to be made dispunishable for waste, 137, 596.
infant, trustee for, must not commit, 716.
interest on proceeds of, when and from what time charged, 209, 210, 211, 715.
Limitations, Statute of, when beginning to run, 209.
mines, by opening, 211.
permissive, 266; by equitable tenant for life, 711; by legal, ib.
Settled Land Act, 1882, powers of tenant for life under, 211, 212. See SETTLED LAND ACTS.
tenant for life without impeachment of waste, trustee should not purchase timbered estate in favour of, 589.
timber felled, who entitled to, 209 et seq. See TIMBER.
trustee for purchasing should frame conveyance with reference to, 596.
underwoods and thinnings treated as income, 876.

WASTING PROPERTY.
duty of trustee to convert, when given to persons in succession, 332, 333.
unless intention shown to give right of enjoyment in specie, 333.

WATER COMPANY, investment in stock of, 363, 364.

WEST INDIES.
equities relating to estate in, enforced here, 49.
mortgagees of estate in, compensation allowed to, 785.
trustee of estate in, whether entitled to commission, 781.

WESTMINSTER, STATUTE OF, 1028.

WIDOW, small sum ordered to be paid to, without administration, 412.

WIFE. See MARRIED WOMAN.
presumption of advancement in favour of, 164, 198.

WILFUL DEFAULT, account on footing of, when directed, 1148, 1167 et seq.

WILL.
ademption of legacy by subsequent advance by parent, 474 et seq.
alien, of, 26 note.
ambulatory till testator's death, 61.
attesting witness, trustee of legacy may be, 306 note.
Bank of England, need not now be entered or registered at, 32.
chattels personal, life estate in, cannot be conferred by will at common law, 91; secus, in equity, 91.
codicil republishing will, effect of, 480.
revocation of appointment of "trustee" or "executor" by, 240.
conversion confined to purposes of, 171, 1230.
conversion by, doctrine of, 1214 et seq. See CONVERSION.
copyholds, of, 55 note, 931.
of equitable estate in, 931, 932.
under Wills Act, 932.
where no custom to devise legal estate, 931.
customary freeholds, of, 931, 932.
declaration of trust of property comprised in, 60.
deed may operate as part of, 61 note.
devise to trustee when to be construed to pass fee simple, 243, 244.
equitable estate, creation of, by will, 60.
devise of, by will, 930.
executory trust in, construction of, 128 et seq. See EXECUTORY TRUST.
formalities requisite to execution of, 60, 932.
fraud by heir, devisee or legatee, trusteeship arising by, 63, 64.
freeholds, of, under Statute of Frauds, 60, 930, 931.
of equitable estate in, 931.
under Wills Act, 932.
"heir male," construction of, 135.
"heirs," fee simple passing without use of word, 238. See HEIRS.
incorporation of other documents in, 62.
infant of fourteen might make, of personal estate, secus now, 24, 1217.
joint tenant, devise procured by fraud of, wholly void, 66.
land to be converted into money, of, 1223, 1224.
legal estate, quantum of, to be taken by trustee, 237 et seq.
married woman, of, as to separate estate, 966 et seq., 994 et seq.
under power, 996 et seq., 1224.
money to be laid out in land, of, 1217, 1240.
notice of, purchaser not affected by, 561.
nuncupative, of copyholds, 55 note.

WILL—continued.
personal estate, general gift of, what property passes under, 179, 1223, 1233.
will of, under Statute of Frauds, 60, 1240.
under Wills Act, 11, 60.
power exercisable by, 769.
power to appoint by, class taking under, in default of appointment, 152, 1080.
residuary devise, effect of, 98.
resulting trust, where devisee made trustee by will but no trust declared, 62.
revocation of, whether effected by dealing with equitable estate, 932.
secret trust, parol evidence of, when admissible, 65.
sovereign, of, 20.
Statutes of Wills, Chap. v. s. 3, 60-70.
tenants in common, devise to, may be good as to one and void as to another, 66.
testamentary expenses, what are, 800, 801.
transfer of stock on production of probate of, 32.
trusts cannot be created without formalities requisite to legal devises or bequests, 60.
therefore trust cannot be declared of property comprised in, except by testamentary instrument, 60; secus, in case of fraud, 65.
testamentary disposition distinguished from declaration of trust, 60, 61.
parol evidence, admission and rejection of, as against title of executors, 64.
unlawful trust, devise not void simply because devisee means to execute, 67.
unlawful trust, secret engagement by legatee to execute, 66.
use, devise of, 930.
uses, devise to, construction of, 233 note, 244.

"WILLING AND DESIRING," may create a trust, 148

WILLS, STATUTES OF, Chap. v. s. 3, 60-70.
devise to uses, construction of, 233, 234, 244.
equitable interest in land, devise of, 932.
trustee, devise to, 245.
trusts cannot be created by devise or bequest, without formalities required for wills, 60, 61.
as to personal estate, 62.
except in case of fraud, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65.

WINDFALLS, who entitled to, 211 note.

WOMAN.
married. See MARRIED WOMAN.
single. See FEME SOLE.

WOOD. See TIMBER.

WORDS.
"absolute" assignment, 918 note.
"absolutely entitled," 528.
"acting executor," 806.
"acting" trustee, 290, 826, 914.
"actual possession," 140 note.
"alienation," 115, 117.
"applied" distinguished from "paid," 113.
"approved securities," 381.
"assign," 116, 258 et seq.
"at home," where property is, 756, 757, 1220, 1221, 1225.
"attempting" to assign, 117.
"authorising and empowering," 149, 1079.

WORDS—continued.
"bare trustee," 246 note.
"beseeching," 149.
"chapel," 623.
"charitable institutions," 123 note.
"charitable or other purposes," 153.
"charity property," 631 note.
"chiefest and discreetest," 93.
"children," 1082.
"closely entailed," 596.
"company incorporated by Act of Parliament," 351.
"concealed fraud," 1121 note.
confidence, words of, may raise a trust, 149.
"continuance of the trust," 756.
"continuing" trustee, 818, 825.
"convenient speed," 321, 501, 751.
"convey, conveyance," 849 note.
"debenture," 352.
"declining" to act, 816.
"desire," trust created by, 148, 797.
"desirous of being discharged," 428.
"devisee," 930 note.
"discovert," 977.
"disposition," 21.
"dividends," 334.
"due regard," 631.
"during coverture," 996 note.
"ecclesiastical purposes, for," 625.
"eldest" son or child, 460 et seq.
"emigration uses," 169 note.
"employ" money, 350.
"endowment," 644.
"enfranchisement," 679.
"estate or interest in land," 1039.
"executors," 754.
"expressly forbidden," 362.
"family," 151.
"finding a master," trust for, 631.
"foreign funds," 354.
"form" of investment, 323.
"free grammar school," "free school," 630.
"funds," 355.
"future interest," 21.
"good faith," 668 note.
"government" or "good securities," 354, 388.
"grant," 522, 882.
"heir female," 131.
"heir male," 134, 135.
"heirs of the body," 129, 131, 134, 135, 136, 1103. See HEIRS OF THE BODY.
"incapable," 818, 819.
"incidental," 685.
"inclosing," 674 note.
"incumbrance," 101.
"in his own right," 1042 note.
"insurable property," 330, 719.
"interest in possession," 1143.

WORDS—continued.
"interfere with or affect" settlement, 1006.
"in the character of trustee," 669 note.
"in trust," 233.
"invest," "investment," 380.
"issue," 131, 136.
"it shall be lawful," 440.
"judgment," 1056.
"just allowances," 309.
"land," 101, 104 note, 106, 108.
"lands," 1055.
"lawfully detained as a lunatic," 860.
"legal disability," 118.
"legally established," 642 note.
maintenance, what words create trust for, 157.
"medical charities," 624 note.
"missionary purposes," 169 note.
"money liable to be laid out in land," 359, 360.
"my real estates," 253.
"necessary in character of trustee," 861.
"necessary occasions" of church, 632.
"next of kin," 1084.
"other trustees," 825.
"parishioners," 92 et seq., 624, 633.
"park," 673.
"party by law enabled to declare trust," 59.
"pay and transfer," 881.
"pay" or "permit to receive," 235, 236.
"person claiming through trustee," 1141.
"personal estate," 179.
"personal representatives," 807, 808.
"poor relations," 1076 et seq.
"poor," relief of, 623, 624, 632.
"present right to receive," 1135.
"promotion of godly learning," 625.
"proper entail on heir male," 135.
"proper" powers, 146.
"provide suitably," 134.
"public purposes," 18.
"purchase for value," 1055.
"ratepayers," 94.
"real estate," 102.
"real security," 381.
"reasonably," 1105, 1170, 1171.
"recommend," 149, 797.
"refuse," 806, 816, 825.
"relations," 151, 1082.
"rents," 334.
"rents and profits," 442 et seq., 495.
"reparation," 632.
"request," 148.
"require," 348, 382, 767.
"residuary devise," 179 note.
"residuary executor," 179.
"residue," 178, 179.
"respective," 753.

WORDS—continued.
"retiring" trustee, 428.
"said trustees," 826.
"scheme legally established," 642 note.
"securities" for money, 254, 351.
separate use, implying, 971.
"settled land," 681 note.
"settlement," 646 et seq.
"shall and may," in Act of Parliament, 294 note.
"sole," 971 note, 971.
"strict entail," 136, 596.
"strict settlement," 143, 596.
"subject thereto," 177.
supplied in marriage articles, 133.
"survivor," "surviving trustee," 755, 824.
"testamentary" expenses, 800, 801.
"true owner," 274.
"trust" in Trustee Acts, 366, 835.
"trust" or "trustee" does not necessarily exclude a beneficial gift, 170.
"trust," use of word, not necessary to constitute express trust, 1125.
"trustee," "trustee of inheritance," 239, 240.
"trustees for time being, 755.
"unable to act," 819.
"unfit," 818.
"usual powers," 145, 146.
"vested interest," 631 note.
"wholly maintained by voluntary contributions," 644.
"wish," 148.

WORSHIP OF GOD, construction of trust for maintaining, 625.

WRIT.
distringas, of, 1249 et seq. See DISTRINGAS. execution of, at common law, 1028 et seq. ; under 27 & 28 Vict. c. 112, 1047.
extent, of, 1057.
ne exeat, of, against trustee, 1160.
registration of, when affecting land, 1055, 1056.

WRITING.
assignment of equitable interest by, 890.
chose in action now assignable by, 76, 892 note, 919.
married woman can bind separate property without, 979 et seq.
notice of assignment whether to be in, 914, 918, 919.
request for sale to be testified by, 508.
trust, when necessary for creation of, 57 et seq.
trustee may sue before accepting trust by, 228.

WRONGDOER not permitted to profit by his own wrong, 210 note, 1026 note.

YEAR, first after death of testator, right to income during, 335 et seq., 401.

YEARLY TENANT, limited owner holding as, cannot renew for own benefit, 203.

YORKSHIRE REGISTRIES ACT.
"grant bargain and sell" imply covenants for title, 882.
official search under, 587.

YOUNGER CHILDREN, who regarded as, entitled to portions, 460 et seq., 465.

FINIS.